It is impossible completely to evaluate the significance of such a statement. These phrases, coming from the head of the state, constitute a public acknowledgment of the position which this industry occupies in the world-wide order and at last give official utterance to convictions which the more sober-minded within the business long have entertained on its behalf.

Now these convictions are of the record. The recognition is great and, hopefully, the industry will pause sufficiently to heed by not tossing it aside lightly. The recognition, further, suggests the exercise of a greater pride. It suggests a more pronounced determination to covet, to guard and, needfully, to enhance in all intelligent ways the appraisal which now falls from Mr. Roosevelt's official lips.

Essentially, this weaves and inter-weaves with "the importance of the motion picture industry as the most popular medium of mass entertainment." That importance, of course, will continue. But, as this very page has been emphasizing on different occasions these several years, there is another function which rides along with the primary one because the two are indivisible. The function is communication. Communication of thoughts, ideas and ideals, policies geared to the public good are part of the industry's job and to think it can be escaped, ignored or glossed over impresses us with the same futility as whistling in the dark.

Some Evidence on Stature

MORE and more, as the weeks pass and the emergencies rise will this become apparent. It takes evidence now in all sorts of films explaining the defense program. It takes evidence, off and on the screen alike, in the form of the Will Rogers, the Red Cross, the infantile paralysis and now the forthcoming Greek relief drives.

The part which this business, created for purposes of entertainment, will be called upon to fill in the field of public service will increase. Those who make their living in films and who draw their profits from them must recognize this in measure far beyond the substantial measure now prevailing.

For this industry, believing itself a private enterprise, actually is nothing of the sort. Constantly in the national spotlight, its performance goes beyond entertainment. It is, or can be, a vital adjunct to social and economic progress. In those directions, much of its future job reposes.

DOWN DECREE GROOVE, IS METRO PROMISE; FIRST FORMAL PLEDGE

No Auction Block Sales, No Subterfuges; Will Deliver Full Line

NEW YORK—In the first formal declaration of policy among the "Big Five" in respect to operations under the decree, M-G-M states the company "has no idea of placing our product on the auction block, but will, wherever the relationship is satisfactory, continue in the future, as in the past, to first offer our product to our present customers."

Thus setting forth the "position of our company," William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, has sent letters to all M-G-M accounts, numbering more than 10,000, and goes on in this manner:

"We will not price our merchandise beyond the possibilities of our customers to pay; we are not now, nor will we in the future, seek any subterfuges in selling short subjects, newsreels or trailers. Every unit of our output will stand on its own merit.

To Accept Judgments

"We will recognize any claim for arbitration as provided in the decree, and will vigorously, yet fairly, defend our position where we feel we are right; yet in any instance where final judgment is rendered against us, it will be accepted graciously and without any hard feelings in any direction.

"We will deliver not less than our minimum obligation of features and short subjects this year, and be prepared to trade show and offer a group of pictures for early fall release, sometime in June or July we hope, but in any event far enough in advance to protect playing time of our anticipated customers." The company is committed to deliver a minimum of 44 features for 1940-41.

Too Much Criticism

Rodgers opens his letter with the observation that it appears there is far too much emphasis placed upon the "mistaken theory that the decree is impractical," and too little evidence of desire to give its principles the support necessary for at least a fair trial. "That it will be costly to us is admitted," he asserts, adding: "It is not flawless, and undoubtedly under its administration some will be dissatisfied; yet I am unwilling to admit it is either unworkable or impractical."

At another point, Rodgers declares: "I firmly believe that we, as an industry, are big enough and sufficiently visionary to recognize we are on the threshold of an era of great opportunity. It therefore seems to me full advantage should be taken of that which is before us and use to the fullest extent whatever talents we possess in a supreme effort to bring back to the theatre those patrons who may be seeking their amusements in other directions."

Ponder War Taxes; Would Be Sky High

WASHINGTON—Personal exemptions cut to $1,000 for heads of families and $500 for single persons, a normal income tax rate of six per cent and surtaxes reaching 93 per cent on net incomes in excess of $23,000 are in sight in the event of war, together with corporation income taxes running from 15 per cent on income up to two per cent of the adjusted declared value of the corporation's capital stock to 100 per cent on income in excess of six per cent of the declared value of the capital stock.

These rates, together with many restrictive changes in the present revenue act, are contemplated in bills which have been introduced in Congress over the past few days by a number of members of both Senate and House who, in the event of war, will be the nucleus of a high-tax bloc.

Submitted without any fanfare, the bills have practically escaped all notice so far, which apparently is what the members of the bloc desire. The purpose of the legislation, as summarized in the title of the measures, is "to tax the profits out of war by steeply graduated income and other taxes in order to provide for effective national defense, to promote peace, to encourage actual neutrality, to discourage war profiteering, to distribute the burdens

Pathe Monogram Backing Negotiations Continue

NEW YORK—Negotiations for Pathe to finance Monogram production for 1941-42 continue with W. Ray Johnston, president of the producing-distributing company, remaining in the east until they are concluded. Pathe Laboratories has been financing Monogram for the past number of years and no hitches are contemplated.

21 on UA's Lineup For Next Season

NEW YORK—UA will offer 21 pictures for 1941-42. Titles and who will make them, including a few new producers beyond the current roster of 14, will be divulged shortly.

The contributing producers will have the benefit of a distribution cost to them below the existing 25 per cent rate.

This was revealed by Murray Silverstone, head of world operations, upon his return from an extended visit on the coast. The new distribution plan, which he termed "revolutionary," is designed to attract "the greatest producers in the industry on terms to make it worth their while." The arrangement, details of which he would not divulge, is an "extension" of the so-called Silverstone bonus plan, through which individual producers receive a "kick back" on films that garner meritorious grosses.

Silverstone also said the company "very quickly" will form a new financing subsidiary, which he said would be the first of its kind in UA's history. It will be de-

Korda Denies He Is Bar To Goldwyn Stock Sale

HOLLYWOOD—Denying emphatically he is the stumbling block to negotiations for the sale by Samuel Goldwyn of his stock in UA, Alexander Korda, a one-fifth owner in the company, stated on his arrival from New York he sees no reason why the deal should not go through.

Goldwyn will return his stock to the corporation, according to contract, but whether or not David O. Selznick will purchase it remains to be seen. Selznick has been reported after the one-fifth share.

Korda's plans call for three pictures next season. He is now busy on the next Merle Oberon to be directed by Julien Duvivier, the title of which has not been set. "That Hamilton Woman" with Miss Leigh and Laurence Olivier is dated to open in the Music Hall, New York, April 3. Korda does not plan to attend the premiere, he said, but will make another trip here later.

Sunday, the New York Times reported from Hollywood, David O. Selznick had been offered a UA partnership "to insure the renewal of his contract." The report further declared, "Those close to the producer say that he has no intention of buying the stock—a reference to Samuel Goldwyn's one-fifth interest—and his future connection remains in doubt."

The same source stated Ernst Lubitsch will return to M-G-M after one more for UA.

INDUSTRY'S STOCK SEEN RISING FOLLOWING ACCOLADE BY F. D. R.

Public Acknowledgment Of Trade Importance In Nat'l Affairs

By EARLE A. DYER

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt's address to the Academy is seen here as an accolade denoting a very definite acceptance of the industry's importance in the national picture and as an elevation in rank which has been earned by the whole industry, from the producers who make the pictures that aid in cementing the nation into a democratic unit to the exhibitors who bring those pictures before the people at whom they are aimed.

Directly addressing the industry for the first time since the World War, a President of the United States has publicly acknowledged the importance of motion pictures in keeping the public informed of national developments, in supporting the morale of the nation and in furthering friendly accord with other countries.

Important Role in Defense

Observers in Washington see in the President's action in talking to the industry directly a definite purpose to bring it into the family of defense industries—not a bid to help in the defense program, because help was voluntarily tendered by the industry—but an announcement to the country that motion pictures have a definite part to play in defense along with armament, oil and other essential industries.

Indirectly, of course, the message was another needle in the hide of Congress, designed to speed up action affirmatively on the British aid bill now being talked threadbare in the Senate. More directly, it was a barb directed toward the dictatorships, who admittedly do not like our free-speaking motion pictures, and a reminder to the great American public that here was a medium of speech, ungagged and unrestrained, upon which they could depend —an outstanding example of the freedom of democracy.

Field of Greatest Service

In his brief talk to the Academy, Mr. Roosevelt outlined the field in which motion pictures can immediately render the greatest service—that of improving our relations with the Latin American republics, but he did not belittle the service they are rendering here at home through the newsreels, and his omission of the defense pictures which are being produced for domestic exhibition was seen in Washington merely a desire not to place the stigma of deliberate propaganda upon an effort to bring about solidarity at home.

In other directions, however, observers in the capital discount the effects of the President's remarks. They do not believe they will have any effect upon efforts in Congress to deal with the industry legislatively, pointing out that nothing in the address could be taken as a blanket endorsement of industry practices which have been under attack.

Nor do they believe that the address will have any particular effect upon business and financial circles, which are less concerned with the esoteric aspects of the industry than with its soundness and money-making prospects.

Text of the President's address on page 15.

Again on Self-Containment

NEW YORK—For the second time in less than two weeks, financial opinion, as it might be reflected, at least, by the Wall Street Journal, stresses domestic self-containment for the industry.

The first reference; as reported in BOXOFFICE at the time:

"The American film industry has already suffered the worst of the decline in revenues from abroad and any further drop from this point will be relatively unimportant in comparison with large domestic revenues. In other words, the industry may be considered very nearly on a domestically self-contained basis."

This week again, in an article by Sydney B. Self:

"By late spring or summer, it seems likely that the industry, as a whole, will be back close to normal earning power, although deriving its income principally from the home market."

Metro Loses British Remittance Argument

NEW YORK—Milton J. Handler, arbiter, handed down a decision in favor of the seven major companies on the question of allocation of British remittances for the second year. M-G-M had objected to the method set up the previous year which provided for a distribution on gross rather than net income.

In this connection, M-G-M contended it entered the agreement the first year because it was simple and also that it did not expect to have any funds left over on which a question would arise. Another argument brought up by M-G-M was that its company operates cheaper on the basis of the number of pictures released in England and hence was entitled to benefit by this policy.

Representing M-G-M were J. Robert Rubin and Samuel D. Cohen. Joseph H. Hazen of the Warner home office legal staff acted for the other seven majors. Handler's opinion was covered in 14 pages.

Six Open With "Doe"

NEW YORK—Six theatres in three key cities will open simultaneously with "Meet John Doe" on March 12. They are the Rivoli and Hollywood in New York, Hollywood and Downtown, Los Angeles, and Paramount and Beach in Miami.

Mrs. Michael Shea Dead

BUFFALO—Mrs. Michael Shea, wife of the late founder of the Shea circuit, is dead after a long illness. Funeral services were held the early part of the week.

Will Set 20th-Fox Program in April

HOLLYWOOD—Conferences on next season's production lineup will get under way early in April at the 20th-Fox studios when a number of home office executives will convene here for the discussions. Expected within the next few weeks are Sidney R. Kent, president; Herman Wobber, general sales manager; Charles E. McCarthy, director of publicity and advertising, and Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board who has been spending the past month in New York.

While Schenck has been in the east he has been going over prospective plans with Kent and Wobber. The local sessions are contingent upon his arrival, but he is expected to be preceded by the other home office executives.

Felix A. Jenkins, general counsel, has been making a tour of the country explaining the decree to sales staffs. He was here over the weekend and met with National Theatres' executives who arrived in Los Angeles for a few days before proceeding to Arrowhead where they started a divisional managers annual meeting beginning Thursday.

Spyros Skouras arrived by plane Wednesday. He had expected to make a trip to Miami before landing here, but called it off the last minute.

Awards in the recent National Theatres Showmanship Campaign were distributed by Skouras at the convention in Arrowhead. John F. Caskey of Dwight, Harris, Koegel & Caskey came on from New York to explain the decree to the assembled theatre executives. He has been one of the 20th-Fox attorneys who sat in on the negotiations in New York.

Tour East on Decree

NEW YORK—Fred Pride of Dwight, Harris, Koegel & Caskey and William Sussman, eastern division head, visited Albany, Buffalo, Boston and New Haven 20th-Fox exchanges during the week on the decree.

Ind'p'ts Fight Each Other Under Decree

NEW YORK—It's a case of independent versus independent largely in complaints thus far filed under the arbitration machinery of the decree although affiliated theatres have not escaped entirely.

A resume of the 17 cases filed during February, the first full month of arbitration, further reveals that, of the total, 13 deal with clearance disputes, as defined in Section VII of the decree, and four with "some run," covered generally in Section VI. Two cases fall into both classifications, each of them filing a double demand on clearance and "some run."

What the cases are, who filed them and on what date, plus designation as to the order of filing in each tribunal city follow:

Boston

CASE No. 1—Filed February 13. Demand and submission involving dispute under Section VI (some run), Paulston, Inc. Benjamin Gold, general manager. With: Paramount Film Dist. Corp., Loew's, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., and 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. Interested party: Colonial, Nashua, N. H.; M. A. Shea circuit.

CASE No. 2—Filed February 26. Demand and submission involving clearance dispute. Garbose Bros., Athol, Mass. With: Paramount Film Dist. Corp., Loew's, Inc., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., Vitagraph, Inc., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., RKO Theatres, Maine and New Hampshire Theatres Co., Loew's Boston Theatres. Other theatres named in controversy: York, Metropolitan, Paramount and Fenway, Boston; Fitchburg, Fitchburg. Named as interested party: George A. Giles Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Chicago

CASE No. 1—Filed February 13. Demand and submission involving some run dispute. E. F. Van Derveer, owner, State Theatre, Morris, Ill. With: Loew's, Inc. Named as interested parties: Morris, Times theatres both of Morris, Ill.

CASE No. 2—Filed February 18. Demand and submission involving some run (Section VI). Ken Theatre Corp. With: Paramount Film Dist. Corp., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., B. F. Keith Orpheum Corp., RKO Proctor Corp., RKO Midwest Corp. Theatres involved: Shakespeare, Pix. Named as interested parties: Arthur Schoenstadt, H. Schoenstadt and Sons.

Cleveland

CASE No. 1—Filed February 15. Demand and submission involving clearance dispute. Ellet Amusement Co. With: Paramount Pictures, Inc., Paramount Film Dist. Corp., Loew's, Inc., Loew's Film Dist. Co., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., W. L. Hart, Cooperative Theatres of Ohio, Inc., Milton Mooney. Named as interested parties: Norka, Rialto and Ellet theatres.

Chronology

New York—This is what happened by the calendar during February, first full month during which arbitration functioned under the decree. Dates, of course, tell when complaints were filed. By referring to the cities alongside the dates but in the accompanying article, the whole picture rounds out:

Filing Date	City of Filing
Feb. 7	Washington
Feb. 13	Boston, Chicago, Washington
Feb. 15	Cleveland
Feb. 17	Detroit, New Orleans
Feb. 18	Chicago, New York
Feb. 19	Dallas

Named as interested parties: Cooperative Theatres of Michigan, Inc., Mutual Theatres, both Detroit.

Stage Hit to Columbia; Sherwood Makes Trio

NEW YORK—Columbia will distribute the Pulitzer prize winner, "The Time of Your Life," with the author, William Saroyan, and Lester Cowan as producers. The deal calls for more than 50 per cent of the financing to come from a bank with Columbia providing the studio. Cowan is also producer for Columbia of "Ladies in Retirement."

Robert M. Sherwood has signed to produce three pictures for Columbia, with the financing ostensibly handled privately by himself. He made "Adam Had Four Sons."

Men and Events

As Viewed by Red Kann

HOW one exhibitor approaches the matter of what he terms "pictures which punch below the belt" reaches the desk via Postmaster General Frank C. Walker's efficient carriers. E. A. Stein, occasionally appearing in these columns, this time comments on "This Thing Called Censorship," two weeks' ago editorial which did a bit of probing into the possible reason (s) behind the original condemnation of "This Thing Called Love" by the Legion of Decency.

Stein, who operates the Out-Wickenburg-Way Theatre, Wickenburg, Ariz., has something to say. Of course and now and always, he and all other comers get their chance:

Reading your editorial in the February 22 issue of BOXOFFICE prompts me to make a few remarks:

As you outline, since the advent of the picture, "Vivacious Lady," more and more pictures are being made by Hollywood which punch below the belt.

Recently, the number has been increasing in leaps and bounds.

Why?

We'll have to go back a bit for the answer.

When motion pictures found their voice the people in the industry became enthusiastic about the future. They worked very hard, reinvested every cent they could make in their own business and spared nothing to make the talking picture "our greatest entertainment." With public appreciation of this effort reflected in boxoffice takes, the production people were spurred on to even greater efforts. They enjoyed their work obviously, for it showed through on the screen.

Eventually, these people began to make large sums of money.

Soon the wrinkles in their bellies disappeared.

Unfortunately, with the wrinkles there also disappeared the zest for work and the singleness of purpose. Making motion pictures became only a job and the zest was saved for horse racing and kindred diversions.

The LACK of zest for what was being done also showed through on the screen and it was not long before the public sensed the lack and failed to line up at the boxoffice.

That about brings us up to date.

Now what is going on?

Instead of the producing people getting back down to business and cutting away the dead wood of outside interests, they are trying to give languidly-made product a shot in the arm through the use of risque and suggestive material.

What result can be expected?

Already people all over the country are beginning to keep their children away from the movies until they investigate individual pictures.

If the epidemic continues to spread what is going to happen?

With the loss of FAMILY TRADE, movies will slip back to the status they enjoyed (?) during the era when every picture had either an illegitimate child or a killing. Belts were worn very tight in those days.

Something over a year ago your magazine reported the happenings at an important gathering in the east at which an experienced old-timer in the entertainment business made a reply to the assertion that talking pictures had "killed" vaudeville. He said " . . . talking pictures were not responsible. Vaudeville was killed by its own dirt and smut."

"Let those with understanding give heed."

Unquote.

And Now Ohio

AMONG the all other comers are two communications from Pete Wood, secretary of the ITOA of Ohio. First is a letter dispatched directly to this desk:

Felicitations upon your editorial, "This Thing Called Censorship" which, taken in conjunction with Jack Cohn's letter to the Legion of Decency, is simply another indication of the spinelessness of some of the leaders of the industry.

Here we have an instance of a script O. K.'d by Joe Breen which contains matter that he must know is fundamentally objectionable to the Legion of Decency; Columbia is given the green light to go ahead, they spend their money and then, because a few individuals suffer from indigestion on the day they review the picture, they raise a howl, and the producer, instead of showing just a mite of courage, cringes and apologizes, admits that he has sinned and agrees to meet a demand that he correct something that does not need correction.

I saw all of the pictures you list in your editorial and, as all of them except, of course, "No Time for Love" were given a "B" rating or better, it is high time that the Legion of Decency consulted the dictionary to learn the meaning of the word, "consistent."

I sent you a copy of the letter I wrote Father McClafferty yesterday and I hope that you can see your way clear to give both that and this communication space in your publication.

Wood's Letter

THE space, indeed, is available and now Wood's letter to Father McClafferty, executive secretary of the Legion of Decency:

I have noticed the agitation in connection with "This Thing Called Love" and, after viewing the picture as it was passed by the Ohio board of censors, I am wondering why the Legion has objected so strenuously.

First, let me say to you that no one has

"A National and International Force"

WASHINGTON—Highlights of the President's remarks to the 13th annual awards dinner of the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences appeared in the eastern edition of BOXOFFICE last week.

The complete text now follows:

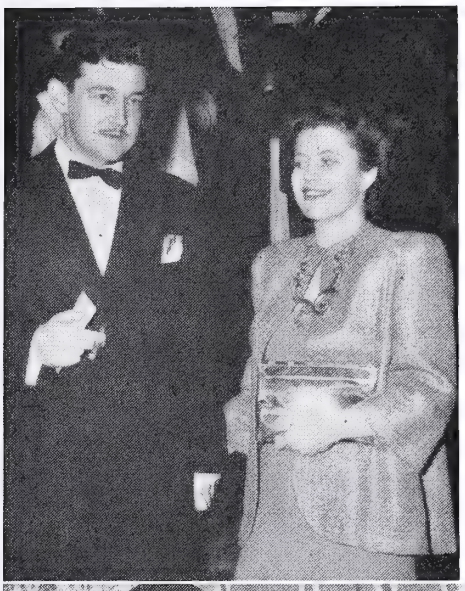
I am happy to greet the motion picture industry of America, whose representatives are gathered from far and near for the Annual Awards Dinner of the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences.

In these days of anxiety and world peril our hearts and minds and all of our energies are directed toward one objective. That objective is the strengthening of our national defense. Every day we realize that more and more things in our life must be evaluated in just such proportion as they contribute to the national defense.

The American motion picture as a national and international force is a phenomenon of our own generation. Within living memory we have seen it born and grow up into full maturity. We have seen the American motion picture become foremost in the world. We have seen it reflect our civilization throughout the rest of the world—the aims and aspirations and ideals of a free people and of freedom.

That is the real reason that some governments do not want our American films exhibited in their countries. Dictators—those who enforce the totalitarian form of government—think it a dangerous thing for their unfortunate peoples to know that in our democracy officers of the government are the servants, never the masters, of the people.

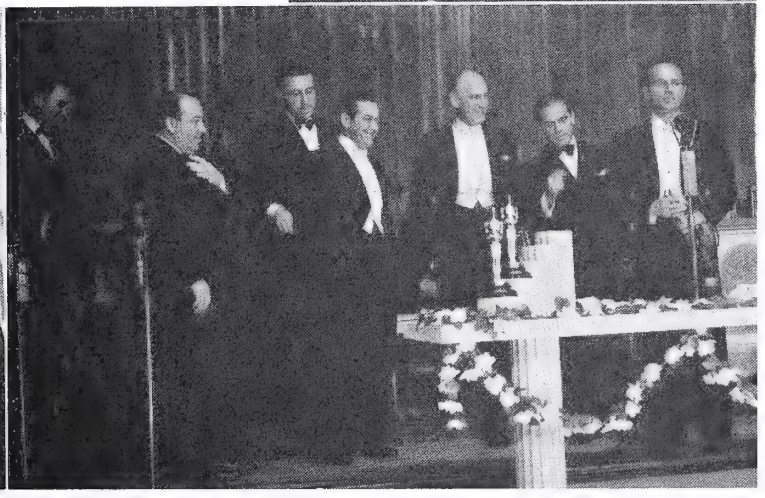
In all that I have said on that all important subject through many months past I have emphasized that in the assault on the democratic form of government which imperils world civilization today, our problem of national defense has become one of defending the entire Western Hemisphere—all three of the Americas—North, Central and South. We can no longer consider our own problem of defense as a separate interest. It involves the defense of all the democracies of all the Americas—and therefore in fact, it involves the future of democracy wherever it is imperiled by force or terror.



An all important factor in hemispheric defense is the Lend-Lease Bill, whose early enactment by the Congress we confidently anticipate. It is a pleasure here and now to acknowledge the great service which the newsreels have performed in acquainting the public with all of the implications of this measure as it takes its way through the various legislative stages.

Acceptance of the task of cooperating with all the Americas in defending the entire Western Hemisphere, implicit in our plans for national defense, is a natural growth of our good neighbor policy in our relations with the other American Republics. Happily for democracy, the Americas stand forth today as a notable example of international solidarity in a world in which freedom and human liberty are threatened with extinction.

We have been seeking to affirm our faith in the Western World through a wider exchange of culture, of education, of thought, and of free expression among the various nations of this hemisphere. Your industry has utilized its vast resources of talent and facilities in a sincere effort to help the people of this hemisphere to come to know each other.



In carrying on this program of advancing the spirit of inter-American solidarity and continental defense our government has established machinery to coordinate

Here Are Some Who Carried Off the Academy's Well-Known Oscars—

On the left, Preston Sturges, winner of the award for the best original screenplay, "The Great McGinty," enters the Biltmore Bowl on the night of the dinner, accompanied by Mrs. Sturges. On the right, Alfred Newman, left, poses with Darryl F. Zanuck as the latter holds the plaque which Newman won for scoring "Tin Pan Alley." Immediately above and to the left are Jimmy Stewart, Ginger Rogers and Bob Hope, winners all. Stewart, of course, won the best actor award for "The Philadelphia Story;" Miss Rogers, the best actress award for "Kitty Foyle," while Hope was especially cited for his "unselfish services" to the industry. To the right of them, Frank Capra, who handed out the best-direction Oscar, has called the five nominees to the rostrum before opening the envelope containing the name of the winner. Only four showed, because John Ford, who won, was fishing off the Mexican coast at the time. The group, however, includes Alfred Hitchcock, fingering his tie; George Cukor, William Wyler, Sam Wood, Capra and Zanuck at the "mike."

Ascap Signs Decree Ending Gov't Suit

NEW YORK—A consent decree ending the battle between Ascap and the department of justice was signed early in the week by Federal Judge Henry Warren Goddard.

The court approved it following a long session at which time attorneys for Ascap and Lieut. Gov. Poletti, as well as Victor O. Waters, special assistant to the attorney general, delivered addresses praising the document and declaring that it opened the way to free competition.

Despite the approval, future trouble may be ahead. The National Association of Broadcasters objected seriously to the entry of the decree without certain changes which the court refused to grant and it is reported the NAB will endeavor to force Ascap to accept its terms for Ascap's music regardless of whether the society agrees or not. Some hold this would be a violation of the Sherman act on the part of the broadcasters and could result in government action against their use of combined power.

Felt Ascap Went Too Far

The day in court was started off by Waters declaring the government recognized the necessity of an organization such as Ascap but that he felt it had gone too far in exploiting its songs. The decree removes all possible violations and leaves only one point to be settled, namely an agreement on price with the broadcasters. Poletti also spoke, telling of the effort applied in coming to the agreement, and stated the decree is for the public welfare. "No attempt will be made by Ascap to circumvent either the letter or the law of the decree," the counsel stated.

First objector was Milton R. Weinberger, representing the League of New York Theatres. He stated "legit" producers frequently use programs on the air of an hour's duration, but he feared Ascap would object to less than an hour unless the court added a ruling into the decree. Then he asked Ascap be forced to keep a log of its songs so that producers would be able to tell which of their songs was the most popular, and on that basis ask for royalties.

Denies Both Applications

Judge Goddard denied both these applications by stating what was being asked was going much too far and that he could recommend but not change an agreed-on decree. In this case he said he would not recommend anything.

Next objector was Neville Miller for the NAB. He complained on two points, the first was his claim Ascap can secure an exclusive license from its members for a long period of time, which Miller said was a restraint of trade. Secondly, he averred that per performance licensing is granted to everybody but the broadcasters, who still must buy the entire catalogue. A dispute over the second point arose with Waters pointing out to the court that Miller, on behalf of BMI, had agreed to a similar provision in that organization's decree. The court finally denied Miller's applications.

Last objector was Harold Seligson, attorney representing Schroder Gunther & Co., music publishers, and Ascap licensees. He objected to a clause which he stated only allowed the re-election of officers at the rate of two every year, or 12 years for the entire 24. Waters denied this, declaring that eight are elected yearly, and Goddard agreed with the U. S. attorney. That concluded the objections and the court reserved decision declaring that he would sign the decree the next day.

Present in court were Gene Buck, Ascap president; John G. Paine, Herman Greenberg, E. C. Mills, Milton Diamond, Herman Finkelstein, and Louis Frohlich, the latter three Ascap attorneys.

9 O'Clock Plan Now Reaches Bridgeport

Bridgeport, Conn.—The so-called 9 o'clock plan which puts the big half of the double feature bill on then so that audiences can escape at a reasonable hour made its appearance here on Friday. Described as an "early bird" show, the Poli launched the idea which, if successful, will be extended to include the Majestic and Globe.

The Loew management states the shift is designed to make shows available to defense factory workers on 3-to-11 o'clock, or 11-to-7 o'clock, shifts. Much advance ballyhoo has been directed at factory bulletins.

New Britain, Conn.—The State has switched to a noon opening to catch factory workers on other than normal shifts. Other houses throughout the state, particularly in industrial towns, are considering moving up their opening hour.

our growing commercial and cultural relations with the American Republics. Our government has invited you to do your share of the job of interpreting the people of the Western Hemisphere to one another. And all of us in all the 21 American Republics are grateful that your response is so immediate and so wholehearted.

I do not minimize the importance of the motion picture industry as the most popular medium of mass entertainment. But tonight I want to place the chief emphasis on the service you can render in promoting solidarity among all the people of the Americas.

For all this and for your splendid cooperation with all who are directing the expansion of our defense forces, I am glad to thank you. In the weeks and months that lie ahead we in Washington know we shall have your continued aid and support.

Delays MPTOA Meet; June Board Huddle

NEW YORK—Because of a number of state exhibitor unit meetings, the SMPE spring convention and Variety Club conclaves in May, Ed Kuykendall, president, has decided to forego a May convention of the MPTOA and instead hold a gathering of the directors the first week in June.

The place is not definitely set, although there has been some talk of holding the session in Hollywood.

Kuykendall came on from his home in Columbus, Miss., to attend the national defense meeting at the Hays office Tuesday, following which he went to Washington to look over the general situation. He expects to attend a number of the Variety Club and state exhibitor organization conventions, he stated before entraining for the Capitol.

Urges Careful Study Precede Complaints

NEW YORK—Declaring there are indications considerable unreliable and misleading advice and counsel are being given out by both professional and amateur lawyers on arbitration, E. L. Kuykendall, MPTOA president, in an organization bulletin warns against such "expert" advice unless it "is your own lawyer on whom you know you can depend."

Taking the position "the arbitration system can easily be over-emphasized," the MPTOA head observes, "To most country-town exhibitors it may mean little or nothing. Generally it is only the theatres in the big cities that have any of the important difficulties that can be arbitrated under the decree, as the serious complaints are confined to unreasonable clearance and arbitrary refusal to sell a particular run at all. Theatres that have no serious problem of clearance and run will have little interest in this sort of arbitration."

Kuykendall declares there are recent indications that several distributors "intend to make a more serious effort to adjust exhibitor complaints and grievances than they have in the past." If this is true, he says, "many of our difficulties can be adjusted by the simple act of taking up the complaint with the branch manager of the distributor, rather than going through the expense and uncertainties of arbitration or legal action. It's worth considering."

Assumed Hays Under Pact

New York—Although officially all is silent, the automatic assumption, as indicated consistently in BOXOFFICE, is that Will H. Hays is now functioning under a new five-year contract. Hays, who entered his 20th year as head of MPPDA Wednesday, currently is in Hollywood but is returning shortly for the annual meeting on March 31. Meanwhile, his organization here proceeds on 1941 activities conscious of, and anticipating, no change. If Hays actually has not signatured a new pact, that is a mere technicality.

New Nathanson Deal Confidently Awaited

NEW YORK—Signposts flapping in the breezes here and in Toronto indicate Paramount will make a new deal with N. L. Nathanson, president of Famous Players Canadian whose five-year contract expires in June.

The Canadian company operates under a 25-year franchise for Paramount product in the Dominion. This franchise expires on or about the time Nathanson's contract does, but the two matters are declared to have nothing in common.

Nathanson is due here in the next couple of weeks to actively launch negotiations looking toward a renewal.

Canadian Theatre Pot Is Steaming

TORONTO—Sensational developments in the theatre business of Canada are expected to break in June when the five-year contract of President N. L. Nathanson with Famous Players Canadian Corp. is due to expire and already rapid movements are under way across the Dominion which tend to indicate the formation of a large circuit of theatres, either through absorption or construction, which would be independent of the Famous Players chain of 200 direct or affiliated houses. N. L. Nathanson has denied from Florida that he is interested in the formation of the new group, but there are interesting, and perhaps significant, developments.

Oscar R. Hanson, president of Hanson Theatres Corp. and president of Empire-Universal Films, Ltd., has been away from his office for several weeks on an undisclosed mission, all enquiries at his office bringing the bare reply that he is "away."

The first announcement was that Hanson, Vice-President Paul Nathanson, son of N. L. Nathanson, and General Manager A. W. Perry of Empire-Universal had gone to the Canadian west on business in connection with the film exchange. Paul Nathanson and Perry returned to Toronto, and with Clair Hague, Canadian Universal representative, attended the Universal convention in Chicago but Hanson was still absent in western Canada.

N. L. Nathanson suddenly broke his holiday in Florida to return to Toronto for a few days, after which there were other moves.

Announcement was made at Kingston, Ontario, that Odeon Theatres of Canada, Ltd., which had received its Dominion federal charter in January, had secured a site in Kingston of which a 1,000-seat theatre would be erected according to plans prepared by H. G. Duerr, well-known theatre architect of Toronto who has drawn plans for various Famous Players' and Allen theatres.

Duerr has declared that he does not know the identity of the persons behind Odeon Theatres of Canada and that he received his instructions through a Toronto lawyer, S. S. McNairn, the solicitor for Odeon Theatres, who would not disclose names.

Hon. J. Earl Lawson, Toronto lawyer for Hanson companies, made a trip to Ottawa and Kingston, Ont., the reason for which was not announced—it might have been political or business purposes.

H. C. D. Main, supervisor of theatres for Hanson Theatres Corp., made a trip of several days through western Ontario last week with no details given during his absence.

W. J. Long, proprietor of the Rialto at Edmonton, Alta., an independent house seating 1,200, has been announced as British Columbia supervisor for Odeon Theatres and admitted that a large circuit of theatres would be created across the Dominion. Long has been the first-run outlet for Universal and British features released by Empire-Universal and has cooperated with Empire officials in the past. J. H. Booth, proprietor of the Dunbar in Vancouver, is to be associated with Long in the Odeon development at the coast, the Dunbar being one of the houses taken over by Odeon when Hanson was at the coast. Booth is the president of the Independent Booking and Buying Circuit of British Columbia.

A company sponsored by N. A. Taylor of Toronto, 20th Century Theatres, Ltd., has been quietly organizing a theatre circuit in Ontario, through construction, lease and purchase, a number of which are principal situations.

When 20th Century Theatres leased the Madison from the Brady Estate for a 10-year term, intimation was forthcoming that one of its two opposition houses, the Alhambra, would be remodeled and modernized to keep up with the Madison which would be rebuilt by the Taylor interests. The Alhambra is one of the first Famous Players' houses. A short time later, it was stated that the Alhambra would not be reconstructed. This local happening may mean nothing—or it may mean everything.

A comparatively recent visitor in Canada was Jeffrey Bernard of Gaumont British Pictures, but no information was available as to the reason for his trip from England. In the past Harry Weedon and Richard Ford, representing Oscar Deutsch, Odeon and Gaumont British interests, have made trips from England which were accompanied by many reports. One Toronto theatre executive, not connected with Nathanson, tried hard to make a deal with Weedon for Canadian theatres but finally gave up the idea. The general view is that anything can happen in the next few months.

Sees RKO Backing Away From Units

NEW YORK—RKO is reversing its trend toward unit production and again is heading for increased, centralized studio supervision, writes Thomas Brady from Hollywood for the New York Times. This is his case:

"The term of office of Harry Edington, who replaced Pandro Berman as head of production last year, has been brief and unstable with (George J.) Schaefer lately conducting operations and negotiating all the company's deals. As of January 1, Edington's name was taken off RKO pictures as executive producer, though he is still with the company producing single pictures, his current assignment being 'Before the Fact.'

"At the same time, the studio has reversed its trend toward unit production and is heading for increased central supervision. (J. R.) McDonough, before he replaced (Lee) Marcus, was the company's liaison man with the independent producers who released through RKO, and the vacancy he left has not been filled. The Gene Towne-Graham Baker unit will leave RKO after one more picture; William Hawks, who was to have contributed 10 films, will settle for one. Gregory La Cava and Leo McCarey, unit producer-directors, left the studio last year without replacement. Max Gordon and Harry Goetz have washed up their deal without making 'The American Way' and two smaller units—Stephens-Lang, which made the 'Dr. Christian' series, and Lou Ostrow, who produced 'Li'l Abner'—have departed."

5-YEAR CONTRACT EXTENSIONS VOTED FOR 7 "U" EXECUTIVES

To "Assure Continuity" Of Management, Says Board Chairman

NEW YORK—Universal's present management remains in the saddle for seven more years. With two more years to go under existing pacts, generally signed as of January 1, 1938, these agreements have been extended another five years, thereby terminating them at the close of 1947.

The return sweep was made known on Tuesday by J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the boards of Universal Pictures Co., Inc., and the Universal Corp., holding company of which the former is the chief subsidiary. The action was voted at special meetings of the boards of both corporations and are to be submitted to stockholders for approval.

The executives with whom the new pacts have been executed are:

Cowdin.

Nate J. Blumberg, president.

Charles D. Prutzman, vice-president and general counsel.

Cliff Work, vice-president in charge of studio operations.

William A. Scully, vice-president in charge of domestic sales.

Joseph H. Seidelman, vice-president in charge of foreign sales.

Matty Fox, vice-president and executive assistant to Blumberg.

"The contracts, in most instances, represent a five-year extension of the periods for which these men are currently under contract to the Universal companies," stated Cowdin. "This will assure continuity of the executive management which has been responsible for increasing gross sales from $18,150,876 to $27,677,627 in the last three years and, in the same period, has converted a net loss of $1,084,999 into a net profit of $2,390,772."

Under the terms of the contracts with Universal Pictures the annual salaries of this group will range from $62,400 to $91,000 during the first two years and thereafter from $75,400 to $117,000.

Additional incentive compensation is also provided, Cowdin explained, through a profit-sharing plan under which the executives will receive a percentage of the operating income up to $2,500,000 and an additional percentage of operating income above that figure. Individual participations will range from one-half of one per cent to one per cent of operating income up to $2,500,000 and from one per cent to two per cent of operating earnings in excess of that amount. The contracts provide these percentages are to be reduced proportionately to any future increase in tax rates and that balances blocked in Great Britain are to be excluded in computing operating income for any year, any adjustment with respect to these amounts to be made only when and as these balances are actually transferred into dollars.

Under the terms of the contracts with Universal Corp., each of the five vice-presidents is to receive each year warrants to purchase 3,000 shares of Universal Corp. common stock at $10 a share, expiring in April, 1946, the chairman and president receiving 5,000 such warrants. The warrants now held by members of the executive group, running for five years and giving them the right to buy stock at prices scaling from $6 to $10 a share, are to be exchanged for the longer-term warrants stipulating the higher price.

In the sophisticated romantic comedy vein this has seldom been equalled this season. Written and directed by Preston Sturges, who was responsible for "The Great McGinty," it looks like a certain success wherever smart, sparkling entertainment is in demand. Barbara Stanwyck, co-starred with Henry Fonda, has been provided with a gay and sympathetic role such as she has not had in several pictures, and one which should considerably enhance her already brilliant reputation. Fonda proves an able foil, and a supporting cast headed by Charles Coburn paces them all the way. Both as scenarist and megaphonist, Sturges again distinguishes himself by displaying a comprehensive understanding of the elements that go into the making of a potential hit. His story is of the nonsensical variety in which Miss Stanwyck, portraying a transatlantic card sharp, falls in love with her victim—Fonda—is jilted by him, poses as another to win him back, marries him to gain revenge, and then discovers it was love from the very first.

Barbara Stanwyck, Henry Fonda, Charles Coburn, Eugene Pallette, William Demarest, Melville Cooper, Eric Blore.

EXPLOITIPS: Three names are worthy of space on the marquee—Barbara Stanwyck, Henry Fonda and Charles Coburn. Preston Sturges, who wrote and directed, might also be a selling name, calling attention to his earlier success, "The Great McGinty." Miss Stanwyck's role as a card-shark suggests a lobby layout of marked cards, loaded dice and other "you-can't-win" gambling paraphernalia.

This can be recommended without reservation to fans of the "Dr. Christian" series starring Jean Hersholt, for it possesses the same blend of down-to-earth hokum and comedy which characterized its predecessors. Additionally, it presents a promising juvenile player, by name Schuyler Standish, who performs miracles with a violin. Hersholt, of course, misses no bets in his performance as the kindly small-town physician who mends people's souls as well as their ailing bodies. Young Standish portrays the son of Fay Wray, who had divorced her musically-talented husband years before. The husband returns via an airplane crash and Dr. Christian takes it upon himself to reunite the couple, which he accomplishes through his usual understanding of human nature. Erle C. Kenton directed.

Jean Hersholt, Fay Wray, Schuyler Standish, Walter Woolf King, Maude Eburne, Astrid Allwyn, Andrew Tombes.

EXPLOITIPS: As a pre-booking ballyhoo stunt, have a theatre attendant go down the aisle calling for "Dr. Christian." Don't neglect to point out that this is one of the series based on the radio program of the same name, which also has Jean Hersholt as the star. The musical backgrounds in this one suggest you promote a contest for juvenile instrumentalists on the stage, with music teachers as judges.

Harold Lloyd, erstwhile ace screen comic, has many material reasons for remembering the formula of motion picture story and situation which brought him fame and fortune. Dragging his well-thumbed primer from the moth balls, he read its lessons to an aggregation of competent and eager Thespics and technicians. Then they went to work and made a typical Harold Lloyd comedy, although he chose to exercise his shrewd showmanship from behind the cameras as producer, rather than before them as star. For all of its streamlining, the film is strikingly reminiscent of those Lloyd photoplays in which he appeared during the hey-day of his acting career. And that's by way of predicting he has produced a hit, with the profit potentialities of which exhibitors can acquaint themselves by dusting off and reviewing their ledgers of a decade or more ago. A comparative newcomer, one Edmond O'Brien, fills the characteristic Lloydian role of a sensitive, shy and self-effacing youth about whom the motivation revolves. He looks like Franchot Tone but, for this part, at least, was endowed with many of the tricks and charms of the comic-turned-producer. George Murphy and Lucille Ball are toplined and they, along with all members of a hand-picked supporting cast, contribute good performances. The capable direction of Richard Wallace plays no small part in accomplishing the above-described celluloid alchemy.

George Murphy, Lucille Ball, Edmond O'Brien, George Cleveland, Henry Travers, Lloyd Corrigan, Kathleen Howard.

EXPLOITIPS: Harold Lloyd, as producer, deserves marquee and advertising mention along with Lucille Ball, George Murphy and Edmond O'Brien, who top the cast. Make over the lobby in a naval atmosphere, dressing attendants as sailors. Stage special showings for army and navy recruits in your area. Try to obtain some naval recruiting posters for lobby decorations.

Footsteps in the Dark

WB (509) — 93 Minutes — Rel. Mar. 8, '41

Errol Flynn forsakes swashbuckling and action to play the debonair amateur detective. His celluloid laboratory for the transformation is a murder mystery which specializes in comedy rather than suspense. Throughout, the approach to the crime angles of the screenplay is definitely tongue-in-cheek, with most of the formula situations of such features having been dragged in and subjected to subtle ribbing. Flynn's performance as the dilettante sleuth is noteworthy, as are other elements of the picture, which sums up as an acceptable parcel of diverting entertainment which should easily pay its way up and down the line. He portrays a high society, blue-blood financier who leads a double life although madly in love with his wife and completely afraid of a domineering mother-in-law. His deception, however, manifests itself through gratifying his yen for writing detective novels under a nom-de-plume and which ridicule the social set in which his family moves. By becoming involved in a real murder mystery his masquerade is exposed and it is only through solving the crime that he is able to square himself. Lloyd Bacon directed.

Errol Flynn, Brenda Marshall, Ralph Bellamy, Alan Hale, Lee Patrick, Allen Jenkins, Lucile Watson, William Frawley.

EXPLOITIPS: Errol Flynn, Brenda Marshall and Ralph Bellamy are all marquee names. Have house artist construct a huge pair of compo-board "footprints" to be mounted above the marquee or in the lobby as the centerpiece. Stencil footprints, imprinted with theatre and picture billing, on the streets surrounding the theatre. Make window display tieups with shoe stores and shoe repair shops.

CATCHLINES: He Thrilled You in "The Sea Hawk" . . . Now Errol Flynn Is Back Again . . . This Time in the Mystery-Comedy Sensation of the Year.

It's a Thriller-Diller . . . Packed With Laughs and Chills . . . And It's Errol Flynn at His Best.

Flying Wild F
Melodrama

Monogram (——) 63 Minutes Rel. Feb. 19, '41

Probably because the general idea was too ambitious for its budget limitations, this melodrama featuring the "East Side Kids" is far less acceptable and entertaining than the average previously established by the series being produced by Sam Katzman. The story is fundamentally weak and an attempt to cover its shortcomings with a hypo of trite slapstick comedy serves only to amplify them. The picture is roughly directed and cut, making it too obvious that its mountings and backgrounds are unauthentic. The "Kids" are working in an airplane factory and undertake to uncover those responsible for a series of mishaps attributable to saboteurs. They trace the foreign agents to the border and capture them after an air chase and battle which will inspire laughs rather than thrills. Directed by William West.

EXPLOITIPS: The aviation background in this one should suggest a number of exploitation stunts. Have house artist construct a facsimile of an airplane wing to be mounted above the marquee and lettered with picture billing. Give the "East Side Kids" the marquee credits. Capitalize on the nation-wide interest in the defense program and the "sabotage" scare by issuing throwsheets in the form of newspapers, illustrated with mats from the press book, relating the story of the sabotage plot which the "East Side Kids" break up. Hold a model airplane meet for juvenile air enthusiasts, with an "East Side Kids" trophy ear-marked for the winning entries.

Western

Monogram (——) 60 Minutes Rel. Jan. 5, '41

The elements which make for reliable western entertainment are incorporated in sufficient quantities herein to please most sagebrush addicts. Starring the "Range Busters," it combines action, gunfights, a chase or two and rangeland music with a desert mystery comparable in some respects to the famous real-life "Death Valley Scotty." As produced by George W. Weeks and directed by S. Roy Luby, it should gross on a par with past entries in the series. It seems, according to the plot, that a mysterious character named "Jingler" is spending vast quantities of gold which he claims to have mined from a secret pocket. Federal authorities suspect, however, that the precious metal is the same as that stolen from the Denver mint, and after considerable action and excitement the "Range Busters" pin the rap on the "Jingler."

Ray Corrigan, John King, Max Terhune, I. Stanford Jolley, Dorothy Short, Milt Morante, George Chesebro.

EXPLOITIPS: The top marquee names here are the "Range Busters"—Ray Corrigan, Max Terhune and John King—who have built up some fan following in several previous pictures. The usual fanfare for westerns is indicated as to lobby decorations, mailing pieces and other promotional enterprises. If you have not already done so, organize a "Range Busters" club among the juvenile element, handing out inexpensive membership buttons and other paraphernalia. Spot blowups of the three leading players in lobby.

CATCHLINES: The Range Busters Are Riding Again . . . Bringing You Thrills, Action, Romance . . . In a Whale of a Western.

Three Daredevil Buckaroos Fight Against Injustice . . . As the Range Busters Throw Bullets and Fists . . . On the Rangeland.

Meet Boston Blackie F

Columbia (2027) 61 Minutes Rel. Feb. 20, '41

In the supporting feature classification "Meet Boston Blackie" should do the trick effectively at the boxoffice. An action story of a shady character who plays cat and mouse with the police while he chases and runs to earth a gang of spies intent on stealing the navy's bombsight, the script has many neat snatches of smart dialogue and vivid action against a Coney Island carnival atmosphere. Robert Florey's direction places movement and chase above the usual detail. The romantic thread woven by Chester Morris, who plays the title role, and Rochelle Hudson, snaps at the conclusion and gives rise to the theory that this is the first of a series. It should do well. Humor and background effects are evident in plentitude.

Chester Morris, Rochelle Hudson, Richard Lane, Charles Wagenheim, Constance Worth.

EXPLOITIPS: Arrange to have a print of the film come to town with a police escort. Tie in with dispensers of Coca Cola. Invite amateur magicians to demonstrate their prowess with handcuffs. Morris pulls a few nifties in the story. Get leading citizens to give their opinions of the film and display them in type in a street case. There is a cartoon mat available for newspaper planting. "Boston Blackie" is a not unfamiliar screen character.

CATCHLINES: That Beloved Rogue Is Back Again . . . Up to His Neck in Murder. Espionage and Fantastic Adventure.

It Happened to One Man F
Drama

RKO (——) 80 Minutes Rel. ——

Only the performance of Wilfrid Lawson will attract spectators to "It Happened to One Man." At times unintelligible, this British import offers a story about a Threadneedle Street stock manipulator, a dealer in phoney securities, and a two-timing husband who runs the gamut of jail, murder and regeneration surrounded by a cast of seeming amateurs. This supporting cast is doubtless a realistic assortment of English types from varying classes, but they will probably seem strange birds to American audiences. Lawson plays the chief role with skill and fire. The action is set against picturesque locales in unbombed London, Mexico, the West Indies and, at length, in Devonshire. The yarn concludes on a rather awkward family reconciliation note.

Wilfred Lawson, Nora Swinburne, Marta LaBarr, Ivan Brandt.

EXPLOITIPS: The chief exploitation angle is the recent appearance of Lawson in "Pastor Hall." It should be easy in view of the current international situation to plant publicity copy about Lawson in local dailies. Print up a fancy mailing piece to look like a stock certificate, include dope about the film, and circulate it through the mailing list.

CATCHLINES: Crook, Two-Timer and Swindler . . . He Was Caught . . . Freed After Serving Time . . . He Came Back to England Where His Past Caught Up With Him . . . And He Stayed to Prove Himself an Honest Man.

The Great Train Robbery F
Melodrama

Republic (021) 61 Minutes Rel. Feb. 28, '41

On the hokum side from start to finish, "The Great Train Robbery," titled like an earlier and historical namesake, is a solid, more than adequate supporting production. Most of the drama takes place in cleverly handled sequences that constantly keep the action elements in the fore. Real trains and locales were utilized. And there is more drama in a moving locomotive than can normally be created by humans. Storywise: Bob Steele, railroad dick, discovers his brother is about to knock off a gold shipment on the "Commanche." Setting out to foil the stickup, Steele has himself a thrilling time locating a stolen train, corraling the crooks. His brother is killed in the melee. There is hardly a dull moment throughout. Joe Kane directed.

Bob Steele, Claire Carleton, Milburn Stone, Helen MacKellar, Si Jenks.

EXPLOITIPS: Veteran filmgoers will remember the Edison film made in 1903. In localities where there is close contact with trains, the exhibitor might promote something novel with the local division. Insert handbills in timetables at the local depot. Get the newsdealer to attach stickers to "Railroad Stories."

CATCHLINES: It's Brother Against Brother When the Gold Shipment Aboard the Commanche Limited Is Hi-jacked.

What the Studios Are Doing

Detail Immediate Plans For Howard Hughes

HOLLYWOOD—Spiking numerous rumors as to his future plans, spokesmen for Howard Hughes, multimillionaire oil field tool equipment manufacturer and film producer, declare he has only one definite project in mind when he has completed "The Outlaw" for 20th Century-Fox . . . That will be to make a second picture, labeled "'Production Number X," for an unset release. Leo McCarey is working with Hughes on the story and will direct . . . The report, among others, that Hughes is mulling the formation of a distribution company, possibly in association with Samuel Goldwyn, is scouted here as "pure conversation."

Twelve Weekly Before Cameras in March

Not for the past year or more has the production pace been as rapid as at present. Twelve pictures a week are set for camera work during the balance of March . . . Already lined up for April are 17 more features . . . Paramount heads the parade, with nine starters for March, eight more in April . . . Columbia is also at peak, with six to go this month. Other centers of activity are Universal, with five, Metro with the same number, and Warner and Fox, with three each.

National Theatres Meeting Sets New Season Plans

A review of accomplishments in various National Theatres divisions in the past year and discussion of tentative plans for the new season featured the three-day annual NT divisional managers' conclave at Lake Arrowhead, March 6, 7 and 8 . . . Spyros Skouras, NT president, was in charge . . . Plans were formulated for another campaign similar to 1940's Spyros Skouras Showmanship drive . . . Those in attendance came from Denver, Milwaukee, Kansas City, Portland, Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles and New York.

Extras May Leave SAG By Majority Vote

If extra players want to withdraw from the Screen Actors Guild, a constitutional provision permits them to do so by a majority vote, Kenneth Thomson, SAG secretary, told one group of extras when informed they have appealed to federal authorities in an effort to force the SAG to give them a vote in the organization's affairs.

Employment, Payrolls Down; Armour Is Schaefer Aide

Studio employment and payrolls dropped again in January. Exclusive of executive and talent brackets, average weekly payroll was $539,645 . . . In December, 1940, the average was $543,640, itself a decrease from November . . . Reginald Armour, former European sales manager for RKO Radio, has been named President George J. Schaefer's personal assistant, in charge of studio relations as contact executive . . . For a series of conferences to arrange

De Sylva Finding It Very Different Now

New York—John Chapman, who covers Hollywood for the "Daily News," reports this one:

"Buddy De Sylva, new head man at Paramount, says there's been a change in the way underlings address him since he became the main boss. They used to greet him with: 'Hello Buddy.'

"Now they say: 'Hello, Buddy, and how's your wife?'"

United Artists' 1941-42 releasing program, Clarence E. Ericksen, vice-president and general manager of Walter Wanger Productions, has joined Murray Silverstone, UA head, and Arthur W. Kelly, general salesmanager, in New York . . . Ericksen will return in about a month, with Silverstone expected to accompany him.

signed as a permanent setup to extend financial aid to producers desiring to distribute through UA as a means of "developing new producers." The financing arm will be privately operated and headed by "important" California persons known in film circles, although their names are not revealed. UA executives will not direct its operations, nor will there be a public stock issue in its formation, Silverstone declared. He would not hint the amount of capitalization involved.

Two for Korda

Neither would he set a ceiling on the amount of money that a prospective independent producer would be required to invest if he sought aid from UA's proposed financial bureau. This, he suggested, was a matter that required consideration of many factors. However, Silverstone said it was not the intention of the finance subsidiary to help UA's current producers, because "they don't need it."

He used the words "nonsense, untrue, no intention or desire or wish" in referring to reports that Alexander Korda was "getting out of UA" and "this is independent of the fact he has a contract with us." On the contrary, Silverstone declared, Korda is preparing to release two "big" pictures through the company. One is "Jungle Book," the other to star Merle Oberon.

The operating head declined to discuss the "hitch" that has held up negotiations for acquisition of Samuel Goldwyn's stock in UA, beyond saying negotiations are "still pending," and that some "important plans for the stock" are being considered if the deal is consummated.

"Personally," he added, "I'd like Goldwyn to stay with us as a stock owner-producer."

He said Arnold Pressburger has been signed to a long-term producing contract and that William Szekeley, who is finishing "New Wine" for UA distribution next season, will not be among the producers in 1941-42. Szekeley has been signed by M-G-M.

Silverstone listed 12 producers who will contribute to the new program. Including Pressburger, they are David O. Selznick, Hal Roach, Ernst Lubitsch, Walter Wanger, the David Loew-Albert Lewin combination, Korda, Sol Lesser, Richard A. Rowland, Gabriel Pascal, Edward Small, James Roosevelt and Charles Chaplin.

Preparation Indicates Steady Production Pace

Larry Darmour rolls his next "Ellery Queen" sleuther for Columbia, "The Devil Pays," in April . . . Also pegged for April is Frank Lloyd's "I, James Lewis," to be made for Universal release . . . The Loew-Lewin unit for UA is preparing "Landfall," story of the R. A. F. . . . Jules Levey is readying "Tight Shoes" and "Butch Minds the Baby" as Mayfair productions for Universal . . . RKO borrowed Robert Preston from Paramount, and Nancy Kelly from 20th Century-Fox, for toplines in "Parachute Battalion" . . . Robert Sinclair will direct M-G-M's "Men From the City" . . . Warner re-titled "Hard to Get" as "Man Power" . . . Republic's "Angels Without Wings" is now "Angels With Broken Wings" . . . RKO changed "The Devil and Daniel Webster" to "A Certain Mr. Scratch" . . . Tyrone Power tops the cast of Fox's "A Yank in the R. A. F."

Story Market Still Active; "Louisiana Purchase" to Para't

Story market was unusually active . . . Columbia bagged "My Sister Eileen," play by Jerome Chodorov and Jerome Fields, and signed Max Gordon, on an 18-month contract, to supervise its production . . . B. G. DeSylva's "Louisiana Purchase" went to Paramount, where DeSylva is now executive producer . . . Metro bought "The Dam" from Lester Cohen . . . "In This Our Life," by Ellen Glasgow, went to Warner . . . Columbia also took "Women of the Navy" from Hilary Lynn, "Just Another Dance" from Robert Hyde, and "Take Back Your Dream" from Frank Fenton and Lynn Root.

Bell to Produce "Aloma;" Cummings Helms "Belle Starr"

Monta Bell will produce Paramount's "Aloma of the South Seas" and "Birth of the Blues" . . . Republic's "County Fair" will be directed by Frank McDonald . . . Irving Cummings will pilot Fox's "Belle Starr."

objected more vehemently to obscene and vulgar pictures than have I. However, I appreciate there are certain fundamentals to which you and I might not see eye to eye, but, if the print of "This Thing Called Love" that I saw in Columbus was a duplicate of the one which you reviewed, I am at a loss to understand your reason for objecting to the picture and classifying it under the "C" heading.

I will admit that the ending is risque and that a certain amount of levity was poked in the direction of the marriage vows. However, I cannot believe that these two incidents alone are serious enough to provoke your vociferous objections. If I am wrong, I hope you will straighten me out.

The American producers of motion pictures are trying to do a good job and, while they may not, according to your way of thinking, always hew to the line, I do believe that the activities of your group have compelled them to be somewhat more careful in their selection of the subject matter going into the production of pictures. However, it occurs to me that you perpetrate an injustice upon the producer and theatre operator when you condemn a picture after it is completed when you could, through the medium of the Joe Breen organization, assert your objections before the picture was even started.

There is no doubt that in certain communities your general condemnation of a picture is harmful to the boxoffice and, in view of the fact that Mr. Breen was undoubtedly selected to head the production code committee because of his religious faith, I certainly think that he should be more careful before he finally gives his approval to a script which he knows is fundamentally objectionable to the Catholic church. If he does not know what these fundamental objections are, he should be definitely informed.

Frankly, I can see less harm to the adolescent in a picture of this type than in certain other forms of amusement to which your group voices no objection. I have in mind the situation presently existing in the city of Cincinnati, where Bingo games are operated in or under the auspices of practically all of your churches in strict violation of the laws of the state of Ohio. To my way of thinking, the encouragement of this form of gambling is much more harmful to the youth and adolescents of that city than any picture of the type of "This Thing Called Love."

In many instances, the money used by the participants in playing these games is "bread and butter" money and the "take" is so enormous that the average player has little or no chance to win. As an evidence of this, I cite the fact that last year there was gambled in Bingo in the churches of Cincinnati the vast sum of $2,381,575, out of which the sponsoring organizations kept for themselves $1,609,233. In other words, for every dollar spent by the participants there was paid back to them only 24 cents.

From a moral standpoint, I see more harm to children (and I have three of them) in encouraging them to participate in these Bingo games than I do their witnessing a picture of the type of "This Thing Called Love" because they become parties to an action that is illegal under the laws of our state.

If there are certain themes that your group holds to be objectionable, it would seem to me that Mr. Breen should be definitely apprised of what they are so that he might be in a position to lay the facts before the producers so that they can give consideration to the matter of excluding the objectionable matter to meet your views, or leave it in knowing full well that they run the risk of your condemnation.

After 16 years in this business, I have never had the pleasure of personally meeting the Messrs. Cohn, nor do I own any stock in Columbia Pictures and this letter is simply an expression of my personal views.

In closing, I can only make reference to St. John, 8:7.

Footnotes

ST. JOHN, 8:7 to which Wood refers: "So when they continued to ask Him, He lifted up Himself and said unto them:

" 'He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her.' "

Words or phrases in boldface are emphasized in the original communications.

Thirty-three word comment from Father McClafferty:

"I want to express my appreciation to BOXOFFICE for calling to my attention a letter which I thought had been addressed as a personal and private letter to me by Mr. Peter Wood."

"We Give Up" Item

IF HIS reporting is accurate, the following story by John Chapman out of Hollywood for the New York "Daily News" just about stops all others:

To Pathe to watch the start of the Rogers flicker. The first scene shot is the opening scene of the picture, which is against all Hollywood rules. It's a movie theatre. The camera opens on a couple of hundred faces, then moves in on a crane and picks up Miss Rogers and George Murphy. It catches them just as they are about to leave (the newsreel starts and they've seen it) and it follows them out and up the aisle. On the sound track is heard the voice of Hitler; George and Ginger stop, turn screenward and hiss. Garson Kanin had a time getting this one past the Hays office. At first the H. O. said nix, because the movies want to discourage hissing in theatres. Kanin said the scene was important. The Hays office said it wished he could take it out. "All right," agreed wily Kanin, "but how will it sound to say the Hays office wouldn't allow a picture of a couple of people hissing Hitler?"

That won him the okay for the scene.

of war, to keep democracy alive, and for other purposes."

This is further amplified in a "statement of intention" that "no person subject to the jurisdiction of the United States shall profit in any manner whatsoever from the conduct of any war to which the United States is or may be a party."

While the purpose of the legislation is to take the profit out of war, no distinction is made between income derived from the war effort and that secured in the ordinary channels of commerce.

Stars Would Dig Deep

Motion picture stars would find themselves turning the greater part of their earnings over to the treasury, and the surtaxes run so high that there is some question whether they would be able to satisfy the tax demands of the federal government and of the state in which they live without digging into capital from previous years, since income in excess of a net of $23,000 would be subject to a total of 99 per cent in taxes under the proposed federal act.

Corporations would be in little more enviable situation, since they would turn over to the federal government every cent they made in excess of six per cent of the adjusted declared value of their capital stock, income being computed on the basis of sharply cut deductions.

Personal Holding Company Out

Personal holding companies would be taxed out of existence by a levy of 98 per cent on the undistributed adjusted net income up to $100,000 and 100 per cent on all in excess of that amount.

Corporations would be deterred from declaring stock dividends by a tax of $100 upon each share or fraction of a share so distributed, to be paid by the issuing corporation.

As the capstone of the tax edifice which would be erected, violation of the act or any rules and regulations thereunder would be subject to a fine of not exceeding $100,000.

It is not expected that the confiscatory taxes proposed in the legislation would ever be approved by Congress. The measures are interesting, chiefly, as evidencing the extent to which groups in Congress will seek to go in taking the profit out of war. The measure incidentally would be effective only after war was declared and for the period of hostilities.

"Virginia" Is Blue Ribbon Award Winner for February

"Virginia," Paramount's screen story of a modern romance of the South, has been voted by members of the National Screen Council as the outstanding film released in February, and winner of the BOXOFFICE Blue Ribbon Award for that month.

Filmed in Technicolor, "Virginia" was produced and directed by Edward H. Griffith, and co-stars Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray. The supporting cast includes Stirling Hayden, Marie Wilson, Helen Broderick and the child star, Carolyn Lee. Madeleine Carroll received a BOXOFFICE Blue Ribbon plaque for her performance as April Logan in "North West Mounted Police," Paramount picture which won the November, 1940, award.

"Virginia" is the story of a Southern girl who returns to her ancestral home in Virginia after living in the North for many years. Having lost her feeling toward Southern tradition, and returning broke, she tries to sell the homestead, but falls in love with a Southerner who brings her to an appreciation of her Southern heritage.

To Limit "Fantasia" Showings to Twelve

HOLLYWOOD—With two additional "Fantasia" openings Wednesday, bringing the total of current roadshow engagements to seven, Walt Disney declares he will limit early 1941 showings to 12 due to the restrictions placed on manufacture of his Fantasound units by the national defense boards. Further bookings will depend upon lifting of restrictions on the equipment companies which make the sound units.

The film now is playing in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, San Francisco and Pittsburgh, the latter two having opened Wednesday, at the Geary and Fulton, respectively. The Hanna, Cleveland, is set for March 18. Plans are under way for openings shortly in Washington, Buffalo, Minneapolis and Detroit.

So. American Short Series Get RKO Accommodation

NEW YORK—An unnamed series of RKO's current program of short subjects will be dropped in order to accommodate the three one-reelers known as the South American series, according to a spokesman. The company has launched an intensive campaign on the latter. They were filmed by Julien Bryan, who also supplies the commentary.

BIGGER PROFITS FOR MAJORS IN 1941 ARE NOW ANTICIPATED

Writer Sees Return to Near Normal Status Late in Spring

NEW YORK — "Substantially improved profits" are in prospect for most of the companies this year, in the opinion of the Wall Street Journal. Sydney B. Self, reporter who frequently covers trends and developments in the industry for his paper, reaches this conclusion on the basis of the first quarter.

"By late spring or summer," he observes, "it seems likely that the industry, as a whole, will be back close to normal earning power, although deriving its income principally from the home market."

Remarking what every film man knows that quality is the primary factor "outweighing all others, even one so important as the export markets." Self then states:

"This season Paramount, for example, which for years lost money on its studios due to poor films, suddenly has burst into the spotlight with two notable successes, 'North West Mounted Police' and 'I Wanted Wings,' which preliminary reports indicate will be a big money maker. As a result, Paramount may be said to be well on the way back to regaining its old position of one of the two leaders of the industry. From current indications, Paramount should be able to earn over 75 cents a share and perhaps around $1 a share in the quarter to end March 31, against 53 cents a year ago. Paramount has been fortunate, as it turned out, in doing a relatively small portion of its total gross business abroad."

Loew's "Holding Up"

He finds Loew's, "which has had the largest earning power in the industry for years, is holding up fairly well" in spite of the fact that it has had the largest share of British business. "Current earnings however, will suffer by comparison with a year ago because then large profits from the phenomenal 'Gone With the Wind' were included in income account," he writes. "Loew's has started this film on the rounds again in a general release at popular prices. Since its substantial income from the current release will be nearly all profit. However, the real effects of this will not be shown until later in the spring.

"In the first quarter of the 1941 fiscal year, net was $1.04 a share which was ahead of the comparative 1939 showing. Nevertheless, net for the 28 weeks ending about March 15 will be well below the corresponding period a year ago. Much heavier film amortization has been required to take care of the writing down of films which, in the past, could count on large income from abroad over a protracted period. Thus in the 1940 fiscal year, Loew's wrote off $52,000,000 film amortization, against $46,000,000 in the preceding year and $42,000,000 in 1938. From now on, write-offs should be less because studio costs have been reduced and, even more important, production budgets have been cut down in line with anticipated domestic markets.

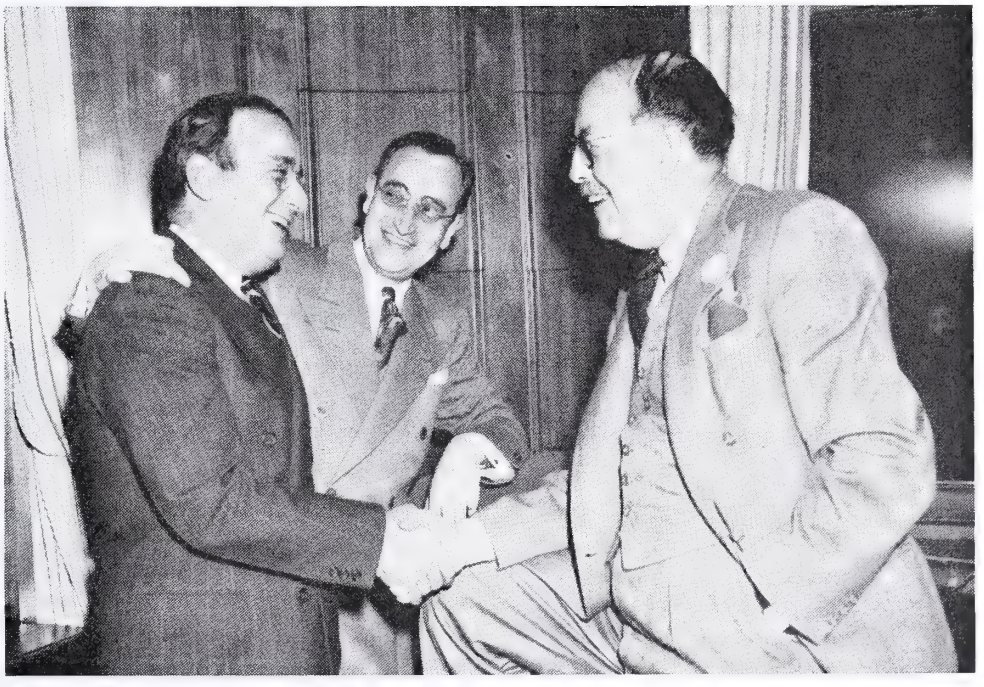
"While it is too early to say definitely whether or not Loew's can earn as much this year as the $4.82 a share earned in the fiscal year ended August 31, 1940, there is at least a good chance that this year's profits will be around last year's levels."

The analysis figures Warner will report a 12-week net, as of February 22, of slightly more than $1,276,316, equivalent to earnings of 31 cents a share on the common. Self views "Santa Fe Trail" and "Strawberry Blonde," as "good new films in release" and adds others are in prospect. "As a result of borrowing money in Great Britain, Warner has been able to show as profit all of its income from that country," he says. "It has been bringing over its quota of current income alloted by the British government and has been applying the balance of British income to sterling debts contracted there before the war."

Self is optimistic on 20th Century-Fox. His slant on that company:

"Twentieth Century-Fox which a few years ago was one of the largest and most consistent earners among producing companies, has, as a result of foreign writeoffs and unsuccessful films, had the most drastic drop in profits of any company in the industry. There are indications now, however, that 20th Century-Fox has passed through the worst of its heavy going and that profit again will be on the upgrade toward the middle of the year."

British Like Idea of Production in U. S.



LONDON—A possibility that resources of the Amerian industry will be made available for British production in the States currently intrigues the English producing industry.

This possibility ties in with the recent visit of Arthur Jarratt, former chief film buyer for the GB circuit and now in the government service on films. While in Hollywood, he was tendered a dinner at which Louis B. Mayer stated, "The British government will find Hollywood ready and anxious to place its entire resources at the service of the democratic cause."

Might Unify Production

This leads Kine Weekly, British trade paper, to ponder the issue and to report this in its news columns:

"Commander Jarratt afterward admitted that a more wholehearted participation in British production was under discussion by the whole industry. In fact, this might actually be a unification of output. The issue has been primarily brought about by British studio difficulties and British sponsored pictures may be made in California as a result. For this purpose, all angles of the question of 'frozen assets' in Britain are being carefully examined."

Just Three Happy Columbians—

Part of the business of getting the "Columbia Exhibitor Goodwill Campaign," or sales drive, under way. Jack Cohn, on the right, is officially handshaking Rube Jackter, chairman of the committee in charge, on the left. As Abe Montague, general sales manager, smilingly looks on.

Agnew and Morgan, Plus Quiz Kids—

The first finished, the Quiz Kids, whose program is broadcast coast-to-coast by NBC, are to make five more for Paramount's 1941-42 schedule. The five Quiz Kids are to appear in each release with Joe Kelly, quizmaster, acting as master-of-ceremonies. This called for the inevitable picture, to wit: Joan McCullough, Oscar A. Morgan, Paramount's general sales manager of shorts and newsreels; Joan Bishop, Gerard Darrow, Neil F. Agnew, vice-president in charge of sales; Jack Lucal, Richard Williams and Van Dyke Tiers.

BROADWAY

FELIX JENKINS, 20th-Fox counsel, is touring the south on the decree. Incidentally, his nephew, Alger Jenkins jr., has gone to England to join the RAF . . . J. Carlo Bavetta, Brazilian managing director for 20th-Fox, has returned to his headquarters in Rio where he is joining Sol Wurtzel who is making a tour of Latin-American countries . . . Richard de Rochemont, March of Time managing director, spoke at the German American Congress for Democracy gathering at the Picadilly Hotel over the weekend . . . Melvyn Douglas appears in a special trailer for the Greek War Relief drive which is to be furnished all local theatres cooperating the week of March 25-30 . . . Nate Golden of the department of commerce was in town for a short stay.

Milton Berle is due on the coast shortly to begin work in "Sun Valley" . . . Alice Faye and Don Ameche are due in Rio de Janerio next month for the opening of "That Night in Rio" . . . Christy Wilbert has been in Baltimore and Richmond in advance of "Tobacco Road" for 20th-Fox . . . J. J. Milstein was in Lake Placid for a long weekend . . . Richard Dwight of Dwight, Harris, Koegel & Caskey has been vacationing in Honolulu . . . Joe Ornstein of the 20th-Fox branch in Pittsburgh spent the weekend in New York . . . Nate Spingold is due back soon from a vacation at Palm Beach . . . Carter Barron will leave for Miami Beach as soon as Joe Vogel returns from Havana.

Si Seadler postcards from the B-Bar-H ranch out Coachella Valley way: "This is the usual heaven revisited. Come soon" . . . George A. Smith, western sales manager for Paramount, has been here . . . Bob Gillham heading coastward again . . . Sam Dembow was in Chicago earlier in the week, as was Leonard Goldenson. The significance is, however, that this marks Sam's first out-of-town trek since his accident . . . Paul Benjamin is in Florida. For two weeks . . . Walter Gould is back from Florida. He and a friend did it in 25 hours driving time and that's what you might call driving it hard.

Bob Benjamin will take a plane to the coast Monday. He returned early in the week from a vacation in Miami . . . Ben Sherman is back from Miami Beach after a month in the winter resort. His candy partner, Charles L. O'Reilly, is still in the south and is due back in a week or so . . . Ed Saunders and Jack Bowen have returned from Coral Gables and fishing and golfing vacations . . . Bill Scully, who was in the party, decided to stay over a couple of extra days. He hurried back to New York to sign that five-year sales managers contract, and then shot back to Miami, where he will linger on to the 15th . . . Pete Lewis of the N. Y. Film Board has been out a few days with la grippe. Henry Danziger of the same office was bothered with a bad cold but staunchly reported for duty daily.

Joe Seider, happily enough, is recuperating from his recent illness at Miami Beach after a brief visit to Havana. His brother, Isidore, is due back at the office Monday, having spent the better part of a month relaxing in the sun, what there's been of it in Miami . . . Max Cohen, head of Cinema Circuit, is a full-fledged member of the glass-wearing clan . . . Nicholas M. and Joseph M. Schenck spent Monday night at the Golden Gloves finals at the Garden . . . Herman Starr, N. J. division manager for the Skouras circuit, is continuing to show signs of improvement from his recent emergency appendectomy . . . Willard McKay was in Albany and Canada during the week . . . Hal Roach and Eddie Peskay are in from the coast. Peskay spent a week at the studios before accompanying his boss east . . . Samuel Kreisler has joined the UA publicity forces. Two years ago he won a short story contest conducted by Scribner's.

Dave Weinstock, local independent circuit operator, leaves Monday for a six-week siesta at Miami Beach. The missus goes along . . . Haskell Masters, UA western sales head, spent a few days in Toronto . . . Arthur Gottlieb of DuArt Labs was in from Montreal for a short spell . . . Add to those spotted at the Golden Gloves finals at the Garden: Marvin and Mrs. Schenck, Sam Meinhold, Mike Rosen, Jack Goetz and Harold Corbin . . . Hal Horne has been on the coast conferring with the Disneys . . . O. Henry Briggs has returned from a trip to Hollywood, with stopovers en route . . . Harry M. Goetz is on the coast conferring with George J. Schaefer on the possibility of producing "The American Way" for RKO . . . Fred Schwartz injured himself slightly on the train while returning from his home in Lake Placid. He was out for a few days but is on the job again, none the worse for his experience . . . Alec Moss is due back Monday from Miami.

James Whale, Warner director, arrived from California on the America . . . Hiller Innes, manager of Paramount's home office production department, is in Florida and Jamaica, B. W. I., for fun and sun . . . Phil Engel of Warner's eastern exploitation staff is in Buffalo on the "Strawberry Blonde" engagement . . . Irving Ludwig of Walt Disney's theatre staff is managing the Geary, San Francisco, which opened with the film Wednesday . . . William Fadiman, M-G-M's book and story editor, discussed "Do Great Books Make Great Movies?" before the Women's Club of Douglaston on Tuesday . . . A. A. Schubart, manager of RKO exchange operations, is on a visit to exchanges in Chicago, Indianapolis and Kansas City.

L. W. Conrow, Altec president, has returned from a month's trip that took him through the Panama Canal and up and down the coast . . . Irving Rapper, having completed his first directorial assignment for Warner, is in town for a short visit . . . Quentin Reynolds is slated to return to London in three weeks to make "London Can Give It" for Warner, a sequel to two previously released subjects on the war and which was proposed by Frank Capra during his Academy banquet speech . . . Harry Carey is due in Hollywood for a role in RKO's "Parachute Battalion" . . . David Hempstead, producer of "Kitty Foyle," again is here from the coast for a brief visit. His next is "'Journey Into Fear" . . . Spencer Tracy is reading two scripts and with one of them will do a play for the Theatre Guild within a year. His last Broadway appearance was 10 years ago in "The Last Mile."

An open letter to the Motion Picture Industry

History repeats itself—with Greece and Fascism enacting the roles of David and Goliath.

The heroic valor of the Greeks in their defense of democracy, has aroused the admiration of every liberty loving American. This little country—and it's a very small country—has stood up and fought Fascism to a standstill. It has put new heart into all little countries.

Today, we of the Amusement Industry, are asked to do our small part. The suffering, the struggles of millions of valiant men, women and children, will be lightened by knowing that here in the United States are fellow humans who want them to win and furthermore—are willing to do something about it! John H. Harris and Gradwell L. Sears have very kindly volunteered to aid me in organizing all exhibitors and distributors for this great cause. We have set aside the period of March 25-30 as the days to raise the funds through the active participation of all theatres everywhere. As Chairman of the Amusement Industry Division of the Greek War Relief Association, I appeal to you to do your share in making our drive a complete success.

The Greeks love liberty so much they're willing to die for it. The least we of this thrice blessed country can do is to help the women and children of these gallant defenders of democracy. We have nothing to lose if they gain. We have nothing to gain if they lose.

Sincerely,

Adolph Zukor

ADOLPH ZUKOR, Chairman

Johnston at Helm; Dunlap Heads Unit

NEW YORK—With the annual convention of franchise holders to be held shortly, W. Ray Johnston, president of Monogram, reveals Trem Carr has replaced Scott Dunlap as production head, with the latter assuming charge of a production unit on the lot.

At the same time titles to many of the new season's crop of 26 features and 24 westerns were divulged. On "Army Hostess," "Navy Bound," "God's Country and the Law," and "Land of the Sky Blue Water," budgets will be increased 18 per cent.

Among other titles are "Chinatown Mystery," "The Pride of Third Avenue," "Clancy Street Mob" and "'Neath Brooklyn Bridge," all to star the East Side Kids.

Then there will be "The Monster Strikes," "Girl of My Dreams," "King of the Zombies," "Aunt Emma Paints the Town," "Old Fashioned Girl," "Million Dollar Mystery," "Beating Back," "Nights of Horror," "False Colors," "Thirty Fathoms Down," "On the Stroke of 12," "The Fighting Cadet," "Isle of Terror," "Freckles Comes Back," "Lil' Louisiana Lady," "Flaming Terror," "Man From Headquarters" and "Hill Billy Romance."

Reissues will consist of eight John Wayne westerns and "Yesterday's Hero," with Mickey Rooney; "Boy of the Streets," with Jackie Cooper, and "Siren of the South Seas," with Movita.

The other 16 westerns will be divided into eight "Range Buster" pictures to be produced by George W. Weeks, and a new group entitled "Rough Riders."

The annual meeting of franchise holders will be held in Los Angeles the first week in April.

Early in the week Johnston tendered William J. Gell, managing director for Pathe Pictures of London, a cocktail party at the Warwick. Pathe distributes Monogram product in England and by virtue of a reciprocal deal Monogram will release 12 Pathe films made in England.

Gell will remain here about a month while Johnston plans to head back for the coast in a few days.

NEW YORK—Paramount Broadway Corp. reports a net loss of $730,387 for 1940 as against a loss of $756,688 for 1939.

$281,138 to Fund In Last Three Years

New York—The combined branches of the local industry have contributed $281,138 over the past three years to the Greater New York Fund of an aggregate of $11,000,000 collected from all sources, it was revealed with announcement that James G. Blaine, president of the Marine Midland Trust Co., has been elected president of the fund for the fourth successive year.

Republic '40 World Gross $8,330,000

NEW YORK—Republic did a world-wide gross of $8,330,000 last year, an increase of 4.7 per cent over 1939 "notwithstanding the continued adverse effect of the war upon European distribution and particularly in the British Isles." The figures appear in the annual report of Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., which controls the company.

Hitherto undivulged is the acquisition since January 1 of an additional 139,000 shares of Republic stock by Consolidated.

In 1940, Consolidated itself netted $590,031 after deducting charges including depreciation and federal taxes, compared with $628,297 the previous year. Its total business ran to $7,235,337 as against $7,409,452 in 1939, or a decrease of $174,115. Last year's net is equivalent to earnings of $1.47 per share on the 400,000 shares of preferred issued and outstanding. This compares with earnings of $1.57 per share on the same number of preferred shares the preceding year.

'Philadelphia Story' Strong After Prolonged Runs

PHILADELPHIA—"The Philadelphia Story" and "Gone With the Wind," now running in second-run houses, are still doing first run business to head the downtown parade. "Fantasia" had plenty of pull in its second week, but slipped a bit from the opening week. Holiday business on Washington's birthday didn't hurt the grosses any.

Detail for the week:

Blumberg Will Attend Latin American Meet

NEW YORK—Universal will hold a Latin American convention, its first in several years, in Panama April 2 to 6 with President Nate J. Blumberg actively participating. J. H. Seidelman, vice-president in charge of foreign affairs, will preside. The New York group also will include C. C. Margon, Latin American supervisor, and Fortunat Baronat, foreign publicity director. All Latin American managers will attend.

MPPDA Meet March 31

NEW YORK—Annual meeting of the MPPDA will be held March 31. Will H. Hays, now in Hollywood, is due to return in about 10 days to prepare for it.

Dollars From Italy Go to Aid Britain

New York—There is a touch of irony in the fact that $26,650 from Italy will be spent to buy sea ambulances for Great Britain.

The figure represents the sum paid to Selznick International by Italian interests for distribution rights in Italy to "Rebecca" and "Intermezzo." Selznick is remitting the money to England for the purchase of small boats to rescue victims of ships torpedoed by the Axis powers, according to Winthrop W. Aldrich, president of the British War Relief Society.

Most Films Wait Out Slow Broadway Week

NEW YORK—With the exception of "The Lady Eve" at the Paramount, and "Strawberry Blonde" at the Strand, most of the Broadway first run managers seemed to be waiting only for the week to expire so that new attractions might move in. The effects of a snow storm of blizzard proportions which hurt badly that day and most of the next, coupled with Lent, seems to be the answer.

(Average is 100)

Prolonged Runs Dominate Capital First Run Scene

WASHINGTON — Candidates for favor at the first run precincts tallied pleasing "vote" with "Back Street" and "Philly Story" evenly matched throughout a three week campaign. "Virginia," also in the third stanza, made a garrison finish. "Strawberry Blonde" proved to be a natural. "Tall, Dark and Handsome" accompanied by the fanfare from Henry Busse's band, drew notable support.

Detail for week ending February 27:

Delays Suit Against Two

NEW YORK—Date for setting the government suit against George Skouras and Harvey Newins has been postponed by Judge Liebell to March 10. Indications are that the case will not be heard for several months.

Denies Request for Metro Judgment

NEW YORK—Court news of the week was featured by a victory for Loew's, its officers and directors when Justice Ferdinand Pecora in supreme court denied a plea by Ruth Kirby, a minority stockholder, for summary judgment against the company. She is seeking $100,000, the amount paid Joseph M. Proskauer, attorney for Loew's, and its directors in a stockholder action against the company two years ago.

The plaintiff claims that, since the stockholders won a judgment of $500,000, Loew's was the actual victor by that amount and the directors should have paid Proskauer. The court, in denying the plea, stated that under the circumstances the directors had a right to hire defense counsel. Directors who are being sued are Nicholas M. Schenck, J. Robert Rubin, David Bernstein and Al Lichtman.

Chaplin Suit Restored

Suit of Film Sonores Tobis, Societe Anonyme against Charles Chaplin, UA and Charles Chaplin Film Corp., which had been dismissed for lack of prosecution in January, was restored to the active list by Federal Judge Samuel Mandelbaum. The plaintiffs stated its president, Georges Lourau, was to be examined before trial but had not been heard of since the fall of France. As soon as he is located, he will be examined and trial started. The suit seeks an injunction, accounting of profits and damages against "Modern Times," claiming the film to be a plagiarism of "A Nous la Liberte."

Scores Over Republic

Marquis James, author, scored over Republic in federal court when Judge Samuel Mandelbaum denied Republic's request for an additional bill of particulars and a more definite statement. The plaintiff claims plagiarism of his original, "The Raven," a biography of Samuel Huston in "Man of Conquest." An injunction, accounting of profits and damages are asked.

Sues Over "Alley"

Harry Seaman, producer, filed suit in magistrate's court against 20th Century-Fox, Darryl F. Zanuck, Sidney R. Kent, and W. C. Michel, claiming violation of the New York civil rights law in allegedly using his name without permission in "Tin Pan Alley." The plaintiff indicates he will shortly seek an injunction and $50,000 damages against the company in supreme court in a civil action.

Eastman-Agfa Settlement

Suit of Eastman Kodak against Agfa Ansco Corp. in federal court, which sought an injunction, accounting of profits and damages for alleged infringement of a patent for manufacturing motion picture film, was settled and discontinued out of federal court. The defense claimed Eastman was seeking to create a monopoly on an unpatentable product, namely photographic film.

Sues Over a Theatre

James Crapanzano filed a supreme court action against Benjamin, Meyer and Yetta Brodie, Ben-Jim Amusement Corp., and Ben-Mir Amusement Corp., claiming the defendants breached a contract whereby plaintiff and defendants were to share equally in a theatre to be erected on Sixth Avenue. The defendants are accused of having retained all earnings and refused an accounting.

Amusement Firms Pay Heavy Federal Tax

WASHINGTON—An all-over balance sheet prepared by the treasury department for 9,165 amusement corporations active in 1938 shows that the group had a gross income of $1,140,769,000 and a taxable net income of $51,906,000 on which it paid income and excess profits taxes of $11,702,000.

Designed merely to give a general picture of the operations of the amusement industry, one of a large number covered in the analysis, the survey made no breakdown to show the various types of amusement industry represented so that, in addition to motion picture production, distribution and exhibition, it includes legitimate theatres, race tracks and other operations.

The largest item of revenue was gross receipts from operations, $1,023,426,000, but the amusement corporations also received $58,358,000 from sales; $2,915,000 in interest, $22,680,000 in rents and royalties, $2,085,000 in net capital gain, $14,945,000 in dividends from domestic corporations and $3,041,000 in dividends from foreign corporations, and had other receipts of $12,660,000.

On the debit side, the reporting corporations showed $349,017,000 as cost of operations, $37,660,000 as cost of goods sold, $29,836,000 as compensation of officers, $85,730,000 for rent, $2,603,000 for bad debts, $22,122,000 in interest paid, $33,593,000 in taxes other than income and excess profits, $37,983,000 in depreciation and unitemized deductions of $488,417,000. The total of all deductions was $1,088,785,000.

After payment of $11,614,000 in income and $88,000 in excess profits taxes, the reporting corporations had a net profit of $40,281,000. Dividends paid during the year included $43,285,000 in cash and $319,000 in stock, it was shown.

On His Own Now—

Lynn Farnol, former director of advertising and publicity for UA who has opened his own public relations office on Park Avenue. Current accounts include representation for Samuel Goldwyn in the east, special engagements on "I Wanted Wings" for Paramount, a radio account, an apparel manufacturer, an aircraft account and the Cypress and Middleton Gardens at Charleston, S. C.

Screen Publicists to Name Negotiating Committee

NEW YORK—The Screen Publicists Guild will elect a negotiating committee of five on March 13 to appear at all future negotiations between the SPG and producers for a contract covering the advertising and publicity employes at home offices. Hearings of Warner and M-G-M before NLRB trial examiner Dan Baker have been completed, thus closing this phase of the SPG's demands, since the other six majors previously have been before Baker.

Charles E. Richardson Dead

PHILADELPHIA—Charles E. Richardson, financial man formerly identified with three of the majors, is dead at Bryn Mawr. He was onetime treasurer of RKO, a vice-president of Fox Film and a trustee in receivership for Paramount-Publix.

Ericksen Here

NEW YORK—Clarence Ericksen, general manager for Walter Wanger, is here from the coast to confer with UA officials on the producer's program for 1941-42.

What Complaints Are Like

With this issue, BOXOFFICE continues publication of initial complaints, filed in each tribunal city under the arbitration provisions of the decree. In some instances, as in the Ellet case which was the first to be filed in Cleveland, the texts will reveal full detail of the initial demands filed. In others, as in the instance of the Esquire-Great Neck demand published last week, the text will be designed to show what the AAA regards as model complaints, as to preparation and presentation.

This week, four more appear.

Westway Clearance Complaint

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Leo H. Homand, vice-president of the Westway Theatre, Inc., operating the Westway Theatre in Baltimore, Md., has filed a clearance complaint with the arbitration tribunal, charging subjection to unfair clearance.

Text of the complaint follows:

To H. B. Barton, Clerk of the Tribunal:

The undersigned, in accordance with the Rules of Arbitration and Appeals, demands that the controversy hereinafter described be submitted to Arbitration under the Motion Picture Consent Decree, and files herewith a Submission dated Feb. 20, 1941, in accordance with the provisions of Section XXII, subdivision 9, of said Decree.

1. Statement of Claim and Relief Sought:

The producers and distributors promised to supply us with picture needs and on this promise the Westway Theatre was built, and not until we were ready to open were we told we would be subject to a clearance of 14 days after the Edgewood (a larger theatre), 2.1 miles from the Westway, owned and operated by the Frank H. Durkee Theatre Enterprises, also owning and operating 19 other theatres in Maryland.

This 14 day clearance has forced us to accept a clearance by Alpha and Irvington, both smaller theatres but who have been given the right to run pictures immediately after the Edgewood.

The Westway Theatre opened April 22, 1939, and has lost money due to the clearance given the Edgewood, the Alpha and the Irvington steadily ever since.

We ask relief from this injurious, unreasonable and unjustifiable clearance against us—granting us pictures on day and date with other neighborhood theatres of its class.

The Westway is a modern up to date theatre and one of the loveliest in Baltimore with a seating capacity of 700.

The Westway is 2.1 miles from the Edgewood, seating capacity 1,100. The Westway is 2 miles from the Alpha, seating capacity 500. The Westway is 3 miles from the Irvington, seating 450.

2. Name and Address of Each Exhibitor or Distributor Against Whom This Complaint is Made:

20th Century-Fox Film Corp., 932 New Jersey Ave., N. W.; Loew's Incorporated, 1009 New Jersey Ave., N. W.; Vitagraph, Inc., Distributors of Warner Bros. Pictures, 901 New Jersey Ave., N. W., all of Washington, D. C.

3. Name and Address of Each Theatre Involved in Controversy:

The Edgewood Theatre, 3900 Edmondson Avenue, Baltimore, Md. This protection of the Edgewood's automatically benefits the Alpha and Irvington theatres who are permitted to run immediately after the Edgewood. The Irvington Theatre is located at 1413 Frederick Ave., Baltimore, Md. The Alpha Theatre is located at Catonsville, Md.

4. Name and Address of Each Other Exhibitor and Distributor Whose Property Complainant Believes May Be Affected by an Award in the Arbitration Proceeding:

None other than the above mentioned.

Dated: February 20, 1941.

Date of Filing: February 24, 1941.

Filing Fee Received: February 24, 1941.

(Signed) H. B. Barton, Clerk.

Walbrook Principals Select Arbitrators

WASHINGTON—Paving the way for a hearing on the first arbitration complaint to be filed under the consent decree, parties involved in the Walbrook Theatre case have selected E. Barett Prettyman, former District of Columbia corporation counsel, as arbitrator.

The case, the first to be filed in the country, was brought by the Walbrook Amusement Company of Baltimore. Distributors named are Vitagraph and 20th Century-Fox, and the complaint protests the seven-day clearance granted three other theatres—the Ambassador, Forest and Gwynn—operated by the Frank H. Durkee Amusement Enterprises, after the Walbrook for a number of years had enjoyed 21 days subsequent run clearance after the first run houses.

Parties in the case, in which the Forest Theatre has filed as intervenor, are now attempting to fix a date for the hearing, which probably will be held within the next two weeks.

Start Depositions in Lansdowne Action

PHILADELPHIA—Harry N. Ball, attorney for Harrison Bros., operators of the Lansdowne, began taking depositions last week from managers of the major local exchanges, as prelude to the Harrisons' $210,000 anti-trust suit against the majors and the Warner circuit.

Ball was authorized to take the depositions by Federal Judge George A. Welsh. Pre-trial examinations were scheduled to start Friday, with William Mansell, Warner branch manager; Lester Krieger, Warner Theatres booking head, and John Turner, booker, summoned to the stand.

Warner executives have agreed to produce records requested by the Lansdowne's operators, thereby averting a special hearing that was to be called on a petition to subpoena their records.

Five New Arbitration Demands Announced

NEW YORK—The filing of four new arbitration cases in the east and one in the south is reported at AAA headquarters.

The fourth case to be filed with the New York tribunal has Jack Fields, operator of the Cameo, Jersey City, N. J., as the complainant. The "Big Five" are named as defendants. Fields claims the Cameo, purportedly seating 1,450, holds unreasonable clearance against three theatres he alleges to be only one mile from his theatre. He cites the Apollo and Fulton, both Skouras units, and the Orient, operated by Rosenblatt & Welt. Fields seeks day and date clearance.

The first complaint to be filed with the Buffalo tribunal is brought by Richard De Toto, operator of the Genessee at Mount Morris, N. Y. Warner and 20th Century-Fox are defendants. The two distributors are alleged to have refused to license 1940-41 product to De Toto despite his claim he has operated the Genessee since 1931. The complaint alleges the competitive New Family has monopolized the product he seeks to license.

The second case to be filed at the Buffalo tribunal is brought by A. A. Carlson, operator of the Carlson, Mayville, N. Y. The complaint alleges the Carlson is forced to wait 30 days for product after the Jamestown, also in Mayville. Carlson seeks day and date availability. The "Big Five" are named defendants.

The first case filed in Philadelphia has John Geyser, operator of the Florence, Florence, N. J., as complainant. It is against the "Big Five." Geyser charges the Fox, Burlington, N. J., holds unreasonable clearance.

The southern case, the second to be filed with the New Orleans tribunal, is brought by Charles J. Woolner, who also instituted the first complaint at that point. Both involve some run. The second complaint alleges that Woolner's Drive-In is unable to license M-G-M product. The first complaint alleges the same theatre is unable to license Paramount product.

Two Talks by Braden On Arbitration Set

NEW YORK—J. Noble Braden, executive director of the arbitration tribunals, will deliver two addresses on the subject, "Arbitration in Action," next week. The first will be before the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia on March 11, to be followed the next day at a luncheon of the Harvard Business School at the Harvard Club in New York.

Nominate Arbitrators In Hilary N. Y. Case

NEW YORK—A list of prospective arbitrators has been mailed to interested parties in the clearance complaint filed here by Hilary Theatre Corp., operator of the Regent, Brooklyn, against the "Big Five." The deadline for selection of the arbitrators is March 13, which makes it conceivable that the New York case, the first to be filed here on February 22, may be heard before the Walbrook case, scheduled in Washington for March 25.

Sights New Period of Trade Cooperation

NEW YORK—Declaring the existence of arbitration should go a long way toward minimizing misunderstandings, William F. Rodgers, M-G-M's general sales manager, told an audience of about 400 members and guests attending an Ampa luncheon that "progress together" can be achieved if complaints are not permitted to smoulder. It was his "hope," and he urged it strongly, that every effort be made to conciliate differences before they reach arbitration.

"Let's abandon all thoughts of distrust," he urged. "It is high time we all recognized this new era of doing business. We have a common objective; what difference does it make if we sell one picture at a time, five at a time or 20 at a time so long as there is fair dealing on both sides?"

Rodgers devoted the bulk of his remarks to the general theme of friendship, cooperation, harmony and respect that he suggested should manifest itself "during this national crisis." He dwelt particularly on the fact the industry is the first to be called upon in public and charitable endeavors and lauded its contributions during times of stress. In a reverse observation of these efforts, he thought it "deplorable" that the industry is, paradoxically, the first to be attacked from the outside, and offered the view that "we don't toot our horns loud enough."

Urges Role in Public Service

Stressing an approach which is discussed editorially in BOXOFFICE this issue, Rodgers also expressed his belief that more and more will the industry be asked to play its part in the cause of public service.

In this general connection he cited the fact that about 27,000 subjects were last year provided gratis to shut-ins, schools, educational groups, etc. He said that "Land of Liberty," which M-G-M is distributing "at a loss," and the proceeds of which will go to overseas relief, has played to 1,000,000 in the first 500 engagements and that he expects it to show to 21,000,000 persons in order to realize the largest possible benefits.

Employing M-G-M's slogan of "The Friendly Company" as a sounding board, Rodgers declared this could never have been accomplished without the support he has received from his superiors and those who have helped develop a sense of fair dealing. In this respect he said that 80 per cent of the deals for "Gone With the Wind" were written without exhibitor demands for a guarantee, which, he declared, was proffered. He also brought out that 4,500 exhibitors voluntarily agreed to advance admissions for "Boom Town." His reason for mentioning these instances, he added, was because they exemplified the value of confidence and good will.

This same confidence and good will, he observed, should and can exist in the "proper and efficient" execution of the decree. He scored those organizations, who, although seemingly sincere in their efforts, are "misguided," and declared: "Let us all look forward to harmony; it can only help all of us to progress. This is no time for any branch of the industry to quarrel with the other."

Dietz Analyzes It

New York—Accustomed as he is to public speaking, Howard Dietz, M-G-M's director of advertising and publicity, probably couldn't resist the temptation to go off on one of his humorous tantrums when he was asked merely to take a bow at the Ampa luncheon honoring William F. Rodgers, general sales manager. Smack away, he offered: "There are only two departments that count, production and publicity and advertising. The sales organization is merely a super-clerical force."

M-G-M, he said, did not arrive at the slogan, "The Friendly Company," with ease. "First," he jibed, "it was the unfriendly company. Then the fairly friendly company. And then the friendly company. However, there was a moment's hesitation when Al Lichtman joined us. But under Rodgers it may yet turn out to be the affectionate company."

Dietz, waxing nostalgic, referred to an old photograph he recently uncovered of the "sales council" of the old Goldwyn Pictures Co. "This sales council was sort of an interim affair between presidents. We were all vice-presidents. But a vice-president under Goldwyn is like a private under Schenck."

Nicholas M., naturally.

'Out to Hang Schenck,' Counsel Charges; Denies Tax Deficiency

NEW YORK—That the government is "out to hang" Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of 20th-Fox, and that "the prosecution is the most outrageous thing ever seen in the federal court," highlighted the opening remarks of Harold H. Corbin, counsel for Schenck in the income tax trial now under way before Judge Grover Moscowitz.

Also, defense counsel held, Schenck's income for the years 1935-37 totaled $2,014,000, on which he paid taxes aggregating $517,000.

On the basis of stock transactions made by Schenck the government owes him upwards of $165,000, which was overpaid, according to Corbin's statement. Included in the amount is $125,000 which the defense claims is due on the taxes to the government in 1937 when Schenck paid on his 20th-Fox stock dividends which were disbursed out of capital investment, not earned profits.

Corbin asserted Schenck's business is not to only draw a salary, but to make money for the company in order to pay dividends to the stockholders, of which he is a large one. Refuting the government contention Schenck spent 83 per cent of each dollar earned on entertainment, Corbin said the actual percentage in 1935 was three per cent and 1936 eight per cent.

After delving into the history of the defendant, Corbin stated his client has the respect of everyone in the motion picture industry.

"He didn't achieve success by sitting at his desk from 9 to 5, but worked at his job from the time he got up until he went to bed," he told the court.

Schenck's real accomplishments, the attorney continued, were not performed in his office. In order to achieve success he had to have the respect of the entire industry. He knew people. He grew up with them, all kinds. He had talent, genius in organizing. Schenck had an affable and generous disposition. So continued the attorney.

"He has established a reputation for fair and honest dealing in the industry," Corbin added, "and, step by step, rose to the position he has today."

The lawyer then brought out the fact he intends to introduce character witnesses to testify to the integrity of Schenck and Joseph H. Moskowitz, eastern studio representative for 20th-Fox, and a co-defendant.

"These men are not trying to cheat the government out of a penny. That would be utterly foreign to their disposition and way of life."

Corbin then stated that, if Schenck had hired real tax experts instead of turning over those matters to Moskowitz, he would have saved a lot of money in taxes. That experts would be brought in to prove his contention was another point he tipped off to the government.

Before closing, the counselor held that Schenck "had no chance to settle the tax claim. There was no review. The government just indicted him instead of waiting for the usual 90 days in which to appeal and go over the matter."

Whether the incident means anything or not, it happened nevertheless. Corbin had turned to his law partner to check a certain figure, while talking to the jury. Judge Moscowitz interrupted and informed Corbin he could not openly discuss such matters. Following which Corbin said, "We're in America today!"

Most of the case will concern figures and figures and more figures, which are already taxing the newspaper men covering the assignment.

Schenck Confident As Trial Opens

New York—Declaring his complete innocence of any attempt allegedly to defraud the government of income tax payments, Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the 20th-Fox board, stated on the opening of the trial Wednesday, "I enter this trial with complete confidence. No man ever complained that I did him any wrong, much less have I wronged my government."

The case is expected to take several weeks.

Marvin Schenck Arranging Greek Benefit for Mar. 28

NEW YORK—Marvin Schenck, eastern M-G-M talent head and assistant to C. C. Moskowitz, is in charge of producing the special show to be held March 28 at the Music Hall for the Greek War Relief. The midnight benefit will be called "Greek Festival for Freedom." A special souvenir program is being prepared and it is anticipated the affair will net the drive approximately $40,000.

An imposing array of screen, stage and radio personalities is being assembled. All branches of the amusement industry are cooperating under the chairmanship of Adolph Zukor.

NEW YORK—P. S. Harrison, publisher of Harrison's Reports and publicity director for the Greek War Relief Ass'n, states he has completed plans for an international cartoon exhibition to raise funds for the drive. The stunt is being handled by John McGrail, formerly of the Hays office and 20th-Fox, who conceived it.

Regular Loew Dividend; To Vote on Preferred

NEW YORK—Loew stockholders of record March 18 will receive the regular common dividend of 50 cents on March 31. Directors again meet April 2 to then vote on the preferred dividend of $1.62½, payable about the middle of next month.

• REVIEW FLASHES •

DOUBLE DATE (Univ)—Unpretentious but entirely wholesome comedy of family life which has more than its share of diverting elements, considering its modest cost and claims. The picture is admirable supporting material, credited largely to a well-done story and workmanlike performances by Edmund Lowe, Una Merkel and Peggy Moran. Joseph Sanford produced; Glen Tryon directed.

MURDER AMONG FRIENDS (20th-Fox)—Seldom, if ever, has there been a murder mystery with more slayings. And this offering's claim to distinction begins and ends right there. The story revolves about a joint insurance policy involving a large number of men, who as survivors on a given date will share its benefits. It will serve as supporting fare. Marjorie Weaver, John Hubbard. Ray McCarey directed.

RAGE IN HEAVEN (M-G-M)—Robert Montgomery is again cast as a homicidal paranoic in a heavy and sombre melodrama which deals principally with insane jealousy, suicide and other unpleasant phases of the psyche. Although he, his co-star, Ingrid Bergman, and the remainder of the cast turn in fine performances, the film is strictly adult entertainment, designed for the more profound exponents of the drama. Its appeal to rank and file will probably be limited. Gottfried Reinhardt produced; W. S. Van Dyke II directed.

THAT NIGHT IN RIO (20th-Fox)—Taking off to a flying start with a production number precedentally breath-taking in its lavishness and beauty, this filmusical never slackens its speed as engrossing entertainment for an instant. In many respects it touches a new ceiling for screen musical comedies. Story, cast, music, production, direction, costumes and sets, the magnificent colors of which are photographed in Technicolor, all contribute their shares toward assembling a truly superb picture, one which will probably crowd revenue records in its classification. Alice Faye and Don Ameche are starred. Irving Cummings directed; Fred Kohlmar produced.

"Meet John Doe" Will Debut in Hollywood

Having been denied for some time, the privilege of running the gamut of klieg lights and autograph hounds for a Hollywood premiere, industry notables by the dozens are preparing to end the long dry spell when Warner's "Meet John Doe" is world premiered March 12 at Warner's Hollywood. It will be one of the few local gala screenings of the season, film exploiteers having been concentrating on out-of-town junkets. The reserved-seat affair will precede day-date showings, at advanced prices, at the Hollywood and Downtown. Bleachers will be erected for the fans.

Paramount's "The Hard-Boiled Canary" was premiered in Dallas, Tex., March 8, with proceeds going to the British War Relief Fund. Allan Jones, Susanna Foster and Dolly Loehr, stars of the film, made stage appearances.

Harold Lloyd's first RKO Radio production, "A Girl, a Guy and a Gob," was given its coast premiere March 5 at the Golden Gate Theatre in San Francisco, with Lucille Ball, Edmond O'Brien, George Murphy, Lloyd, Nancy Kelly and Desi Arnaz on hand. Screening followed the March 4 world premiere at the Hawaii Theatre in Honolulu.

Warner executives are discussing the possibility of premiering "The Sea Wolf" in the Valley of the Moon, Jack London's residence, near Sonoma.

Dispatched to Mexico City to work out arrangements for the world premiere there of James Roosevelt's first United Artists production, "Pot O' Gold," were Don Roberts and Charles Arthur Powell, working under instructions from John P. Miles, Roosevelt's publicity director. Affair is scheduled for mid-April, with stars and the working press to be transported to the Mexican metropolis from Hollywood and New York by air.

Discuss Improvements in 16mm Kodachrome Film

Discussions and demonstrations of improvements in 16mm Kodachrome film featured a meeting of the Pacific Coast Section of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers in the review room of the Samuel Goldwyn studios. Those attending also discussed the increased use of Kodachrome by studios for pre-production tests.

Extras Can Leave SAG, Says Kenneth Thomson

If any group of extra players wants to withdraw from the Screen Actors Guild, and can secure a majority vote of the extra membership to that effect, the SAG will "willingly" release it.

That is the answer of Kenneth Thomson, SAG executive secretary, to a group of extra players, members of the ousted "B" council, who have lodged an appeal with government authorities including Thurman Arnold, assistant U. S. attorney-general, and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, seeking federal aid in a projected battle to force the SAG to give them a vote in the organization's affairs.

Pointing out that extras, in 1933, petitioned the SAG to admit them to membership and appointed it their bargaining agent, Thomson cited the many improvements in working conditions the SAG has obtained for day and bit players. He pointed out that, as recently as last June when judgment in favor of the SAG was handed down against an extra seeking the same privilege, the court ruled that extras had "willingly made a clear-cut contract" with the SAG and that they were "not deprived of any constitutional rights." Last November in a general referendum extras voted to abolish their "B" council and place their affairs directly in the hands of the SAG's "A" board of directors. A provision in the SAG constitution gives the extras the power to withdraw at any time by a majority vote.

Appeal to governmental authorities was guided by Harry Mayo, who was chairman of the now-defunct "B" council. He claims extras and bit players contribute most of the upkeep of the SAG through dues and initiation fees and consequently should be given a voice in the selection of personnel, policies and wage agreements.

The SAG board met March 3 to study the new extra flare-up and to discuss the progress of negotiations with producers whereby a reclassification of extra players, and a blanket wage increase for them, is being sought.

Hammond Will Complete "American Broadcast"

With Kenneth Macgowan resigning his $2,500 weekly post as associate producer at 20th Century-Fox to accept an $8,000 yearly job as non-theatrical director for the South American Amity Committee, the unfinished assignment on his slate, "Great American Broadcast," has been handed to Len Hammond, Macgowan's assistant, for completion. Other films, including "Man Hunt," "Belle Starr" and "Flight Surgeon," will be distributed among other producers on the lot. Macgowan has already left for New York, where he will headquarter in pursuit of his new duties.

Wage Increase Demands At Present Are Out

Although indicating they will consider no demands for wage increases at this time, producer representatives have agreed to negotiate with the representatives of several IATSE studio unions on standardization of working conditions, overtime pay, location calls and other matters. Harold V. Smith, business manager of the sound technicians, is handling negotiations for the IA crafts.

Painters' Union Business Manager Sees Job Done

Herbert Sorrell has resigned as business manager of the Moving Picture Painters Local, declaring his services are no longer essential since most of the important negotiations affecting the union have been completed.

Screen Writers Discuss New Agreement Draft

The executive board of the Screen Writers Guild met to discuss the preliminary draft of the new basic agreement which it will submit shortly to the producers. A meeting of the producer-Screen Directors Guild conciliation committee was scheduled for March 5 to review the SDG's demands for a new contract to replace the current agreement, calling for a minimum wage scale, 90 per cent Guild shop and other adjustments. Present pact expires March 13.

Studio policemen and firemen at 20th Century-Fox voted to retain their own independent union as collective bargaining agent in an election supervised by the national labor relations board. Contesting as the other name on the ballot was the American Federation of Labor's Building Service Employes union.

Mood Militaire—

When Major-General J. O. Mauborgne, chief signal officer, U. S. Army, came to Hollywood to view the first two visual training shorts produced for the War Department by the Academy Research Council, it was the occasion for a banquet, given in the general's honor by Lieut.-Col. Darryl F. Zanuck. Glimpsed at the affair were: (1) Zanuck and Col. Nathan Levinson, ranking officers in Hollywood's photographic division of the signal corps. Will H. Hays is in the center background. (2) Harry M. Warner, Major-General Mauborgne and, with his back to the camera, Col. Levinson. (3) Walter F. Wanger, Academy president, and Louis B. Mayer.

Bowling Tourney for British War Relief

Next charitable undertaking on the Hollywood front, this one for the British War Relief campaign, will be in the form of a bowling tournament in which a list of Hollywood notables and would-be keglers will compete not only against each other but also against the picked teams of some of the larger local industrial leagues.

Sponsoring the tournament, scheduled for March 30, are Ida Lupino, Mrs. Ronald Colman, Mrs. Charles Boyer and Heather Angel. Alleys at the Sunset Bowling Center have been donated by Harry M. Warner and Harry Charnus, manager of the establishment. Entry fees, $50 for each team, as well as spectator admissions and concession profits, will go into the fund.

The Greek War Relief Fund was enrichened by an estimated $17,000 as the result of the recent Shrine Auditorium concert, attended by approximately 5,000, it was announced by the motion picture permanent charities committee, headed by Samuel Goldwyn. Ascap leaders, including President Gene Buck, aided in staging the affair, in which such film names as Mary Martin, Judy Garland, Frances Langford, Jack Benny, Bob Hope, Tony Martin, Eddie Cantor and Cole Porter participated.

The industry's part in the 1940-41 Community Chest drive, which ended some weeks ago, received formal recognition and appreciation when the board of directors of the Los Angeles Welfare Federation adopted a resolution commending Hollywood, "its personalities, its leaders and its personnel" for an "unusual demonstration of cooperative endeavor for the sake of those less fortunate, and for the sake of our common welfare."

That Hollywood's contribution to the national defense program is of "vital importance" and is as valuable to the U. S. army as is the steel industry's contribution, was the assertion of Major-General J. O. Mauborgne, chief signal officer, during his two-day visit to the film colony.

Viewing the first two visual education training shorts completed by the Academy Research Council for use by the War Department, General Mauborgne called them "splendid" and declared they will enable the army to teach new enlisted and drafted men "more quickly and more thoroughly than ever before." Films were "previewed" for him at a dinner in his honor given by Lieut.-Col. Darryl F. Zanuck, who, with Col. Nathan Levinson and Capt. Gordon S. Mitchell, is supervising production of the shorts. Guests included other army officers and George J. Schaefer, Walter F. Wanger, David O. Selznick, Louis B. Mayer, Harry M. Warner, William Goetz, Frank Capra, Samuel Goldwyn, Will H. Hays, William LeBaron, Harry Cohn and Edward Arnold.

"The army is indebted to the motion picture industry for another fine accomplishment on our behalf over the past nine years," General Mauborgne declared. He left for San Francisco after the banquet, while Zanuck, Levinson and Mitchell pulled out for Washington, D. C., to deliver the completed films to the War Department and spend a week there in active service.

Active Travel Week For Executives

After spending several days at the Disney studio in Burbank, Hal Horne, Walt Disney's eastern representative, and Richard Condon, his New York publicity director, left for San Francisco, where they handled the March 5 opening of Disney's "Fantasia." While at the Burbank plant, Horne and Condon conferred with Disney and other company officials on exploitation campaign plans for "The Reluctant Dragon," his next feature-length attraction, due for release early this spring. The subject stars Robert Benchley and combines live action and cartoon animation.

Ericksen to East

To join Murray Silverstone, United Artists chieftain, and Arthur W. Kelly, general salesmanager, in a series of preseasonal distribution conferences, Clarence E. Ericksen, vice-president and general manager of Walter F. Wanger Productions, has pulled out for New York. He followed Silverstone east, the latter having returned last week after six weeks in Hollywood. Ericksen will act as representative of a committee of UA producers comprising Wanger, Edward Small and Sol Lesser in arranging UA's 1941-42 release program. He will be east for about a month. Silverstone is expected to return here following conclusion of the conferences to clean up the deal whereby Samuel Goldwyn withdraws as a UA owner-member, relinquishing his stock in the corporation.

Loew, Spring Arrive

Arthur M. Loew, in charge of foreign operations for Loew's Inc., and his executive aide, Morton Spring, are in from New York for conferences at M-G-M. They are discussing and looking over product pegged for release in South America and other foreign countries.

Jack Warner in East

Jack L. Warner, vice-president in charge of Warner production, is in New York conferring with eastern executives on release plans for "The Bride Came C. O. D.," "The Great Lie" and "The Sea Wolf."

Schaefer Returns

George J. Schaefer, RKO Radio president, checked in from a quick trip east in time to attend the 13th annual Academy Awards banquet. He visited Chicago and New York on personal business.

Armour Named Schaefer's Aide in Realignment

Continuing the realignment of studio personnel which began when President George J. Schaefer took personal charge of all RKO Radio studio operations, Reginald Armour, general manager of European sales for the company, has been named Schaefer's personal assistant. He has been placed in charge of studio relations as a contact executive. Armour has been in Hollywood for several months, having come here from abroad with Michele Morgan, French star whom he signed for RKO Radio.

Studio Employment In January Down

For the second successive month studio employment and payroll figures, exclusive of the executive and talent brackets, showed a decrease, with figures for January as issued by the California labor statistics department disclosing a drop for that month under December, 1939.

Average weekly payroll in January, statistics reveal, was $539,645, as compared to $543,640 in December. An increase was shown, however, in salaries per individual worker, each of whom earned $44.06 in January as against $43.87 in December. They worked an average of 0.6 per cent more hours weekly, however, for their paychecks during the first month of 1941.

Darmour Readies One; Others Also Active

As the third in his series of "Ellery Queen" detective thrillers for release by Columbia, Producer Larry Darmour is now readying "The Devil Pays." Ralph Bellamy will appear again as the sleuth, with production to start in April from a script being prepared by Eric Taylor.

Other Activity

Heading an independent unit for Monogram release, Scott R. Dunlap will turn cameras shortly on "Widows of the Press," with Phil Rosen directing from an Albert Duffy screenplay. Producer I. E. Chadwick's second for Monogram will be "Redhead," from a story by Dorothy Reid, Conrad Seiler and Betty Burbridge. His initialer was "Her First Romance," starring Edith Fellows.

"The Barefoot Boy's Secret" has been added to Producer E. B. Derr's Crescent Pictures schedule, with a May starting date. He also lists "Confession" and "I Give My Life," all in preparatory stages.

Million Dollar Productions has rolled "Take My Life," with Clifford Sanforth producing and Leo C. Popkin directing, as the first in a group of four for state-right release.

Herbert T. Silverberg has been elected to the directorate of Gloria Films, headed by William Szekeley. Company's first, "New Wine," is now being edited for early distribution by United Artists.

RAF a Theme

Frank Lloyd's next independent production for Universal release, "I, James Lewis," is being readied for an April 15 start. His initialer, "The Lady From Cheyenne," will be released shortly. Lloyd also plans "The Flying Yorkshireman" as part of his schedule.

"Landfall," story of the Royal Air Force by Neville Shute, will be next on schedule for the David L. Loew-Albert Lewin unit, releasing through United Artists. Talbot Jennings is now preparing the screenplay.

With both scripts now ready, Jules Levey of Mayfair Pictures will set starting dates shortly on "Tight Shoes" and "Butch Minds the Baby," Damon Runyon originals, to be made for Universal release.

Newsreel Theatre Patrons, P. T. A. Pick Favorites

Audiences and the Parent-Teachers Ass'n participate in the Teleview Corp.'s News View Theatre's annual poll to select outstanding short subjects and newsreel coverage each year. Here the cameraman catches some of the winners in the second annual poll:

1. Pete Smith of M-G-M receives two trophies from Maureen O'Sullivan. His specialty, "Quicker'n a Wink," won one of the statuettes, while Maureen is about to give him the trophy for being selected the most popular commentator for 1940, which marks the second time in succession Smith has won that award.

2. Again from Miss Sullivan, Jack Chertok, producer of M-G-M's short subjects, receives a pair of trophies for turning out 1940's top shorts.

3. For the second successive year, Leon Schlesinger, producer of "Merrie Melodies" and "Looney Tunes" cartoons for Warner, bagged the poll in his division. "A Wild Hare," a "Merrie Melodie" starring "Bugs" Bunny, was voted the favorite for 1940. Schlesinger won the 1939 award with his patriotic cartoon, "Old Glory."

Other winners included:

Most outstanding foreign newsreel coverage—Paramount, "The Retreat from Narvik."

Most outstanding national newsreel coverage—M-G-M, "Tacoma Bridge Disaster."

Most outstanding dramatic short—"The Baron and the Rose," a John Nesbitt Passing Parade for M-G-M.

HOLLYWOOD's chronic avidity for limitless publicity about any and all of its activities and its resultant propensity toward usually making the wrong public relations gestures are apparently determined to prevail even as concerns the admirable part the film capital is playing in the national defense program.

Normally, the public would accept without question that it is an extremely important part. Permitted to do their own thinking, and without benefit of overzealous publicists, fans would never for a minute doubt the sincerity and patriotism of the men most active in the industry's program for helping the government during the existing emergency. The attitude and appreciation of the army were voiced by Major-General Joseph O. Mauborgne, chief signal officer, when he spent two days here to confer with industry executives engaged in making a series of visual education training shorts for use by the war department in tutoring new conscripted men.

General Mauborgne hailed motion pictures' contribution as of "vital importance" and as being as significant "as is the steel industry's contribution." Viewing the first two training subjects completed by the Academy Research Council, he called them "splendid" and declared they will enable the army to teach new soldiers "more quickly and thoroughly than ever before."

At a special "preview" following a banquet given in his honor by Lieut.-Col. Darryl F. Zanuck, General Mauborgne paid further tribute by declaring:

"The army is indebted to the motion picture industry for another fine accomplishment on our behalf." He praised the Research Council and the committee, including Zanuck, Col. Nathan Levinson and Capt. Gordon S. Mitchell, which is in charge of production on the training shorts.

The beneficial effects of such well-deserved and glowing tribute are, however, discounted and jeopardized by publicity releases of the type which are being broadcast by the motion picture production defense committee. For example, there is the verbose story, so constructed as to invite misleading headlines, which announced that "three ranking army reserve officers, prominent in the motion picture industry, today were ordered for active service in Washington, D. C." More careful perusal of the release reveals that the "three reserve officers," Col. Levinson, Lieut.-Col. Zanuck and Capt. Mitchell, were making the trip to the national capital to "confer with members of the general staff of the United States Army regarding the first two training films, now completed, which they will take with them personally to Washington to deliver to the war department." Further, it is revealed that "their tour of active duty" will last for exactly—one week.

Then there were the photographs taken at the banquet tendered General Mauborgne by Lieut.-Col. Zanuck, which showed the host, Col. Levinson and Capt. Mitchell resplendent in uniform and insignia, although it is reasonable to assume that they spent the balance of the day pursuing their productional and executive duties garbed in ordinary Hollywood mufti.

All of which probably will incite plenty of laughs, ranging from reflective chuckles to derisive guffaws. It should prove especially amusing to the butcher, baker or candlestick-maker who, as a National Guardsman, volunteer or draftee, finds that his "tour of active duty" ranges from one year to "the duration," the fellows who left modest jobs to do "squads right" in the mud of training camps at San Luis Obispo and points east.

The industry's contribution to preparedness is whole-hearted, essential and entirely praiseworthy. It can automatically go a long way in recapturing for motion pictures and the people who make them the public esteem which comparable publicity folly has been discouraging for so many years. It will be deplorable if that opportunity is abrogated because an ambitious press agent is over-anxious to justify his comparatively unimportant place on a payroll.

With Kenneth Macgowan's resignation from a $2,500-a-week producership to assume the post of non-theatrical director of the South American Amity Committee at $8,000 yearly, Hollywood has probably lost its last frontier for ideals.

George Brown's description of Macdonald Carey, stage star just signed to a term contract at Paramount:

Republic signs Slingin' Sammy Baugh, all-American football star, for a part in its $900,000 serial, "King of the Texas Rangers," which opens a wide range of possibilities. But, let it be remembered, Warner still has exclusive rights to the screen services of Uncle Sammy.

George Schaefer jr. is promoted from assistant director on shorts to assistant director on features at RKO Radio studio.

Hedda Hopper wishes that "Metro would buy James Street's story, 'Oh, Promised Land,' then borrow Dean Jagger from 20th-Fox to star in it."

Who is she insulting? And does she opine that Fox could not make the picture satisfactorily or that Metro has no male star qualified to play in it?

Sailors, Sleuths, Sawbones, Six-Guns

Hollywood's great, and those who report their activities, were so occupied during the past week with the distribution of Academy kudos for past performances, that little attention could be paid to current celluloid. Hence a meager four features were shown at preview, of which number RKO Radio's "A Girl, a Guy and a Gob" seemed to garner the lion's share of the critics' affections.

It was produced by Harold Lloyd, erstwhile ace screen comedian, who has many material reasons for remembering the formula of film story and situation which brought him fame and fortune. And that formula he applied here, tutoring an aggregation of competent and eager Thespics and technicians who then proceeded to turn out a typical Harold Lloyd comedy—although Lloyd chose to exercise his shrewd showmanship from behind the cameras rather than before them. Streamlined, it nevertheless is strikingly reminiscent of those Lloyd photoplays which marked the hey-day of his career, from which it can safely be predicted that he and RKO Radio have a hit on their hands. In the characteristic Lloydian role of a sensitive, shy and self-effacing youth around whom the motivation revolves is one Edmond O'Brien, a comparative newcomer, and talented. Resembling Franchot Tone, he was—for this part at least—endowed with many of the tricks and charms of the comedian-turned-producer. Toplined are George Murphy and Lucille Ball. They, with the rest of a hand-picked cast, contribute sterling performances, while Richard Wallace's expert direction is no small factor in the picture's excellence. Frank Ryan and Bert Granet scripted from an original story by the late Grover Jones.

Further in the first division was Warner's "Footsteps in the Dark," in which Errol Flynn forsakes swashbuckling action to play a debonair amateur detective. A murder mystery, the film specializes in comedy, rather than suspense, and throughout the screenplay by Lester Cole and John Wexley the approach to the crime angles is definitely tongue-in-cheek. Most of the formula situations in this type of feature were dragged in and subjected to a subtle ribbing. Flynn's performance is noteworthy, as is Robert Lord's produc-

New Production Push Sets 12 Weekly for Cameras

A productional push unequalled in the past year or more will find an average of 12 pictures weekly slated to go into work on Hollywood's major lots during the remaining three weeks of March, with 17 others already lined up for April cameras.

Paramount has the heaviest foot on the throttle, with nine starters in March and eight in April. This month they include "Henry for President," "Aloma of the South Seas," "Birth of the Blues," "Nothing But the Truth," "Buy Me That Town," "World Premiere," "College Mystery," "Parson of Panamint" and "Forced Landing." In April it will launch "Dildo Cay," "Sullivan's Travels," "Sing a Song of Homicide," "Reap the Wild Wind," "Two Bad Angels," "Among the Living," "Joan of Arkansas" and "Secret of the Wastelands."

Columbia's March lineup includes "The Return of Daniel Boone," "Bedtime Story," "The Officer and the Lady," "Blondie in Society," "Tillie the Toiler" and "Texas." In April "Betty Co-Ed" will get under way. Universal this month will roll "Horror Island," "Sandy Steps Out," "Mutiny in the Arctic" and "Sing Another Chorus." For April it lists "Almost an Angel," "Ready for Romance," and "Men of the Timberlines." Monogram will gun "Widows of the Press" this month, "King of the Zombies" in April.

Metro's March program comprises "The Yearling," an untitled "Dr. Kildare," an untitled "Tarzan," "Step This Way" and "Smilin' Through." Republic lists "County Fair" and "Puddin' Head," with "Down Mexico Way" to start next month. At RKO Radio "A Certain Mr. Scratch," and "Hurry, Charlie, Hurry," will get under way. Warner's schedule includes "Bad Men of Missouri," "Hard to Get" and "Dive Bomber."

Twentieth Century-Fox will launch "Man Hunt," "Belle Starr" and "A Yank in the R. A. F," with "Fraternity" pegged for an April start. For United Artists, Alexander Korda will gun "Our Heaven Is Now" this month. In April, Sol Lesser will begin work on "Strange Victory" and Hal Roach plans to start "Niagara Falls."

tion guidance and Lloyd Bacon's direction, and the film sums up as diverting and potentially profitable entertainment. Script was from a play by Lazlo Fodor, Bernard Merivale and Jeffrey Dell. Appearing to good advantage opposite Flynn is Brenda Marshall, while Ralph Bellamy delivers a strong supporting characterization.

RKO Radio's "Melody for Three" can be recommended without reservation to fans of the "Dr. Christian" series starring Jean Hersholt, as it possesses the same blend of down-to-earth hokum and comedy which typified its predecessors. Further, it presents a promising juvenile player, Schuyler Standish, who performs miracles with a violin and can act a bit as well. Hersholt, of course, misses no bets in his now-familiar role as the kindly small-town doctor. Erle C. Kenton's direction extracts every particle of humor, drama and suspense from the vehicle, a Stephens-Lang production, supervised by William Stephens.

In the sagebrush division the lone contribution was George W. Weeks' new "Range Busters" western for Monogram release, "Trail of the Silver Spurs." The elements which make for reliable boots-and saddles entertainment have been incorporated in it in sufficient quantities to satisfy most fans. It combines action, gunfights, a chase or two and rangeland music to good effect and is on a par throughout with past entries in the series starring Ray Corrigan, John King and Max Terhune. Anna Bell Ward served as Weeks' associate producer. S. Roy Luby directed from a script by Earle Snell, based on Elmer Clifton's original.

Cinémarks

Guest of honor at the Cocoanut Grove's weekly "celebrity night" was Mitchell Leisen, Paramount director. William Holden, Jackie Cooper, Wayne Morris and several others were his guests for the occasion . . . Producer Richard A. Rowland has returned from an extensive nation-wide junket on behalf of his United Artists release, "Cheers for Miss Bishop."

Robert Riskin, Frank Capra's production partner and scenarist, has returned from a New York holiday to assist in preparations for the "Meet John Doe" premiere here March 12. Film will open simultaneously in New York.

Frank Donovan, who produces "Picture People," a shorts series, for RKO Pathe, has left for the east. While here he signed Boris Karloff for a guest spot on "Information Please."

Collier Young, RKO Radio's studio story head, is in New York for two weeks searching for new material . . . Also heading for New York was David Hempstead, RKO Radio producer, to confer with Ben Hecht on the script of "Journey Into Fear," Hempstead's next assignment . . . Alexander Korda, United Artists producer, has returned from a business trip which took him to Gotham.

Henry Ginsberg, Paramount studio general manager, is vacationing in Palm Springs, his first holiday in more than a year.

William Keighley, Warner director, has been made a member of Delta Kappa Alpha, cinema fraternity, in recognition of his work at the University of Southern California, where he teaches a class in motion picture direction. Keighley was presented with a scroll and key on the set of his current picture, "The Bride Came C. O. D."

Trem Carr, member of Monogram's directorate, has returned from New York, where he conferred with President W. Ray Johnston and other executives on the company's 1941-42 production plans.

Film to Follow "Outlaw" Seen on Hughes' Calendar

In the face of countless rumors and conjectures as to the future plans of Howard Hughes, multi-millionaire oilfield tool manufacturer and motion picture producer, spokesmen for Hughes aver he has but one definite film purpose in mind at the present time.

That is to produce another film following "The Outlaw," which he is making for 20th Century-Fox release. The second, bearing the label "Production Number X," is in nebulous stages, Hughes having formed an association with Leo McCarey, who will direct it, and with whom he now is working out story details. No release has been set for it and no cast or writers have been assigned, Hughes attaches declare.

Scouted here as "pure conversation," among other reports, is one that Hughes is mulling the formation of a distribution company, according to which rumor he will be associated with Samuel Goldwyn. Spokesmen brand it as just another in the long list of conjectures relating to Hughes and which, to date at least, have no basis in fact.

"The Outlaw" now is in the re-take stage and is scheduled for release early in April.

Producers Association Postpones Meetings

Postponed indefinitely because of the lack of business to consider was the regular monthly meeting of the producers association, originally scheduled for March 3. It was indicated that association directors felt all important business matters for the time being had been disposed of at the annual meeting two weeks ago, when new officers were elected.

Meantime Central Casting Corp. is continuing the rotating layoff system for casting directors which was established when activity in extra placements reached a low ebb. Going off the payroll for 30 days are David Landauer and Ralph Acton, while Frank Roderick and Al Smith are back on the job again after a month's layoff.

Screen Club Names Year's Committees

DENVER—With an extensive list of committees the Rocky Mountain Screen Club starts its second year under the presidency of Frank H. "Rick" Ricketson, manager of the Fox Intermountain Theatres. The club expects to have its biggest year. Plans are being made for the annual picnic, golf tournament, banquet and dance to be held this summer. The club will also keep up its charity work, the principal item the past year being the giving of $3,000 to a new Denver hospital to be used in equipping several rooms exclusively for children. The ladies of the club have adopted three girls and are seeing to it that they are clothed, fed and put through school.

The complete list of committees, named by Ricketson, are: Executive, R. J. Morrison, Harry Graham, Emmett Thurmon, Gus Kohn, Chet Bell and Mickey Gross; house, Jap Morgan, Sam Feinstein, Joe Ashby, Frank Culp and Dan Foley; entertainment, Joe Ashby, Bernie Hynes, Bob Hill, Mickey Gross, Joe Stone, Albert J. Gould, Bob Ryan, Ralph Batschelet, Edward Miller and Jap Morgan; finance, Henry Friedel, Duke Dunbar, Harry Goodridge, Ross Bluck and Joe Graham; welfare, Louis Finske, John Zarit, Al Hoffman, John Anderson, Frank Culp, Harry Nolan, Lon Fidler, Tom Anglen, Dave Davis, A. P. Archer and Bill Agren.

Other Committees

Membership, Harold Rice, Robert Cain, Barney Shooker, Sam Cramer, Sam Reed, Dan Foley, Hugh Rennie, Sam Feinstein and Neil Beezly; luncheon, Bill Agren, Fred Brown, Chet Bell, Louis Finske, John Denman and Bernie Hynes; founders day, A. P. Archer, Charles Gilmour, Joe Dekker, R. J. Morrison, Ray Davis, James Micheletti and Joe Graham; publicity, Ted Halmi, Bob Selig, A. De Bernardi, James Briggs and John Denman; nineties, Jack Langan, Bill Agren, Bernie Hynes, Dan Lehrburger, Derek Sydney, C. J. Duer, John Voss, Jap Morgan and Duke Dunbar; picnic, Jack Langan, Bob Selig, Jap Morgan, R. J. Morrison, Duke Dunbar, Buzz Briggs, Mike Lee, Fred Brown, Louis Finske, Fred Zekman and Hugh Rennie; greater movie season, H. E. Huffman, Mickey Gross, Dave Davis, R. J. Morrison, Bernie Hynes, Henry Freidel, Bob Ryan, Charles Gilmour and A. P. Archer.

Salesmen Invited

All film salesmen are invited to attend meetings of the board of directors, and the salesmen are ex-officio members of all committees. With the necessity of having a quorum when the board or a committee convenes, it is impossible to place salesmen on committees that meet weekly.

The officers for the year are Rick Ricketson, president; Joe Ashby, vice-president; Bob Hill, second vice-president; Henry Friedel, treasurer; Ross Bluck, secretary; Albert Gould, counsel. On the board of directors are Bill Agren, Buzz Briggs, Jack Langan, Dr. John Zarit, Tony Archer, Duke Dunbar, Jap Morgan and Bob Garland.

: Goodstein's Longmont Complaint :

DENVER—J. J. Goodstein, president of the Jos. J. Goodstein Enterprises, Inc., operating the Longmont Theatre in Longmont, Colo., has filed a licensing complaint charging that the Fox Longmont Theatre has exclusive output of seven distributors.

This complaint is held up by the AAA as a presentation made in model form. The text, consequently, is published:

To John B. Milton, clerk of the tribunal:

The undersigned, in accordance with the Rules of Arbitration and Appeals, demands that the controversy hereinafter described be submitted to Arbitration under the Motion Picture Consent Decree, and files herewith a Submission dated Feb. 18, 1941, in accordance with the provisions of Section XXII, subdivision 9, of said Decree.

1. Statement of claim and relief sought:

Longmont Theatre, operated by complainant, and Fox Longmont Theatre, operated by Fox Intermountain Theatres, Inc., a subsidiary of National Theatres Corp., which in turn is affiliated with 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., are competitive theatres in the city of Longmont, Colorado, Longmont Theatre being the older of the two theatres. 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. has contracted its output with Fox Longmont Theatre, which theatre also, to the knowledge of 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., has exclusive output of the following distributors: Loew's Incorporated, Paramount Pictures, Inc. (parties to the consent decree), and Universal Film Exchange, Inc., Columbia Pictures Corporation, United Artists Corp., Monogram Pictures Distributing Co. (not parties to the consent decree), leaving for the Longmont Theatre the products of only the following three distributors: Vitagraph, Inc., and RKO Radio Pictures, Inc. (parties to the consent decree), and Sheffield Exchange System (distributing Republic pictures) (not a party to the consent decree), the result being that the seven distributors above named, as exclusive contractors with Fox Longmont Theatre, refused to license any of their pictures for exhibition in Longmont Theatre, thereby giving to Fox Longmont Theatre more pictures than they can reasonably use, and depriving the Longmont Theatre of a sufficient amount of pictures reasonably necessary for its operation, all contrary to the purpose and intent of the Motion Picture Consent Decree. Complainant prays: that the distributors being parties to the consent decree, and refusing to license its pictures to Longmont Theatre, may be found to have refused to so license its pictures to the complainant, in violation of Section 6 of said consent decree, and that an award be entered directing a redistribution of pictures on a basis that will be fair and equitable as between said Longmont Theatre and said Fox Longmont Theatre.

2. Name and Address of Each Exhibitor or Distributor against Whom This Complaint Is Made:

Loew's Incorporated, 2100 Broadway, Denver, Colo.; Paramount Pictures, Inc., 2100 Stout Street, Denver, Colo.; 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., 2101 Champa Street, Denver, Colo.

3. Name and Address of Each Theatre Involved in Controversy:

Longmont Theatre, Longmont, Colo.; Fox Longmont Theatre, Longmont, Colo.

4. Name and Address of Each Other Exhibitor and Distributor Whose Property Complainant Believes May Be Affected by an Award in the Arbitration Proceeding:

Loew's, Incorporated, 2100 Broadway; Paramount Pictures, Inc., 2100 Stout St.; 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., 2101 Champa St., all of Denver, Colo.

Dated: February 18, 1941.

MURDER AMONG FRIENDS (20th-Fox)—Seldom, if ever, has there been a murder mystery with more slayings. And this offering's claim to distinction begins and ends right there. The story revolves about a joint insurance policy involving a large number of men, who as survivors on a given date will share its benefits. It will serve as supporting fare. Marjorie Weaver, John Hubbard, Ray McCarey directed.

RAGE IN HEAVEN (M-G-M)—Robert Montgomery is again cast as a homicidal paranoic in a heavy and sombre melodrama which deals principally with insane jealousy, suicide and other unpleasant phases of the psyche. Although he, his co-star, Igrid Bergman, and the remainder of the cast turn in fine performances, the film is strictly adult entertainment, designed for the more profound exponents of the drama. Its appeal to rank and file will probably be limited. Gottfried Reinhardt produced; W. S. Van Dyke II directed.

San Francisco Take Is Above Average

SAN FRANCISCO—Despite continuation of unseasonal and unwanted rainy weather, the first runs did exceptionally well. "Gone With the Wind" dropped considerably after a terrific first week but was doing better than the rest of the theatres. Mickey Rooney's latest Hardy impersonation was drawing well at the Fox and the Golden Gate was getting along splendidly with "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," in its second week. The rest of the first run houses had nothing to kick about.

"Wind" Doubles Par in Day-Date L. A. Run

LOS ANGELES—It was "Gone With the Wind" week in first-run receipts here. In its first popular-priced, day-date engagement at the United Artists and Four Star Theatres, the Vivien Leigh-Clark Gable starrer topped anything else the town had to offer, doing twice normal business at the UA, with three shows a day.

Good Weather, Product Potent Team in Salt Lake

SALT LAKE CITY—With good weather conditions continuing to prevail in this vicinity, and some especially attractive programs offered at the local theatres, box-office receipts have been holding their own nicely and in some cases in an unusual manner. "Gone With the Wind" lined them up for over a block, at one time, during the opening here a few days ago. "Western Union," much of it filmed in Utah, continued to do big in its second week here. "Escape to Glory and Boston Blackie" packed the Capitol as well as other good reports.

LOS ANGELES

GETTING under way March 8, and scheduled to run until March 12, Dave Rector's Ebell in Long Beach is featuring an all-film "classical music" show comprising features and short subjects. Rector himself is vacationing for a few days and Nate Tanchuck is pinch-hitting for him . . . Booking: Gus Acosta, Rex Theatre, Fresno; Joe Sloate of the Maynard.

To help out with general office work, Amando Barrios has joined the staff at the Azteca exchange . . . Astor Pictures has acquired distribution rights to the film version of "The Passion Play" for this territory.

Here for a stay of several weeks is Haskell Masters, western divisional manager for United Artists. He'll headquarter at the local UA exchange and is scheduled to hold a number of business conferences with Ben Fish, western district chief, who has just returned from a Honolulu vacation.

After a month's holiday here, William Grieme, operator of the Vitaphone in Winetchi, Wash., has returned home . . . Ruben A. Calderon, manager of the Azteca exchange, is in from a trip through the San Diego territory.

Asher Levy and Sidney Spiegel, theatre operators from Chicago, vacationing at Palm Springs . . . Fred Gage, United Artists salesman, is trekking through his Arizona territory.

Bert Lentz is in Bakersfield selling film for Columbia . . . Booking: Phil Greenbaum, Castle and Mecca theatres; Ben Bronstein of the Bronstein circuit; Jimmy Edwards, who operates theatres in the San Gabriel Valley.

A visitor at M-G-M's Culver City studio was Mrs. E. C. Beatty, wife of the manager of the Butterfield Theatres circuit. She was the guest of Robert Taylor on the set of "Billy the Kid" . . . Mrs. Foster Jackson of the Elsinore Theatre, Elsinore, came in for bookings . . . Ditto Al Galston, Marcal and Hawaii, Hollywood.

Bess Emanuel of Foreign Films exchange has returned from a business trip to Tucson . . . That was some send-off the Paramount exchange gave George Smith, new western division manager, when he departed for New York to take over his new job . . . Ben Fish, United Artists' western district chief, returns from his Honolulu vacation next week.

Add freak accidents: Jack Valpi, M-G-M's head booker, slipped and fell over a gas heater—and burned all the hair off his chest . . . Ruth Whitney, of M-G-M's accounting department, is taking a few days off to try to regain her voice, which disappeared when she caught a severe cold recently.

"Virginia" Doubles Par In Second Denver Week

Seattle Theatre Row on Even Business Keel

SEATTLE—Nothing spectacular in the way of business around the theatres this week. "GWTW" moved over. "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary" was campaigned by personal recommendation. "Western Union" featured displays in the WU windows. In all, with the mayoralty campaign coming up, what is doing in Olympia, the raise in rents of all apartments, most folks are holding on to their dough.

S' FRANCISCO

WEDNESDAY was certainly a day for those seeking entertainment. Three outstanding events took place without conflicting and all played to capacity houses. At the Geary, the ermine and orchid crowd turned out for the premiere of "Fantasia." The San Francisco Opera Guild sponsored the opening night and the society people did not let the Guild down. A few streets southward, patrons of the standard motion picture stopped traffic trying to get into the Golden Gate for the world premiere of "A Girl, a Guy, and a Gob." Personal appearances by the stars kept the boxoffice hot all day. At the Civic Auditorium the local pride and joy of the sports field drew a house full. Alice Marble and the professional tennis troupe performed for a single night and gave the other attractions plenty of competition.

Deanna Durbin and her fiance, Vaughn Paul, flew into town for the wedding of John Rogers, Hollywood producer, and Shirley Misrach, local society deb. Another from the film capital to attend was Richard Steenberg, Eddie Cantor's son-in-law . . . Jerry Mayer of M-G-M in town at the bedside of his son who was injured in a peninsula motor accident while en route south . . . Ike Hables booking on the Row for his Reel Joy in King City after being in Canada for several months . . . The National Broadcasting Co. has announced plans to open its own booking agency some time this month. The new office will be for broadcast talent but outside dates will be served . . . "Gone With the Wind" started its fourth and final week at the Warfield.

Warner has just about taken over nearby Sonoma for the world premiere of Jack London's "The Sea Wolf." The tentative date is March 22 . . . Ted Lewis is showing the local folk that he still has what it takes at the Bal Tabarin . . . Sid Weisbaum, Sid Martenstein, Bill Boland and Jimmy Myers of Republic returned from Hollywood where they participated in a regional meeting . . . Lew Maren in the Bay area to publicize United Artists product . . . Hal Perry in town because of his father's illness.

Pat Patterson has moved into the former offices of the PRC (and incidentally also formerly Pat's address) and will operate under the name of Astor Pictures. Patterson has acquired 19 Mohawk films and all of the Dorothy Page westerners. He has already booked "Scarface" and "Sky Devils" into the Redwood and T&D chains . . . A bevy of screen celebs will be among the guests of honor at the Shrine's annual St. Patrick's Day luncheon March 15. Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Harold Lloyd, Tony Martin, Maureen O'Hara, Gene Tierney and Cesar Romero are those who have already signified their intention of attending. Louis B. Mayer is the main speaker at the event which will be attended by an estimated 10,000.

The engagement of Ruth Chatterton in "Pygmalion" at the Curran has been extended until March 12. The play, which has been doing nicely at the boxoffice, would remain longer but must make way for "The Time of Your Life," scheduled on March 13. This double prize-winning comedy, written by San Franciscan William Saroyan and with San Francisco as its setting, will have Eddie Dowling and Julie Hayden as co-stars . . . "Strawberry Blonde," enjoying the best business there of any Warner product since "The Fighting 69th," will move to the Paramount for a second week. Marty Weiser, Warner publicist up for exploitation of this and other products, pulled a neat stunt when he sent newsmen a box of juicy strawberries with a tag reading, "Strawberries are in season—'Strawberry Blonde' is the reason."

E. M. Graybill has opened the San Miguel in San Miguel . . . Jim Patterson of the Capitol is the latest to march off to camp . . . Jimmy Myers is back at Republic after several weeks on the sick list . . . The Rio in Merced is installing fluorescent lighting . . . Ben Fish, UA division manager, in town after 10 days in Honolulu . . . Milton Nelson, formerly with the Harvey circuit, now in the ad sales department at Universal . . . Lima and Peters have taken over the Roseville in Roseville and will reopen in the near future . . . John Moore in booking during the day and enjoying the fights at night.

Booking on the Row: Bill Tamm, Amador, Jackson; Alfred Wilkens, Oakdale, Oakdale; Henry Udell, American, Winnemucca; C. Macway, Star, Sonora; M. D. McConnell, State, Modesto . . . "Tobacco Road" went into the Fox amid one of the largest ad campaigns put on by this theatre. Business for the first two days more than justified the expected rush at the boxoffice.

A National Theatres Drive Meeting Topic

LOS ANGELES—A review of accomplishments in the various National Theatre divisions for the past year and a discussion of tentative plans for the new season, including another campaign similar to the Spyros Skouras Showmanship drive of 1940, highlighted the three-day annual NT divisional managers' conclave at Lake Arrowhead March 6, 7 and 8.

Presiding over the sessions was Spyros Skouras, NT president, who planed in from Florida for the affair. The Southern California delegation attending was headed by Charles P. Skouras, president of Fox West Coast, and included Charles A. Buckley, head of the legal department; District Managers E. V. Sturdivant, Thornton Sargent and Dick Dickson, and Larry Kent, chief film buyer and booker.

Attending from other divisions were:

Rick Ricketson, Denver; Harold J. Fitzgerald and E. L. Alperson, Milwaukee; E. C. Rhoden, Kansas City; Arch M. Bowles, FWC's northern California manager; Al Finke, Al Rosenberg, John Hamrick and Frank L. Newman of the Evergreen circuit, Portland, and, from the homeoffice, William T. Powers, Harry T. Cox, Edward Zabel, Milton Hossfeld, Aubrey Schenck and John Healy.

SALT LAKE

SALT LAKE department store sales are 13 per cent ahead of the same week last year and for the year to date are 25 per cent ahead of 1940 . . . The new theatre at Heber, Utah, to be known as the Wasatch, is nearly completed. It is expected to open within a few weeks. Bliss Titus, the owner, will manage . . . Seats for the Lunt-Fontanne stage appearance in Robert E. Sherwood's "There Shall Be No Night" are practically sold out many days in advance of the presentation at the local Utah. Prices range from $1.68 to $2.80.

"Gone With the Wind" opened here at popular prices at the Paramount, with throngs lining up for this four-hour long film and the theatre omitting the intermission . . . The Lake featured for a one-night showing Hedy Lamarr in "Ecstasy." Companion piece was "Ski Patrol" . . . Buck Wade, Universal branch manager, has returned from a company convention in San Francisco . . . George Cloward, in charge locally for Ross Federal Service, is back from a trip into Idaho cities where he says he found business improving and the populace optimistic.

United Artists was planning to screen "That Uncertain Feeling" . . . RKO previewed "A Girl, a Guy and a Gob" . . . Al Mabey was working nearby situations for RKO last week; Al Sheperd and Norman Sprowl were in Montana and Giff Davison in Idaho . . . R. P. Haas attended the annual meeting of branch managers for National Theatre Supply in the east . . . F. H. Smith, branch manager for Paramount, reports "Virginia" is being booked widely throughout the territory and that "Lady Eve" opens at the Centre here right away.

G. A. Smith, newly-appointed western division manager for Paramount, was here for a sales meeting. On hand were Branch Manager F. H. Smith and these salesmen: H. M. Glanfield, Montana; Don Hicks, Idaho, and Allen Heid, Utah . . . Earl McClurg has taken over the Main at Smithfield, Utah. He formerly operated a theatre in Preston, Ida. . . . Ned Depinet, vice-president for RKO, has sent out letters to 6,800 public relations contacts in connection with "Scattergood Baines."

Robert Porterfield, founder of the Barter Theatre, an unique enterprise in the theatrical field, is appearing as a speaker at Provo, Utah, on the BYU lecture course . . . Phil Guss, manager of Intermountain Theatre Supply Co., is reported branching out into the radio service field.

Fox West Coast Polio Collections Net $64,526

LOS ANGELES—A check for $64,526 has been turned over to Joseph M. Schenck, vice-chairman of the national infantile paralysis campaign, by President Charles P. Skouras of Fox West Coast, representing collections taken in FWC theatres during the recent drive. The amount was approximately $5,000 over last year's FWC contribution.

Collections from other theatres, circuit and independent, in the state amounted to $42,000.

SEATTLE

THE local AAA office is open for business, but so far there's not even the sign of a complaint . . . Basil Gray, labor counsellor for the Theatrical Federation, announces negotiations with theatres by the Theatrical Federation and Building Service Union, Local 6, have resulted in pay raises to start January 1, 1942. Next on the program is a contract for Theatre Employes Union B-22, controlling some 300 ushers and doormen in Seattle showshops. Pay increases are sought . . . Willard Coghlan has resigned as manager of the Hollywood in Portland to return to his first love, the daily. Willard is now drama editor for the Seattle Star. Del Milne, in the past an orchestra leader of note in these parts, will take over at the Hollywood, one of the Evergreen chain.

Speaking of drama editors, Dick Hays is getting close to the 25 year mark with the Seattle Times. On the last day of February, Dick and his wife, Bess, celebrated their 19th wedding anniversary. A grand pair well liked among the show gang . . . Eddie Rivers, former theatre owner and for the past few years with Evergreen in the publicity and exploitation department, announces he is leaving that spot to joint RKO in Minneapolis . . . Sammy Siegel, publicity ace for UA, is again an uncle. His sister-in-law presented the family with a girl. What worries the Siegels is the fact that the family is "dying out." No boys . . . A new girl at the switchboard of National Screen Service. Melva McPeak is missing from the spot. Yep. A new mother in the world . . . Mrs. MacKenzie writes from Los Angeles that she was in a theatre and the newsreel showed an interview in a bomb shelter in England. One lady being interviewed hoped her sister in America was fine. The lady being interviewed was Mrs. MacKenzie's sister. Dot Cooper is the daughter of Mrs. MacKenzie.

That new gal taking dictation in the Republic exchange is Jean Cornwell. She is taking the place of Mary Sheffield, now working in a government office . . . Jack and Kay Mickleson, man and wife, are the appointed representatives of Alexander Films of Colorado Springs. The couple tell of the death of J. Van Name, well known out here as former representative. The Micklesons will cover Washington . . . Archie Holt over from Spokane to attend a sales meeting held by Manager Herndon Edmonds of 20th Century-Fox . . . Ralph Ravenscroft of Paramount studio's publicity department in town for "Lady Eve" . . . Warren and Sally Good out celebrating Sally's birthday . . . Herb McIntyre, RKO division head, in for a couple of days, then out by plane . . . Ray and Dorothy Ackles over from Spokane. Ray handles that part of the northwest for Columbia.

J. T. Sheffield and Eddie Walton back from the Republic sales convention; Eddie Loy of the Butte office also along, but in town for only a day. Thanks, Walt Compton and Al Wilson, for your kind regards which the boys delivered . . . Bill Duggan jr., manager for Monogram, giving out a little rib that he was called in the draft. Be careful, Bill. There are more numbers coming up . . . Ralph Abbott, field man for Jam Handy, here from Detroit and introducing Carl Kruger of the home office . . . Henry Herbel, western division head for Warner, spending some time here conferring with Bill Shartin and his gang of the local office . . . With Fox West Coast holding its managers meeting in Los Angeles, we find John Hamrick already in that city; Al Rosenberg taking a short California vacation before the meet; Frank Newman being joined in Portland by Al Finke on the way down; Kenny Schultz off for the gathering and telling that it will be held at Lake Arrowhead.

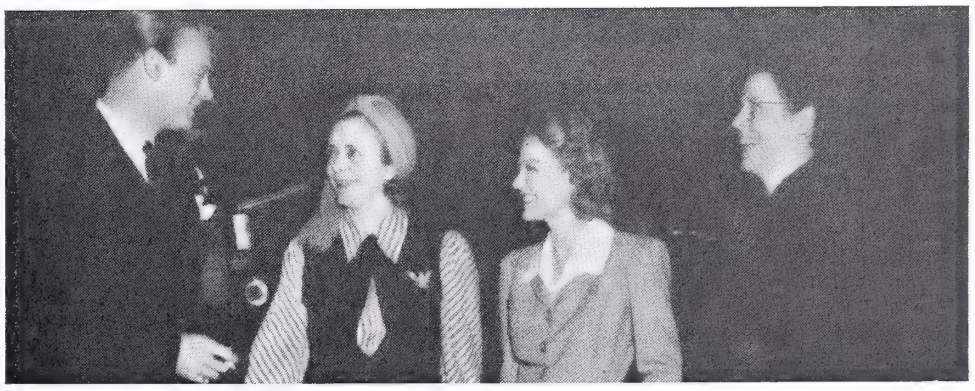
Bernice Zimmerman celebrating a birthday with the gang at Metro. Pat Madigan of the same office celebrated his on the same day as George Washington's . . . Ed Halberg down from Port Angeles and bringing along his brother, Evar. This is the first time in two years Evar has been on the Row . . . Phil Zeller is the new manager of the Hoquiam, Hoquiam. It's a Warner spot . . . Wally Rucker and Harry Blatt out for eastern Washington . . . Ray Paulson on the Row meeting friends. Ray has been shooting commercial pictures the past few years . . . J. von Herberg entertaining his brother, John Coyle, who is here from Peru, Ind. Along with Gene von Herberg and sons, Dennis and Jay, they spent a few days in Vancouver . . . Dorothy Mercy and Marion Walton back from their California motor trip. They wished they had taken a row boat . . . Senior and Beryl Mercy over from Spokane and attending the preview of "Tobacco Road."

Visitors: E. Pollock and son, Eldon, from Mount Vernon; Charles White, Concrete; Jimmy Ewing, Auburn; Mrs. Corrine Brown, Edmonds; Dorothy Perunko, Tacoma; O. M. Durham, Mount Vernon; Walt Graham, Shelton; Al Fernandez, Pysht; Gus Graf, Shelton; Mrs. Bessie Maylor, Oak Harbor; Mrs. Edward Casey of the Unga, Unga, Alaska; Dad Abbott of Sedro-Wooley; E. S. Olson, Port Blakely; Hal Murphy, Olympia; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Clyde, Langley; J. H. Trimble, Toppenish; A. G. Basil, Raymond; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cochran, Snoqualmie . . . Art Kallen of Universal looking okay behind the wheel of a new car . . . Mercedes Harvey spending Washington's Birthday at Seaside, Ore.

J. Zimmerman of Metro and Walter Mackintosh of Paramount, auditors both, out about the same time for California . . . Tommy Olson in from Olympia and announcing he is opening new quarters for his radio station . . . Jack Flannery giving his sales talk on trailers and posters, and good too . . . Pete Higgins in conference with Leroy V. Johnson . . . John Danz on the Row for the first time in moons . . . A Saint Patrick's party will be held in Film Club headquarters on Friday. All gags are surprises. See you next issue.

Union Talks New Pact In Seven FWC Spots

LOS ANGELES—IATSE projectionists in Fox West Coast houses in Long Beach, San Diego, Santa Ana, San Bernardino, Ventura, Hemet and Palm Springs are negotiating with Charles P. Skouras, FWC president, for new contracts calling for wage increases and adjustments in working conditions.



Union representatives are affiliated with district council No. 2, IATSE, which does not include the Los Angeles metropolitan area.

New PRC Frisco Address

SAN FRANCISCO — Producers Releasing Corp. has moved into new headquarters at 125 Hyde Street. Dave Nathanson is manager.

Bandits Get $1,500

SAN FRANCISCO—Two gunmen held up the Royal and escaped with $1,500 taken from the office of William Nasser, manager.

On "Mr. District Attorney" Set—

Dennis O'Keefe and Florence Rice, leads in Republic's "Mr. District Attorney," are hosts at the studio to Mrs. Eddie Walton, wife of Republic's Seattle branch manager, and Mrs. Frederick Mercy jr., wife of the head of the Mercy chain in Washington. Left to right are O'Keefe, Mrs. Walton, Florence Rice, and Mrs. Mercy.

Those in attendance heard Herbert J. Yates, chairman of the board, and James R. Grainger, sales manager, announce a 66-picture program for 1941-42, to be filmed with a $15,000,000 budget—an increase of approximately 50 per cent over 1940-41 expenditures.

A Rousing Sendoff For Harold Lloyd

SAN FRANCISCO — Harold Lloyd's first venture into the field of producing was given a rousing sendoff Wednesday when the world premiere of his "A Girl, a Guy, and a Gob" was held at the Golden Gate.

Representatives from the industry, the government, and the navy were on hand. From Hollywood came Lucille Ball, George Murphy, Edmond O'Brien, Desi Arnaz, Carl Brisson and Lloyd. All made personal appearances during the opening day. Governor Olson of California attended the evening performance and also put in an appearance at the afternoon reception in the St. Francis Hotel.

Admiral Hepburn and his official staff from the 12th naval district, members of the premiere party, gave a good salty tang to the affair. Charlie Koerner and Ed Depinet handled the host's duties along with George Bole, manager of the Golden Gate. Charlie Huy, Gate publicity director, handled the detail work.

"Americanism-Defense" Week a Drawing Card

GLENDALE, CAL.—Top boxoffice results and increased community goodwill for the Glendale Theatre resulted when Manager Ed Harris of the Fox West Coast house staged an "Americanism and National Defense Week" program between Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays. The stunt netted considerable publicity in a local newspaper and received the endorsement of the city manager and leading civic and service organizations.

Highlight was a nightly stage show on which appeared such celebrities as the city manager, police and fire chiefs, coaches and faculty members of Glendale Junior College and Loyola University, American Legion members and Major Kinney of the U. S. Army air corps. Affair was climaxed by a "Junior Americanism Week" program on a Saturday matinee, at which the Meglin Kiddies appeared on the stage.

Screenings during the week were "Soldiers With Wings," a short filmed inside the Lockheed airplane factory; "Knute Rockne—All American," and "He Stayed for Breakfast." Marty Brill, former Notre Dame football star, appeared on one evening's program.

Flu Keeps Albert Law From Rapping Ascap

LOS ANGELES—Succumbing to the influenza germ which has been prevalent locally for some time, Albert J. Law, general counsel for the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, has involuntarily been forced to delay his preparation of a bill of complaint against Ascap.

PCCITO spokesmen declare the bill will probably be completed within a week, however, at which time Law will go into federal court to launch suit against the musical organization seeking to kill the "dual scoring" charge which exhibitors must now pay for the privilege of screening films containing Ascap music.

Meantime Robert H. Poole, PCCITO executive secretary and director of the ITO of So. Calif. and Ariz., and W. E. Calloway, Warner exchange manager, are continuing their preparations for "Greek Independence Week," in which all Southern California exhibitors, circuit and unaffiliated, will participate. Poole and Calloway head the committee in charge of arrangements. Collections for the Greek War Relief campaign will be handled by clubwomen and civic leaders in each community.

PORTLAND

THE news front was livelier this week with the completion of the Warner office remodeling, the public hearing on the bill to eliminate the music tax on theatres and Judge Dobson's decision that the Quiz Games as conducted by the Hollywood and Oriental theatres, Hamrick - Evergreen houses, are a lottery and should be discontinued.

Earleen Verry, booker's secretary at Warner, has left Portland to become a secretary in the Navy department in Washington, D. C.

Ted Gamble has taken over the theatres at Hood River from Art Kolstad who is stepping out of the picture business. The Rialto and Cascadian will be managed by Roy Gamble, Ted's brother.

Del Milne, formerly assistant manager of the Orpheum, is now at the Hollywood replacing Willard Coghlin who resigned to become drama editor of a Seattle daily. Bob Martin replaces Milne at the Orpheum . . . Al Finke is on a business trip to Los Angeles . . . E. P. Loy, manager of the Republic office in Butte, stopped on his way home from the convention.

Elaine Sigsbee, Heppner and Condon, has taken over the operation of the Kinzua Theatre at Kinzua . . . A. M. Dunlop, Astoria, was a visitor . . . Al and Bill Forman are in Portland arranging for personal appearances of Roy Rogers in theatres throughout the state.

The public hearing on the new bill sponsored by the Oregon Theatre group was held Friday night and should go to the senate floor within a short time. The measure is designed to eliminate the music tax on theatres. Banjo Miller, secretary of the Oregon PCCITO, has waged a hard fight to put the bill over as have Bob White, Jim Hone of Seattle, Ray Stumbo and many others.

Hearing Soon on Two in Chicago

Chicago—Hearings are expected shortly before the local arbitration tribunal of two cases filed by exhibitors. The complaint of E. F. Van Derveer, State, Morris, Ill., against Loew's may be heard within a week. A list of ten arbitrators has been submitted to Loew's in the case of the Ken Theatre here against that distributor. When the arbiters are agreed upon, Clerk John F. Sullivan will signify the day on which a hearing can be held, giving the principals five-day notice of such date.

Ken Theatre Clearance Plaint

CHICAGO—Ken Theatre Corporation, operators of the Ken Theatre in Chicago, has filed a clearance complaint with the arbitration tribunal, charging three major distributors with granting unreasonable clearance to two theatres over the Ken Theatre.

The complaint is held up by the AAA as a presentation made in model form. The text, consequently, is published:

To John F. Sullivan,

Clerk of the Tribunal:

The undersigned, in accordance with the Rules of Arbitration and Appeals, demands that the controversy hereinafter described be submitted to Arbitration under the Motion Picture Consent Decree, and files herewith a Submission dated February 18, 1941, in accordance with the provisions of Section XXII, subdivision 9, of said Decree.

1. Statement of Claim and Relief Sought:

Ken Theatre, a corporation and an exhibitor within the meaning of the Consent Decree, claims that the clearance granted to the Shakespeare Theatre by Paramount Pictures, Inc., Paramount Film Distributing Corp., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., Radio Keith Orpheum Corp., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Keith L. B. Orpheum Corp., RKO Proctor Corp., and RKO Midwest Corp., to grant to the Ken Theatre clearance over the Pix Theatre is unreasonable; and the Ken Theatre asks that the arbitrator shall find that the said clearance granted to the said Shakespeare Theatre by the above named distributors is unreasonable and that the failure of the above named distributors to grant to the Ken Theatre clearance over the Pix Theatre is unreasonable, and that the arbitrator enter an award fixing the clearance between the said Ken Theatre and the Shakespeare Theatre and Pix Theatre.

"Fantasia" Leads Way in Chicago

CHICAGO—By grossing $19,000 in its initial week at the Apollo, Walt Disney's "Fantasia" jumped into the boxoffice lead in the loop—a position it will undoubtedly hold for some time to come. Receipts at other loop houses were big over the weekend but were counteracted the latter part of the week because of Ash Wednesday and the start of Lent. Besides "Fantasia," other top-grosser was Universal's "Back Street" at the Palace.

Detail for week ended February 27:

(Average is 100)

Apollo—Fantasia (Disney), 1st roadshow week....300
Chicago—Western Union (20th-Fox), plus stage show 115

"9 O'Clock Plan" Moves Westward

Racine, Wis.—Stanley Lambert, manager of Warner's Venetian, announces as "a new innovation for the benefit of the average working and business man who must get home early," that "Western Union" would start promptly at 8:45 p. m. every night during its run.

This follows the pattern of the so-called "9 O'clock Plan," which originated in the east with the RKO circuit. Designed to meet objections of single-feature adherents in double-feature houses, the idea is to screen the top picture at 9 p. m., thereby allowing an early getaway from the theatre.—Editor's Note.

Liberty in Vandalia Is Destroyed by Flames

VANDALIA, ILL.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the Liberty building in the heart of the downtown district, with a loss estimated at $80,000. Damage to the three-story structure was estimated at $40,000. A $20,000 air-conditioning system in the theatre was lost, and IOOF lodge equipment on the third floor suffered a $20,000 loss.

William Chevalier Dies In an Auto Accident

CHICAGO—William Chevalier, 20-year-old chief of service at the Warner Jeffery, was killed when the car he was driving skidded on a slippery pavement and crashed into a trolley pole. Chevalier is survived by his mother and by a brother, James, chief of service at the circuit's Capitol.

Joseph Drake, 19 years old, doorman at the Jeffery, who was riding with Chevalier at the time of the accident, suffered cuts and bruises.

Shape Up Plans to Aid Greek Drive

KANSAS CITY—The part to be played by the industry in raising funds for Greek war relief is rapidly being shaped up here.

Following the general meeting of committees for the Kansas City exchange area, of which E. C. Rhoden and T. R. Thompson are co-chairmen, two committees have been working out their respective programs, one for exhibitors in Kansas City, the other for exhibitors of the territory.

Thompson, chairman of the distributors committee, has with committee members, laid out suggested details which will be announced after further sessions soon to be held. R. F. Withers, branch manager for Republic, will be in charge at these sessions.

The committee appointed to plan the campaign for Kansas City under the chairmanship of Jerry Zigmond, has laid out that work and is proceeding to put it into effect. Both midnight shows and direct solicitation are provided for as well as some special devices that individual exhibitors may want to use.

Midnight shows will be held at the downtown Midland and at the Oak Park and Isis. In the main, however, exhibitors will raise money for the drive by means other than midnight shows. Direct solicitation is being particularly urged.

A "midnight show committee" has been set up, with John McManus, manager of the Midland, as chairman. Other members are Barney Joffee, James Lewis, William Lansburg and Zigmond.

A Plea for Help in Drive for Greece

OMAHA—A "plea for help" has been issued to all exhibitors, theatre owners and managers in the Omaha trade territory for their assistance in the Greek War Relief Drive, by the co-chairmen of the Omaha zone, Joe Kinsky, Tri-States district manager, and Ted Mendenhall, Paramount exchange manager.

Kinsky represents the exhibitors, and Mendenhall the distributors, in handling the drive in the Nebraska-Western Iowa area. The Omaha territory quota is $9,800.

"This is a job so big and so important that it will require the complete cooperation of every member of the amusement industry in Omaha and its exchange trade area," said a letter to exhibitors by the co-chairmen. "This is the first time that the Omaha exchange territory has been called upon to function as a unit for a noble cause. Let's prove beyond question that we are capable of doing our bit towards a great humanitarian cause."

Mendenhall said he already had received some contributions from exhibitors in this territory. Each will be contacted personally by a representative from one of the film distributors or an exhibitor in the district, Mendenhall told BOXOFFICE.

Mendenhall and Kinsky have appointed the following Omaha zone committees:

South Platte territory—C. W. Allen and Norman Nielsen, RKO; Carl Reese, Republic; Ike Rubin, Paramount; Charlie Lieb, Metro; Oscar Johnson, Falls City, Neb.; R. A. Davis, Superior, Neb.; I. N. Kuhl, Seward, Neb.; P. A. Haeker, Alma, Neb., and Ralph Falkinburg, Lexington, Neb.

Iowa section—Harry Shumow and Carl Nedley, Metro; Joe Scott and H. P. Ironfield, Fox; Iz Weiner, Universal; Frank Hannon, Warner; Toby Stewart, Shenandoah, Ia.; R. Kerberg, Sheldon, Ia.; Ray Brown, Harlan, Ia.; Dale Goldie, Cherokee, Ia., and Henry Saggau, Denison, Ia.

North Platte territory—Joe Jacobs, Columbia; Otto Siegel and R. Cadman, Universal; Fred Thortsen, Metro; B. A. Tomte, Paramount; Harry Levy, Fox; Leon Mendelson, Warner; Howard Kennedy, Broken Bow, Neb.; Phil March, Wayne, Neb.; Harold Dunn, Valentine, Neb.; Walt Bradley, Neligh, Neb., and Mons Thompson, St. Paul, Neb.

South Dakota section—Don McLucas, United Artists; C. K. Olson and Harry Schiffrin, Warner; Ed Rostermundt, United Artists; George March, Vermillion, S. D.; H. Tanneman, Yankton, S. D., and E. D. Nash, Canton, S. D.

Circuits—Joe Kinsky and Ted Emerson, Tri-States; Harry Warren and E. M. McClain, Central States; Ted Mendenhall, Paramount.

Lincoln—R. R. Huffman.

Sioux City—L. E. Davidson.

C. B. Stiff Heads Relief Group in Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS—C. B. Stiff, head of the Twin City theatres of the Minnesota Amusement Co., has been named chairman of a committee representing Minneapolis and St. Paul show people to arrange a huge benefit midnight performance in each city for the benefit of the Greek relief drive.

The Northwest quota in a film industry $1,000,000 drive for the Greeks is $25,000.

H. B. Johnson of Universal represents the distributors on the committee and E. R. Ruben of Welworth circuit and Fred Strom, Northwest Allied executive secretary, represent the independent exhibitors. John J. Friedl, Minnesota Amusement Co. president, is general chairman.

Iowa Exhibitors Launch Drive to Raise $13,000

DES MOINES—Iowa exhibitors launched the campaign to raise their $13,000 quota in the film industry's million dollar Greek relief campaign with a luncheon meeting.

Featured guest at the session was Brenda Joyce, here for the Greek relief ball that evening.

A. H. Blank as chairman and Elmer Tilton as co-chairman are directing the Iowa campaign which will include special midnight shows, previews and the sale of badges to theatre audiences during the March 25-30 period. Special caps have been ordered for theatre employes to wear promoting the campaign.

All exchange managers are members of a distribution committee with Lou Levy as chairman. Art Stolte is chairman of the Greek relief drive's publicity committee, assisted by Emil Franke, Dorothy Day, Lou Elman and Leo Wolcott of Eldora.

Wolcott also heads the exhibitors' committee. Warner Grossman of Nevada, Cliff Niles of Anamosa and G. Ralph Branton are other members.

All film salesmen are on a special committee designed to carry the campaign into all cities in the state. They are devoting a portion of their time to contacting exhibitors in a bid for 100 per cent cooperation.

Anti-Decree Measure Advances Unopposed

MINNEAPOLIS—Failure of opposition to manifest itself has buoyed the hopes of Northwest Allied for passage of its anti-consent decree bill in the Minnesota legislature. When the measure, which is designed to contravene the groups-of-five sales plan of the consent decree, was up for hearing before the senate committee on general legislation no one showed up to talk against it.

Because he's anxious that any possible foes should have a full opportunity to present their arguments, Fred Strom, Northwest Allied executive secretary, requested the committee to continue the hearing for a week. The committee complied with the request.

In the interim, Strom said, all distributors and circuit heads will be notified to appear before the committee if they wish to be heard. In case no opponents show up again it will be unnecessary for Northwest Allied to present any arguments.

The anti-consent decree bill requires distributors to offer for sale to Minnesota exhibitors their entire season's product, the same as at present, and to grant a minimum of 20 per cent cancellation. Forced selling of shorts, newsreels, foreigns, westerns and trailers is outlawed by the measure.

Theatre Building Curb Is Contested by Goodman

MINNEAPOLIS—The city council edict against any additional theatre construction on the grounds that the city now is overseated faces opposition with the filing of a petition by Louis Goodman to build a new showhouse in north Minneapolis. Another new independent neighborhood theatre is scheduled for St. Paul where there is no ban against such building.

Pace Estimates Damage At $7,000 in Malvern

OMAHA—Fire damaged F. E. Pace's Empress Theatre at Malvern, Ia., to the extent of $7,000. The blaze started in the basement and was discovered about 3 a. m.

The stage and screen were destroyed, and the entire interior and other equipment badly damaged.

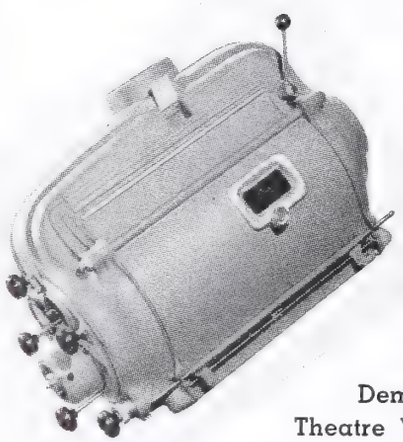
For Kinsky and Grove —

This dinner was in honor of Joe Kinsky, manager of the Mississippi district for Tri-States Theatres Corp., before he left to take charge of the company's Omaha district, and H. D. Grove, his successor in the Mississippi territory. Around the dinner tables are members of the Quad City Theatre Managers' Ass'n, which sponsored the affair, and their families and friends. In behalf of the association's members, President Barney Brotman presented Kinsky an office radio and Grove a luggage set. Standing at the head table in the background are, in the left to right manner, Mrs. Brotman and her husband, then Mrs. Kinsky and her husband, and finally Mrs. Grove and her husband.

To Hear Big Names In Cassil Trial

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.—Representatives of major distributors will be among the witnesses who will testify in Eugenia and Frank Cassil's suit for $452,775 damages against Dubinsky Bros. Enterprises and the film companies. The suit will be tried in federal court here beginning Tuesday.

Attorneys believe a week or ten days may be required to complete evidence in the suit, in which the Cassils allege the Dubinskys and the distributors conspired in violation of the anti-trust laws to prevent them from obtaining first-run product for their Rialto in the South Side.



Judge Merrill E. Otis, who will preside over the trial, received the Cassils' motion for a continuance last Saturday in Kansas City and agreed to postpone the trial if the plaintiffs waived a jury. That the Cassils did not do, so the case will be tried as scheduled.

Louis Kranitz, St. Joseph attorney for the Cassils, said the continuance was sought so voluminous depositions obtained recently by counsel for both plaintiffs and defendants could be studied.

Besides Kranitz, the Cassils will be represented by Henry Monsky and Harry B. Cohen of Omaha and Paul Good, Lincoln. Floyd Sprague and Charles H. Mayer are the St. Joseph attorneys for the defendants, along with Paul R. Stinson of Kansas City and Edward C. Raftery of New York.

Numerous important names in the industry will come here to testify in the trial, said Sprague. They will represent Paramount, 20th Century-Fox, Loew's, Inc., RKO, Vitagraph, Universal, Columbia and United Artists.

Hoodlums Assail Minny Ushers

Minneapolis—Ushers in loop theatres on several occasions in the past few weeks have been set upon and beaten by gangs of hoodlums trying to crash the show houses without paying. As a result, the theatres are asking for additional police protection.

One usher, who caught and turned over to the police a youth trying to sneak in, later was cornered outside the theatre by the fellow and his gang who beat his head against a stone pavement until he was unconscious.

Get Ready to Press Anti-Ascap Test

LINCOLN—Atty-Gen. Walter Johnson's office, represented by William J. Hotz, special prosecutor of Omaha, is getting ready to press the state's anti-Ascap law test with the U. S. supreme court.

Hotz, in appealing from a reversal in U. S. district court which called Nebraska's 1937 law inoperative, will stress a section from the lower's court's opinion which states that an individual member of the music organization has "no right to combine with others to insure control of prices and the consequent power of an entire field by combination."

Up This Term

The Nebraska case, said Hotz, will probably come up during this term of the high bench in Washington, but, as yet, no dates have been set for hearings.

The Nebraska law was introduced in the 1937 session by Sen. Frank Brady, a rancher from Atkinson, Neb.

As he drew it up, the 3-judge court here found it full of invasions of constitutional rights, and in direct stand to the privileges guaranteed an individual under the copyright laws. The hope of the supreme court test is that, even though the law may not survive, some avenues by which Ascap may be controlled will show themselves.

9 O'Clock Plan Going Over in Omaha

Omaha—Joe Kinsky announces the Orpheum and Omaha theatres here have put into effect the "9 O'Clock Plan" to satisfy both single and double feature fans.

The scheme is to start the main feature every night (except Saturday and Sunday) at about 9 o'clock, followed by the companion feature. Previously the schedule was the reverse.

The plan is working out "very successfully," according to Kinsky.

Rennie Joins Tri-States As Rock Island Manager

OMAHA—Orville Rennie, former Nebraska theatre manager, has been named by Tri-States Theatres as manager of the Fort at Rock Island, Ill. Rennie formerly managed the Rivoli at Hastings, Neb., for Tri-States before he resigned last fall to become program director of a radio station at Hastings.

Rennie succeeds H. G. "Herb" Grove, who has been moved up to the district managership of the Davenport, Ia., section. Grove takes the place of Joe Kinsky, who is the new district manager in Omaha.

The eastern Iowa office for Tri-States was moved from Davenport to the Fort Theatre.

Divorcement Bill Seen Stymied

LINCOLN—There is little likelihood of the legislature's divorcement bill making its appearance this session, goes the opinion in the unicameral corridors.

The bill, which seeks to cut production-distribution off from exhibition, has been pigeonholed, and is at stymie unless it might be sprung for some reason not now apparent.

Two other Nebraska bills, one taxing each ten cent or fraction of ticket ten per cent, and another licensing distributors for $1,000 annually, plus $1 a reel for each spool circulated, were killed.

Inspection and Bond on Theatre Signs in Omaha

OMAHA—Theatre signs here will have to be inspected once a year and exhibitors will be required to have a bond covering possible damage to passers-by, according to a city ordinance here which becomes effective April 11.

Exhibitors will have to have a bond ranging from $5,000 to $12,500, depending on the size of the sign and canopy. They will have to obtain a permit each year from the building department showing their theatre's sign has been duly inspected.

Grace Simons says aw that's nothin' I got French blood in me veins and a coat of arms with a fleur-de-lis that ain't no fakeroo . . . and we might get editorial and comment that maybe that explains a look or two in our Gracie's eyes.

Jack Carr isn't at the Paramount Theatre any more, so Knight is assistant manager now . . . Mel Evidon can tell a good story about his uncle and how he bargained for serapes and baskets all over Mexico just for the heck of it . . . less than halfway home, it was decided that either uncle or the baskets must go, so the latter were left on the top of some tall mountain peak . . . THAT man's here again! Yessir, when doings are dull, it's Ed Mason who shines 'em up. This time he's done it with the red-ink addenda on his Osage Theatre stationery. The scarlet letters (ahem) inform all of Ed's correspondents that the mighty Mason is conducting a one-man drive. It's not for Lou Levy, Lou Elman nor Lou Patz. It is for one person only—Ed Mason. And if word-of-mouth plugs along the DM Row can help out his Osage boxoffice, Ed must be putting customers on in layers.

If Ed neglects to call BOXOFFICE & Co. next time he's in town we're gonna make a special trip to Mitchell county just to sit in Clint Hill's office across the street and ignore Ed.

While Uncle Sam is listening to some harsh name-calling March 15, he may find solace in the fact he's getting a pat on the back for bringing in the news that the Grand at Grand Junction, Ia., has been purchased by Victor Mantz, manager of the New Ogden Theatre at Ogden. The Grand was being operated by William H. Downey, who turned it back to the previous owner, T. J. Reinhart of Grinnell. Mantz plans to take an active part in the operation of the Grand, but will continue to reside in Ogden. Clarence O'Neal is managing the newly-purchased house temporarily.

Marvin Fosse's theatre operations with the Mars at La Porte City and the Grand at Wellman is a two-man chore these days and his brother, Ames Fosse, is handling part of the job.

Surprising history—Frank Shipley is another Lee township boy (rah) . . . Class of '18, but you'd never believe it could have been that long ago. He's operating the State at Lenox, now.

Just discovered—W. B. Franke's "W" stands for Wayne. The head man from the Humbolt Humota checked up on the DM Row this week.

Cute trick—Leonard Kaplan's sister, Billy, who trotted in and out of exchanges with her brother while he talked about this and that in connection with his Iowa City, Waterloo and Mason City operations.

Comers and goers—Uncle Bob Bernau of Lake City and M. L. Dickson of Mt. Pleasant.

Delayed in transit—Eben Hayes' Missouri drawl makes the other fella wait to hear what he's got to say—and the other fella likes it. 'Most anybody in the business smiles when they hear the Time Theatre operator from Memphis, Mo., is coming 'round, just because they like to hear him talk.

Bank Statistics Show Prosperity in Minn.

MINNEAPOLIS—While Twin City independent exhibitors continue to complain of "the worst business ever," Federal Reserve Bank statistics show a high degree of prosperity generally for the section. The bank's latest report reveals that January, 1941, business activity reached the highest level for the month since 1929 or 1930. The upswing was resumed after some slight recession in business volume during December, according to the report.

Practically all lines of business in the Northwest participated in the rise, the report asserts. However, it points out, the advance was felt particularly in banking and agriculture. City and country department store sales indexes, however, attained the highest point for any January since 1930.

Iowa Measure Would Tax Theatres for Schools

DES MOINES—Even the school kids are looking for a slice of the theatre take now. A bill introduced in the Iowa legislature calls for a one-cent tax on all theatre tickets up to 50 cents and a two-cent tax from 50 cents to $1 to help replace some of the county school levies.

Three million dollars would be the estimated revenue from the theatre tax. With seven other special tax measures the proposal before the legislature would raise $8,000,000 for the schools.

Already introduced is a bill to license film distributors at $1,000 a license and being talked about is a special tax on Bank Night awards with proceeds tagged for the poor fund.

LINCOLN

PICTURES AND THINGS: Now that R. L. Cochran is no longer governor, Bob Livingston saw need of another phiz for his wall—and you should see the fancy endorsement he has in autograph from the present governor, Dwight Griswold. Cochran, now an army colonel, still smiles down in state—because, Bob says, he being only 34 (?), he's apt to be drafted . . . When Joe Scott screened "Western Union" at his 20th-Fox exchange projection room in Omaha, he invited Ed Creighton, grandson of the guy played by Dean Jagger in the picture. Lad came—and brought a lawyer . . . Hearing that Tex Ritter is a draft registrant sent Sol Francis, the Monogram franchise holder, into training. He goes horse-backing every Sunday, getting ready to offer himself to Monogram, should Ritter get called. He's been riding the plains for years selling the company's film, so saving a heroine with the help of a script writer looks easy for him.

Still no word to relieve the minds of Bob Huffman and Gene Shanahan as to whether their Nebraska theatre grocery giveaway, "Abner Askit's Basket," is legal or not . . . Dean Pohlenz, Sunday Journal and Star's acting film editor, is readying to send the 10 best poll winner, Elise Searight, a 14-year-old high school girl, to Hollywood, all expenses paid . . . Chuck Miller, who radioed all the stuff relative to the "Cheers for Miss Bishop" premiere here last January, fathered a boy last week . . . Bill Miskell says showmen in Lincoln have it all over showmen in Omaha when it comes to getting soldier theatre patronage. "If a rookie goes to Lincoln," said Bill, "what else is there for him to do but go to a show?"

The Mailbag: Orville Rennie, proud to use Tri-States stationery again, pens a note from the Fort, Rock Island, Ill., which is his new stand, replacing Herb Grove, who went to Davenport, Ia. Rennie had about six months of radio in Hastings after he quit Tri-States there, but that's all he wants . . . Gabe Yorke finally got back on the coast after more than two months in the midwest. Says he had the taxi driver who took him home, introduce him to his wife and family . . . Ted Gill, the APer, says Hollywood is quited down to a point where Anatole Litvak and Ciro's can look each other in the face again . . . Earl Wingart of 20th-Fox, New York—tickled because a stunt with Sonja Henie in Nebraska got so much newspaper spread.

Fourth Estate: Keith Wilson, Omaha World-Herald, took the top half of his column Sunday, March 2, to chide Lucius Beebe for referring to former film critic and now Capt. Barney Oldfield, as a "veteran of foreign bars" in a stint for his papers about premieres. Capt. B. O., correctly states Br'er Wilson, is a total-teetler . . . Anyway, the north is good-natured: Harvey Traylor, manager of the Stuart, points out that only two films have played the house so far this year, making a very fancy profit—"Gone With the Wind" and "Virginia"—and in each case the south was allowed to win the war!

Odds and Ends: If you want the racing news, hot from Hialeah, don't buy the Racing Form, see George and Mrs. Munroe, who reported back to the Colonial here this week . . . Vincent J. DiFiore is laying wires for one of those finance office jobs with the army so he can juggle figures in lieu of hand grenades, if drafted . . . Joe Rosenberg gets the most insulting letters, now that news is out he's gone into the cosmetics business . . . Nothing is so perpetual as Metro's Fay Farber hunting for a new room-mate.

Twin City Showmen Ready Gala Affair

MINNEAPOLIS—Twin City exhibitors and film men, Northwest Allied members, will combine their showmanship talents to put on a "Gold Days Rush of 49" show at the Hotel Nicollet Saturday night, March 15.

It will be a gala affair, according to Barker Eddie Ruben who is in charge. Fun of every sort is promised—a really hot time in the old town. Ruben and his assistants have stayed awake nights thinking up entertainment features. A large advance ticket sale indicates a record crowd.

Net proceeds of the affair will be split three ways. A part will defray the cost of 16 radio sets installed by the club in the Minneapolis General Hospital children's wards. The Milk Fund, the club's principal charity project, also will benefit. What's left will be pooled to be split among members making the trip to Atlantic City for the national convention next May.

Showmanship Stunts Get Space in Paper

Ted Emerson, advertising director, and Manager Don Allen of the Omaha and Manager Bill Miskell of the Orpheum have been using stunts that not only helped sell pictures, but landed some nice play in the Omaha World-Herald, acknowledged a "tough" paper to crack.

For "Western Union" a replica of the first Western Union office in Omaha in 1861 was built in the Orpheum lobby. The office was equipped with the old-time equipment, including a coil of the original wire borrowed from a local museum. Since the original job was handled by Omaha people, stringing the lines to the west coast, the Tri-States boys had a lot of local angles.

Emerson also clicked on the 20th anniversary of the establishment of airmail to the west coast, when a pilot who flew the original deal repeated with films for Omaha usage.

"Western Union" Tops Kansas City Runs

KANSAS CITY—Two first run theatres, Esquire downtown, Uptown suburban, chalked up extra good results for their first week with "Western Union," and held it over. "Virginia" brought about the best results of the week for the Newman, what with the picture itself, and advantage taken of opportunity for tie-ins, such as contact with the local Confederate society. Two holdovers fell below average on their second week; but they had enjoyed heavy response their first. "Ridin' on a Rainbow" with Gene Autry gave the Tower a big week, a good stage show being appreciated but hardly credited with major pulling power when the public wanted to see and hear Gene on the screen.

"Strawberry Blonde" Is Des Moines' Best Bet

DES MOINES — "Strawberry Blonde," which drew columns of advance publicity here last December with Rita Hayworth's visit to Des Moines, set the pace among the city's first runs last week. The picture headed the Orpheum bill and gave the house its tenth consecutive week of above average business. Widespread word-of-mouth comment after "Night Train" had been shown in suburban houses resulted in that picture being spotted at the downtown Paramount where returns were only fair.

Detail for the week ending March 6:

'Virginia' on Dual Omaha's Sole Average Topper

OMAHA — Tri-States' Omaha Theatre, managed by Don Allen, was the only first-run house to report a profit as the Lenten season opened.

"Virginia" and "South of Suez" pulled above average business at Allen's theatre. "Back Street" and "Night Train" were very mediocre at the Orpheum.

"Santa Fe Trail" and "Let's Make Music" were held for a full second stanza at the Brandeis, making the fourth consecutive double-week bill at the Mort H. Singer house. Prospects point to a possible extension of this record, says Manager Will Singer.

Weather was fair and warm, helping business slightly. Sport events were giving some competition but the theatre situation recently has been favorable, along these lines.

"Mr. & Mrs. Smith" Garners Minneapolis Big Take

MINNEAPOLIS—"Mr. and Mrs. Smith" created the biggest boxoffice commotion the past week, turning in a highly profitable week at the State. It has moved over to the Century for an extension of its loop first-run. The International Casino Revue stage show in combination with the film "You're the One" fared poorly at the Orpheum. "Road Show," at the Gopher, did so badly it was yanked after four days.

Bowen to International Seat Corporation Post

KANSAS CITY—Frank H. Bowen, for 19 years in the theatre seating field, has returned to that branch with International Seat Corporation, he said on his return from the factory at Union City, Ind.

Joining International in a sales capacity, Bowen's duties and territory will be defined on his return to the factory, for which he departed this week.

Bowen started with Heywood-Wakefield in the Kansas City territory in 1920, moving from this area to New York in 1925. In 1929 he returned to Kansas City and handled the H-W line until 1932. He also did special sales assignment work out of the Chicago office. Lately, Bowen has been central division manager in the theatre department of Salem China Co.

Twin City Variety club to toss a free dinner March 10 in connection with the induction of new members. It's scheduled for the Hotel Nicollet.

It just leaked out that Kenneth Erickson, Nile Theatre manager, has been married since last August.

One Cent Amusement Tax Near in N. D.

Bismarck, N. D.—Passage by the state legislature of a bill to place a tax of one cent on each theatre and other places of amusement tickets is indicated. The measure carried in the state senate and little opposition is anticipated in the lower house.

Francis Kappler Joins DM Republic Booking Staff

DES MOINES—Francis Kappler's jump from the Iowa Film Depot to the booker's desk at Republic causes repercussions from one end of Filmrow to the other, reading west to east.

Dick Kappler filled in at the Iowa Film Depot shipping chores temporarily until Frank Johnson was hired from the Fox shipping department. Ray Butcher was shifted to the assistant shipper's position at Fox and Bill Olive of National Screen Service's Advertising Accessories force was hired.

Bob Kurtz, a former National Screen employe, went back to work there as a result of the vacancy created on the staff by the changes.

Morton Van Praag Ill In Kansas City Visit

KANSAS CITY—Morton Van Praag, midwest division manager of Advertising Accessories, was hospitalized several days at Menorah as the result of food poisoning suffered early in the week. His condition indicated release some time Friday.

Van Praag stopped in a tour of AA branches to confer with Homer Blackwell, in charge of the National Screen subsidiary.

Steinman Succeeds Rosen At Monogram Branch

MINNEAPOLIS—Morris Steinman is the new Monogram branch manager. He succeeds Eph Rosen who has resigned. Steinman formerly was a salesman with Monogram, but went out a few months ago when the duties of manager and salesman were combined. Rosen will take a vacation in New York and Atlanta before making any new business plans.

OMAHA

LOU EGART, Brandeis treasurer, probably will be the industry's first contribution to national defense from the Omaha area . . . Cleo Dixon, Omaha treasurer, is recovering nicely from an appendicitis operation in a local hospital . . . Jimmy Winn, Warner district manager, was here from Kansas City visiting C. K. Olson and the local exchange.

Henry Schoenthal, new employe at the Town, has a very interesting background. He and Mrs. Schoenthal are war refugees from Vienna . . . Don McLucas, the pride of United Artists' current sales drive, passed out some fancy cigars to Earl Kerr, Iowa circuit owner, and BOXOFFICE . . . Tom Kenyon of Paramount has decided Filmrow doesn't want a ping-pong tourney . . . Slim Fraser, the smiling exhibitor from Havelock, Neb., was on Davenport Street.

L. A. Bramson, exhibitor at Elk Point, S. D., has purchased an airplane and is taking flying lessons. When the new consent decree system of screening pictures is put into effect, Exhibitor Bramson expects to commute to Omaha for the showings . . . Frank Good, Red Oak, Ia., has recovered from the flu and was back on Filmrow "hard to get along with as ever," to quote Frank.

The first month under the consent decree setup of arbitration has passed and so far no complaints have been filed in the Omaha territory . . . Shep Owens, out-spoken member of Local 343, IATSE, says he would like a little personal publicity in BOXOFFICE. As soon as you submit a few of those poems you write, Shep, we'll print them . . . Leon Mendelson, Warner salesman, finally had those dents taken out of his car's fenders, after much kidding by Harry Schiffrin.

The spring weather has been causing some of the exhibitors to wonder what's coming up for spring and summer business, as well as competition. What will replace jack-rabbit circuits and softball this year? Will the national defense situation help Nebraska-Iowa-South Dakota any? . . . The Variety Club committees will be announced in BOXOFFICE as soon as a few chairmen are lined up.

Popcorn Supply Office Open in Des Moines

DES MOINES—The Poppers Supply Co. of Kansas City has opened a branch office here to care for increasing trade in the Iowa territory. Tony Rand is local representative.

The new office was opened here by Rube Melcher, who has been dealing in popcorn and seasoning in Kansas City for several years.

Buy Isis Building

MARYSVILLE, KAS.—The Isis Theatre Co. has purchased the building in which it has been operating. Plans are under way for installation of a marquee, cushioned seats and the redecoration of the auditorium. Leonard Smith is manager.

Herrington's Eye on Harrisburg Solons

HARRISBURG—Fred J. Herrington, AMPTO secretary, has been attending house and senate sessions of the Pennsylvania general assembly and visiting the offices of state representatives and senators.

There are a number of bills now in committee which he is interested in keeping there. Herrington has been on the legislative firing line in defense of the motion picture industry, particularly in the exhibition field, for 30 years.

A month ago, when he was here, Herrington stated he did not expect the passage of any legislation particularly injurious to theatres. He has not commented on the matter so far during this visit.

Deny Winograd Another Sunday Referendum

BEAVER, PA.—Rochester, Beaver county's only large community without Sunday motion pictures, must wait until 1945 before another referendum can be taken, Judge Henry H. Wilson ruled, in upholding the ban on the issue by refusing to void the results of last November's election.

Emil Winograd, Rochester exhibitor, brought the action, a complaint against the county board of elections charging voting irregularities in the community's five precincts. Winograd had petitioned the court not to certify the November 5 results and also asked for the re-submission of the issue to the voting public at another special referendum.

State Churchmen Fight Blue Law Repeal

HARRISBURG—Opposition against further blue law repeal was framed here this week by organized churchmen, with Rev. William L. Forney, secretary of the Pennsylvania Lord's Day Alliance, as spokesman.

Clearance Gap Increasing In Subsequent Run Jam

By H. F. REVES

DETROIT—Checkup of some individual pictures that have not played second runs indicates that the gap between first and seconds is gradually increasing considerably beyond the normal four weeks' protection—or six weeks in case of a picture that went two or more weeks at a first run.

The situation has a somewhat ironical aspect, in that neighborhood theatre operators have annually complained that the first runs were holding up pictures, based largely on extended runs at the big downtown houses, so that comparatively fewer pictures were available in a given length of time for the neighborhoods; whereas, the holdup now appears to center in the neighborhoods themselves, beginning with second runs and keys.

The situation appears to have arisen partially from the fact that some major product deals were not completed until a few weeks ago for larger neighborhood groups, such as Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan. The delay in booking for second and later runs has thus started very naturally, but the effect is becoming cumulative, and even key run exhibitors have complained privately that they have been unable to get pictures they want, although the normal protection period over first runs has long since expired, because they have not been given playdates at the seconds.

May Affect New Season

The practical result of this situation is likely to be that neighborhood theatres will have a sizeable number of pictures from their 1940-41 contracts still unplayed when the new consent decree terms become effective in September. Should this occur generally, individual exhibitors are likely to have a strong bargaining position in dealing with distributors.

Another possibility that may loom on the local film horizon with the block-of-five setup is a concerted move for single bills. Every house in town now plays duals consistently, and the situation has been accepted, albeit unwillingly. Local exhibitors, however, would welcome the move for singles, and may see their way to such a move, through some common policy, because of the apparent greater freedom to choose strong pictures under the new buying policy of the decree.

One possible solution of the "reserve" of pictures that exhibitors will apparently have, was pointed out by C. R. Buermele, general manager of Co-Operative Theatres, in the suggestion that major companies may fail to make all the pictures called for on 1940-41 schedules. Should this occur, the surplus may almost automatically disappear, with exhibitors having to buy "fives" right from the start.

Problem for Bookers

Aside from the origin of the film surplus in late film deals, much of it has come about very naturally from the routine problems faced by film bookers in setting schedules and programs. Detroit typically plays the same two pictures on a dual bill at perhaps half a dozen second runs, a dozen keys, and so on down the sequence, with the same two pictures traveling together right down to about the last runs in many instances. These combinations are originally set by the bookers for second runs and keys, who exercise, probably unwittingly, a heavy influence on the film fare combinations that most Detroiters see.

The problem faced by the bookers is to work out a practical combination, and many factors enter into this—so many that when a suitable combination is achieved, the tendency is to hold on to it. Faced with the necessity of considering all these problems, bookers frequently pass individual films aside, planning to spot them on later bills, and the total set aside continues to multiply, especially as holdovers for more changes occur in the neighborhoods as managers increase the trend by holding strong bills for extra playing dates.

New Wage-Hour Law Pends in Lansing

DETROIT—A new wage-and-hour law introduced in the legislature at Lansing will affect all Michigan theatres. It applies to employers not now covered by the federal labor act.

Under the bill, the basic wage scale for all employes would be: 40 cents the first year; 45 cents second to sixth years; 50 cents thereafter on an hourly basis.

Maximum hours of work are set as: 44 first year, 42 second year, and 40 third to seventh years.

An earlier bill establishing a $16-a-week minimum wage for women has been temporarily sidetracked pending the fate of this new measure.

Machinery Ready for Greek Relief Drive

CLEVELAND—I. J. Schmertz and John D. Kalafat, co-chairmen of the local Greek War Relief Committee, are all set to press the button which will set in motion the machinery to raise the $50,000 quota pledged for this territory.

Assisting them on the general committee are: Charles Raymond, Loew division manager; Nat Holt, RKO theatre division manager; Bert Stearn, UA district manager; Frank D. Drew, M-G-M branch manager; Charles Rich, Vitagraph branch manager Nat Barach, NSS manager; Nat Wolf, Warner zone manager; Sid Andorn of WGAR; Henry Greenberger, Community Theatres circuit, and M. B. Horwitz, general manager of the Washington circuit, who is treasurer for the drive.

A. M. Goodman, UA branch manager, and Jack Sogg, M-G-M city salesman, are in charge of in-town pledges, while Lester Zucker, Columbia branch manager, and George Elmo, Paramount branch manager, have charge of out-of-town pledges.

Publicity committee consists of Charles Raymond, chairman; Maurice Druker, Loew State manager; Joe Longo, Loew exploiteer; Clem Pope, RKO exploiteer; Ed Fisher, UA exploiteer; C. C. Deardourff, M-G-M exploiteer, Maxwell Joice, Paramount exploiteer, and Sid Andorn of WGAR.

M. B. Horwitz heads the committee to collect contributions from film employes. He is assisted by Charles Rich and Nat Barach.

Trailers, buttons and flowers to be sold in theatres for the cause are being handled by Nat Barach, Louis Gross and Eddie Johnson.

To help raise the $50,000, the Variety Club will hold a benefit party March 22, with Stearn and Horwitz in charge of entertainment. On March 26, a city-wide entertainment will be held at the Arena, with Raymond, Holt and Stearn in charge.

Schmertz and Kalafat suggest the following ways for theatres to cooperate with the committee in raising the funds pledged by the industry in this territory: Collections in theatre lobbies, a benefit performance in cooperation with newspapers and radio stations, and minute men to speak from the stage, same selected from Kiwanis, Lions, Rotary clubs and chambers of commerce.

The Warner publicity department is preparing stock ads and making them into mats for use over the territory. It is also promoting a dozen trailers for use in theatres advertising the special benefit shows.

It is also recommended that a committee be appointed in all towns participating to consist of leading citizens, business men, newspaper people, or society and welfare workers, to assist in handling the campaign. This, it is pointed out, will lend dignity to the effort and assure its success.

At the end of the drive, each theatre manager is to forward his check for the money realized from the benefit shows to M. B. Horwitz, 211 Film Bldg., 2100 Payne Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. All checks should be made payable to the Greek War Relief Association, Inc.

Benefit Shows Exempt From Federal Tax

CLEVELAND—The committee in charge of the local Greek War Relief Drive has an important message for theatre owners who plan to offer benefit performances in this territory.

The law provides that such shows are exempt from federal tax. It further provides that theatres holding benefit performances must secure tax exemption certificates from the federal bureau. In addition, special admission tickets must be provided for benefit performances. These special tickets are required to state the admission scale and must be stamped "tax exempt."

The committee has arranged with the local federal bureau whereby it will secure (1) tax exemption certificates and (2), the special tax exempt admission tickets for all exhibitors who will notify the committee of the date of the benefit show and the admission scale.

Send this information as soon as possible to M. B. Horwitz, treasurer of the Greek War Relief Drive, 211 Film Bldg., 2100 Payne Ave., Cleveland, or to John D. Kalafat, 300 Film Bldg., Cleveland, or to I. J. Schmertz, 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., 2219 Payne Ave., Cleveland.

Stoia Restrainer Bid To Mich. High Court

DETROIT—Suit brought by Joseph Stoia to restrain operation of the new Carmen Theatre for four years—till 1945—is before the supreme court at Lansing. As reported some weeks ago in BOXOFFICE, Stoia secured his injunction, and the owners, Gorelick and Marshall, were estopped from using it as a theatre by circuit court order.

Defendants (in the original case) sought a temporary injunction on their appeal to the supreme court, but this was denied, and the restraining order stands until the high court hears the case—probably six months in the future.

Canton Theatres Tie In on Greek Relief Campaign

CANTON, OHIO—All theatres in the Canton district have cooperated in forming the Canton chapter of the motion picture division of the Greek War Relief Association, Inc., and will devote the week of March 25 to 30 to a campaign for raising funds for civilian relief in Greece.

Contributions will be accepted from patrons every day during the week and on Saturday night, March 29, all of the cooperating theatres will present a big stage and screen show at Loew's Theatre here with the proceeds going to the fund.

District Chairman is George A. Delis, district manager for the A. G. Constant circuit, and co-chairman is Orville W. Crouch, manager of Loew's.

All Columbus Theatres To Aid Greek Cause

COLUMBUS—Local theatre owners met at the Variety Club to discuss the Greek war relief drive. All Columbus theatres will cooperate. Russ Bovim, manager of Loew's Ohio, is acting as chairman for local participation.

Pidgeon for "Man Hunt"

HOLLYWOOD—Twentieth-Fox has borrowed Walter Pidgeon from Metro for a leading role in "Man Hunt."

CINCINNATI

THE Variety Club party staged by the Barkerettes—wives and daughters of members—was one of the season's outstanding successes, according to Chief Barker Bill Onie . . . Monogram's Edith Fellows made a p. a. at the Colonial, Dayton, with "First Romance" . . . Shea has taken over the houses in Marietta and Cambridge formerly operated by the C&M Amusement Co. . . . Col. Arthur Frudenfeld of RKO Theatres and Allan Moritz, Columbia, are co-chairmen for the Greek War Relief Week fund in this territory.

Gene Custer, operator of the State and Custer, Charleston, W. Va., is reported planning a new theatre on the west side . . . Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Rosselot, exhibitors, have returned from a stay in Florida . . . Gene Hensley of the Black Diamond circuit is confined to St. Mary's Hospital, Huntington, W. Va., where he underwent an operation for the removal of a kidney stone. He is reported coming along nicely . . . United Artists reports "So Ends Our Night" opened to outstanding business at RKO Albee and Loew's Dayton.

R. L. Costello was in booking for the new Lincoln, soon to be opened by Charley Behlen at Stanford, Ky. . . . Manny Marcus, operator of the Esquire here and a chain in Indiana, has taken over the Columbus, Dayton, from Homer Guy. Guy who has been in the business 28 years, will reportedly take over the Mayfair, burlesque house . . . Warner's Irene Cook is on the sick list . . . Patrons of the Pekin here watched the show undisturbed while firemen extinguished a fire in the attic of the building which houses the theatre. No damage was reported.

Paramount's "Lady Eve," co-starring Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda, is noted "extra" screen fare following its recent screening . . . 20th-Fox's "That Night in Rio," musical, is also one of the top-notchers judging from preview reaction . . . Lloyd and Bill Rogers visited the Row to book for their West Virginia chain . . . George B. Myers, Winchester and Frankfort, also visited . . . Stephen Lang's Liberty in Whitesville, W. Va., recently destroyed by fire, has been rebuilt and reopened.

CLEVELAND

JOE SHAGRIN, Youngstown theatre owner, is on the west coast visiting his twin, Max, who heads the Max Shagrin Agency . . . William N. Skirball, circuit owner, left for a vacation in Florida . . . Frank D. Drew, M-G-M branch manager, was inducted as a member of the Cleveland Notary Club . . . Miss Rickie Labowitch, secretary to G. W. Erdmann of Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Ass'n, is back at her desk after a six-week illness . . . Mrs. Lucille Knopp, owner of the Royal, Oak Harbor, braved heavy snows to visit the local exchanges.

March 10 is the date and the Variety Club the place for the "Welcome Home" party friends of Matt Goodman, United Artists branch manager, are staging to celebrate his return to active duty following an illness of three months . . . Sadie Meckler, a member of the local M-G-M family for the past 12 years, will become Mrs. Fred Wolf April 6 . . . United Artists will trade screen "Topper Returns" at 2 p. m., March 12, at the Cedar Lee Theatre . . . Sam Gillman, manager of Loew's in Dayton, tied up with radio station WHIO to change its signing off slogan to "So Ends Our Night." For that picture, of course.

For the information of all film folks who lunch at the Payne Avenue-24th Street restaurant, Eddie Baukair has exchanged his white apron for a uniform of Uncle Sam's manufacture and his present address is Fort Thomas, Ky. . . . Harold Saltz, Universal assistant booker, took a weekend off to go to New York and marry Bella Apell, who was with Universal in the Big Town until she moved to Cleveland as a bride . . . Alexander Newman, Universal cashier here, has been transferred to the St. Louis branch in a similar capacity. He left the middle of the week to take over his new job.

Eva Urdang, secretary to M. B. Horwitz, general manager of the Washington circuit, is back in the harness minus her appendix and none the worse for it . . . Jack Lefton's son, Godfrey, of Pittsburgh and Iris Spitalny, youngest daughter of Maurice Spitalny, formerly of Cleveland and now of the Steel City, will be married

PITTSBURGH

DANNY DAVIS has brought a real touch of Hollywood to Filmrow. Preparing to film "It Happened in Pittsburgh," he has been busy in the PRC screening room making tests of candidates for the leading roles in the three-reel feature. Sponsoring committee has been active in arranging tieups, one of which will be a national pictorial magazine . . . The John J. Maloneys are in Hollywood, Fla. . . . Mrs. Lew Lefton honored Miss Iris Spitalny at a shower in the Variety Club, and the latter's bridegroom-elect, Godfrey "Duddy" Lefton, will be the guest of friends at a bachelor dinner in the William Penn Hotel, Monday evening. The young couple will be married March 23 . . . Lou Ponsetta, who recently acquired the Woodies, Apollo, is now calling it the Warren. Lou has the Strand, Apollo, too . . . William E. Kane, a school teacher at Pitcairn, takes advantage of any school holiday to visit Filmrow on business. He has been operating the Nemo, Pitcairn, since the death of his father, the late John B. "Pop" Kane.

Bob Brown, manager of the State, Wilkinsburg, submitted to a blood transfusion to aid his sister Gretchen, who became seriously ill following several operations. She is now on the road to recovery. Their brother, Dick, manages the Rowland, Wilkinsburg, across the street from the State, and their father is the veteran manager of the legitimate Nixon, Harry Brown . . . City council is studying an ordinance to regulate design and installation of air-conditioning and forced draft heating units. The measure is designed to prevent spread of fire in buildings and other hazards . . . Jack Cohen is handling two dozen individual theatre premium deals. He has quite a selection, you will agree . . . Alex S. Moore seems particularly interested in the weekly informal meetings of the AMPTO. He says they should be encouraged.

Eddie and Fred Beedle will place before the Canonsburg council all "parking meter straw ballots" returned in a poll which they conducted through their weekly theatre program, "Yours for Fun." Approximately 60 column inches, including the ballot, in the March 1 issue, was devoted to this community's parking problem. The Beedles made no recommendation but they certainly did stir up a lot of interest in the matter while selling their current and coming attractions at the Alhambra and Continental.

Jim Alexander and Sam Fineberg, co-owners of the Republic franchise for this area, were in New York attending the fourth and final regional sales meeting of this company. The Finebergs are celebrating their 20th anniversary and will remain in New York for several days . . . The Peter Danas are vacationing in Texas . . . "The Little Foxes," with Tallulah Bankhead, returns to the Nixon the week of March 24, and "DuBarry Was a Lady" has a May 5 opening date here.

The Lion Roars (or notes from M-G-M): Tom Connors jr., popular young film man here who had been a member of the booking staff, is now a student salesman. He is making the rounds here and there, usually with one of the regular representatives . . . Beverley Robin has resigned and joined her husband, Lt. Dr. Gilbert Robin, at Petersburg, Va. . . . Beulah Marena is the new telephone operator, coming from the inspection department . . . Leona Felik is a new inspectress and Joe Stack is now the regular night shipper . . . Allen Tolley, formerly of the inspection department, is now in the shipping room right with his father, the veteran Ted Tolley . . . Eddie Mackin, formerly night shipper, is now a student booker, and Tony Semplice, of the general office, is also working from time to time in the booking department . . . Charlie Baron, exploiter, has won his third merit award button, and is busy covering the entire area for "GWTW" . . . All M-G-M employes contributed to the Greek War Relief.

In addition to the New York merchants' group seeking national daylight saving time, Robert Garland, former local councilman and generally regarded as the father of "fast" time, is active in urging enactment of such an act . . . Lulu Antonoplos, daughter of the Peter Antonoploses, heads the local Greek War Relief's Junior Auxiliary . . . Announcement is made of the engagement of Geneva Harris, daughter of Mrs. John P. Harris, and Kenneth Cook Hahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer P. Hahn of Bellevue.

Irving Dietz, well known on Filmrow, arrived from New York the other day and will offer Screeno here. Also, he is handling a special short subject, "Wrestling Follies" . . . Sam Clark, Warner exploiter, was around for a short visit in the interest of Frank Capra's "Meet John Doe" . . . "The Great Dictator" opens March 21 in Loew's Penn at customary prices . . . Milton Golden departs March 17 for Albany, Ga., where he joins Uncle Sam's flying cadets.

Three thousand children, more or less, attended the Enright's seventh anniversary of its Saturday morning Kiddie Club. Billy Conn, light-heavyweight champ, appeared on the stage along with several amateur acts.

He Gave 'Em Candy And It Worked

Detroit—When Paramount's "North West Mounted Police" proved such an attraction for the kids at a Sunday matinee at the Lincoln that they were all set to stay and see it over and over again until curfew time, I. J. London, the manager, bought up the candy stock in neighborhood confectioneries, went on the stage and invited the youngsters to meet him outside and receive a gift of free candy. It worked.

Newspapers Keep Them in Hand

Detroit—When about 100 patrons waiting in the Parkside lobby gave signs of becoming restless, Manager Eddie Jacobson went out and bought up a supply of morning newspapers and gave them out gratis to the standees. Result: A lobby full of people all reading the morning paper, and not a single demand for a refund.

March 23 . . . Nat L. Lefton, Republic franchise owner, is embarrassed. He says he has had no less than 40 requests from exhibitors for dates on "Sis Hopkins" and he can't give them any because no release date on the picture has, as yet, been announced . . . Oscar Bloom, Columbia salesman, has joined the Cleveland colony vacationing in Florida.

The boys at Columbia are all pepped up over the "Good Will" drive just under way. They are asking the cooperation of all exhibitors in the territory to help them hit the top spot in the push . . . Bad weather didn't keep the following exhibitors from trekking into town: Max Federhar and J. O. Flemm, Akron; J. O. Guthrie sr. and jr., New London; Bert Schoonmaker, Delta; Paul Heuter, Toledo; Joe Trunk, Youngstown; Paul Ellis, Warren; George Delis, Canton . . . Saul Bragin, Warner theatre booker, pulled out by train for Chattanooga where he was to meet friends from Chicago and drive from there to some vacation spot in Florida. Charles Albert, assistant to Bragin, returned from his vacation in Dallas just in time to take over before Bragin left.

Billy Banks, manager of the Detroit, and Harry Henderson, manager of the Lorain Fulton, report audience reaction was excellent when they introduced the new game, "Pot Luck," sold locally by John Himmelein . . . First run business was up approximately 13 per cent last week. Big attraction was at the RKO Palace where Glenn Miller, on the stage, and "Night Train," on the screen, offered the biggest amusement dish on the Avenue.

Peter Zaleski of Art Guild Studios, who makes miniature model airplanes in his spare moments, won first prize at the New York World's Fair for the model he submitted. Only recently he won first prize in the Cleveland Air Cadet contest. The winning model, measuring 15 inches from tip to tip, has been entered in the national contest to be held in Chicago . . . M. B. Horwitz, general manager of the Washington circuit, has been appointed treasurer in charge of funds received for the Greek War Relief Drive. Co-Chairmen are John D. Kalafat and I. J. Schmertz.

In "Parachute Battalion"

HOLLYWOOD—RKO has borrowed Robert Preston from Paramount and Nancy Kelly from 20th-Fox, for toplines in "Parachute Battalion."

Pittsburgh Grosses In a Steady Climb

PITTSBURGH—Slowly, but surely, managers hope, revenue from increased production in the defensive industries is finding its way to the downtown boxoffices. Or it might be a little spurt in theatre takes due to better product. Or a combination of the two. But the fact remains that theatre grosses are on the up and up here generally. And this despite the grip of the longest cold spell of the winter. Nixon packed 'em to the doors at all performances in "Hellzapoppin'" second week.

"Western Union" ticked out a merry boxoffice tune in the Senator and was held over for a second week. "Kitty Foyle" hit about average and was moved over to the Warner. "Back Street" made its showing in the Fulton and held on until the house was closed for the special reopening engagement of "Fantasia." "The Philadelphia Story" had a "lot on the ball" in its third downtown week and its telling was continued into an engagement in the Ritz, following Warner and Penn showings. "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" dipped under par at the Stanley, where it played without a stage show, and "GWTW" finally petered out in the Ritz, after five weeks downtown.

Business Scale Average For Cincy First Runs

CINCINNATI—Business continues not satisfactory, although holding on a fairly average scale, there really has been no colossal boxoffice grosses to warm the exhibitor's heart. The feminine patrons like "Virginia." Cagney in "Strawberry Blonde," polled 130 per cent, which was peak here for several weeks, but not peak for Cagney in Cincinnati. "Western Union" slipped into its third week. Sneak previews have not helped, to any appreciable extent.

"Night Train" Plus Stage Show Cleveland Champs

CLEVELAND—The RKO Palace couldn't miss this week when RKO division manager Nat Holt offered "Night Train" on the screen and Glenn Miller on the stage in a boxoffice proof double barrelled program. As predicted by all the local sages, business shot up to double the usual take. "Back Street" and "Virginia," the other two new attractions on Play House Square, trailed in popular favor, neither of them coming quite up to par. Holdovers made better showings with "Western Union" topping the average by 20 per cent, "Philadelphia Story" going 10 per cent over the top in its third week and the Lake holding its high pace set with its opening week of "The Virgin Bride" and "School for Husbands" which, from the record, wins a third week on the Avenue.

Weather was cold and snowy. Outside competition was offered by the Garden Club Show at the Public Auditorium that drew heavy crowds, the Ice-Capades at the Arena and Dante presenting his magic at the Hanna.

Extended Runs Prevail In Detroit First Runs

DETROIT—Extended runs became an important factor among first runs again, with seven out of ten pictures staying over for a second to fourth week—in fact, all except "Back Street," which had three weeks to its credit, "Meet the Champ," "The Phantom of Chinatown," which had run two weeks. Situation is by no means a move to extended playing time, as periodically complained of by subsequent

Strike Notice Against Schulte Circuit Filed

DETROIT — Strike notice against the Schulte circuit has been filed by the Theatre Managers and Assistant Managers' Local, following a contract with three units of the Broder circuit. The union claims a majority of Schulte managers, and cites alleged discriminatory action against two of its members, including a transfer from a large to a small house.

William Schulte, owner of the circuit, has been in Florida, and was not reached for a statement. The strike notice, under new state law, is presumably effective in 30 days.

run operators, but indicates the natural run value of better class pictures currently available.

Weather has been about the coldest of the year in the past week, and attendance has been off for this reason. Another factor has been the Shrine Circus, which drew record crowds the past two weeks. The flu situation continues bad.

Michigan ranked highest of all 48 states in defense contracts, government figures show, for February.

Midwest-Coop Hearing Devoted to Finances

DETROIT—The federal suit of Midwest Theatres against Cooperative Theatres of Michigan, Detroit's case celebre, has resumed after several weeks delay. The week's session was largely devoted to highly detailed book figures by attorneys and auditors for the plaintiff.

Figures involved film rentals, operating costs, grosses and net profits of the plaintiff theatres, as well as of defendant houses, particularly the houses of the Cohen circuit which are in direct opposition to Midwest houses on lower Woodward Ave. Intent of the presentation, according to Sam Shapero, attorney for the plaintiff, was to show the damages to which the plaintiff is supposedly entitled from the losses assertedly suffered because of difficulty in booking suitable pictures caused by alleged action of the defendant.

A motion to dismiss from the defendant was anticipated late this week, upon completion of this accounting evidence, and argument upon the motion, tending to sum up evidence to date, was expected.

A Resolution Clears Up Jurisdictional Point

DETROIT—Complications of union relations when two AFL unions both claim jurisdiction in a situation are clarified, as far as Detroit is concerned, by a resolution passed by the Detroit and Wayne county Federation of Labor. Text of the resolution states:

"Placing pickets in front of a place of business employing members of the AFL by a union that is part of the AFL whose members are not employed on the premises and have no jurisdiction on the premises, but because of a jurisdiction fight with another union of the AFL, is unfair to the unions employed on such premises."

IATSE Begins Drive to Unionize Grand Rapids

DETROIT—The IATSE has started a drive to organize seven houses at Grand Rapids not now employing union projectionists, according to Roger M. Kennedy, international vice-president.

Picketing was started recently against the Savoy, operated by Murray and Goodrich, and now getting attention is the Fulton, operated by Leo J. Robinson.

Vera Diamond Engaged

CLEVELAND—Announcement is made of the engagement of Vera Diamond, secretary to Lee Goldberg of Producers Releasing Corp., to Dr. J. Maurice Jacobson, formerly of Kansas City and now of Cleveland. The wedding will take place on March 19.

Accord Farewell Party to Fisher in East Liverpool

EAST LIVERPOOL, OHIO—Approximately 50 theatre executives and employes attended a recent "farewell party" at the Travelers Hotel here in honor of James Arthur Fisher, manager of the American Theatre, who enters the army for a year's training.

The affair arranged by Co-Chairman Earl A. Ochsenbein and William Tallman, managers of the State and Ceramic theatres respectively, included a program at which George A. Ellis, district manager of the A. G. Constant circuit, was toastmaster.

Among those attending were Leland S. Swain, president of Local 123 of the IATSE; George D. Otte, theatre executive of Wheeling, identified with the American Amusement Co.; Hugh J. McDermott, chief of police; R. W. Russell, James Ellis, Raymond McWilliams and Paul Hayman, all of Canton, and Lee Chapman, Jack Lefton, Frank Masek, Lou Harz and S. Jacobs, all of Cleveland.

Bank Night Put Under Ban in Royal Oak

DETROIT—Bank Night comes under ban in the north end suburb of Royal Oak, following action started by the "Motion Picture Censorship Committee." Upon the committee's suggestion, the city commission ordered the city attorney to prepare the necessary ordinance.

A further recommendation of the committee, not yet adopted, was for a 7:00 p. m. curfew law for children, prohibiting them from attending theatres unless accompanied by an adult.

Television Under State Control

Columbus—House Bill 125, giving the state jurisdiction over television theatre buildings, has been approved. The bill now is in the senate awaiting a final vote. The administration has given assurance it will pass.

"Celebrating" Lent With "Objectionable" Films

PITTSBURGH—"As if to present a double test of the sincerity of Catholics in the cause of decent entertainment, the opening of Lent, when ordinary amusements are supposed to be avoided, is being "celebrated" by motion picture houses in this district with an outbreak of objectionable and condemned films," according to a front-page editorial in The Pittsburgh Catholic.

The Legion of Decency Committee of the Holy Name Society during the past week has been active in calling attention of pastors to offensive shows being billed in their parishes, and the official organ of the Diocese of Pittsburgh listed "B" and "C" films on its first page February 27, but discontinued its weekly listing of all pictures and classifications for the duration of Lent.

50th Wedding Anniversary Observed by A. A. Bowers

NEW PHILADELPHIA, OHIO—A. A. Bowers, widely known New Philadelphia theatre executive, with Mrs. Bowers observed their 50th wedding anniversary February 26. A veteran theatreman, he has had perhaps the most extensive experience in show business of any person in Tuscarawas county.

Son of a theatre manager and father of a theatre operator, he himself was instrumental in the building of the Union Opera house here, now known as the Union Theatre, and was its manager for 19 years.

Bart Dattola Will Build A De Luxe 1,000-Seater

NEW KENSINGTON, PA.—A de luxe theatre will be erected here for Bart Dattola. The house will have a seating capacity of at least 1,000. Planned for a number of years, the New Kensington showman only recently determined that now was the time to get the project started.

Dattola, who first entered exhibition in Belle Vernon, is this year observing his 25th anniversary as a theatre operator. In addition to his local theatre interests, he owns and operates a new theatre at West Tarentum.

John Weitzel Dies

CINCINNATI—John Weitzel, father of Frank Weitzel of the Alpine circuit, and Miss Edna Weitzel of Columbia Pictures, died at his home following an illness of several years. He was employed at Paramount as custodian for a number of years, and was well known along Filmrow.

Two-Hour Weekly Show

MENDON, MICH.—Ideal Talking Pictures Co., Chicago, is presenting a weekly two-hour show here every Wednesday at 7:00 p. m. Admission prices are 20 cents for adults and 10 cents for children and students.

"GWTW" Breaks Records In Popular Engagements

CLEVELAND—"GWTW," in its popular-priced engagements, is establishing an attendance record in all theatres in which it has played in this territory, according to Frank Drew, local M-G-M branch manager.

In Cleveland it played four weeks downtown at Loew's State and Loew's Stillman, followed by one week at the Park and Granada. March 2 it broke on the east side, playing the Colony, Center Mayfield, Commodore, Doan, Knickerbocker, Liberty, Shaker, Shore, Shaw, Hayden, Union Square, Globe, Embassy, Corlett, Heights, Euclid and Windemeer theatres. The week of March 9 it plays the following west side houses: Capitol, Garden, Hilliard Square, Broadvue, Lorain Fulton and Lyric.

In the territory, "GWTW" has met with such success that many theatres have booked repeat engagements, including the Park, Painesville, and the Rivoli, Elyria, which originally gave it extended runs.

Shea Acquires Control in Cambridge, Marietta

CAMBRIDGE, OHIO — Shea Theatres, Inc., has acquired the Colonial and Strand theatres here and the Hippodrome and Putnam, in nearby Marietta, E. C. Grainger, president of the circuit, has announced. Acquisition of the four houses resulted from purchase of stock owned by the late Edwin Finch and Edward Steward in the C&M Amusement Co. Deal gives Shea control of all theatres in the two cities.

With the acquisition of the Colonial in Wheeling, W. Va., during the past month the Shea circuit now operates more than 60 theatres, many of them in Ohio.

Forney Bowers is manager here and Joe Scanlon, formerly of Zanesville, is manager of the theatres in Marietta.

Remodeled Roosevelt Is Now the 18th Street

ERIE, PA.—Herman Lorence, who recently purchased the Roosevelt on West 18th St., has extensively remodeled the house and changed its name to the 18th Street.

A number of years ago Lorence was a district manager for the Warner circuit in Pittsburgh and later he operated a theatre at Youngsville, Pa. For the past five years he was at Cattaraugus, N. Y., where he recently sold his theatre there.

The 18th Street is ready to open, but Lorence stated this week he has been unable to obtain any product.

Stahl Joins Paramount; District Shorts Head

CLEVELAND—Max Stahl, former United Artists branch manager in Cincinnati and more recently connected with the local office of National Screen Service, has joined the local Paramount exchange as district short subject sales manager. Stahl will cover Harry Goldstein's district, which is Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati and Indianapolis.

Defense Demands on Steel Delay Newark Building

NEWARK, OHIO—Work has been halted on construction of the new 1,300-seat theatre being built here by the Schine Theatre Co., because of the shortage of steel resulting from national defense priority. The foundation and most of the brick work have been completed.

The new house was to have been completed for a spring opening.

Mrs. S. Neaman Transfers Natrona House to Padolf

PITTSBURGH—Roxy, Natrona, has been transferred from Mrs. Samuel Neaman to Lou Padolf. The latter assumed management March 1. Widow of the late Samuel Neaman had operated the Natrona house for several months. Padolf, who is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Neaman, also has a theatre in Parkersburg, W. Va.

Hensley Acquires House

BEARDS FORK, W. VA.—Gene Hensley, who is interested in theatres at Belle and Clay, has taken over the Princess here. Contracts for new booth equipment, screen and RCA sound have been signed.

Closes Elmac

MAPLE RAPIDS, MICH.—A. J. Morris, operator of the Elmac here, closed up last Sunday. The house was opened Dec. 14, 1938.

WB Borrows MacMurray

HOLLYWOOD—Warner has borrowed Fred MacMurray from Paramount for a top-line in "Dive Bomber," Errol Flynn starrer.

Mullin Names Greek Relief Committee

BOSTON — Martin J. Mullin, M&P Theatres Corp. partner and New England chairman of the amusement industry's division of the Greek War Relief Ass'n, has named a committee to work with him in the drive to raise $1,000,000 for relief in an industry nation-wide campaign during the six days from March 25 to 30.

The local central committee, the outcome of numerous meetings at 60 Scollay Square held since Adolph Zukor named Mullin as local drive chairman, is composed of Jack Goodwin and Robert Sternberg of the M&P Theatres Corp., Harry McDonald of RKO, Charles Kurtzman of Loew's, Norman Ayers and I. J. Hoffman of Warner Bros., Nathan Yamins of Independent Exhibitors, Inc., and Exhibitors Harry Zeitz of New Bedford and Archie Silverman of Providence.

Also named was a publicity committee including Harry Browning of M&P Theatres Corp., Joseph A. DiPesa of Loew's, Martin Glazer of the Paramount and Fenway, Jack Granara of RKO, and Paul Levi of the Metropolitan.

Goodwin, managing director of the Mettropolitan in Boston, announced that the house, the largest in New England, would put on a special so-called sneak preview at midnight Saturday, March 22. Tickets, Goodwin said, will be on sale at all downtown Boston theatres.

Elaborate Stage Show With "Americans All"

BRIDGEPORT, CONN. — Manager Morris Rosenthal arranged an elaborate stage show in connection with the world premiere showing of the March of Time's "Americans All" at Loew's Majestic here.

On the stage was the Russian Orthodox Church Choir of 50, a Hungarian orchestra, Polish dancers and orchestra, a Boy Scout delegation, John Martin, soloist, and Mayor Jasper McLevy, who spoke. Director Jack Glen, who headed a guest list composed of city and civic officials, also spoke on the opening night.

Drive on Gaming

MANCHESTER, N. H.—Launching one of their biggest drives in years against gaming devices, sheriffs' officers and state police swooped down on many business establishments in several parts of the state, seizing slot machines, pin-ball games and punchboards.

March 15 Deadline On Tax Payments

Hartford—Amusement tax reports and payments are due on or before March 15, Charles J. McLaughlin, state tax commissioner, announces.

The commissioner points out that a 10 per cent penalty is imposed for delinquency in filing reports or paying taxes.

Reports should be filed with the excise division, Commissioner McLaughlin said. Information concerning the tax and blank forms may be obtained from the excise division of the state tax department in Hartford.

Would Open Up Cash "Gift" Situation

BOSTON—Seeking to open up the cash giveaway situation in Massachusetts theatres, George Solomon, operator of the Columbia in Boston, is fronting a legislative petition that would authorize the department of public safety to issue licenses to Bay State film houses to conduct Beano and similar games.

Bank Night is the only cash giveaway legal in Massachusetts theatres throughout the many parts of the state. In a recent Middlesex county shut-down, Lucky was definitely closed down following a test case but Bank Night, in a similar test case, was given a "not guilty" decision by Superior Court Judge Frederick Fosdick in Cambridge.

George S. Ryan, attorney for Bank Night in the action, had previously cleared the Bank Night plan in New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Maine and in Middlesex, Suffolk and Bristol counties in Massachusetts.

No prizes in excess of $100 in the aggregate would be awarded in any one game under the provisions of the petition. A special license fee of $100 would be set up for exhibitors using such giveaways. The money would be ear-marked for the old-age benefit fund.

Connecticut Bingo Bill Is Rejected

HARTFORD—A measure introduced by Senator Kiernan in the general assembly which would have permitted the playing of Bingo on Sundays in Connecticut, has been rejected by the judiciary committee.

Hearings are slated soon on the following bills:

H. B. No. 252: Calls for the legalization of horse racing.

H. B. No. 253: Would legalize bookmaking establishments for horse race betting.

H. B. No. 257: Would permit a state lottery.

H. B. No. 436 which concerns Bingo prizes; H. B. No. 1,048 which would allow the creation of a commission for control and direction of Bingo, and S. B. No. 703, which concerns Bingo regulations.

S. B. No. 754: Calls for the regulation of carnivals.

A hearing will be held March 13 on S. B. No. 201. This bill would license music brokers. On the same day, S. B. No. 1,085, which deals with copyrighted music, will be reviewed.

S. B. 68, which calls for the establishment of a labor relations board for Connecticut similar to the national labor relation boards set up by the Wagner act, was brought up for discussion before the judiciary committee last Wednesday.

New Members for Boston Variety

BOSTON—A number of new members, largely from the M&P Theatres Corp., were inducted into the Boston Variety Club when the organization held its inaugural meeting at the Hotel Statler. Martin J. Mullin, chief barker and successor to Steve Broidy who resigned upon his appointment as Monogram national sales manager, announced at the time that the charter of the former Boston Friars Club had been accepted by National Variety headquarters and that organization was now Tent No. 23.

Brought in the fold were Thad C. Barrows, James Dempsey, William Spragg, Harry Browning, Harry Wasserman, Chester Stoddard, Hy Fine, Henri Schwartzberg, Al Bevan, Frank McManus, Edward Cuddy, Marion Coles, Walter Higgins, Cliff Tinkham, Ed Canter, Joseph O'Hern and Leonard Dunn.

Plans were discussed for the enlarging of present film district quarters. Discussed, too, were the proposed Boston visits of Bob O'Donnell, John Harris and other prominent Variety executives.

Officers of the newly formed Tent No. 23 include Al Kane of Interstate, assistant chief barker; Ted Fleischer of Interstate, second assistant chief barker; Harold Stoneman of Interstate, dough guy; and William Erbb of Paramount, property master.

The board of directors is composed of Edward Ansin, Norman Ayers, Steve Broidy, Edward Callahan, Joe Cifre, John Dervin, Lou Gordon, A. C. Kilpatrick, Joseph Levenson, Phil Margot, Max Melincoff, Ed Morey, Herman Rifkin, Phil Seletsky, Phil Smith, Stanley Sumner, Murray Weiss and Maurice Wolf.

Al Kane, local Paramount branch manager, is chairman of the house committee which includes Norman Ayers of Warner Bros., Ed Ansin of Interstate and Murray Weiss, Joseph Cifre associate. Joe Smith, independent circuit owner, is chairman of the entertainment committee.

Find Nothing Wrong With 74

Boston—The last 74 motion pictures to go before the Massachusetts department of public safety, according to latest report, have been licensed, without eliminations. The list includes Paramount's "The Lady Eve," Harry Segal's "City of Missing Girls," UA's "That Uncertain Feeling," and M-G-M's "Trial of Mary Dugan."

Arlene Judge, Lola Lane, and 42 other acts were licensed for Sunday showings, but permits were refused to two acts, while ten others were ordered to comply with recommended deletions.

'Story' and 'Roadshow' SRO Team in Boston

BOSTON—"Philadelphia Story," combined with "Roadshow," was SRO more often than not at Loew's State and Orpheum last week where the program was a natural holdover. "Virginia," bolstered by several personal appearances by local featured player, Stirling Hayden, was over the top at the Metropolitan.

Dearth of Product Threat Eliminated by Holdovers

PROVIDENCE—Lack of product, an instigating factor in early summer closing of first-run houses here in past years, will not prove true this season. All first-run houses have been fortunate with holdover attractions since the start of 1941, with the Albee setting something of a record in having played only two programs since New Year's—"Kitty Foyle" for six weeks, followed by "Buck Privates," now in its third stanze at that house.

Copyright Tax Hearings Of Interest to Allied

NEW HAVEN—At an Allied meeting Tuesday, plans were made in connection with a hearing on a bill that would impose a 25 per cent gross tax on copyright societies.

The hearing is scheduled for Thursday, March 13, before the judiciary committee at Hartford. A boiler safety device bill also will be heard.

A Premiere Visitor—

Revivals Gaining In Popularity

HARTFORD — Revivals are gaining in popularity in this sector, it is revealed in a BOXOFFICE survey.

Last week, for example, the Lincoln, New Haven, brought back "Pygmalion," while the Plymouth, Worcester, had "The Awful Truth," and the Loew's Poli Plaza, Worcester, double-billed "Wings Over Honolulu" and "Diamond Jim." The Roxy, New Britain, offered "They All Come Out."

Some theatres in Hartford specialize on presenting popular old favorites. These are the Proven Pictures and the Schulmans' Webster, while many houses in this area continually bring back Gene Autrys and other cowboy productions.

The Proven Pictures allows its patrons, via ballot, to choose old favorites for screenings every Wednesday.

State and Orpheum Find A Harvest in "Story"

BOSTON — "Philadelphia Story" gave Loew's State and Orpheum their biggest weekend business since "Northwest Passage." Both programs had the advantage of falling on school holiday weeks, but it was the former that garnered the most from this phenomenon. "Story" lined them up all week at both houses and, held for a second week, was regarded as a strong probability for a third.

Cinema Club Set

BOSTON—The Cinema Club, film bookers' organization, will hold its annual charity dinner-dance at the Cocoanut Grove March 16. Last minute reservations may be secured from Abe Barry of Columbia.

Seeks to Regulate 16mm Slot Films

BOSTON—Arthur K. Howard, business manager for Independent Exhibitors, Inc., has filed a petition with the Massachusetts legislature for "an act to supervise and license the showing of 16mm and 35mm films or other sizes for public or private exhibition by means of an automatic coin-in-the-slot, or similar talking motion picture devices, sometimes called 'juke boxes.' "

The action, scheduled for hearing last Thursday, was indefinitely postponed upon request. No future public hearing date had been set at the time of going to press.

Howard is petitioning that the location of all such devices be approved by the Massachusetts department of public safety and that an annual license shall be required from this department at a charge of $50 per machine. Howard also seeks that each individual subject be supervised and approved by the department of public safety before any public showings. There would be an inspection charge of $10 per subject and an additional $50 charge for each certificate of approval.

Peace Would Be Unfamiliar

Providence, R. I.—Max Nathanson's Hope Theatre saw the beginning of a fifth year of picketing over a controversy he says began 10 years ago when he refused to discharge the house musician, an AFL man. Herbert Slater, business agent for Local 223 of the IATSE, the union doing the picketing, says the dispute arose over an attempt by operators to form a union and affiliate with CIO. The marathon picketing hasn't hurt business, contends Nathanson.

Erbb Upholds Right to Clearance Knowledge

BOSTON—Taking a different stand from most previous witnesses, William Erbb, local Paramount district manager, testified in the Waldo Theatre Corp. anti-trust suit that he had asked Al Bevan, M&P Theatres Corp. booker, what protection other distributors were giving him.

"I have insisted on his telling me," Erbb told George S. Ryan, plaintiff's attorney. Erbb said that he didn't ask that question in regard to every house in the M&P circuit but that when disagreements have come up and he (Erbb) wanted to change the existing clearance for what he considered good and sufficient reasons, or when Bevan wanted to make changes for similar reasons, Erbb would probably ask what clearance the other distributors were giving in the situation under discussion.

"My reason for it," Erbb said, "is that I do not want to be in any disadvantageous position with the subsequent-run account from the standpoint of selling that exhibitor my product and selling it at the most advantageous price. If what Bevan is trying to get from me is more clearance than he gets (than Metro has agreed to give him, or he and Metro have actually agreed) then I am in the particularly disadvantageous position if I grant such a clearance."

Erbb said that he definitely did not want to give M&P any better terms, generally speaking, than the circuit gets from other distributors. He said, however, that if the circuit could justify that its reasons were fair and reasonable and if he could see that the requests would improve Paramount's position with the prior run, then he would agree to "better terms."

Schedules From Others

Ryan asked Erbb if, during the course of the last six years, the local Paramount branches ever received protection schedules from the exhibitors other than M&P. Erbb replied in the affirmative, saying that it was his belief that Paramount had received such schedules, from time to time, from Maine and New Hampshire Theatres Co., Warner Bros., Western Massachusetts Theatres, and "also from the Interstate circuit."

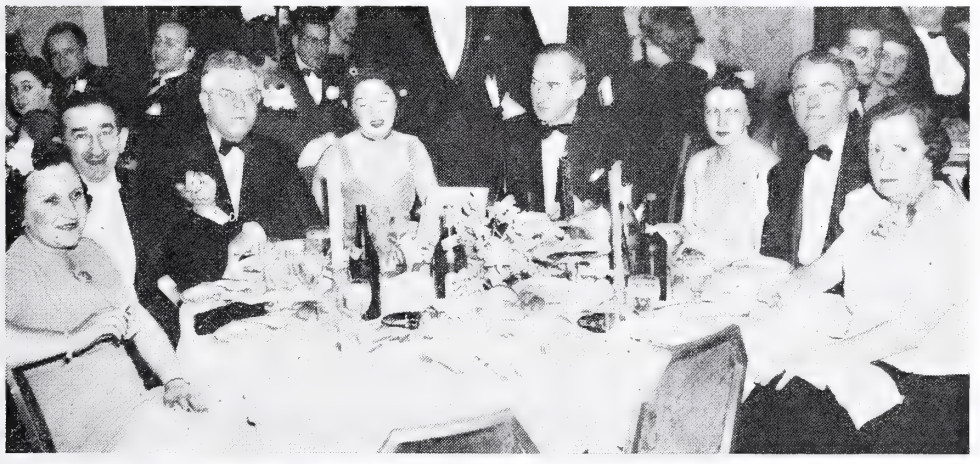
Erbb said that "generally speaking" it is a common practice for exhibitors other than M&P to seek the same protection as that accorded them by other distributors.

"In your negotiations for setting up a clearance with an exhibitor," Erbb said, "at the time you make a sale of your product you go into the clearance rather thoroughly because it is usually written into the contract . . . It is a very easy argument for the exhibitor to use (and I think a pretty good one) when he says, 'I am getting my product on such an availability, and I have such clearance over this situation in question from all other distributors. And I see no reason why I should make any change just because you are asking for it'."

Ryan asked Erbb if there were any principles which are generally recognized in the motion picture industry as are given to apply to a given situation.

"I think the fundamental is that larger cities are getting and are entitled to clearance over smaller situations, certainly from the distributors' standpoint," Erbb said. "I believe that clearance probably originated with the distributor end of the business, that the distributor is vitally interested in clearance in the standpoint of protecting the account that gives him the most money for his film."

Pep Meeting for Depinet Drive



Boston—Giving impetus to the current Ned Depinet sales drive, a pep meeting was held at the RKO exchange at which talks were given by Bob Mochrie, eastern division sales manager; Harry Michalson, short subjects sales manager, and Leo Devaney, drive captain.

Bridgeport Trying 9 O'Clock Plan

BRIDGEPORT—Harry F. Shaw, Loew-Poli division manager, reports the Poli here will inaugurate a new experimental policy of 9 a. m. openings, as of March 7, and continuous performances thereafter. If successful, the policy will be carried over to the Majestic and Globe.

The show will be called "Early Bird," and is designed to make films available to factory workers who are on 3 to 11 o'clock shifts or 11 to 7. Matt Saunders, manager of the Poli, has conducted an extensive campaign on the early show, using factory bulletin boards, circulars, etc.

The State, New Britain, has changed to 12 noon opening with a similar idea in mind, and other theatres over the state, in industrial towns especially, are considering a moveup in openings.

Dinner-Dance Honors Trio of Showmen

HARTFORD—A dinner dance at the Club Ferdinando was held to honor Jack A. Simons, former manager of Loew's Poli here and now managing director of Loew's State in Providence, Lou Cohen, former Palace manager who took over the Poli reins, and Frederick R. Greenway, now manager of the Palace.

Simons came in from Providence for the affair.

The committee in charge included James F. McCarthy, Strand; George E. Landers, E. M. Loew's; Walter B. Lloyd, Allyn; Henry Zaccardi, Musicians' Union; J. B. Tuthill, Hartford Times, and Reubin K. Lewis, Stagehands' Local 84.

Delegations from Bridgeport, New Haven, Meriden, Waterbury and Springfield were on hand to make the affair a long-to-be-remembered event.

Club for Youngsters

NORWALK, CONN.—Last Saturday morning saw the beginning of a new undertaking by the local Empress Theatre. The 10 o'clock club, an organization of youthful patrons, held its first meeting. Acting Mayor Edward Kelley addressed the youngsters and told them what the programs on future meetings are going to be like.

Concludes Course on Theatre Management

BOSTON — Joseph H. Brennan, local MPTO business manager, discussed legislative activities and censorship problems as the final guest lecturer among the 15 theatrical motion picture leaders who took part in the State University Extension course in Theatre Management held at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology under the direction of Arthur L. Tuohy, former Loew's manager, now an executive in the Massachusetts department of education. The comprehensive lecture series was scheduled to conclude this week with a summary by Tuohy of ground covered.

Louis Chiaramonte, poster artist at National Screen Accessories, appeared the week previous and gave an illustrated talk on poster designing and newspaper advertising layouts.

"Here Is Ireland" Sets Another Mark in Hub

BOSTON—Although at the time "Here Is Ireland" was in its seventh week at the Fine Arts, it broke all house records for Washington's Birthday. George Kraska, Fine Arts operator, reported that the novel 16mm feature, the first miniature ever to have a regular run in town, was holding up strongly and might well run another ten weeks at the Back Bay house.

When a Cat Lost Its Dignity

Boston—A film personality here recently said that the finest example of stage presence he ever saw was given one night by George Arliss when he was playing the title role in "The Devil."

In the second act the theatre cat suddenly appeared through the fireplace, walking daintily across the painted "hot" coals and straight up to Arliss.

The audience snickered. Arliss looked down and saw the animal. Coolly he screwed the monocle more firmly in his eye, fixed his gaze on the cat, and demanded, "Have you a message for me?"

The cat gave one startled look and dashed back into the fireplace and behind the scenes.

Fete George Curran

Boston—George Curran, former IATSE Stagehands' Local official and for many years with the Majestic in Boston, is being given a benefit show at the Boston Opera House March 16. The charitable affair is being sponsored by the Boston Lodge of Elks.

Protest Titles That Do Not Fit the Picture

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—The Springfield M. P. Council, at its monthly meeting, decided to request authorities in charge, to select titles of motion pictures to coincide with the theme of the film. The council's action resulted following numerous protests that films of high standard and cultural interest had been advertised under misleading titles.

Mrs. John Homer Miller made a report on "Cheers for Miss Bishop," "Come Live With Me," "Night Train," "Western Union," and "Virginia" and there was a discussion on "Land of Liberty." Mrs. Alfred L. Converse, president of the council, presided.

More Responsible Role Desired for Films

HARTFORD—"A sense of responsibility in educating the American public to national defense" is the latest "lack" attributed to the motion picture industry.

The opinion was voiced by Guy C. Larcom, research director of the Federal Housing Authority in Hartford, speaking at a recent Open Forum.

"The war news presented in the movies is given at a much higher pitch than in the newspapers," Larcom pointed out, "and it plays up the melodrama without giving a fair, unbiased treatise on the subject."

Praising the industry for entertainment value, the speaker declared that such pictures as "The Grapes of Wrath" presented a good characterization of a social problem, but added it was the popularity of the book that caused the picture, and not the industry attempting to educate the public.

Another speaker on the forum, H. T. Kneeland, chairman of the Hartford Greek War Relief Committee, criticized films for "softening us, making us adverse to facing an issue" and then stressed the value of "using American motion pictures to propagandize the American way of life in order to combat the most subtle, deadly German propaganda ever seen in this country," but cautioning that propagandizing be done with fairness, so as not to instill a bitter race hatred for the German race."

A series of shorts, featuring national defense and portrayals of a democratic way of life, was recommended by the speaker.

New Hampshire Defense Orders, $94,377,884

CONCORD, N. H.—Figures announced by Laurence M. Meyer, industrial agent of the state planning and development commission, show that defense orders awarded to New Hampshire firms up to February 1 totaled approximately $94,377,884.

Army supplies account for $3,717,169 of this sum, and $1,726,867 is for army construction. The latter includes contracts let or negotiated for new buildings, and repairs and improvements to existing buildings, fields and facilities.

Navy contracts and expenditures include $57,931 for supplies, $3,435,096 for navy construction and $84,415,000 for new ships under construction in New Hampshire.

Charge 15-Year-Old With Starting Theatre Fire

WEST HAVEN, CONN.—Patrolman Edward Keeney said Sunday that he arrested a 15-year-old boy for setting a fire in the Park Theatre in Allingtown which caused damage estimated by the fire department at $3,000.

The officer said the boy told him he broke into the closed theatre early Sunday morning, ignited a bundle of papers in the orchestra pit, and then remained in the building for five hours until the heat of the flames caused him to leave.

Rally Texas-Okla. Trade to Greek Aid

DALLAS—All film salesmen out of Dallas and the Oklahoma City markets are calling on southwestern exhibitors in the interest of special midnight shows for Greek War Relief.

A general meeting among Texas film men was held in the office of Co-Chairman H. Biersdorf, 20th-Fox manager. R. J. O'Donnell, chairman for the Oklahoma City and Dallas territories, pledged 100 per cent cooperation over the Interstate circuit. The same pledge came from Robb & Rowley-United, Jefferson Amusement Co., and R. E. Griffith Theatres here.

The showings will be held over these circuits on or about March 22 as availability of prints will permit. Relief dates over the territory will be filled in about the same period.

Biersdorf, chairman of the distributor group here, is working with Louis Charninsky, chairman of the theatre division. First day following the meeting, Fox salesmen obtained 20 pledges from independent exhibitors, Biersdorf said.

Following the midnight shows and during the week March 25 to 30, all theatres will be furnished a 200 foot trailer with narration by Melvyn Douglas and donations will be asked to be taken up in all theatre lobbies with solicitations to be made by women of various social and civic clubs.

Charninsky is now working on plans for a big dance for Greek relief to which all film and theatre employes, friends and families are to be invited. He is seeking the Plantation Club for the occasion and the date will be later on in the month. The Variety Club of Texas will sponsor the dance, Charninsky said, and tickets will go at $1 each.

All communications in reference to film and the midnight shows should be addressed to H. Biersdorf, 1801 Wood St., Dallas. Quota for the Texas area is $39,000.

Memphis Barkers Supervise Trade's Greek Relief Aid

MEMPHIS—The Variety Club of Memphis assumed responsibility the past week for the supervision of a series of benefit shows to be given throughout this trade area March 25-30 for the Greek War Relief Fund, with $12,500 set as the goal for the amusement division.

Major effort locally will center on an elaborate stage and screen show to be given at the Malco Theatre, Thursday night, March 20, with a matinee March 21. In all 19 of the city's leading neighborhood houses will participate. Scores of houses in the cities surrounding Memphis will give special midnight shows for the cause.

Parent-Teacher organizations of Memphis will conduct a sales campaign in connection with the neighborhood programs, and will share in the proceeds, receiving 20 per cent, while the balance goes to the Greek Relief.

M. A. Lightman is division chairman for this section, with Frank Willingham, Metro branch manager, territory manager; and Ed Sapinsley of Malco Theatres, city manager. Todd Ferguson, M-G-M publicist, will have charge of promotion for the main downtown revue at the Malco with Chalmers Cullins supervising production.

Competitive teams have been formed for selling of tickets on the Row. Al Avery, RKO branch manager, and Homer Hisey, Warner branch manager, have divided the men, while Jimmy Rogers' team is composed of the girls.

MacEachron a Leader in Greek War Relief Drive

JACKSON, TENN.—J. R. MacEachron, local manager for Malco Theatres, is chairman of the motion picture division of the Greek War Relief Campaign for theatres in Jackson, Bemis, Bruceton, Camden, Dickson, Henderson, Huntingdon, Lexington, McKenzie, Milan, Paris, Parsons and Waverly. Theatres are planning midnight and special morning shows, with half of the receipts to go to the Greek cause.

Austin Drive-In Files First Dallas Case

DALLAS—Some run of product and establishment of clearance in accordance with the consent decree is asked by Eddie Joseph for his Joseph's Drive-In Theatre at Austin in the initial demand for arbitration filed Tuesday with the local tribunal.

Defendants are Warner, Vitagraph, 20th-Fox and Loew's-M-G-M.

Contending that he can satisfy reasonable standards of theatre operation and that he is reputable and responsible, Joseph demands that the three distributors be forced to sell him product. He charges they have refused to do so.

Joseph also asks that his clearance be established under Section 8 of the decree.

The arbitrator will be selected from a list of ten from the AAA panel here to be submitted by C. C. Williams, tribunal clerk. Already nominated are J. B. Adoue jr., Fred A. Dewey, Roy R. Ray, Lawrence H. Fleck, L. M. Jordan, L. W. Klingman, Lewis W. McNaughton, R. J. Smith and C. H. Zachery.

Northeast Texas May Get The Biggest Army Camp

DALLAS—Current reports are that the biggest army camp yet for Texas will be located in northeast Texas near Honey Grove or near Bonham, the exact location not being determined at this time, so far as is known. A national electrical company here is reported to be storing supplies in 100-ton lots to be used in construction of this particular project.

In the area, as far as shown business is concerned, Major H. S. Cole has three theatres in Bonham, and in Honey Grove B. R. McLendon has one house and C. V. Caver and Preston Tate the other.

New Heating Plant

HARTSVILLE, TENN.—A new heating plant has been installed in the Eveska.

'Philadelphia Story' at Top Second Week

NEW ORLEANS—Held over for a second week at Loew's "The Philadelphia Story" led the list of grosses. "Virginia" at the Saenger ran its opposition across the street a close second and the Orpheum did not trail very far behind. "Tall, Dark and Handsome" moved into the Tudor more or less unannounced, and did mighty nice business.

The week just closed was devoted to Carnival. Just what the first week of Lent will bring is worrying local managers.

Detail for week ending February 26:

Abundance of Westerns a Brake on Dallas Grosses

DALLAS—Week ending March 1 on Elm Street was not out of the ordinary by any means, yet it was reported satisfactory. Opinion expressed the other day was there have been too many big westerns lately and these are forced into the A houses and since feminine appeal is lacking, the daytime receipts are way off.

There was no holdover film and "Long Voyage Home" opened in the Tower, designated holdover house.

Detail for the week ending March 1:

Capitol—The Plainsman (Para't), 1st half..... 85

Schneider, Burke Plan a Dallas Suburban House

DALLAS—Plans are being completed for a new theatre on the western rim of Oak Cliff here, the owners being L. E. Schneider and Barry Burke, according to reliable information. The area is undergoing considerable development and is close to the big airplane works at Grand Prairie.

Burke was manager of the Palace here years ago and lately has been working under John Friedl in the Minneapolis area. Schneider was a theatre district manager for Interstate circuit until recently.

Mrs. C. P. Smith Adding Seats in Center, Tex.

CENTER, TEX.—Mrs. C. P. Smith, veteran Texas independent exhibitor and owner of the Crystal and Shelby theatres here, has started remodeling and modernizing of the Shelby. Improvements include a 300-seat balcony in addition to the 500 seats downstairs. New equipment will be installed throughout.

"Glamour Girl No. 2" Viewed in Pensacola

Pensacola—Maurice (Red) Kann in a recent edition of BOXOFFICE speaks of a new "Glamour Girl," to wit, television: and suggests that a powerful competitive attraction for motion pictures is on the way.

This reviewer unhesitatingly labels the new "Soundies" as Glamour Girl No. 2, and suggests that while this so-called "menace" is at present only a ripple in the stream, it may yet grow to tidal wave proportions.

One of the new machines that project motion pictures lasting a minute or two for a dime a peep, was set up Saturday in the lobby of the swanky San Carlos Hotel.

We don't know how many dimes the machine registered; suffice to say that the novelty went over big the first day, and the blooming automaton was worked to death by a group of younger folk who were in the lobby. A college crowd, it seemed to be.

Our first impression, after the novelty of the first two "acts" wore off, was one of boredom. Our impression, apparently, was not shared by the aforesaid younger set, who were "eating up" the reels far into the night.

One of these so-called "Soundies" certainly isn't going to make or break Pensacola, but one wonders, looking into the future, if and when they become as plentiful as "juke" machines, if established motion picture interests will not be affected by this influx of coins that properly belong to the boxoffice, or, at least, from the exhibitor viewpoint.

One wonders, too, what the future will hold. As, for instance, in the case of local events, filmed at the scene and rushed into the machines locally.

New Equipment in Three B&B Houses Installed

CHARLOTTE—Ellis Blumenthal, president of the B&B circuit, reports that the Hollywood, Winston-Salem, N. C., is being treated to new sound and carpets; the Star, Savannah, Ga., to carpets, projectors and paint, and the local Tryon to a Neon border for the entire front, interior decorations and carpets. Local work is under the supervision of General Manager C. A. Matthews.

Blumenthal recently returned from a Florida vacation.

Lee Scarborough Will Operate in Bremond

DALLAS—Lee Scarborough, who until a few days ago owned and operated the Van Theatre at Van, has located in Bremond, where he has made a deal to operate a theatre now under construction.

W. H. Frye, formerly of Forney, purchased the Van from Scarborough and has already taken over with plans for extensive improvements.

A Sliding Gross Tax Threatens in S. C.

COLUMBIA, S. C.—A stiff theatre admissions tax bill, reported on favorably by the house finance committee, passed on third reading in the senate, and now awaiting action in the house, confronts South Carolina exhibitors.

It calls for a 3 per cent tax on gross receipts for theatres in towns of not more than 5,000 population; a 5 per cent tax in towns up to 10,000; 7 per cent in towns up to 20,000, and a 10 per cent tax on gross receipts in towns or cities with a population in excess of 20,000.

Debate on the measure was expected to start in the house Wednesday.

Taylors Win Again Over Sunday Show Charges

KINGSPORT, TENN.—For the third time, charges of violating the Sunday show law against the Fox, Highland Park, have been dismissed in a local court, and Ralph, Malcolm and Bascum Taylor, co-operators of the suburban house, exonerated.

Attorney for the defense produced evidence attesting that a majority of the citizens of the community favor Sunday shows and denying Sunday operation of the theatre is "detrimental to health and morals."

North Carolina Theatres Shift Five Managers

COLUMBIA, S. C.—Curtis H. Mees, formerly in charge of the Strand, has been moved to the Ritz in succession to T. Grayson Poats who has been shifted to Rockingham, N. C., as city manager for North Carolina Theatres, Inc. Jack Jordon, formerly at the Palmetto, succeeds Mees at the Strand, and in turn is replaced at the Palmetto by Tom Allen, formerly assistant manager at the Ritz. Frank D. Bryan of Marion, S. C., succeeds Allen.

Everett Enterprises Add Holloway's Newton House

CHARLOTTE—Everett Enterprises has acquired the State in Newton, N. C,, from I. C. Holloway, making it three for the H. H. Everett circuit there. The others are the Catawba and North Newton. The latest acquisition gives the circuit 22 houses in the two Carolinas.

Ponders Convention

CHARLOTTE—Charles H. Arrington, president of the Theatre Owners Ass'n of North and South Carolina, has been going over plans for the organization's mid-summer convention. The date and place are not yet determined.

Concerning Florida

By A. JULES BENEDIC

TALLAHASSEE—As we tumble into Tallahassee, conviction grows that, by and large, almost every section of this state is witnessing theatre expansion. In this, the capital of the Peninsula State, Mr. Sparks recently opened the Florida, his third theatre here, while it is definitely understood that independent interests are scouting for a "main drag" location, upon which a house will be built to run Warner product.

BENEDIC

Then, too, the Leon, devoted to colored patronage, was to have opened March 1. This house is in the Negro section, has 450 seats, is modern in every respect, and will be operated in competition to the long-established Capital, operated by Margaret Yellowhair, a house with a seating capacity of approximately 450. Eugene H. Pichard and associates are financing the Leon venture, and have named Marshall F. Stone as manager.

Palofax St. Gets New Pictorium

As we pilot our Plymouth into Pensacola, getting into Saenger territory, again the theatre-building tocsin is ringing. It is definitely understood, and newspaper announcements have been made to the effect that the Pryor interests of Virginia, through Chester Hester, will shortly begin construction on The Florida, a house to seat 600, on the main thoroughfare, Palofax, on a site now occupied by the Nobles Building. It is understood that tenants have been served notice to vacate.

There is no pronounced boom in Pensacola, so to speak, but the town looks better than on the occasion of our last visit some half dozen years ago. The Pensacola Naval Air Station—the Annapolis of the Air—as it is called, is doing much to stimulate matters hereabouts, in which the motion picture business certainly will get its share.

Another Cinema for Crestview

As we cross into Crestview, we find that Neal Robinson, heretofore at Fort Walton, has erected a new theatre in this lively little western Florida town, in competition to one already established. Activities at Eglin Field, nearby, a government project, is responsible for this new venture. Mr. Robinson has leased his theatre at Fort Walton to other parties. He is seeking permission, we were told, to name his new Crestview Theatre, The Eglin, in honor of the field.

We meander into Macclenny, finding E. B. Chessman and his wife piloting the Baker Theatre there, as well as operating two houses nearby, an active setup. Mr. Chessman formerly was with the National Cash Register Co. . . . At Lake Butler, H. A. Dale has a tiein with the merchants on giving away some electrical equipment, that has proven quite a business-getter . . . Brandon Warren is no longer at the helm of the Mayo in the town of that name; he has disposed of his interests to Homer T. Putnall and Edward S. Winburn . . . Mrs. S. G. Owen has the combination Madison and Greenville cinematic setup; a very pleasant lady to meet.

Our stay in Pensacola a bit foggy, so to speak. We were struck by a truck on the main thoroughfare while on our way to see Clint Vucovich at the Belmont. Our stay at the Pensacola Hospital was considerably enlivened by the appreciated visits of Johnny Jones and John C. McKenna of the Saenger setup, as well as additional courtesies extended by Warren McGee of the Rex, also a Saenger institution.

M. F. Stone Gets a Full House

Everything happens at once, as M. F. Stone, manager of the newly-opened Leon at Tallahassee, found out. Drawing to a hand of four, Marshall now has a full house, so to speak. At least, it's four queens and a king. Before the wee bit of femininity was ushed in, shortly before the opening of the new theatre, Mr. Stone had three girls and a boy; now he has four girls, plus the boy, and he intends to stand pat on the present holdings, at least for a while, he says.

Things are going nicely at Niceville, where the Fry-Wald Theatre is getting some play from the embryonic aviators nearby . . . C. S. Dunn of the Chattahoochee-Havana setup believes in advertising. He has immense wooden signs advertising his week's programs, placed at vantage points in the surrounding countryside . . . B. A. Donnan at Chipley proves a pleasant chap to talk to on a rainy cross-country tour of western Florida . . . See you all again soon, we hope, after a projected tour back into Atlanta-land.

HOUSTON

LOEW'S STATE exploited "So Ends Our Night" with a breakfast preview on opening day. House opened at 6 a. m. and coffee and doughnuts were served to patrons . . . "Lucky Star Night," described as a new type of talent hunt, was explained at the Kirby by Ronald K. Perkins, originator of the plan. He instructed the audience how they may participate in the weekly talent searches, and be paid from $1 to $100 for their efforts.

R. P. MacDonald has replaced Wayne Peters as manager of the Iris. Peters left to accept a civil service job . . . Howard Nutt, Loew's usher for more than two years, is now with the Kirby . . . Local houses are helping the police department acquaint the public with the new speed limit—30 miles an hour during the day and 25 at night . . . Jimmie Pate, Uptown candy lass, reports a big time at the Plantation. Hyman Werner, Kirby assistant manager, says that they really got away with the fried chicken and hot peppers . . . Bill Lewis, drummer for Warner Bros., came to town in behalf of "Footsteps in the Dark."

Efforts are being made to bring to Houston Gracie Fields, noted English comedienne, for a performance for the benefit of English child victims of Nazi bombings. Frank S. Coan of New York, general secretary of the English-speaking Union of the United States, came to confer with officials of Houston War Relief, Inc., Bundles for Britain and the Canadian Legion, to arrange a Houston appearance for the near future.

Thompson Will Reopen

GRAHAM, N. C.—A. B. Thompson will reopen the Alco here March 20. The house is now being remodeled.

CONGRATULATIONS, VARIETY!

CHARLOTTE—With the arrival of this issue of your favorite trade publication in the Carolinas, we are day and date with the birth of an organization which will do much for the good fellowship and closer relationship of a grand bunch of real hefellows. Of course, Variety Club—the one organization known to everyone everywhere.

John Harris, the originator, with his diligent and untiring years of effort, will be well repaid when he hands this newest Tent No. 24 its charter. In so doing he will realize, as we feel sure that he has already realized, that he is welcoming men who will be an outstanding credit to his and Variety's high ideals. Welcome to the Carolinas, Variety.—PAULINE GRIFFITH.

HOLLYWOOD—Irving Cummings will direct Alice Faye in "Belle Starr" for 20th-Fox.

College Students Select "GWTW"

AUSTIN, TEX.—Choice of more than one-fourth of America's college students, "Gone With the Wind" was easily ranked the collegians' No. 1 picture shown in 1940, a nation-wide poll conducted by Joe Belden's Student Opinion Surveys of America reveals.

Based on a scientifically-representative cross-section of the U. S. college enrollment, the survey showed "GWTW" as the choice of 27 per cent. Only one other picture was the preference of even half that many—"Rebecca," with a showing of 14 per cent.

The top ten pictures of the year, in the opinion of American collegians, are:

1. "Gone With the Wind"
2. "Rebecca"
3. "The Grapes of Wrath"
4. "All This, and Heaven Too"
5. "Foreign Correspondent"
6. "Knute Rockne—All American"
7. "Northwest Passage"
8. "North West Mounted Police"
9. "The Mortal Storm"
10. "Boom Town"

Interviewers asked students on campuses throughout America to name the best picture "they had seen" during 1940; so many of the favorites mentioned were not necessarily released during the last year. Often a pollee named one of the classics Hollywood filmed in a year prior to 1940.

Cash Games Forbidden In Springfield, Tenn.

SPRINGFIELD, TENN.—Following the recent incident at the Capitol Theatre when a $600 Bank Night allegedly was fraudulently won, Judge Dancey Fort of Robertson county circuit court has ordered discontinuance of all cash drawings, Bank Nights, Treasure Chests, etc., within the county, as a result of the findings of the county grand jury in the Capitol case.

The Capitol management had already discontinued such drawings. Two people are in jail charged with obtaining the theatre's cash prize by fraudulently substituting numbers for those in the drawing basket.

Two Sign With Altec

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—C. H. McCroskey, who operates a chain of Arkansas theatres, has signed up Altec Service. R. Applebaum, operator of the Roosevelt in the Mississippi Delta, too has signed Altec.

Films in Defense a Topic

WACO, TEX.—"How Should Movies Aid in National Defense?" was the subject chosen for discussion at the WPA-Retail Credit Men's radio forum.

CORPUS CHRISTI, TEX.—Rubinoff made a p. a. here, then went to McAllen, Laredo and Del Rio for other appearances.

Hanson Exploitation Award to Garrette

TORONTO—The award for the best exploitation campaign of the month for any feature among the managers of Hanson Theatres Corp., Ltd., was made to Grant Garrette of the Geneva at Orillia, Ont., for his work on "North West Mounted Police," the second award going to Tom McKnight, manager of the Patricia, London, for the campaign on "The Letter." Fifteen managers of the circuit in Ontario participated in the competition which is a part of the contest for the first three months of 1941 with cash prizes being given for the period.

Garrette had a tie-up with an Orillia newspaper in the form of a lucky number stunt in which he secured a full-page spread while another newspaper gave a lengthy reader on the organization of the famous constabulary in which the theatre engagement was mentioned. An Orillia store had a newspaper advertisement in which a scene cut from the picture was featured and a local clothier had a window display with Mountie dolls and theatre cards, stills being placed in other store windows. The theatre had a special front for the occasion which included large cut-out letters and Mounted Police pennants.

Manager McKnight of the Patricia mailed 950 personal letters on "The Letter;" inserted heralds in magazines sold at news stands; secured several spot announcements at a big dance; used many window cards and one-sheets and had colored stills in downtown store windows. He had a special lobby display and arranged special announcements from the stage of the theatre while he used the four-star angle in newspaper publicity.

High in the contest standing for the month were Henry Marshall of the Rideau, Ottawa; W. C. Tyers, Granada, St. Thomas; Roy Miller, Marks Theatre, Oshawa; Emmett Stark, Palace, Timmins; Leo Coyle, Granada, St. Catharines; Lorne Moore, Grand, Sudbury; H. E. Nelson, Goldfields Theatre, Timmins; Gordon Beavis, Royal, North Bay; Harry B. Neun, Granada, Chatham; Lloyd Taylor, Granada, Hamilton, and Tom Mascaro, Capitol, Belleville.

At the end of March, cash prizes for exploitation totaling $100 will be distributed among the first three managers, with $50 being awarded for the highest total of points for the three months. Further contests will be staged every three months during 1941 for similar cash prizes and the grand winner at the close of the year will receive a handsome trophy in addition to various cash bonuses for his campaigns.

W. Evan-Jones National Sound Agent in Ontario

TORONTO—W. Evan-Jones has become Ontario representative for National Sound Service of Montreal. Evan-Jones formerly was with Dominion Sound here and is well-known to the trade.

Four Rubin Boys In the Forces

Ottawa—No one can point a finger to the Rubin boys when it comes to national service in war time, no less than four of them being officers or non-commissioned officers in the Canadian Army or the Royal Canadian Navy. The youngest of the quartette in uniform is Sub-Lieutenant Dave Rubin, formerly manager of Rialto, Ottawa, and for some time manager of the Westdale in Hamilton, this being a unit of the Allen chain. Dave is in the Navy.

The other brothers are Sergt.-Major Michael Rubin of the Royal Canadian Air Force headquarters in Ottawa; Flight-Sergt. Alex. Rubin of the R. C. A. F. and Sergt. Harold Rubin of the Governor-General's Foot Guards of Ottawa, now in training at Toronto. Michael has been with the Air Force for 17 years.

French Film Production In Canada Suggested

TORONTO—In connection with a move to transfer French art and literature along organized lines to the sections of Eastern Canada where the French language is jealously guarded and encouraged, intimation has been made by the French-Canadian patriots that consideration is being given to the development of French film production to replace the product which formerly was imported in from what is now known as the State of France.

This move is contemplated despite the information that the Canadian distributor of French pictures, La Compagnie Cinematographique Canadienne Limitee of which J. A. DeSeve is the representative, has a considerable supply of Made-in-France films on hand, some of which apparently were rushed out of France before the filtration of the German troops. Exhibitors using French-language product have signed an iron-clad contract for the exclusive use of films released by this company but some question has arisen as to future supply because of the embargo imposed by the Dominion Government on trade with any part of European France.

The development of a French film industry would conceivably prevent expansion in the distribution of pictures made in Hollywood and England. There are approximately 100 theatres in three Provinces of Canada which use French films either wholly or in part.

Canadian Sound Equip. Company to Custodian

TORONTO—The Canadian Sound Equipment Co., Toronto, has gone by the boards, the firm having made an assignment under the bankruptcy act. The company was organized some months ago to take over the Technical Service Co. by Walter Evan-Jones, projection engineer and electric equipment specialist, for the purpose of sales and service for RCA special products. E. G. Clarkson of Toronto is the custodian under the winding up proceedings.

Federal Amusement Tax for Dominion

TORONTO — A leak from government sources indicates that Canada will have its first federal amusement tax in the near future, with the announcement to be made in connection with the bringing down of the next wartime budget.

The levy is to be labeled a war measure but that was the way it was started in the province of Ontario during the last war—and continued for more than 20 years. Incidentally, it started in Ontario as a one-cent tax on every admission ticket for every form of amusement, entertainment, recreation and diversion but grew to the 10 per cent stage. Ontario has no amusement tax now.

The tax to be imposed by the Dominion government, which will be collected regardless of imposts in seven provinces, will not require the use of extra tickets or coupons but will be taken from the box-office reports of theatres from month to month, it is reported. This virtually amounts to a tax on theatre receipts and not a tax on patrons. Therefore it would be an indirect tax with the exhibitors feeling the pinch.

A federal amusement tax will undoubtedly bring an increase in theatre admissions because, under present conditions, increased theatre patronage, due to war stimulus and wartime employment, is not bringing increased profit because of higher levies on income, imports and corporation profits. One rumor has it that the federal amusement tax would bring $10,000,000 to the Dominion chest but this is believed to be a high estimate because the total gross receipts of all theatres in the country last year will be around $36,000,000. Such a government net would mean a tax of approximately 30 per cent.

The highest amount collected by the Ontario government, prior to the dropping of the impost in 1937, was $2,000,000 in one year and that was rated a 10 per cent levy. Ontario theatres will, as usual, pay the biggest part of the shot because Ontario produces almost 50 per cent of Canada's total theatre gross.

"It will be uniform throughout Canada and will not interfere with our field of taxation," was the statement of an Ontario government official with respect to the federal tax proposal.

"Dictator" Run Near

TORONTO—The first Toronto run of "The Great Dictator" has been disclosed at Loew's as due after the national release date on March 7. The picture will be shown here at regular prices, according to Manager Jules Bernstein. It is expected that the opening will follow "The Philadelphia Story," currently at Loew's for its Canadian premiere.

"Our Life" for Warner

HOLLYWOOD—Warner has acquired "In This Our Life," a story by Ellen Glasgow, as a co-starring vehicle for Olivia DeHavilland and Errol Flynn.

TORONTO

PRESIDENT N. L. NATHANSON of Famous Players Canadian Corp. and Mrs. Nathanson have returned to their residence at Miami Beach, Fla., to spend the remainder of the winter. Their address is 4839 Pine Tree Drive . . . J. Add Wilson has been appointed manager of the Carlton in Toronto, a unit of the B&F chain. Wilson, who was formerly in charge of the Christie, Toronto, has been in the film business locally for 31 years, having made his start with the General Film Co.

Lou Appleby, manager of the Toronto Casino, pulled a smart stunt for the British War Victims' Fund when he set up a patriotic display in the lobby which included 10 bottles as receptacles for cash donations. There was a bottle for each of the Canadian provinces and the tenth was for the United States, the stunt being called "The March of Dimes." At the end of ten days, the bottle with the USA label contained more money than any other receptacle, with Ontario in second place.

More than 300 merchandise prizes, contributed by merchants of the community, were distributed at the annual midnight frolic in the Bedford, North Toronto, which was organized by Manager W. G. Hunt in behalf of the Bedford Park Business Men's Association for charity purposes . . . Jack W. Nelson, the veteran showman who has been manager of the Capitol, North Bay, for many years, is the first Canadian to earn a place on the Honor Roll of M-G-M for exploitation achievements. His campaign on "Escape," which included a 16-page newspaper section and a slogan contest, brought the award to Nelson.

A special performance arranged at the Biltmore, an independent house of Oshawa, Ont., by Manager William Bradbury brought a nice donation for the Lord Mayor's War Victims' Fund. Among those on the stage were Sir Charles Roberts, noted Canadian poet; Nathaniel Benson, author; John Elson of the University of Toronto, and Mayor J. C. Anderson of Oshawa.

A real opportunist is Manager A. C. Simpson of the Toronto Hollywood. The day after the Acadamy Awards were announced, he was featuring "Vivacious Lady," starring Ginger Rogers and James Stewart, the two 1940 winners of statues for best performances . . . Mrs. Joshua Smith, proprietor of the Avenue and Pylon, Toronto, was the hostess of a tea at the Royal York Hotel in honor of Lady Eaton and Mrs. James McBaxter, retiring officers of the Women's Executive of the Summer Symphony Ass'n. Many prominent society women were among the guests.

Col. John A. Cooper, chairman of the Motion Picture Distributors of Canada, retired as president of the Ontario Red Cross Society at the annual meeting of the society in Toronto, his successor being Wallace R. Campbell, head of the Ford Motor Co. of Canada . . . Nicholas Dotsch lost four fire extinguishers when thieves broke into his Hillcrest Theatre, Toronto, the equipment being taken from the projection room. The office safe was untouched.

W. Helm, manager of the Classic in the northern Ontario mining town of Cobalt, gained wide attention as chairman of the Cobalt committee for the War Savings Drive under the auspices of the Dominion government. The Classic is a unit of the Allen chain . . . Thomas J. Connors, sales representative for M-G-M, has returned to New York after conferring with officials of Regal Films, Ltd. head office in Toronto.

Wolfe Cohen of Toronto, Canadian district manager of Warner Bros., has been making a tour of the Dominion to check with branch managers of the company . . . B. Calvert, who resigned as manager of the Granada at Dunnville, Ont., to go into another line of business, is back with his first love, being with the Bayview at Leaside, the manager of which is C. F. Ingram.

Manager Gordon J. Forhan of the Belle, Famous Players house at Belleville, Ont., has observed the 25th anniversary of his arrival in that city to manage a theatre and was accorded an editorial tribute in the local newspaper. During his 31 years in the show business, Forhan has had theatres at St. Thomas and St. Catharines as well as Belleville.

Among the theatre managers of Ontario who were officials for the War Savings Campaign in their respective communities were Frank Miley, Granada, Napanee; E. L. Moore, Grand, Sudbury; Gordon Beavis, Royal, North Bay; Roy Miller, Marks, Oshawa; W. C. Tyers, Granada, St. Thomas, and Henry Marshall, Rideau, Ottawa.

Filmrow is still wondering about the local radio retailer who became so enthusiastic over the Dominion's war effort, that he advertised the advice that people should not go to the show in order to buy war savings stamps. This merchant, handling a line of goods on which there has been placed a 25 per cent war luxury tax, told Torontans in a display: "I did not go to a show this week and saved these .....," followed by three 25-cent war savings stamps. In the past he has enjoyed the cooperation of a local theatre in staging shows for community purposes and similar events.

ST. JOHN

OUTDOOR fairs are dwindling down to almost nil this year as opposition to theatres in the eastern provinces. The Nova Scotia exhibition commission has sold its fair plant to the Dominion government for defense purposes. This includes the Forum rink in Halifax, N. S., and is likely to witness the suspension of this 6,000-seat arena for public skating, hockey, wrestling, boxing, as well as for the annual fair. The St. John, Fredericton, St. Stephen, Woodstock, Moncton, Charlottetown, fair plants are being used for army and air force objectives. At Amherst, the maritime winter fair buildings, including a new arena, have been taken over by the Dominion. Outdoor ice skating, which has been substantial opposition for the theatres since about December 1, will end during March.

The B&L Theatres, operated by M. S. Bernstein and J. Lieberman, and with headquarters in St. John, are expanding in Nova Scotia and Maine. Added to the Capitol at Antigonish have been the Strand at Sydney, Capitol at Shelburne and King's at Annapolis Royal. Added to the Star at Madawaska in Maine has been the Savoy, at Fort Kent.

Stepping in at the eleventh hour, the New Brunswick censor board "suggested" an age limit of 16 years on the three-day showing of "Chad Hanna," at the St. John Capitol. A short time previously, the board ordered a 16-year limit on "They Drive By Night," at the neighboring Strand, but not until the film had been showing without restriction for a day.

Ernie Whelpley, who has been selling film for over 25 years, and who has been out of circulation since being replaced as manager of the RKO exchange in St. John, by Les Plottel, of Toronto, is back as a road man for 20th-Fox. Gerry Hoyt, another veteran distributor, is manager for 20th-Fox at St. John, and covering New Brunswick, Nova Scotia.

Archie Mason of Springhill, N. S., a pioneer exhibitor, has been elected vice-president of the Nova Scotia Fish and Game Protective Ass'n. He is chairman of the exhibitors-distributors conciliation board which has been functioning in Nova Scotia the past year.

John Farrow, husband of Maureen O'Sullivan, and a veteran studio writer and director, has ceased to be press agent for the Canadian Navy at Ottawa, and is now on duty on the Atlantic Coast patrol against submarines, surface raiders and bombers.

The Film Girls' Patriotic Club, composed of feminine workers in the St. John, N. B., exchanges, played group hostess to officers and members of the crew of a coastal defense patrol boat of the Canadian Navy. The club had "adopted" the crew last fall, and had been supplying the sailors with knitted wear and luxuries not covered in the naval rations and issues. The girls entertained their "adoptees" in a St. John restaurant with a supper and musical numbers.

Wally Humby of the operating staff at the Mayfair, St. John, N. B., is convalescing from injuries inflicted on one hand while it became entangled with the gears in a projection machine. One finger was so badly crushed, it was amputated . . . Business at all the Halifax theatres continues at capacity, with seats scarce after 7 p. m. daily, and lines waiting in lobbies and on streets after that.

Topline in "Leisure"

HOLLYWOOD—A topline in "Repent at Leisure" has been handed to Dorothy Lee by RKO.

MONTREAL

"EVERYWHERE in the World" is the title of a new release in the "Canada Carries On" series prepared by the national film board. Associated Screen News completed recording of the sound track for this production a few days ago, with Lorne Green handling narration, and Lucio Agostini directing the orchestra for musical background. A French version is also in preparation, with Tony Leclerc handling narration.

Consolidated Theatres gave a cocktail party for Stirling Hayden, star of "Virginia," who made two personal appearances at the Capitol . . . Snowdon Business Men's Association held their annual "At Home," a midnight affair, at the Snowdon . . . The Bernstein Lieberman string in New Brunswick has taken over the Savoy, of Fort Kent, Me., which is on the international border.

Gratton Keily, booker in Warner-Vitagraph Montreal office, has been promoted to salesman . . . Ken Soble's "'Good Humor" contest winners, who have been appearing at the Outremont, Wednesdays, are now occupying the stage of the Empress every Thursday evening.

Theatre managers were for some time puzzled at the number of silk stockings found by the cleaners. The explanation turned out to be that women and girls who discovered a serious run in their hosiery or had it badly spattered with mud, purchased new stockings and made their way to the theatre dressing room as the most convenient place to change.

Fred W. Jordan, known all over the continent for 40 years as a theatrical agent, died recently in Westchester, N. Y. He brought to Montreal the original "Rose Marie" company which broke records at His Majesty's and also came here with the Abbey Players of Dublin.

Savoy Theatre, Verdun house of the Confederation Amusements, managed by Eugene Maynard, is listed as a "Gold Star" firm on the Honor Roll issued by the War Savings campaign and containing names of those with 100 per cent employe participation . . . Empire Theatre, north end independent house, is giving free War Savings certificates to holders of lucky number coupons every Wednesday evening.

Six Incorporate

VICTORIA, B. C.—Six new theatre companies incorporated and published in B. C. Gazette this week. The Odeon Theatres of Canada, Ltd., office 902 Royal Trust Bldg., Vancouver, B. C.; Cambie Theatre, Ltd. ($10,000); Rio Theatre, Ltd. ($10,000); Granville Theatre, Ltd. ($10,000); Kingsway Theatre, Ltd. Megs "Return of Boone"

HOLLYWOOD—Lambert Hillyer will direct "The Return of Daniel Boone," next Bill Elliott western for Columbia.

Michael J. O'Brien Estate Probated at $5,229,020

OTTAWA—Probate of the will of Michael J. O'Brien, Canadian mining magnate, industrialist and owner of the Ottawa Valley Amusement Co. operating four theatres in Renfrew, Pembroke, Arnprior and Almonte, showed that he left properties and other assets valued at $5,229,020, of which the Ontario government will collect approximately $1,300,000 in succession duties.

In addition to large bequests to immediate survivors, O'Brien provided for gifts to many employes of his associated companies which were not disclosed. O'Brien left $5,000 cash to each of 24 grandchildren, one of whom is Mrs. Margaret Ritza, wife of L. B. Ritza, assistant general manager of the Ottawa Valley Amusement Co.

: From the Newspapers :

CALGARY, ALTA.—Writing the local paper, a theatregoer expresses the belief that it is the duty of management to request women patrons to remove their oft screen-obstructing hats, rather than leaving such requests to the individual.

OSHAWA, ONT.—A recent program at the Biltmore Theatre realized $47.18 for the Evening Telegram British War Victims' Fund. William Bradbury is manager of the theatre.

MONTREAL—The Quebec Government will consider a proposal made by organized labor suggesting amendment of the law so that children under 16 years of age could be admitted to theatres when accompanied by an adult.

HAMILTON, ONT.—A recent blaze that damaged the screen of the Century Theatre here, is under investigation.

WINNIPEG

THE biggest film event of the year, the Academy Awards, proved of special service to Harold Bishop, whose Capitol is currently showing Ginger Rogers' "Kitty Foyle." With the announcement of the award, Bishop heralded the occasion to boost his showing of the film . . . At the Bijou, Garnet Wright is making local film history by carrying the British comedy, "It's in the Air," over into its straight sixth week. To fully appreciate what this means it should be realized that the Bijou is a Main Street house playing this feature in its third city run.

Harold Gray's Tivoli was the setting for a special preview of "Peoples of Canada." It was attended by the lieutenant-governor of Manitoba, the mayor, provincial and civic dignitaries and representatives of different national groups . . . The current showing of Kay Kyser's "You'll Find Out" was well publicized through the concerted efforts of members of the Metropolitan staff . . . "Gone With the Wind" is now playing E. A. Retalick's Uptown after a run at Bill Novak's Gaiety.

Robert Hurwitz, supervisor of Main Street houses, heading the list in sales for War Savings Stamps, reports that practically all employes have joined 100 per cent . . . Wolfe Cohen of Warner Bros. passed through the city on his way west . . . S. Swartz, well known booker with United Artists, has returned from Toronto to work with the company in Winnipeg.

N. Rothstein, head of the Rothstein circuit, left for Yorkton and Saskatoon . . . Joe Freed of the Elm, who has been on the sick list, is now back at his desk . . . Industrial short subjects, produced by Jack Pechet of Canadian Screen Publicity, are earning a good reception at various points where they are now playing in the prairie provinces and British Columbia.

Nichols on "Swamp Waters"

HOLLYWOOD—Dudley Nichols is adapting "Swamp Water," from the Vereen Bell novel, for 20th-Fox.

EDMONTON

BEFORE a capacity house, 37 Royal Life-Saving Society awards were made to members of the YWCA, swimming club on the stage of the Capitol last week. Awards were made by His Honor Lieut.-Gov. J. C. Bowen, while introductions were made by Walter Wilson, manager of the Capitol.

In addition to employes of the four theatres of the Entwisle chain, members of the staff of the art department of the same firm have pledged 100 per cent contribution to the Canadian War Savings. All other theatres have pledged full co-operation.

When showing the picture, "Britain's Heritage in the Making" the Garneau, under the management of Bill Wilson, offered two admissions for the price of one to all members of the armed forces.

As well as being enthusiastic patrons of America's most northerly motion picture theatre at Aklavik, Eskimos in that part of the north land have taken up amateur films according to H. Peffer, fur trader and proprietor of the Aklavik Theatre, who is a visitor to Edmonton. Keen on seeing pictures of seal hunting and other northern operations, the Eskimos now own two cameras while Peffer gives advice on picture taking and arranges for the development of their films.

The weekly radio contest, "Robin Hood on Parade," when an Edmonton man was contestant for a $200 prize, was presented from the stage of the Capitol by arrangement of Walter Wilson, manager.

OTTAWA

JOHN GRIERSON of London, England, commissioner of the National Film Board, made a special trip to Montreal to offer a speech before the Canadian Club on Germany's propaganda methods . . . Manager Henry Marshall of the Rideau prevailed upon the school board to permit football players of Ottawa schools to take Friday morning off from studies to attend a private screening of "Knute Rockne," the pupils paying the juvenile admission price. The board chairman advised Marshall that he would be glad to cooperate with the theatre in similar manner when a picture of strong moral or educational value was to be shown in the future.

The Royal Canadian Air Force, through Air Vice Marshal L. S. Breadner, chief of air staff, has extended full cooperation to Warner Bros. for the making of "Bush Pilot," dealing with the exploits of Canada's airmen in Arctic and other remote areas. Intimation has been made that Errol Flynn, Cary Grant, Burgess Meredith and Olivia DeHavilland will visit Ottawa this summer to work on the picture at Rockcliffe Air Station.

Complaint has been made that the National Film Board's release "Peoples of Canada" has been given two previews, including one before a large gathering of the Canadian Geographical Society, before the picture was made available for theatre first runs.

T. R. Tubman, manager of the Capitol, cooperated with the Ottawa Journal in the publication of a full-page advertisement sponsored by many local merchants to boost the sale of war savings certificates. Tubman also organized a second Sunday concert at the Capitol for the war drive in his capacity as chairman of the local publicity committee.

Lloyd Mills, Elgin manager, twice held over "This Thing Called Love," the complete engagement running for two weeks. Manager Isser Singerman also had "Gone With the Wind" for longer than a week at the Imperial, advertising that this run would be the "last chance" for Ottawa theatre-goers.

J. Earl Lawson of Toronto, a member of the Canadian Picture Pioneers, spent last weekend in Ottawa, later proceeding to Kingston on business . . . According to the records of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, one of the 8,692 non-resident aliens who have been issued wartime permits to carry guns or weapons in Canada is none other than Gene Autry who has sported firearms in many a feature film. Autry took out the permit in order to do some hunting in the Dominion.

Staffs Pledge War Savings

VICTORIA, B. C.—Dominion, Capitol and Atlas theatres in Victoria are on the "War Savings Honor Roll," the staffs having pledged themselves one hundred per cent for the regular purchase of War Savings Certificates.

Anniversary Celebration Becomes Notable Event

TORONTO—The 20th anniversary of the Palace on Danforth Avenue was a big occasion because of the manager, Charles L. Querrie, through his associations with the theatrical and sport worlds and his general activities in the community. The event was heralded by the publication of a souvenir program which was built in the proportions of a film press book and everybody from Caretaker Sam Finnie to President N. L. Nathanson of Famous Players had a part in it. Congratulations were showered upon Querrie by W. A. Summerville, member of the Ontario legislature, Mayor Conboy, members of the city council, and business friends.

Features of the anniversary week included vaudeville in addition to the screen program; the personal appearance of professional hockey stars; a birthday cake and a weight guessing contest for 12 prizes; a lucky number program each day for free passes, and the distribution of 20 silver dollars among the juveniles at a matinee.

Among those who started with Querrie at the Palace and have been employed the 20 years are Mrs. Charles Fetherston, the cashier, and Bert Sherwin, first an usher and then the doorman. Wally Brown, projectionist, has also been with Famous Players for more than 20 years, while William Rossborough, also in the booth, made his start 30 years ago. Peter Simms, the stage hand, has been in the show business for 40 or more years. Sam Finnie, the caretaker, has been employed by the company for a score of years. The whole staff had a big week.

VANCOUVER

MAYNARD JOINER of the Capitol put on an extensive advertising campaign for the initial showing in Canada of Universal's "Back Street" . . . Norm Duncan is very busy at the Strand where they have been playing the legitimate show, "Naughty Marietta," proceeds of which are being donated to the Red Cross. Sterling Holloway and Hope Manning are the featured stars.

Bill Long of Odeon Theatres in Edmonton on a short business trip . . . The Projectionist's Society is very pleased with the results of their ball last Sunday, as a result of which the group was able to donate a considerable sum to the war fund.

Of particular interest to Canadian exhibitors is the fact that Deanna Durbin has made a special ending for her latest picture "Nice Girl?" wherein she sings "There Will Always Be an England" . . . It is understood tentative plans are being drawn up for new theatres at 16th and Cambie and Knight Road and Kingsway.

Messrs. Friesen and Little are busy putting an entire new front on their theatre at Abbotsford. It will be of stucco. In addition to the new front, they are installing two new rest rooms . . . Fred Bannister of the Victory, Mission, arranged a special musical show, proceeds to be donated to the Red Cross.

SASK'WAN

CHARLIE BAHRYNOWSKI of the Met Theatre, Regina, gave "Pastor Hall" an advance boost by staging a morning preview for the press, members of military, officials of the churches and government ministers. Bahrynoski, incidentally, is installing new Canadian-made seats in the theatre.

Citizens of Moose Jaw attending the Orpheum the other day were thrilled when they spotted Sergeant Observer D. S. Craik, R. C. A. F., formerly of Moose Jaw, among a group of Canadian airmen shown in newsreel shots of the men landing in England. Since the pictures were taken, sometime in November, Craik was reported "missing" after action over the English channel. Two clips were taken from the newsreel by Les Pugsley, manager of the Orpheum, who turned them over to the flier's family.

Sponsored by the rural committee of the Melfort board of trade in cooperation with the Melfort merchants, a Farmers' Day was held in Melfort recently. By special arrangement with the Grand Theatre, two free shows were given during the afternoon. A feature of the shows was a quiz contest.

First of a series of Sunday evening concerts in aid of the Red Cross was held on a recent Sunday in the Royal Theatre, Canora . . . Charlie Horning, assistant manager of the Met, Regina, down with the flu recently.

Larry Graburn, manager of the Capitol, Regina, back on the job again after an attack of the flu in time to help handle the big business occasioned by the first anniversary showing of "Gone With the Wind."

Capitol Theatre, Saskatoon, was taken over on a recent Sunday evening by the Officers' Wives Auxiliary who put on the concert party of the Infantry (M. G.) Training Center of Military District 12 titled "Warriors at Ease."

Rescue Operator

MONTREAL—Quick thinking on the part of two city constables who were in the Majestic Theatre when a fire broke out on the night of February 24 in the projection room, prevented a possible panic among the 300 persons in the theatre. The constables told the audience that there was a little trouble and asked them to leave the theatre. The patrons complied in orderly manner, and the two constables then rushed to the projection room, where they arrived in time to carry out Aime Gauthier who was overcome by smoke.

School After Films

REGINA—Estimates of the Saskatoon public school board, to be considered soon, will include an item of $500 for motion picture equipment and films, the board decided acting on a recommendation of Dr. C. A. Oulton, superintendent. Dr. Oulton said the films had been of great benefit in teaching some subjects.

Neighboring Community Nights

Contact school officials and civic leaders in neighboring towns surrounding your town or city, and arrange for a night honoring that particular community. Friday night is usually picked.

Secure the school band of that particular community to make an appearance, and strive to have the band appearance on a competitive basis with other communities, so that a final winner can be determined at the conclusion of Neighboring Community Nights. Other stage activity can be arranged to honor the particular community.

Arrangements with bus companies between the two towns are in line with this stunt.

The promotion was tried successfully several years ago by the Schine circuit in Gloversville, N. Y., and is being revived in a number of situations.

Four From Paramount Will Be Plugged by Kate Smith

NEW YORK — Four Paramount pictures will be heavily plugged on the coast-to-coast CBS Kate Smith program in coming weeks, through a deal closed recently by Robert M. Gillham, Paramount advertising and publicity director. In each case, plugging will tie in closely with the film's national release.

The Kate Smith troupe will go to Hollywood for the broadcasts. First will be heard March 28, an adaptation from "Road to Zanzibar," the Hope-Crosby picture to be released April 11. "The Roundup," a Harry Sherman special, will be next aired April 4, to tie with April 18 release.

The third broadcast will follow the world premiere of "I Wanted Wings." This one goes on the air April 11.

"Reaching for the Sun" excerpts will be broadcast April 18, timed in with the premiere of the picture late in April.

Kate Smith's noon program, "Kate Smith Speaks," which goes on the air every weekday to the same list of stations, will give plugs to the Friday program to follow and to the Paramount pictures involved.

Shorts Bulletin Service Is Launched by Metro

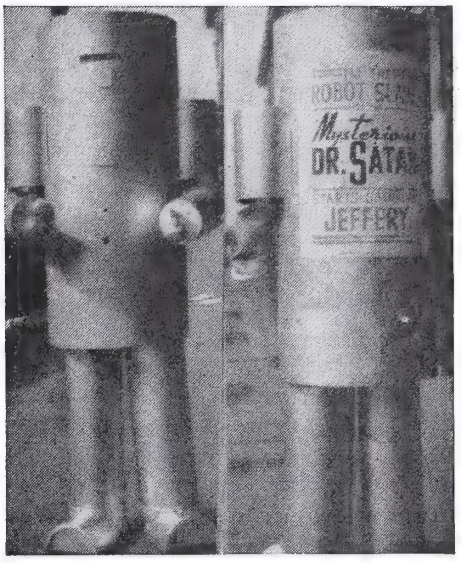
NEW YORK—Anticipating an increased interest in short subjects as a result of the consent decree, M-G-M this week inaugurated a new shorts bulletin service to motion picture editors of 1,200 daily newspapers.

Titled "A Line on Shorts," the bulletin will be mailed at regular intervals to keep film editors informed of such developments in the shorts field as are considered to be of wide interest and significance.

Star Album Popular

WATERTOWN, WIS. — Oscar Bauman, Classic Theatre, reports doubling Saturday matinee business by distributing star albums to youngsters and then passing out small star stills for insertion in the album on subsequent Saturdays.

Chas. Taylor Award Winner Third Time



BUFFALO, N. Y.—Charles Taylor, advertising and publicity director for Shea's Great Lakes Theatre, is the first showman to be honored for a third time by having a campaign reproduced in Metro's cooperative service sheet. He was cited for his outstanding promotion of "Flight Command." Taylor was the first to win an Honor Roll Button in this competition and also was the first to come through with a second winner.

Highlights of the "Flight Command" campaign:

Special advance screening for newspapermen and famous test pilots. This was good for plenty of story and art breaks. Arrangement was made for a demonstration of powerful anti-aircraft searchlights of a local battalion. School co-operation was obtained and cards posted on all bulletins in educational centers. Outstanding display of model airplanes placed in lobby ten days in advance of opening. Radio announcements used on two local stations at frequent intervals for one week before playdate. Special front built, with airplane action featuring big sign placed over boxoffice.

Promotes Blackout Of a Town

Biscoe, N. C.—Manager Jeff Wilson of the Biscoe secured a proclamation from the mayor declaring a blackout for the town one evening at 10:30. The local power company pulled the main switch at the given time for a few minutes. Two powerful spotlights were played skyward and police cars used their sirens to good effect. Several hundreds posters over the county helped make the populace aware that "Blackout" was the picture at the Biscoe.

Robot—Front and Rear—

Robert Busch, manager of the Jeffery Theatre in Chicago, constructed this robot at a cost of $3.00 to ballyhoo the opening of the serial, "The Mysterious Doctor Satan." The body is made of a large cardboard drum with sheet metal at the bottom to give it greater length. The legs were made of cardboard tubes and the arms also were made of tubes, with the upper parts made of old innertubes to give it flexibility. The claws were made so that the wearer could operate them. A buzzer fastened inside the body made a noise as he moved. It made a great visitor to schools in the neighborhood a week in advance.

Warner Kiddie Check Is Growing in Popularity

PHILADELPHIA—The Kiddie Check (reproduced in the February 22 issue of BOXOFFICE) is entering its 16th month of existence with ever-expanding popularity, Warner officials report. Many added dollars worth of business have been garnered by this practically cost-free stunt which was originated by Al Zimbalist of the Warner publicity staff.

A recent tieup for the checks was effected with Coca Cola by Marty Aninsman of the Leader Theatre Cups in the automatic drink vending machine were numbered, lucky numbers winning free checks, paid for by Coca Cola.

Complete from the manger to the cross. Adapted from Behold the Man. Descriptive talking version. 72 Brand New Prints Available. Positively a record-breaker! Only first-class theatres should apply. Beware of patched-up versions. Direct shipments everywhere. Western Feature Films, 1018 S. Wabash, Chicago.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT — A newspaper contest to identify news pictures of the past ten years promoted the showing. Cash and theatre tickets were the prizes.

MEET THE FLEET—A dummy in aviator's costume; airplane propeller and motor, a radio set and a series of photos, loaned by the navy office, made a lobby display. A radio amateur in the lobby sent messages for patrons.

MR. & MRS. SMITH—The Kansas City Journal cooperated with a contest rewarding tickets for the best 50-word answer to: "If you found out, after three years of marriage, that you weren't legally married after all . . . and that your husband had made the same discovery but hadn't told you . . . what would you do?" Star photo was granted space.

COMRADE X—A park bench in front of the house four days in advance, informed: "Reserved for those waiting to see Clark Gable and Hedy Lamarr in 'Comrade X'." A hay wagon, driven about town, offered "a free ride to the laugh riot."

PHILADELPHIA STORY — A "press room" was constructed in the outer lobby with a sign above it reading: "Scenario department of M-G-M Pictures." Six college girls pounded away at typewriters, typing out bits of dialogue from the production on stationery carrying printed copy on the film, theatre and playdate. As items were finished, they were handed to patrons.

PHILADELPHIA STORY—A sign on a bed in the lobby notified: "Reserved for those who laugh themselves sick."

SO ENDS OUR NIGHT—A special breakfast premiere was arranged for six o'clock on the morning of the opening. A leading department store tied in to serve coffee and doughnuts to the audience. Ads, news stories, radio and special windows plugged the show. The trailer two weeks in advance, contained the following copy: "And how do you spend your nights? Working, playing or just sleeping? At any rate here's a chance to end your night a little differently. You're invited to a breakfast premiere of 'So Ends Our Night.' Have breakfast (coffee and doughnuts) on the house. Doors open at 6 a. m."

INVISIBLE WOMAN — A chair, a microphone (very sensitive) and a young lady (out of sight) were the lobby accoutrements. Copy invited patrons and when they ankled over closer, the microphone picked up their remarks. Hearing this through a peephole, the young lady would then answer as the Invisible Woman.

BACK STREET—2,000 book marks in the high school; window displays at book shops and a department store; notices on bulletin boards in service organizations; trailerettes; 25 11x14s in restaurants, beauty shops, barber shops, bowling alleys and cigar stores; 75 Nap-ads; daily radio announcements and special plugs at women's clubs.

GIRLS UNDER 21—A young boy in a dead end girl outfit went through town bannered: "I am one of the dead end girls in 'Girls Under 21'—(theatre, playdate)."

QUEEN OF DESTINY — Contacted all schools by letter then followed up by a personal visit. Press book cover blown up to a 40x60 lobby piece.

LITTLE MEN—A picket, dressed like a bull, paced before the house. His sign read: "Unfair to Ferdinand the Bull. The producers of the screen's newest surprise hit, 'Little Men,' refuse to let Elsie, the beautiful Borden cow, make a date with me. P. S. She's great in (title) at (theatre)." Critics invited to a premiere were each presented a can of Borden's milk autographed with Elsie's hoof print. A giant telegram inviting the mayor to attend made a lobby display, and Elsie lampooned the Harvard Lampoon by picking the glamor boys she'd like to spent a desert isle vacation with.

KITTY FOYLE — Cellophane wrapped around a ginger cookie, was imprinted: "If you think this ginger is snappy—wait until you see Ginger Rogers as Kitty Foyle at (theatre)."

KITTY FOYLE—Feminine patrons of the theatre and a local dress shop were invited to enter a popularity contest, the winner of which would receive a $16.75 dress. An ad reproduced an entry coupon which women who wished to enter the contest filled in with their names and addresses and left at either the store or theatre. Voting coupons were given with purchases and adult admissions at both the store and the theatre and on these the patrons could write the name of their nominee, and leave it at the store or theatre. Double coupons were given with $1.00 purchases and with tickets to "Kitty Foyle." The contest was launched a week before playdate.

BANK DICK—A cartoon one-sheet was mounted on a large board in the lobby. The one-sheet shows W. C. Fields' nose very prominently, its end painted red. Copy invites: "Win a free pass to see 'Bank Dick.'" Patrons are handed a dart and if they can stick it in the end of the nose they win a pass.

SON OF MONTE CRISTO—A costumed man handed out cards, reading, "I am the Son of Monte Cristo—now playing at (theatre)."

NICE GIRL?—A Deanna Durbin for a Day contest conducted with the cooperation of the local daily invited girls who considered themselves doubles for the star to submit photos. A committee of the manager and newspaper staff members were the judges. The winner earned a suite at a hotel, a new spring outfit, a beauty treatment and a civic reception. She broadcast the night of the opening.

BUCK PRIVATES—A fellow in uniform in a five and ten cent store peeled spuds.

GO WEST—A series of old trailers were run upside down and followed with another stating: "If you think this is nuts, wait till you see the Marx Bros. in 'Go West'."

CHAMBER OF HORRORS—Rigged up in the lobby, appropriately captioned: Wool stockings for people who get cold feet; smelling salts for those who will faint; hot water bottles for those who will get chills; hair dye for hair turning gray with horror; rubber gloves to keep patrons from biting their nails; a candle for those afraid to go home in the dark.

SHORT SUBJECT REVIEWS

Adventures of Captain Marvel

Republic 1*st Episode,* 31 Min.
(12 Part Serial)

Excellent. Hitting all the high notes in action, mystery, highfalutin' science and the myriad angles that contribute to the construction of a first-rate serial, "Adventures of Captain Marvel," should prove a lodestone in attracting the juvenile trade. And grownups won't mind the far-fetched story, either. Fawcett Publications has a nationwide campaign in work together with a special theatre job. There's money to be made with this package.

In Siam a group of explorers uncover an ancient tomb while hostile natives lurk in the shadows. They find a gadget that brings on a wide assortment of weird complications and the creation of a superman who can do the damndest things—just like that. Well, that's how it starts off, and when things begin to happen the sky and wildest flights of imagination is the limit.

Fight, Fish, Fight

Vitaphone (Sports Parade) 10 Mins.

Very good. This natural color subject takes its place with some of the best that have exposed the excitement and thrill that goes with deep sea fighting. It stars Michael and Helen Lerner, said to be about tops in the field. It features, also, some beautiful scenery off New Zealand's Bay of Islands. The Lerners hook into some prize marlin and the slow motion camera heightens the thrill of the sport.

Take the Air

Vitaphone (Broadway Brevities) 20 Mins.

Attractive. This musical two-reeler combines just enough story and variety talent to make it pleasing for any type of audience. Featured are William Orr, Eddie Foy jr., Joan Leslie, new Warner "find," Andrew Tombes, Frank Ferguson and a happy group of stooges. Foy is looking for talent for an air show in the capacity of scout for his father's radio network. His weakness is imitators, while his dad hates them. Foy bags an Indian chief and hopes to make him a sensation, since the chief claims he has never spoken a word. When he is finally presented on the air, he goes into an imitator's routine.

2,000 Years of France

French Cinema Center 10 Mins.

"With a message." Famed Gallic taste went out the window when the footage for this reel was assembled. What it shows, scenically, is all too familiar. What it puts across is that, in her history, France has been overrun by invaders before, and each time a national figure—Joan of Arc for instance—has arisen to liberate the people. The narration hopes and prays for the next redeemer.

Americans All!

RKO (March of Time) 18 Mins.

This release fits well into the March of Time standards. It is an interesting and quick narration of the melting pot aspects of America, explaining how the citizens of virtually the world's nations settled here and the part they have played in welding the American of 1941. In agriculture and in industry, the emigrants of another day share in the gradual and steady development of the country. Striking an editorial note at the conclusion, the subject issues an assurance that in these times of crises and the need for national defense the once foreign sons of once foreign fathers and mothers may be depended upon to meet their obligations.

Quiz Biz

M-G-M (Pete Smith Specialty) 9 Mins.

Entertaining. Professor Pete pops such sticklers as: What is an onion? What language does Syzygy come from? How do you weigh a dog that won't stand still on a scale? The questions are unique, there is an undercurrent of humorous relief to heighten the Pete Smith gags and the quiz business is wholly on the comical side.

Trailing the Incas

Central Films 10 Mins.

Good travel fare. The accent at every turn these days is on South America. For this reason this short deserves playing time. Neatly filmed and edited, a varied assortment of native detail is shown. The locale is Peru.

Two for the Zoo

Paramount (Fleischer Cartoon) 7 Mins.

Average. Gabby takes charge of a "Kango," a hybrid. It looks like an elephant crossed with a kangaroo. Gabby's task is to get it to a zoo. The Kango has other ideas, an attack of hiccups and finally it gets mad and chases Gabby into a lion's cage. In Technicolor.

Information Please, No. 6

RKO 11 Mins.

Up to snuff. Jan Struther, novelist, is the guest expert. Kieran contributes to the Rogers Fund when he misses on the identification of warships. Levant misses out on music. Miss Struther has a few private laughs. Entertaining, as usual.

Mat Men

RKO (Sportscope) 9 Mins.

Good. How they train 'em at Lehigh University for intercollegiate wrestling competitions. The pursuit in its scientific aspects has more attention-holding angles than the professional variety. Topping off the academic treatment there is an hilarious burlesque.

BOXOFFICE The Pulse of the Motion Picture Industry

Is Price the Way?

SOONER or later, and probably sooner, you may expect something akin to an organized campaign let loose with fire and shot in the cause of increased admissions. All the major circuits have had their reflections on the possibilities, yes and no, and have done nothing about it. So far.

While the golden stream pouring out for national defense was largely words in the mouths of Washington, the realization prevailed the time for price hikes had not yet arrived, although certainly the desire had. With the golden stream leaving its glittering impress on profit curves upward and unemployment downward, the idea begins to intrigue again.

It is not improbable, not at all, that the major chains and all others who would have to follow, may get away with it. But what we urge here today is an extreme word of caution.

Caution on several counts. Whatever wisdom may drip from this page will not bear on isolated instances. Here and there, dependent upon what goes on locally, admissions can be stepped up, no doubt. Whether they can in terms of the national picture might be another tale.

It seems to us that the faithful—the ones who are expected to sit through smash pictures, good pictures and downright bad pictures—rate some attention beyond any pre-determined plan, or plot, to make their film entertainment cost more. Maybe they ought to be left alone by not playing around with their allegiance.

Alternative Route

AND PERHAPS, too, the road to increased revenue just possibly could be found by a real study of the market, leading to a method of increasing weekly attendance while the overall, mass entertainment tariff stays approximately where it is now.

This is hardly a new idea. If the constant follower of this forum can be found, he might attest to occasional leaps here at this very situation. For, it has been made clear on this page that the audiences now enrolled have, or ought to have, a few rights, among them rewards in the guise of outstanding pictures at prices they are accustomed, and geared, to pay. They suffer enough.

We arrive now at the throwback stage and a portion of an address made a few weeks ago by Joseph Bernhard before the AMPA. The general manager of the Warner circuit made a great deal of sound, and we think unassailable, sense when he remarked:

"What is it that decides whether the family will turn the radio switch or go downtown or around the corner to see a movie? I admit it may be a particular picture; it may be for general entertainment; it may be that the theatre is a pleasant, comfortable place to go and experience that change of scenery, thrill or excitement.

"However, we don't play outstanding attractions 52 weeks in the year in a weekly change house and surely less in a two or three change, double feature house in the neighborhoods. Our steady patronage comes from the goodwill which keeps the people coming to the theatre during the weeks and days when we don't have major attractions. They come because they have a friendly feeling toward the theatres which we must not lose . . . if we had to live on outstanding pictures alone this business could not survive. It is the average pictures which constitute our bread and butter. Good pictures—meaning smash pictures—are just dessert and the kind of dessert that is not served often enough. It is impossible to survive on a handful of important pictures every year.

"Only a national movie habit, the faithful patronage of millions paying for the average movie, as well as the smash hit, keeps us in business. This movie habit, the inclination of people toward the product of Hollywood, is absolutely indispensable if the industry is to remain profitable."

Nub and Kernel

NOTE CAREFULLY, if you will, that last paragraph. It is the nub and the kernel of the argument, as our eyes view it. Every possible safeguard should be thrown around that which the business now has. Experimentation, which is exactly what fiddling with the price structure would be, ought to be dealt with sparingly.

Time and circumstance in these stringent days finally may compel a different kind of approach. Inflation, for instance. But between now and a hypothetical then we believe it makes sense for us to suggest the advisability of letting well enough strictly alone and of concentrating energies on Hollywood, the calibre of its product, and the job of bringing total attendance back to its one-time level. That's enough to keep all hands occupied.

'BIG FIVE' FEARFUL OVER DECREE; WASHINGTON EYES STATE LAWS

Attacks on Five-Block Sales Are Mounting; Georgia Is Latest

NEW YORK—Fears are mounting among the "Big Five" that enactment of the first state law kicking out blocks of five sales will clear the road for similar statutes to follow in other states, thereby culminating in a virtual "sabotaging" of the decree.

Therefore, their worries are mounting.

Responsible spokesmen for the decree signatories say it fails to make much difference which state is first across the line. In Georgia, where the development came swiftly and with little warning, such a statute has passed the senate and a house committee already has reported favorably on it. It would allow maintenance of the current system of selling in full line, but legislatively set up a 20 per cent cancellation. Blocks of five selling, of course, would be superseded under that clause of the decree itself which recognizes state laws to take precedence over the context of the consent.

Minnesota First

In Minnesota, first legislature to consider a like measure, Northwest Allied is now set with ample counsel seeking to argue down the argument of unconstitutionality advanced by David Shearer, attorney jointly representing Loew's, RKO, 20th Century-Fox and Warner. Significantly, perhaps, Paramount is absent.

Press hour rumors, furthermore, revolved around reports a measure, like the one in Georgia, may pop up momentarily in North Carolina.

Despite a general reluctance to bring their reactions into the open, majors' spokesmen, nevertheless, incline toward the belief that no national wave of anti-decree laws is required to effectually cut the ground from under the decree.

"Even if that kind of law is enacted in as few as half dozen states, we are in trouble and a great deal of it," one opinion goes. "Not only would such an eventuality make it impossible for us to maintain one national sales system, but it would be obvious that the decree, designed to function equally throughout all of the states, would be largely nullified."

While the majors are concerned over the two-way play anti-decree state laws would introduce where selling is concerned, at the same time they appear confident of their ability to cope with what is described as an "unprecedented" situation. There is no evidence on the surface or below it, for that matter, that state-wide enactments would force any one of the "Big Five" out of operations in such state or states. "We would continue to sell as the laws of a given state dictate we would have to sell, but the problem thrown on the table by an eventuality such as the one now threatening is our general position with the department of justice and the federal government. We have agreed to do certain things and observe certain practices. In this potential situation, we would be prevented from doing so, whether this, in turn, would lead to some sort of summary action on the part of the federal government is only a guess. I, for one, do not know and I do not propose taking any leaps at it," another executive informs BOXOFFICE.

Those familiar with experiences growing out of statutory regulation reflect considerable gloom. They feel laws, like the ones proposed in Minnesota and Georgia, would tend to place the film industry in the category of "public property" and open the door wide to additional regulation in the future and, some insist, to the ultimate discomfiture of those who may countenance restrictions now merely confined to blocks of five sales. Likewise do they envision as a probability the concentration of inimical interests seeking to impose on the industry their own forms of regulation, using already enacted state laws on selling methods as a springboard. The impression along these lines is that, with passage of this type of statute, reform groups, or groups generally anti-film, might find amendments embodying their own causes easier to put over by grafting them onto laws already in existence.

Meanwhile, the Hays organization finds itself in a peculiar spot. The "Big Five" are committed to observe the letter of the decree and, consequently, stand behind unwound selling. "The Little Three," also Hays members, are not party to the decree and subscribers to the current method. Any pro or con program contemplated by the MPPDA in connection with statutes of the Georgia and Minnesota type at once becomes a tough organizational knot to unscramble.

Section XXIII

Provisions of the consent decree must bow before laws which the states may pass in connection with that decree. This is emphasized in Section XXIII, which reads:

"Whenever obligations or prohibitions are imposed upon the defendants by the laws of any state or by rules or regulations made pursuant thereto, with which the defendants, by law must comply, the court, upon application of the defendants, or any of them, shall from time to time enter orders relieving the defendants from compliance with any requirement of this decree in conflict with such laws, rules or regulations, and the right of the defendants to make such applications and to obtain such relief is expressly granted."

Sees Chances Rise For Conciliation

NEW YORK—Major distributor spokesmen are openly pleased with the anticipated effect of the withdrawal of the clearance arbitration in Washington upon future disputes which they feel can be conciliated before reaching the hearing stage.

"If the decree has done nothing else," one important executive declares, "it has cleared up in less than one month a case that is, and could be, the forerunner of many others to come and proves we can regulate our own affairs."

Meanwhile, the demand of John H. Taylor, operator of the Charles, La Plata, Md., against the "Big Five," charging unreasonable clearance after the Marlboro, Marl-

Congress May Get Block Booking Problem If Decree Flounders

By EARLE A. DYER

WASHINGTON—There are indications here that, if the consent decree flounders because of state laws overriding groups of five selling, the whole question of block booking will be thrown back into the laps of congress.

Department of justice officials are watching closely efforts in state legislatures on enactment of laws for full line sales, but are taking no position, at this time, with respect to measures such as that passed by the Georgia senate where distributors, on demand, must license their entire programs with a minimum 20 per cent cancellation clause.

Text of the proposed Georgia law which would compel distributors, on demand, to sell their full programs appears on page 28 of this issue.

Declining to comment, justice department officials thus far merely point out that the proposed legislation is primarily the concern of the states considering it, such as Minnesota in addition to Georgia. They make it clear the federal government cannot interfere in this activity and they, too, are careful to draw attention to section XXIII of the decree (see column two) which provides that, in the event any state enacts legislation which conflicts with the decree signatory companies may appeal to the courts for relief from compliance with the decree provisions affected.

However, in the event legislation such as is proposed in Georgia and Minnesota extends to a sufficient number of states so as to render the block booking provisions of the decree void, or generally inapplicable, it is viewed here as quite likely that agitation for federal legislation barring blocks will be revived with what is described reliably as "good chances of success."

NEW STEP IN ALL-OUT "PEACE" MOVE IS CENTERING IN BUFFALO

Gov't Plans to Dismiss "Big Five" From Schine Anti-Trust Suit

NEW YORK—Behind the government's intention on Monday to seek dismissal of its anti-monopoly complaint against the "Big Five" in the specific case of the Schines is another progressive step looking toward the ultimate establishment of an "all peace" front in the industry. That is, insofar as monopoly litigation introduced by the department of justice may be concerned.

A Routine Procedure

With the entry of the decree, as it applies to Loew's, Paramount, RKO, 20th Century-Fox and Warner, the proposed dismissal in Buffalo, of course, becomes a routine and long-anticipated procedure on the part of government attorneys. Yet, those same insiders whose views on an all-out peace were first reported exclusively in BOXOFFICE, February 8, this week clung to their confidence that Monday's formality, nevertheless, tied in definitely with the larger desire on the part of the justice department for general accord and litigation-less days as rapidly as men and events can evolve them.

As a continuing frame of mind, it is understood, now as in early February, that the department of justice's attitude is one of cooperation and a willingness to call off bets, provided the defendants concerned in various still pending actions display a friendly attitude and an open mind on the matter of compromises.

See Schine Turn

The difficulty seen, on the other hand, is a necessary meeting of the minds in that Washington may take one view of what comprises a friendly attitude and an open mind while the defendant groups may have an entirely different interpretation. In fact, this specifically applies in the Schine case where the crux of an out-of-court settlement hinges on a definition of theatre expansion.

A Washington dispatch points out the department is insistent that the Schines stop expanding whereas the circuit operators oppose on the theory no such halt has been placed on the theatre activities of the consenting "Big Five."

Schine Decree Talk Still Under Way

WASHINGTON—Despite reports, published widely but not in BOXOFFICE, that negotiations for a decree to end the anti-trust suit had been called off, Willard S. McKay, New York counsel for J. Myer and Louis W. Schine, was scheduled to confer here during the week with Thurman Arnold and his assistants in a desire to work out a quick settlement.

It is understood the Schines are willing and anxious to sign a decree similar to the one handed the "Big Five," but the department of justice is reported holding out for better terms on the theatre expansion angle. It is said the department is at present determined to have the Schines curtail all their expansion activities, but the independent circuit operators are fighting this demand on the ground there is no such provision in the "Big Five" decree.

Expect Third Party

From time to time, BOXOFFICE has reported the theatre expansion angle would result in impasses, but eventually the settlement would be worked out by compromise. Since both sides are determined to have it their own way, a third party may be brought in to effect the compromise.

If, and when, the Schine decree is set, it is stated this will be used as a basis for similar decrees in the Crescent and Griffith Brothers suits.

Dismissal Actually Covers "Big Five" and 2 Subsidiaries

BUFFALO—Notice filed in federal court by Herbert Borkland, special assistant to the attorney general, advises the government on Monday will move for a dismissal of anti-monopoly complaints against the five decree signatories in the Schine action. Actually, the proposal is to dismiss against seven corporations, two of them—Vitagraph, Inc., and Paramount Film Corp.—being subsidiaries of Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc. and Paramount Pictures, Inc.

While Joseph J. Doran, assistant United States attorney, states he has had no word from Borkland outlining reasons for the contemplated move, film men familiar with the general pattern of the litigation, of course, understand that the step to come follows the routine designed to prevail now that the "Big Five" are parties to a decree already functioning aside from, chiefly, the blocks of five selling provisions.

The move has no bearing on the government's position insofar as its action against the Schine circuit is concerned.

Schenck Lists 44 as Minimum From Fox

NEW YORK—Twentieth Century-Fox will produce a minimum of 44 next season, according to Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board.

Playing a dominant part in the lineup will be comedy-dramas along with eight musicals, but biographies are out and, generally speaking, so are costume pictures. However, Schenck explains, "Ben Blake," a period story, is included, although he does not consider this in the category of costume films.

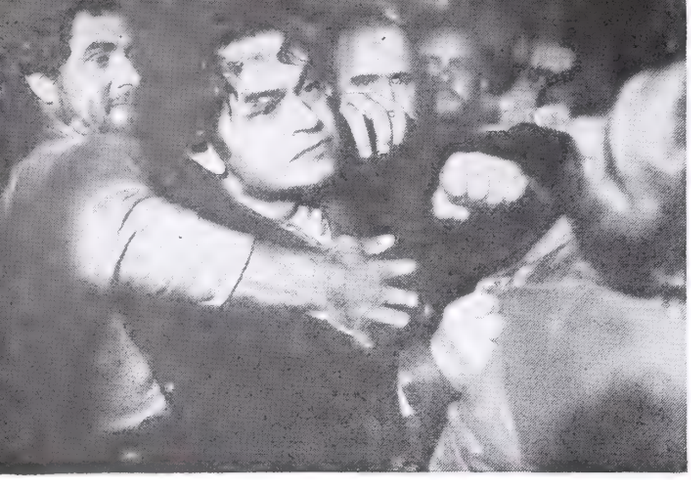
"If an important outdoor picture comes up, it will be made in Technicolor," he adds. Westerns will have no place on the forthcoming program.

"How Green Was My Valley" may be made in England, although it has not been finally determined. Indecision applies as well to the number 20th-Fox will make in London, although British quota requirements, he emphasizes, will be met.

There will be no overall budget for the year's production, but each picture will be made on a basis of what the subject is worth. Asked whether films will be made longer, Schenck made a negative reply.

He still holds to his contention of several years that extended runs are the only salvation of the business. "We will try to make subjects worthy of extended runs," he declares.

On the question of furthering a move for single features, the 20th-Fox executive says this is entirely up to the exhibitor. "It is outside our jurisdiction to dictate policy. What exhibitors will do will be based on public reaction."



Enthusiastic over the acquisition of Ernst Lubitsch, Schenck declares that, while the company is not negotiating for other outside producers, it is always interested in the men of Lubitsch's calibre.

He explains Lubitsch has one more to make for UA, but this can be produced at any time and will not conflict with the deal signed by Darryl F. Zanuck. The number of pictures is indefinite, as is the first story.

Schenck also points out that Zanuck "needs some help" and the acquisition of Lubitsch as a producer and William LeBaron as an executive was to make things easier for Zanuck. "Lubitsch can make as many as he wants," according to the 20th-Fox chairman.

As to the operation of the decree, Schenck personally thinks it will work out very well. It will give a great deal more satisfaction to the producer, for each picture will either stand or fall on its own merit, he believes.

Later, a press release placed the number of forthcoming musicals at a round dozen.

Favors Clearance Revamp; Would Sell It for Price

NEW YORK—Impelled by the revivification, in which he played a prominent part during Film Boards of Trade administration, Samuel A. Moross, former secretary of the Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce here, and now retired after 20 years in the industry, believes a "radical change in the present system of granting clearance would be the first step toward a better understanding between the distributors and exhibitors."

In line with this observation, Moross, who represented Universal during the old system of compulsory arbitration and later was "trouble shooter" for UA, recommends a plan, the basis of which is that clearance should be declared a commodity, and the exhibitor should buy and pay for it as such, instead of securing it as a "gratuitous privilege."

Based on License Fee

Clearance has a value in its own right and such value should not be incorporated in the price of a picture, Moross declares. "The value of clearance should be based in proportion to the price agreed upon for the license fee of the picture," his plan suggests, adding: "I believe that 25 per cent of the license fee should be added as a fair valuation for clearance, provided the picture plays one full week, and to increase the price for clearance if and when the picture is held over for a longer period, in which case, the theatre will be justified in asking for, and the distributor equally as justified in granting, a longer period of clearance on such picture."

Specifically, Moross illustrates his plan with a hypothetical scale of figures, using $1,000, flat rental, as the basis for the illustration, as follows:

	License Fee	Price of Clearance	Clearance Period
1st Week	$750	$250	28 days
2nd Week	750	275	35 days
3rd Week	750	300	42 days
4th Week	750	325	49 days

Moross calls attention, under this plan, to the fact the increase of 10 per cent each succeeding week is computed on the price for clearance paid for the first week of showing, for 28 days of "clearance period." The theatre under this table would be given an option to pay the increased price for clearance, or forfeit the increased "period of clearance." The exercise of either option would be fair to both parties to the contract, he argues.

Franchise Holders Plan

Moross takes the position the same computation can be applied to any percentage contract with equal fairness.

In anticipation of the question "What, if anything, can be done with franchise holders?" he supplements his plan with this reasoning:

"The answer is, that the number of franchise holders is negligibly small, even though they represent a considerable source of revenue, perhaps even greater than the total revenue of individual contract holders. A revision and modification of certain terms of such franchises could be made, without the least sacrifice or detriment to either party to such franchise. In any event this new method could be applied to agreements made after the expiration of existing franchises."

In key cities, as well as in towns of smaller populations, the established first-run theatre, or a theatre which the distributor selects and designates as his choice for a first run for his product, the clearance period over the subsequent run or runs envisioned by Moross' plan would not exceed 28 days. In situations where there are one, two or more suburban first runs, the latter would be given priority over the first subsequent runs within the city proper, during and within the 28 days clearance secured by the established first run in the key city over such subsequent runs.

In other words, Moross declares, the key city first run shall not have full 28 days clearance over the suburban first runs. Clearance should be extended only to first, second, third and possibly fourth subsequent runs in any key city, where the city is divided into zones. Should there be more theatres in such a key city, all other runs beyond fourth should be sold on a "first come first served" basis. At all times, however, in the first four runs, clearance between them should be established and an appropriate value charged for it.

Set Four Runs As Limit

Moross asserts that at summer or winter resorts where exhibition is seasonal no operator would be given the right to buy more than four runs with a maximum clearance of seven days between each run of theatres owned and operated by such an exhibitor. All runs desired by such exhibitor in excess of four, as above mentioned, could be contracted for on the basis of "first come first served" on an equal footing with all other competing exhibitors.

The reasoning Moross employs in his plan stems from the belief that any picture which plays first run at least one full week in any situation should not be given more than 28 days' clearance. If it plays two full weeks the clearance may be "justifiably" increased to 35 days, or proportionately longer if the same picture continues to play at the same theatre.

Unreasonable Clearance Hurts

"The first run theatre owner," the author of the plan observes, "Whether he is an independent operator of a single theatre, a chain of theatres or a circuit, if he is vociferous, influential or big enough as a source of revenue, can and will advance every argument imaginable why he should be favored with the maximum of clearance in respect of time and area as well. Most of the arguments so advanced are unfounded on facts and unreasonable. Unreasonable clearance works a decided hardship and disadvantage to subsequent runs and reflects unfavorably at the latters' boxoffices. It does not in any way benefit the distributor, nor does it improve business relations between them.

"It is my honest conviction and belief that, if and when a monetary value is placed upon clearance on a par with the relative value of a license fee for the picture, the question of clearance will be nearer to a permanent solution and will tend to eliminate the opprobrium now cast upon the donor and the recipient of this gratuitous privilege as it is now in vogue."

The Docket

Under the above heading, BOXOFFICE will publish weekly in each of its editions a case history of arbitration complaints filed in each of the tribunal cities.

Each demand and submission will be designated as to priority, plus date as well as essential detail, to the end that a permanent and progressively maintained record may be available of complaints filed throughout the country. Here is a sample of the style to be pursued:

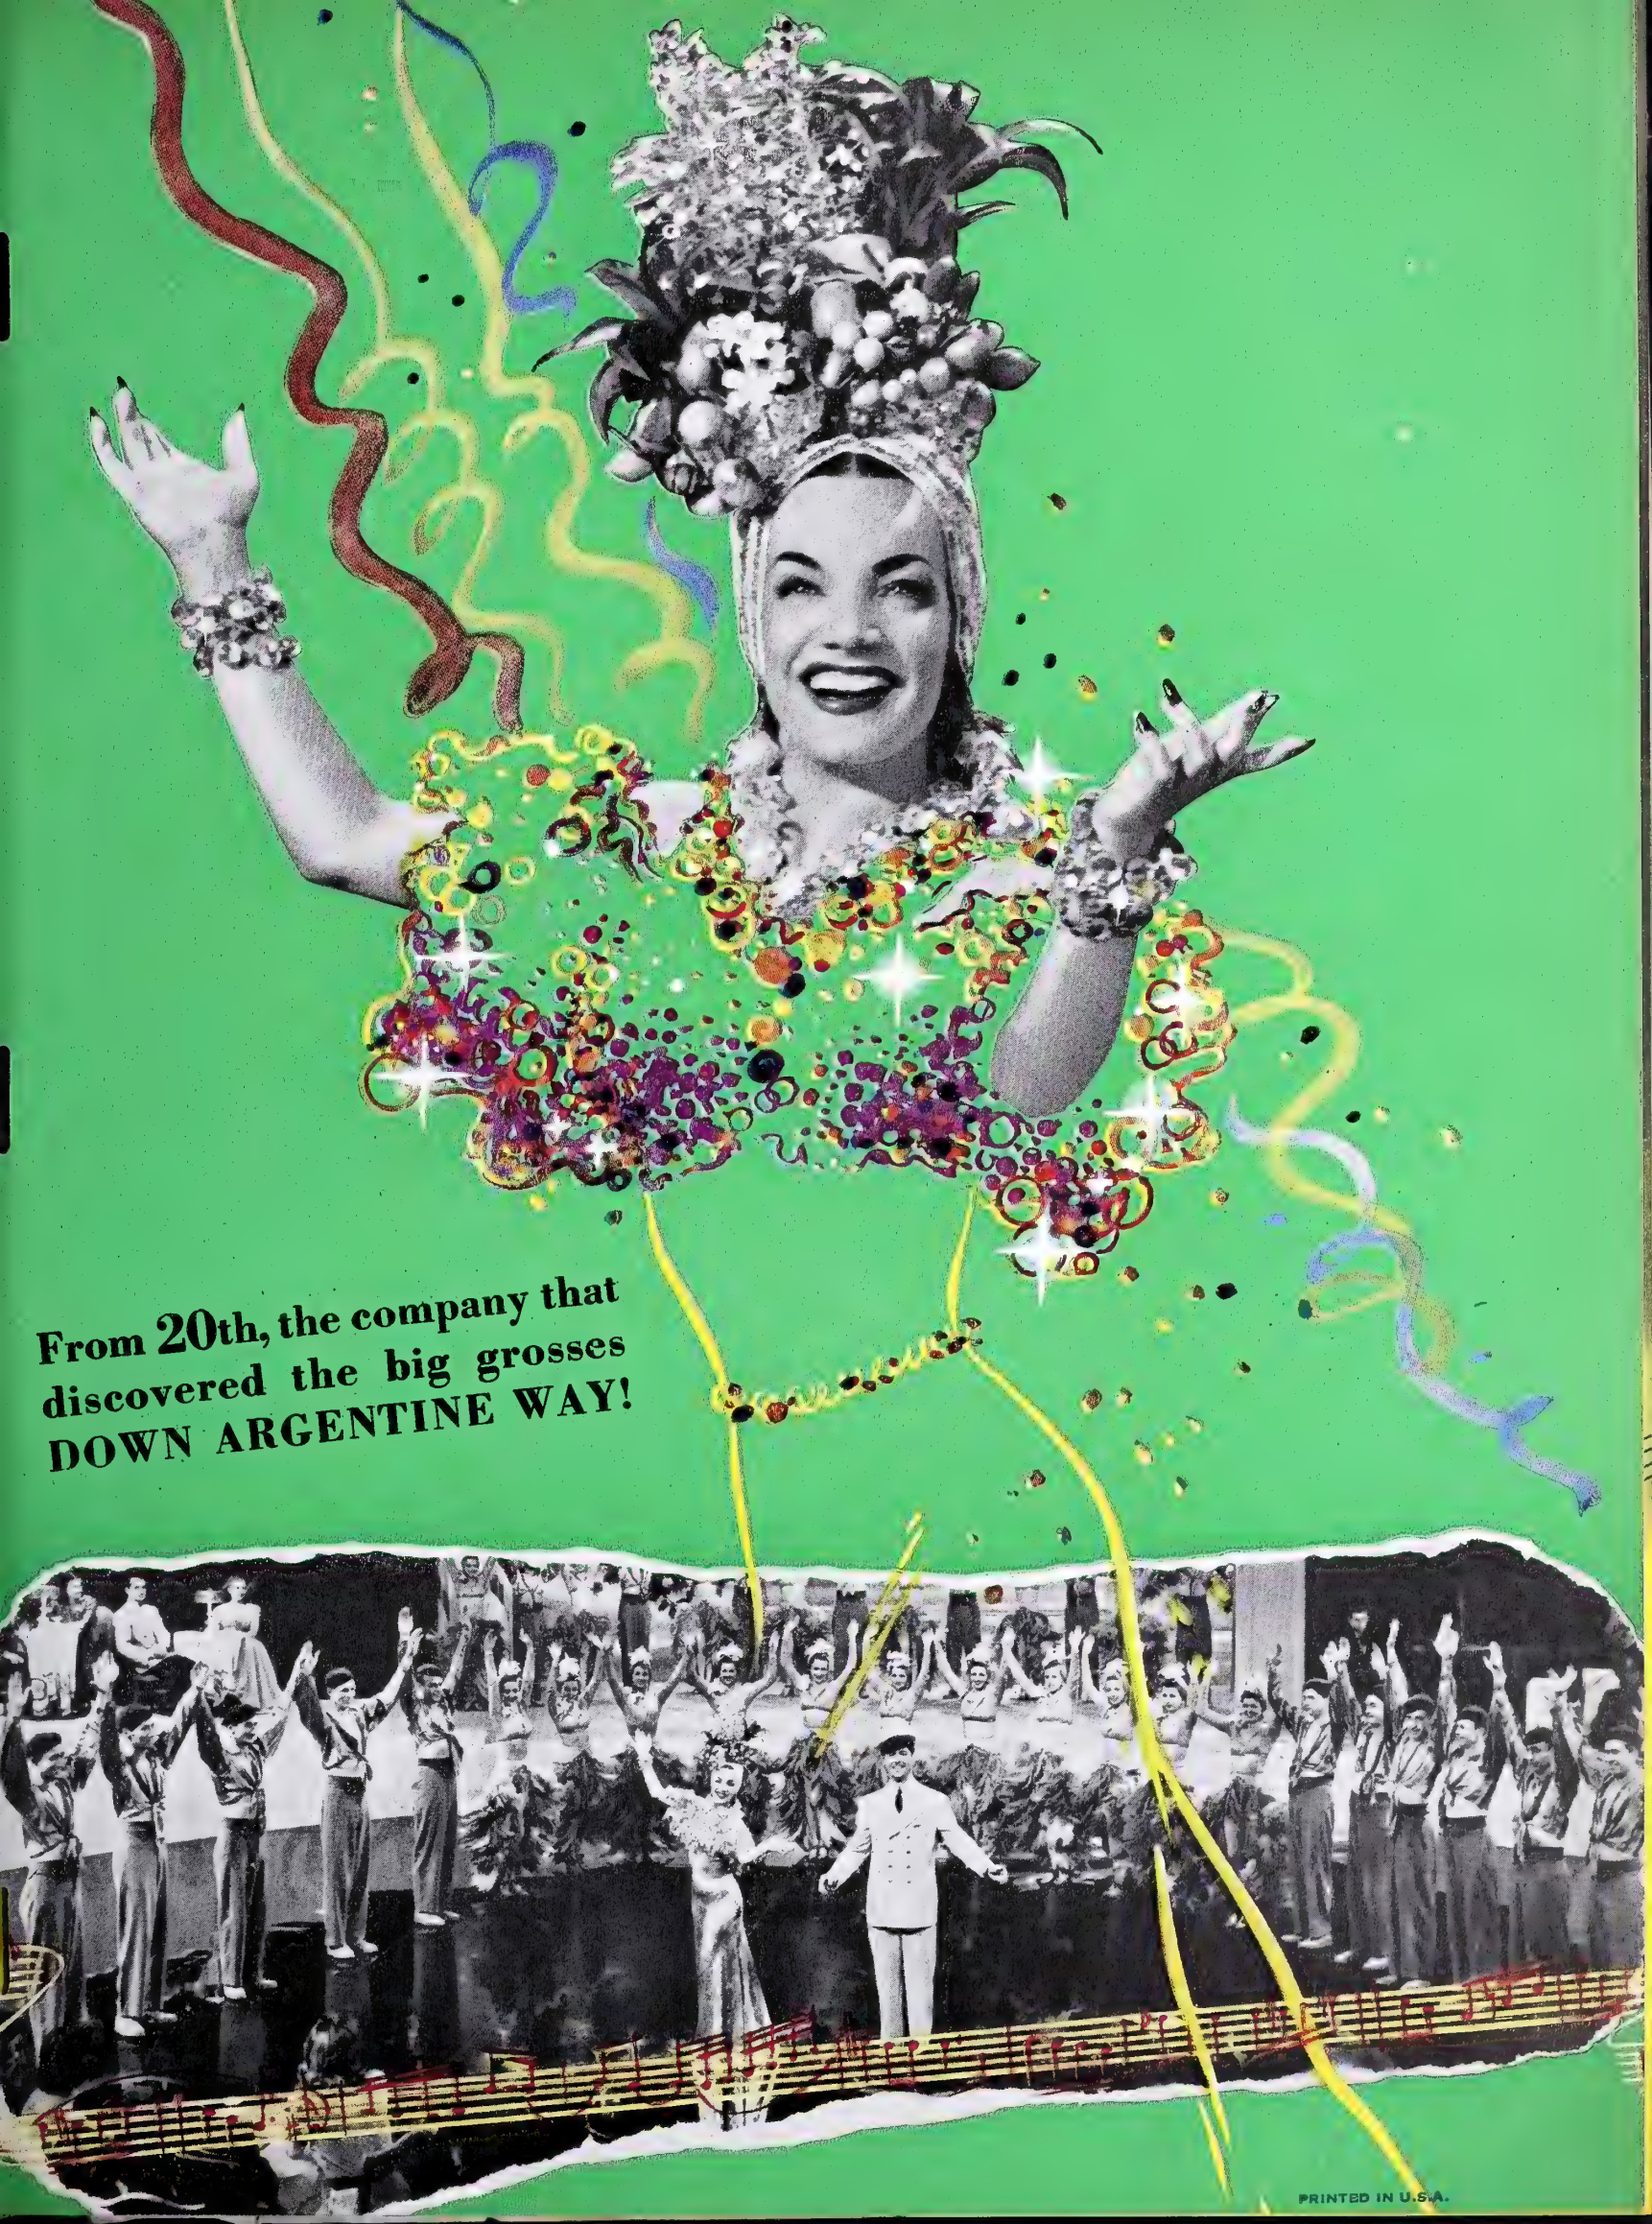
Sees Theatreman on His Own Via Decree

NEW YORK—The advent of trade showings under the decree places a greater responsibility on the exhibitor because he will henceforth "buy on a basis of what he thinks the pictures will do for him, whereas formerly he relied on past performances of the distributor he dealt with and trusted on adjustments if his judgment was wrong."



This is the tone of a Paramount theatre executive in sizing up the significance which new problems under the decree will impose upon the company's theatre partners at their meeting at Hot Springs, Va., March 27-29. Matters pertaining to production will be given the partners first hand by Y. Frank Freeman, in charge of studios, and former New York head of Paramount's theatre enterprises. Although their plans may be altered, Barney Balaban and Neil F. Agnew intend to appear at one of the sessions.

Paramount Is Outlet For Greek Relief Reel

NEW YORK—Paramount will distribute "Greece Fights Back," one-reeler produced by the March of Time, as its contribution to the industry's Greek relief campaign.

The sales plan will follow the pattern evolved by Gradwell L. Sears for "London Can Take It" and "They Spent Christmas Under Fire" when all net proceeds, less a low-geared distribution cost, went to Britain.

The distribution committee of the drive, of which Sears is national chairman, screened the film for the press Thursday at "Toots" Shor restaurant and, additionally, signalized the event with a cocktail party.

Shift in Accounts May Be in Offing

NEW YORK—In the wake of M-G-M's publicly declared policy under the decree of continuing in the future, as in the past, "to first offer our product to our present customers" emerges a reverse manifestation that suggests the possibility of wholesale switching from regular accounts to competitors once small block sales gets under way.

M-G-M, of course, is excluded from the picture by virtue of a commitment to its customers through a letter sent by William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, explaining his company's decree-dictated sales position. The suggestion, however, that others of the "Big Five" may find it desirable to shop around for customers deemed more desirable than "present customers" is present largely through the absence of other and similar declarations of policy.

"Excuse" Now to Sell Away

It comes from a high-counciled circuit executive who gives as his personal observation, said to be gained from specific incident as well as close personal contact with other operators, that substantial evidence is around indicating distributors may be experiencing a change of heart in their customer relations. This stems, the view continues, from the allegation that a few of the majors who, in the past, have cherished the idea of selling away from regular accounts merely because "other fields are greener," but have not because of possible reprisal, now have a "wide open excuse" to do just that.

Many situations have arisen, the observer claims, which have been embarrassing to a distributor because he has refused to offer his product to one exhibitor on the grounds he already has a customer in that town. His position invariably has been, it is held, that he would gladly entertain a bid for his product if he did not have that customer. "That opportunity will soon be at hand," the circuit executive contends. "You may see a wild scramble for customers. You can be sure some distributors have many, many situations where they have not been happy with their customers and would have liked to have given them the gate."

Metro's Position

Further, the source adds, some of the distributors have been sincere when they have said they "would like to give the other guy a break." Of course, this could also be another way of saying that if "the other guy" will pay the price he will get every possible opportunity to bid against that distributor's "present customer."

Rodgers' letter to all M-G-M accounts follows:

"The consent decree seems to be the topic of conversation on all sides and its application and effect subject to speculation ranging from an unnecessary instrument to the bald statement that its adoption carries certain ruination.

"It appears to me that there is far too much emphasis placed upon the mistaken theory that it is impractical, and too little evidence of a desire to give its principles the support necessary for at least a fair trial.

"The time has passed for debate regarding either its virtues or its disadvantages. It is a matter of record and an instrument under which we will conduct our business to the best of our ability. We did not desire a consent decree, but it seemed to be the best means of settling the dispute between us and the government.

"That it will be costly to us is admitted. It is not flawless, and undoubtedly under its administration some will be dissatisfied; yet I am unwilling to admit that it is either unworkable or impractical.

"As an industry we have faced and met many problems and I believe sincerely we will meet this issue from an approach that we all have a part in protecting a great industry and our individual interests.

"The position of our company can be summed up in a very few words. We will respect the consent decree in all of its content; we will not tolerate, much less countenance any violations on the part of our representatives.

"We have no idea of placing our product on the auction block; but will, wherever the relationship is satisfactory, continue in the future, as in the past, to first offer our product to our present customers.

"We will not price our merchandise beyond the possibilities of our customers to pay; we are not now, nor will we in the future, seek any subterfuges in selling short subjects, newsreels or trailers. Every unit of our output will stand on its own merit.

"We have confidence in our product and in our staff and an everlasting confidence in our policy of fair dealing being recognized and supported by our customers.

"We will recognize any claim for arbitration as provided for in the decree, and will vigorously yet fairly defend our position where we feel we are right; yet in any instance where the final judgment is rendered against us, it will be accepted graciously and without any hard feelings in any direction.

"We will deliver not less than our minimum obligation of features and short subjects this year, and be prepared to trade show and offer a group of pictures for early fall release, sometime in June or July we hope, but in any event, far enough in advance to protect the playing time of our anticipated customers.

"I firmly believe that we, as an industry, are big enough and sufficiently visionary to recognize that we are on the threshold of an era of great opportunity.

"It, therefore, seems to me that full advantage should be taken of that which is before us and use to the fullest extent whatever talents we possess in a supreme effort to bring to the theatre those patrons who may be seeking their amusements in other directions.

"We now have a yardstick by which it is decreed we must conduct our business and a unified effort in the direction of harmony can only lead to progress.

"If the consent decree was necessary to bring about a closer understanding it can safely be regarded as beneficial to all of our interests. We owe it to ourselves; to our industry, and to our given word, to give it a fair trial and we will do just that. We have accepted it 100 per cent and what is more will support its administration that it be given full and proper opportunity to demonstrate its values. We hope they are many."

Urges Anti-Decree Bill O. K.

MINNEAPOLIS—Northwest Allied's anti-consent decree bill, opposed by Metro, Warner Bros., 20th-Fox and RKO, has been recommended for passage by the judiciary committee of the Minnesota state legislature lower house, 18 to 2, following hearings. Contravening the groups-of-five sales plan, the measure requires distributors to sell entire season's product, same as at present, grant minimum of 20 per cent cancellation and refrain from forced selling of shorts.

When the general legislation committee of the state senate held a hearing on the same measure, United Artists joined the other four distributors to oppose it, and claimed the company couldn't operate under its sales plan. The committee continued the hearing until March 19 to give proponents a chance to argue.

Men and Events

FOR some time now, the socially-conscious Frank Capra has been revolving in his mind a picture based on a frontier-less world where man might learn to live in something akin to complete understanding with his fellow man. Several individuals in Europe, of course, have kicked such an idea solidly in the midriff, but now and in a form revamped, geographically and otherwise, Capra follows through in "Meet John Doe."

The first to be made independently by the producer and Robert Riskin, his associate, this carries all of the hallmarks of the meticulously plotted and executed workmanship which is now accepted as their tradition both in and out of the business.

If "Meet John Doe" were to be boiled down to a phrase, it would be a re-emphasis of the "love thy neighbor" theme. The film seeks to tell the story of all the John Does, all the susceptible Mr. Average Man, their hopes and their aspirations for a kindlier and more friendly way of living. Capra essays this through the personalized experiences of Gary Cooper who is thrown up from the mob as the pivot of a newspaper circulation stunt which grows and catches the imagination of millions of other John and Jane Does throughout the nation. As a gag, the original idea in the film gets well out of hand. As a symbol of hopes and aspirations, it finds a definite, if loosely defined and temporary, place in the American scene. That is, until the oil magnate, turned newspaper publisher, uses the thousands of these personally-financed John Doe Clubs and John Doe himself as a catapult from which to launch a Fascist government.

The political plot fails because Cooper threatens to expose it. But, as it fails, it also tears down the John Doe movement, disillusions millions of its followers and propels Cooper to the verge of suicide until he is convinced the idea, once deliberately murdered, can rise and flame again out of its own ashes.

This, quickly, is the idea. Capra, no doubt about it, had a message to deliver and this is his method of delivery. But this is not to suggest at all that he has foregone entertainment in doing so. Definitely he has not. "Meet John Doe" has comedy, strong drama, a love story, firm direction, intelligent writing, always topnotch production values, and a laudable, if highly visionary, idea. Too, its performances, led off by Cooper, Barbara Stanwyck, Walter Brennan, Jimmy Gleason, Edward Arnold, Gene Lockhart and Regis Toomey are excellent.

We think "Meet John Doe," Capra-blessed and the superior picture it is, will get money. We also think Capra's cause definitely emerges first and the human beings he has had created to document that cause come next.

A LETTER from Milton F. Samis, Hester Theatre, San Jose, Calif., to Thomas Aspell of M-G-M:

Replying to your inquiry concerning my attempt to eliminate double bills, I can now state that, based upon the results of the first six weeks, the new policy is a huge success.

I started out by single billing on just one change a week, but soon increased that to two changes a week out of three. The results have been hundreds of phone calls and letters of commendation, unsolicited resolutions of praise by three parent-teacher associations and editorials in both daily newspapers commenting on the policy. But best of all, as nearly as I can estimate, I have increased my business by about 25 per cent. It has made the people of San Jose more conscious than ever of the presence of the Hester Theatre in their midst. Lobby comment has been very enthusiastic about the new shows and, strange to say, we could count the kicks on the fingers of one hand.

I think the thing that puts it over is my idea of a Variety Hour—an hour's program of short subjects. By giving the short subject program a name, we have taken the curse off the single bill, at least in a spot as competitive as this one is. In our newspaper ads we give the Variety Hour as much space as the feature, listing each subject, and on telephone inquiries, we are able to say that we have such-and-such a feature, plus "The Hester's Variety Hour." We are actually getting phone calls now wanting to know when the Variety Hour starts!

Of course, one swallow doesn't make a summer, and this thing may prove to be a flash in the pan. However, I have recounted to you frankly the results of the first six weeks.

F — Drama

M-G-M (——) — 106 Minutes — Rel. Apr. 11, '41

Since it is not considered necessary here to question the efficacy of a sociological subject—see "Boys Town" grosses for fall, 1938—as screen entertainment, it would seem most important to report how "Men of Boys Town" stacks up with its predecessor. The news, then—and it is news—is that this superb drama is better than the first one that took up Father Flanagan, and his sincere efforts toward the reclamation of juvenile delinquents. Somehow, as it unfolds, the impression is gained that this film couldn't miss; the commendable public impression created by the first effort, plus virtually the identical personnel—professional and technical—crystallizing into a triumph of straightforward, human and touching drama. Hokum, as it is known in the trade, plays a large part in the proceedings, but in such capable hands it emerges not as maudlin sentimentality, but gripping in its appeal for a more enlightened attitude toward the nation's "greatest natural resource," its youth—and those, especially, who have strayed. Tremendous mass appeal should be its award. Again there are Spencer Tracy, ruggedly idealistic as Father Flanagan; Mickey Rooney, "Mayor" of Boys Town, devout and loyal charge; Norman Taurog, directing with adroitness and a supporting cast of rare qualifications for the work at hand.

Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney, Bobs Watson, Larry Nunn, Darryl Hickman, Henry O'Neill, Mary Nash.

EXPLOITIPS: Hardly a dollar or an ounce of effort should be stinted in capitalizing on the original "Boys Town" when you sell this one. Almost routine should be your approaches to Catholic, parent, civic, penal, teachers, judiciary, educational and Boy Scout groups. The followers of Tracy and Rooney are legion, which makes it merely a matter of effort and ingenuity in reaching them. You could wrap a separate campaign around Rooney himself, bulking his versatility in musicals, the Hardy series and this one as the big topic.

CATCHLINES: Your Heart Will Be Stirred by the Man Who Has Reclaimed the Lives of Thousands of Boys.

The Miracle of Boys Town . . . As It Mends Small Hearts and Minds That Are Weak.

Rage in Heaven

A — Drama

M-G-M (128) — 82 Minutes — Rel. Mar. 7, '41

Robert Montgomery is cast again as a homicidal paranoic in a heavy and sombre melodrama which deals principally with insane jealousy, suicide and other unpleasant phases of chronic psychalgia. Although he, his co-star—Ingrid Bergman—and the remainder of the cast turn in fine performances, the film is strictly adult entertainment, designed and executed for the more profound and analytical exponents of the drama. Its appeal to the rank and file of ticket buyers will probably be limited. The film is an adaptation of a James Hilton novel and in general theme may be compared to Montgomery's one previous sally into the realm of psychiatry, "Night Must Fall." It is opulently produced and ably directed by W. S. Van Dyke II. Montgomery has the role of a man mentally tortured by the erroneous belief that his bride, Miss Bergman, is in love with his closest friend and business associate, George Sanders. In an effort to gain revenge for this fancied wrong, he concocts an intricate plan to commit suicide by which it would appear he was murdered by Sanders. His machinations fail, of course.

Robert Montgomery, Ingrid Bergman, George Sanders, Lucile Watson, Oscar Homolka, Philip Merivale, Matthew Boulton.

EXPLOITIPS: The top selling name is, of course, Robert Montgomery, while Ingrid Bergman and George Sanders each deserve supporting credits. Too, the author, James Hilton, might be a selling factor through his reputation as the writer of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" and "Lost Horizon." Appeal to adult audiences by inviting comparisons with Montgomery's role in "Night Must Fall."

CATCHLINES: The Tale of a Tortured Mind . . . Of a Man Consumed by Jealousy . . . And of a Plot That Failed.

It's More Dramatic . . . More Suspenseful . . . More Enthralling Than Robert Montgomery's Great "Night Must Fall."

Human Loves and Human Passions Thread Their Way Through This Story of a Mind That Could Not Grasp the Meaning of Loyalty.

Road to Zanzibar

Paramount (4025) — 90 Minutes — Apr. 11, '41

As long as Paramount has the Crosby and Hope comedy combination, shapely Dorothy Lamour to serve as the pulchritudinous leg of the triangle, and access to a reasonably accurate geography, such tuneful, boisterous, nonsensical and thoroughly captivating entertainment should be possible. Of course, there will always be the further need for writers to supply the endless chain of gags and the sparkling dialogue which contribute substantially toward making this a very worthy successor to "Road to Singapore." That it should fare as well in raves and revenues as that previous jaunt of the above-mentioned, slap-happy trio seems a certainty. The only times when Mr. Average Customer will not be uproariously amused is when he is enjoying the few highly acceptable musical numbers. The locale is Africa where Crosby and Hope are chiseling themselves a bankroll through operating fake carnival sideshows, but just when they manage to accumulate enough money to run home, they encounter adventure in the form of two stranded Brooklyn show girls who take them for a large-sized buggy ride, which includes a safari, capture by cannibals, the ultimate happy and romantic ending, and countless other mirth-provoking doses of hokum. Directed by Victor Schertzinger.

EXPLOITIPS: Point out that the starring combination of Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour and Bob Hope is the same one that scored in "The Road to Singapore." Make over the theatre front and lobby to resemble a jungle, with plenty of potted palms and greenery. The Crosby and Hope radio shows offer possibilities for a number of merchandising tie-ups. Contact music dealers on displays of Crosby records.

CATCHLINES: You Roared at Them in "The Road to Singapore" . . . Now Bing, Bob and Dorothy Are Back Again . . . Faster, Funnier Than Ever.

Watch Darkest Africa Grow Darker . . . When Two Timid Americans Pick Up With a Native Girl in the Jungles.

It's a Guaranteed Laugh Riot . . . As Bob and Bing Jive Through the Jungles in Their Newest Musical Funfest.

That Night in Rio

20th Century-Fox (——) — 90 Minutes — Rel. Apr. 1, '41

Taking off to a flying start with a production number precedentally breath-taking in its lavishness and beauty, this filmusical never slackens its speed as engrossing entertainment for an instant. In many respects it touches a new ceiling for screen musical comedies. Story, cast, music, production, direction, costumes and sets, the magnificent colors of which are photographed in Technicolor, all contribute their shares toward assembling a truly superb picture, one which will probably crowd existing revenue records in its classification and in all of its showings. Alice Faye and Don Ameche are starred. The former was never more appealing, her beauty and coloring revealing themselves to their very best advantage through the color photography. Then, too, she and other femmes in the cast are gowned so magnificently that the women customers will gasp for joy. And for the man of the house there is a collection of pulchritude the like of which has seldom been assembled on one set. Don Ameche does a dual role—and exceedingly well. He portrays an American entertainer working in Rio. One of his specialties is the impersonation of a local millionaire, the husband of Miss Faye. When the husband finds himself in a financial jam, Ameche is called upon to carry the masquerade into his social and business circle, which develops numerous situations more replete in story values and humor than is customary in pictures of this type. Irving Cummings directed.

Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Carmen Miranda, S. Z. Sakall, J. Carrol Naish, Curt Bois, Leonid Kinskey, Frank Puglia.

EXPLOITIPS: Plug the Ameche-Faye combination, give the lobby a South American atmosphere and emphasize the new hit tunes in the film.

CATCHLINES: All the Gaiety and Glamour of Romantic Rio . . . Intriguing Romance . . . Latin Love Songs . . . And Laughs.

The Penalty F

Drama

M-G-M (——) 81 Minutes Rel. Mar. 14, '41

The final result arrived at after the various dramatic elements of "The Penalty" are melted down is a solid program film. Like a friendly blend of tobacco, it is composed of quality grains of good acting, comedy, pungent dialogue, fine production and direction and a story that manages to strike a fair departure from the routine. Edward Arnold is seen as a gangster whoses specialty is bank robbing and ruthless killing. His son, Gene Reynolds, admires the paternal life with its thrill elements and bravado. But he shudders at the sight of blood. It is a smartly contrived police trap and a dramatic insight into character that brings about a different order. The script has utilized backgrounds of farm life and the criminal way of life to good advantage. It's a neat package of dramatics.

Edward Arnold, Lionel Barrymore, Marsha Hunt, Robert Sterling, Gene Reynolds.

EXPLOITIPS: Word-of-mouth should account in a large measure for the success of this film. There are names to exploit. But the film belongs to young Reynolds who has been socking in one outstanding performance after another. Play up the human interest angles. The title suggests tieups on the "penalty" angle. They can be arranged for beauty shops, clothing stores, shoe stores and shoe repairers, etc., all pointing up the penalty for neglect of personal appearance. There are a number of interesting "man hunt" exploitation stunts, "gun moll" sex appeal angles, sidewalk stencil gags and others. You'll find them in a snappy press book arrangement.

CATCHLINES: The Saga of "Killer" Nelson vs. the FBI . . . A Story Tense With One of the Most Exciting Man-Hunts in Recent Screen History.

Loyalty Made Him a Criminal . . . And Loyalty Brought Him a New Life.

His Business Was Slaughter . . . And He Paid the Penalty That His Son Might Find a Better Trade.

Mr. Dynamite F

Melodrama

Universal (——) 63 Minutes Rel. Mar. 7, '41

The explosive qualities of this are limited to the title, unless they should extend to the patience and tempers of the customers who catch it on the underside of dual programs, which booking position it is barely qualified to grace. Although three fairly well established and normally competent mummers are at the top of the cast, any efforts they may have made to elevate the offering from the doldrums are hamstrung by a wild and unbelievable story. That literary enterprise gathered a spy-ring, counter-espionage, a big-league baseball pitcher, a world's series, a few feeble passes at comedy and sundry other elements; wrapped them all in one package; shook them up vigorously; and then, apparently, didn't know where to ship them. The feature will find its most receptive audiences among habitual Saturday-matinee patrons and the fans who crave action—regardless of credibility. Directed by John Rawlins.

Lloyd Nolan, Irene Hervey, J. Carrol Naish, Robert Armstrong, Ann Gillis, Frank Gaby, Elisabeth Risdon.

EXPLOITIPS: Build interest around the title. Plant posters around town with Lloyd Nolan's picture, and the caption: "Who Is Mr. Dynamite?" Get spot plugs on radio stations in similar vein. Give title credits to Lloyd Nolan and Irene Hervey. Emphasize the timely sabotage angles by preparing throwsheets as a tabloid newspaper, with headlines reading: "Baseball Pitcher Uncovers Sabotage Ring."

CATCHLINES: A World Series Pitching Ace . . . Finds Himself in the Middle of a Sabotage Plot . . . And Scores Three Strikes in Defense of His Country.

Can You Solve the Riddle of the Ventriloquist's Dummy? The Astrology Student? The Club-Footed Woman?

A Carnival Gal and a Baseball Pitcher Match Wits With a Dangerous Gang of International Spies.

Back in the Saddle F

Western

Republic (——) 71 Minutes Rel. ——

There is certainly nothing in this galloper to jeopardize Gene Autry's established position as the screen's leading action star. By the same logic it differs but slightly from the more recent features in which the crooning celluloid cowhand has appeared. Noteworthy is the fact that his pal, Frog (Smiley Burnette), has less to do than customarily. In its productional details, the film maintains the high standards characteristic of the series. Supporting cast is adequate and there is the usual sprinkling of musical numbers interspersed among the shootin', sluggin' and ridin'. The story concerns a feud which develops between ranchers and the crooked operator of a copper mine and smelter when by-products from the latter poison the range waters and kill off stock. Autry, heading the cattlemen, wins the argument, of course. Directed by Lew Landers.

Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Mary Lee, Edward Norris, Jacqueline Wells, Addison Richards, Arthur Loft.

EXPLOITIPS: Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette are, of course, the names to conjure with on marquee and in exploitation. Mary Lee, juvenile singing star, should also come in for an advertising buildup. Otherwise, the picture can be exploited along the lines laid down for all westerns—making over the lobby in rangeland fashion, dressing attendants as cowhands, and playing hillbilly music over the public address system in the foyer.

CATCHLINES: The Nation's Number One Cowboy . . . And His Laughable, Lovable Pal . . . Back Again to Thrill You.

It's Western Entertainment the Way You Like It . . . The Way Only Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette Can Dish It Out.

Murder Among Friends F

20th-Fox (132) 67 Minutes Rel. Feb. 28, '41

Seldom, if ever, has there been a murder mystery with more slayings. And this offering's claim to distinction begins and ends right there. In all other departments, story, cast, production and direction, it is just another whodunit, with an average amount of suspense, an occasional chill and an even more limited quota of laughs, which were probably injected into the script in an attempt to bolster obvious plot inconsistencies. The film will serve as supporting fare but will do little to help its big brother on the dual programs drag in additional shekels. There is a joint insurance policy involving a large number of men which provides that the remaining survivors on a given date will share in its benefits. As the date approaches, the beneficiaries die with amazing rapidity. Murders are suspected and established and ultimately traced to the wife of one of the insured, probably because, following formula construction, preceding incidents subject her to less suspicion than any other member of the cast. Directed by Ray McCarey.

Marjorie Weaver, John Hubbard, Cobina Wright jr., Mona Barrie, Douglas Dumbrille, Sidney Blackmer.

EXPLOITIPS: Give Marjorie Weaver and John Hubbard the marquee credits, with a special build-up for Cobina Wright jr., the debutante, in her film debut. The murderer in the plot is captured because he is a "doodler." Sponsor a "doodling" contest in which entrants decorate newspaper photos and ads with moustaches, etc. Get out a special herald resembling an insurance policy, guaranteeing an evening's enjoyable entertainment for those who see the picture.

CATCHLINES: $200,000 to the One Who Stays Alive . . . In This Mysterious, Spine-Tingling Sequence of Insurance Murders.

Invitations to Murder . . . Ten Persons Signed a Strange Pact . . . With the Last One Alive to Gain $200,000.

1001 Afternoons in New York

by BEN HECHT

Joe Schenck of Hollywood

Many ironic things happen in Hollywood.

Overnight idiots become geniuses and geniuses become idiots, waitresses turn into duchesses and what duchesses turn into won't bear mentioning. Overnight in Hollywood panhandling hams blossom into Coquelins and Lorenzos and vice versa. The boulevards are crowded with royal coaches turning into pumpkins before your eyes.

It's an Aladdin's Lamp of a town, and whichever way you rub it, genii jump out and make sport of the laws of gravity and sanity.

Everybody in Hollywood is used to irony, used to every mirage and monkeyshine of Fate. There is even the irony that people in Hollywood work harder than boilermakers and that this happy land of glamour is a tougher locale for survival than the Yukon. And there is yet the more inscrutable irony that out of this wedding of Jabberwock and the Muses called Hollywood a most astonishing lot of worthy enterprise emerges, full of beauty, wit and high purpose.

But the most ironical of events ever to happen in Hollywood is occurring today in its eastern suburb, the city of New York. It is the trial of Joe Schenck.

A "Juicy Scapegoat"

Our government has decided that Joe is a criminal and should be sent to jail. Federal barristers are lambasting the hell out of Joe in open court, charging him with swindles and chicaneries against the income tax laws. And The Press of the land is happily focusing its wits and derision on this latest and juiciest of Hollywood scapegoats.

And therein, I assure you, is enough irony to give a hangman a bellyache. For of all the Nabobs and Satraps, Caliphs and Pooh-Bahs who make movies in Hollywood, Joe Schenck is the last man who belongs in a prisoner's dock. It is as ironical a piece of miscasting as was ever indulged in by his own 20th Century Company which, if you saw Tyrone Power in "Mark of Zorro," is a considerable statement.

I have never worked for Joe nor any of his companies and none of his silver has ever crossed my palm. Nor am I an intimate of his. I am merely one of the thousands who know Hollywood a little too well and who are looking on wide-eyed at the irony of the pillorying of that town's most humane and gallant gentleman.

Joe's case will never be put into the evidence, however bright his lawyers. He will sit stolidly and take the rap for whatever misdemeanors are accredited to him and like the classy gambler he has always been he will take his licking without compromising friend or foe.

Befriender of Has Beens

There will be no evidence of another fact. This is the fact that many of the hundreds of thousands of dollars Joe is accused of having deducted fraudulently in his income tax returns were dollars squandered in secret charities. Joe shelled out a goodly part of his fortune weekly and yearly to hundreds of broken down hams and glamour girls, to hundreds of one-time jolly people wriggling finally at the bottom of the heap. Joe has been the Santa Claus of the Hollywood and Broadway rubbish heaps. He has supported more burned-out stars and buried more penniless alcoholic, harlots, mimes and scribblers than any gentleman of his time. Joe won't hand in the names of these who have known his largesse as extenuating evidence because that would be against his theory of deportment.

And how the hell is Joe going to get it explained to a jury that his squandering money for entertainment expenses —parties costing from two to four grand a clip—was his honorable way of serving his company and his stockholders?

In these parties Joe created Joe Schenck and, once created, Joe Schenck became a figure of importance in a major, if cockeyed, industry. In these parties Joe learned wisdom, made friendships, dispensed cheer, consolidated talent deals, eavesdropped on ideas, rhumbaed with starlets and furthered the cause of movie-making as much as any single man connected with it. That the cause is a humptydumpty one and that it needs swimming pools and casinos and mixed quartets on the Pacific sands at dawn for furthering is none of Joe's doing. He furthered it for 30 years without making an enemy, turning down a touch, growing a deaf ear or a concrete bosom.

The Press, ever ready to pin its peacock feathers on any big name scapegoat, will see Joe's life as a dizzy and protracted Hollywood orgy. Wine flowed and women laughed and wriggled on divans, poker chips clicked and dress suits dived into swimming pools. But this was no orgy. It was Joe loving life and creating out of his doting not only a humane and gallant gentleman but an industry which brought cheer to millions and great fortune to thousands.

"Guilty of Nothing"

Joe says calmly he is guilty of nothing. But he is modest in his protest. For along with some of his other claims, Joe is also a philosopher.

"My father once told me," he says, "that if you are cold sober and haven't had a drink in weeks and five sane and intelligent people look at you and tell you you are dead drunk, the best thing to do is not to argue but lie down and take a nap for an hour."

Joe is for the present having his little nap. And as Hemingway wrote of another gentleman in trouble, Joe snoozing a bit at his counsel's table "looks pretty good out there."

Hecht Goes All Out Defending Schenck

NEW YORK—Ben Hecht, author, playwright and occasionally identified with the industry, leaps with iron-shod typewriter and typical forceful word-slinging to the defense of Joseph M. Schenck, now on trial for allegedly having defrauded the government of income taxes.

He sallies forth with that defense in "Joe Schenck of Hollywood," Tuesday contribution to his "1001 Afternoons in New York" column in PM. The article is copyrighted and is reprinted by special permission of that newspaper.

Hecht is not kind to Hollywood. He is less kind to "The Press," as he dubs it, for being "ever ready to pin its peacock feathers on any big name scapegoat" and remarks it (The Press) "will see Joe's life as a dizzy and protracted Hollywood orgy."

But, aside from the over-all cudgels taken up on Schenck's behalf, the Hecht piece also turns out to be invigorating reading. As the adjoining column demonstrates.

Para't Decree Analysis To Most Exchanges

NEW YORK—With the exception of four southern exchanges, all Paramount branch personnel have had the benefit of personal analyses of the decree by Austin C. Keough, vice-president and chief counsel, and Louis Phillips, his assistant. The latter has completed his itinerary, while Keough will visit the southern cities some time after it is determined if his presence is required in the trial of the anti-trust suit brought by Frank Cassil in St. Joseph, Mo.

First Annual PRC Meeting in Chicago

NEW YORK—First annual convention of Producers Releasing franchise holders will be held at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, March 22-24. To be represented will be 28 domestic branches and six from Canada. William Gell, general managing director for Pathe Pictures, Ltd., distributors in the United Kingdom, also will attend.

Financing arrangements have been completed for 63 features, 26 of which will be westerns. Budgets for individual pictures have been set by Leon Fromkess, chairman of the budget finance committee, and George Batcheller jr., in charge of production.

After the opening session, O. Henry Briggs, president, will call a meeting of the board, which consists of Briggs, Fromkess, George Gill, Harry Asher, Abe Fischer, Bert Kulick, M. and L. Lefton, Jack Adams, Louis Rutstein and William Flemion. Following this meeting the franchise holders will discuss mutual problems.

Various home office and studio executives will address the delegates in the last two days of the meeting.

Boston Is First With Arbitration Hearing

BOSTON—The first hearing before the new motion picture tribunals was held Friday in the demand of Benjamin Gold for arbitration under the "some run" clause of the decree. Arthur S. Brown, Boston University Law School professor, was the arbitrator, with George S. Ryan, attorney, and Arthur K. Howard, representing the local Allied unit, sitting in for Gold.

J. Noble Braden, executive director of the tribunals, sat in as an observer. From here, he went to Chicago to attend the first hearing before that tribunal.

Chicago Case Second For Formal Action

CHICAGO—The first local case, filed here February 13 by E. F. Van Derveer of the State at Morris, Ill., was heard Saturday before Arbitrator Charles Zane Henkle, vice-president of the Continental Illinois National Bank. It involves "some run" and names Loew's as the defendant.

What the Studios Are Doing

Decree May Change Preview Routine

HOLLYWOOD—Already experiencing evolutionary pains during the past several weeks, it appears probable the film colony's system of previewing new pictures is slated for further changes . . . Because the federal consent decree provides all new product must be screened by distributors at trade showings for exhibitors, in this territory as well as in other key spots throughout the country, it is considered not unlikely that studios may arrange with their local distribution representatives to combine press previews with regular trade screenings . . . Trade showings are always held during the day, for the convenience of showmen who must be at their theatres in the evening, which time element fits in with the recently-adopted and already abused ruling of the Hays office's publicity directors committee banning evening showings of press previews in theatres . . . However, this regulation is being circumvented in several thinly-veiled ways, a fact which may be conducive to establishing the combined trade-and-press screening idea . . . First step in this direction was taken when "Topper Returns," new Hal Roach comedy for United Artists, was given a dual trade-and-press showing March 11 . . . Heretofore press previews have always preceded trade screenings by several weeks.

Selznick Signs Maugham For Original Screenplay

David O. Selznick has signed W. Somerset Maugham, noted British novelist, to write an original screenplay . . . Selznick has also purchased "Claudia," play by Rose Franken and William Brown Meloney . . . "Autumn Glory," football yarn by Richard Goldstone and Stanley Rauh, went to Columbia . . . Metro purchased "Strange Adventure," by Clyde Brion Davis . . . To Monogram went John D. Comfort's "Isle of Missing Ships" . . . Sam Marx sold "Side Streets" to M-G-M, where he is a producer . . . Warner will film "Passage From Hongkong," story purchased from the estate of the late Earl Derr Biggers.

Edward Gross to Produce "Lone Ranger" for Columbia

Edward Gross will produce four "Lone Ranger" features, budgeted at $125,000 each, independently for Columbia release . . . Arnold Pressburger, European producer-director, has joined United Artists and will produce "The Shanghai Gesture" . . . Gregory Ratoff has secured a Columbia release for "Tonight Is Ours," which he will produce and direct starring Loretta Young . . . Also for Columbia, Producer Larry Darmour has rolled a new serial, "The Spider Returns."

Proposed Georgia Law on Selling

ATLANTA—Text of the law which would compel distributors to offer for license their full programs, including a minimum 20 per cent cancellation clause, follows. The statute, already passed by the senate, would vitiate the blocks of five selling method provided in the consent decree:

To be entitled an Act to govern and regulate the distribution of motion picture films; to provide terms under which distributors or producer-distributors shall hereafter license feature motion picture films to exhibitors; to provide under what conditions exhibitors shall have the right to cancel license agreements; to bar distributors or producer-distributors from requiring exhibitors to license short subjects, newsreels, trailers, serials, reissues, foreign and western motion picture films, and/or road shows, in order to obtain feature motion picture films; to declare void any provision of any license entered into hereafter, which is contrary to the provisions of this Act; to provide penalties for violation of the provisions of this Act; to define certain motion picture film terms as applied to this Act; to cite the need of governing and regulating the distribution of motion picture films, as a preamble to this Act; to provide a separability clause as to the constitutionality or validity of the respective provisions of this Act; to repeal all laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act; and for the other purposes.

PREAMBLE

WHEREAS, the motion picture industry is made up of three branches, namely, production, distribution, distribution and exhibition; and

WHEREAS, the production and distribution branches are dominated and controlled by producing and distributing companies with great economic power; and

WHEREAS, these producing and distribution companies license, lease and distribute substantially all of the feature motion pictures exhibited in the State of Georgia and the other States of the Union; and the needs of the exhibitor requires that he license or lease feature motion pictures from substantially all the distributors and/or producer-distributors; and

WHEREAS, by reason of arbitrary terms and conditions imposed by the distributors and/or producer-distributors, the exhibitor has been:

(a) Compelled as a condition precedent to licensing feature motion pictures, to also license short subjects, newsreels, trailers, serials, reissues, foreign and western pictures far in excess of his needs or requirements;

(b) Unable to cancel feature motion pictures injurious and damaging to his business, and therefore compelled to play pictures undesirable and harmful to the public; and

WHEREAS, the long established trade practice of licensing feature motion pictures for a full season (one year) is essential to the best interests of the producer-distributors, exhibitors, and the public; but the above conditions imposed by the distributors and/or producer-distributors have subjected the exhibitors to unfair disadvantages, preventing him from responding to the community and local public influence and preferences with respect to selection of desirable feature motion picture films and are more inimicable to public welfare and against public policy; now, therefore,

BE IT ENACTED BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF GEORGIA, AND IT IS HEREBY ENACTED BY AUTHORITY OF THE SAME:

Section 1. DEFINITIONS. For the purpose of this act, unless the context otherwise provides:

(a) The term "person" includes an individual, partnership, association, joint stock company, trust or corporation;

(b) The term "distributor" includes any person who engages or contracts to engage in the distribution of motion picture films;

(c) The term "exhibitor" includes any person who engages or contracts to engage in the exhibition of motion picture films;

(d) The term "license" includes the offering, intending or making of a license agreement, contract, or any type of agreement whereby a film, the distribution of which is controlled by one of the parties is to be supplied to and/or exhibited in a theatre owned, controlled or operated by the other party;

(e) The term "feature motion picture film" means all motion pictures, whether copyrighted or uncopyrighted, including positive and/or negative prints and copies or reproductions of such prints, which films contain photoplays or other subjects and are produced for public exhibition. The terms shall not include films commonly known as short subjects, newsreels, trailers, serials, reissues, foreign and western pictures and/or road shows;

(f) The term "exhibition season" shall mean a period of 12 months as may be selected by the distributor and/or producer-distributor; provided, however, that there shall be no lapse of time between the termination of one season and the beginning of the next.

Section 2. No distributor or producer-distributor shall hereafter license feature motion picture films to an exhibitor in this State unless the license provides:

(a) That all the feature motion picture films, which such distributor will license during the exhibition season or the unexpired portion thereof shall be included;

(b) That the exhibitor shall have the right to cancel a minimum of 20 per cent of the total number of feature motion pictures included in such license. Such cancellation shall be made proportionately among the several price brackets, if there be such price brackets in the license agreement. Any number of cancellations, to which an exhibitor is entitled, may be made from the lowest price bracket at the exhibitor's option. The right to cancellation shall not be effective, unless the exhibitor exercises such right by giving notice thereof, to the distributor, within 15 days after being notified of the availability of a feature motion picture. The right to cancellation may be waived by the exhibitor before or after the making of a license agreement, but such waiver shall be in writing.

Section 3. No distributor or producer-distributor shall hereafter license feature motion picture films to an exhibitor in this State upon the condition that the exhibitor must also license short subjects, newsreels, trailers, serials, reissues, foreign and/or western motion picture films, and/or road shows.

Section 4. Any provision of any license entered into hereafter, which is contrary to any of the provisions of this Act is hereby declared to be against public policy and void.

Section 5. Every person violating any provisions of this Act, or assisting in such violation, shall upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000 or, in default of the payment of such fine, by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than one year. In the case of a corporation, the violation of this Act shall be deemed to be also that of the individual directors, officers or agents of such corporation who have assisted in such violation, or who have authorized, ordered or done the acts or omissions constituting, in whole or in part, such violation, and upon conviction thereof, any such directors, officers or agents shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, as in this section provided.

Section 6. If any provision of this Act is declared unconstitutional or the applicability thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid, the validity of the remainder of the Act and the applicability of such provisions to other persons and circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

Section 7. All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act be, and the same are hereby repealed.

Anti Block-of-Five Bill Is Killed

Atlanta—An 11 to 7 vote in committee killed the Georgia measure, delineated on the left, which would have compelled distributors to offer for license their full programs and thus have abolished the blocks of five selling method provided in the consent decree. The bringing in of a minority report, a right the seven who favored the bill reserved, is held unlikely.

See Chances Rise For Conciliation

boro, Md., operated by Sidney Lust, is off the Washington tribunal calendar. This was done after all parties agreed a satisfactory settlement could be effected without a hearing.

Lust-Taylor Accord On Availability

WASHINGTON—Sidney Lust, operator of the Marlboro, Marlboro, Md., has agreed to permit John H. Taylor of the Charles, La Plata, Md., to calculate the latter's 14-day availability after the Marlboro regardless of how late Lust books films into his house. This is the basis for withdrawal of the complaint from the local arbitration tribunal.

Taylor had complained Lust's practice of holding up dates for the Marlboro had caused him to wait an unreasonable length of time. Although the 14-day clearance remains, availability to Taylor is based on the date films first become available to Lust, regardless of how long Lust takes to play the pictures. If, for instance, Lust waits two weeks beyond his availability date to play a film, it automatically becomes available to Taylor, which would then become a day and date booking.

The distributor defendants—Paramount, Loew's, RKO, 20th Century-Fox and Warner have agreed to service Taylor in the aforementioned manner.

Jersey City Complainant Will Argue Own Case

NEW YORK—Jack Fields, operator of the Cameo, Jersey City, who filed a clearance complaint against Skouras' Fulton, same city, states he will argue the case himself without benefit of counsel. Skouras' lawyer is expected to be Louis Weber.

The complaint is the fourth registered with the local AAA board and no date has been set for the hearing. Fields had previously attempted to work out an amicable arrangement with the Skouras circuit through Emil K. Ellis, attorney, but he says without success.

Fields says he has maps and other data necessary for the presentation of his case and feels that, knowing the situation as he does, there is no need for outside counsel to be retained.

Prior to his becoming an exhibitor, he was a booker at the Paramount New Jersey branch for several years. He states he wants to follow the Fulton without waiting for pictures to run in all other Skouras houses in the zone before he gets them.

River Corp. Files Plaint Against the "Big Five"

NEW YORK—The fifth complaint filed with the local arbitration tribunal involves clearance and is brought against the "Big Five" by the River Theatre Corp., operator of the Central in Pearl River, Rockland County, N. Y. The complaint alleges that the Rockland in Nyack, N. Y., which is also in Rockland county, holds 49 days' clearance over the Central, which is claimed to be unreasonable. River seeks day and date or seven days clearance.

May Return to Features

NEW YORK—Sam Sax, long Vitaphone producer for Warner in the east, contemplates a return to feature production. He declines detail.

Complainant Winner First Board Case

BOSTON—Distributors bowed Friday by unanimous consent in the first film case in the country settled after a hearing under the AAA. The decision, in favor of Benjamin Gold, operator of the Park, Nashua, N. H., came just 29 days after Gold had filed his complaint with the local tribunal asking relief under Section VI (some run) of the consent decree.

Companies filing the consents were Paramount, Vitagraph, RKO and 20th Century-Fox. M-G-M had been named in the original complaint, but was later relieved after instituting negotiations and eventually selling Gold after the latter filed his complaint.

In his statement marking the abrupt termination of the case which was filed February 13, Arthur I. Brown, the arbitrator, decreed:

Statement by Arbitrator

"At the hearing before me, an opening statement was made by George S. Ryan, attorney for the complaining party, Paulston, Inc., at the conclusion of which the defending parties above named, filed written consents. Evidence was introduced but I find from uncontradicted statements made by the counsel, that the above named distributors have heretofore refused to license their pictures to the complainant for exhibition in the Park Theatre of Nashua, N. H.

"In accordance with the consents filed with the arbitrator, I direct the above named distributors to offer their pictures for license to said Paulston, Inc., for exhibition in the Park Theatre to the extent of pictures released for exhibition to July 31, 1942, inclusive, on a run to be designated by said distributors and upon terms and conditions fixed by said distributors which are not calculated to defeat the purpose of Section 6 of the consent decree."

Trade Backs Defense To Hilt—Schenck

NEW YORK—"The entire industry with all its resources is firmly behind President Roosevelt's national defense campaign," Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of 20th-Fox, declared in an interview in federal court. "Each of 10 companies will be represented with at least one feature and one short," the executive stated. Schenck hesitated to estimate the cost of the films but declared they total "millions of dollars."

He pointed out for his own company, that Darryl F. Zanuck had recently been appointed a lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserve Corps, and spent a weekend in Washington recently on the subjects which deal with social hygiene.

Zanuck is chairman of the committee, which includes Gordon S. Mitchell, manager of the research council of the Academy, and Nathan Levinson, vice-chairman. The committee, according to Schenck, is spending considerable time on promotion of the national defense campaign and has signified its intention to continue making available its services.

Twentieth-Fox will dramatize American volunteers in the RAF in "A Yank in the RAF," starring Tyrone Power, with Henry King directing. "Flight Surgeon" is in preparation, as well as "Nazi Ace in the U. S.," which is a story of an interned German ace who escapes to this country. Another will be "Pearl of Pearl Harbor," a musical with the U. S. base in Honolulu as background. "Our company also has a series of shorts under consideration along the line war officials have suggested. It is our intention to continue cooperating with the government in whatever we can do to make this country a better and safer place to live in," he stated.

Lists Other Efforts

"The whole-hearted spirit behind the whole idea in Hollywood is just another indicator that the film industry has never failed to give its best when called upon," Schenck asserted. Looking over other companies efforts he stated Columbia plans to make "He's My Uncle," a conscriptional musical starring Fred Astaire, and will also make "Red, White and Blue," which will have a military background. Important stars and directors will be added to the films as they pass the preparation stage.

Monogram is making "Navy Bound." It is one of the two independent companies to pledge support. Republic, the other, has "Rookies on Parade" in production. Top names are being selected for the casts.

M-G-M has "Flight Command" in distribution as well as "Land of Liberty." The company also has produced a short called "Our Flag." A number of important stories concerning the European strife similar to "The Mortal Storm," have been acquired and will be placed into production shortly.

Paramount, which recently completed "I Wanted Wings" as a roadshow attraction, has "Caught in the Draft," starring Bob Hope, "Little Miss Muffett" with Ann Shirley, "Power Drive" and "Forced Landing," both with Richard Arlen ready for release. Another by this company is "Among the Living," a spy melodrama.

RKO has two in preparation, entitled "Army Surgeon" and "Parachute Squadron." Harold Lloyd will release "A Girl, a Guy and a Gob" in the next few weeks and his next personal appearance will be in "My Favorite Spy," which deals with an actor's life as a draftee.

UA has "Landfall," dealing with the RAF and starring Glenn Ford. "The Angel Squadron" will be produced by Walter Wanger. Richard A. Rowland will make "The Battle of Britain."

Universal recently released "Buck Privates" with Abbott and Costello and has a sequel in work now, Schenck added.

Nine by Warner

Warner has "Three Sons O' Guns" with Wayne Morris, Lucille Fairbanks and Arthur Kennedy in production. Others by Warner will include "Sergeant York" with Gary Cooper; "Eagle Escadrille," another RAF subject; "I've Got Your Number," dealing with sabotage of communication systems; "Bomb Shelter" concerning London's underground activities during air raids; "Navy Blues" with Jack Oakie and Jack Haley; "Mother's Boys," a conscription comedy; "Dive Bomber," by Commander Frank Wead, and "Parachute Jumpers." All are scheduled to go into production soon.

This company, Schenck pointed out, produced a dozen patriotic shorts last year, some of which were winners of Academy awards, and recently intended to make a short called "The Tanks Are Coming." The story built so well a feature is now being planned. The Warner-Vitaphone shorts lineup boasts a series of "Preparedness Shorts," such as "Young America Flies," produced in cooperation with the Civilian Aeronautics Authority; "Service With Colors," produced in cooperation with the U. S. Army; "March on Marines," produced in cooperation with the U. S. Marines; "Meet the Fleet" in conjunction with the navy; "Wings of Steel" in conjunction with the army air corps, and "Soldiers of the Saddle" in cooperation with the cavalry.

Lastly the executive remarked that the Production Defense Coordinating Committee had been formed recently with Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president of Paramount as chairman. This is an affiliate of the National Defense Coordinating Committee. It includes representatives of producers, writers, directors, actors and studio craftsmen who will serve in an advisory capacity on all films being made in cooperation with the various governmental departments.

Concluding the discussion, it was declared the affiliation of the Academy research council and the U. S. Signal Corps photographic division is of great importance. Working with Capt. Charles Stodter of the Signal Corps are Zanuck, Levinson and Sam Briskin, the latter having received a captain's commission for a series of visual educational training films, the first two of which were sent by Zanuck to Washington.

SPG Goes Host; Cocktails Served

New York—The trade and daily metropolitan press were guests of the Screen Publicists Guild at a cocktail party at the Hotel Astor Friday. The fact that the SPG the day before concluded hearings with an NLRB field examiner in its petition for certification as bargaining representatives for its members in home office advertising and publicity posts was said to have played no part in the celebration.

"No ulterior motive," declared a spokesman, "just a get together." The SPG had about 40 present; the heads of various committees. The organization now awaits the decision of the NLRB in Washington, based on the findings of Examiner Dan Baker.

Buys Consolidated; Al Suchman Is Out

By BILL ORNSTEIN

NEW YORK—With the acquisition of 18 Consolidated Amusement circuit houses by Julius Joelson, Sunday, Al Suchman, chief buyer and booker for more than 10 years, has resigned and Harold J. Klein, who held the same spot at the Cocalis circuit, has replaced him. Sam Steifel, general manager of the Cocalis circuit and formerly a Quaker City exhibitor, assumes Klein's former duties in addition to his own.

First reported in BOXOFFICE, January 11, Laurence Bolognino denied a deal was cooking with Joelson. On two more occasions these columns mentioned the deal was on. However, since last October, when negotiations were first begun, the transfer of the houses had been kicked out and the deal off six different times.

Louis Nizer represented Joelson, while Charles Seigel acted for Bolognino. It has been known for some time that Bolognino has been anxious to retire due to ill health. Various circuits over the past number of years have dickered for the theatres, but were unable to get together with Bolognino. Among those who had previously talked about the houses were RKO, Si Fabian and one or two others.

Three Not Involved

Three houses are not involved. They are the Squire, Chelsea and Morningside. The 18 taken over are Ascot, Avalon, Casino, Earle, Fleetwood, Forum, Jerome, Kent, Kingsbridge, Luxor, Mt. Eden, Ogden, Oxford and Surrey, in the Bronx, and Arena, Bryant, Times and Rivoli, Manhattan. Total seating capacity involved amounts to 23,386, including 2,320 seats in the Forum, now closed.

The houses will operate under the J. J. Theatres, Inc., of which Joelson is the head. He is well known in the metropolitan area, having sold a circuit some years ago to Fox Film when Fox Metropolitan Playhouses was developing a local chain. He was next heard of in New England and recently sold his string to Mullin & Pinanski for a handsome figure.

No other changes are being made in the Consolidated personnel, it is stated.

Schenck Trial Now Enters Third Week

NEW YORK—Trial of Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of 20th Century-Fox, and Joseph H. Moskowitz, eastern representative, on alleged income tax evasion went into its second week in federal court with the government case against the film executive regarded as weak and depending on circumstantial, and not too clear, evidence.

During the week Victor Johnson, captain of Schenck's yacht, Carolina, was called as a witness in an attempt to prove the yacht was used for pleasure only and not for business. Both prosecution and defense succeeded in establishing nothing more important from the captain's testimony than a "yacht is called a she because she is so expensive to keep up."

John B. Codd, comptroller of 20th-Fox's coast studio, was a witness whose most important testimony was to the effect Schenck had lost $63,894 in gambling in 1937. Harold H. Corbin, defense counsel, has firmly implanted the fact in the jury's mind that the producer wagered on anything and always paid his losses. The implication here is if he paid gambling losses which could only be collected by a code of honor, he certainly was not going to attempt to defraud the government. The so-called loan of $100,000 to William Bioff, and Schenck's strong boxes in New York, where he kept his cash, were also discussed.

Marx Brothers Appear

The most important witnesses from the courtroom standpoint were Harpo and Chico Marx, who told of gambling losses and winnings with the producer while visiting his home, his yacht and clubs. The government attempted to prove no discussion had been held regarding the possibility of the brothers joining 20th-Fox, but Chico refuted this later to the annoyance of chief government counsel, Mathias H. Correa. He stated Schenck had tried to secure his services on several occasions. The government charged this was not what Chico told its investigator in California, but the actor retorted he had been mistaken then.

Catherine Sullivan, secretary to Moskowitz, was also on the stand and gave her employer a great send off. She related how he worked night and day on the job. She stated Nicholas M. Schenck, brother of the defendant and president of Loew's, had the right to sign as power of attorney on Joseph Schenck's New York bank accounts.

Sam Silver, Schenck's barber, testified he was paid $10 weekly by the studio for shaving Schenck, but also declared Schenck reimbursed the studio.

Dolph Schadler, head of the Loew's tax department, stated he made up Schenck's returns from 1927 on with the aid of Moskowitz. He vigorously denied that either he or Moskowitz ever attempted to "cheat" the government.

Schadler also said Schenck had nothing to do with the preparing of his report, but just approved it when it was finished.

Francis T. Kelly, accountant and auditor for 20th-Fox, stated Schenck received a salary of $2,500 weekly plus "reasonable traveling and living expenses" while away from home.

Fred L. Metzler, 20th-Fox treasurer and manager of the studio, was said to impair the government's case on alleged deductions for the use of Schenck's yacht when he revealed, in a letter of Sidney R. Kent, that the yacht had been loaned for three months to the company to allow Darryl F. Zanuck, head of production, to secure a much-needed vacation and rest. It was stated by Kent that while the price seemed high it was not too costly when Zanuck's health was taken into consideration.

This was designed to refute the government charge the yacht was used for pleasure only and for no useful purpose in its loan-out.

Grace Poggi, dancer, was called to testify that Schenck had given her a car and paid her transportation to various places and parties. Her maid, Loretta Bruce, also testified her fare was paid by 20th-Fox. Mrs. Janice Dawson Pierce, 20th-Fox contractee, told of various parties on the yacht and at clubs. The government is trying to establish that Schenck charged off these parties as business expenses, while actually they were for pleasure. The defense asserts that many valuable contracts arose as a result of them. Jay Paley, brother of William Paley, head of CBS, told of financial transactions with Schenck and of gambling parties. He insisted he always paid his own bills and produced vouchers to prove it.

On cross-examination Paley revealed Schenck had visited almost every 20th-Fox office on each of the yacht's trips to South America. He declared the trip had been termed a "goodwill tour." Among some of the people who visited with Schenck on the trip were Samuel Goldwyn, Louis B. Mayer, Darryl F. Zanuck, and William Goetz. Exhibitors from Mexico, Jamaica and Panama City, all visited with Schenck on the trip and were wined and dined. The insinuations tossed by the prosecution about Graciella Avril, who joined the trip in Havana and went to California, were squashed by Paley who told of her being introduced to the party, securing a job and being taken to California for that purpose.

Praise Prosecutor's Appointment

Her parents' consent was obtained before she made the trip. The government was obviously annoyed at the testimony and Correa uttered remarks concerning "obviously friendly witnesses."

Paley also testified that election bets on the Roosevelt-Landon campaign were won by Schenck and were intended to be paid by check. He stated there was no significance in these being paid in cash.

The court then dismissed the jury and flattered Correa on his appointment as U. S. attorney for the southern district. The defense joined in praise of the prosecutor.

Harry Wilson, yacht broker, came on the stand next and told of selling the yacht, Invader, to Schenck for $96,000 and of the producer reselling it to him some years later for $35,000. Schenck complained his friends were getting more use out of it than he was, Wilson said. The yacht was lent to Douglas Fairbanks to make a picture in the South Seas in 1932.

The witness said that there were many business conferences on board and mentioned numerous producers and other executives whom he saw on it.

Correa attempted to discredit the witness by asking if he expected to sell Schenck any more yachts and a squabble between attorneys ended this part of the testimony.

Al Wertheimer, cafe man, testified he had used Schenck's home for gambling purposes in the summer of 1937, and the producer "bawled the hell out of him" when he found it out on his return. Lou Wertheimer also testified on various trips and gambling with Schenck, and the day's last witness was Ruth Nolander, Schenck's secretary from 1925 to 1940, when she resigned to get married.

Wants U. S. Charter On Interstate Units

WASHINGTON—Enactment of a law providing for the federal licensing of corporations doing an interstate business will be sought in Congress by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.)

Inclusion of a recommendation of such legislation in the final report of the temporary national economic committee was urged by the senator, who is chairman of the committee, at its final session for the submission of suggestions for dealing with monopoly in trade and industry.

The federal licensing of national corporations, strict enforcement of the anti-trust statutes and tax relief for small businesses, the senator declared, will pave the way for the halting of the trend toward domination of our national economy by a few large corporations and "avoid the continued expansion of government control over private business."

"Do Away With Regulation"

"Such a system," he told the committee, "would make unnecessary the creation of new boards and commissions because it could be used to define so clearly the responsibilities and the duties of all national corporations that discretionary regulation would be unnecessary."

Senator O'Mahoney did not refer specifically to the film industry, which was not one of those investigated during the two years and nine months of the TNEC's studies. He did, however, refer to the oil industry, whose structure and practices closely parallel those in the film industry, in terms which could well be applied to motion pictures.

"The maintenance of free, private enterprise demands first of all that small enterprise should be effectively protected against attack by what we call monopoly," he said. "The big company which crushes its small competitor by underselling, that is to say, by selling at a loss, commits the unforgiveable economic sin. That is not competition. That is economic war.

"The national oil company, for example, which enters a little community and builds a filling station across the street from an independent dealer and, by selling at a loss, forces him to sell out or suspend, destroys the very basis of a free economy."

Civil Rights Law Action Dismissed

NEW YORK—Court news of the week slowed down considerably with the most important suit being a dismissal of an action by Harry Seaman against 20th-Fox, Darryl F. Zanuck, Sidney R. Kent and W. C. Michel, by City Magistrate Joseph Ringel after trial. The plaintiff claimed the company violated the civil rights law by using his name without permission in "Tin Pan Alley." Despite the dismissal the plaintiff claims he will file a $50,000 damage action in supreme court against 20th-Fox.

Warner examined Louis Macconnach, secretary of NBC, before trial in federal court in connection with a $100,000 suit by Booth Tarkington. The author claims Warner made "Penrod and his Twin Brother," not based on any story of his. An injunction is also sought. The film company, in its defense, claims the public associates it, and not the author, with the character as a result of the many films it made about Penrod.

Suit of Forrester Parant Productions against Marlene Dietrich was shifted from supreme to federal court because of diversity of citizenship. Action seeks $98,450, claiming the actress breached a contract made in 1938 to make a film for the plaintiff in France.

Uphold Local 306

Local 306 was the winner in a supreme court dispute against the ITOA and the People's Cinema when Justice Aaron Levy confirmed an award and ordered the defendant not to use any but local 306 men. The award was made by the American Arbitration Ass'n last month. People's Cinema claimed it was not bound by the ITOA-306 contract since it joined the ITOA after the contract was made in January, 1937, but the court ruled otherwise.

Geza Herczeg, author and writer well known in Hollywood, filed a voluntary petition of bankruptcy in federal court listing $150 in assets and $71,129 in liabilities. Among creditors are W. K. Sheehan, $2,800; Alexander Korda, $2,000, and Frank Orsatti, $250. Largest creditor is his wife, Leopoldine, $52,000.

Lee Morrison was examined before trial in supreme court in connection with a $25,000 suit against Joan Crawford. The producer claims the actress backed out on a deal to appear in a play of his, "Death Wears a Rose," and as a result of her withdrawal he lost his financial backing.

John Norling, film producer of the firm of Loucks & Norling, will be examined before trial in supreme court in connection with a $3,750 suit by Emerson Yorke, producer. Yorke claims that amount is due him on percentages under a contract whereby he introduced the defendants to the Chrysler company which gave them $80,000 for the production of two-third dimensional films. The defense claims the deal was for one film only, and that the plaintiff had been paid in full for services.

Kenneth P. Steinreich, Leopold Porrino and Milton C. Weisman, all trustees of Fox Theatres Corp., filed a plea in supreme court which will be heard March 31, asking that their plan of operation for dissolution of the estate of Fox Theatres for 1941 and their report on 1940 operations be approved, that compensation to them be fixed by the court and that they be permitted to sell land owned by Fox Theatres in the Bronx.

Trustees were appointed February 24, 1939. Their 1940 report shows a total of $167,937 in assets left, which includes $87,187 in cash, $80,000 held in reserve for a claim of $7,000,000 against Fox Theatres by William Fox, and $750 for attorneys fees to prosecute a claim for a similar amount against William Fox. Fox Theatres filed a bankruptcy petition in federal court about nine years ago, listing assets of over $35,000,000 which are practically all gone now.

Universal and its officers and directors have asked the supreme court to make William Freiday serve them with an amended complaint separately stating and numbering causes of action. Feiday is suing for $2,000,000 damages, claiming waste and mismanagement.

Seven former members of Allied M. P. Operators have filed a supreme court action against Local 306, claiming the union has not kept its agreement to employ them under an agreement made in 1937. Court action forcing the union to admit them to membership is asked.

For Friendship—

This was Willian F. Rodgers' keynoter in an Associated M. P. Advertisers address. As he was stressing the need to abandon distrust, his letter outlining M-G-M's intent, as well as much of its sales policy, under the decree was on its way to approximately 10,000 accounts. BOXOFFICE now publishes the complete text, having highlighted it last week. (See page 15*).*

Buys Japanese Bonds

NEW YORK—The Associated Press reports Tokio newspapers as stating Paramount had purchased Japanese government bonds worth $179,000 from "frozen" funds for which it could not obtain a permit for conversion into American dollars.

Other companies are reported planning similar procedure.

Production in '39 Cost $144,577,050

WASHINGTON — Completing its over-all picture of the film industry, the United States Census Bureau this week reported that the producers expended $144,577,050 on the production of theatrical films in 1939, the film exchanges received $243,482,000 in rentals and the exhibitors took in $673,045,000 in admissions.

Reporting on the business of the exchanges, the bureau announced that the 1939 rentals were 10.4 per cent above the $220,605,000 reported for 1929. The number of exchanges, in the same period, declined from 533 to 517, but the average receipts per exchange increased from $413,893 to $470,952.

The distribution branch of the industry provided employment for 11,332 persons, who were paid $21,195,000 in salaries and wages during 1939, the average annual earnings per employe being $1,870. In 1929, there were 9,342 employes and salaries and wages were $17,978,000. Salaries and wages amounted to 8.7 cents out of each dollar of rentals in 1939 against 8.1 cents in 1929.

Total operating or "overhead" expenses, including pay roll but not the cost of films, amounted to $33,839,000, or 13.9 per cent of sales, against $34,639,000, or 15.7 per cent in 1929.

The bureau pointed out that the producer exchanges comprise the important branch of distribution, accounting for approximately 60 per cent of the number of exchanges and over 85 per cent of the total receipts.

There were 303 producer exchanges in 1939, with total rentals of $210,938,000, an average of $696,000 per exchange, and 214 independent exchanges with total receipts of $32,544,000, an average of $152,000.

The operating expenses of the producer exchanges were $26,914,000, or 12.8 per cent of net sales, while those of the independent exchanges were $6,925,000, or 21.3 per cent. The labor cost of the independents was 50 per cent greater than that of the producer establishments, or 12.8 cents per dollar of sales against 8.1 cents.

Slightly more than one-fifth of the dollar volume, 20.4 per cent, was reported for the state of New York, California being second with 10.7 per cent and Pennsylvania third with 8.9 per cent.

Para't Sells Debentures

NEW YORK—Paramount Pictures, Inc., in a report to the SEC, tells of sale to five banks of $2,492,800 in 3¼ per cent debentures, due in 1947. The sale was made at 95.2 per cent and interest from September 1, of last year. The money is to go to payment of obligations and retirement of securities.

Harold F. Wilkes Dead

NEW ORLEANS—Harold F. Wilkes, former Paramount district manager, with the company for 27 years, died Thursday night in a local hospital.

They Watch Topper Return—

Many local exhibitors turned out for the trade show of the new Roach comedy at the Astor the other day, as this photographic foray reveals. Top row shows Jack Hattem, chief buyer and booker of the Interboro circuit; Sam Goodman of the Century circuit and Henry Siegel of the Little Carnegie Playhouse. Below is a Randforce circuit group, including Harold Rinzler, George Longbart, Sid Dreyer, Irving Kaplan and Jack Langbaum. Finally, Ed Peskay, the producer's eastern representative, and Jack Shea of the Feiber and Shea chain.

"Doe" in Gala Debut At 7 in 4 Cities

NEW YORK—Many Broadway and theatrical personalities turned out for the premiere performances of "Meet John Doe" at the Hollywood and Rivoli, Wednesday night. Arc lights were focused at both theatres and also formed a triangle between both theatres as a slushy snow made traffic difficult. Every Warner home office executive in town was on hand for the event. Both houses held two special shows, the first at 7:30 and the second at 10 p. m.

At the same time, similar openings were held at the Hollywood and Downtown in Los Angeles, the Miami and Beach in Miami, and at the Criterion, Oklahoma City.

Warner to Decentralize Film Buying Personnel

NEW YORK — As the Warner circuit's long-term franchises with at least two distributors near the expiration mark and all buying becomes localized as dictated by the decree, the chain will further decentralize its film buying personnel, zone managers attending a meeting at the home office were informed. The session was presided over by Joseph Bernhard, general manager.

Routine operating problems consumed most of the meeting, which was followed by a dinner at Toots Shor's restaurant. Zone managers attending included James Coston, Chicago; Nat Wolf, Cleveland; I. J. Hoffman, New Haven; Don Jacocks, Newark; Moe Silver, Albany; Ted Schlanger, Philadelphia; Harry Kalmine, Pittsburgh, and John J. Payette, Washington.

From the home office, besides Bernhard, were Clayton Bond, Ed Hinchy, Harry Goldberg, Leonard Schlesinger, Frank Phelps, Sam Harris, Nat Fellman, Abel Vigard, W. S. McDonald, Harry Rosenquest, Louis Kaufman, Herman Maier and Frank Cahill.

Two More Objectionable "In Part" to Legion

NEW YORK—Two more major company releases go into the Legion of Decency's "B," or objectionable in part, classification. "That Night in Rio" is one because of "suggestive dialogue and scenes." "That Uncertain Feeling" is another, the reason being "suggestive lines; light treatment of marriage."

"Adolescence," released by Select, is condemned, the Legion maintaining "the story greatly emphasizes sex; very suggestive scenes."

UA and Universal File Reply to Gov't Suit

NEW YORK—UA and Universal have filed answers in the federal court to the government anti-trust suit against them. Both companies listed general denials of all charges and asked for a dismissal.

REVIEW FLASHES

ROUND-UP, THE (Para)—Melodrama of the triangle plot variety, with an early west locale, this should prove popular among those seeking a combination of dramatics and six-gun action, particularly inasmuch as the cast is topped by two names, Richard Dix and Preston Foster, with established following in that market. Harry Sherman produced; Lesley Selander directed.

SLEEPERS WEST (20th-Fox)—Further adventures of Michael Shayne, private detective. This is long on dialogue, short on action and story and devoid of suspense. It classifies no better than as fair to middlin' supporting material. Sol M. Wurtzel produced; Eugene Forde directed.

THAT UNCERTAIN FEELING (Lesser-Lubitsch-UA)—Triangular farce, with bedroom overtones. Story and situation are decidedly on the skimpy side, and the footage to cover both is stretched pretty thin. Has amusing situations, if far apart. Burgess Meredith takes acting honors. Merle Oberon and Melvyn Douglas are good, but trail. Directed by Ernst Lubitsch.

300 Prints and Trailers Of "Power for Defense"

NEW YORK—More than 300 prints and the same number of trailers of "Power for Defense," the first reel officially approved by the Motion Picture Committee Cooperating for National Defense, are now available to all exhibitors who have signed pledges to cooperate in this industry effort. The reels, which run 11 minutes, are gratis. The trailer runs one minute and deals with the defense training program.

To avoid any confusion with regular shorts which might be considered as part of the defense program, the committee, which is headed by Joseph Bernhard, head of Warner circuit operations, emphasizes that only those reels approved by the committee are official and that no exhibitor is required to pay for showing approved reels.

Universal Net

NEW YORK—Universal Pictures and subsidiary companies report net profit of $703,795 during the 13 weeks ended February 1, the first quarter. The figure, which is after all charges but before federal income and excess profits taxes, compares with a similar computed profit, but after provision of $60,000 as a special amortization reserve, of $395,631 in the corresponding quarter in 1940.

Extend Nugent Pact

HOLLYWOOD—Frank Nugent, former film critic of the New York Times, whose first year's contract as a writer for 20th Century-Fox expires in April, has been given a year's extension.

To Open Theatre for Commercial Films

NEW YORK—Harold McCracken, formerly in the shorts department of RKO and more recently president of Courier Prod., has incorporated National Documentary Theatre Co., Inc., and has taken a long-term lease on the Belmont which will be re-named the Documentary Theatre and run a combination of commercials and documentary films.

Purpose of the project is to provide an outlet for these types of films which have long been an industry headache. Major companies generally have refused to handle commercials in their theatres and advertisers have been forced to purchase playing time in independent and circuit houses.

The Documentary, which will open on or about April 5, will show commercially sponsored films daily from 10:30 to 6:30 p. m. Programs will be repeated six times daily with four to eight sponsors represented on each program. Admission will be by free ticket, obtainable only at the respective offices of the sponsors. This is designed to eliminate the prospective "bench warmers" and housewives whose desire or ability to purchase the product is lacking. An effort will be made to show films which are analagous, such as an auto manufacturer, an oil distributor, and a radio manufacturer on the same bill.

The theatre will be staffed to handle special needs of sponsors such as giveaways, samples, literature, etc. Space will be made available for advertising displays and demonstrations.

From 7 p. m. to closing documentaries will be shown at a nominal admission. Both shorts and features will be exhibited and factual Hollywood features also will be included.

Associated with McCracken will be Doti Edouard, one of the pioneers in sound recording, as sales manager. Fitelson and Mayers are attorneys for the company.

Western Electric Paying 75 Cents on Common

NEW YORK—Directors of Western Electric declared a 75 cents dividend on the common, payable March 31 to stockholders of record March 26.

Guy W. Vaughan, president of Curtis Wright Corp., has been elected a director of Western Electric. At the same time it was announced Frederic H. Leggett, treasurer and director of the company, will retire April 1 after 43 years of service. George B. Proud, assistant treasurer, succeeds Leggett.

Atlanta Leads 10 Over Depinet Drive Quotas

NEW YORK—Headed by Atlanta, 10 RKO exchanges have exceeded their quotas in the first five weeks of the Ned E. Depinet drive. The other nine branches are Philadelphia, New Orleans, St. Louis, Oklahoma City, Kansas City, Washington, Milwaukee, Indianapolis and Buffalo. The southeastern district has the leading number of exchanges in the drive.

Attacks Hays Office; Scores "Lobbying"

WASHINGTON—Lobbying activities of the MPPDA have been an important factor in enabling the producer-distributors to dominate the industry, it is charged by Donald C. Blaisdell, TNEC economist.

Reporting to the temporary national economic committee on economic power and political pressures, Blaisdell, analyzing the lobbying activities of several hundred trade and financial organizations, recommended federal registration of all lobbyists and full publicizing of their operations.

"The need for registration of lobbyists and adequate machinery for publicity grows out of the obscurity in which lobbies operate to affect public policy, and the extent to which such pressure groups distort the right of petition," he explained. "Only when Congress exercises its investigating power does the public begin to have access to the facts about legislative lobbying."

"Big Eight Controls"

The motion picture industry, he contended, is one in which the producing and distributing functions are to a large extent combined in a field which is dominated by a few large corporations.

"The smaller producing companies are compelled to permit 'the Big Eight' to distribute their films in order to have them shown at the larger theatres," the monograph stated. "In addition to this control, the movie industry exercises other controls in the form of block booking and blind selling. The producers sell their films in blocks to the independent exhibitor. In order to obtain the outstanding films the exhibitor must buy several other films which are often inferior. The independent exhibitors claim that they are often compelled to take the entire year's output of three or four of the 'Big Eight' distributors in order to get the pictures they really want. The exhibitor usually has the privilege of rejecting ten per cent, and he is not compelled to show all the films he agrees to buy, although he is required to pay for them. Contracts are made before the films are produced, and the exhibitor frequently signs without seeing a synopsis of the films; hence it is beyond his power to exercise his own choice in the type of films he will show."

Seeks Aid Since 1928

Since 1928, the report continued, the independent exhibitors have been seeking congressional aid in solving their problem. In this they have been confronted with the lobbying activities of the MPPDA, which the monograph proceeded to outline as evidenced in the consideration of the Neely bill, originally introduced in 1936.

"A similar bill easily passed the Senate in 1938, and was referred to the House interstate commerce committee, of which Representative Lea (California) was chairman," it said. "Chairman Lea said: 'I just don't see how we can do anything about the bill this session. I should not like to report it out without hearing and I cannot see where we can find time to have any at this late date.' Thus the bill was not acted upon by the House.

"The Hays organization (the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America) brought powerful pressure against the bill. It did not reach the floor of the House in 1938, and in July, 1939, it again passed the Senate, only to be again held up in the House. Hearings were held in the spring of 1940 by the House interstate commerce committee but no action was taken."

Blaisdell pointed out that many organizations and groups supported the bill and that "familiar arguments were raised on both sides." As an example of the effort made to sway Congress, he referred to the statement of one committee member that he had received letters from child stars, such as Shirley Temple and Mickey Rooney, discussing the moral and economic factors involved in the bill.

"It is quite probable that registration and publicizing of lobbyists and their activities will not wholly meet the problem confronting us," the report concluded. "However, the adoption of such a law would probably throw more light on the relationship between political activity and the concentration of economic power than any other proposal likely of adoption."

Metro Deals Alone on Next British Quota

NEW YORK—M-G-M will negotiate remittances from England with the British government on an individual basis as soon as the current agreement expires October 31, 1941, it is learned. For the current year the figure permitted to leave England is $12,900,000, this to be allocated over the eight majors.

M-G-M has objected to the method of allocating the funds because of its low operating setup in the United Kingdom. Recently, the company permitted the matter to go before arbitration and Milton J. Handler, Columbia law professor, ruled against the company in favor of the other seven majors.

Insofar as arbitration is concerned, one executive said it will never come to that again. This, in itself, is deemed indicating that, in the future, Sam Eckman, general manager for M-G-M in UK, will enter upon negotiations with the British board of trade on a basis of what the company is entitled to transmit rather than as a party to a general agreement.

Golden Plans Roadshow Social Hygiene Film

NEW YORK—E. A. ("Eddie") Golden, former Monogram sales manager, has formed University Film Productions to produce a social hygiene film tentatively entitled "The Kiss of Death," which he plans to roadshow in key centers. Monogram will not participate in the deal, although Golden has an interest with George Weeks in the latter's deal for distribution of two series of westerns through the company. Golden's first independent venture is due for release June 1.

The story is an original by M. C. Ransone and the script has been prepared with the cooperation of health and scientific authorities.

Poll Will Plumb Problems of Day

NEW YORK—The American Institute of Public Opinion, better known as the Gallup Poll, is the latest entrant in the film field.

Through a contract concluded with the American Institute of Motion Pictures, independent producers headed by Edmund Lawrence Dorfman, selected samplings of American opinions conducted by Gallup will be dramatized in a series of one-reelers, to be released one a month. The contract runs for two years, with an option for five more.

Issues of the day, such as aid to Britain, United States policy in the Far East, labor and defense industries and other topics of domestic and overseas importance, will be depicted on the basis of the poll returns, just as the 126 newspapers which sponsor Gallup's organization print them. The films will be so timed for release to follow closely the publication of the Gallup Poll findings.

The deal provides for the 126 newspapers, known in publishing circles as the "Tiffany list," to give wide publicity to the subjects as they are shown locally. Production is to start in the next few weeks, with a major distribution deal said to be virtually closed. Dorfman, a 30-year-old Harvard Law School graduate, has produced a few subjects for Columbia. Last year, during the Presidential election, he turned out a series of documentary shorts on the lives and opinions of leading candidates for the office.

Last year Gallup conducted a poll on double features which showed a slight majority of theatregoers in favor of single bills, and two weeks ago polled the country on the most popular stars.

Appeals Board Reception For Industry Leaders

NEW YORK—Van Vechten Veeder, George W. Alger and Albert W. Putnam, members of the national arbitration appeals board, tendered a reception to industry leaders and attorneys Wednesday at the Rockefeller Center Lounge.

Among those attending were Tom Connors, Leonard Goldenson, Sam Dembow, Joseph H. Hazen, Tyree Dillard jr., Howard Levinson, Robert W. Perkins, James V. Hayes, Louis Phillips, Bertram Shipman, William Zimmerman, Gordon E. Youngman, Robert Mochrie, Austin C. Keough, Charles F. Young, J. Noble Braden, Myron E. Bull, Stanley C. Thompson, R. R. Irvine, Leon Netter, W. J. Merrill and Louis Weber.

Universal Directors Renamed for a Year

NEW YORK—All Universal directors have been re-elected for another year. They include Nate J. Blumberg, Paul G. Brown, D. C. Collins, J. Cheever Cowdin, Preston Davie, Peyton Gibson, Ottavio Prochet, Charles D. Prutzman, J. Arthur Rank, Budd Rogers, Daniel M. Schaeffer and William H. Taylor jr.

NT May Move Film Buyers to Field

LOS ANGELES—Some of National Theatres' home office film buyers may be transferred to the field to assist divisional operating heads on new deals under the decree, it was indicated by Spyros Skouras, president, at the annual get-together of home office executives and zone heads at Arrowhead Springs.

At the sessions, Skouras gave considerable stress to the importance of local film buying under the new order. E. L. Alperson, at one time film buyer for the entire circuit, has been working out of Milwaukee for the past year. Milton Hossfeld, who has a home here, spent several weeks here working with Larry Kent, FWC film buyer, after his vacation.

It is stated preliminary negotiations on 1941-42 deals, where the circuit does not have franchises, will be started in New York and completed in the field with the home office executives splitting up their duties into divisions, each to take over the buying of one, where necessary.

Charles P. Skouras has been named field marshal again for the new Skouras Showmanship Campaign, which will get under way April 13 and wind up July 4. Approximately $25,000 in cash awards were distributed to winners in the recent drive which lasted 17 weeks.

Explain Effect of Decree

John F. Caskey and Fred Pride of Dwight, Harris, Koegel & Caskey, New York, explained the effect of the decree on theatre operations. A special manual has been gotten up for the theatre group for reference.

Also on the tapis was the old age pension plan which has been discussed from time to time, and is yet not finally completed.

Various divisional heads spoke as well as a number of equipment dealers. The circuit is now planning its greatest rehabilitation drive to meet the contemplated business increase under the new national defense spending program.

Several easterners left for the east immediately following the sessions. In that group were Skouras and William T. Powers.

Among those who attended, in addition to those named, are Dan Michalove, Edward Zabel, Aubrey Schenck, Harry T. Cox, Irving Barry, Peter Lundgren and John Healy, from the home office. From the field were Arch Bowles, San Francisco; Harold J. Fitzgerald, Milwaukee; E. C. Rhoden, Kansas City; David Idzal, Detroit; Frank (Rick) Ricketson, Denver; Al Finke, Seattle; Harry Huffman, Portland; Frank L. Newman sr., Seattle. From the FWC office were Charles A. Buckley, John Bertero, Clarence Ennis, and others.

SYRACUSE—The Carrier Corp. reports a record net of $526,628 for 1940, or $1.34 per share. It compares with $18,788 for 1939. J. I. Lyle, president, reports that a record backlog of unfilled orders on hand amounting to $4,903,000 carried over to 1941.

Now It's Premiere On the Briny Deep

Hollywood—There has been that occasional premiere on board ship, but the ship has been tied neatly and safely to the pier. Along come the Warners now—they started this thing with the cross-country train of "42nd Street"—with a new high.

That new high is the momentary premiere of "The Sea Wolf" aboard the "America" as it beats its way up the California coast from Los Angeles to San Francisco.

Film celebrities will be aboard, of course.

Deal Finally Set, Goldwyn, UA Part

NEW YORK—Samuel Goldwyn and UA finally have called it a day. The distribution deal between the two which UA has constantly maintained ran until 1945, is washed up and the producer's one-fifth stock interest in the company purchased by UA itself.

The company wrote "finis" to a long and hectically argued situation with brief official word. Its statement, in strictly legalistic language, read:

"Samuel Goldwyn and United Artists Corp. announce the final consummation and formal execution of the agreement whereby Mr. Goldwyn is relieved of the obligation of distributing any future productions through United Artists Corp. and the purchase by United Artists Corp. of his unit of stock in that company.

"The agreement was ratified by the board of directors of United Artists Corp. at its meeting today (Tuesday, March 11, 1941)."

Britain and Australia On Equal Level Here

NEW YORK—UA's answer to the opposition of the Australasian Exhibitors' Congress to paying 50 per cent for "The Great Dictator" on the ground "so wicked a price for films . . . is a luxury Australia cannot afford," infers that, if exhibitors in Great Britain can afford the 50 per cent scale, so can its sister nation.

Murray Silverstone, UA's general manager of world operations, referred BOXOFFICE to his foreign sales manager, Walter Gould, for the record of correspondence which, he said, would show that the CEA in England recommended to the trade the film be booked at 50 per cent.

More for Navy Shows

WASHINGTON—Anticipating increases in the number of ships and shore stations, Congress has provided $125,000 for the Navy's motion picture service during the fiscal year beginning July 1, next, an increase of $40,000 over this year's fund.

Warner May Focus On All Big Ones

NEW YORK—Warner will concentrate on big pictures only next season, it is stated by a home office executive. The number of films to be made for 1941-42 is yet undecided, but within the next few weeks Harry M. and Jack L. Warner will get together with Gradwell L. Sears and other sales executives for final plans for the new season.

Home office executives who have been advocating the plan for only top pictures, say this is becoming more apparent in view of operations under the decree which provides for blocks of five, it is asserted.

With Harry Warner arriving from the coast Monday and Albert from Miami Beach, tentative conferences will be held with Sears, these to be followed by a coast meeting next month. Sears and a number of other home office sales executives were scheduled to leave for the coast early in the month, but postponed the trip because of the recent eastern visit of Jack Warner and the arrival Monday of Harry and Albert.

Would Ban Importation Of German Pictures

NEW YORK—In a wire to the state department, the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League urges the government to place an embargo on the importation of German films.

"Such an embargo," read the telegram, "would serve both as a measure of retaliation and a protest against the anti-American and anti-democratic propaganda contained in the films now shown in 'German quarters,' to quote Herr Hippler."

The Hippler statement referred to a cable to the New York Times from Berlin in which Fitz Hippler, head of the cinema department of the Reich Ministry of Propaganda, answered the President's address to the Academy. He stated Germany's ban on American film was "a necessity forced on us by America and demanded by our national honor and political self defense."

Metro Reported Dealing With Lunt & Fontanne

NEW YORK—M-G-M is reported negotiating with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, who appeared in "The Guardsman" some years ago for the company, to make "There Shall Be No Night" by Robert E. Sherwood. Under the rumored deal, Sherwood would write the script. The stars have been on the road with the play, after a run on Broadway, and are expected to take a vacation on their Wisconsin farm before going to Hollywood, if at all.

It is understood J. Robert Rubin, general counsel for M-G-M, is handling the deal with Sherwood.

Dick Condon, publicity head for the company, continues on the coast for the time being, Horne stated . . . Sid Grauman, the coast showman, is in town . . . Moe Sanders of the local 20th-Fox exchange leaves Wednesday for Miami and a vacation. He will be accompanied by Murray Schoen, local exhibitor, and Leo Miskoff, theatre realtor. In Washington they will pick up Max Cohen, Universal Washington branch manager, and stop over at Pinehurst for a round of golf before proceeding to the winter resort . . . The Lion Five, M-G-M's basketball team undefeated last season, has begun practice for the new season. The first game will be against National Screen, March 29.

Charles L. O'Reilly flew in from Hollywood, Fla., to attend the annual meeting of Loft directors. He returned south Wednesday to resume his vacation . . . Billy Brandt returned early in the week from Miami Beach and reports brother Harry will be back Tuesday, from the same spot . . . Jack Goetz was in Washington Wednesday on DuArt Lab. business . . . J. J. Milstein left Friday for Mexico City and a vacation . . . Arthur Gottlieb has gone back to Canada, after a few days in town . . . Jim Mulvey, Samuel Goldwyn's eastern representative, has a new line when he's seen with the UA crowd. Now that Goldwyn has sold out his interest as a UA partner, Mulvey says he's "a guest" when in the company of UA men.

Bob Perkins, who has been ill with pneumonia, is in fine fettle again after a vacation in Georgia, most of which was spent hunting . . . Arthur Seigel, whose exhibition activities now center in Jacksonville, Fla., is due to arrive Monday for a short stay . . . Lou Johnson, head shipper at the local M-G-M exchange and president of Local B-51, returns Monday from a vacation at Miami . . . Gene Fowler is another visitor from the coast . . . Charles Moss and the missus left over the weekend for Miami . . . James Coston left Wednesday night by train for his headquarters in Chicago after a few days in town. He reports business as good in his home town . . . Charles Goetz is still around, which means that coast vacation trip is off again . . . Ben Amsterdam, the Philadelphia exhibitor, got back from Miami complaining about the 14 days of rain he ran into on his vacation.

Herman Wobber, 20th Century-Fox's general sales manager, is on the coast . . . Ditto S. Barret McCormick, for RKO . . . Lou Johnson, head shipper at the M-G-M exchange, is in Florida. From the same office, Sue Armand, Ben Abner's secretary, and Moe Rose, New York booker, are on vacations . . . Rose Mirell, secretary to Leon Netter, Paramount circuit executive, is nursing a torn leg ligament as a result of a trolley accident . . . March 10 appropriately enough rounded out the 10th anniversary for Mitzi and Arthur Jeffrey—he is one of Monroe Greenthal's UA staff . . .

Well Wishers—

A toast to "Arizona" was in order when these five met this week at the Hollywood Beach Hotel, down on the edge of the Gulf Stream in Florida. Four of his friends are sharing Louis Weinberg's hope for the continued success of the feature whose premiere at Tucson he attended prior to coming south for his midwinter vacation. Weinberg, second from left, is circuit sales executive for Columbia. The others are, left to right, Mrs. Weinberg, Eddie Goldstein, former sales manager for Warner, Mrs. Louis Goldstein, wife of an executive of the Schine circuit, and Mrs. Eddie Goldstein.

William F. Rodgers, Mrs. R., and daughter, Myrtle Anne, are in Hollywood, the one in Florida . . . Bernie Brooks, film buyer and general manager of the Rosenblatt-Welt Circuit, has been nursing a bad cold at home . . . Ditto Oscar Doob.

Eddie Schnitzer is back from Miami where he went to recuperate from a recent gallstone operation . . . Adam Adams, Paramount partner in Paterson and Newark, is south to take in a bit of that Miami sun . . . Mort Spring has returned from a three-week vacation at Tucson . . . Collier Young, studio RKO story editor, is back on the coast after a two-week visit in the east . . . Leo Abrams started Monday as local exchange head of National Screen. The post is newly created . . . Moe Silver has returned to his desk at Albany after a Miami layoff . . . Leo Spitz has gone back to the coast . . . J. Robert Rubin, although he is not keen about the coast as a general rule, is there spending part of his vacation, the rest of which will be taken at resorts in the desert . . . Loretta Young has been here from Hollywood . . . James Whale and William Boyd are visiting the Great White Way.

Morris Kutinsky is back from Miami and Matty Kutinsky was due over the weekend after a 10-day siesta on the southern beaches . . . Arthur Loew returned from the coast the latter part of the week. His South American trip has been delayed for the time being, but he will make it later on . . . Joe Rosthal of M-G-M's foreign department is back after being out three months due to illness . . . Max Fellerman has returned from a West Indies cruise and a few weeks at Miami Beach . . . Zella Smith, secretary to R. H. Emde, RKO division manager, has left for Hollywood on a six-week vacation . . . Sol Schwartz did a terrific job on that "Kitty Foyle" contest in his Bronx and Manhattan RKO houses . . . Myer Schine is in Miami. He has been there a few weeks, taking his wife who had been ill and is now on the road to recovery.

Ned E. Depinet returns Monday from a three-week business trip to the RKO studios. There is no telling when George J. Schaefer will head for his headquarters in the RKO Building again . . . Joe Ornstein, cashier at the 20th-Fox branch in Pittsburgh, is a father for the second time, the latest arrival being a seven-pound boy . . . Joe Schoen has returned from Miami climes . . . Mike Rudin of Rapf and Rudin left over the weekend for Miami Beach . . . I. Seider has returned from the Keys with a goodly quota of fish. He reports brother Joe doing well, but not so much with the rod. He is an expert fisherman when in fine fettle . . . Louis Nelson, Herman Becker and Dan Seider are in the south on vacations . . . Joe Under is winding up his first week at Palm Beach . . . Sam Rinzler, who has been away a month, is due back Monday from Miami . . . Joe Hornstein's wife has returned to Florida after spending a week here. She came back with her husband and is now with her son who will finish college in Miami.

Hal Roach left for the coast a few days ahead of the trade screening at the Astor of "Topper Returns." Among those who were on hand for the local showing were Jack Hattem, Sam Goodman, Harold Rinzler, Irving Langbard, Irving Kaplan, Jack Langbaum, Jack Shea, Henry Seigel, Irving Renner and a number of others . . . Lee Kamern, manager of the Astor, is boasting of the fact his great danes, Sondra and Yak, are parents of six females and two males . . . Richard Baer and Perry Ferguson, production assistant and art director for Orson Welles, are in from the coast discussing plans for the next picture to be made in Mexico, starting mid-April.

Operating Weekends

ALBANY—The Regent, one of three Schine houses in Amsterdam, is now operating weekends. It was closed last summer, but was not relighted in September, as expected.

Republic Has 17 of 34; Want No More

CHICAGO—Now directly owning 17 of the 34 exchanges distributing Republic product, the company does not plan to acquire any more, James R. Grainger, president, reveals.

Denying that Republic might adopt the old First National sub-franchise plan, Grainger says that about 37 per cent of the company's business is handled by the 17 exchanges it owns.

Republic Inks Pact for "Ice Capades" Feature

KANSAS CITY—Herbert J. Yates and M. J. Siegel for Republic and John H. Harris for Ice Capades, Inc., formalized here Thursday a contract for the production by the studio of a feature based on the ice show current at the Pla-Mor rink here. Also participating in the conference was Bobby North, who will produce the film, tentatively said to be titled "Ice Capades of 1941." Joseph Santley is said to be top nominee for the directorial berth.

All executives departed early Friday morning by plane for their respective offices; Yates to New York, Harris to Pittsburgh, and Siegel and North to Hollywood.

The entire cast of the ice show is to be used in the film.

National Film Carriers Likely to Retain Clark

NEW YORK—James P. Clark, head of Horlacher's Delivery Service, is slated to be re-elected president of the National Film Carriers at the annual convention to be held at the Park Central, May 12-14.

Home office executives of the various companies will speak to the delegates, as is the usual custom. Clint Weyer, secretary, is in charge of details and arrangements.

Columbia Sets Awards In Goodwill Campaign

NEW YORK—A series of awards to Columbia branch managers, salesmen, office managers and bookers has been set up as a further stimulus for the "Columbia Exhibitors Goodwill Campaign," under the direction of Rube Jackter, assistant sales manager. In addition, there will be special cash bonuses to the 10 leading salesmen who show the greatest improvement in accounts sold by May 30, as compared to those sold by June 8, 1940.

Eastman Net $21,537,577

NEW YORK—Eastman Kodak net for 1939, including all wholly-owned subsidiaries except those in Germany, was $21,537,577, equivalent to $8.55 on each share of common. Consolidated net, including only net profits of the parent company and wholly-owned subsidiaries in this hemisphere, was $20,076,739. This is equivalent to earnings of $7.96 on each of the 2,488,242 shares of no par common outstanding after deducting dividends paid on the preferred.

Excited About Her—

This is Veronica Lake, who plays the feminine lead in "I Wanted Wings." Paramount is much enthused and much excited over her. Miss Lake came east for a day or so from Canada and, as this is read, is back once more in Hollywood.

Depicts Decree as Easing "Huge Economic Burden"

NEW YORK—Speaking on the general subject, "Arbitration in Action," J. Noble Braden, executive director of the arbitration tribunals, told audiences at the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia and the Harvard School of Business here that the decree and its provisions for arbitration of disputes "lifted a huge economic burden from both the government and the movie industry at a time when all our resources should be directed towards maintaining internal unity and peace."

"Pot O' Gold" Premiere Welcomed in Mexico

NEW YORK—The enthusiastic cooperation of the Mexican government in the forthcoming premiere of James Roosevelt's film, "Pot O' Gold," to be premiered in Mexico City, April 12, has been assured by an official proclamation setting April 12 to 15 as Motion Picture Industry Festival days.

The proclamation, issued by Senor Don Miguel Aleman, Mexican secretary of state, assures a personal invitation from President Avila Camacho to industry leaders to attend the premiere.

Trans-Lux Profit

NEW YORK—Trans-Lux reports a net profit of $76,083 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1940, after depreciation, amortization and other charges. This amounts to 10 cents a share on the 724,803 capital stock, excluding 60,357 shares in the treasury. In 1939, the company reported a net of $85,858, which amounted to 12 cents a share.

Government Fines Ascap $35,250

MILWAUKEE—Total fines of $35,250 were assessed by Federal Judge F. Ryan Duffy against Ascap and 19 corporate members in the government's anti-trust action against the society after pleas of nolo contendere had been entered by all defendants.

Gene Buck, head of Ascap; E. C. Mills, chairman of the administrative committee, and John G. Paine, general chairman of the society, were each fined $1,500, while the remaining 23 directors were assessed $500 each. In addition, the society was fined $5,000 and the 19 corporative members $750 each.

Victor O. Waters, special assistant to the attorney general, recommended to the court that the maximum fine be assessed against the society, inasmuch as the department has long complained about Ascap's activities. He declared that the real objections to the society's activities are corrected by the consent decree entered into by Ascap March 4 and as a result he said he felt jail sentences were not required.

All directors of the association, with the exception of six who were unable to be present because of illness or because they were out of the country, were in the courtroom.

As a further restriction upon Ascap activities in Wisconsin, the state senate passed and sent to the assembly the Cashman bill, which authorizes the secretary of state to enforce the 1937 statute providing for a $25 annual license fee for all Ascap agents and the collection of a 25 per cent tax on the total receipts of the society in Wisconsin.

Schaefer Staying Out of Orson Welles Incident

NEW YORK—George J. Schaefer, RKO president, advises BOXOFFICE from Hollywood that he will not be drawn into the Orson Welles release-it-or-go-to-court incident occasioned by the company's refusal to set a date on "Citizen Kane." Schaefer confined himself to the remark: "When a definite release date is set, we will advise those interested."

Welles, who produced, directed and stars in the film, issued an "ultimatum" to RKO to release it by March 30 or face possible legal action. He denied, as charged, that the script followed the life pattern of William Randolph Hearst, who has demanded that RKO hold up release on that account.

Welles told the press the script had been approved both by RKO and the Hays organization.

Chain Cuts Losses

NEW YORK—Wilmer and Vincent Corp., operating theatres in Pennsylvania and Virginia, report a loss of $31,661 for the year ended July 31, 1940. This compares with a loss of $71,878 for the preceding fiscal year.

Ten Arbitrators Are Designated in Albany

ALBANY—Ten arbitrators, representing a minimum panel only, have been designated to hear complaints filed here. The selections follow:

John Braun, attorney, 100 State St.

John B. Cantwell, CPA and vice-president, Delaware Telephone Co., 100 State St.

Thomas Fitzgerald, investment broker, 483 State St.

Louis Groch, manager, J. S. Bache & Co., Hotel Ten Eyck.

Morton J. Hall, Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co., 11 N. Pearl St.

Addison Keim, executive vice-president, First Trust Co. of Albany.

Eugene Orvis, industrialist, 112 State St. (home).

David M. Schneider, director, Bureau of Research and Statistics, department of social welfare, 112 State St.

Alfred J. Sporborg, Stefel Bros., Inc., 80 State St.

Charles J. Tobin, lawyer, 100 State St.

First Cleveland Case Hearing March 26

CLEVELAND—The first case filed with the local arbitration tribunal on February 15, involving clearance and brought by Ellet Amusement Co., will be heard March 26 with Dan B. Cull as arbitrator. Cull is a former municipal judge, two times member of the Civil Service Commission, one of the leading members of the Chamber of Commerce arbitration panel and member of the law firm of Cull and Fuller.

The complainant, Louis Israel, owner of the 800-seat Ellet now under construction on the outskirts of Akron asks for an irrespective run. He also asks that existing contracts between W. L. Hart, operator of the Norka and Rialto and the "Big Five" granting seven days' protection to these theatres be declared inoperative.

Legal Lights for Capital Hearing

NEW YORK—Two "Big Five" attorneys who were prominent participants in the formulation of the decree will represent their companies in the arbitration demand filed in Washington by Thomas D. Goldberg, operator of the Walbrook, Baltimore, against Warner, 20th Century-Fox and the Durkee circuit on clearance. The hearing will be before Arbitrator E. Barrett Prettyman, March 25, and Howard Levinson of Warner's home office legal staff will plead his company's case, while John F. Caskey, of Dwight, Harris, Koegel and Caskey, counsel for 20th Century-Fox, will represent the latter.

M-G-M Not a Party to Ben Gold Proceedings

BOSTON—On advice from Tyree Dillard jr., home office counsellor, Tom Donaldson, local M-G-M branch manager, has worked out an arrangement with Ben Gold of the Park, Nashua, N. H., whereby M-G-M will not be a party to the defense arbitration proceedings brought by the independent exhibitor.

Insofar as the M-G-M angle is concerned, the case is settled and other distributors are reported to be interested in the procedure.

In his complaint, Gold contends he has been unable to buy major product for his theatre on the allegation that the Shea circuit tied it all up for its two Nashua houses.

It's Excellent

New York—"Greece Fights Back," approximately 10 minutes in length, is the March of Time's contribution to the Greek War Relief drive about to get under way by the entertainment world.

It is a topnotch subject, handled in the distinct style which punctuates all of the March of Time's efforts. Succinct, dramatic, shy of overstatement, it tells in stirring photographic terms and in narration the fight of the Greeks for freedom. Proceeds go to the campaign fund, of course, but of additional importance here is the fact the subject is highly worthwhile and deserving of any exhibitor's screen time. —K.

Confirms M-G-M Settlement With Nashua Exhibitor

NEW YORK—Tyree Dillard, M-G-M lawyer who was secretary to the NRA appeals board in New York during its operation, confirms settlement of the Nashua action as it concerns M-G-M, but declines to give details. He says the action was worked out between the M-G-M Boston manager and Ben Gold, the exhibitor involved.

Dillard also admits there are a number of other cases pending in which M-G-M is a defendant and which the company is trying to work out amicably.

Ken Theatre Case Hearing March 20 in Chicago

CHICAGO—March 20 has been set as date for the hearing in the "some run" arbitration case of the Ken Theatre against Paramount and RKO, with the Arthur Schoenstadt circuit named as interested parties.

Case No. 2 before the local tribunal, it was filed February 18.

RKO, Reade Associates Tender Showman Party

NEW YORK—Walter Reade was tendered a party by his associates and RKO executives at the Rockefeller Center Luncheon Club on the opening of the new Trent, Trenton. On Thursday ground was broken for a new RKO theatre to be erected on Brunswick Ave., same city, in which Reade also has an interest.

Malcolm Kingsberg presented a watch as a token. Another gift was given Junior Reade on his entrance into the army air corps. Among those present were J. J. O'Connor, Leon Goldberg, Fred Meyers, Leslie Thompson, Alex Reoch, James M. Brennan of RKO, and Richard Huber, Allan Wolf and Charles Bryan of the Reade office.

Wintry Blast Chills Broadway Grosses

NEW YORK—In one of those delayed action passes that caught most of the town off guard, Old Man Winter swooped down on Broadway and threw it for a substantial retreat. By the time some fresh opposition in the form of Lent, the city-wide bus strike and the need for hip boots to venture out were thrown in, the whole week represented something of a loss. The entire weekend was ruined, boxoffice wise, and it carried over to a devastating Monday, never an especially good day at best.

See Top-Flight Product Overcome Philly Storm

PHILADELPHIA—A record snowstorm failed to put much of a blanket on business, although it tied up transportation. Good product brought the customers out to most of the houses in spite of the weather. "Fantasia" went into its third week, still strong, and "Philadelphia Story," though in its second run, registered its seventh week downtown with a healthy gross.

Formulate Plans for Variety Convention

NEW YORK—Offering evidence that considerable effort is under way to make the National Variety Clubs convention in Atlantic City, May 15 to 17, surpass last year's success, the organization has formulated a tentative program as follows:

Opening day, arrival and registration of delegates and guests at the Traymore Hotel. There will be a meeting of national officers and canvassmen the same morning to be followed by a luncheon. There will be a fishing and boating party in the afternoon and a boxing and wrestling exhibition in the evening.

May 16 will be consumed with business activities; reports of national officers and committeemen, reports of charitable efforts and commitments for the ensuing year. In the evening there will be a lobster dinner at Hackney's, to be followed by a night club party at the largest club in town.

On Saturday morning there will be a golf tournament, at which exhibition golf will be played by outstanding professional and amateur golfers. That afternoon there will be a boardwalk parade and pageant. The evening will feature a farewell banquet, which will be limited to 1,000.

Trailer and Shorts—George F. Dembow, National Screen.

Banquet—Earle F. Sweigert of Philadelphia.

Printing Supplies—Harry Kalmine, Pittsburgh.

Pier and Theatre Courtesies—Frank Gravatt, Atlantic City.

KANSAS CITY—Here to close a deal with Republic for production of a picture based on his "Ice Capades" show, John H. Harris, president of Variety Clubs of America, predicted that the annual Variety convention in Atlantic City would top any in the series of spectacular affairs.

Another activity occupies Harris wherever he goes. As general chairman of the Greek Relief Drive, he discussed plans for the campaign in this area with Robert F. Withers, Kansas City chairman. Enthusiastic about the national reaction, Harris predicted that the exhibition branch would exceed the $1,000,000 quota by a substantial margin.

Good Greek Relief Terre Haute Net

Terre Haute, Ind.—Abe Kaufman reports good Tag Day and midnight shows for the Greek War Relief drive. Promoted by the Orpheum and the Fountain, the single day netted $1,700 for the Greeks.

Over 6,000 Theatres in Greek War Relief Drive

NEW YORK—More than 6,000 theatres throughout the country will participate in the Greek War Relief Drive and approximately 500 houses will hold special midnight variety shows supplementing the regular film program, according to Adolph Zukor, chairman of the amusement industry division. The drive period is from March 25 to March 30.

M-G-M has produced, and National Screen will service gratis, a special trailer to be shown during the period of lobby collections. It features Melvyn Douglas and runs 175 feet.

Gala midnight shows will be run by Jules J. Rubens and John Balaban in Chicago; the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra will be the feature of a special show in Minneapolis arranged by John J. Friedl; Shea's Great Lakes in Buffalo is sponsoring a special event under the direction of Vincent McFaul; in Boston, M. J. Mullin has arranged an elaborate event at the Metropolitan as well as 55 special midnight shows throughout New England; the Griffith Amusement Co. will put on 50 special shows in Oklahoma, and 48 shows have been set for the Pittsburgh area by Harry Kalmine.

Albany Perfects Plans For Greek Relief

ALBANY—The second meeting to perfect plans for the Albany exchange territory's observance of Greek War Relief Fund Week, March 25-30, was held at Warner Theatres upstate headquarters here. Chain and independent exhibitor leaders and representatives of other branches of show business, attended. Reports on pledges of cooperation were read. The highlight of the celebration in Albany will be a midnight vaudeville and film show at Fabian's Palace March 22. Other local theatres are helping to sell tickets for it.

Co-chairmen of the drive in this territory are M. A. Silver, Warner zone boss, and Bernard G. Kranze, RKO branch manager. Working with them are these exchange managers: Herman Ripps, M-G-M; Clayton Eastman, Paramount; M. A. Grassgreen, 20th Century-Fox; Paul Krumenacker, Warner-Vitagraph; Jere Spandau, Universal; Joe Miller, Columbia; Arthur Newman, Republic, and Nate Sodikman, Monogram. Charles Ost, National Screen manager, is also on executive committee.

Circuit executives cooperating are: J. Myer and Louis Schine, Mike Kallett, William E. Benton, William E. Smalley, Walter Reade jr., James P. Faughnan, Warner Theatres contact manager; Lou Golding, Fabian division manager, and Joe Shure, booker.

Exhibitors: Harvey English, Hancock; Chris Buckley, Bennington; Ernie Dodds, Lake Placid; Jim Papayanakos, Gouverneur; Alex Papayanakos, Canton; Sid Dwore and Johnny Gardner, each operating two theatres in Schenectady; Henry Frieder, Hudson; John Yanakis, Potsdam; Charley Wilson, Troy; John Yanakis, Potsdam.

Alex Sayles, Palace manager, and Charles A. Smakwitz, Warner Theatres district manager, are on the publicity and entertainment committee. Andrew Antoinette, president of the operators' union, and Henry Harris of the stagehands' local, are among others assisting.

Way Open for Sunday Shows in Delaware

DOVER, DEL.—The state legislature has paved the way for Sunday shows, provided Delaware's cities and towns can persuade their councils they want them.

Both houses passed a bill revising the 200-year-old blue laws, and have sent it to Gov. Walter W. Bacon, who says he will study the measure before acting on it. Most political observers expect him to sign.

The measure would place a flat ban on Sunday shows and other Sunday amusements in rural districts, and also in cities and towns during the hours before noon and between 6 and 8 p. m. During the rest of the day, amusements would be up to the discretion of the city and town councils.

Passage of the bill followed a hectic Sunday during which Atty.-Gen. James R. Morford directed a campaign for strict enforcement of the old laws' ban on all worldly activities, resulting in the arrest of 500 trolley motormen, milkmen, paper deliverers, etc. That demonstration of the unworkability of the ancient statutes under modern conditions hastened the legislature's action.

Film men generally have stayed aloof from the controversy. However, they are expected to join the campaign for a liberalized Sunday in their respective communities if the governor signs the bill providing for "home rule" in that regard.

No New Skouras Drive; Stress Greek Relief

NEW YORK—There will be no spring drive for the Skouras circuit this spring, it is stated at the home office. All theatres will put on special shows for the Greek War Relief Drive the week of March 25. Chamberlin Brown, the theatrical producer, is cooperating on lining up talent.

Affiliated Units Clash

DETROIT—A suit over clearance involving the Uptown, RKO affiliate, and the Royal, jointly operated by United Detroit Theatres, Paramount affiliate, and the Wisper & Wetsman independent chain, was ready to start Friday in circuit court here.

Charles Pathe to U. S.

NEW YORK—Charles Pathe, French film pioneer, is due here on a business trip, reputedly, however, not on pictures.

HOLLYWOOD BOXOFFICE
NEWS AND VIEWS OF THE PRODUCTION CENTER

A Handsome Turnout Greets "John Doe"

Stars, executives, writers, directors and other film colony notables by the hundreds dusted off their ermine wraps and polished up their patent-leathers to be on hand when Warner gave the Frank Capra-Robert Riskin production, "Meet John Doe," its world premiere at Warner's Hollywood.

The first such gala event to be on the local social calendar for many a month, the premiere was of the lavish variety, all seats reserved, and those attending were forced to brave hordes of autograph fans who packed the bleachers erected for the occasion on each side of the theatre lobby. To keep order, 150 Los Angeles police and 30 studio guards were pressed into service. Attending, in addition to the Capras, Riskin and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Cooper, were:

As a part of the ceremony, Capra was presented with a scroll signed by players who have appeared in his past pictures—Cooper and Miss Stanwyck, Gable, James Stewart, Claudette Colbert, Myrna Loy, Jean Arthur, Ronald Coleman and Arnold.

Other Premiere Activity

The new Alexander Korda production for United Artists, "That Hamilton Woman," will make its world debut at the Four Star here. The Vivien Leigh-Laurence Olivier co-starrer will be presented at a $5 top, the entire proceeds to go to the Royal Air Force Benevolent Fund. Korda is vice-president of the British flyers' organization. An attempt is now being made to work out a short wave hookup so that Olivier and Miss Leigh can greet first-night audiences from London.

Western premiere of RKO Radio's "Scattergood Baines" will be staged at the Golden Gate in San Francisco. Guy Kibbee, who stars in the Jerrold T. Brandt production, will make personal appearances.

Twentieth Century-Fox world premiered "That Night in Rio," co-starring Don Ameche and Alice Faye, at the Roxy in New York on Thursday. There were no pre-release bookings on the Technicolor musical.

Paramount's "The Road to Zanzibar," with Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour and Bob Hope, was given its first pre-release engagement in St. Petersburg, Fla., March 11. Another pre-release booking is set Saturday for Miami.

To build interest in its short subjects, Warner is launching regular weekly showings of them in key cities. Screenings will be primarily for newspapermen and critics, although exhibitors and exchange men will also be invited. First showing will be of March product, including "Meet the Fleet," a Technicolor preparedness short; two cartoons and two one-reel musicals.

Will Hays Leaves Coast After Two-Month Stay

Concluding a stay of almost two months in the film colony, Will H. Hays, president of the MPPDA, has returned to his New York headquarters. It is not anticipated he will return to the coast until late this summer, according to producers association attaches, unless unexpected local business developments should require his personal attention here before that time.

To lay the groundwork for shaping a co-ordinated program to exploit Hollywood product in Latin-America and by so doing build goodwill for the industry and the nation, the Hays office's foreign publicity directors' committee, headed by Robert Vogel of M-G-M, met at that studio with Jock Lawrence, public relations counsel for the Hays office, presiding.

Screenplay by Maugham For David Selznick

David O. Selznick has concluded a deal whereby W. Somerset Maugham, noted British novelist, will come to Hollywood to write an original screenplay. Until now Maugham has refused all Hollywood overtures. The script on which he will work is based on a story idea by Selznick.

May Combine Press, Trade Screenings

As a result of two factors, it appears probable the system of reviewing new films in Hollywood—which for the past several weeks has been experiencing evolutionary pains—is slated for further changes. The two influencing elements are:

1. That part of the federal consent decree which rules that all new product must be screened by distributors at trade showings, for attendance by exhibitors, before any picture may be sold, booked and shown at a regular performance in a theatre.

2. The constant vacillation and apparent inability to make up its mind on the part of the publicity committee of the producers association as to just how the new system, agreed upon several weeks ago, is to operate.

Roach Leads Way

In view of the fact that films will have to be given trade screenings in this territory as well as in other key spots throughout the country, which showings are always held during the day because showmen must be at their theatres in the evening, it is considered not unlikely that studios may arrange with their local distribution representatives to kill two birds with one stone. They may, in short, combine their press previews with the regular trade screenings and discontinue the practice of holding separate showings to gain critical reaction to their new product. First step in this direction was taken when Hal Roach's new United Artists release, "Topper Returns," was given a combined trade and press showing at the Fox Boulevard, March 11. Screening was held at noon. Heretofore press previews have always preceded trade screenings by a matter of several weeks.

Press previews, meanwhile, are continuing to be a source of constant headaches for all concerned. Several weeks ago the aforementioned Hays office publicity directors' committee ruled that henceforth there were to be no more evening previews in theatres; that press previews were, thereafter, to be all that the name implied—screenings to which the press—and the press alone—was to be invited. No more was a press preview to be peopled with agents, actors, writers, technicians, directors and their assorted friends, relatives, acquaintances and stooges. The idea worked out splendidly for a short time.

Wage-Hour Ruling Causes Confusion

Ruling of the wage-hour division of the U. S. Department of Labor, after a year's survey, that 22,000 Hollywood studio employes are classified under the wage-hour law's provisions, and immediate action by the studios to place these workers on an hourly, instead of a daily or weekly pay scale, is currently complicating the labor scene in the film capital. Several crafts —notably process projectionists affiliated with the IATSE—are protesting the shift to an hourly scale on the grounds they will receive no overtime, and claim it is a violation of the basic agreement they have with the producers.

Wage-hour administrators have ruled that 6,000 workers—including actors, directors, writers, first assistant directors, top cameramen, producers, executives and executive secretaries—are exempt. The status of 2,200 others, over which there is some controversy, will be determined at a public hearing here starting March 25. Included in the questioned class are 778 actors, 447 sound men, 151 prop men, 131 set designers, 155 cameramen and 56 second assistant directors.

Being discussed also by producer representatives and union officials is the question of retroactive pay for those now ruled eligible for wage-hour benefits and who, until now, have not been working under its provisions. Survey on which the present rulings are based was launched by E. M. Cocking, sent from Washington, and breaks the Hollywood labor front into 535 separate classifications. Agreement has been reached on 514 of them, the 21 remaining to be threshed out at the pending hearing.

Several IATSE crafts have decided, after an informal meeting to discuss the matter, to appeal to the IA international for assistance in negotiating new producer agreements. Unions which will seek to enlist the IA's aid include projectionists, costumers, grips, and utility workers. Technicians, electricians, makeup artists and cameramen did not attend the session and may continue producer negotiations individually and on their own.

The producer-Screen Directors Guild conciliation committee held another meeting March 10 to discuss the SDG's demands for a minimum wage scale for low-salaried directors, a 90 per cent Guild shop and guaranteed employment. B. B. Kahane and Roy J. Obringer represent producers, Phil Rosen and George Stevens the SDG.

Offered a salary boost and a new three-year contract, Herbert Sorrell has withdrawn his resignation as business representative of the moving picture painters.

Another meeting of producers and Screen Actors Guild representatives was scheduled for March 13 to resume negotiations for revision of working conditions and wage scales for bit players and extras. Meantime the SAG has ruled that bit and day players who joined the organization prior to February, 1938, may accept calls for extra work. Most such players will, it is felt, be reluctant to accept such calls, however, since it would jeopardize their standing as higher-salaried actors. Extras now seeking the right to vote on the affairs of the SAG as a whole have no intention of withdrawing from the Guild, Harry Mayo, leader of a group of dissatisfied extras, told Kenneth Thomson, SAG secretary, replying to Thomson's declaration that displeased extras can always withdraw.

Median earnings for motion picture players have decreased steadily since 1937 and, in 1939, stood at $4,700 yearly, the Screen Actors Guild has revealed in publishing one phase of the survey of the motion picture industry conducted by Dr. Leo C. Rosten of the Motion Picture Research Project. Rosten, who will include these findings in a projected three-volume series detailing every phase of films, based his findings on the answers supplied by actors and actresses in more than 300 questionnaires.

Actors earn more than actresses, it was disclosed. The median for actresses in 1939 was $4,150 as compared to $4,700 for actors. Further, the salaries of players tend to increase over their original paycheck—ranging from 50 per cent upward, with the greatest increases in the top brackets. The higher the actor's original salary, the larger the increase he is likely to receive, statistics showed.

Lowest earnings reported in 1939 was less than $50, the highest $300,000. Average earnings were $14,867, with 54.9 per cent of the actors receiving more than $4,000 yearly. Only 3.9 per cent received $100,000 or more for the year, however, while 25.7 per cent were paid less than $2,000.

Negotiations for new contracts between producers and electricians, musicians, teamsters and carpenters, signatories to the basic studio agreement, will be delayed until after the hearing on wage-hour rulings in the film industry, set for March 25. After completion of that hearing, Pat Casey, chief labor contact, is expected to go to New York to open discussions on new contracts with heads of the four internationals.

Then came thinly-veiled efforts to circumvent the ruling, and, studio by studio, pictures began slowly to creep back into regular theatre previews. The methods employed were three-fold and all circuitous. In some instances—as witness Paramount's "Virginia," Universal's "Buck Privates" and Warner's "Footsteps in the Dark"—the press was invited to a studio dinner beforehand, then transported in busses to an "unknown" destination for the preview, which in each instance turned out to be the Alexander Theatre in Glendale bravely displaying banners heralding a "major studio feature preview" for that night.

Method number two has been to have a dinner party on the lot and screen the film in a studio projection room. Paramount did it with "The Lady Eve," Warner with "The Strawberry Blonde" and Universal with "Nice Girl?" Even more thinly camouflaged were two other cases in which the studios announced a "sneak press preview" at the Alexander in Glendale. Columbia handled its showing of "Blondie Goes Latin" in this way, as did RKO Radio with "A Girl, a Guy and a Gob."

Now the publicity committee has ruled there shall be no more studio dinners preceding previews in a new effort to eliminate efforts by individual studios to circumvent the recently-established ruling.

Arthur Hornblow jr. has left for New York to attend the world premiere of his Paramount film, "I Wanted Wings," at the Astor Theatre, March 26.

Dmytryk Megs "Betty Co-ed"

Edward Dmytryk will direct "Betty Co-ed." Ruby Keeler, Ozzie Nelson and Harriet Hilliard will star in the 20th-Fox film.

PRODUCERS who are constantly on the watch for those stories of adventure which consistently find a profitable market among the customers would do well to delve into a volume titled "Bushman at Large," written by Aubrey Wisberg and detailing the true-life escapades of a soldier-of-fortune in Australia, Egypt and the Near East. It looks like good motion picture material and very probably could be made the basis of a timely and exciting film.

If Warner can manage as many bookings for its forthcoming "The Sea Wolf" as places that have been named and considered for its premiere, the picture should gross enough to lift the mortgage. For weeks the Burbank orchid-growers have kept agog the junket-loving Hollywood press with stories about plans to show the picture at the Valley of the Moon, Jack London's home, near Sonoma, north of San Francisco, because much of the book was written there. Now, without explanation, that idea has been abruptly junked, probably because the Chamber of Commerce of Sonoma shunned the dotted line, and there comes a yarn that Warner is negotiating with the United States Steamship Lines to premiere the film aboard the S. S. "America." The vessel is now en route here through the Panama Canal and will arrive March 20, two days before the picture is nationally released. Studio publicists assert they are planning the first "sea world premiere" during a round trip to San Francisco.

BALLYHOODLUMS: Please have it definitely understood that Jock Lawrence, erstwhile publicist, is "assistant to the president" of the "Association of Motion Picture Producers." And that "isn't the Hays office," which popular designation applies only to the New York organization officially known as the "Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc." If anyone doubts that such fine distinctions exist, let him but call Ex-Press Agent Lawrence in an attempt to confirm such tidbits of news as the signing of a new contract by Mr. Hays. All of which is a bit confusing to those short-memoried trade reporters who seem vaguely to recall an announcement made at the time Lawrence joined the Hays office (beg pardon, the Association of Motion Picture Producers), and to the effect that he was to have something or other to do with public relations—or words to that effect. That was shortly after he had included himself out of Samuel Goldwyn's fold, where the prosaic pursuit of publicity occupied his attentions . . . Harry Barris is signed to play a press agent in Paramount's "Kiss the Boys Boodbye." Observes John Peere Miles, "When a tired and very lazy press agent hasn't anything better to do, he can revert to the cliches of his business." Honest John, he was known as in them days.

Melody, Mirth, Morbidity, Murder

A musical with comedy and one which was vice versa furnished the frosting for the week's preview cake and, while they blended to concoct a delectable confection, they had to be stretched to their limits to cover the underlayers which emerged from the productional ovens, some of which were soggy, others only half-baked.

Twentieth Century-Fox's "That Night in Rio" gets off to a flying start with a production number that is precedentally breath-taking in lavishness and beauty, and from there the filmusical never slackens for an instant its speed as engrossing entertainment. In many respects the Fred Kohlmar production touches a new ceiling for screen musical comedies and emerges as one which probably will crowd all existing revenue records in its classification in all its showings. Contributing to the making of a truly superb picture are the cast, story, music, costumes and sets, filmed in gorgeous Technicolor. Alice Faye and Don Ameche, co-starred, were never better. The South American locale furnishes a perfect setting for the general theme, as scripted by George Seaton, Bess Meredyth and Hal Long, with additional dialogue by Samuel Hoffenstein, and based on a play by Rudolph Lothar and Hans Adler, adapted by Jessie Ernst. Mack Gordon and Harry Warren wrote the hip-swaying, toe-tickling songs and musical numbers. Irving Cummings' experienced and competent direction is in evidence throughout.

Such tuneful, boisterous, nonsensical and thoroughly captivating entertainment as "The Road to Zanzibar" should be possible as long as Paramount maintains the comedy combination of Bing Crosby and Bob Hope, with Dorothy Lamour contributing the pulchritude. Frank Butler and Don Hartman turned out the dialogue from an original by Hartman and Sy Bartlett. All in all, it is a very worthy successor to "The Road to Singapore," and should fare as well in raves and revenue as did the earlier Crosby-Hope-Lamour funfest. Paul Jones was the producer and Victor Schertsinger handled the directorial reins.

While its ingredients were of the best, Metro's contribution, "Rage in Heaven," could hardly be considered an entertainment sweetmeat. It is strictly adult entertainment. Robert Montgomery is again cast as a homicidal paranoiac, and the melodrama is heavy and sombre, dealing as it does with insane jealousy, suicide and other unpleasant phases of chronic psychalgia. Although he, his co-star, Ingrid Bergman, and the remainder of the cast turn in fine performances, the feature's appeal to the rank-and-file of ticket buyers probably will be limited. It is an adaptation by Christopher Isherwood and Robert Thoeren of a novel by James Hilton. W. S. Van Dyke II keyed his direction to the required mood. Gottfried Reinhardt was the producer.

There is nothing in the latter's "Back in the Saddle" to jeopardize Gene Autry's standing as the screen's leading action star. And the picture differs only slightly from the more recent films in which the croning celluloid cowhand has appeared, although it is a noteworthy fact that his pal, Smiley Burnette, has less to do than is customary. Harry Grey has maintained the high productional standards characteristic of the series, and Lew Landers' direction keys up the shootin', sluggin' and ridin', interspersed with the usual sprinkling of musical numbers.

"A Man Betrayed" is a creditable and well-made entry on this North Hollywood studio's slate. A trio of fine performances by John Wayne, Frances Dee and Edward Ellis paces an equally good directorial job by John H. Auer, with Armand Schaefer as the associate producer. Isabel Dawn contributed the screenplay from a story by Jack Moffitt.

Considering its modest cost and claims, Universal has an unpretentious but entirely wholesome comedy of family life in "Double Date." Admirable supporting material, it features a well-done story and workmanlike performances by Edmund Lowe, Una Merkel and Peggy Moran, all of whom register capitally. Working under the productional guidance of Joseph G. Sanford, Glenn Tryon turned in a first-rate megging job. Scott Darling, Erna Lazarus and Agnes Christine Johnston scripted from an original by the Darling-Lazarus combination.

Not so impressive, however, was the same company's "Mr. Dynamite." Its explosive qualities are limited to the title, unless they should extend to the patience and tempers of customers who catch it on the underside of dual programs, which booking spot it is barely qualified to fill. Efforts of three ordinarily competent players, Lloyd Nolan, Irene Hervey and J. Carrol Naish, to elevate the offering from the doldrums are hamstrung by a wild and unbelievable story by Stanley Crea Rubin. John Rawlins directed for Producer Marshall Grant.

"Murder Among Friends," a second offering from 20th Century-Fox, has but one possible claim to distinction—seldom, if ever, has there been a mystery with more slayings. In all other departments it is just another whodunit, imbued with an average amount of suspense, an occasional chill and an even more limited quota of laughs, evidently injected in an attempt to bolster obvious inconsistencies in the script by John Larkin. Marjorie Weaver and John Hubbard top the cast and deliver average performances, while Ray McCarey's direction is on the same level. Film was co-produced by Ralph Dietrich and Walter Morosco.

Plan Four Features On "Lone Ranger"

Plans to produce four features based on the "Lone Ranger" character of radio and the comic strips have been announced by Edward Gross, who has secured a Columbia release for the group. The initialer, now being cast, will go into work about April 1 for a May 15 release date, and is being budgeted at $125,000. Gross is headquartering temporarily at the RKO Pathe studios in Culver City, but may move over to Columbia to shoot the film. He was formerly associated with both David L. Loew and Sol Lesser as an associate producer. Rights to the "Lone Ranger" were acquired from the author, Fran Striker.

Pressburger to UA

Added to the roster of United Artists producers is Arnold Pressburger, former European producer-director, who joined the UA fold via a deal set in New York with Murray Silverstone, UA chieftain. Pressburger is expected out here shortly to set up offices and begin work on his initial feature, "The Shanghai Gesture," to which he has acquired film rights from Milton Shubert.

Golden Sets Next

Edward A. Golden, former Monogram sales chief and organizer of University Film Productions, Inc., checked in from the east to arrange details of filming "The Kiss of Death." He will turn out the picture for distribution on a state-right basis.

Columbia Ratoff Outlet

The deal whereby he was to produce and direct "Tonight Is Ours," starring Loretta Young, for Paramount release, having been abrogated by mutual agreement, Gregory Ratoff has taken the property and star to Columbia, for whom he will make the picture independently.

Other independent activity:

Pyramid Pictures rolls "Scattergood Pulls the Strings," second in the series for RKO Radio, March 17, with Christy Cabanne directing for Producer Jerrold T. Brandt.

Roger Pryor and Virginia Vale head the cast of T. H. Richmond's "South of Panama," now in work for Producers Releasing Corp.

Martin Mooney is scripting his original, "Queen of the Underworld," for K. B. Productions.

Larry Darmour has gunned his latest serial for Columbia, "The Spider Returns," with Warren Hull and Mary Ainsley in the toplines. James Horne is directing.

O'Shea, McCarthy Open a 16mm Studio Laboratory

Barrett O'Shea, dance director, and John McCarthy, film megaphonist, have opened a sound-proofed 16mm studio, completely equipped to serve producers of films for army camps, women's clubs, schools, commercial enterprises and major studios making screen tests of new talent.

The $25,000 building offers complete production service, including photography, recording, pre-recording, transcriptions, processing and other items.

Kanin and Stewart Are Called for Service

The long arm of conscription, which has been felt to some extent in Hollywood through the drafting of technicians, back lot and white collar workers, has reached into the upper studio brackets to pluck Director Garson Kanin and Actor James Stewart for a year's service with the nation's armed forces.

Kanin has been deferred, however, until June 1, when he has cleaned up the megging job on RKO Radio's Ginger Rogers starrer, "Tom, Dick and Harry," the draft board having taken into consideration the fact that the studio has a $750,000 investment in the film which would be jeopardized should Kanin be inducted immediately. Kanin declares he will report immediately upon completion of the picture, probably late in April.

Stewart is expected to check into camp in about two weeks. The 1940 Academy Award winner's contract with M-G-M will be suspended for the duration of his military training and will be waiting for him when he returns. Meantime he will be replaced by another actor in the top male role in the Jeanette MacDonald starrer, "Smilin' Through."

With proceeds to go toward the purchase of mobile kitchens for the British army, Gene Lockhart will present a stage revue at the Hawthorne School in Beverly Hills, beginning March 23. Lined up to appear in the initialer are Doris Lloyd, Montague Love, Walter Kingsford, Kathleen Lockhart and John Qualen. Following its local run, the revue will go on tour, with stops already scheduled for Santa Barbara, San Diego, Pasadena, Riverside, San Bernardino and Lake Arrowhead. Lockhart is writing, producing and directing.

Expected here before the end of the week was John Hay Whitney, head of the Committee on National Defense for the motion picture industry, who has appointed Kenneth Thomson, executive secretary of the Screen Actors Guild, as director of a Hollywood office to be set up immediately. On a part-time arrangement Thomson will serve as a studio contact under a plan whereby each company will send two of its top stars on personal appearance tours through Latin-America during the year to build good-will for the United States and the film industry. Thomson will continue his SAG duties.

Hellinger Quits Warner Post; Up Jerry Wald

After three years at the studio as writer and associate producer, Mark Hellinger has resigned his Warner post, effective immediately. During his stay he turned out five pictures, of which "Affectionately Yours," now in final stages of completion, was the last. He had been preparing "Manpower," co-starring Marlene Dietrich and George Raft, which will be assigned to another producer. Hellinger, who had differed with Warner executives on story handling and other matters, has announced no plans for the future.

At the same studio Jerry Wald, of the writing team of Wald and Richard Macaulay, has been boosted to an associate producership, effective when he has completed his scripting chore on "Navy Blues." He has been at the studio for five years. Warner has also promoted Robert Buckner, a writer there for the past three years, to associate producer. No assignment has been set for either Wald or Buckner.

Upon completion of his contract, Lou Brock left the RKO payroll, where he was head of the shorts department for the past two years. He has just completed "They Met in Argentina," feature-length musical, for the studio.

Paramount has given a directorial contract to Theodore Tetzlaff, first cameraman on the lot for several years. His first assignment as a megger will be announced shortly. At the same studio Patricia Morison, featured player, has been suspended for refusing to accept a loanout assignment to Republic for the femme lead opposite Gene Autry in "The Singing Hills."

Go East to Discuss WB Sales Policy

To discuss with homeoffice executives the company's selling policy for 1941-42, under the consent decree, Harry M. Warner, president of Warner, and S. Charles Einfeld, publicity-advertising director, pulled out for New York. They followed Jack L. Warner east, the vice-president in charge of production having left several days before. In on the eastern huddles are Gradwell L. Sears, sales head, and Major Albert Warner.

After three days in Hollywood, Robert M. Gillham, advertising-publicity director for Paramount, returned to New York. While here he discussed exploitation and selling plans for "I Wanted Wings," aviation special, with Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of studio operations, and other local executives.

Civita Visits Disney

Making his annual visit to Hollywood is Cesar Civita, Walt Disney's South American representative. Civita is headquartering, during his stay, at the Disney plant in Burbank.

Sam Katz, Metro executive, spent ten days in Chicago on a personal business trip. Still at 20th Century-Fox, where he arrived last week, is Felix A. Jenkins, of the company's New York legal staff. He is huddling with local officials on production policies under the consent decree.

Leo Spitz, former RKO Radio president and now a practicing attorney and counsel for the company, is in from New York, where he spent several days on business matters.

Here for conferences with President George J. Schaefer and Perry Lieber, studio adertising-publicity director, is S. Barret McCormick, publicity and advertising head of the company. McCormick will look at new product and map tentative exploitation campaigns on them. After a month at the studio, Ned E. Depinet, vice-president in charge of sales, has returned to New York.

An open letter to the Motion Picture Industry

History repeats itself—with Greece and Fascism enacting the roles of David and Goliath.

The heroic valor of the Greeks in their defense of democracy, has aroused the admiration of every liberty loving American. This little country—and it's a very small country—has stood up and fought Fascism to a standstill. It has put new heart into all little countries.

Today, we of the Amusement Industry, are asked to do our small part. The suffering, the struggles of millions of valiant men, women and children, will be lightened by knowing that here in the United States are fellow humans who want them to win and furthermore—are willing to do something about it! John H. Harris and Gradwell L. Sears have very kindly volunteered to aid me in organizing all exhibitors and distributors for this great cause. We have set aside the period of March 25-30 as the days to raise the funds through the active participation of all theatres everywhere. As Chairman of the Amusement Industry Division of the Greek War Relief Association, I appeal to you to do your share in making our drive a complete success.

The Greeks love liberty so much they're willing to die for it. The least we of this thrice blessed country can do is to help the women and children of these gallant defenders of democracy. We have nothing to lose if they gain. We have nothing to gain if they lose.

Sincerely,

Adolph Zukor

Measure Legalizing Lotteries to House

PORTLAND, ORE.—Passed by the senate and now headed for a vote in the house, is a bill to legalize theatre giveaways and other lotteries in Oregon.

Oregon theatremen are pretty well split on the measure, with about half of them for it and the others opposed. Pros and cons arguing the measure, contributed to the normal excitement of the capital city last week.

Need for Data Delays Suit Against Ascap

LOS ANGELES—Continued delay in the filing of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owner's suit against Ascap is attributed by local spokesmen to the fact that a number of northwestern exhibitor-members have not, as yet, compiled and forwarded to Albert J. Law, PCCITO general counsel, certain vital facts and figures which he needs to complete the drafting of a bill of complaint.

Statistics concerning the amount of money these showmen have paid Ascap for the privilege of screening films containing Ascap-controlled music over the past several years are required by Law when he goes into federal court to launch suit against the musical organization seeking to kill the dual scoring charge which exhibitors must pay—one charge to Ascap, one to the distributors.

NT Divisional Managers Discuss Decree, Drive

ARROWHEAD SPRINGS—Its operations under the consent decree, business prospects for the new year, the question of advanced admissions and extended runs, building and rehabilitation projects and plans for the annual Spyros Skouras drive were the chief topics discussed at the yearly conclave of National Theatres Corp. divisional managers, which opened here March 6 and was expected to wind up March 14.

Chief among the changes in policy to be instituted because of the decree, operating heads attending were informed by President Spyros Skouras, will be the necessity for decentralization of film buying, with each division instructed to set up its own buying department or expand its department if one is now in existence. Terms of the decree were explained in detail by Skouras and NT attorneys, John Caskey and Fred Pride.

Sees Better Product

Skouras predicted that constantly improving product and the national defense spending program will result in a prosperous year for exhibitors in general and NT in particular, declaring that conditions in the exhibition field are considerably better than they were last summer, when the war and resultant loss of foreign revenue and upset domestic conditions threatened to result in production, distribution and exhibition chaos. The NT president stressed the necessity for continuing the policy of advanced admission prices and extended runs on films meriting such treatment, but warned divisional chieftains that boosting prices and extending runs could be applicable only where the particular picture was worthy.

Charles P. Skouras, president of Fox West Coast, was again named field marshal in the annual Spyros Skouras drive, to be launched April 13 for a 13-week period. Importance of the drive at this time was emphasized by Frank H. "Rick" Ricketson, divisional head of Fox Intermountain, who declared competition from other forms of amusement is steadily cutting in to that portion of the amusement dollar spent in motion picture theatres.

Talk Reseating Project

A reseating project in a number of NT houses, at an estimated expense of $1,500,000, was discussed. Another $2,000,000 will be ear-marked for new theatres and other rehabilitation, Skouras declared. Improvements in theatre seating were outlined by Hilliard Brooke, western district manager of the American Seating Co.; Al Hoven, assistant general sales manager; Ralph Zimmerman, Los Angeles branch manager, and Oscar Oldknow of National Theatre Supply Co., the American Seating Co.'s parent organization.

Plans to set up a workable fund for use in a retirement or old-age pension plan for NT employes were subjected to considerable discussion. The corporation is setting aside a percentage of its annual profit for the venture and will also devote the proceeds from the sale of candy in theatres to the fund, which proceeds are now turned over to an NT welfare fund for employes.

Draftees Protected

All drafted workers will be given a two-week bonus, it was announced, and their positions will be guaranteed for them upon their return. Their group insurance will be paid by NT during their absence.

Attending the session, in addition to Spyros and Charles Skouras, were:

From New York—Harry Cox, Peter Lundgren, John Caskey, William T. Powers, Fred Pride, John Healy, Milt Hossfeld, Aubrey Schenck, Ed Zabel, I. Barry; from Detroit—David Idzal, in charge of theatre operations there; from Milwaukee—Harold Fitzgerald, E. W. Alperson, John Brown; from Kansas City—E. C. Rhoden, Lon Cox, J. Pope; from Denver—Frank H. "Rick" Ricketson, Hall Baetz, William Woods, H. Stuart, J. Franz; from Seattle—Frank Newman, Al Finke, James Ennix, H. Hines, General Theatres Corp., New York; Oldknow of National Theatre Supply, and American Seating Co. representatives, Ownbey, Hoven, Zimmerman and Brooke.

PORTLAND

GEORGE HUNT, chief of the George Hunt Theatres, has a nine-and-a-half pound son. This production is receiving far more attention than any million-dollar epic to play at his theatres . . . Tom Shearer laid new carpets in both the Bob White and Downtown theatres . . . L. W. Conrow, president of the Altec Service Corp., and E. C. Shriver, western district manager, stopped here while on an inspection tour of the various Altec offices.

Mr. Nelson, AAA tribunal clerk, is leading a dull life these days waiting vainly for arbitration cases to come before the board . . . Visitors were few in town during the week. Outside of the regulars, filmites saw Dutch Stover, Guy Garrison, Dick Fisk, Bernadine Richards, Roy Webster and Loring Schmidt.

Al Forman was busier than the proverbial duck during a rainstorm the past two weeks arranging personal appearance dates for Roy Rogers, western star, at various theatres throughout the state. He will appear at the Tower, Bend; Orpheum, Baker; Alta, Pendleton; Rialto, Hood River; Grand, Salem; the Roseway and St. Johns, Portland; Columbia, St. Helens, and the Liberty, Kelso, Wash.

Mary Alice Randall will open the new Rand in Sutherlin, Ore., in cooperation with her father, E. H. Randall, a pioneer Oregon theatreman. They are putting in new equipment throughout. Sutherlin is noted for the manufacture of quicksilver, having the largest plant in the country there.

Horror Duo Stirs Up Grosses in Denver

DENVER—Dave Cockrill pulled a bit of showmanship when he booked two mystery and horror films on the same bill. By so doing he catered wholly to that type of fans and packed the Denham time after time to a smash gross. "Mad Doctor" and "Monster and the Girl," both Paramount films, were the ones that turned the trick. The house played to more children than it had in the past three months otherwise, and most of them brought one or both parents.

"Buck Privates" on Dual Leads First-Runs in SF

SAN FRANCISCO—The return of pleasant weather gave impetus to local business and the theatres shared in general upward trend. The first of the anticipated films about the draftees and army camps, "Buck Privates" got a nice play at the Orpheum. "Gone With the Wind" still did better than average and started its fourth and final week. The beginning of Lent probably hurt the boxoffice on Market Street a bit.

Seattle Show Shops Cling To a Low-Average Week

SEATTLE—Spring weather and fairly warm evenings, coupled with excitement of the "blackout" test left the show shops with very little business this week. "Tobacco Road" garnered the most publicity and best exploitation but the picture did not do the outstanding business enjoyed by the stage play. However it was satisfactory. Palomar for the past week featured its stage show and also is building its next week's bill the same style. No theatre reports outstanding business.

Good Weather Bolsters First-Run Business

LOS ANGELES—A few days of sunshine after weeks of rain aided considerably in bolstering first-run business, every house but one reporting normal or better-than-average takes for the week. Most surprising disappointment was "Gone With the Wind" in its second week at the Four Star, which managed to garner only 75 per cent of normal trade, a phenomenon considered inexplicable by the management.

Dispose of Detail In Colcatta Suit

LOS ANGELES—Disposition of preliminary detail and the entering of documents and stipulations in evidence, featured a pre-trial hearing in the suit by the Colcatta Corp. against Fox West Coast Theatres, bankrupt circuit organization succeeded several years ago by Fox West Coast Corp. and affiliated firms. Regular trial date has been set for March 21.

Through the law firm of Wolfson and Schwab, Colcatta, of which Ben Bard is president, is seeking $1,200,000 in damages, charging monopoly and conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce. It charges FWC with illegally cancelling its lease on the Colorado in Pasadena in 1935, as a result of which, the plaintiffs contend, the house has since not been able to acquire sufficient major studio product to insure profitable operation. Aiding the Colcatta Corp. is Albert J. Law, general counsel for the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners.

Defendant attorneys include Charles A. Buckley, chief of the FWC legal staff; John Bertero, Gordon Hall, and the law firms of Loeb and Loeb and Wright and Millikan.

Frank Larson Earns Honor by Campaign

IDAHO FALLS, IDA.—M-G-M has awarded an Honor Roll Button to Frank Larson, Paramount Theatre, for his outstanding exploitation campaign for "Escape."

Highlights of the campaign follow:

Special posters consisted of two 3-sheets and two 24-sheets. One 3-sheet was pasted on the sidewalk in front of the post-office while the other was pasted on the sidewalk between the two busiest and largest stores in the city. One 24-sheet was posted across the city's busiest intersection while the other was placed directly in front of theatre. These posters were put down Saturday afternoon, during peak traffic of the day. The stunt drew a large crowd.

Six special easels on "Escape" were spotted on the busiest back bars and music machines. One hundred heralds, mounted on cardboard, were placed in most conspicuous counters and display racks in the local stores. Street ballyhoo was carried on by use of a P. A. system mounted on a car driven through the streets. Local radio station aided with spot announcement several times a day, at lunch and dinner hours and surrounding news broadcasts.

SALT LAKE

AN ORDINANCE regulating the showing of motion picture films with a nitrocellulose base in places other than licensed theatres was being studied by the Salt Lake City commission following its submission by Fire Chief L. M. Hanson. The ordinance which would affect churches, clubs, schools and similar organizations, would require the filing of an application for a permit for each showing except where films are shown at regular intervals, where 90-day permits would be issued. Applications would show the experience of the operator and the availability of fire extinguishers.

"Virginia" is in its third week in Salt Lake City, now at the Studio and had its first week at the Centre. "Flight Command" is packing them in at the Gem, second run. "The Thief of Bagdad" is going big also, second run at the Rialto.

Society Premiere for "Fantasia" in Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO—The swankiest premiere in the history of this city's motion picture openings occurred on March 5 when the local 400 and several hundred more attended the initial showing of "Fantasia." The opening night was sponsored by the San Francisco Opera Guild and prices scaled from $5 to $1.

Hollywood methods prevailed and this conservative town went big for the kleig lights, the radio introductions of celebrities, and the battery of cameramen. Walt and Mrs. Disney represented the motion picture industry together with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Disney. Kathleen Norris was an outstanding seat holder. Ted Malone, the radio poet of note, was on hand to handle the microphone interviews, helping the local radio men. Topnotchers from the city's ermine and orchid set all took their turn at the mike to wish the film success.

The Geary, normally a legit theatre, was wired for "Fantasia" and will run the picture as long as the public demands. Complete sellout for the first week's showing indicates a lengthy stay.

New Seats for Three

SEATTLE — The Colonial, Grandview, Wash.; the Oregon State in Corvallis, Ore., and the Wheeler, Wheeler, Ore., have been outfitted with new General seats.

DENVER

SI GERTZ, manager of the Egyptian and publicity director for Civic Theatres, has passed his physical examination, and expects to be called for military duty any day.

Rick Ricketson, manager of the Intermountain Division Fox Theatres, headed the local delegation to the National Theatre convention held in California. Others were George Frantz, purchasing agent; Press Woods, candy manager, and Al Bates, district manager at Salt Lake City.

Brian Hendricks, purchasing agent for the Victory theatres, Denver, has been called in the draft, and is leaving for El Paso for military training . . . The Trail Theatre, Deertrail, Colo., will operate two days a week, Saturday and Sunday, instead of four.

The Major Bowes Amateur unit at the Denham packed the house repeatedly and again placed that house at the top of the money intake among the first runs here. On the screen and getting a large share of the credit was "You're the One," thanks to the popularity of Orrin Tucker and Bonnie Baker, who appeared here some time ago.

Robert Dane, assistant manager of the Ogden, who went to California for a screen test by 20th Century-Fox and landed a contract, is back at the Ogden job, awaiting a call . . . Someone filed off a padlock and broke into the Denver Theatre and made away with 41 organ pipes. Police think they were stolen for the lead and zinc in them.

"Gone With the Wind" goes into the Federal on the north side, one of the Civic theatres, at the same prices as charged here first run—40 cents matinees and 50 cents nights. The run will be for four days . . . Walter Wanger will be the guest of honor at the 26th annual Founders' Day celebration of the Rocky Mountain Screen Club on March 28. Rick Ricketson, president of the club, made the arrangements, and Wanger will also address the noon meeting of the Denver Chamber of Commerce on the same date.

Gilbert Martinez, for several years office manager and booker for the Coppell exchange, has been named assistant head of the Latin American export division of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. . . . Fred Morton, formerly in Denver as an Erpi representative, returns as salesman for United Artists, taking the northern territory.

A new theatre is being opened at Lowry Field, Denver, an air school of the U. S. Army. William D. Pickard, army booker from the St. Louis headquarters, was in Denver arranging dates for the new house. By the end of the year about 11,000 men will be stationed at the field.

Seen on the Row and arranging dates and buying supplies. George Allan jr. and sr., of the State Theatre, North Platte, Neb.; E. J. Touey of Grant, Neb.; C. G. Diller of Cripple Creek, Colo.; Mrs. Marie Goodhand of Kimball, Neb., and Dennis F. Baca of Bernalillo, Neb.

SAN FRANCISCO

THE Blumenfeld Theatres officially added the Orpheum to its chain when the transfer was made by the Fanchon & Marco interests. This house, operated for the last eight years by F&M, becomes the key theatre for the Blumenfeld circuit which includes first run houses in all large northern California cities. Joe Blumenfeld will manage the theatre assisted by Al Goodwin who was in the same spot for the former owners. Hal Neides, manager of the Orpheum for the entire time it was operated by F&M, has affiliated with Walt Disney and will manage the showing of "Fantasia" in this and other cities.

Ellis Levy returned to town after two months in the east. Ellis opened the Telenews in Cleveland and plans to journey eastward again soon to open Telenews houses in New Orleans and Detroit . . . Free literature was plentiful this week. The Warfield handed out copies of the March 3 issue of Time to exploit "Meet John Doe" and the United Artists exchange distributed the February edition of Stage for "That Hamilton Woman" . . . Sid Newman, Warner contract clerk, down with chicken pox, but now fully recovered and back at work . . . At the same exchange, Jesse Wright, has taken the shipping department vacancy which occurred when Frank Noege moved to Monogram.

Sadie Schofield has taken the film inspectress' job for Pat Patterson who sells Astor products . . . M-G-M previewed "The Penalty" and "Rage in Heaven," Monday.

Two legitimate openings this week. Eddie Dowling and Julie Haydon brought a New York cast directly from the Big Town for a two-week engagement of "The Time of Your Life" at the Curran. Local author and local setting is giving the play added attraction. At the Alcazar, "Wedding Night" began an indefinite run with the same cast that presented "Maid in the Ozarks" which amazed everyone by drawing good crowds for four weeks.

Walter Reinhertz, Warner assistant poster clerk, is the first from that office to answer the draft call. He left for camp on the 14th . . . Republic's "Behind the News" goes into the Paramount for a Market Street first run on the 20th . . . Sid Shuster, M-G-M salesman, on the sick list . . . W. C. Cornwell has resigned as manager of the Rio in Merced, and Charlie White has stepped into the spot . . . Myrtle Lynch, M-G-M inspectress, is taking a three-month leave of absence . . . Producer's Releasing Corp. is marketing a one-reeler, a most timely short, called "Heroic Greece" and has booked it into a number of theatres.

William G. Dennis, western supervisor for the Fawcett publications, in town to work with Ben Bray on campaigns for "Captain Marvel," the serial based on the comic strip . . . Glen Gray, a local favorite, back on the bandstand at the Palace and drawing big crowds into the Rose Room Bowl . . . Macklin Asks Arbiters For Clearance Relief

MILWAUKEE—In the second arbitration case, filed March 12, before the local tribunal, Lee Macklin, operator of the Grand Theatre, New London, Wis., claims that Loew's, Inc., Paramount Film Distributing Corp., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., and Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., are giving unreasonable clearance to the Rio and Appleton theatres, Appleton, Wis.

The complaint sets forth that the Grand is approximately 21 road miles from Appleton and that Macklin is unable to date pictures until they are shown in Appleton. This creates a penalty on the theatres in New London, it is charged, inasmuch as other theatres in this vicinity are able to date and play this product from the said distributors all of 30 to 50 days sooner than New London can play it.

The other theatres involved in the controversy are the Grand and Times in Clintonville, operated by Dr. W. H. Finney, and the Waupaca and Palace in Waupaca, operated by the Adler Theatre Co., Marshfield, Wis.

Macklin further claims that, on the basis of the admission price charged, the general conditions in the area, character and location of the theatres and policy of operation, are comparable with said theatres at Clintonville and Waupaca and that no clearance exists between Clintonville and Waupaca over New London.

It is also contended by Macklin that unreasonable clearance is being demanded by the Appleton theatres that is detrimental to his business. He does not demand the right to play pictures ahead of Appleton theatres, but does demand the right to book and play the pictures he does buy under the same conditions as are available to the Clintonville and Waupaca theatres and seeks a finding that said clearance is unreasonable and an award that said theatres are entitled to no clearance over said Grand Theatre.

The original case filed here also involved clearance—with Evansville Theatre, Inc., charging Paramount with giving unreasonable clearance to the Jeffris in Janesville.

Van Derveer Plaint Now Being Heard

CHICAGO—The first arbitration demand filed here on February 13 by E. F. Van Derveer, operator of the State, Morris, Ill., was heard March 15 before Arbitrator Charles Zane Henkle, vice-president of the Continental Illinois National Bank. The case involves "some run" and names Loew's as the only distributor, and the Morris and Times theatres, both in Morris.

Harry Lorch Resigns as Republic Exchange Head

CHICAGO—Harry Lorch, local exchange manager for Republic, has resigned to devote his time for the present to the two local theatres he operates, the Harvard and East Side. The resignation becomes effective about April 1. To date no successor has been named.

Sosna Demands First Runs In Mexico, Mo., House

ST. LOUIS—Louis M. Sosna, 805 South Williams St., Moberly, Mo., owner-manager of the Sosna, Mexico, Mo., has filed the first complaint with the arbitration tribunal for the St. Louis territory. He charges the national distributors have declined to furnish 1940-41 first-run pictures for his theatre.

The distributors mentioned in the complaint are: Columbia Pictures Corp., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., Loew's, Inc., Paramount Pictures Corp., Republic Pictures Corp., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Universal Film Exchange, Inc., United Artists Corp. and Vitagraph, Inc.

Sosna's complaint, filed under the "some run" provisions of the consent decree, is the first complaint to be filed with the local tribunal. The next step will be to provide an arbitrator to hear and pass on the evidence. It is probable, however, that the case will not actually get to trial for about 30 days.

Sosna in his submission sets forth that various distributors of film encouraged him to open a new theatre in Mexico, and promised to supply the Sosna Theatre with a sufficient number of first-run pictures for profitable operation.

The Sosna was opened in June, 1940, but only Vitagraph sold the house first run pictures and these were for the 1938-39 season. When the new selling season opened about July, 1940, Sosna charges that none of the distributors mentioned in his complaint offered to sell their new 1940-41 first run pictures to the Sosna, and when Louis M. Sosna, manager, demanded pictures the distributors gave the excuse that their product had already been sold to the opposition theatre in Mexico.

He further charges that the Sosna cannot obtain sufficient number of desirable first-run pictures for profitable operation. He sets out that the only remedy for the situation that now prevails in Mexico is that arrangements be made for the Sosna to secure approximately 208 first-run pictures from five of the major and independent distributors.

The submission also stated that the theatres that would be affected by a decision reached in connection with his complaint would be the Frisina houses in Mexico, the Liberty and the Rex.

When Sam and Louis Sosna announced their intention of opening a new theatre early in May, 1940, the opposition houses, the Liberty, an 800-seater, and the Rex, with 450 seats, were being operated by C. M. Clay.

The Sosnas spent some $40,000 to convert a former mercantile building into a 400-seat motion picture theatre with modern equipment.

Late in October, 1940, Clay entered into a deal with the Frisina Amusement Co. of Springfield and Taylorville, Ill., headed by Dominic Frisina, to take over the operation and management of the Liberty and Rex. The Frisina circuit has approximately 40 theatres in southern Illinois, eastern Missouri and southeastern Iowa under its banner. It is one of the largest renters of film in the middlewest. So far as is known it has no producer or distributor financial hookup, being regarded as an independent circuit in the trade.

In his submission to the arbitration tribunal, Sosna does not make any charges against the Frisina circuit. He merely mentions that the circuit's houses in Mexico would be affected by the case that he has brought against the nine film distributors.

C. W. Hudson is in charge of the local tribunal in suite 823 Cotton Belt Bldg.

Construction, Clearance in Defense Activity Wake

By DAVID F. BARRETT

ST. LOUIS—Careful attention to small towns and villages that heretofore have not been considered seriously as candidates for theatres is trailing the mushrooming of new army camps and national defense projects in this area. Some of these towns have suddenly taken the spotlight and, almost overnight, there is a mad rush of trade interests to get in on the ground floor.

Intensification of competition thus engendered is expected to aggravate trade problems, with the result that some of the first arbitration cases in this area are expected to deal with the new trend.

Typical of the sudden development of a town when a national defense project locates in its vicinity is Waynesville, in central Missouri, where some 15,000 men are employed in constructing a camp to house 45,000 soldiers. Newcomers to the town to date have boosted its original 300 population to ten times the number, and its promise of growth is inviting to businesses looking about for desirable locations.

Neighboring towns of Rolla, Lebanon, Vienna, Tuscumbia and Dixon and even Jefferson City and Springfield have taken on new importance from a motion picture standpoint because of this new army camp and already a number of new theatres have been announced for this general area, with independents, affiliated and unaffiliated chains all on the alert.

In Waynesville, J. T. Ghosen, who operates theatres at Sedalia and several other spots, has started the conversion of a building into a 500-seat theatre. Commonwealth-Waynesville Corp. is speeding completion of a 1,000-seater, to be opened Sunday, April 13, in the town. The incorporators of this firm are James W. Taylor, Byron Spencer and M. White, all of Kansas City, in which area Commonwealth has a number of theatres.

In Rolla a new 700-seat house is to be built by Mrs. Mildred Karsch, at present operating in Farmington, Mo. C. Berutt, who owns the 740-seat Rollamo here at present, is breaking ground for a 500-seater. In Lebanon a 500-seater has been started by F. L. Lowe who is connected with the Star Theatre Co. of Lyons, Kas.

Incipient in the situation are competitive disputes over product and clearance when the houses are ready to operate. This has already been highlighted by the oil boom in southern Illinois where the opening of several new houses in a specific area has made them immediately competitive.

Expansion of some of the independent chains also has created situations of competitive conflict.

For example the Frisina circuit, which is particularly active, came into Mexico, Mo., where the smaller operators, Sam and Louis Sosna, had started a 400-seater in the summer of 1940 in opposition to C. M. Clay, operator of a 450-seater and an 800-seat house. Clay, later in the year, entered into a deal with the Frisina interests to take over the operation of the two houses, and again the situation in the city was entirely changed.

THEATRICAL PRINTING

Oscar Schenk, Amusement Ad Manager, Stricken

CHICAGO—Oscar E. Schenk, 46, manager of the amusement advertising department of the Herald-American, died of a heart attack at his home in suburban Wilmette last Saturday.

Schenk joined the Hearst paper in 1915. Under his guidance, the Herald-American reportedly carried more theatrical advertising lineage than any other paper in the country.

Schenk is survived by his widow. His only son, Robert, was killed in an auto accident near Murdo, South Dakota, in 1939.

Wally Amann, veteran ad salesman for the paper who has been specializing in hotel and night club advertising, has been appointed Schenk's successor.

Charles E. Ward

FAIRBURY, ILL.—Charles E. Ward, 68, operator of a theatre in Odell, was fatally injured when he became ill while driving.

Fire in Vandalia, Ill.

VANDALIA, ILL.—Fire of undetermined origin recently destroyed the Liberty Theatre here. The house was managed by Herman Tanner.

Tax Fears Fading; Fast Time Again

MADISON, WIS.—The legislative cauldron continues to bubble along at an even pace with the biggest news of the week the passage by the assembly of the joint finance committee's budget bill, which appropriates $73,858,270 and the revival of the daylight saving measure.

Exhibitors are hopeful that if the budget bill passes the senate, it will mean they have little left to fear this session from possible new taxes. What deficit there is between the budget for the coming biennium and actual expenditures is expected to be met by diversion of highway funds.

The daylight saving measure was rescued by night session senate action. It has been amended so it now affects Milwaukee only. The original bill was statewide, but to mollify upstate opposition, it was amended, 17-12, to apply only to Milwaukee county.

The Doyne bill was introduced to boost the penalty for violation of state laws against obscenity in photographs, literature or motion pictures. It would increase the penalty from a $500 fine to a minimum fine of $1,000. The measure prohibits the "publication, printing or exhibition of obscene literature, pictures or motion pictures" and also makes it illegal to possess them.

A Wage-Hour Bill Is Up for Wisconsin

MADISON, WIS.—Introduced in the assembly by Robert Tehan, Milwaukee, is a bill to set up a state wage and hour act for intrastate industries.

Limiting its provisions to persons earning less than $250 a month, it would set a minimum hourly wage of 30 cents for the first five years of the law's operation and 40 cents thereafter.

Hours would be limited to eight a day and 44 a week, with payment of time and one-half for overtime.

Exemptions would include agricultural and domestic employes and persons employed temporarily for two weeks before Christmas.

Sectional Newsreel Plan Launched in Illinois

CHICAGO—Archie Spencer, formerly special representative with Publix Great States Theatres, Inc., has formed the Teletone News Company at 10 S. La Salle St. to distribute and sell sectional newsreels. Initial "shots" are expected to be released May 1.

According to Spencer, the company will take newsreel shots in six central states—Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa and Missouri. The new Teletone firm plans to have a tieup with the local daily paper with the paper given credit for presentation of the newsreel on the screen. It is stated that member newspapers of the Illinois Daily Newspaper Markets, Inc., a non-profit organization which promotes and publicizes daily newspapers in Illinois, have agreed to the Teletone News plan.

It is planned to have two cameramen in Illinois—one in Chicago and another in Springfield.

Donnellan is now showing pictures in the Winter town hall.

Threaten Chain With Four-Hour Shows

ST. LOUIS—Complaining that the "special celebrations" at the St. Louis Amusement's Gravois and Kingsland have extended some 60 days or so, a number of independents are threatening to retaliate with four-hour shows, cut prices and the like.

Fred Wehrenberg, president of the local MPTOA unit, reveal that the Apollo is putting on a four-hour show several nights a week. It has also slashed its admission price from 28 cents to 20 cents, he says. A number of the local theatres have been using triple bills with great frequency. Others go in for merchandise gifts in a big way.

The Better Films Council of Greater St. Louis has protested in vain to exhibitors against these lengthy shows. Within the next few days a bill to "protect" the children of the community from too lengthy motion picture shows, will be presented to the general assembly, now in session at Jefferson City.

St. Louis Theatres Join Greek War Relief Drive

ST. LOUIS—Upwards of 200 motion picture theatres in St. Louis and surrounding territory have signified their intention to join in the nation-wide drive to raise funds for the Greek War Relief Committee.

Plans for local participation were worked out at a meeting held here this week, and attended by some 80 theatre owners and managers. A five-day drive starts Tuesday, March 25.

The motion picture industry has assumed the responsibility for raising $1,000,000 of the $10,000,000 national quota for the providing of food, clothing, medical supplies, etc., for the Greek civilian population.

Harry C. Arthur, president and general manager of Fanchon & Marco, and Maurice Schweitzer, local manager for Paramount, have been named co-chairmen for the St. Louis division.

A special trailer starring Melvyn Douglas will be shown at all of the theatres during the five-day drive. "Flying squads" of girls in native Greek costumes will visit all of the local night clubs and taverns in the interest of this drive.

Reinheimer Renews Altec

CHICAGO—L. Reinheimer has renewed his agreements with Altec for sound and service for three houses here, one in Lombard, Ill., and one in Hammond, Ind.

ST. LOUIS

BARNEY ROSENTHAL, veteran exchange man who lost his wife several weeks ago, was grieved again last week when his sister, Mrs. William Simpson of Chicago, died in that city. Repudiate Testimony By Helen Lynch

New York—The National Legion of Decency repudiates the testimony of Helen Lynch who supported the anti-five block bill before the Minnesota house judiciary committee Monday, presumably reflecting the Legion's attitude.

Through Mrs. James F. Looram, chairman of the Legion's reviewing committee, the Legion states that its only authorized spokesmen in Minnesota are the Rev. Donald J. Gregory, chancellor of the diocese of St. Paul, and Father Martin Larkin of Duluth.

Product Demand to Reach Arbitration

MINNEAPOLIS—Hearing of the first complaint filed with this district's arbitration board will be held in approximately 30 days when the question will be answered as to whether the White Bear Theatre, White Bear, Minn., is entitled to some run of RKO, Warner, 20th-Fox and M-G-M, now allegedly denied it.

Seeking a subsequent-run of these products, David Ratner, operating the house in opposition to the State Theatre which has been in White Bear long before, filed the complaint.

The complaint, alleging the inability to obtain any run of the defendant companies' pictures, claims the White Bear Theatre is entitled to some run on a reasonable clearance as between it and the State and "on such terms as will not defeat the consent decree's purpose, and particularly Sections 7 and 8." It demands "that said controversy and its right to some run from these companies upon a reasonable clearance be afforded to against such producers and distributors."

It is pointed out that "licensing of said pictures will be of no value unless the arbitration fixes a reasonable clearance between the run of said pictures now licensed to the State."

Four Added to K. C. Arbitration Panel

KANSAS CITY—The following local business men have been added to the arbitration panel of the motion picture tribunal here, John F. Brink, clerk, announces:

Urges House Approval Anti-Decree Measure

MINNEAPOLIS—Acting in the face of belated opposition from four major companies, the house judiciary committee recommended by a vote of 18 to 2 passage of the Northwest Allied measure to vitiate certain portions of the consent decree. Arrayed against the bill were Metro, 20th-Fox, RKO and Warner.

United Artists joined the other distributors when the senate general legislation committee held a hearing on the same measure, claiming the company couldn't operate under its sales plan. The committee continued the hearing until March 19 to give proponents a chance to argue.

When the house judiciary committee met this week to consider the measure again, following last week's public hearing, it permitted a representative of the Catholic Legion of Decency to appear and make a plea for its enactment. Northwest Allied leaders had feared that the Legion might oppose it.

The bill would require film distributors in Minnesota to offer for sale to exhibitors their entire season's product, the same as at present, to grant a minimum of 20 per cent cancellation and to refrain from forced selling of shorts, newsreels, trailers, westerns and foreigns.

David Shearer, local attorney, was retained by the four film companies to argue against the bill. Northwest Allied members, who spoke in its behalf, were Fred Strom, executive secretary, President E. L. Peaslee and W. R. Frank.

Shearer declared the consent decree should be given every chance to succeed because it represents a U. S. governmental department's policy and constitutes a bona fide attempt on the film industry's part at self-regulation.

It also was argued by Shearer that the proposed legislation would result in a reversal of governmental policy and throw the industry, locally and nationally, into confusion. Separate sales policies would be required for Minnesota, on the one hand, and North and South Dakota and western Wisconsin, also a part of the Minneapolis trade territory, on the other, he pointed out. The passage of similar acts elsewhere would necessitate as many different office set-ups as there were laws, according to Shearer who also questioned the bill's constitutionality.

Another point made by Shearer—and denied by proponents—was that the measure is undesirable because it would make split deals and spot booking illegal.

Sees Decree Time-Consuming

In arguing for the bill, Peaslee explained that film prices are largely a matter of negotiation between exhibitors and distributors. Under the consent decree groups-of-five selling plan, he claimed, so many negotiations would be necessary that the average exhibitor would have to devote much additional time to buying film. The result would be much more grief for the exhibitor and likely neglect of other phases of his business.

Strom said the law is desired by exhibitors so that they can buy at wholesale instead of at retail. The cancellation privilege is essential, he declared, so that exhibitors may eliminate pictures which are injurious to their business. It's wrong to make them pay for films which they can't or don't play, he asserted.

Such a picture as "Susan and God" may be a big drawing card in the large cities first runs, Strom pointed out, but worthless to the smaller town theatre owners who should have the right to exclude it from their contracts. In order to obtain the comparatively few good pictures produced by each company, exhibitors have to buy all products and pay for pictures which they don't use, but the cancellation privilege would help to correct this, according to Strom.

Faith in Arbitration

Frank, owner of a large independent circuit, charged that the consent decree would take from many exhibitors their power to negotiate and would put them at distributors' mercy in the matter of prices.

It was pointed out by Frank that, after the Paramount-affiliated loop first-run houses had run a group of five pictures, the independent neighborhood exhibitor, obtaining the pictures 56 days later, would have to buy these films in order to have sufficient product to operate his house and, in such a situation, the distributors could dictate the price and he'd have no choice in negotiation.

Friedman, another leading independent circuit owner, expressed wonderment why, if the decree is the answer to the industry's problems, the large affiliated theatre circuits have run to cover by making long-term franchise deals, covering entire products, with all the major companies.

Small-town exhibitor constituents of Representative A. L. Boze, a committee member, advised him that, in their opinions, there'd be eight to ten times as many percentage pictures as at present and film costs would be boosted many fold, he said.

The opinion was expressed by Shearer that the consent decree's arbitration plan, which, he said, was set up at tremendous cost to the distributors, would correct grievances. Peaslee replied that the exhibitors would have to bear the cost of arbitration, in the final analysis, by paying higher film prices.

CASE NO. 1—Filed March 7. Demand and submission involving some run. David Ratner, operating White Bear Theatre, White Bear, Minn. With: RKO, M-G-M, Warner, 20th-Fox. Theatre named in controversy: State, White Bear, Minn.

Iowa-Neb. ATO Ponders Upon New Organization

DES MOINES—At a two-day conference of the Allied Theatre Owners of Iowa and Nebraska here Monday and Tuesday, the board of directors was appointed as a committee to further investigate the feasibility of a new Iowa-Nebraska organization.

Leo F. Wolcott of Eldora, who, as president of the group, called the meeting, declined to make any statement as to the possible purpose of reorganization.

The Iowa-Nebraska operators went through the formality of voting to give the consent decree a fair trial.

The two-day session opened with a luncheon at which H. M. Richey and Ed Kuykendall were the principal speakers. Richey, formerly Michigan Allied manager, is now exhibitor-relations chief for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; Kuykendall is the president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America.

Richey, who flew to Des Moines from New York for the meeting, discussed ways and means of preventing adverse legislation. He feels that "unfortunately, too few theatre owners keep close contact with the men they elect to office and too many times these men get a distorted picture of our business . . . I believe this industry faces the greatest future it has ever faced, but it will have to chart its course with more care than at any other time."

Kuykendall criticized present amusement taxes for theatres. He said he didn't believe they would be increased for some time, however. (An admission tax bill calling for a one-cent tax on all theatre tickets up to 50 cents and a two-cent tax on tickets from 50 cents to $1 is pending in the Iowa legislature currently).

Describing exhibitors as the "shock-absorbers" of the industry, Kuykendall declared praise or blame regarding the quality of films reaches the exhibitor first. "Unfortunately too few (exhibitors) give enough time to arranging balanced programs," he said.

Richey returned to New York Tuesday evening. Kuykendall went to Omaha.

Representatives from Tri-States, Central States, Pioneer Theatre Circuit, and most of the exchanges attended the luncheon. A snowstorm held the number of independents present down to 120.

Wolcott Re-Elected

The first day of the meeting closed following discussion of pending legislation, including a Bank Night bill, the admission tax bill and the reel bill, all of which are opposed by the organization. The group is sponsoring a fire regulation bill, Senate File 375, which provides for fire prevention specifications on all new theatre buildings.

Tuesday was given over for the most part to the election of officers and a discussion of the double feature problem. Officers who were re-elected were Leo F. Wolcott, Eldora, president; W. B. Franke, Humboldt, vice-president, and W. A. Dutton, Manchester, secretary. A. C. Myrick, Lake Park, and Harold H. Hall, Elkader, were elected to the board of directors.

According to Wolcott, small town theatre audiences in Iowa and Nebraska don't like double feature films. Double bills seem to be more popular in the larger cities such as Des Moines, he said, and as a result, independent operators in the two states are providing single features in small communities.

W. B. Franke is of the opinion that the double bill is enjoyed more by the man with the small income. He believes it is the poor man's entertainment, and that the man with the large family who has to watch his budget wants all the picture he can get for his money.

Franke thinks the occasional theatregoer, who follows the bills at first run establishments, does not favor double features. He prefers his bridge, golf or bowling.

On Tour—

Ed L. Kuykendall, MPTOA president, who returned Thursday to Kansas City after a side trip to Des Moines and Omaha for informal discussion with exhibitors. The national exhibitor leader was in Kansas City to study facilities of Excelsior Springs for the annual convention to be held the first week in June.

Iowa-Nebraska ATO Hears Richey Urge New Unity

DES MOINES—Allied Theatre Owners of Iowa-Nebraska at a meeting here Monday and Tuesday were warned against expecting any tremendously improved Hollywood product and were advised that now is the time for the motion picture industry to put its house in order.

H. M. Richey, personal envoy of W. F. Rodgers, general sales manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, was the spotlighted speaker of the meeting.

"It is probable that with the pictures being made before they are sold and then sold in groups of five, some improvements in story selection and in casting may result," Richey admitted, "but I don't believe it will result in any particular improvement in production because . . . I am convinced Hollywood knows how to produce good motion pictures and that they are doing a good job.

"It would rather seem to me that the big task ahead would be to have every element of the industry attempt to make the consent decree work . . . Should there develop in the decree parts that are obviously unworkable, it will then be a combined industry dictating changes that may at some time be made.

"It does offer a platform on which the industry can tie and little time need be wasted in abstract discussion of problems within the industry."

Adverse legislation, a major topic of the Iowa-Nebraska session, drew Richey's attention, too. He advised each exhibitor to maintain friendly contact with his own legislator instead of counting on pressure activity at the statehouse by the "big fellows."

"I am firmly convinced that it isn't possible for any element in this business to tear down the other to feather his own nest or to win his point at the time," said Richey. "Yet, I have seen . . . statements by men in this business who should know better, that would convince any legislator, not knowing the other side, of the justification for the particular taxation legislation.

"I stress this point because it seems to me that the new formula of tomorrow in this business is going to be to count ten before anything of a derogatory nature is expressed about our business. I feel this industry faces the greatest future it has ever faced, but by the same token will have to chart its course with more care than at any other time."

After listing efforts being made to improve production, distribution and pre-selling, Richey closed his talk with a plea for greater showmanship on the part of the exhibitor, himself.

"After all," he observed, "unless we and you can get more people through the boxoffices of the United States, whatever financial problems we may have will not be solved."

Zuelch Heads Metro Club

MINNEAPOLIS—Holding its annual election, the M-G-M club chose Art Zuelch, booker, as president. Norman Pyle, exploiteer, was named vice-president; Dorothy Kielty, treasurer, and Mary Lou Brown, secretary.

Kaycee Visitor—

John H. Harris, Pittsburgh showman, president of the National Variety Club and owner of the "Ice Capades" show current at the Pla-Mor rink, arrived Thursday in Kansas City to talk over with Republic executives plans for production of a motion picture based on the ice show. Present for Republic were Herbert J. Yates and M. J. Siegel, the latter in charge of production. Harris also conferred with Robert F. Withers, local chairman, on plans for the Greek War Relief drive.

Contract Signed for "Ice Capades" Film

KANSAS CITY—A contract was finalized here Thursday by Herbert J. Yates and M. J. Siegel of Republic with John H. Harris, president of Ice Capades, Inc., for the production of a feature based on the ice show current at the Pla-Mor. The entire cast is slated to appear in the picture.

Also present at the conferences was Bobby North, who will produce the film tentatively titled "Ice Capades of 1941." Joseph Santley is said to be scheduled to direct.

Arriving by plane, the executives departed for their offices via the same type of transportation.

Double Thanksgiving Again for Nebraska

OMAHA—Exhibitors in Nebraska are going to get a double Thanksgiving day again in 1941, which probably will mean double holiday business for a lot of them. At least it did in 1940.

The state legislature has officially declared the last Thursday in November as Thanksgiving day in the state. The day will be celebrated a week earlier by many, in keeping with the federal declaration.

That means many federal employes and office workers will be off one day, while firms and stores will be closed on another day. In 1940 the exhibitors got holiday prices only the one day, which they'll probably do this year, but they got extra business on both days.

Charges Dubinsky Rein On St. Joseph Runs

ST. JOSEPH—Frank Cassil testified that business difficulties at his Rialto in the South Side began when the Dubinsky brothers' enterprises assumed control of theatres in downtown St. Joseph as the $452,775 damage suit he and his wife, Eugenia, filed against the Dubinskys and eight major distributors began in federal court here Tuesday.

Cassil said that in 1932 he learned at the Paramount booking office at Kansas City that he could not play subsequent run films at the Rialto until two weeks after they had played the Crystal, a Dubinsky house.

Because of that situation, he was forced to cut his admission from 20 cents to 15 cents to match the Crystal's price, with a consequent loss, Cassil said. He said he protested to Paramount and was told that the firm had made a deal with Dubinskys giving them protection over other St. Joseph theatres in connection with a transaction in which the Dubinskys obtained the Paramount interests in houses in St. Joseph.

Another official of the company told him Dubinskys and Paramount had entered into a ten-year agreement on booking and nothing could be done to help him, Cassil testified.

He also had the same experience with other distributors, Cassil testified. Some first-run pictures have been shown at the Rialto in the last eight or nine years, but they had been offered to Dubinskys and refused, Cassil said. He also said that since 1933 no first or second runs had been shown in any St. Joseph theatre unless the Dubinskys had passed them.

Conspiracy Alleged

The Cassils allege in the suit that the Dubinskys and the distributors conspired, in violation of anti-trust laws, so that Dubinskys would enjoy a monopoly on first and second runs in St. Joseph, and prevented Cassils from obtaining subsequent runs for their house until the Dubinskys had used them at the Crystal, a second-run Dubinsky house. Cassil testified Tuesday that because of that situation he had to cut admission at his second-run house to match the Crystal's price of 15 cents, and was unable to arrange his programs more than two weeks in advance.

Much of the day and night sessions Tuesday were given over to introducing into the records contracts between Cassil and the distributors.

Most of the second day of the trial was given over to introducing depositions relating to booking contracts between Dubinsky brothers and the distributors. Attorneys for the Cassils sought to show by the depositions that protection given the Dubinskys in the contracts was part of the conspiracy to keep the Cassils from obtaining pictures on subsequent runs until after Dubinskys had used them.

Depositions read Wednesday, the second day, were those of managers of branch distributing offices at Kansas City. The depositions were those of Ralph LiBeau, Paramount; Frank Hensler, Loew's, Inc., and Ward E. Scott, 20th-Fox.

Efforts by the Cassils' attorneys to introduce into trial records information on prices paid by the Dubinskys for pictures were denied by Judge Merrill E. Otis.

Judge Otis ruled that the information was not relevant to the case, and since it was a business matter which the Dubinskys desired to keep secret it should not be revealed unless proven relevant.

"The distributor certainly would be able to make a lower price to an exhibitor for a second run if he also took the first run," commented the judge, adding that no evidence of conspiracy or monopoly could be derived from that fact.

Paul Stinson, Kansas City, attorney for the defendants, had argued that to disclose the prices the Dubinskys paid would be to disclose trade secrets.

Central States Theatres Have a Flying Manager

LINCOLN—It used to be that the local manager for a circuit expected his boss to come in via train or car, but the Central States (Harry Warren) Theatres, Inc., men of Iowa and Nebraska must look to the skies.

During the past week, M. E. McClain, the Central States district manager, inaugurated what will be his new method of patrolling his territory.

Recently having moved Ed Schoenthal from the Sun in Holdrege to the home office in Fremont, McClain had two things in mind. Schoenthal was not only made manager of the Fremont, in Fremont, but, being a licensed pilot, he became McClain's air chauffeur.

Now, when comes time for the district checkup, Schoenthal pilots McClain whereever he wants to go. First manager to be surprised in this fashion was M. E. Lofgren in York.

Blank Circuit Wins a Round With Goldberg

DES MOINES — Tri-States Theatres this week reported progress in their federal court suit to enjoin operation of the State Theatre as a motion picture house in Omaha.

Judge James A. Donohoe issued a memorandum favoring the A. H. Blank circuit, but I. J. Dunn, attorney for Ralph Goldberg, president of the State Investment Co., which operates the State Theatre, said he would appeal and that the company would post a bond to continue operation pending the appeal.

The Tri-States circuit, which operates the Omaha and Orpheum theatres in Omaha, began the court action in September, 1939, charging the opening of the State violated Tri-States' lease of the Omaha Theatre property from the World Realty Co. of which Goldberg also is president.

Branton Silent on Report Anti-Trust Charge Filed

DES MOINES—G. Ralph Branton, general manager of the Tri-States Theatres Corp., refused to make any comment Tuesday on the petition filed in Washington recently by a group of independent Iowa theatre operators requesting investigation of the Tri-States and Central States Theatres Corporations.

"I have not been notified of the action and have no statement to make," Branton said.

Several independent operators who disclaim any connection with the action, express the belief that a well-known "silent" partner of a number of small Des Moines houses is the real momentum behind the petition which charges the two corporations with violation of the Sherman anti-trust laws.

Another protest is being filed by a group of independents against the Tri-States Theatres Corporation in connection with the building of a new theatre in East Des Moines. The theatre is now under construction at a location which has long been discussed by theatre people as an ideal spot for a suburban house. The lot on which the new house is being built adjoins the building which formerly housed a theatre, but which has been converted into a second-hand shop for a number of years.

The location has been the subject of much speculation by interested parties, not acquainted with the details as to why no attempt to build a theatre there has been successful heretofore.

Show Aviation Films

$1,751 for Greek Aid From Des Moines

Des Moines—The Greek War Relief ball here featured by a personal appearance of Brenda Joyce, 20th Century-Fox star, raised $1,751 for the Iowa Greek War Relief fund, a final accounting on the benefit shows.

Greek Relief Drive Plans Complete in Northwest

MINNEAPOLIS—Elaborate plans have been completed for the theatre and film industry's drive in behalf of Greek relief in the Northwest. The territory has been broken down into districts, with a supervisor appointed for each of them and responsible for staging a benefit show the week of April 1 in every community.

John J. Friedl, Minnesota Amusement company president, is general chairman of the committee in charge. C. B. Stiff of the same company heads the committee arranging the Minneapolis and St. Paul benefit shows to be given April 2 and 3, respectively. One of the features of the Minneapolis show will be a 30 minute concert by the full Minneapolis Symphony orchestra.

Full Support for Greek Drive in Kansas City

KANSAS CITY—Two hundred thirty-three houses in the Kansas City exchange area have pledged their support for the Greek War Relief Week, March 23 to 29 inclusive, the distributor committee, under the chairmanship of Robert P. Withers, reported, with the final total expected to go over the 300 mark.

Plan A, which includes a special trailer by Melvyn Douglas, a direct appeal made by a local speaker wherever possible, and a collection from the audience, is the plan practically all the houses will use, according to Senn Lawler, who is replacing E. C. Rhoden as chairman of the exhibitor committee for the area.

Arm bands, buttons, lobby material, and publicity material to be used in conjunction with the trailer, will reach cooperating dealers shortly.

In downtown Kansas City, only the Midland will have a midnight showing. Present plans call for a combination stage screen show. Jerry Zigmond, chairman for the local committee, reports that all other downtown theatres will boost this showing. Tickets are 50 cents each.

In the suburban area, present plans indicate houses will use the trailer and direct collection.

Fast Time, Divorce Bills Are Killed

Minneapolis—A proposed daylight saving law before the state legislature, opposed by independent exhibitors, was killed in committee, along with a theatre divorcement bill, which Northwest Allied refused to support.

"Days of '49" Set For April 11-12

KANSAS CITY—"Days of '49," an annual event put on by Variety Club, Tent 8, has now been scheduled for Friday and Saturday, April 11 and 12, in the clubrooms. Plans are rapidly taking shape under the direction of Leland Allen, Commonwealth, who heads the entertainment committee. This is one of the four events in 1941 open to the public.

H. J. Griffith, Harold Harris and W. G. McKinney of the H. J. Griffith Theatres, were the hosts and Mrs. "Jimmy" Griffith and Mrs. Juanita Harris were the hostesses for the second Variety "get together" party, in the clubrooms Friday evening. Members were allowed to bring guests to the affair, which featured a buffet dinner followed by games.

Tom Collins Variety Speaker Monday

KANSAS CITY—Tom Collins, paragrapher for the Kansas City Journal, will speak at the regular Variety noon luncheon Monday at the clubrooms. Collins is noted for the humorous slant he can give the ordinary business of daily living.

Twin City Barkers Greet Large Initiates Class

MINNEAPOLIS—Twin City Variety Club this week initiated its largest class of new members, 26 coming into the organization. Twelve more applications have been signed and will be acted upon shortly. Growth of body is a tribute to the fine work of the membership committee under the chairmanship of Maitland Frosch.

Chief Barker Ben Blotcky welcomed the new body and told of the club's charity work and social life. He also gave an account of his recent trip to Atlantic City, explaining plans for the national convention there in May.

Club this week held its "Gold Rush Days of '49" affair to raise money for the Milk Fund, its principal charity project, and to defray the cost of 16 radio sets installed in the children's wards of the Minneapolis General Hospital. A big St. Patrick's Day stag will be held the night of March 17 in the clubrooms. Rhumba lessons and dancing will be resumed next Saturday night.

Iowa Bank Night Bill Seeks Regular Awards

DES MOINES—Newest Bank Night bill appearing in the Iowa legislature would require the awarding of a prize at each drawing and would require all patrons to register for each particular drawing.

The measure, which is being drafted by Rep. Joseph Wagner of Ottumwa, would also prohibit more than three theatres within any municipal corporation from taking part in one drawing.

The Florida Parade: Back from Florida, George W. Fuller, 20th-Fox manager; George Fisk, Fisk, Butler, Mo.; J. E. Garrison, Universal. Gone to Florida, O. K. Mason, vice-president of Commonwealth Theatres. Some comments on the state:

"Business in the South is booming."—Fuller.

"The weather is lousy in Florida."—Fisk.

"Golfing was fine."—Garrison.

Just to be different, Helen Mary McLatchey, George Baker's secretary, goes to Mexico for two weeks.

Freddy Greenberg, former K. C. Paramount salesman, now Indianapolis branch manager, was back on the Row this week, saying hello and goodbye to former coworkers.

Did you notice anything South American about C. P. Shaner, Dixie, Odessa, Mo., when he went along the Row this week? The effects of his vacation in Mexico haven't completely worn off yet.

Buying things: Seats for Ray Walsh's Mainstreet in Chanute, Kas.; a popcorn machine for Louise Block's soon-to-be-opened Civic in Sabetha, Mo.; carpet for George Baker's Manor at McPherson, Kas.; seats for the Fort Riley, Kas., draftees, by Purchasing Agent C. S. Wilder.

"Chet" Borg of Paramount, laid up for the past six weeks by gallstone and appendicitis operations, is now home from the hospital, ready to greet Filmrow friends. He hopes to be back at work by April 1.

If he isn't careful Martin Stone will be going high hat on us. He bet Lou Sutter, Castle, that the Greeks wouldn't take Valonna by March 1, which they didn't. He bet Charlie Gregory, National Screen Service, that the Greeks wouldn't take Valonna by April 1, and from the way things look now, they won't. He hasn't collected on either bet yet, however. Remember the old saying, Martin—don't count your chickens before they're hats.

"Clee" Bratton, Ritz, Council Grove, Kas., is a dangerous man with a shotgun. He won enough prize money at the Trap Shoot at Elliot's Shooting Park to pay the expenses of his trip into Kansas City.

Marguerite Bruegging wishes she could file away a suit she recently instituted (began). It's a suit for this fall, but at the rate she's sewing, she'd better plan on finishing it the fall of 1942.

Art Phillips supplants Cy Lebedoff as National Screen Service salesman in this territory. Art was formerly based in Chicago. Cy will now be selling in the Minneapolis territory.

Morril "Em-em" Moore of the Isis pleasantly surprised the guests at his own birthday party by showing up after his daughter, Margery Moore, Commonwealth Theatres, had predicted he would forget about it. The party, which took place Saturday evening at the Moore home, had a second guest of honor: Gretchen Brown, Commonwealth, whose birthday is Mar. 9.

June Medcalf, KMTA secretary, is spending her evenings preparing surgical bandages at Red Cross headquarters. Anyone else interested should query June for details.

Steve Broidy, national Monogram sales manager, was in from Hollywood this week.

Filmrow looks partly deserted, so many film men having gone to the Dubinsky-Cassil trial in St. Joseph.

"Peck" Baker is delighting Filmrow by appearing now at his office following confinement to home and hospital since last July.

John H. Harris, national Variety Club president, was a visitor in behalf of the "Ice Capades," currently wowing them at the Pla-Mor rink.

A $100,000 House For West Omaha

OMAHA—Blank and Green Enterprises plan to build a $100,000 theatre in West Omaha, about two miles from the main business section and near one of the better class residential districts.

Blank and Green are Ralph R. Blank and Walter M. Green, both well known to the film industry, especially in the middlewest.

Blank is a nephew of A. H. Blank, president of Tri-States Theatres at Des Moines. Up until a few months ago, Ralph Blank was district manager for Nebraska, with headquarters at Fremont, of Central States Theatres, also of Des Moines. He has also been with Fox West Coast in the past as manager of de luxe theatres on the west coast. He is the senior partner in the new firm.

Green is head of FEPCO (Film Exhibitors Printing Co.), a theatre advertising firm with headquarters in Omaha. Green started the business 15 years ago with one small press in his home. Recently he completed an expensive home west of Omaha.

Headquarters of the new theatre firm will be at Green's offices on Filmrow.

The new theatre will be named the Admiral and it will seat 1,000 patrons. A navy scheme will be carried out in the decorations and style of architecture. The house will be equipped with hearing aids and arrangements for television.

Work will start about April 1 and the theatre will be completed for patronage by next fall.

DES MOINES

MYSTERY MAN OF THE WEEK: The sober-looking gent leaving a familiar-looking package wrapped in brown paper at the Hotel Savery desk for Lou Levy . . . time: Exactly 5:21 . . . we will appreciate any information as to his identity . . . we would have asked him ourselves, excepting we were too busy penning a note to Leo Wolcott, and we couldn't decide whether we should draw a golf ball, a putter, and a green on the envelope to insure the Wolcott's attention (we wisely decided against this device, because we knew he'd never get to the note, he'd be so busy trying to figure out what we were trying to draw).

Francis Kappler is still doing a monk act over at Republic . . . but if you're really minding your own business that closely, Francis, how'd you get that tap on the forehead? Cannonball Lee and Bert Thomas are now dubbed "The Rover Boys," and it has something to do with wandering in and outa the dog house so much. That was Morton Van Praag, National Screen's division manager, with Gertrude and Lou Patz at the Fox screening the other night. W. C. Gehring and M. A. Levy were in town Thursday 3/13).

The next time you see Mrs. Stan Mayer, look sharp . . . she may be wearing one of those New York Movietone News creations . . . and these Vyvyan Donner bonnets are the money . . . $35 and up; Stan says H—— no I can't afford that black turban she wears, but Donner happens to be my maw's cousin, and the snazzy chapeau was a gift. Harold Lyons is the new salesman at Fox . . . Harold came here from Minneapolis and is handling the northwest territory formerly occupied by Harry Gottlieb (you'll probably find it a little large on you, Harold) . . . Harry draws circles in the dust (or snow) with his toe and blushes a modest denial when you mention it, but we still think he's got a new-type haircut . . . Looks shorter and more youthful, we think . . . Larry Paulson accounts for it by saying that Harry cuts his hair with a pencil sharpener.

"GWTW" is slated for its regular price openings at the Tri-States' houses around Iowa and Nebraska during March as follows: March 21 at the Paramount in Cedar Rapids, the Capitol in Davenport, and the Fort in Rock Island; March 28 at Des Moines, Waterloo, Ottawa, Oskaloosa, Iowa City, and Sioux City in Iowa, and in Bonham and Fairbury in Nebraska; March 29 at the Capitol in Grand Island, Nebraska and on March 30 at the Rivoli in Hastings, Nebraska.

Number 201 (Bob Gottlieb) will shoulder his baton and volunteer in June . . . Ann Rose of Paramount is volunteering in June too, but his name is Ted Groves, not Uncle Sam. Isabelle Conkling isn't going to wait that long . . . she's declaring war on David McCurin, March 29. Joe Manfre was in Kaycee last Sunday. Ann Rose, Mildred Begley, Henry Peterson and Bill Curry were all gathered up at Paramount the other evening to console Charlie Alderson and help him along some . . . Charlie's wife died.

Tri-States was plugging "Tall, Dark and Handsome" as the first feature at the Paramount this week until Saturday when the Music Educators' National Conference opened . . . "The Hard-Boiled Canary" banners started to wave then. Dr. Joseph F. Maddy, founder of the National Music Camp, featured in "The Hard-Boiled Canary" was scheduled to direct the all-Iowa High School Orchestra at the conference here . . . To the lay observer the delayed action tastes like a discreet grain of salt flavoring the comment cards that followed Susanna Foster's p. a. here a few weeks ago.

The guy lugging the mustache around the Orpheum is Bob Haley, pinch hitting for Emil. Bill Lansburg stopped in with a cold, a handkerchief and a stack of stills on "The Lady Eve." Bill insists that those lids droop solely because of trying to fold his six-feet-so-much into lower berths and not from trying to evolve new "Lady Eve" ideas . . . Bill's sticking to fig leaves. Louis Hellborn kicked through with some fine comments about that two-page spread on "Land of Liberty" . . . Louis slipped into town Tuesday just in time for a quick look at H. M. Richey before the New Yorker pulled out. Betcha Louis takes more than a quick look at the "Ziegfeld Girl" layout in this Sunday's roto, though.

Flu-flu: Jimmy Foley, Georgia Bricker, Loretta Morris, Marian Stoll and probably a lot of others we didn't hear about. Doug and Dorothy should be on their way away from DM by the time this comes out . . . & Co. received the cutest cookie jar with "Sis Hopkins" in the lid (but we ate her) . . . Kinsky, Stolte and Groves conferred in DM Monday.

OMAHA

SID McARDLE, United Artists booker, and Mrs. McArdle have adopted a cute, red-headed little girl. She's been named Joyce . . . Tom Pilley, Filmrow's golf playing mailman, is getting awfully anxious to play the game. Please don't get so tied up in golf, Tom, that you forget to get all those copies of BOXOFFICE along Davenport Street on time! . . . Joe Scott, Fox manager, and his neighbors believe someone is poisoning pets in his neighborhood.

Sol Yeager will be in Minneapolis on a new job by the time this column hits your desk. Sol will be a salesman for Universal there. He has formerly worked for several exchanges on Omaha's Filmrow and last was with Monogram. One of these days he's liable to be in the army! . . . A smart exchange manager: C. K. Olson of Warner was seen walking down Filmrow, his brief case under one arm and the latest copy of BOXOFFICE under the other.

DeWitt Green, former poster clerk at the RKO layout, is moving to Dallas where he has a job, we are told . . . Lou Egart, Brandeis treasurer, may have left for the army by the time this issue hits the press . . . Joe Kinsky and Ted Mendenhall are hard at work on the Greek relief drive and they want plenty of help from you and you and you!

Ray Brown, exhibitor at Harlan, Ia., goes soon to Salt Lake City where his daughter, the former Mrs. Carl Ernst, will join a man from California, whom she will marry. Ernst, who formerly ran the theatre at Avoca, Ia., later went to California where he was connected with the theatre industry. Now he's in the army and passed through Omaha the other day en route to a new post in Georgia. We're told Carl looked very smart in a new uniform, driving a new car.

L. E. Burkey, exhibitor at Deshler, Neb., who runs a theatre as a sideline since his main interest is collecting pencils, will soon be surprised by Bill Wink, Warner booker. Bill has two fancy pencils for Burkey. The catch: Burkey will have to give Wink some dates to help him along in the Sears drive . . . The Paramount exchange steps have been painted, so watch your step even more closely than usual when you enter that layout.

Mortmorency Troxell failed to check in this week and his father, "Trox," was full of profuse apologies . . . Bob Whelan is the new manager of the Orpheum at Mapleton, Ia. . . . United Artists folks had a party at the Omaha Variety Club for Harriett Wolsky, who recently married, and the McArdle baby . . . Fred Thortsen, Metro salesman, is getting that farming urge again, now that spring is coming.

F. R. Thompson is the new owner of the Rose at Audubon, Ia. . . . Ed Kuykendall, prexy of MPTOA, was due in Omaha some time the last part of the week. He has been concerned about the future of MPTO of Nebraska and Western Iowa, which has shown little activity since the death of Charlie Williams . . . Three-cornered argument in the Republic office: Carl Reese, Toby Stewart and Harry Lefholtz, with the exhibitor in the middle!

Joe Jacobs, Columbia boss, has been pretty modest about his product lately but we imagine he's just getting all wound up for a big blast . . . Keith Wilson, drama critic, selected Lee Purcell, Brandeis, as the "most pleasant doorman in Omaha" and we say it's a dandy selection . . . Anybody seen or heard from Mike Roth, who gave up the distributor side of the business to become an exhibitor? . . . See ya in camp, Joe Smith.

Starling on Comedy

HOLLYWOOD—Lynn Starling is scripting an untitled comedy which Robert Z. Leonard will direct for Metro.

MINNEAPOLIS

DAVE BADER of National Screen is reported to be in line for a public relations' position with one of the major film companies. He could not be reached for confirmation . . . Lou Goldberg of the Major Bowes' shows stopped over en route east from the coast and hobnobbed with his pal, Ted Bolnick, La Crosse, Wis., showman, up in the big town for a few days . . . C. B. Stiff of the Minnesota Amusement Co. hard at work on the Greek relief benefit shows to be given in Minneapolis and St. Paul April 2 and 3, respectively.

Alvin Theatre stock burlesque, under the sponsorship of the two Harrys, Hirsch and Katz, off to a flying start, with first week one of biggest in local theatrical history for that type of entertainment . . . Arch Zacherl, veteran Universal salesman, up and around again following recovery from a heart attack . . . 20th-Fox very much in the spotlight in downtown Minneapolis the past week, no less than three of its releases being on deck. They were "Western Union," "Hudson's Bay" and "Michael Shayne, Private Detective," at the State, Orpheum and Gopher, respectively.

"Mr. and Mrs. Smith" held over in both Minneapolis and St. Paul. "Virginia" moved from the Century to the World for a third week in Minneapolis downtown. It started at the State . . . With "Back Street" due at the State, Minneapolis, and Paramount, St. Paul, and "Buck Privates" scheduled for the Gopher, Universal anticipates an extra big week March 14 . . . "Nickey" Goldhammer, RKO district manager, visited the Omaha exchange.

Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Film-row included John Piller, Valley City, N. D.; W. J. Carter, Plainview, Minn.; Louis Edelstein, Hibbing, Minn.; Harry Green, Windom, Minn.; Harvey Thorpe, Crosby, Minn., and Louis Deutsch, Virginia, Minn.; Jack Heywood, New Richmond, Wis., and Don Buckley, Redwood Falls, Minn. . . . Jack Irving up from Chicago to organize performers, night clubs, hotels and booking agents for the American Guild of Vaudeville Artists.

Twentieth-Fox screened "That Night in Rio" and you still can hear the raves . . . Gilbert Nathanson, Republic branch manager, visited northern Minnesota accounts . . . Harry Dryer back from a Florida vacation and has a healthy tan to show for his trip. He and his wife visited with W. A. Steffes at Miami and Mrs. Steffes accompanied them back home. On the return trip they stopped over in New Orleans. Steffes' condition still is such that he'll have to remain in Florida until May, probably, but Al is in good spirits and his condition is improved, according to Harry.

Cyril Lebedoff has been promoted by being moved from the Kansas City to the Minneapolis territory by National Screen. He joined the company's sales staff a couple of months ago . . . Mort Van Praag, National Screen district manager, a visitor . . . Twin City Variety Club to have stag in clubrooms March 17. It's a St. Patrick Day's affair.

"Philly Story" Campaign Wins Ruddick an Award

SPRINGFIELD, MO.—Joe Ruddick, manager of the Gillioz Theatre, has been awarded an Honor Roll Button by M-G-M for outstanding exploitation on "The Philadelphia Story."

Highlight of Ruddick's campaign was a novel advance stunt which included the construction of a "press room" in the outer lobby of the house with a sign above it reading: "Scenario department of M-G-M pictures." Six attractive college girls pounded away at typewriters, typing out bits of dialogue from the production on stationery carrying printed copy on the film, theatre and playdates. As fast as items were finished, they were handed patrons.

Improves the "Dug"

KENSINGTON, KAS.—New equipment has been installed in the "Dug" Theatre. C. W. Dugan is the new owner.

De Wolf on "Cowboy Joe"

HOLLYWOOD—Karen De Wolf is scripting "Cowboy Joe" for Producer Robert Sparks at Columbia.

AGVA Agent Rallies Minny Performers

MINNEAPOLIS—Jack Irving of Chicago is here organizing vaudeville performers, booking agencies and night clubs and hotels for AGVA. The move forecasts higher costs for establishments using floor entertainment.

Conditions here have been chaotic, with wildcat booking agents collecting as much as 50 per cent of performers' salaries and acts paid as little as $10 a week, minus $1 for agent's commission, for singles and $37.50 gross for dance teams, according to Irving.

Irving is enlisting support of other AFL trade unions and will sign up hotels, night clubs and theatres along with enrolling performers and licensing agents, he says. He is encountering considerable opposition, however.

Abem Finkel Chore

HOLLYWOOD—Metro has set Abem Finkel to do the script of "The Road Away From Home," from a story by Clifford Dowdey and Richard English.

.....AW, SHUCKS!.....

From the Tall Corn—By KEN and RENE CLAYTON

NOSSUH, Bill Eddy, we won't take back a one of those things we said about you and old style lager . . . After Monday night we're convinced that any such mention is a compliment to your good judgment. Since we've had O. S. L. the rest are S. O. L.

Tim Evans stayed away from his Lyons house two days this time.

Cutest double feature in the business: Mrs. George Storm's dimples.

Dale McFarland from the Davenport Capitol visited the home office (Tri-States) and the DM Row last week.

Snooping around during the Allied Owners meeting:

Exhibitors gave themselves away when they laughed so hard at the "Lady Eve" screening you could hear 'em upstairs. How you gonna keep 'em down on the price that way, boys?

Shivering in the cold at 13th and High were Jack and Warren Eddy, all because the "That Night in Rio" screening didn't even have standing room left. If you happened to be looking, the one who had to chase his hat is Jack. He's from Mt. Ayr. The other is Warren, who does the best job of dead-reckoning, box camera photography in all Sigourney. If we've got 'em wrong, they won't know it. The Row has mixed 'em up so often now they can't even tell themselves apart.

The suave gentleman you heard praising BOXOFFICE (the magazine) for its fair treatment of all motion picture problems was Leo Wolcott, the Big Boss of the Allied from Eldora.

Nodding his head agreeably in back of that cigar which the conference at the corner of the Fox corridor called for, was Henry Rehfield of Bloomfield. Beside him was Harold Field (a field day, huh?), down from Minneapolis to represent his Pioneer circuit at the gathering.

The fella in the tan coat and the soft hat which he doffed with such intriguing gallantry was Harold's cousin, Herman Field from Clarinda.

KANSAS CITY'S

Fifth-Time Holdover At Omaha First Run

OMAHA—The Brandeis Theatre continues to be the top industry news here with the fifth straight holdover, "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" and "Case of the Black Parrot," at the Singer house. The house's double-week record is inviolate since Jan. 1, 1941.

"Western Union" and "Lady With Red Hair" did fairish business at the Orpheum. Manager Bill Miskell and Ted Emerson, Tri-States press agent, rated some nice newspaper space with stunts. "Son of Monte Cristo" and "Keeping Company" were mediocre at the Omaha.

Ice hockey at the Ak-Sar-Ben coliseum and several large basketball games furnished the week's competition. Now in its second year here, hockey is drawing 5,000 to 6,000 patrons twice to three times a week and high school sports are pulling several thousands away from the boxoffices.

Fair and warm weather has been one redeeming feature, anyway.

Two in Tie as Greatest Grossers in Lincoln

LINCOLN—"Western Union" and "Come Live With Me" rode neck and neck to the finish during the past week here for money supremacy on Theatrerow. Wind-up was a tie.

Blast of cold and snow popped into the middle of the week which curtailed all gates a bit.

Kaycee Week Above Par Despite Competition

KANSAS CITY—First-run theatres in nearly every case ran way ahead of average—ignoring, or gaining in spite of, extraordinary competition. The Better Homes show chalked up 110,000 attendance for eight days, ending March 1—overlapping two weeks of programs, apparently affecting grosses in neither week. The police circus got a reported gross of $40,000 for the police benefit fund, attendance including some 3,500 underprivileged children admitted free. Both events were at the Municipal Auditorium. The circus, also, overlapped on two weeks' programs. But there is another theory, namely that when the public is specially stirred to "go some place," for example downtown, by numerous attractions, enough do go so that the "regulars" share in the extra patronage. If next weeks' total gross of theatres is below average, the counter attractions need not be blamed; bad weather hit the tag end of the week under review.

Top rank for the week went to the Tower, with Pinky Tomlin and orchestra in person, being the attraction the public rushed to see and hear, but "Night Train" also having a strong pull. "Virginia" at the Newman was held over, making an unusual record of considerably over average for the second week. The second week for "Western Union" at the Esquire and Uptown also brought better than average returns after big first-week grosses.

The anomaly in this week of good business was at the Midland, where "This Thing Called Love" and "Wild Man of Borneo" fell below average. A newspaper story, at the beginning of the run, reported the action of the Legion of Decency on the first-named picture; but nobody ventures comment on whether the action and the report of it helped or hurt patronage.

Detail for week ending March 8:

SUNDAY Journal and Star's ten best poll winner has just done her week in Hollywood, all expenses paid. She, Elise Seright, came nearest to the official list of 6,500 entries in the Journal's 1940 contest . . . Doris Price, of M. E. McClain's Central States district office in Fremont, turned BOXOFFICE a swell feature on her flying boss this week. Thanks! . . . R. W. Huffman booked "Night at Earl Carroll's" at the Nebraska with newly married Gene Shanahan (the house manager), just to tantalize him . . . Bob Livingston claims Ralph Goldberg better come back from Mexico before somebody decides to anchor him there as foundation for one of those new bases they're talking of building.

That new Ralph Blank-Walter Green house ($100,000 worth) in Omaha is causing quite a stir of wonderment among outstate showmen . . . Alvin Hendricks is so sure the draft's going to get him soon, he totals up all columns of addition around the office every night, so everything will be in order when he checks out—to check in . . . Bernie Evens was in with a bad cold to bally a good opening for "Pastor Hall" at the Variety. He and Bill Knight were both amazed at the boxoffice strength of the British-made flicker . . . Monroe Rubinger, in behalf of the Warner, was press visiting, too.

Howard Federer has changed his ways. He comes down to the theatre some nights now . . . The George O. Monroes are still resting from their "rest" at Hialeah in Florida, where their percentage was pretty good. George believes he'll be about ready for the Omaha Ak-Sar-Ben ponies when they start in May.

Harvey Traylor sat through "Tobacco Road" so many times he got used to Gene Tierney's face being dirty and didn't mind it any more . . . Sunday shows may have meant a lot to the show business in Beatrice, Neb., but it took Manager B. M. Montee off the Sunday butterfly list . . . Aside to Bill Youngclaus, in Grand Island: When is that prospective heir to arrive? . . . Ft. Crook, Neb., gave up half a squad of men a week for Bill Miskell's plugging of "Buck Privates" in Omaha.

Sample of salesmanship: When Sol Francis goes forth to peddle "Secrets of a Model," he doesn't say anything about the picture itself, but confides: "Boy, you oughta see that trailer."

After gypsying all over the United States since December 15, Gabe Yorke writes from Los Angeles that he's finally got himself a permanent office and a secretary in the L. A. 20th-Fox exchange . . . Some people are betting 9 to 5, Maynard Nelson has forgotten how to write a letter . . . Former doorman Roger Emrich, of the Varsity, is now 2nd Lieut. Emrich at Camp Murray, Wash. . . . New cashier at the Varsity is a former artist's model, Jean Forbes.

Hold George Barnes

HOLLYWOOD—George Barnes, cameraman, has been given a long term pact by David Selznick.

"Western Union" Draws Best in Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS—"Western Union," at the State, led the field the past week, winning much praise and drawing fine business. Jane Froman and the Gray Gordon band topped the Orpheum stage show which was supported by "Hudson's Bay" on the screen. The stage entertainment was very well liked, but business proved exceedingly disappointing. "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" and "Virginia" continued their loop first runs, the former in its second week and "Virginia" in its third.

"Andy Hardy" Picture on Dual Best in Des Moines

DES MOINES—Impetuous Andy Hardy, always ready to rush in where angels fear to tread, showed the Grand Avenue first run houses that a stage show down the street doesn't mean motion pictures should get an inferiority complex. Extrovert Andy and his private secretary helped the Des Moines Theatre to break par.

Detail for the week ending March 13:

Strong Committee for Greek War Relief

DETROIT—Eddie Heiber, Universal manager, who is chairman of the Detroit Greek War Relief Committee, has enlisted a strong committee for this activity that includes: Edward Beatty, president of Butterfield Theatres; Earl J. Hudson, UDT president; David M. Idzal, managing director of the Fox; Ray Branch, president of Allied Theatres of Michigan; and Carl R. Buermele, general manager of Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan.

Outstanding event for the cause will be a midnight benefit at the Fox on Monday, March 24, with principal theatres agreeing to run trailers plugging it. Upstate theatre cooperation will be secured through contacts made by salesmen for all exchanges.

Will Play Off Shorts At Benefit Show

OBERLIN, OHIO—Jerry Steel, owner of the Apollo, has an idea by which to cure two ills at one and the same time. Steel says that he has so many short subjects booked that he doesn't know how he can ever get them played. So this is what he plans to do about it. He will run a Greek Relief Benefit show. The show will consist of a long list of shorts. His present plan is to hold the show some Saturday morning charging ten cents for children and 15 cents for adults.

A Preview on March 22 For Greek War Relief

CINCINNATI—A Hollywood preview will be staged March 22 at the Grand by Col. Arthur Frudenfeld in cooperation with the Pan-Hellenic Council of the University of Cincinnati, for the Greek War Relief Fund. Students of the university will serve as ushers and sell tickets. All employes will donate their services. The name of the feature is being kept secret. Greek letter sorority members will wear Greek and authentic peasant costumes.

Head Benefit Shows

CANTON—Ben Schwartz, manager of the Ohio, is chairman of the Greek War Relief show at Loew's.

MANSFIELD — William Harwell, Ohio manager, is chairman of the local Greek War Relief drive.

Selecting Arbitrator in Akron Protection Tiff

CLEVELAND—The parties involved in the first local arbitration case to be heard under the consent decree are now in the process of selecting an arbitrator. It is expected that when this case comes up for hearing sometime near March 20, the distributors will be represented by an array of New York legal talent.

Louis Isreal, owner of the Ellet, Akron, complainant, who claims unfair protection against his house, will be represented by Benesch, Marsteller, Friedlander and Morris, local firm.

Detroit Affiliated Units Clash Over Clearance

By H. F. REVES

DETROIT—Scheduled to come to trial Friday was the unique suit filed by one affiliated unit against the house of another major affiliate—that of the Montcalm Theatre Corp. against United Detroit Theatres, Paramount, Universal, Warner, Columbia and United Artists.

Filed in Wayne County circuit court, the suit charges discrimination in clearance. A preliminary hearing on the 26-page bill of complaint resulted in denial by Judge Henry G. Nicol of a temporary injunction and setting of the trial date.

The Montcalm company, organized in 1934, is disclosed as operator of the Uptown, only RKO house in the territory, and involved UDT, Paramount affiliate, as first defendant. This is said to be the first suit of this nature, brought by an affiliate of a major against another affiliate involving clearance of this type. Observers who considered it significant that action was sought under new court action, instead of through arbitration, failed to note that three of the companies involved—Columbia, Universal, and UA—were not parties to the consent decree.

An amended bill of complaint was filed, largely to include the Royal Theatre Corp., which has been added as a co-defendant, although reluctantly from the terms of the plaintiff's motion. The Royal company, operating the house, involves both UDT and Wisper and Wetsman Theatres, local independent circuit, each of which, according to statements given when the house was opened, have a half-interest. Inquiry at the Co-Operative Theatres office—where W&W houses are regularly booked—disclosed the information that bookings are handled specially by Earl Hudson, UDT president, and that Frank Wetsman, and Co-Op are not involved in this matter.

The plaintiff alleges that UDT operates the Royal "in competition with the plaintiff," and then takes contracts and dealings of each five defendant distributors. Quotations from the Paramount clauses, first on the list, are taken below, for example primarily, and essentially the same allegations are made concerning each other defendant distributor:

The plaintiff alleges that its contract (with Paramount) provides for "second run Detroit" or "first run neighborhood," and that the Riviera, Hollywood, Roosevelt, Cinderella, Broadway-Capitol, and Fisher would have same day and date privilege, and for giving seven-day clearance over the Varsity, Palmer Park, Tuxedo, Alhambra, Berkeley, Clawson, Hazel Park, and Ferndale. (It is presumed the last four refer to protection over the cities and villages of those names rather than to theatres, some of which do not yet exist, although two—Berkeley and Clawson—are planned under Detroit's present construction-wave.)

The essential clause is presented as: "If clearance is granted against a named theatre or theatres indicating that it is the intention of distributor to grant such clearance against all theatres in the immediate vicinity of exhibitor's theatre, then, unless otherwise provided in schedule, such clearance shall include any theatre in such vicinity thereafter erected or opened."

Citing the opening of the Royal on January 31, after its difficulty over employment of a stagehand which delayed opening a month, the plaintiff alleges the Royal to be in its own "immediate neighborhood, i. e., in Detroit neighborhood area and outside the downtown area . . . Geographically much closer than other theatres over which the plaintiff has clearance, and from area of patronage standpoint, much closer than any theatre permitted to exhibit day and date." Accordingly, seven days' clearance over the Royal is claimed.

Careful measurements on a map show the RKO Uptown and the Royal to be just over four miles apart by the shortest road distance.

Substance of the case, after going into details of industry practice, is the contention: "Priority of showing of leading films is a most essential prerequisite for profitable operation, and loss of this priority has already resulted in substantial loss."

Like an echo of the familiar plea of independents, this time coming from an affiliated house, is a reference to the "superior bargaining position" of the defendant circuit with some 18 theatres.

H-362; Baker and Heatherington—Permitting Sunday hockey contests if approved by electors; before law and order committee.

H-22; Bretherick—Requiring self-flushing or foot-flushed public toilets and urinals; before committee on public and health and sanitation.

H-224; Baker and Heatherington—Permitting Bingo and other similar games for profit, with tax imposed for such license; before law and order committee.

H-678—Creating a "Painting and Paper Hanging License Board."

H-506; Bradley—Providing for the licensing and legalizing of daily lotteries or pools operated by bona fide clubs; before committee on law and order.

H-118; Powers—Licensing dog racing and betting and wagering on such races; referred to committee on law and order.

H-369—Falkenstein—Creating a state lottery; before committee on ways and means.

H-270; Pettit and Polen—Amending "unlawful gaming" law by further defining gaming and revising penalties; before committee on judiciary general.

H-566; Sarraf and Baker—Licensing and taxing coin or token operated vending machines, devices or equipment; before ways and means committee.

H-79; R. E. Cohen—Prohibiting the recording of any broadcast performance or rendition without permission and providing penalties for offering for sale of any such recordings; before judiciary special committee.

H-497; Rush—Prohibiting public performance of school bands and orchestras at certain functions; referred to committee on education.

H-592; Krise—Providing for the levy of a Sunday sales tax and licensing vendors; before ways and means committee.

H-606; O'Brien—Amending the "Penal Code" by further extending and regulating the provisions regarding worldly business on Sunday; before committee on judiciary general.

H-28; Eckels—Regulating certain motor vehicle races; before committee on motor vehicles.

H-275; Holland—Repealing and amending the 1923 wrestling matches and exhibitions law; before committee on state government.

In the senate are a number of gambling bills:

S-11; Haluska—Licensing and taxing pin-ball, hi-score and other games; before committee on finance.

S-14; Haluska—Licensing Bingo; committee on finance.

S-16; Haluska—Licensing coin operated music boxes, and such mechanical musical devices; committee on finance.

S-18; Haluska—Permitting Bank Nights at theatres and imposing a license based on population and imposing a tax on gifts or prizes; committee on finance.

S-20; Haluska—Legalizing, licensing and taxing slot machines; committee on finance.

S-96; Haluska—Permitting horse racing and wagering on the results and imposing license fees; committee on judiciary general.

S-133; Haluska—Another Bingo bill; committee on judiciary general.

S-134; Haluska—Licensing slot machines and devices which pays off in cash; committee on judiciary general.

S-135; Haluska—Another pin-ball bill; committee on judiciary general.

S-204; Heyburn—Regulating, and removing in certain incorporations, advertising signs; committee on judiciary general.

S-234; Dent—Regulating sale, licensing and other disposition of rights to publicly perform for profit any copyrighted composition of music, lyrics verse or drama and requiring registration in Pennsylvania of such ownership, with fees; committee on judiciary special.

House resolution Serial 33, No. 12, petitions for a joint committee to investigate operations of chain systems, retail syndicates and other active combinations, and is before the committee on rules.

House resolution Serial 41, No. 19, petitions Congress to designate December 15, 1941 as a national holiday, this date being the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the Bill of Rights embodied in the Constitution. This has been adopted by the committee on military affairs. Senate committee also has adopted this resolution.

PITTSBURGH

E B. MORTON, NTS manager, reported back on the job to find a modernized storeroom and offices . . . AMPTO forwarded a second appeal to all theatre owners and managers to sign pledges for Greek War Relief. Fred A. Beedle, president, and M. A. Rosenberg, chairman, stated that "To date, we have received the utmost cooperation" . . . Columbia exchange is decorated with a dozen or more banners announcing the company's "exhibitors' good-will drive" and coming attractions. The quarters have never looked so inviting and Joe "TGG" Gins says "neither has the product." Art Levy, manager, has been out in the territory spreading the word . . . 3,000 Nickels Greet A 'Soundie' Debut

By B. O. TELLER

DETROIT—The new "soundies" came to town and drew over 3,000 nickels—$150—in the first week at Joey's Stables, west side cafe. Considerable of the first week's patronage was undoubtedly attracted by the novelty, and no figures on average gross can be estimated yet. By comparison, a conventional automatic phonograph in the same room drew in less than $1.

A visit to Joey's Stables indicates that theatre operators have little real cause for alarm. The new machine will undoubtedly draw from the trade that patronizes night spots, restaurants, etc., but not appreciably more than automatic phonographs and other diversions did in the past.

Consideration of the censorship problem, which is being reviewed by the city council now, in framing an ordinance regulating the new machines, indicates little difficulty from the films being shown locally. They are orchestra recordings of popular songs, showing the artists playing their instruments, and vocalists singing, with occasional shots of dancers, etc., nothing to cause any censorship headaches.

Local managers for Phonovision have stated that they will seek censorship only under the same rules as now apply to theatres, and do not believe that any new regulation on this point is required, but that they do desire such censorship, to assure the proper caliber of films being shown, and prevent the possibility of "unscrupulous" operators bringing in objectionable films, and thereby jeopardizing their own investment.

Leading exhibitors state that they believe no new censorship authority should be set up for the "soundies," on the ground that any spread of censorship control would have its automatic repercussion upon the theatre business itself.

Variety Again Honors Groups on Saturdays

DETROIT—Variety is resuming a practice of two or three years back, of dedicating each Saturday night to an individual or organization in the industry. First of such affairs was "RKO Night," which proved a big success.

A schedule has been worked out by Wade Allen, entertainment chairman. "Twentieth Fox Night" was held last Saturday. United Artists was to be the honored guest this Saturday, with M-G-M and Universal to follow on successive weeks thereafter.

New Royal Oak House For Moon and Krass

DETROIT—Raymond E. Moon, general manager of Mutual Theatres, and Jack Krass, Detroit circuit operator, are forming a partnership to operate a new 500-seat theatre they plan to erect in the northend suburb of Royal Oak. It will be called the Main Street. This will be Moon's first venture as a theatre owner.

LOUISVILLE

CONTRACTS have been awarded for a $100,000 neighborhood theatre to be located at Bardstown Road and Trevelian Way. The theatre will seat 1,000 and a long-term lease is held by an out-of-town circuit operator, represented by G. G. Bowling . . . Ford Tracey has resigned as manager of the local Vogue to go with Settos Theatres. Ford has been replaced by Bob Enoch, former manager of the Shelby, Shelbyville, Ky. . . . Plans have been announced by J. B. Sconce for a new $55,000 theatre building to be erected on West Main St., Greenwood, Ind., this spring.

Work has also begun on a new theatre in Milan, Tenn. It is one of the many buildings planned as a result of increased activities in the shell-loading plant there . . . Ira B. Dyer has acquired the Clinton, Albany, Ky., from F. C. Hassler . . . The Franklin and Woodlawn theatres, Evansville, will be renovated . . . William J. Otto, long with the trade in Louisville, is dead . . . W. P. Slusher is manager of the New Bell, Pineville, Ky., recently opened by Dr. J. S. Cornn and W. H. Gaddie . . . Keith Siegrist, formerly a booker for Paramount, is now with Theatrical Managers, Inc., Indianapolis. Arthur Manning of Bowling Green, Ky., takes his place with Paramount.

Albert Boudouris of Strong Electric Corp. spent several days at the Falls City Theatre Equipment Co. . . . New sound has been installed in the Strand, Crawfordsville. RCA also reports installation of new sound in the Cine at Linton, Ind., owned by the Settos chain, and in the Bonny Blue, Bonny Blue, Ky., owned by Don Reda . . . Stoner Hadden of Falls City has been confined to his home with influenza . . . Theatre business in and around Louisville has had a noticeable increase, due to the defense work.

Recent visitors: Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Luckett, Dream, French Lick; R. L. Harned, Empire, Sellersburg; A. N. Miles, Eminence, Eminence, Ky.; Mrs. Paul Sanders, Alhambra, Campbellsville; Dr. W. H. Race, Butler; J. E. Denton, Majestic, Owingsville; C. D. Arnold, Crystal, Bardstown; M. H. Sparks, Edmonton; George William Lindsey, Auburn; W. H. Mayfield, Clay, Celina, and J. V. Snook, Griffith, LaGrange, Ky.

Paul Sanders of the Alhambra, Campbellsville, who has been sick for quite some time with the flu, got out of bed the other day, only to be swamped by film salesmen. Result: Paul is now back in bed feeling worse than before . . . For the showing of "Footsteps in the Dark," the local Mary Anderson had huge footprints painted on sidewalks reading "Don't Miss 'Footsteps in the Dark'" . . . The New Lincoln, Stanford, Ky., recently built by C. H. Behlen and H. C. Congleton, both of the Nicholasville Amusement Co., was to open Wednesday.

PRC Shorts to Warner Houses

CLEVELAND—Warner theatres in this area will play the series of eight patriotic two-reelers released by PRC.

New Goodwill Fete Set for April 16

PITTSBURGH—The third annual "Goodwill Get-Together" of exhibitors and salesmen covering the "main line" has been dated for Wednesday, April 16, and again the place will be the Penn Alto Hotel, Altoona, Pa.

Jack Judd, of the Judd Poster Service, is general chairman, as usual. "That friendly feeling" will prevail, he says, in announcing that the banquet will offer "the best food—the most fun—and the worst show."

Stag affair has attracted around 150 members of the industry for each of the first two events and the third annual shindig will bring out an even greater crowd, according to Judd and committeemen. Tickets are $3.50 and may be purchased from any booker on Filmrow.

In addition to theatre owners and managers on the "main line" a large number of Pittsburgh area exhibitors are expected to attend the Altoona party.

Committeemen include Charles Mergen, Paramount; Austin Interrante, 20th-Fox; Bill Scott, United Artists; Leo Cantor, Universal; Sam Fineberg, Republic; Max Shulgold, Crown; Saul Perilman, Monogram; Milt Brauman, M-G-M; Morris Lefko, RKO; F. D. "Dinty" Moore, Warner-First National; George Tice, Columbia; Lew Lefton, PRC, and Walter Dyke, Superior M. P. Supply.

Exhibitor Labor Committee Headed by Harry Walker

PITTSBURGH—Harry Walker, Crafton and Sharpsburg exhibitor, has been elected chairman of the committee of the independent exhibitors doing business with the IATSE's Local No. 171. Approximately 75 theatres were represented in the election Monday afternoon.

Three other members were named to this labor committee, and one of them will act as an alternate member. They are Harry Hendel, Archie Fineman and Morris Finkel. Bennett Amdur served as chairman of the special committee for the nominations and elections.

Herb Greenblatt Weeks Set at Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH—RKO Radio's Pittsburgh exchange has set aside the first two weeks in March as Herb Greenblatt Weeks, in honor of the branch chief. The Greenblatt Weeks is a phase of the current Ned Depinet Drive. Greenblatt will be on vacation during this period.

Hertner Dispute Holds

CLEVELAND—Negotiations to settle the Hertner Electric Co. strike which began February 10, were broken off in the federal labor conciliator's office when agreement could not be reached on the demand of the CIO Electrical Workers Union.

Lent Finds Detroit Grosses in a Spin

DETROIT—Opening of Lent furnished a further excuse for continuation of the spectacular nosedive which Detroit grosses have indulged in since about the first of the year. Downtown houses appear to have been less affected than neighborhoods, but the condition is serious even in the big spots, with limited exceptions. Popular pictures draw far better, in proportion to average grosses elsewhere, than they normally would when all houses were sharing business fairly evenly.

Formal issuance of Lenten Rules by Archbishop Edward Mooney included the formal duty to pastors to "exhort the faithful to avoid all public amusements"—a condition which has had a serious effect upon patronage in many districts where there are large Catholic populations. Weather conditions were slightly more favorable this week, despite a continued cold, and the incidence of flu appears to have dropped, auguring improved conditions after Easter.

Cleveland First Runs Strike Lull in Takes

CLEVELAND—But definitely this was not a gala week in the show business. There was variety of entertainment, with most of it on the comedy side and fewer holdovers than usual. Maybe it was just a lull between high grosses, the first two months of the year showing a big jump in receipts and the forthcoming releases promising the same high averages.

Whatever may be the reason, the fact remains that this was a low week at the first run houses with "Strawberry Blonde" the only picture to draw any kind of business. "Back Street" made a good showing in its second week at the Allen and the Lake did so well in the third week of "The Virgin Bride" and "School for Husbands" that it is holding over a fourth week. The weather was clear, the roads likewise, but folks were not picture-minded. Result was that the total first-run take was off approximately 20 per cent.

Stage and Film Show Is Cincinnati's Strongest

CINCINNATI—Glenn Miller and his orchestra and Lupe Velez in the film "Six Lessons From Madame LaZonga," sailed to peak grosses at RKO Shubert, demonstrating the increasing popularity for stage and film shows here. Jimmy Cagney in "Strawberry Blonde," second week, drew 130 per cent. "So End Our Night," war subject spotted at the Albee, was practically the only let down. Cincy audiences downtown pass up the war features repeatedly, no matter how good they come. At RKO Paramount, neighborhood house, news hawks gave wide space to the short, "Nostradamus," added feature, which sneaked in and out downtown without creating a ripple.

Business Holdings A Suit By-Play

Detroit—Unexpected legal by-play in the Midwest vs. Co-Op suit occurred when some defense evidence was introduced to the effect that Attorney O. Adelman was owner of record for the corporation controlling the Roxy, Cohen circuit house. Defense Attorney A. J. Levin was on his feet with a motion to dismiss the case on the ground that the wrong parties were being sued if this were true. Adelman is attorney for the Cohens. The incident was passed off lightly with a comment by the court on the humor of the situation.

Nothing Unusual in Week of Testimony

DETROIT—A week's court sessions in the case of Midwest vs. Cooperative Theatres developed little unusual testimony. Time was taken up largely with accountants' figures. Counsel for Midwest has been seeking to prove losses from booking problems, which lie at the heart of the suit.

George W. Sampson, a former president of the Film Board of Trade, who managed the Esquire when it was opened, testified briefly as to his difficulties in booking pictures for that theatre. Raymond E. Moon, former Co-Op general manager, and now with a rival organization, Mutual Theatres, was recalled to the stand for some additional evidence.

Fred DeLodder, president of Co-Op, was called by the plaintiff. He testified that Co-Op assists member theatres in obtaining product. Otherwise, he said, the organization would be unable to hold its membership.

Managers File Case With the NLRB

DETROIT—A new turn in the organizational activities of the Theatre Managers and Assistant Managers Union was taken with filing of an action against the Schulte circuit with the NLRB. A strike notice with the state labor board was filed a week ago, but the union apparently plans to seek action under the NLRB rather than through a strike call.

The position of the union in seeking national, rather than state, action was explained by Clayton Bordner, attorney for the union.

"There has always been a question whether theatres are in interstate commerce or not. The board has advised us, however, that they will take jurisdiction. While enforcement of the state law is ineffectual, the national law penalizes severely any attempt to discourage unionization.

"We are asking the board to issue an order requiring Schulte to discontinue discouraging union activities, and asking for union recognition, and to negotiate with us."

Demands of the union are stated by officers to be a $40 minimum weekly wage for managers.

A Move in Michigan to End Musty Blue Laws

DETROIT — Michigan's antiquated blue laws may be discarded as a consequence of legislation introduced by Senator Ben Carpenter. The present law forbids attendance "at any dancing, or at any public diversion, show or entertainment, or (one to) take part in any game, sport, or play."

A dead letter for half a century or more, the law, according to some legislative authorities, prevents the enactment of similar laws by local municipal bodies. Therefore, some opposition to its repeal may develop.

Warner Circuit Partner In New Pitt Theatre

PITTSBURGH—Shadyside Theatre, under construction for a number of months, will open Friday, March 21. The house was erected by the Mt. Oliver Theatre Company, officers of which are Alex S. Moore, Morris Finkel and O. F. Habegger. This group last week concluded negotiations with Warner Bros. Theatres whereby the latter named circuit became partners in the ownership. Operation and management of the de luxe Walnut Street house will be under Warner direction.

"Fantasia" Opening in Cleveland March 18

CLEVELAND—"Fantasia" will open its Cleveland engagement March 18 at the Hanna. The opening performance will be sponsored by the British War Relief, and tickets for this performance only will sell at $1.50 to $5.00. Thereafter the admission scale will be 75 cents to $1.50 for matinees Monday through Friday; 75 cents to $1.65 evenings, Saturday, Sunday and holiday matinees. Performances will be held at 2:30 p. m. and 8:30 p. m. with all seats reserved.

Frankfort, Ky., Grand Is Closed for Remodeling

FRANKFORT, KY.—Manager Gene Lutes has closed the Grand Theatre to permit extensive remodeling. The present theatre will be converted into a huge lobby entrance to the theatre proper, to be housed in a new building under construction.

The house, which is operated by the Frankfort Amusement Co., will be shut down for about three months.

Lefton Follows Up With Two Regional Meetings

CLEVELAND — Nat L. Lefton, Republic franchise owner, followed up the company's national sales conference in New York at which plans were formed for the James R. Grainger sales and date drive, with two regional meetings. On Tuesday, he conferred with his Cincinnati office and on Wednesday, with his Cleveland office.

Ups Prices Nickel for Bargain Night Shows

Books "Devil Bat"

CLEVELAND—Lee Goldberg, PRC franchise owner, announces that Fred J. Dolle of the Fourth Ave. Amusement Co., Louisville, has booked "Devil Bat," PRC feature release, for his entire circuit. It opens at his de luxe Strand in Louisville.

Proposes Referendum on Daylight Saving Time

HARRISBURG—Representative J. P. Moran, of Allegheny county, has introduced in the House a bill urging a state-wide referendum on daylight saving time. It is proposed for next fall's primary election.

For two decades many Pennsylvania communities have "adopted" daylight saving time simply because the mayor or burgess had issued a proclamation, and the issue, hotly contested from time to time, has never been submitted to the voter.

Now, the Moran bill would authorize a vote on the question: "Should daylight saving be adopted by the commonwealth as official time during a part of each year?" The governor would be empowered to fix by proclamation the period over which daylight saving time would apply.

Patrons Pick Premiums At DeLodder's Aloma

DETROIT—Letting patrons pick their own premiums was the experiment tried out successfully by Albert W. Heuser, manager of the DeLodder circuit's Aloma in Grosse Pointe.

With several companies competing for the contract, Heuser had each place a complete display in the long lobby of the house for a few weeks, then invited patron comment and selection.

Union Moves to Conduct Negotiations Separately

CINCINNATI—Local B-37 (film exchange employes union) has voted to change its classification from "B" to "A" as a result of which the IATSE-affiliated group will conduct its own negotiations separately. The change, however, is contingent on similar action by all other exchange unions throughout the country.

Mike Goldie Rites

CLEVELAND—Funeral services were conducted here for Mike Goldie, 47, local theatre manager, who died suddenly. Goldie was associated for many years with Ernest Schwartz, as manager of Schwartz' Broadvue.

Open at Midkiff

MIDKIFF, W. VA.—Lonnie Spurlock enjoyed a packed house at the recent opening of his new 300-seat theatre here. The house is known as the Guyan.

D. F. Shiflet May Remodel

HAMLIN, W. VA.—D. F. Shiflet, formerly of the Mecca Theatre in Huntington, W. Va., plans to remodel his newly acquired Palace Theatre here, and possibly the construction of a new and larger house.

Spending Week at PRC

CLEVELAND—John Consentino, PRC playdate auditor, is spending the week at the local exchange.

"Dramatic Zephyrs" Undergoing Test

Detroit—Use of the "dramatic zephyrs" installation at United Detroit's Vogue has been temporarily discontinued after a several weeks' experiment. The results are now being studied by the Aromatix Company, which produced the system. The idea, as previously reported, is to waft odors into the auditorium in harmony with the mood of the scene being shown on the screen.

Vote Recount Nets Greensburg Shows

GREENSBURG, PA.—Sunday motion pictures were presented here March 9 after Judges J. Hilary Keenan and Richard D. Laird had certified to the Westmoreland county election board a recount that reversed an anti-Sunday show ban by 12 votes. Initial programs were staged as benefits for the Greek War Relief.

Proponents of Sunday motion pictures demanded a recount when the proposal was rejected last November at a referendum by a 57-vote margin. The recount, under the court's inspection, showed the issue had been favored by a margin of a dozen votes. There had been opposition and considerable "talk" for an appeal to a higher court to void the recount, but no action has been taken.

Broadway, Parkersburg, Leased by Tom Piatt

PITTSBURGH—Thomas Piatt has leased the Broadway, Parkersburg, W. Va., which he plans to open around the middle of March. The house at Fort Neal has been closed for a long period. Piatt was formerly employed in exhibition with R. J. Hiehle and George C. Davis.

Scripting Defense Short

HOLLYWOOD—Owen Crump is scripting "The Jumping Jacks," Warner defense short dealing with parachute troops. B. Reeves Eason will direct.

Abrams, branch manager; Joseph W. Bohn, office manager. Cleveland: Lee Goldberg, franchise owner for the Cleveland, Cincinnati and Indianapolis territories; Bernard Rubin, office manager, and Jay Goldberg, booker. Mrs. Goldberg went along for the buggy ride.

Deane in the Army

CLEVELAND—Buell Deane, Republic assistant shipper, leaves March 19 for a year of military training. The exchange gave him a farewell dinner party.

MANSFIELD, OHIO—Ralph Shaffer, manager of the Park, reports for military training April 1.

Zuckers in South

CLEVELAND — Lester Zucker, Columbia branch manager, and Mrs. Zucker have gone to New Orleans. They will also tour the southern gardens in Charleston, S. C., and Natchez.

Sterns to Build

ROCHESTER, MICH. — Charles L. Sterns will build a new theatre here. Three other houses are scheduled to rise shortly in this vicinity. They will be a Royal Oak, at Clawson and Berkley.

Estimates Fire Damage

CORBIN, KY.—A recent fire in the building housing the Viv Theatre is estimated by Manager Louis Merenbloom to have done $5,000 damage.

Girl to the Frank Matthews

ALLIANCE, OHIO—A daughter was born recently in a Canton hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Matthews. He is house manager of the Morrison here.

Gratifying Cooperation In Greek Relief Drive

PITTSBURGH—Exhibitor cooperation with the Greek War Relief is more than gratifying, Harry A. Seed, division co-chairman, stated this week. Although the big week is March 25-30, the local campaign is already under way with receipt of accessories, buttons and headbands, which were distributed through film salesmen soliciting pledges or Exhibitors' Service Company. The buttons are used in connection with collections to be taken at theatres where the exhibitor elected this type of aid for the fund. Head bands are to be worn by the girls taking the collections. Trailers were shipped direct from National Screen Service, New York City.

Harry M. Kalmine is chairman of the film area's committee and M. A. Rosenberg is the independent exhibitor chairman.

"Fantasia" Garners Much News Space in Pitt

PITTSBURGH—"Fantasia," now on display at the Fulton, enjoyed two openings—a press preview and the initial public showing, which was a Greek War Relief benefit. The Walt Disney offering gathered more news space than any motion picture exhibited here in a year or longer, and the general campaign has been elaborate. No less than two great department stores cooperated with several complete window displays and there were numerous merchandising tieups. The Gillespie Art Galleries exhibited a collection of original drawings for the production. Music critics vied with the drama desk editors in having their say regarding the fantasy and its panoramic sound reproduction.

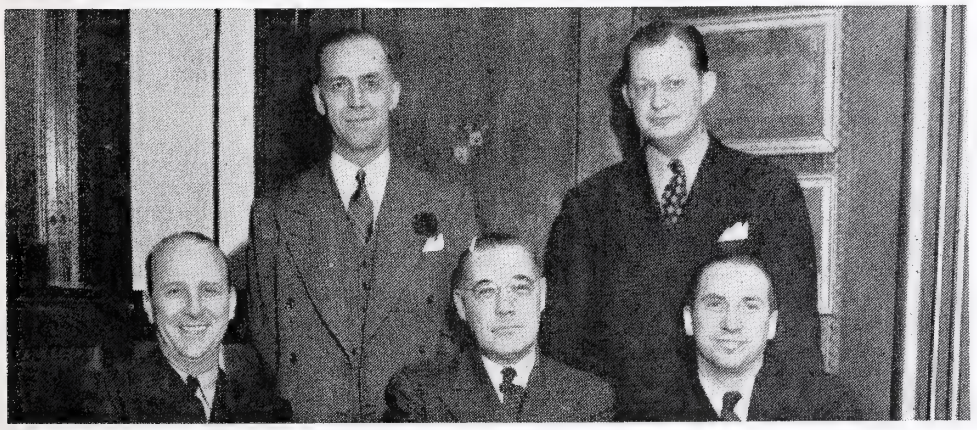
Radio, Walter B. Lloyd (M&P's Allyn), chairman; Sammie E. Harris (Harris Brothers' State) and Bernard H. Schulman.

Organizing Aid for Greek War Relief



NEW HAVEN—I. J. Hoffman, Warner theatre department chief who is in charge of all Greek War Relief theatre activities for this zone, reports Robert E. Russell, Loew-Poli manager, will act as chairman of the midnight benefit screen and stage show to be held at the Loew-Poli here Saturday, March 29.

Simultaneously, similar midnight shows will be held in all Loew-Poli "A" houses in Hartford, Bridgeport, Worcester, Waterbury and Meriden. In Springfield, the Paramount, Goldstein house, will have the show.

Committees have been appointed, and affiliated and independent exhibitors have pledged cooperation with lobby collections, trailers advertising the midnight shows, and sale of tickets at 75 cents.

Aiding Russell in New Haven are Lou Schaefer, Paramount manager, radio and newspaper publicity; John Hesse, Roger Sherman manager, trailers; William Reisinger, Bijou manager, committees; and Sam Badamo, College manager, entertainment. Chief of Police Philip T. Smith and Fire Chief Paul Heinz are on the ticket committee.

In Bridgeport, Matt Saunders heads the show committee; Peter Benard and Charles A. Wheeler are on the mayor's committee; Morris Rosenthal, Manuel E. Kugell, Harold B. Dow, Sam Haddleman, James Fensore, tickets; Joseph Lopez, radio; Jack Schwartz, trailers; Harry Rose, Humphrey Doulens, Harry Neigher, entertainment. Lou Cohen is the Hartford chairman. Committees are being organized in Meriden and Waterbury.

Aiding an Ally—

The committee in charge of the midnight show to be presented March 29 at the Loew's Poli Theatre, on behalf of Greek War Relief, are, left to right: John Hesse, in charge of publicity accessories; Bob Russell, chairman and in charge of ticket sales; Lou Schaefer, in charge of newspaper and radio publicity; Bill Reisinger, in charge of collection committees, and Sam Badamo, in charge of show and production.

Mass. Theatres in '40 Pay Ascap $50,000

BOSTON—Massachusetts motion picture theatres paid Ascap $50,000 during 1940, John Paine, Ascap general manager, testified before a state legislative committee on constitutional laws. Paine was opposing three bills aimed to curb Ascap activities in Massachusetts.

Stating that Ascap took in $326,000 from Massachusetts accounts during the past year, Paine said that radio contracts accounted for $193,000 of this. Restaurants, he said, followed with $54,000, while hotels brought $16,000 and dance halls $6,900.

"Radio Nets Behind Legislation"

The motion picture industry took no active part at the hearings. Harold Fellows, manager of NBC-leased WEEI and chairman of a state broadcasting association, opposed the three bills as being allegedly unconstitutional.

It was indicated that should the Bay State legislature pass any of the measures, Ascap would immediately seek to prevent enforcement by applying for an injunction.

Louis Frohlich, general counsel for Ascap, told the committee that NAB, NBC, and CBS were behind the legislation. He said that if the measures were passed, Ascap would be unable to operate in this state.

One of the bills would require registration of all compositions with a Massachusetts board. Another would stiffen copyright laws. The third would place the department of labor in charge of all musical bills in Massachusetts.

Otto Harback, New York composer and Ascap director, also appeared against the measure as did Composers William Orme Fisher, Grace Gulesin, and Dr. Mabel Walker, the latter two being of this city. John Devlin, local Ascap lawyer, also appeared at the hearings.

Boston Committee Active In Greek Aid Campaign

BOSTON—Work continues in preparation for New England's participation in the motion picture industry's six-day drive to raise $1,000,000 for Greek War Relief. Martin J. Mullin, M&P Theatre Corp. partner, is heading local activities, assisted by Jack Goodwin, Robert Sternberg, Harry MacDonald, Charles Kurtzman, Norman Ayers, I. J. Hoffman, Nathan Yamins, Joseph A. DiPesa, Harry Browning, Marty Glazer, Jack Granara, and Harry Zeitz.

Their Campaign Recognized—

M-G-M honor medals are being awarded by Joseph A. DiPesa (center), advertising manager for Loew's State and Orpheum, to Edward McBride (left) and Al Longo for their campaign on "Philadelphia Story" at the State in Providence. Since then McBride has been promoted from the helm of the Providence house to manager of Loew's State in Boston. Longo is advertising director at the Providence house.

Pressed Into Service—

Stirling Hayden, Paramount's new star visiting New England, is selling Harry Wasserman, district manager for M&P Theatres, a box of candy at the Oriental Theatre, Mattapan, Mass. Paramount's "greatest find of the year" is making personal appearances throughout M&P theatres in New England in conjunction with the showing of his first picture, "Virginia."

Holdovers Do Best For Hub First Runs

BOSTON — Second-runs and holdovers were the big noise in the Hub last week where "Philadelphia Story," combined with "Road Show," played to near-capacity its second week at the State and Orpheum. Stirling Hayden made personal appearances at the Fenway and Paramount, bolstering the second-run there of "Virginia" and "Ride, Kelly, Ride." "Son of Monte Cristo," hitched with "Play Girl," was steady at Keith's Memorial and was held over for a second week.

Exploitation Product Earning Holdovers

BOSTON—George Kraska has held the 16mm "Here Is Ireland" for a tenth week at the Fine Arts. Lou Newmann and Spencer Rudnick have held "Virgin Bride" and "School for Husbands" for a third week at the Trans Lux. Ben Domingo kept "Son of Monte Cristo" and "Play Girl" for a second week at Keith's Memorial.

"Fantasia" Drawing In Sixth Week

Boston—"Fantasia" in its sixth week at the Majestic in Boston, is still drawing heavily. Special Saturday morning shows, beginning at 10:30 a. m., have been inaugurated in addition to regular afternoon and evening performances. In an additional juvenile patronage campaign, a one-half price schedule for children under 16, applying to all performances, has been put into effect. Joseph Ehrlick is now handling the local publicity campaign for the Walt Disney release.

12 Firemen Die in A Theatre Fire

BROCKTON, MASS.—Twelve firemen were killed and 21 others injured in fighting a fire which destroyed the Strand early Monday morning two hours after hundreds of Sunday night patrons left the theatre.

Most of the victims were trapped when the snow-laden roof over the theatre balcony caved in with a terrific roar. Rescuers, pulling away theatre seats, ceiling plaster and roof timbers, to free them, made possible quick emergency hospital treatment, but two bodies were carried out along with the living.

A Catholic priest entered the burning building to administer last rites to the dying and most dangerously injured.

The cause of the disastrous fire was undetermined at press time.

Damage to the house, operated by Frederick Lieberman, was estimated at $100,000.

Wolf and Weiss Named Variety Delegates

BOSTON—Maurice Wolf, M-G-M district manager, and Murray Weiss, associate of equipment dealer, Joe Cifre, have been named by the executive committee of the Variety Club, Tent No. 23, as official delegates to the National Variety convention in Atlantic City on May 14, 16, and 17. Martin J. Mullin, chief barker, will attend, by virtue of his office, as a member of the National Board. All local members are eligible to participate in the convention activities.

Dinner and Preview for Boston Barkers March 18

BOSTON—A buffet dinner and sneak preview for Variety Club members and their ladies has been scheduled for March 18 at the Hotel Statler. Bridge will follow.

Joe Cifre, equipment dealer, and Herman Rifkin, circuit owner and Monogram director, comprise the committee in charge. Cifre will install special equipment for the screening. Indications are that similar festivities will be held periodically.

Names House Carberry

BRISTOL, CONN. — Joseph Faith's new theatre here, has been named the Carberry.

Game Legalization Bill Hearing on April 1

BOSTON—A special legislative hearing has been set for April 1 on the bill filed by George Solomon, operator of the Columbia in Boston, to make "Beano and similar games" legal in Massachusetts theatres. At the present time, Bank Night is the only cash giveaway legal in theatres throughout many parts of the state.

Solomon and the interests involved would bring in Lucky and other giveaways under special $100 licenses, the fees going for the Old Age Benefit.

Wants Investigation of Beano in Massachusetts

BOSTON—Charging that "criminals and racketeers" are operating a $50,000,000 Beano business in Massachusetts for what he terms "flim flam" charities, Representative P. D. Chase of Boston appeals to the Massachusetts legislative committee on legal affairs to approve his bill for an investigation by an especially appointed commission which would subsequently advise the state governing body regarding proposed changes in the present Beano law.

Chase points to the manner in which former Mayor Mansfield "stopped racketeering" by allowing but one game weekly by recognized charities only and requiring the operators to file financial statements regularly with the city clerk.

Upholds Lower Court in Personal Injury Case

NEW HAVEN—The superior court ruled "no error" in a personal injury case brought by a patron against Poli-New England Theatres, Inc., which was decided against the theatre company in a lower court and was subsequently appealed to the higher court by the defendant.

The patron, Katherine Falso, claimed she purchased a balcony ticket at the Palace, Hartford, and after passing through the entrance tunnel, stood for a minute or two beside an usher who informed her there were seats available in the right lower section, but did not assist her to a seat. As she descended, she claimed she plunged forward and sustained injuries.

The lower court concluded the defendant had failed to employ reasonable care for the plaintiff's safety, in that it neglected to provide lighting for the steps. In upholding the ruling, the higher court maintained that "the defendant, charged with knowledge that the step was dangerous and in complete darkness, by its usher directed the plaintiff to proceed over it, and yet failed to use a flashlight to illuminate the place of danger. This is considered a breach of the theatre's duty under the circumstances."

Candy Division

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—The candy division of Western Massachusetts Theatres, Inc., has been established here under the supervision of George M. Richardson.

Affair for Simons Is Well Attended

HARTFORD—Theatre managers and circuit executives from Connecticut and Western Massachusetts numbering around 100 were in attendance at the Club Ferdinando for a midnight dinner-dance in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Jack A. Simons. Simons, for several years manager of the local Loew's Poli, is now managing director of the Loew's State, Providence, R. I.

Harry F. Shaw, Loew's Poli division manager, traveled from New Haven to be a guest of honor, along with Louis A. Cohen, who succeeded Simons at the Loew's Poli, and Fred R. Greenway, who has replaced Cohen at the Loew's Poli Palace.

Mr. and Mrs. Simons were presented with a portable radio, and Simons was given an inscribed plaque.

Joseph P. Cooney, an attorney, acted as master of ceremonies.

Curran's Testimonial Is Set for March 16

BOSTON—Arrangements continue for the testimonial all-star show for the benefit of George Curran, former local IATSE stagehands' official and for years with the Majestic here. The affair will be held at the Boston Opera House on Sunday evening, March 16, at 8:00.

Charles Van, Shubert manager, was chairman of the committee in charge. This group, numbering many local theatrical personalities, includes:

Francis E. Killen, Max Ulin, James J. O'Brien, T. Frank Meagher, John J. O'Connor, William J. Strout, Herbert Swartz, Hugo J. Lundgren, D. David Berig.

Mekelburg Furthers Plan For Billerica Drive-In

BOSTON — Marcel Mekelburg, veteran New England film man, is tentatively planning to go ahead with construction of a new open-air motion picture theatre in Billerica, it is understood.

Mekelburg, at present heading the Fine Arts exchange in Boston, has reportedly been granted a permit by the Billerica board of selectmen. Connected with the Milford Drive-In in Connecticut, he formerly operated the Century exchange here and later became northeastern divisional manager for Gaumont-British.

BRIDGEPORT

MATT SAUNDERS is chairman of the Greek War Relief midnight show to be held at the Loew-Poli March 29. Morris Rosenthal of the Majestic is ticket chairman and Harry Rose of the Globe is in charge of entertainment. Manager Manny E. Kugell of the Warner is on the Mayor's committee . . . The Loew-Poli has upped the pay scale of usherettes. Theatres are finding it increasingly hard to keep help.

Morris Rosenthal is keeping bachelor quarters now that his wife, Molly, is vacationing in Florida . . . Harry F. Shaw was here to see his mother before leaving for a Panama vacation. In New York to bid him bon voyage were Harry Rose, Morris Rosenthal and Matt Saunders . . . The Fine Arts, Westport, held a special morning children's show with Dagmar's Puppets as the main attraction.

Pearce Parkhurst has returned to Torrington as a manager. Formerly in charge of the State in that city, he now has succeeded Lou Carroll as manager of the Alhambra. He came back to Torrington from the Larcom in Beverly, Mass. . . . The Stamford and Avon theatres in Stamford have a new reduced scale of admissions on Saturdays between 1 and 3 p. m.: Children 15 cents and adults a quarter.

A general alarm fire in an adjoining building threatened the Globe, but it escaped with a good smoking. There was no show at the time. Rumors that the theatre was heavily damaged in the fire spread through the area and Manager Harry Rose had to use special newspaper stories to combat the rumors.

A heavy weekend snow storm cut into grosses . . . In New Britain the Capitol runs the same program as the Embassy on Sundays. House is dark on other days, but lighted three days for a road company of "Tobacco Road," the first legitimate attraction to play the city in years . . . Cash awards and amateurs are now being used in connection with the old-time movies at the Women's Civic auditorium in Stamford.

First morning show at the Loew-Poli for night workers proved a decided success and the policy will be continued, probably spreading to the other Loew houses here later. All factories were personally contacted by Manager Matt Saunders and plenty of cards displayed prominently in the shops. Civic and industrial leaders endorsed the show in newspaper stories and generally cooperated in getting the news to their night shift workers.

The Hairdressers' Guild of Litchfield county held a fashion show on the stage of the Alhambra, Torrington . . . Manager Edward Madden of the Lyric now answers to the title of "Commissioner" . . . Mary Prescott has resigned as relief cashier and special office girl at the Loew-Poli . . . John Zofcak has resigned from the Globe usher corps.

Harold Engle, assistant manager at the Globe, was in New York to see "Pal Joey" and visit the Loew offices.

Projector License Boost Proposal Is Unopposed

BOSTON—There was no industry opposition at a public legislative hearing last week on the bill of Eugene M. McSweeney, commissioner of the department of public safety, to increase the license fees of projectors and to lift the cost of tagging projectors.

Projection machine inspection costs necessary only once, would go up to $3 from $2. Fees for projectionists licenses would be upped $1 and made annual.

This Week We Meet

LOU A. COHEN

ONE of the old Poli crop retained through all the changes and viccissitudes of the Poli theatre chain, Lou Cohen recently made another move up in a long and faithful record of accomplishment, when he was promoted from manager of the 1,700-seat Palace, Hartford, to the helm of the 3,057-seat Loew-Poli in the same city. The other old Poli-teers, Bob Russell, Matt Saunders, and Ed Fitzpatrick, as well as all of Lou's friends and associates offered cheers and congratulations.

Lou was born in 1897 down Thomas, W. Va., way, but when he was still kicking the slats out of his cradle, the family decided to move to Bridgeport. Whether it was the uniform, the money, or a dim realization that his future lay in the theatre, Lou could hardly wait until he was a high school lad of 13 to get an usher's job at the old Plaza, Bridgeport, Poli's first house in the town, on Fairfield Avenue, since burned down. Then he moved over to the Poli (now the Globe), working under Harry Reichenbach, whom he considers one of the greatest publicity men in the country. Those were the days when there was two-a-day vaude through the winter months, and Poli stock company shows in the summer. There was a chance to make 50 cents a show giving out programs, and an occasional $6.00 to sub in on the stage, and the opportunity looked so good to Lou, that he decided to quit high school and give his undivided attention to the theatre field. Not that the footlights beckoned. Although he played extra on the stage frequently, it was theatre operation that he was always interested in.

From the Poli, Lou moved back to the Plaza, then a de luxe house, and gradually worked his way up to the managership. Under the Harry Arthur regime of the chain, Lou was already an established part of the operation, and was moved to the College as manager, under Delmo Vanni. When the College was closed in May, 1933, he worked at the Poli, Hartford, under Vanni, and five years ago, when Loew's, Inc., took over operation of the chain, he was named manager of the Palace.

In the meantime, Lou has had time to get married, and now has a son, Ben, who is a junior at the University of Connecticut. His outstanding hobby is pinochle, in which, if he doesn't have brilliant success, at least he breaks even.

He comes to the Poli with the ability and assurance of years of experience and a thorough knowledge of Hartford, its people, and its ways.

Paul D'Amaddeo, E. M. Loew's house usher, now is student assistant at that theatre. Norman Long, also an usher, has been named chief of the service staff, replacing Edward Boggs, resigned.

Theatre Management Course Concluded

BOSTON—Arthur L. Tuohy, former Loew's manager now with the Massachusetts Department of Education, last week concluded a University Extension course in Theatre Management. Tuohy, the final lecturer, generally reviewed the talks and discussions periods held throughout these past few months by numerous local film executives he had collared for the instruction course.

It is expected that about one dozen certificates will be awarded to students of the course in Theatre Management. Requirements include that the registrant must have been present for at least three-quarters of the session and must have passed the final examination.

Tuohy informed this publication that a similar theatre management course may be repeated next year under the auspices of the University Extension Division of the Massachusetts department of education, "if the demand is sufficient."

The "demand" this year has been viewed by state education officials as extraordinary. Tuohy, for instance, recently received a request from Sydney, Australia, for details covered by Ben Domingo the evening the RKO city manager lectured on stage productions.

Loew Affiliate's Gold Bond Issue Redeemed

NEW YORK—The annual report of Loew's to SEC for the year ended Aug. 31, 1940, reveals that an instrument of guarantee, dated June 15, 1926, guaranteeing an issue of 600,000 first mortgage leasehold six per cent gold bonds of the Chapel State Theatre Co., an affiliate, is no longer effective, the bond issue having been redeemed on March 15, 1940. By an agreement dated Jan. 15, 1940, between Chapel, Loew's and the First National Bank of Boston, Loew's unconditionally guarantees the payment of principal and interest of the promissory note of $370,000 made by Chapel to the First National Bank.

SPRINGFIELD

Waldo Hearing Recess Ends on March 18

BOSTON—Hearing on the Waldo Theatre Corp. vs. the late Joseph Dondis, et al., anti-trust case is scheduled to resume March 18 following a recess taken at the request of defendant's counsel.

Hearings in the litigation have been under way these past few months before Francis P. Freeman, U. S. district court appointee as master.

Catholic Guild Retreat Invites Film Men

BOSTON—The next Retreat of the Catholic Motion Picture Guild will be held at Campion Hall, North Andover Jesuit Retreat house, on April 4, 5, and 6. The weekend will begin Friday at 7:00 p. m. and will end Sunday at 7:00 p. m. Reservations may be arranged through William Murphy, Frank McManus, Tom Duane, and Major Patrick F. Healey.

"A sincere invitation is extended to non-Catholics," the committee in charge states. "Their attendance at strictly religious activities is optional.

"Retreat routine is not altogether serious and sober," the Guild directors state. "Considerable free time is provided for recreation. Resolve to attend this Retreat now."

Keith's Memorial Staff Forsake Their Union

BOSTON—Reverse English to union activities has come up in Boston where Keith's Memorial members of the Theatrical Employes front-of-the-house Local have resigned in a body from the AFL local. The action followed mounting protests on dues payments and professed confidence in RKO fair dealings.

A similar move is understood to be under way at the RKO Boston, sister de luxe house, where a number of Theatrical Employe members are said to have declined to continue to pay dues. Signs of a similar trend have been evident for some time in other theatres in the city.

Boston Exchange Union Will Nominate Officers

BOSTON—Nominations for a new 1941-42 slate of officers will be in order when the Exchange Employes Union, Local B-3 meets March 31. Matthew Moriarty of Universal has been president of the local for the past two terms. Max Magovsky, of National Screen Service, held the post the first year of the union's existence.

Hy Nozak, formerly assistant manager of the Arcade, Springfield, and now assistant manager at the Rivoli in Chicopee, visited the local Arcade boys . . . Thieves broke into the Strand, Taunton, and got away with about $150.

RKO Boston Will Test Film Flesh Shows March 17

BOSTON—Ben Domingo, RKO city manager, will inaugurate experimental film and flesh bookings at the RKO Boston on March 17 when he will introduce split weeks at the de luxe house. Domingo has heretofore been spotting weekend vaudeville at the de luxe house.

The RKO Boston will go into two weekly changes of stage shows and first run double features. Dates have already been set for March 17-19, 20-23, 24-26, and then a full week of Clyde McCoy, beginning March 27. If the new policy has shown fruit by then, Domingo states, it will probably be resumed following the McCoy engagement.

The RKO Boston has for the past few years been the only Hub deluxer to employ flesh.

Have "Shark Woman"

BOSTON — Edward Kleine and Joe Schmuck have taken over the New England distribution rights on "Shark Woman."

Higgins to New Offices

BOSTON—Herbert Higgins, independent theatre booker, has taken over new offices in the film district at 37 Winchester St.

The Scenic in Rochester held a special after-school matinee during its showing of "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary."

Current Crop of 43 Films Obtain Censor Approval

BOSTON—The Massachusetts bureau of Sunday censorship found nothing wrong in the latest batch of motion pictures reported last week as being approved for Sunday showing in the Bay State. Forty-three films were okayed without eliminations.

The Bon Ton Revue and Dale Winthrop were refused permits for Sunday vaudeville performances in Massachusetts. Ben Bernie, Bobby Henshaw, Cass Daley, Fields & Georgie, Samuel Bros. & Vivian, and the World's Fair midgets were given permits after following recommended modifications. Thirteen other acts were okayed without cuts.

Thomas J. McIntyre

LACONIA, N. H.—Thomas J. McIntyre, 63, who formerly operated the Gardens Theatre and in recent years leased the house to a chain, died here following a long illness.

Film Deletions Drop in 1940

Boston—Motion picture deletions, as ordered by the strict Massachusetts department of public safety under Sunday laws that date back to days when it was a sin for a man to kiss his own wife on Sunday, hit a new low in the Bay State here during the past year when only 60 out of a total of 1,350 motion pictures got the scissors. Eleven of the 60 were newsreels, clipped mainly because of wrestling and boxing scenes which just aren't Massachusetts' ideas of what theatregoers should see on the Sabbath. Of the remaining 49 censored films, 14 were majors and 25 were independents. The latter was composed mainly of foreign importations.

Western Massachusetts Chain Managers Meet

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Attending a managers' meeting of Western Massachusetts Theatres, Inc., at the circuit's local headquarters were:

Martin Weinstein is rejuvenating the Keith's in Fair Haven . . . Max Melincoff has set rebuilding activities for the Strand in Amesbury, a Warner house . . . Leon Gorman, Maine exhibitor, may put up a new house in Cape Elizabeth, Me.

PROVIDENCE

ASH WEDNESDAY personal appearance booking of Susanna Foster and Dolly Loehr, juvenile stars of "Hard-Boiled Canary" at the Strand helped measurably in bolstering gross for the day at the theatre. Manager Ed Reed and Don Chambers, Paramount press representative out of the Boston office, arranged a press luncheon interview at the Biltmore that netted nice newspaper space while in the afternoon the R. I. Federation of Women's Clubs and Providence musical organizations turned out about 75 women for a reception.

Services for Catherine A. Anthony, wife of Edwin W. Anthony, Strand projectionist and president of the Providence projectionists' local, were held last Monday.

Ted Rosenblatt, manager of the Community Theatre, Centredale, has been elected president of the North Providence Chamber of Commerce . . . Edward L. Reed, manager of the Strand, and Archibald Silverman, president of theatre corporation, have left for a two-weeks cruise to Havana.

Fred Newcomb, Strand's veteran stage manager, is up and around again after his recent serious illness. Joe Dooling continues back-stage at the Strand until Fred is again able to take up his duties . . . Building permits for enlargement of M&P's Strand, Newport, were taken out last week. Present marquee will be removed, the box-office changed to sidewalk line, new foyer constructed and balcony seating plane rearranged to provide greater capacity.

Ushers of the Paramount, E. M. Loew circuit house at Newport, have been collecting second-hand clothing in recent weeks, turning over a huge carton of same to the Salvation Army recently . . . Competition: Metropolitan had Bill Robinson as stage starring attraction last weekend. Fays countered with booking of Stepin Fetchit as its headliner.

Cole and Walker in Accord on Decree

DALLAS—Col. H. A. Cole, national Allied president, says he is in complete accord with the communication from Judge Roy L. Walker, president of the Theatre Owners Protective Ass'n, which appeared on the editorial page of BOXOFFICE for March 1.

In his communication, Walker, whose ideas as a rule don't jibe with Cole's pointed out that those trade practices which the department of justice claimed were illegal during the government suit against the industry, are legalized by the consent decree. The government suit, he went on, asked for divorcement of exhibition and production-distribution, but the decree legalized distributor-owned theatres. Likewise, he said, whereas the government originally sought the abolition of block-booking, the decree gave it official approval with certain limitations.

Finally, according to Walker, the government suit charged a monopoly on the part of the eight majors, but the decree gave five of them a monopoly on 75 per cent of the features and 87 per cent of the industry's gross income.

Andy Smith Joins Depinet Drive Touring Squad

ATLANTA—Sales Manager Andy Smith joined the Ned Depinet Drive touring squad in a meeting at the local exchange Tuesday, and continued on visits to several other offices. Drive Captain Leo Devaney, Short Subject Sales Manager Harry Michalson and Southeastern District Manager David Prince were present with Smith to meet with the staff of Branch Manager H. M. Lyons.

The Atlanta branch is leading the United States and Canada in the Ned Depinet Drive. Eastern Division Sales Manager Bob Mochrie returned to New York after accompanying the delegation from New York.

Plea to Limit Crescent Suit Scope Denied

The Docket

The arbitration picture in the Dallas and New Orleans areas to date:

Dallas

CASE No. 1—Filed February 28. Demand and submission involving clearance and some run. Joseph's Drive-In Theatre, Austin, Tex. With: 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., M-G-M Pictures Corp., Loew's, Inc., M-G-M Dist. Corp. of Texas, Warner, Vitagraph. Named as interested parties: Interstate Theatres, W. G. Underwood and Claude Ezell, both of Dallas.

New Orleans

CASE No. 1—Filed February 17. Demand and submission involving some run (Section VI). Modern Theatre, Inc., (drive-in theatre), Charles J. Woolner, president. With: Paramount Film Dist. Corp.

CASE No. 2—Filed March 6. Demand and submission involving "some run." Charles J. Woolner, president of Modern Theatre, Inc., operating the Drive-In. With: Loew's, Inc.

Sees Amusement Tax Yielding $500,000

SAN ANTONIO—Rep. J. N. Reed of Texarkana, Tex., who is advocating a 1½ per cent gross receipts tax on amusements, declares such a levy would yield $500,000 yearly. It would be applied to theatre tickets, sports and athletic events throughout the state.

Only entertainments furnished by educational, religious and charitable institutions would be exempt from the tax.

New Tax Hinted

NEW ORLEANS—Unconfirmed reports from the City Hall intimate that the city is contemplating a one-cent tax on theatre admissions, including 10-cent houses, as a means of building up a depleted treasury.

NASHVILLE—Denying efforts by defense counsel to limit investigation in the federal anti-trust suit against the Crescent Amusement Co. and its affiliates, Federal Judge Elmer Davis has given counsel until April 28 to prepare answers to plaintiff interrogations in the brief.

Numbering 26, after Judge Davis had sustained defense objection to two questions, the interrogations are designed to bring out the complete personnel and financial setup of the defendants and all financial transactions by and between the several defendant companies.

Defendants are Crescent Amusement Co., Lyric Amusements, Inc., New Strand Corp., Cumberland Amusement Co., Strand Enterprises, Inc., Rockwood Amusements, Inc., Cherokee Amusements, Inc., and Kentucky Amusement Co., Inc.

Sustain Objection on Gross

One question to which objection was sustained asked for the gross income of defendants for the fiscal years of 1935-36-37-38 and 39, and also net earnings for the same years. The other asked for total boxoffice receipts during the same years, with a separation as to first run houses and other units. Defendants are not required to furnish information involved in these two questions.

The government still may use as evidence transactions by the defendant exhibitor companies with the five major distributors who are parties to the consent decree, despite the dismissal of the Crescent suit against them, the court ruled.

Objections were overruled to interrogations filed in the government's suit against Nettie Sudekum and Louis Rosenbaum, doing business as the Muscle Shoals Theatres, Inc., except as to two questions identical with those stricken from the Crescent suit.

Objections to two of the six questions in the suit against R. E. Baulch were sustained, and overruled as to the other four. These questions concern loans by and to the defendant by corporate defendants in the main suit. Objections to these questions were sustained only to the extent that loans of less than $500 should not be included in the answer.

Counsel must prepare answers to interrogations in the Muscle Shoals and Baulch suits by April 28.

Ga. Anti-Decree Bill Killed

Atlanta—A measure that was occasioning considerable trepidation in trade ranks, calling as it did for distributors to offer for license their full programs, this vitiating the blocks of five selling method provided in the consent decree, was killed by a Georgia legislative committee in an 11 to 7 vote. (The measure as it was proposed, and in the form in which it had already passed the senate appears on page 28 of this issue). The bringing in of a minority report is held unlikely.

Nat Williams of Thomasville, Ga., spoke for the measure and Robert Sams, John I. Kelly and Benjamin Pepper spoke against it.

Republic Meeting in Atlanta—

Republic salesmen, bookers and executives convene at a regional meeting in Atlanta. Clockwise around the table are Leo Seichsnaydre, New Orleans manager; Perry Spencer, director of publicity for the south; G. Y. Harrell, Roy Bradley, Jack London, Marsh Funderburk, Henry Glover, Atlanta manager; Harold Laird, Tampa manager; Cy Dillon, Charlotte manager; Ernest Rogers, Atlanta Journal film critic; Herbert J. Yates, chairman of the board of Consolidated Film Industries; Arthur C. Bromberg, president of Republic Pictures of the Southeast; James R. Grainger, president of Republic Pictures Corp.; Lee Rogers, film critic on the Atlanta Constitution; Sam Wilson, Porter Laseter, William Snellson, Memphis manager; Lloyd Miller, Ed Indrebitzen, Merritt Davis, Roscoe Gann and George Nunguessor.

"Doe" Premieres at Three in Miami

MIAMI—It was a triple, triple world premiere that the Beach, Surf and Paramount shared Wednesday on "Meet John Doe" as, in addition to the concurrent showing at these three Miami Beach and Miami houses, the feature also premiered in New York and Los Angeles.

The Miami showing will give "Doe" the equivalent of 21 playing days in the week's run it is to have at these three houses. The playing schedule of introducing first runs for a week's showing at these three houses simultaneously was inaugurated last week with "The Lady Eve." The three represent 5,000 seating capacity.

Although staged without the usual premiere fanfare, the Beach did line up the celebrities, with Winchell and Runyon leading off the list of big names.

Beauty Contest Plugs "Lady Eve" Opening

MIAMI BEACH—As a promotion stunt for the showing of "Lady Eve" which inaugurated the triple, first run policy, day and date, at the Surf, Beach and Paramount, Tom Jefferson and Jack Worley engineered a "measurement" contest for the new Dade Boulevard spot, the Beachcomber.

There was a $25 cash prize and a substantial slice of publicity given a visiting bathing beauty from Oklahoma, whose physical proportions resembled most closely those of Barbara Stanwyck.

Constructing Drive-In

DALLAS—Building has begun on a new drive-in on Northwest Highway for W. G. Underwood and C. C. Ezell.

Would Replace Sales Tax With Gross Tax

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—A bill passed in the Arkansas house would replace the present retail sales tax and place a two per cent tax on the gross receipts of merchants. If the bill is approved by the senate the measure will become effective July 1.

The original bill stipulated that the merchant could either collect the tax or absorb it. In either case, however, the state would collect two per cent of his gross receipts.

To collect the tax, the merchant will charge $1.02 for products instead of $1, plus two per cent sales tax. The merchant would also be allowed to deduct two per cent from the amount of tax due the state to pay him for maintaining records and collecting the tax. Every merchant in the state would be required to procure a permit to do business. The permit, however, would be issued without charge.

Columbia Holds Vidor

HOLLYWOOD—Charles Vidor, Columbia director, has been held for another term.

A Place for Popeye At Spinach Festival

Crystal City, Tex.—For years now Zavala county has held its Spinach Festival early in the spring with Popeye a conspicuous character at the celebration. Being the spinach center of the world, a large statue of the comic cartoon star adorns this town's main street.

Popeye's guest of honor this year will be Pat Neff, president of Baylor University and former governor.

$30,000 Raised for British War Relief

DALLAS—Almost $30,000 was raised at the "Premiere for Britain" stage and screen show in Fair Park Auditorium and at the $10-a-plate banquet preceding it by a day at the Baker Hotel. Newspapers, radio and local theatre people sponsored the affair.

Hollywood celebrities who came in for the affair by plane and train, included Allan Jones, Gracie Fields, Errol Flynn, Maureen O'Sullivan, Arthur Lake, Dinah Shore, Susanna Foster, Bob Hawk, emcee of the "Take It or Leave It" radio show; Bruce Cabot, Alan Mowbray, Maureen O'Hara and Dolly Loehr.

Hawk was master of ceremonies and Miss Fields, with her songs and moods, lived up to her reputation as a top entertainer. Jones was repeatedly called back. Miss O'Hara brought down the house with one sentence, "Down with Hitler, and God Bless You." Flynn, Cabot and Mowbray sort of clowned about in an impromptu way and Jacques Singer and the Dallas Symphony Orchestra played several selections.

Show business was well represented at the banquet. R. J. O'Donnell introduced the guest speakers and celebrities, including Sir Louis Beale, member of the British purchasing commission here, and Winthrop W. Aldrich, president of the Chase National Bank, New York, and a leading figure in the British War Relief Society.

Variety Club of Texas represented the local trade in putting on the premiere. Besides O'Donnell, other active workers included I. Adelman, Paul Short, John Adams, J. O. Cherry, Ed Sullivan, E. C. Zrenner, John Rosenfield of the Dallas News, Eddie Barr of the Journal and Jimmie Lovell of the Times Herald.

Silver Plaque to Actors Attending Premiere

DALLAS—A silver plaque framed in gold leaf was presented by Dallas newspapers and the British War Relief Society to the actors who participated in the British premiere here last Saturday. Bob Hawk, emcee at the premiere, presented the plaque to Alan Mowbray, who accepted in behalf of the visiting celebrities. The emblem will hang in headquarters of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences in Hollywood, Mowbray said.

Plan Benefit Shows for Greek War Relief Fund

ATLANTA—Benefit shows for the Greek War Relief Fund will be given by a number of exhibitors in this territory during the week of March 25. Collections will also be taken up in theatre lobbies by girls dressed in authentic Greek costume.

Plans for the benefit shows were outlined by the committee in charge at a meeting held at the Variety clubrooms. In charge of the drive in District No. 8 (Atlanta, Alabama, Georgia, Florida and Tennessee) are William K. Jenkins, Willis Davis, Roy Avey and Frank Miller.

Two in Dallas Tie for First Run Leadership

DALLAS—Rain half the week seemed to have helped rather than hindered Elm Street grosses as the important runs did better than average.

"Long Voyage Home," dispelled earlier fears by doing better than anticipated.

Detail for week ended March 8:

Majestic—Western Union (20th-Fox) 125
Palace—Come Live With Me (M-G-M).....125
Rialto—Honeymoon for Three (WB)..... 90
Tower—Long Voyage Home (UA).....120

Tri-States Takes Over Honey Grove Strand

DALLAS—After hanging in the balance several weeks, sale of the Strand at Honey Grove, owned by Preston Tate and C. V. Caver, was completed early in the week to Tri-State Theatres, of which B. R. McLendon is general manager. McLendon built and opened the new State in Honey Grove last year. He will confine the Strand to Friday and Saturday operation, it is said.

Seventh for Brownwood; L. D. Brown to Build

BROWNWOOD, TEX.—L. D. Brown, now operating the Queen and Gem here in affiliation with the Interstate circuit, announces plans for a new 400-seater to be called the Ritz and to feature "action" fare. It will be Brownwood's seventh theatre and is a direct result of renewed activity due to the defense program. Camp Bowie is located nearby.

Five Theatres to Care For Initial Draftees

MINERAL WELLS, TEX.—Nearly a week ahead of the arrival of a contingent of draftees, construction on Camp Wolters is virtually completed. Five theatres are now in operation here, three as a result of the defense program.

"Hellzapoppin'" Four Days

DALLAS—"Hellzapoppin'," New York stage success with Olsen & Johnson, opens a four-day engagement March 20 at the Melba.

Hearings Shortly In Woolner Case

New Orleans—Hearings were expected to start Monday in the Charles J. Woolner case against Paramount in which the drive-in theatre operator charges he is unable to obtain product from the distributor.

Woolner has a second complaint pending with the arbitration tribunal, in which he charges inability to get M-G-M product.

Santone Film Council Honors Mrs. Beretta

SAN ANTONIO—The fact that Mrs. J. K. Beretta, president of the local Motion Picture Council, spent her childhood at Dunterry, home of her grandparents which is used as a setting by Paramount in "Virginia," occasioned a celebration in her honor at a recent meeting of the council.

Mrs. Kurt Beckman read a paper on the story of "Virginia" and other remarks were made by Mrs. Fred Maurer, on Mrs. Beretta's girlhood; Douglas Largen, Interstate employe and trade reporter, and Manager John T. Floore of the Majestic, who invited the group to see the picture at his theatre. Mrs. Alex Adams presided at the meeting.

Mrs. Clarence Echols to National Review Board

DALLAS—Mrs. Clarence Echols, organizer of the Dallas Motion Picture Council, has been named a member of the organization's National Board of Review, she has been advised by James Hamilton, head of the board.

Mrs. Echols is a member of the National Screen Council, which each month selects the Blue Ribbon Award film under BOXOFFICE sponsorship.

Sister of Rubin Frels Succumbs to Illness

VICTORIA, TEX.—Normana Frels died at the home of her brother, Rubin, following an illness of several months. Burial was in Columbus, Tex., former home of the family.

She had been in show business for a number of years with her brother, operating theatres in El Campo and Cuero.

Many Tradefolk Attend Alex Schulman Rites

NEW ORLEANS—Many from the local theatrical colony attended the funeral for Alex Schulman, a colorful trade figure here in the days of NRA. At one time he operated the Coliseum, and at the time of his death he had the Casino and Best theatres. He was 51.

Harold Wilkes Dead

NEW ORLEANS—Harold F. Wilkes, former Paramount district manager, with the company for 27 years, died Thursday night in a local hospital.

Interstate Pushes "Land of Liberty"

DALLAS—The Interstate circuit is going "all out" for "Land of Liberty" in its territory by offering special reduced-price tickets to school students. Announcement of the offer came coincident with the arrival here of Gordon White of the Hays office in the interests of the industry-sponsored feature.

Following a recent showing of the film for the Texas legislature at Austin, the body issued a formal resolution describing "Land of Liberty" as a "factual, entertaining and deeply inspirational pageant of America's heroic progress."

The resolution stated further that "the motion picture industry and the theatres of Texas (should) be commended for outstanding patriotism and loyalty in making this epic production available to the people of Texas on the basis of contributing to the nation's war emergency welfare work."

Proceeds from the picture go for British war relief.

Henry Sidney Wharton Is Wed in Warren, Ark.

WARREN, ARK.—Henry Sidney Wharton, well known exhibitor, and Vivian Myrteel May were married March 3 at the First Methodist Church in Warren. Wharton is owner and operator of the Pastime and Avalon theatres in Warren.

Following the ceremony the couple left for Florida and the east coast. They expect to return home about March 20.

HERBER BROTHERS

408 S. HARWOOD DALLAS, TEXAS

864 Miles . . . With Pauline Griffith

CHARLOTTE—On leaving Charlotte for a trip down east, the sun shines beautifully, which perhaps is a good omen. This thought is dispelled, however, in Albemarle where we miss both George Hughes (Stanly) and E. L. Hearne (Alameda). However, we learn that the Stanly is doing its usual spring cleaning with what appears to be new carpets and drapes. The Alameda is all dressed up with a new marquee.

On leaving Albemarle, we keep plugging over some delightfully new roads which have eliminated hairpin turns en route to see one grand guy in Asheboro. The last time we visited Francis White, he made apologies for his makeshift office. This visit is really worthwhile, despite the fact we pass Francis en route to Charlotte. However, we are cordially received by his pretty black-haired secretary (can Francis pick 'em). She's Dorothy Cavaniss and certainly is a picture in the surroundings of his new office which is spaciously located across the street from the Sunset. The fixtures are modern to the last degree, and it's no wonder Francis can conceive such successful ideas in this environment. Incidentally, and with much pleasure, we note that the only visible trade paper is BOXOFFICE.

How the Elder Got Its Name

So on to Siler City where we plan to remain until our curiosity is satisfied as to how Runa Curtis and T. C. Frazier derived the name for their new theatre, the Elder. We find T. C. in the midst of a farmers' show which, he states, he operates annually for the benefit of his county patrons. There are almost 300 toilers of the soil enjoying this performance, and it doesn't take us long to acquire the necessary information regarding the Elder and how it was named. A very successful local merchant built the theatre at a cost of between $20,000 and $30,000. He propositioned T. C. that he would buy and pay for the marquee on condition that the theatre be given his name. An idea for other exhibitors. Again we're pleased to find on T. C.'s desk a copy of BOXOFFICE.

From there to Pittsboro where S. G. "Staff" Rogers is a most congenial host. Reminiscences bring to light that "Staff" is one of the real old timers, having operated houses in both North and South Carolina. Curiosity again prevails and we learn that "Staff" procured his nickname from another old-timer—the deceased Frank Bryan, who was once a Warner manager. We exit from Pittsboro with a BOXOFFICE subscription.

With nothing between Pittsboro and Raleigh, we arrive in the law-making center where everyone is talking an early adjournment. We confer briefly with our exhibitor-senators—Roy Rowe of Burgaw and J. B. Benton of Benson—and accept an invitation to attend a session of the upper house. This being our first visit, we are agreeably surprised at the dispatch with which our laws are enacted. To our greater surprise, the activities are halted long enough for Lt. Gov. Harris to recognize and extend courtesies to us. We leave the senate with that irrepressible politician, Harry Buchanan, who is graccious enough to accompany us to a session of the lower house.

We proceed to Clayton where we find, our old friend, W. M. Knott, attired in overalls and surrounded by all the necessary tools for a real renovation. Clayton can be proud of the theatre that Knott is giving them.

Smithfield and Pete Howell

Twelve miles into Smithfield and the home of H. Pete Howell, where we delve into the past to ascertain how Pete got into exhibition. In 1918—location Severn (near Murfreesboro)—a gentleman came to town with two Powers projectors and presented a performance which necessitated a "grinder," so Pete was the "grinder." He became so interested that he worked out a deal for one of the Powers. On time, he paid for it the little fortune of $175. After securing the necessary gas lamps, he experimented for 60 days and eventually opened up on a five cent basis. He's now operating a most successful chain of six.

We stop in Kenly and learn from his wife that J. M. O'Neill is out of town. So to Wilson where the day before the lady exhibitor, Jane Paradis, had gone to a hospital for observation. However, we manage a pleasant visit with Jane (in the hospital) and her sister, Una, a most charming person. It's not difficult to understand why the Oasis, under the management of these lovely girls, is operating with such success. We visit the Kincey operations, but due to the hour are unable to contact the head man And, naturally, we view Worth Stewart's and Heck Everett's newest—the Drake. These boys sure know how to build 'em.

Elaborate Convention Plans

To Rocky Mount where our first contact is President Charlie Arrington of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina. He loses no time in telling of the elaborate plans for the forthcoming summer convention and advises that the organization, at the moment, is enjoying the greatest membership in its 29 years of existence; also that shortly he will issue a bulletin to members with the privilege of voting as to where and when the convention will be held. He insists that we abandon our chariot and accompany him for the rest of our tour in his new de luxe Cadillac. We discover on visiting Kincey's new Center that Manager Orr is in a meeting at the chamber of commerce making plans for a festive week.

On to Tarboro where we encounter our old friend, Alf Miller. Alf is really one of the young "olders," having been schooled by one of the pioneer exhibitors, the late H. J. Paradis. Alf is doing a good job for Jane Paradis at the Majestic and Colonial.

In Bethel we wait for the arrival of W. R. James jr., and during this wait we talk to James' next-door neighbor, the mortician, who is slightly grieved over the fact that he's had only one funeral since January 1. We advance the thought that this indicates a healthy condition, but our friend seems inclined not to agree. We find James a most interesting person. He not only operates the "show," but is also active in civic affairs.

In Robersonville we miss J. H. Highsmith, who is down on the farm, but meet his son, who seems a chip off the old block in filling his father's place in a most capable manner.

En route to Williamston, we anticipate seeing Wig's new Marco which has been constructed since our last visit. We don't find Wig, who is away on some business but we do see the Marco—a credit to Wig and to Williamston.

From Williamston, we make a 24-mile leap to Washington where we find C. A. "Cat" Turnage very busy compiling what is usually customary prior to March 15, which reminds President Charlie that he hasn't made out his. "Cat" has two beautiful houses—the Turnage and the Rieta—and he's most insistent that we spend more of our time with him, so we promise to come back some other time.

Then to Plymouth where we meet a beaming Shep Brinkley enjoying the best of health. President Charlie secures a promise here, as he does in practically every stop, of the attendance of the boys at the summer convention. While only a few years ago Plymouth was just another stop in the road, today it's a thriving city. Shep's is a modern theatre, and with the recent opening of the enormous pulp mills, he's in holiday mood.

A Sight to See

The next jump is looked forward to, for it carries us directly across the historical Albemarle Sound, with its new bridge of 3½ miles of concrete built at a cost of a million and a half and NO TOLL. 'Tis a sight to see. Shortly afterwards, we arrive in Edenton where we are welcomed by old friends, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Taylor. "Cap" Taylor is just in the midst of his fishing season and doesn't pay much attention to the theatre which is handled by Mrs. Taylor and Jimmy Earnhardt, who manages.

We turn west to Windsor where Manager A. J. Smithwick is having his day off, but we locate Owner Roy Thompson. We marvel at the theatre until informed that Thompson is in the construction business, and that the theatre is really one of his sidelines.

We double back to Williamston and a long chat with Wig Watts, who promises President Arrington he'll be with him at the convention.

Then back to Rocky Mount, after a hard but pleasing day, where we meet Charlie's charming and capable assistant, Aureola Wharton.

On leaving Rocky Mount, we tarry long enough to visit with C. C. Whitacre who is assisted in his operation by the affable "Mrs. Whit." We are asked to stay for lunch, but time makes this impossible.

Into Spring Hope, where we miss R. B. McGowan but do have a chat with his manager, E. L. Avant.

Louisburg, the home of Glenn Davis, is next and final for this trip. To our regret, Glenn is away but we find a copy of BOXOFFICE on his desk.

So back to the home base for more work and 864 miles behind us.

CHARLOTTE

MRS. JACK LAMONT, wife of Monogram's local manager, has gone to California, her former home, for a three-month visit . . . H. B. Meiselman is converting a building into a theatre in Wilmington, N. C. He expects to open in about six weeks. It will be named the Manor . . . Ellis Blumenthal, president of the B&B circuit, apparently likes Florida, for after only a week and a half stay here he's returned to Miami . . . Friends of Barney Slaughter are glad to welcome him back to Charlotte. Barney, connected with Paramount for several years, returns as local booking manager.

Johnny Bachman, Warner manager, reports a delightful visit with John F. Miller in Hickory. He states Miller is in the best of spirits after an illness of several years . . . H. C. Kaufman, manager of exchange operations for Columbia, was in town conferring with Bob Ingram, local manager . . . Ed and George Harris, operating drive-ins here and in Durham, were on the Row. They will reopen in two or three weeks . . . H. F. Kincey of North Carolina Theatres, Inc., is building a new suburban theatre near State College in Raleigh, N. C.

Reeves, West, Jefferson, N. C.; E. L. Swinson, Lagrange, N. C.; Mrs. Runa Curtis, Liberty, S. C.; T. C. Frazier, Elder, Siler City, N. C.; W. V. Brockman, Westminster, S. C.; G. L. Faw, Troy, N. C.

Trade Optimistic, Says Prewitt

New Orleans—W. A. Prewitt, who as traveling representative for American Desk Mfg. Co. sees a great deal of the state, says exhibitors of Louisiana are anticipating a banner spring and summer, principally due to accelerated activity in defense work.

Pascal Arranging for "Barbara" Premiere

MIAMI—Producer Gabriel Pascal arrived at Miami Beach Thursday to complete arrangements for the world premiere of his "Major Barbara." After a conference with Mitchell Wolfson, Sidney Meyer and Sonny Shepherd, Pascal and the Lincoln manager are flying to Nassau where it is expected they will arrange for this island's first major premiere.

The showing of "Major Barbara" is anticipated at the big new Savoy where Ira McKinney, recently manager of the Grove in Coconut Grove, now has his office as supervisor for Wometco of the island's three houses. March 20 is the tentative date for this first showing of this George Bernard Shaw opus. Sponsorship of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor will be sought in connection with plans to make the premiere a British benefit.

Nashville Operators Union Celebrates Anniversary

NASHVILLE, TENN.—Motion Picture operators Union Local 626 observed the 26th anniversary of their organization with a midnight banquet March 1 at the Andrew Jackson Hotel to which were invited executives of the Crescent Amusement Co., managers of all local theatres, and city officials. Among the speakers were the mayor, and the president of the Trades and Labor Council, J. L. Byrnes, who is an operator. Out-of-town guests were present.

W. J. Brown, secretary of the local, served as toastmaster with Bob Friedman as master of ceremonies.

Make Big Plans for Variety Convention

By HELEN HARDY

ATLANTA—Variety already is making plans to take at least 100 members to the national convention in Atlantic City, May 15-16-17.

Assistant Chief Barker Harry G. Ballance, who is chairman of the "On to Atlantic City" committee, is now hard at work on preliminary plans and urges that all barkers, both resident and non-resident, make early reservations through him. The club is going to pay transportation expenses for all barkers making the trip, and if the treasury permits, there is a possibility that the club may also stand the hotel expenses.

Four compartment cars, a dining car and a special club car have already been engaged for transporting Atlanta barkers to the convention.

Honor Paul Robinson and Wife at Dinner-Dance

HOLLYWOOD, FLA.—The manager of the three houses here—the Florida, Ritz and Hollywood Beach Hotel Arcade—Paul Robinson and his wife, were guests of honor when employes of these theatres staged their first annual formal dinner-dance at the Spotlight Club.

Arrangements for the affair were made by Monroe MacMillan and Jimmie Painton. Staff members who joined in inaugurating what it is hoped will become an annual institution, included: Monroe, Jimmie, Katie Kirksey, Francis MacMillan, Anthony Ross, Barrie Parkell, Pat Crawford, George Fogle, Billy Hartley, West Keefe, Harry Seigler, Leonard Banta, Janet Kemp, Mildred Peene and Cleta Jones.

Brode Has "Kampf"

DALLAS—John Franconi and Ed Blumenthal of Monogram are relinquishing any distribution rights they might have to "After Mein Kampf" in Texas. After being notified from New York they would get the picture, it developed here that I. Brode had a contract to distribute the feature in this territory.

Handle "After Mein Kampf"

CHARLOTTE — Monogram will distribute "After Mein Kampf" in the Charlotte territory, John Mangrum of the local office announces.

Bonnecarre a Father

NEW ORLEANS—E. Bonnecarre, an employe at the Orpheum, is the father of a girl.

General Seats for Beach

ST. PETERSBURG BEACH, FLA.—New General seats have been installed by Stephen S. Girard in his Beach Theatre here.

MIAMI

AMONG local theatremen marching off to Camp Blanding were Charles Safer, artist for Wometco Theatres, and Max Christian, assistant manager of the Rex. During the latter's period at camp, Milton Speer is serving as Austin Moon's assistant at this Flagler Street house.

It's a girl at the Walter Clements (Wometco booker), where the little lady was particularly welcomed by two brothers . . . While we were doing our checklist last month as to where in Miami visiting theatremen would find their manager friends, we're wondering if we properly noted Erwin Waite's occupancy of the managerial chair at the Sheridan? We know lots of you will be wanting to know.

Patrons of the Capitol are still mystified over the stunt used during showings of "Buck Privates" and "Show Boat." By using a wireless record player in the theatre and a small portable radio in the lobby, a continuous broadcast of "song hits you can't hear on your radio" from these two pictures capitalized effectively on the Ascap-BMI battle.

Crescent Will Remodel House in Clarksville

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.—The Crescent circuit, operating out of Nashville, will award contracts soon for the remodeling of its local theatre. The entire interior will be rebuilt and a new front and marquee installed. Plans for the work were prepared by Speight & Hibbs, local architects.

Moore Ballys Benefit

NEW ORLEANS—Gar Moore of the Orpheum was in charge of publicity for the annual Kiwanis Club benefit show for underprivileged children, held at the Municipal Auditorium. "Hooray, America" was the theme and local talent was used.

Work in Vain

DALLAS—After knocking the knob off the safe at C. V. Caver's Rita, cracksmen left without taking anything of value. The padlock on a cabinet in the ticket booth also was battered.

New Office for Korn

DALLAS—Oskar Korn has opened a new office on Jackson Street, just around the corner from his old location on Pearl, from which he will operate his Lisbon in Lisbon and the new Lindale, Houston.

Slight Fire Damage

FAYETTE, MISS.—Only slight damage was done by a fire at the Fayette here. The program was not interrupted.

Present Passion Play

NEW ORLEANS—The Passion Play will be presented at the Municipal Auditorium, starting March 19 and running through March 24.

Woof Buys Theatre In Amherstburg

TORONTO—W. S. Woof, who has operated the Liberty, a 450-seat house at Amherstburg, Ont., for a number of years, has become the owner of the theatre, the purchase price being $27,500. The name of the previous owner has not been disclosed.

The opening of the Park, an 800-seat theatre which is being constructed at Welland, Ont., by Famous Players Canadian, is scheduled for late in May. Manager T. Forhan of the Welland Capitol, a unit of the chain, is supervising local details for the completion of the second house and its opening.

A new theatre is projected for Owen Sound, Ont., another industrial city, by the recently formed Canadian company, Odeon Theatres of Canada, Ltd. L. D. Kniffen, proprietor of the Capitol at Kincardine, Ont., was recently reported as being behind a move to open a new house in Owen Sound as well. The two present theatres in Owen Sound are the Classic, operated by Paramount Theatres, and the Savoy, owned by Chris Georgas.

Negotiations are reported under way for the purchase of the Palace at Galt, Ont., by Odeon Theatres of Canada from Harry Goldhar. The Palace, which seats 685, is opposition to the Capitol and Grand, which are Famous Players houses.

The Centre is scheduled to open at Pembroke, Ont., in April. This 500-seat theatre is being erected by Sam Ulster of Toronto, owner of the Embassy and Photodrome, Toronto. Pembroke, which is adjacent to a large military camp, has one theatre, the O'Brien.

Calgary Downtown Units Using Stage Assists

CALGARY—Advance of the season to spring in Calgary finds every downtown house now using a stage assist to their screen programs. Latest to join is the Capitol, with a radio "Quiz" program and cash awards. Tied up with an air sponsor, cash prizes may be tripled. Coupons are given away with queries and correct ones get a prize which is doubled if the winner is in the audience, tripled if sponsor's product label is enclosed.

Two houses present a weekly orchestral interlude with local assisting artists. One house has a three-night vaudeville bill and another runs an amateur night.

Famous Players Elect Officers in July

TORONTO—The routine announcement has been made that Famous Players Canadian Corp. will hold its election of officers in July, following the termination of the five-year contract of the president, N. L. Nathanson, with the Canadian chain. The directors have extended the option which he holds for the purchase of the last block of 11,000 common shares of the company until April, the price being $16.

Odeon Boosts Vancouver Holdings to Twelve

Asks City Power to Tax Amusements

Kingston, Ont.—The city council has sent a resolution to other city councils in the province asking them to support a movement to give municipalities power to tax amusements for the benefit of hospitals and other social services.

VANCOUVER—Quick extension of the Odeon Theatres of Canada holdings here is revealed in the announcement by W. J. Long, district manager, that the company has acquired six additional suburban houses and plans to build two more to be in operation by mid-July.

New acquisitions are the Fraser, Kingsway, Nova, Olympia, Rio and Varsity. One of the new houses will be a 750-seater at Cambia and 18th St., for which contract already has been let. It will be a $40,000 structure. The other, to seat 1,000, will be located at Knight Road and Cambie.

The circuit, "allied" with Odeon Theatres of England, recently launched its campaign here with the acquisition of the Dunbar, Paradise, Plaza and Vogue, the last-named still under construction and due to open in April. Mr. Long at that time admitted the circuit planned a coast-to-coast chain. Its Vancouver units, acquired and projected, now number 12.

Four New Companies For Odeon Units

VICTORIA, B. C.—Capitalized at $10,000 each, four new companies have been formed for houses acquired by Odeon Theatres of Canada. Incorporated here, with headquarters listed as 902 Royal Bldg., Vancouver, are:

Circle Theatres, Ltd.; Fraser Theatres, Ltd.; North Vancouver Theatres, Ltd., and Olympia Theatres, Ltd.

War Swells Gifts To Red Cross

TORONTO—In his report for the past year as president of the Ontario division of the Red Cross Society of Canada, Col. John A. Cooper announced that total receipts had been $2,500,000, which was five times greater than the total of 1938 contributions—before the outbreak of war.

This amount was received at the Ontario headoffice of the society while the 451 Ontario branches had been the medium for the raising of $4,500,000, almost half of which had been turned over to the main office in Toronto. During the year 3,000,000 articles or sets of articles had been made or donated to the Ontario Red Cross and 500,000 members had participated in the work.

Able assistance had been extended to the Red Cross by the film exchanges and theatres which had organized their own campaigns for the raising of funds for the society while the theatres had cooperated in the use of Red Cross trailers and in other publicity.

Col. Cooper, who is the chairman of the Motion Picture Distributors of Canada, has now retired from the Red Cross office, having been succeeded as Ontario president by Mrs. Wallace R. Campbell of Windsor, wife of the head of the Ford Motor Co. of Canada.

Boxoffice Treatment for 'Wind' Repeat Showings

ST. JOHN—There were some minor boxoffice treatments for "Gone With the Wind's" repeat showings simultaneously at the Halifax and St. John Capitols of the Famous Players circuit.

The same prices, 40 cents, with tax included, and 50 cents, tax extra, applied. However, at the Halifax Capitol, there were four shows, beginning at 9 a. m., while at the "sister city" house, the start was not until 12 noon. At Halifax, the 40 cents prevailed from 9 to 11 and at St. John, from 12 to 2. Children were admitted to the Halifax for 25 cents up to 11 a. m., while the deadline at the quarter in St. John was 6 p. m.

Ben F. Stapleton, 68, Succumbs in Ottawa

TORONTO — Ben F. Stapleton, owner of the Centre Theatre in Ottawa and one of two original Canadian franchise holders of First National, died at Ottawa after living in retirement ten years.

Stapleton was born in Indianapolis 68 years ago and opened his first theatre in 1908.

His son, Don B. Stapleton, will continue operating the Ottawa Centre.

Two Pay Dividends

MONTREAL — Dividend declarations include a declaration of the regular quarterly 25 cents on Famous Players Canadian Corp., Ltd., payable March 29, of record March 13, and the regular 1¼ per cent on the preferred stock of Hamilton United Theatres, Ltd., payable March 31, of record March 15.

Plumb to Yorkton

WILKIE, SASK.—Forrest Plumb, manager of the Roxy here since the time it came under new ownership and changed its name from the Marnel, has been transferred to Yorkton. A. Warner, Saskatoon, has taken over the Roxy managership.

TORONTO

WORD was flashed to the headoffice of Famous Players Canadian Corp. of the sudden death of R. J. Macadam, veteran manager of the Casino at Halifax, N. S., and prominent as a real showman and community booster. He took an important part in the organization of the War Savings Campaign of Canadian theatres in the Maritime district last summer, his work coming to the attention of President N. L. Nathanson and other Toronto officials by reason of the fact that the Casino was responsible for one of the largest collections in the campaign.

President N. L. Nathanson of Famous Players has returned to Toronto from his winter vacation in the south . . . Bert Sherwin, who has been an employe of the Palace, Toronto, since this house was opened 20 years ago, has joined the colors, having enlisted in the Royal Canadian Air Force. Sherwin, who is now stationed at the training center at Brandon, Man., started as an usher and had been the doorman for years.

Paul Frost, formerly in radio at St. Catharines, Ont., has now been named manager of the Regent at Sudbury, recently leased from Robert Stevens by 20th Century Theatres, in succession to Jack Alexander who has returned to Toronto to be manager of the Lansdowne. Alexander became ill shortly after going to Sudbury . . . Gordon W. Hogarth, proprietor of the Roxy at Kingsville, Ont., has written that he broke all records with a two-day run of "The World in Flames." He advertised the picture as a "Five Star Special," the five stars being listed as Winston Churchill, F. D. Roosevelt, Adolf Hitler, Il Duce and Stalin.

M. A. Milligan, general manager of Paramount Film Service, Ltd., Toronto, is having a big trip for his health, the state of which had made him consider his resignation. After a stay in Florida, Milligan has gone to South America and was at Rio de Janeiro, it was last reported. J. L. Hunter, Ontario branch manager, has been looking after the Canadian district in the meantime.

Wolfe Cohen, Canadian district manager for Warner Bros., has returned to his Toronto office after a business trip to the Pacific Coast. Syd Taube of Canadian Picture Pioneer fame is back from a three-month rest in California much improved in health, although he was kept busy with visits among former Canadians in the Hollywood colony. J. L. Smith has resumed the management of the Avenue, Toronto, after a stay in Arizona.

Thomas Pringle, proprietor of the Ideal in Toronto's East End, has donated the use of his theatre for a special show of the Main Street Businessmen's Ass'n for the purpose of raising money for the British War Victims' Fund. Manager Ernie Moule of the Capitol, Brantford, has reported extensive work in connection with the War Savings Campaign of which he was the Brantford Theatres' chairman. Manager William Bradbury of the Biltmore, Oshawa, staged a second Sunday evening benefit performance for patriotic purposes, featuring many local artists. Manager Jack Campbell did an excellent job in organizing a patriotic Sunday midnight show at the Capitol, Brampton, films being loaned by Warner Bros., Columbia and 20th Century Century-Fox and theatre employes donating their services.

Sir Henry Drayton of Toronto was the speaker at a patriotic performance in the Gregory at Georgetown which had been loaned for the purpose by R. L. Gregory. The Brock in Toronto staged another in its series of Sunday night shows under the auspices of the Dundas-Brockton Business Men's Ass'n for war relief, the proceeds being $60.56 through a silver collection.

Jack Arthur, district manager of Famous Players, was featured in the national network radio program of the "Aldrich Family" from Toronto, with Ezra Stone, actor, making the trip to Canada at his own expense for the appearance to aid the war cause. Jack Arthur arranged the music for the one-hour program and directed the large orchestra, getting a mention several times in the broadcast . . . Manager Bob Eves at the Toronto Eglington finally cleared the screen of "Spy in the Pantry" which had a run of three weeks, to be followed by the premiere of "Flight From Destiny."

Theatre managers of North Toronto who had combined for a simultaneous auction of personal articles donated by numerous Hollywood stars to help the British War Victims' Fund have had to hold off the stunt because of the prolonging of the War Savings Campaign of the Dominion government, according to Manager Al Sedgwick of the Belsize. The stars' gifts were made ready for the first display this week but a postponement to prevent overlapping was found necessary.

Art Ducharme, manager of the new Park at Windsor, Ont., is the secretary-treasurer of the Ottawa Street Business men's Ass'n in that city and has been busy with patriotic work, including a Sunday evening benefit. Jack Allen, proprietor of the Brock at Niagara-on-the-lake, turned over $250 as the gross proceeds of the first night's performance to the Red Cross.

Decker a 100 Percenter

MONTREAL—S. H. Decker, veteran RKO salesman, has stepped into the list of RKO field men who have sold one hundred per cent of their 1940-41 possibilities.

MONTREAL

ADVENT of Lent has had a less disturbing effect on motion picture audiences this year than usual, although a few neighborhood houses, mostly in French-speaking districts, report a slightly diminished attendance. A very large number of Montrealers observe Lent by depriving themselves of some luxury, such as cigarettes or alcohol, but comparatively few nowadays decide to cut out the theatre.

The consensus among local theatre managers is that the improved attendance this winter is due in large part to a better range of pictures than has ever before prevailed. The other explanation is that there is more money around owing to increased employment in war industries, while the presence in the city of so many soldiers and airmen also contribute to the prosperity of the theatres.

United Amusement houses are doing their bit to boost the War Savings, the various houses displaying beneath the announcement of the current films an appeal to purchase War Savings Stamps. Phil Godel, manager of the Westmount, has been an aggressive pioneer in this direction, arranging for the sale of War Savings stamps at the boxoffice, and even through the caretaker when the theatre is closed.

Bill Wright, manager of the Rialto, and former manager of the Monkland, is back on duty at the former theatre following a fortnight's absence due to illness. Pinch-hitting for Wright at the Rialto during his illness, was his assistant manager, A. Blondin.

A mystery theft of $473.50 from the safe of the Century Theatre was reported to the police by F. P. Dunning, manager. The building is equipped with a burglar alarm which did not sound, and police say there was no appearance of the safe having been tampered with or of anyone breaking into the building.

Associated Screen News notes: Roy Tash, cameraman, attended a demonstration of new Made-in-Canada universal carriers, pictures of which will soon be shown to Canadian theatre audiences . . . Bob Martin covered the activities of the Belgian military camp in Ontario and arrived back in time to film scenes of the fire which destroyed the Deaf and Dumb Institute in Montreal . . . Lucien Roy is on his way to the Peace River district where he will shoot a newsreel story of construction of new airfields in the U. S.-Alaska airway project . . . Ross Beesley is in Newfoundland filming progress of defense preparations.

CALGARY

WOLFE COHEN, general manager of Warner for Canada, stopped off in Calgary for a day on his semi-annual tour of the branch offices in the key cities.

The amusement tax collected by the government of Alberta from the theatres in the province during 1940 amounted to $175,721.46. Censorship fees for the same period amounted to $26,653.00.

The War Savings Bonds drive still continues in Alberta, with quotas being passed daily. Film and theatre men have taken a prominent part in this drive. Last week, Harvey Harnick of Columbia went to Three Hills where he organized a district committee, gave a few speeches and got the campaign off to a good start.

OTTAWA

OFFICIAL notice has been given of the transfer of property in the retail business section of Ottawa from Famous Players Canadian Corp. to the F. W. Woolworth Company for the sum of $200,000 on which a new "5 and 10" will be built. Famous Players bought the site some years ago for a large theatre, but the work was never started, the vacant part of the property having been used as a parking lot for the Capitol in recent years . . . Finley McRae, administrator of the estate of Harry M. Brouse, has been elected a director of the Ontario division of the Red Cross Society of Canada.

John Grierson of London, England, Canada's film commissioner, gave a speech before the Ottawa Film Society at the National Museum in which he declared that the first documentary film to be produced was "Nanook of the North" which was released about 20 years ago. He traced the development of this type of picture to the propaganda war films of the present day.

Lloyd M. Mills, manager of the Ottawa, Elgin, supervised a preview of "Cheers for Miss Bishop" before an invited audience . . . Clarence Markell, prominent exhibitor of Cornwall, has been busy all winter as manager of the Cornwall Flyers, a formidable team in the hockey group, and made numerous trips to Ottawa when his team engaged the Senators in lively tussles. He is now looking forward to next season.

Manager Herb Marshall of the Rideau has found the newsreels so important in these war days, that he has adopted the policy of providing a copy of the newsreel synopsis to the cashier so that the latter can give details to telephone inquirers. That Marshall is quick to seize opportunities, is indicated by the fact that, immediately following an announcement that Errol Flynn would come to Ottawa for the making of a picture, "Bush Pilot," he played "The Sea Hawk" and featured the name of Flynn.

The Ottawa Fair, which had been called off because of the war, is to be revived this year, it has been announced. The Fair, which is held during the third week in August, brings many visitors to the capital and the theatres were among those who benefited.

Allen Acquires PRC's Canadian Franchise

TORONTO—Harry J. Allen, general manager of Grand National Films, Ltd., has secured the Canadian franchise for 10 features of Producers Releasing Corp. In addition, arrangements have been made to import eight western features. Canadian Grand National, which is a separately organized independent distributing company, has booked several serials.

Negotiations have resulted in the securing of 12 British features from the British Picture Corp., Ltd., for distribution in Canada. These include both comedies and war dramas.

Defends Production Progress in Canada

OTTAWA—There is a kickback on a recent quoted declaration of John Grierson of London, England, who is continuing as Canadian film commissioner, to the effect that "production of any sort, except newsreels, had never been developed here," the "here" meaning Canada.

This comment caused some conversational criticism in film trade circles but it has remained for E. C. Roberts of Associated Screen News, Ltd., to discuss openly Grierson's reported remarks, which were used in a statement apparently issued from the commissioner's office.

Roberts has pointed out quite emphatically that "there is more than one company producing motion pictures of one type or another in Canada." He says that he does not question the capabilities of Grierson, but takes issue with the suggested lack of production progress in the Dominion. Roberts has asked that an opportunity be provided, in a more or less official manner, for "due recognition to those motion picture producers who are extending every effort to serve Canada well."

As an example of Canadian film producing value, Roberts points to the current three-reel picture, "Peoples of Canada," which, incidentally, was made by Associated Screen News, Ltd., for the Nation Film Board of which Grierson is the general supervisor.

ST. JOHN

MITCHELL FRANKLIN was in New York on an equipment-buying mission for the Franklin-Herschorn circuit. Mitchell is the son of Joseph M. Franklin, head of the "Frankhorn" theatres, who is now sojourning in Miami Beach for the winter . . . The Capitol in St. George, N. B., operated by the Sprague Bros., replaces the old theatre of the same name which will be kept fully equipped and used on occasion.

Reg March, in charge at 20th-Fox, has had a very active season as a curler. He is not only enthusiastic but a worthy manipulator of the stones, thus keeping faith with his Scottish ancestry . . . M. E. Walker of Halifax, N. S., has added two theatres to his string, in Barrington Passage and New Germany, both in Nova Scotia . . . William R. Steen, employed in the 20th-Fox exchange, is also an amateur actor and director of note.

Charles E. Staples, operating the Queen at St. Stephens, N. B., is the father of Dee Staples, one of the first Canadians killed in action with the Royal Air Force . . . Film exchanges and theatres of St. John were represented by floral tokens and staff members at the obsequies of James A. "Sandy" Golding, who had been assisting his brother, Walter R. Golding, in the operation of the Community, West St. John.

WINNIPEG

AT THE TIVOLI, Harold Gray is in his element with his current British hit, George Formby in "Let George Do It." Gray has gotten to work, giving his show wide publicity through the medium of throwaways distributed through Liberty magazine and wide newspaper advertising. Located in a thickly populated English district, the Tivoli should do well with the Formby film . . . A film dealing with the inside of Nazi Germany and billed as "The Curse of the Gestapo" has been announced for early showing in this territory.

Harold Bishop is still walking around wreathed in smiles at the break he got when Ginger Rogers received the Academy Award for her work in "Kitty Foyle" concurrently with his playing of the show. Harold took full advantage of the opportunity to exploit the occasion . . . The Garrick got a nice break when a glowing eulogy of "So Ends Our Night" broke in one of the papers from the typewriter of Frank Morriss, local film writer.

Grand National's "Mein Kampf" is still going strong, this week playing an engagement at the Times . . . Vic Rackow has been elected president of the Winnipeg Film Board of Trade to replace D. Brickman, who resigned recently . . . Jack Swartz, managing director of the Regent, was honored by his many friends on his 18th wedding anniversary.

E. A. Zorn, western district manager for Famous Players, has left on a tour of the circuit . . . Sam Rosenblatt, supervisor for Western Theatres, reports great improvement in the condition of Mrs. Rosenblatt, who found it necessary to go south for her health.

Jack Miles, president of Western Theatres, Ltd., and Sam Weiner of Main Street houses are both holidaying in Florida . . . Jim Hobman of the Rose has been doing some outstanding exploitations at that house. As has Jack Randall at the College.

A. M. Knowles, secretary of the Manitoba Motion Pictures Ass'n, has been confined to the hospital . . . Sim Rost, Garrick manager, who has been on the sick list for a long time, is making good progress . . . Nate Rothstein, head of the Rothstein circuit, has been confined to his home since his return from a visit over the circuit.

Visitors to the city included Paul Nathanson of Minneapolis; Harry Hurwitz, formerly of Winnipeg and now of the Tivoli, Saskatoon; Carl Reluf of McKenzie Island, and F. Chickowiski of Grandview.

"It's in the Air" Into Seventh Bijou Week

WINNIPEG—Setting a record for Main Street house holdovers, Garnet Wright has taken the British film hit, "It's in the Air," into its seventh straight week at his Bijou. Popularity of the film is on the increase and business is getting better as time goes on. At present it looks good for another seven weeks.

VANCOUVER

IVAN ACKERY of the Orpheum is very busy these days. He is reseating his house and also in the midst of promoting a seven-week contest called "Search for Talent." Over 3,000 people cast votes for participants in the first show. Winners of each of the seven contests will receive a watch, and will be matched in the closing contest. The final winner will receive $100 in cash and the runner-up, $50.

According to Ben Plottel, British Columbia branch manager, all employes of Empire-Universal Films, Ltd., have been organized in pledges to invest a percentage of their salaries in government war certificates . . . Ted Bobier of the South Wells Theatre, South Wells, B. C., is the proud father of twin girls. Mrs. Bobier is doing well, and Ted is just managing to survive.

Empire-Universal announces its annual sales convention will be held this year, March 27 to April 2. It is planned to have all managers and salesmen attend these meetings when various products released by the company will be discussed . . . Extremely mild weather has helped business in local houses considerably.

Arthur Graburn, former booker for independent interests, has been appointed booker for the Odeon Theatres of Canada . . . J. E. Archer of Sovereign Films announces the company's new offices are located at 1014 Davie St. . . . A number of local theatremen are planning to attend the Empress Golf Tournament at Victoria, B. C.

Complete Improvements At Swift Current Lyric

SWIFT CURRENT, SASK.—Swift Current Amusement Co. has finished a $10,000 renovation program on the Lyric.

Seating capacity has been increased from 504 to 550. There are now two aisles 4½ feet wide instead of three at three feet. Aisle lights have been added.

Interior walls have been re-designed and covered with new insulite in color. The back partition has been built in the staggered style to better control sound. The aisle entrances now have two doors, eliminating drafts, noises, etc.

Lorre in "Uniform"

HOLLYWOOD—Metro has added Peter Lorre to the cast of "The Uniform."

"Wind" Calgary Return Draws Long Lines

Calgary—Heartening to local showmen have been the lines forming daily during the return engagement of "Gone With the Wind." Reminiscent of oldtime enthusiasm and of "movie consciousness," the steady attendance held up to closing day. A four-inch snowfall with temperatures hovering around the 20's proved no hindrance. The first showing on the Saturday morning, starting at 8:45, drew a near-capacity crowd.

Tribute to Newman Before Departure

WINNIPEG—More than 80 members of the local trade attended a function last week in honor of Eddie Newman, one of the most popular members of the fraternity here. The occasion was the departure of Newman for Toronto, and the showmen were present to pay their respects and bid him farewell.

Eddie, long-time manager of the Lyceum here, resigned his post to become manager of Nat Taylor's Midtown in Toronto. His friends and associates turned out en masse to make the occasion the biggest affair of its kind ever held here.

Together with countless expressions of good wishes, Eddie was presented with a steamer trunk, the collective gift of the members of the trade.

Harry Gray Succeeds Newman at Lyceum

WINNIPEG—The departure of Eddie Newman for Toronto has resulted in a number of changes in the personnel of local houses. Taking his place as manager of the Lyceum is Harry Gray, hard-working manager of the Starland. Replacing Gray at the Starland is Bernie Beach, formerly doorman at the Capitol, who received his training under able Harold Bishop. Bernie is a brother of Ken Beach of Western Theatres, Ltd.

A Winning Program in London

LONDON, ONT.—Both stars who won the Academy Awards as 1940's best, appeared on local screens simultaneously, when Manager William Trudell of the Capitol booked "Kitty Foyle" which stars Ginger Rogers, and Manager Fred Jackson at Loew's booked "Philadelphia Story" in which James Stewart earned his award.

Rifle Candy Machine

LONDON, ONT.—The Century, in nearby Kitchener, lost $60 from a candy machine, to a thief who evidently hid in the house until it was locked up, and then went to work on the machine with a screwdriver.

Whelpley to Universal

ST. JOHN, N. B.—Ernest A. Whelpley, onetime manager of the RKO exchange here, has been added to the sales staff at Empire-Universal.

Bows to Opposition

SHERBROOKE, QUE.—"This Thing Called Love" was withdrawn from the Granada after Roman Catholic opposition.

R. A. Herring Dead

MONTREAL—Robert Allan Herring, co-operator of the Mount Royal Theatre, is dead here at 56.

The "Jersey Lily" Recalls Memories

New Glasgow, N. S.—When "The Westerner" played the Roseland here, N. W. Mason, operating that theatre, went back in memory to his youth.

Now 78, and one of the oldest active showmen in Canada, he was a callboy in a Boston legit theatre when 10. One of those he summoned to the stage from dressing rooms, was the late Lily Langtry. Mason went nostalgic when Lily was depicted on lithos and in the flesh as the remote control inamorata of Walter Brennan and Brennan's inspiration for renaming the prairie town he provided the totalitarian government for as Judge Bean.

Mason, who saw the picture every time it was run at his theatre, says the screen flash of Langtry, the "Jersey Lily," was lifelike.

EDMONTON

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S "The Great Dictator" will be shown for one week at the Rialto beginning March 15, according to Manager Jay Lieberman.

H. A. Friedman, proprietor of the Rialto, has left for a combined business and pleasure trip which will take him to Toronto, Montreal, New York and Buffalo.

The Princess has added a weekly community sing to its stage entertainment. Amateur contests for adults and children are already held weekly by this house.

Stage specialties have been added to the performance at the Varscona. These include jitterbug, singing and step dancing turns.

In his new capacity as manager for Alberta and British Columbia of the new Odeon coast-to-coast chain of picture houses, Walter J. Long, former manager of the Rialto, was a recent visitor to Edmonton.

: SASKATCHEWAN :

JACK ZAITZOW, owner of the Roxy, was in Watrous recently conferring with his manager, F. E. Phomin.

Dreamland, Rockglen, has added new seats . . . Owing to uncertain weather conditions, the Climax, Climax, is billing only two shows monthly.

H. B. Narfason, manager of the Foam Lake Theatre, Foam Lake, has returned from a business trip to Winnipeg where he booked "Gone With the Wind" for May.

The Roxy at Yorkton was damaged by smoke when fire swept an adjacent store. About 100 patrons retired and came back later when the fire was under control.

Metro Honor Roll Plan Gains in Popularity

NEW YORK—With the names of more than a hundred showmen representing every section of the United States and Canada already inscribed on its roster, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Exploitation Honor Roll has launched its second half year in operation, an undisputed success in spurring managers on to greater exploitation efforts and higher boxoffice returns.

More than a thousand campaigns have been submitted to date and the winners arrived at through a process of selective elimination by the Honor Roll judges committee.

The service was created by Howard Dietz, executive in charge of promotion for M-G-M, and supervised by W. R. Ferguson, director of exploitation. It was designed to bestow some sort of tangible credit—something a man could show—for putting across a distinctive campaign on any Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture.

A striking lapel button with blue and gold border and inset with the figure of a lion is sent to showmen sending in campaigns which are judged suitable for Honor Roll placement. A committee of three in New York studies all qualifying campaigns and passes on their merit.

The idea to reward showmen for exploitation campaigns caught on instantly. Campaigns have been received from managers of independent theatres, and circuit and chain theatres. One large group of managers in a Northwest chain even went so far as to sign an elaborate round robin pledging that each signer would achieve the Honor Roll at some future date. Branch offices have started vying with each other for the distinction of being the country's top Honor Roll award winner.

Eligible for Plaque

After an exhibitor is placed on the Honor Roll he is eligible to try for an award plaque which will be presented to those submitting six successful Honor Roll campaigns within a period of one year. A lapel button is awarded for the first campaign, and for each succeeding campaign, to the sixth, the winning showman receives a differently colored card, congratulating him on his achievements.

After the campaigns are accepted for the Honor Roll they are reprinted and distributed throughout the country to exhibitors, trade papers, daily newspapers, executives of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and officials of various theatre chains and circuits.

Since its inception M-G-M announces a tremendous increase in the number of complete campaigns being staged in theatres about the country.

The Honor Roll is open to every showman and campaigns are received at the Exploitation Department, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, 1540 Broadway, New York City.

"Kisses for Breakfast"—

How They Get 'Em—

How They Want 'Em—

"They" are the 300 Chicago housewives who have banded together to demand more attention from their husbands in the mornings. To that end has been organized the "Kisses for Breakfast" Club, with every housewife in the country having a standing invitation to join. The organizational hand of Publicist Monroe Rubinger may be discerned when it is recalled that Warner has "Kisses for Breakfast" coming up for release. At any rate, the wire photo news services have the stunt.

The Ad on the Lobby Floor

New Haven—On the lobby floor of the Loew-Poli Theatre are long walks of rubber matting, laid in segments. Removing several of these segments from different parts of the matting, Manager Bob Russell substituted plywood inserts that announced the forthcoming "Tobacco Road."

Heavy Radio Buildup for "Road to Zanzibar"

NEW YORK—One of the heaviest radio buildups given a picture is scheduled for "Road to Zanzibar," the Crosby-Hope-Lamour starrer, according to Robert M. Gillham, Paramount director of advertising and publicity.

The week-to-week breaks set for the picture over the major networks are as follows:

February 17—Dorothy Lamour guest-starred on the Lux CBS program.

February 23—Bob Hope and Bing Crosby guest-starred on the Gulf Oil Screen Guild program.

April 1—Kate Smith will guest star on Bob Hope's program.

April 4—Hope and Lamour will appear on the Kate Smith program.

April 8—Crosby will guest star on Bob Hope's program, plugging their picture. Hope will reciprocate on Crosby's program.

April 7, 9, 11—Hedda Hopper program (CBS) will carry a dramatization of Crosby's life.

Silent Paging

HARTFORD—Manager Frederick R. Greenway has put up a specially designed shadow box with a series of numbers to facilitate paging at the Palace. Medical men attending shows are assigned numbers from 1 to 10, and if they are needed during the performance their numbers are flashed on the board.

March of Time on Three Hit Show

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—The Loew Poli Majestic here gave the March of Time "Americans All" equal prominence in advertising and the theatre front with two other features in a program billed as "3 Hit Show."

PHILADELPHIA STORY—Patrons were permitted to make records in the lobby, over a radio set with a recorder attached, reading from the film's script.

PHILADELPHIA STORY—Records made by local film critics endorsing the picture were run just before the trailer.

TRIAL OF MARY DUGAN—A tab-sized herald with a giant "Extra" across the top was distributed.

LAND OF LIBERTY—A private screening for city officials, club officers and school leaders netted endorsements that made up a 40x60 lobby board display. The mayor made a proclamation for the film which broke the front page of the local paper and the school superintendent sent an endorsement to all school heads in the state. Stores cooperated with a two-page tieup in the paper and displayed flags during the engagement. Sixteen hundred county school children came to a special morning matinee in bannered busses.

KITTY FOYLE—A typing contest was held in a business school with the winning typist given a prize and employed at the theatre the day before the film's opening, to type notes advertising the picture and hand them to patrons.

BUCK PRIVATES—A potato chip company cooperated by furnishing small cellophane bags of their product to be stapled to a card, 10½"x4½" and printed with playdate copy and the catchline: "Here's your first taste of army life." These cards with the potato chip bags attached were piled in a bushel basket in the lobby. Alongside the basket sat a young soldier peeling potatoes. A sack of the spuds and a pup tent near him lent the atmosphere. A lobby board read: "Step up and get your first taste of army life, free, then see (title and playdate copy)." A line or so credited the cooperating potato chip company.

INVISIBLE WOMAN—A two-column by five-inch ad in the paper consisted of a framed blank space, captioned "This is a famous portrait of the 'Invisible Woman' . . . So you don't see anything . . . Well, you will see something that's completely different when you see (cast, title and playdate)."

SO ENDS OUR NIGHT—Five thousand numbered cards, 25 of the numbers matching, were printed up on three separate colors of paper and distributed to boys and girls at the schools and to factory employes. The colors identified the cards whether a boy's, girl's or employes. Copy on the cards invited recipients to match numbers for free admission and carried picture copy. Also 5,000 heralds, copy slanted to: "Girls, what sacrifices would you make to win the man you love?" were distributed to women and girls in offices and factories.

SO ENDS OUR NIGHT—A radio station nightly signed off with "This is station WHP signing off—'So Ends Our Night.'"

A leading clergyman used the title as the theme of a lecture. Daily for 10 days in advance, a bridge club was phoned and a pair of guest tickets offered to the person answering the phone providing they could name two stars from the picture.

LAND OF LIBERTY—A screening was held for chamber of commerce members, educators, city officials, American Legion members and representatives of various clubs. Mayor designated a "Land of Liberty" Day. PTA plugged picture at special meetings and sent letters to membership. Double page cooperative ad in the paper, local merchants paying for space. Metro representative interviewed over university radio station in advance of opening. Phone calls, letters and cards were made by officers to their organizations. Schools posted notices on their bulletin boards and 50 busses were placarded.

GO WEST—Inside a chicken wire cage, mounted on a platform in the lobby, were three stuffed squirrels with napkins around their necks and the floor set with dishes, silver, glasses, etc. Card in front of the cage read "Please don't feed the animals." A larger card, made up as a menu and captioned "Ye Olde Squirrel Food Inn Menu" read on: Walnuts, pecan nuts, chestnuts, peanuts, butternuts." Through each of these a line was drawn, as though scratched from the menu, and below, labeled "special," were listed "Nuts a la Groucho Marx; nuts a la Chico Marx; nuts a la Harpo Marx, signed 'Go West.'"

Another display was a nut counting contest in which a double glass door was stuffed with peanuts and a card in the center of the display offered 25 passes for the closest guesses. Nearby was a ballot box and mimeographed slips of paper for patrons to sign and mark their guesses thereon.

ANDY HARDY'S PRIVATE SECRETARY—A radio contest asked listeners to name the films in which Mickey Rooney has appeared to date and to write a short letter telling which they liked best. Cash prizes and guest tickets went to winners.

STRAWBERRY BLONDE—Advertising that strawberry blondes accompanied by two escorts would be admitted free to midnight show, netted a feature story in the paper to the effect the management was experimenting as to whether men preferred "Strawberry Blondes."

HONEYMOON FOR THREE—In the personals column of the daily recently appeared the following ad: "Rialto Theatre wishes to contact couple marrying Friday with added guest to attend showing of 'Honeymoon for Three,' as guests of honor Friday night. Also complimentary dinner, dancing and nuptial chambers night of wedding. Guest MUST leave couple at midnight. Call Louis Charninsky, Rialto 7-8401." The newspaper cooperated with a story.

MR. AND MRS. SMITH—In a tieup with a newspaper for a want-ad campaign, free tickets were given all Smiths placing ads in the publication. The newspaper also called all Smiths in town notifying them of the picture and soliciting ads.

SECOND CHORUS—Special teaser cards on Artie Shaw with "jive" vocabulary were distributed by ushers at their high schools. Also at various dance spots. Copy led off with "C'mon gates—get in the groove with Artie Shaw and his band in 'Second Chorus,' . . . etc."

THIEF OF BAGDAD—A library's collection of "Arabian Nights" in 53 languages made up a crowd-attracting exhibit in the Cleveland union station. It was displayed against a background of costumes from the film. Five thousand bookmarks were distributed through libraries.

THIEF OF BAGDAD—A dozen vari-colored balloons, with a pair of passes attached to each, were released in front of the theatre at noon on opening day. The local newspaper took pictures of the act.

Red, White and Blue Hawaii

Paramount (Paragraphic, in color) 11 Mins.

Timely. In second-rate color the sugar and pineapple industries are documented. Then the accent is on the strategic position of the islands and the armed forces stationed there. If the emphasis were placed wholly on the latter, audiences would relish it at the moment. As it evolves, it's a so-so offering.

Speaking of Animals

Paramount (Animated Antic) 9 Mins.

Excellent. Subtitled "Down on the Farm," this reel is solid, laughter-laden entertainment. Regulation shots of horses, chickens, ducks, pigs, cows and other barnyard denizens have been doctored up with a unique kind of animation. The animals appear to speak—the lip and mouth movements having been dubbed in. Each beast or fowl has something amusing to say. In any case, the short will hand audiences a pleasant surprise.

Variety Reel

Republic (Meet the Stars) 9 Mins.

Fair. A fashion show with the children of big name players wearing the clothes; between scenes at the Republic studios with Gene Autry, Jimmy Durante and Ann Miller; tea at Louella Parson's ranch and the presentation of the Redbook film award at Ciro's make up the issue. It's all quite average.

Splits, Spares and Strikes

Columbia (World of Sports) 10 Mins.

Worthwhile. Bowling as pursued by women makes up the subject in this offering. There is comic relief, not too funny; trick shots, slow-motion effects and hints to those interested. Trillie Taylor is the expert. She's good. Everybody bowls these days. Get 'em interested.

Caballero College

RKO (Sportscope) 9 Mins.

Very good. The Chilean cavalry school near Valparaiso and members of the internationally famous timber topping team go through their paces, the net result being a fine collection of thrilling photographic compositions. Everybody likes horses; everybody should like this short.

Prairie Spooners

RKO (Ray Whitley) 13 Mins.

Good. This is a neat item to run in with a western feature program. Musically, it rates with the best outdoor items. A slight story thread serves effectively as a frame for the tunes.

International Forum

Columbia 18 Mins.

(Round Table of the Screen)

Controversial. Exhibitors should view this subject very carefully before booking it. While such prominent radio broadcasting and journalistic names as Dorothy Thompson, Wythe Williams, William L. Shirer and Linton Wells are the opinionators, the question arises as to whether the newspapers, radio, magazines and even the people met on the streets have not all gone over Hitler's aims in this country as well as abroad. Some audiences may agree with the remarks of the four spokesmen; others may not, but the fact is theatre owners must resolve for themselves whether this subject could be classified as entertainment.

Despite the frightening aspects of the conclusions drawn from the informal debate by the four speakers, they all agree 1941 spells doom for Nazism.

Take It or Leave It No. 3

Columbia 11 Mins.

Routine. Bob Hawk has a new collection of stooges who answer his queries on precious stones, comic strips, sports, animals. One makes off with $64.

Sniffles Bells the Cat

Vitaphone (Merrie Melodie) 7 Mins.

Swell. This color cartoon is generally above par for its story and treatment. Meek little Sniffles is chosen by his "gang" to string a bell around the household cat the better to hear it when there's pilfering going on. The task is accomplished through some dangerous escapades, but Sniffles reports the incident as though it was executed with the greatest of ease.

Pluto's Playmate

Disney-RKO (Cartoon) 8 Mins.

Good. In his nosing around on a beach with a rubber ball, Pluto runs into the playful capers of a baby seal who promptly snitches the ball and starts out to sea. Pluto, in pursuit, tangles with an octopus. The seal saves Pluto's life, revives him and they hit it off amicably.

Community Sing

Columbia (Series 5, No. 5) 10 Mins.

Fair. Where this sort of thing has been successful in the past, this is worth booking. Songs are on the schmaltzy side, liberally corned.

PRODUCTION INDEX

COMPANY / TITLE	TYPE	STARS	THUMBNAIL SYNOPSIS	RELEASE DATE
COLUMBIA
Blondie in Society	Comedy	Arthur Lake Penny Singleton Larry Simms	In which Mrs. Dagwood Bumstead (Penny Singleton) goes highbrow and tries to crash the upper crust, much to the discomfort of Dagwood, Baby Dumpling and their dog, Daisy. Director, Frank R. Strayer.	Not Set
Chain Gang	Melodrama	Otto Kruger Gloria Dickson John Litel	Two brothers, one good, the other bad, choose conflicting careers. One becomes a gangster, the other a crusading attorney, with the inevitable clash. Charles Barton, director.	Not Set
Naval Academy	Drama	Freddie Bartholomew Jimmy Lydon Joe Brown jr.	A sequel to the same company's "Military Academy," this concerns training at a naval defense station. The cast is largely juvenile and adolescent. Erle C. Kenton, director.	Not Set
The Return of Daniel Boone	Western	Bill Elliott Dub Taylor Betty Miles	Another in the series of sagebrush adventures. Musical contributions are by the Rodik Twins, a radio duo hailing from Oklahoma. Lambert Hillyer, director.	Not Set
Tillie the Toiler	Comedy	Kay Harris	First in a proposed series of comedies bringing to the screen the famous cartoon strip. Kay Harris, in the title role, is a new discovery. Director not set.	Not Set
Time Out for Rhythm	Musical	Rudy Vallee Rosemary Lane Glen Gray and Orchestra	Such radio favorites as Brenda and Cobina and the singing aggregation of the Six Hits and a Miss will lend their talents to this musical comedy. Sidney Salkow, director.	Not Set
M-G-M

Move Over, You Giants

ANY OCCASION on which a President directs his remarks to this industry at once becomes important. The occasion, separated by a long period of years, is the more so.

It is an essential and a welcome obligation, therefore, to explore the significance of Mr. Roosevelt's address, delivered from The White House to the Academy dinner and broadcast to millions through the joint facilities of the three national networks.

At that very moment when the President signified his willingness to talk, this business automatically assumed a larger stature in the consciousness of official Washington. [illegible] feel safe to assume, must have prevailed in the [illegible]

The Chief Executive employed the [illegible] to reiterate his stand on [illegible]

ASIDE from recognizing the significance of the President's recognition of the industry, the recent editorial in BOXOFFICE, partially reproduced above, advanced this thesis:

"This industry, believing itself a private enterprise, actually is nothing of the sort. Constantly in the national spotlight, its performance goes beyond entertainment. It is, or can be, a vital adjunct to social and economic progress. In those directions, much of its future job reposes."

What happened is important not because of the praise, but because of the agreement with the view.

Wrote Will H. Hays—You are right. This matter certainly rates attention, and I have read the article with much interest. I am sure that in the days ahead, the industry will carry out fully its responsibilities in the field of public service.

Murray Silverstone, chief of world-wide operations for UA—I fully agree with your remarks so capably expressed and I am glad you are bringing it to the attention of the industry.

Hal B. Wallis, executive producer for Warner—Congratulations on your editorial.

W. G. Van Schmus, managing director of the Radio City Music Hall—I am always delighted to see any words of wisdom which come from your pen. Your point is well taken and I believe the sooner people in the industry wake up to the fact that it is full-grown and no longer in its swaddling clothes, it will be better for all concerned.

Walter Wanger—I think the editorial is splendid. More power to you.

William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of M-G-M—It is so well to the point and possesses so much fact. I hope it will impress its readers as it has me.

Cliff Work, vice-president in charge of the Universal studio—Excellent.

Ned E. Depinet, vice-president in charge of RKO distribution—I enjoyed your editorial, "Move Over, You Giants," very much.

Austin C. Keough, vice-president of Paramount—I have read it with interest and a great deal of satisfaction. Congratulations and thanks as usual.

Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of the Paramount studio—It was through the untiring efforts of Walter Wanger, president of the Academy, that arrangements were made for the President to make his address. I think it is one of the most constructive pieces of work that has been accomplished in behalf of our industry and on the brow of Walter Wanger should be planted the crown of accomplishment in working it out. There is no way to measure the good that can accrue to the industry through the President's address and the recognition, as you state in your editorial, by the President of the position of the industry as a national and international force.

THAT JUKE BOX FILM "MENACE" NOW LOSING MUCH OF ITS LEER

Scant Distribution and Spotty Returns Build Problems for Idea

By IVAN SPEAR

HOLLYWOOD—Juke-box motion pictures, which a year ago had the exhibition world in a dither of unnecessary worry, have failed to develop into the multi-headed competitive monster which scare-easy showmen predicted.

A survey by BOXOFFICE of the present status of the industry reveals that, despite more than a year of comparatively intensive activity on the part of those engaged in manufacturing the cocktail-lounge projectors and films for use therein, the dime-in-slotters have, to date, been given surprisingly little distribution.

Now in operation throughout the entire country, according to reliable estimates furnished by spokesmen for several manufacturing and producing organizations, are not more than 500 machines of various makes and delivering to spotty revenues and equally spotty satisfaction. Casualties, both among the makers of the boxes themselves and among the producers of film for them, have been nothing short of terrific, and the path down which the juke-boxers have trod are paved with the remains of many who took one flier and were forced, by one difficulty or another, to give up the ghost.

Stumbling Blocks

Apparently the stumbling-block is a double-edged affair. On the one hand, mechanical difficulties in the production of the projectors have, as yet, not been satisfactorily overcome. The boxes require extensive servicing and film breakage is common, which facts are freely admitted by spokesmen for a number of firms in the field. Then, too, there is the problem of obtaining sufficient product—rather a paradoxical one in view of the fact that numerous organizations have sprung up to turn out 16mm film for the jukers—but explainable, according to reliable sources, on the grounds that the subjects turned out by most of them did not measure up to the required standards of novelty, brevity and, most important, cheapness of manufacture.

Undoubtedly the ranking organization in the field is the Mills Bros.-Soundies Corp., with Mills turning out projectors and James Roosevelt's Soundies unit manufacturing a portion of the film used in them. Yet even this company, considered to be the most soundly financed and with extensive technical facilities at its command, does not boast an impressive record to date. So far, attaches say, some 400 "Panoram" projectors are being operated on a commercial basis, while it is reported some 15 to 25 are being manufactured weekly. Representatives here assert Mills has unfilled orders for 20,000 more. Equally slow is the Soundies Corp., which, since its inception, has turned out only 24 reels—less than half of the 52-reels-a-year promised at its inception. To supplement the shortage, Mills has been forced to go into the open market and to date has purchased 32 other reels, including eight subjects manufactured by Sam Coslow's recently-organized Cameo Productions.

Spokesmen here say Roosevelt's unit will probably swing into action again within three or four weeks, but to date no announcements have been made as to definite plans.

It was the Mills organization which sponsored the first—and, so far, only—"national" convention of slot-machine projector operators and manufacturers. This affair, held last September in Hollywood, was distinguished by considerable fanfare and ballyhoo, including the importation of slot-machine impresarios from the east, midwest and south for the purpose of interesting them in the purchase of "Panoram" franchises. Other manufacturers and producers were invited to participate in the exhibits, and the affair exuded showmanship—but apparently little else in the way of concrete results.

Probably the most impressive example of an attempt that failed to click is the Phonovision Corp., organized as a Delaware corporation in July, 1940, by Frank Orsatti and Sam Saxe. Evidently established on a promissory basis, the company never graduated beyond that stage. One projector was constructed for demonstration purposes and was exhibited at the aforementioned Hollywood convention, while another machine is being operated

Many Casualties Among Promoters; Product Shortage Evident

The Hitching Post, Featuring Cowboys, Prospers in H'wood

LOS ANGELES — Apparently Hollywood, where ultra-sophisticated glamour is a prime stock-in-trade, likes a change of pace and a return to the simple life once in a while.

For in this community, where the bon mot runs rampant and sables are for every-day wear, that reliable staple of the corn belt and the Saturday matinee trade —the six-shootin' western—is getting its first exhibition break, to the tune of continually-mounting revenue, at the Hitching Post, first theatre in the film colony to screen nothing but westerns.

The management—the Teleview Corp.—is a bit coy about revealing actual figures. Nevertheless, spokesmen for Greg Carter, one of the owners, and for Russell Desmond, who manages the house, submit that since the policy and name of the theatre were changed about a month ago, grosses have steadily risen. Friday-Saturday-Sunday business, they assert, is of the sell-out variety, at 30 cents per copy for adults and 15 cents for the juveniles. Now their goal is to build up week-day business on a similar scale, to which end a series of Thursday-night personal appearances of sagebrush stars has been launched.

For example, "The Range Busters"—Ray Corrigan, John King and Max Terhune—appeared March 6. Columbia's Bill Elliott and Dub Taylor were on hand March 13, as was Andy Clyde and Russell Hayden of the "Hopalong Cassidy" series. Johnny Mack Brown and Fuzzy Knight, as well as Tex Ritter, were dated for March 20, while Roy Rogers and Don Barry were to appear the following week.

The Hitching Post, a 300-seater located on Hollywood Blvd. near Vine St., that world-famous intersection, has had a varied career. Originally it was a newsreel house. Then the Teleview Corp. opened another newsreeler a few blocks away and changed the first showcase over to a revival policy. This clicked, too, but the management found it too difficult to secure sufficient old product that was in any condition to exhibit. Then came the Hitching Post.

On its screen, matinee and evening, seven days a week, the hero rescues the heroine from the runaway stagecoach, pauses to sing a nasal rangeland ballad, and shoots it out with the villain.

And Hollywood, specialist in the smart crack, loves it.

TRADE GETS INITIAL TASTE OF HOW ARBITRATION PLAN WORKS

Boston Hearing Ends in Defendants' Consent To Award Entry

By BRAD ANGIER

BOSTON—The "little man" won out in the first motion picture dispute to be heard by the AAA under the new consent decree setup. The initial hearing came to an abrupt closing a few minutes after its start when attorneys for the distributors involved entered consents to an award. The arbitrator subsequently ordered these distributors to make their product available to the complaining exhibitor.

The hearing followed a demand for arbitration filed February 13, by Benjamin Gold, treasurer of Paulstan, Inc., which operates the Park in Nashua, N. H. Gold complained that M-G-M, Paramount, Warner, RKO and 20th-Fox "have refused, and do refuse, to license any of their feature pictures for exhibition . . . on any run, in violation of Section 6 of the consent decree."

M-G-M Proceeding Withdrawn

The proceeding was later withdrawn against M-G-M following that concern's introduction of negotiations with Gold that resulted, before the Boston hearing, in the sale of a block of five M-G-M features to the Park.

Arthur L. Brown, young Boston University Law School professor and present Harvard Law's Brandeis Research fellow, was mutually accepted as the first arbitrator. Brown called the initial hearing to order shortly after ten o'clock Friday morning with a terse, "You may proceed, gentlemen."

George S. Ryan, the nationally prominent anti-trust attorney who is representing the first two exhibitors to file arbitration pleas in Boston, stood up. He had been seated on the arbitrator's left.

"In this proceeding," Ryan said, "I represent the plaintiff, Paulstan, Inc. The company operates a motion picture theatre in the city of Nashua in the state of New Hampshire. It has operated that theatre since the fall of the year."

"You mean the fall of 1940?" asked Brown.

Under Section 6

"Yes," Ryan said. "The complaint here is under Section 6 of the consent decree, because of the refusal of the distributors named in the complaint to license their pictures for application in the plaintiff's theatre on some run.

"The theatre of the plaintiff is the Park Theatre. It is what is known in the trade as an upstairs theatre. The main floor is not on or near a level of the street but must be reached by going up some stairs. The policy of the theatre as to admission prices is as follows:

"Matinees: Children, 10 cents; adults, 15 cents.

"Evenings: Children, 10 cents; adults (the balcony) 15 cents, (orchestra) 20 cents.

"Sundays: Children, 10 cents; adults (balcony) 15 cents, (orchestra) 20 cents.

"It is also the policy that whenever vaudeville is shown, the prices will be: Children, 10 cents; adults (balcony) 20 cents, (orchestra) 28 cents.

"In that city of Nashua, there are two theatres operated by the Shea circuit, so-called. That is not a corporate name but the name by which the circuit is generally referred to in the trade. The operating company is the Colonial Theatre Co. of Nashua, N. H., which is named as a respondent in the complaint.

"This company," Ryan continued, "operates the Tremont Theatre, using first run pictures, with admission prices as follows:

Cites Admission Prices

"Matinees: Children, 10 cents; adults, 20 cents.

"Evenings: Children, 10 cents; adults, 33 cents.

"It operates the State Theatre with prices as follows . . ."

"Is that a first run theatre?" the arbitrator asked.

"That is also a first run theatre," Ryan said. "The prices are as follows:

"Matinees: Children, 10 cents; adults, 28 cents.

"Evenings: Children, 10 cents; adults, 39 cents.

"The pictures of all the so-called major companies, including the companies named as correspondents and three other companies, have been and are being shown in those Shea theatres.

"In addition, there is the Colonial Theatre, operated by Nashua Theatres, Inc. It has substantially the same admission prices as the complainant's Park Theatre.

"The complainant also has used, and intends to use, what is known in the trade as giveaways. I believe the first run houses are also using at the present time giveaways in the nature of money awards by chance. Giveaways, in the trade, would include such giveaways of money by chance and also would include such things as

The better to convey an idea of how arbitration hearings are, or may be, conducted BOXOFFICE staff men in Boston and Chicago sat in at those two hearings, the first under the decree.

The Gold case before the Boston tribunal was settled hardly had it gotten under way. The Van Derveer case in Chicago turned out to be a more extended affair and the decision is yet to come.

What happened and who said what are told in full detail in dispatches to the left and right.

Day-Long Session Gives Problem to Arbiter In Chicago Case

By HAL TATE

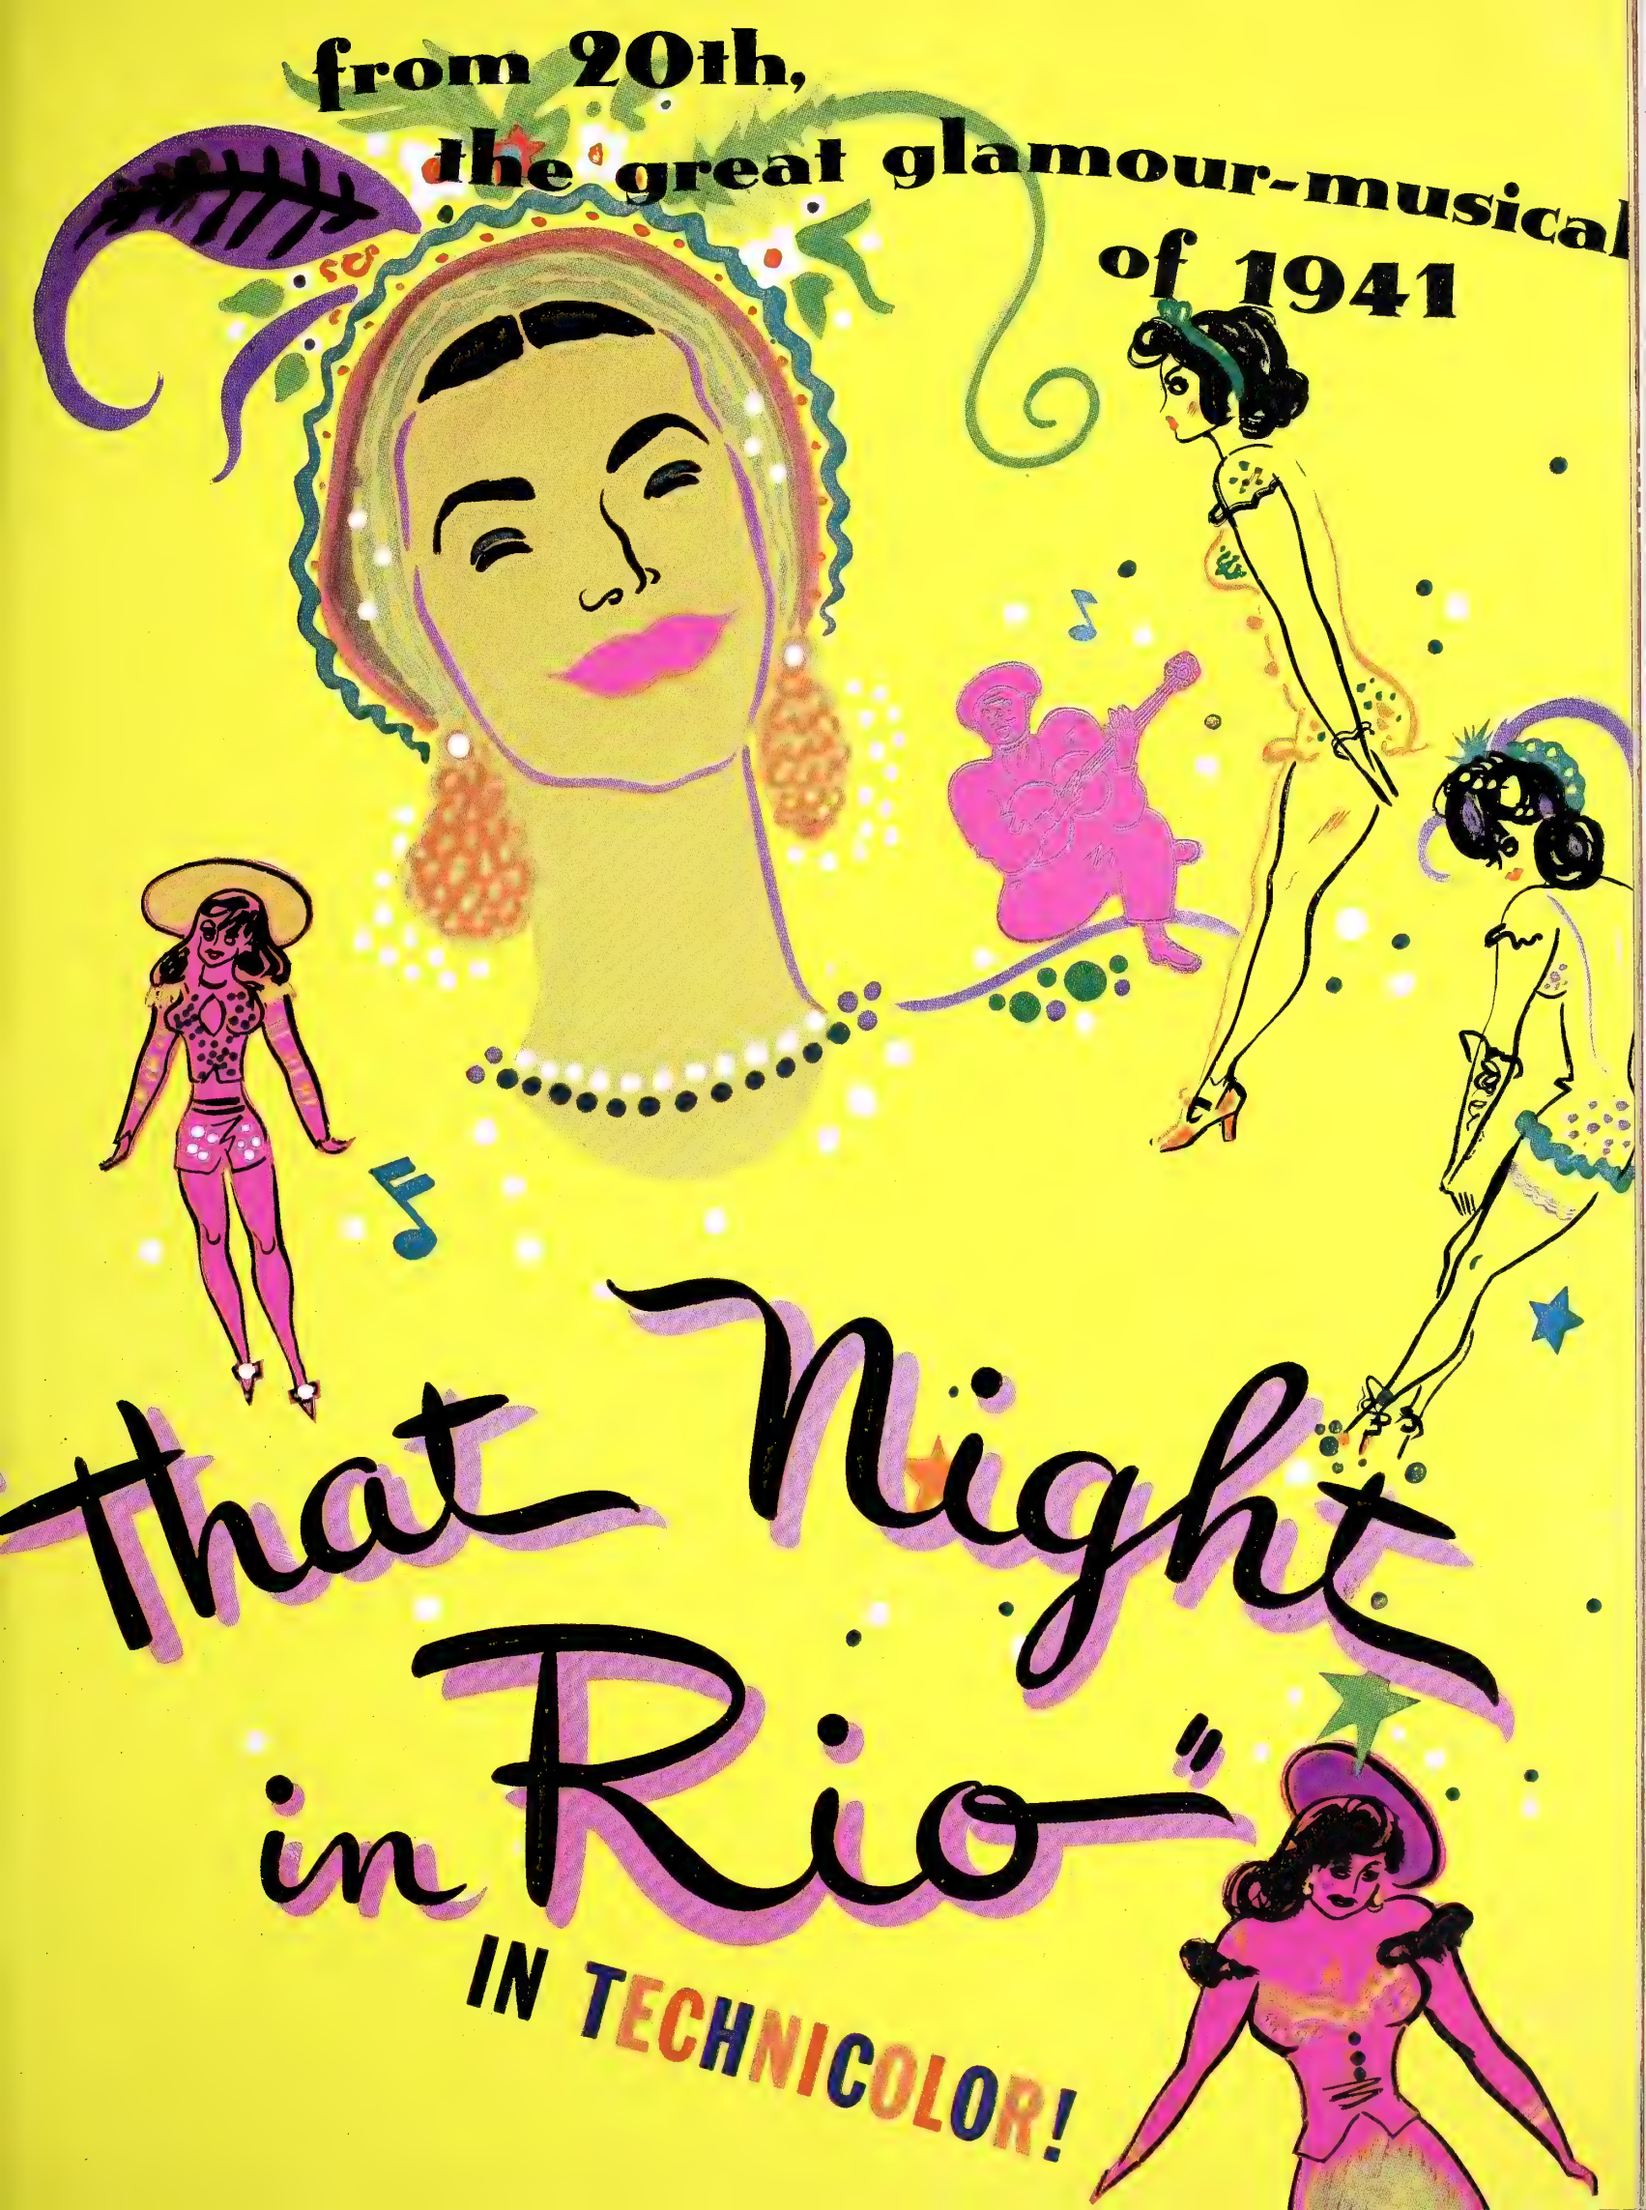
CHICAGO—Unlike the country's first arbitration case in Boston, which was settled amicably shortly after the hearing started, the country's second hearing, held here, involving Loew's, Inc., and the State, independent house in Morris, Ill., proved to be an all-day affair with Charles Z. Henkle umpiring the proceedings.

Despite the general informality of the all-day session, the hearing nevertheless had a bit of court-room atmosphere. Each side's lawyer quizzed the witnesses testifying. At times each lawyer "objected" to certain questions asked of the witness by the opposing lawyer on the grounds that the information was not relevant to the issue at hand.

Two Witnesses for Each Side

Daniel P. Nagle, of the Chicago law firm of Cummings & Wyman, represented E. F. Van Derveer, operator of the State. Edmond W. Lee II of the M-G-M New York legal staff, represented Loew's.

Each side called two witnesses. S. A. Shirley, who is acting as M-G-M branch manager in Chicago while "Doc" Banford is recovering from an operation, and Johnny Kemptgen, M-G-M salesman, testified for Loew's. Testifying for the State were Van Derveer and Charles D. Jeffries jr., manager.



Van Derveer contended that he was entitled to second run of M-G-M's 1939-40 product because his State was the second to be built in Morris and because he had asked for second run prior to F. W. Anderson, whose Times was finished about two weeks after the State. Anderson also owns the first run Morris Theatre. Van Derveer said that he felt Loew's would gain more revenue if their pictures played at his house since it had a larger seating capacity than the Times.

"Threatened" Van Derveer

Before the theatre was completed, Van Derveer charged that Anderson had threatened "to put him out of business" if he (Van Derveer) went ahead with plans to erect the State. This portion of the testimony was "objected to" by the M-G-M lawyer on the grounds it had nothing to do with the issue at hand—namely the selling of M-G-M product to Van Derveer.

M-G-M contended that it had always been a policy of the company not to sell a complete second run of its season's product to a town the size of Morris. (Population is estimated at 5,500.) However, in endeavoring to conform to the decree, Loew's had offered ten second-run pictures of the 1939-40 season to the Times and ten third-run 1939-40 pic-

"CONSENT TO AWARD" TEXT IN BOSTON CASE; IS FIRST OF KIND

Granting Demands, It Reserves Distributor Relief Plea Right

BOSTON—One distributor (Metro) settled before the hearing and four (Paramount, RKO, 20th-Fox and Warner) filed a Consent to Award shortly after the hearing started in the "some run" arbitration case of Benjamin Gold's Park at Nashua, N. H. The full text of the Consent to Award follows:

In the above entitled case the distributor Paramount Film Distributing Corp. and Vitagraph, Inc., and RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., respectively says as follows:

This distributor is of the opinion and belief, and has been so for the last ten years, that its total film revenue in the competitive area of the Park Theatre in Nashua would be injuriously affected and reduced by licensing its films to theatres other than the State Theatre and Tremont Theatre in Nashua if satisfactory license contracts are obtainable from those theatres. This opinion and belief has been challenged by George S. Ryan, the attorney for the applicant Paulstan, Inc., in an action in the district court of the United States for the district of Massachusetts, the trial of which before a master was begun in December, 1938, and has been tried before the master for more than 200 days and is now awaiting his report. This report is not to be expected for some months to come or before the above entitled arbitration would be concluded. To try this issue before the arbitrator would involve to a considerable extent traveling over the same ground covered in the hearing before the master. Such a second hearing, thoroughly carried out will be essentially a waste which can be avoided under these unusual circumstances by an experimental test of the effect of licensing other theatres in Nashua. This distributor accordingly, without prejudice to itself, in the opinion and belief above set forth, or to the conduct of its business, and with the averment which it now makes that it has never, contrary to the provisions of Section VI of the consent decree, refused to license its pictures to Paulstan, Inc., for exhibition in its theatre, consents to an award by consent by the arbitrator directing this distributor to offer its pictures for license to said Paulstan, Inc., for exhibition in the Park Theatre to the extent of pictures released for exhibition up to July 31, 1942, inclusive, on a run to be designated by the distributor and upon terms and conditions fixed by the distributor which are not calculated to defeat the purpose of said Section VI, subject, however, to the right of the distributor to institute a further arbitration proceeding to be relieved of said award, as provided in said Section VI of the said decree.

They Made a Bit of History—

On the left is John H. Taylor; he runs the Charles, La Plata, Md. On the right is Sidney Lust; he runs, among others, the Marlboro, Marlboro, Md. Taylor had filed a complaint under the decree in Washington, charging Lust's practice of holding up dates at the Marlboro made the Charles wait unreasonably long for product and naming the "Big Five." But the complaint never reached an arbitrator, the interested parties agreeing to conciliate. The Marlboro's 14-day clearance over the Charles sticks, but the latter's availability is to be based on the date films first become available to Lust regardless of how long his Marlboro takes to play them. Thus, if Lust waits two weeks beyond availability date, the film at once becomes available to Taylor. Under that circumstance, both houses would run the film day and date. The settlement is of interest and somewhat on the historic side in that it is the first of its kind under the decree.

Chicago Hearings Prove to Be An Informal, All-Day Session

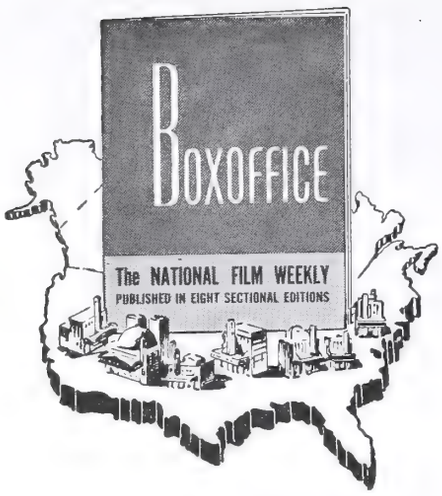
tures to the State. During the hearing, Loew's sought to prove the point that it had offered "some run" to the State. Loew's also contended that the company had the privilege of choosing its customers.



Van Derveer said he had made money when he played first and second-run pictures, but had lost money when playing third-run films. Though he had been offered the ten Metro third-run films between the time he filed his complaint on February 13 and the hearing last Saturday, he had not accepted the offer because he felt that if he were forced to play third run he would go out of business.

Van Derveer also testified that prior to building his State, his representative, Robert Lucas, had contacted the Fox, RKO and Columbia exchanges regarding product and had been assured of second-run films from those companies. Metro at that time refused to commit itself on product because it was the company's policy not to sell any product to a theatre until it was built.

Expanding on the subject, M-G-M said it had offered to cut clearance from second run on the group offered the State from 60 days down to 21 days. Second runs in Morris play 60 days after first runs.

The State claimed that M-G-M had sold it "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante" for second run. Shirley admitted this, but said that though M-G-M might in rare instances license second run pictures in a town the size of Morris, as a general rule the company did not deem it profitable to show them in such a small town.

In contending that Morris was not large enough to support a theatre playing second run pictures, and to prove that the showing of such runs decreased the revenue of first runs, Shirley cited figures on playing time of "Babes in Arms" and "Strike Up the Band."

Stay as Co-Conspirators In Schine Action

Schenck Denies Reports Linking Goldwyn, Fox

New York—Reports Samuel Goldwyn either would produce or distribute through 20th-Fox are denied by Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board. The rumors on Goldwyn and 20th-Fox are as active as those linking the producer with Warner and Paramount ever since he and UA amicably parted.

"Dictator" at About $700,000 on B'way

NEW YORK — "The Great Dictator" wound up its two-a-day run at the Astor Sunday. The picture played 23 weeks but for 22 the gross at this house approximated $275,000. In seven weeks at the Capitol the take was close to $400,000.

The Astor will darken for two days to make way for "I Wanted Wings," which also will follow the two-a-day plan. On the evening of March 25, Paramount will hold a press showing and open the picture for the public the following day.

The first regular Loew opening of the Chaplin picture starts March 27 at the Metropolitan, Brooklyn, where the popular price policy will prevail. It is set for one week and, if it holds up, may be held for a second.

Loew's recently signed a new year lease on the Astor and will continue to operate until April 1, 1942.

Goetz Set on Making "The American Way"

NEW YORK—Returning from the coast for a four-day stay, Harry Goetz stated he is determined to make "The American Way." RKO has a half interest in the rights, but the indication now is the play may be produced and released by another major company. One important Hollywood producer has taken an interest in the play and Goetz left for the coast Thursday to follow this up.

Max Gordon, who is a partner of Goetz, recently signed a producer's contract with Columbia providing for 12 months out of 16 on the lot. The deal also provides that Columbia will have first call on any and all shows Gordon and Goetz may produce. The picture company also has the right to participate in the financing. Gordon is expected to make one picture before "My Sister Eileen," which Columbia recently purchased for $225,000.

Bank Night Bill Dies

DES MOINES—A bill designed to regulate Bank Night died in the legislature by a vote of 50 to 43.

BUFFALO—Following the same procedure as in the all-industry, Crescent and Griffith suits, the "Big Five" were dismissed as party defendants in the government's anti-trust action against Schine early in the week. The five companies—Loew's, 20th-Fox, RKO, Warner and Paramount—are retained however as co-conspirators in the action which still pends.

Reports here continue optimistic for an amicable settlement of the Schine action by a decree similar to that entered into by the "Big Five." Only detail holding it up, according to reliable sources, is the expansion angle in which there is a wide difference of opinion.

It is understood the government is determined to stop Schine from further acquiring theatres, while counsel for the independent circuit is asking that the same provision on new theatre holdings in the "Big Five" decree be made with Schine.

Cassil Dismissal Halts Defense Testimony

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—Defense counsel in the anti-trust action by Frank and Eugenia Cassil against Dubinsky Brothers and the major distributors did not have a chance to complete their presentation when Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis granted a plaintiff motion to dismiss the case "with prejudice." Exchange heads of the major companies denied any conspiracy to deny the plaintiffs' first run product, holding Dubinsky was sold because his theatres brought in more revenue.

Cassil, president of the Kansas-Missouri Theatre Owners Ass'n, filed the case three years ago and it has been carried over from year to year. He sought $425,775 in damages. Several attorneys from New York came on for the trial.

RKO Sales Force "On Toes" For Decree Operation

NEW YORK—RKO's sales force is on its toes insofar as the decree is concerned, William Zimmerman, home office attorney who recently completed a tour of exchanges, states. "The reaction of the men was very favorable," he adds, concluding his trip was well worthwhile.

Whether or not he will make another tour before the new season gets under way has not been decided. Zimmerman also sat in on the negotiations which led up to the decree.

Sussman, Jenkins Discuss Decree at Pitt Meet

PITTSBURGH—William Sussman, eastern divisional sales manager, and Felix A. Jenkins, general counsel for 20th-Fox, on Tuesday held a meeting with the local sales force on the decree.

Sussman has a few more exchanges yet to cover before he completes a tour of all branches under his supervision.

GOV'T MEN SEE LITTLE RELIEF FOR THEATREMEN IN 5-BLOCKS

No Such Simple Answer To Problems, States Report by TNEC

By EARLE A. DYER

WASHINGTON—Exhibitors will find little relief through sales in blocks of five, it is indicated in a monograph written by Daniel Bertrand, administrative assistant, with W. Duane Evans of the department of labor and E. L. Blanchard of the TNEC staff for the temporary national economic committee.

Problems of the industry, symptomatic of those of many great American enterprises cannot be remedied by any "simple solution," it is further adduced.

Designed to take the place of a TNEC investigation, for which there was neither time nor funds, the report traces the history and rise of the industry to its present position of "an important social and cultural force."

Today, it is pointed out, the industry is attempting to solve its difficulties under the consent decree, but in the opinion of the authors, that decree has many holes and the future course of events is doubtful.

Dubious on Arbitration

The report appears dubious of the success of arbitration, pointing out that it involves expenditures on the part of complaining exhibitors which may be too heavy to bear, particularly if an appeal is taken to the appeals board, which will hold hearings only in New York. To the extent that it has turned the settlement of controversies over to arbitration, the department of justice has relinquished enforcement of the decree, it is declared, but since the department's only other course would be to invoke the contempt procedure, which is a not "wholly impressive" method of securing compliance, there is room for argument that arbitration, while it leaves much to be desired, is to be preferred.

Competition "Blocked"

The authors of the report, two of whom, Messrs. Bertrand and Evans, were with the NRA in the days of the amusement codes, find that it has been made extremely difficult, if not impossible, for important new competition to enter production or distribution, against the existing companies.

"The control of production and distribution by these companies is confirmed by their ownership of a most important segment of the motion picture theatres of the United States," they explain. "A pretentious independent production in order to be profitable must be shown in at least some of these theatres, and in general this can be achieved only by entering into a distribution contract with one of the major companies. This fact makes it extremely difficult to finance any independent production unless such arrangements have already been made.

"In their relationships with exhibitors these companies have demonstrated similarity in policy and action. Various practices have been developed to maintain their control over this field and to render it profitable. Where competition has proved counter to the joint interests of these companies, cooperation has been substituted. Many of the practices initiated and perpetuated by these companies must be considered definitely inimical to the interests of the consumer."

However, the committee is told, the film industry is not unique in the sense that it is dominated by a few large companies. An even higher degree of concentration may be found in some other industries, but in many of those industries it has re-

Bertrand, Evans, Blanchard

Washington—Among the highlights of the monograph on films prepared for the TNEC:

The decree has many holes.

The success of arbitration is dubious.

As a result of the decree, the government case against the "Little Three" is weaker.

The industry exhibits problems common to many "of our great enterprises." Therefore,

"More than anything else, perhaps, intelligent and sympathetic study is indicated."

System of Federal Charters Held Reflecting Advantages

NEW YORK—The theory and application behind any federalization of companies engaged in interstate commerce is complex, but one sector of legal opinion in New York tends toward the belief such an eventuality might have its benefits insofar as the film industry is concerned.

This reaction is re-kindled on the basis of despatches from Washington indicating Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, chairman of the temporary national economic committee, will seek a law calling for the federal licensing of all corporations engaged in business between the states.

Some lawyers envision benefits in that one such charter would blanket the activities of the major companies throughout the union and in some aspects, give these companies a legal status such as they do not now enjoy under the system of incorporating, or obtaining permission to function, in each state.

Reference to his intention of seeking such congressional action was included in the final report of the TNEC. O'Mahoney listed the possible chartering of companies engaged in interstate commerce along with rigid enforcement of the anti-trust statutes and tax relief for small businesses as a three-cornered method of halting the trend toward domination of the national economy by a few large corporations and of avoiding "the continued expansion of government control over private business."

He explained his theory by declaring such a system would make unnecessary the creation of new boards and commissions in that it could be used to define the responsibilities and duties of all national corporations so that discretionary regulation would not be required. The theory was general and made no specific mention of films.

O'Mahoney urged congress to undertake a "thorough-going" study of the whole tax structure with a view to developing relief for small concerns, plus their protection through strict application of the anti-trust laws.

"For two generations," he observed, "the concentration of economic power and wealth has proceeded at such a pace that the welfare of the masses in agriculture and industry has been seriously jeopardized. Small business has been swallowed up by big business and big business is now confronted with the danger of being swallowed up by government.

"The way to reverse this trend is not to be found in further expanding the powers of government, nor in releasing business from so-called 'government interference.' The only remedy to save a democratic economy is to be found in making the economy democratic. If we are to avoid an all-powerful central government, we have no recourse but to re-establish and encourage free, private enterprise, that is to say, private enterprise which will be free from the arbitrary control of private organization as well as of public organization."

COMEDIES AND STRAIGHT DRAMA HOLLYWOOD TOPS; 35 EN ROUTE

Westerns and Musicals Come Next; Mysteries, Aviation Films Trail

HOLLYWOOD—Comedies—of which 20 are already being planned—and straight dramatic offerings, in second position with 15 titles so far announced, dominate the production lineup for the next two months. Westerns are in third position with 12 scheduled. Musicals slated total nine for fourth spot, while mysteries and horror stories together in one classification, and properties having to do with aviation share fifth spot.

In the comedy division are Paramount's "Buy Me That Town," "Henry for President," "Nothing But the Truth," "Sullivan's Travels," "Joan of Arkansas" and "Two Bad Angels." Columbia lists "Bedtime Story," "Officer and the Lady," "Blondie in Society" and "Tillie the Toiler." On RKO's schedule are "Scattergood Pulls the Strings," "True to Form" and "The Father Takes a Wife." Twentieth Century-Fox will start "The Man With the Shovel" and Universal plans "Almost an Angel" and "Were in the Navy Now." Republic has an untitled "Higgins Family," plus "Cindy" and "Puddin' Head." M-G-M will roll "Step This Way."

Dramatic offerings include "Dildo Cay," "Aloma of the South Seas" and "Reap the Wild Wind" from Paramount; "A Certain Mr. Scratch" and an untitled "Dr. Christian" from RKO Radio; "Widows of the Press" and "Redhead" at Monogram; "The Black Swan" and "Fraternity" at 20th-Fox; Warner's "Manpower;" United Artists' "Our Heaven Is Now" and "Strange Victory;" "Men of the Timberlines" at Universal, and an untitled "Tarzan" and an untitled "Dr. Kildare" from M-G-M.

Columbia's western entry is "Texas." Paramount plans "The Parson of Panamint" and "Secrets of the Wasteland," both Harry Sherman productions. RKO Radio lists "Valley of the Sun." Warner will roll "Bad Men of Missouri," while 20th Century-Fox plans "Belle Starr" and "Sun Valley," and Republic will roll "Sheriff of Tombstone," "Down Mexico Way" and "Kansas Cyclone." Monogram will have "The Pioneers."

In the musical category are "Birth of the Blues" and "Paramount on Parade" from Paramount; "Betty Co-Ed" from Columbia; "Sing Another Chorus" and "Ready for Romance" at Universal; Metro's "Smilin' Through" and "Republic's "The Old Grey Mare" and "Angels With Broken Wings."

Paramount's "World Premiere" will have a murder prominently identified with its motivation, while the same studio lists "Among the Living," "Sing a Song of Homicide" and "College Mystery." Warner has "The Smiling Ghost" and "Passage From Hongkong," while Republic is rolling "Alibi at Midnight." Monogram is preparing "The Phantom Monster" and "King of the Zombies." As to aviation features, 20th Century-Fox is readying "A Yank in the RAF," United Artists lists "The Eagle Squadron," Paramount will roll "Forced Landing," "Dive Bomber" and "The Flight Patrol" will take off at Warner, and "Parachute Squadron" is on RKO Radio's schedule.

What the Studios Are Doing

Two-Month Fast Pace Seen in Production

HOLLYWOOD—There is still no dearth of activity on the production front, which tentative schedules indicate will continue to operate at a fast pace for at least another two months . . . A minimum of 44 features is slated for camera work during the period . . . Paramount, out in front, plans to film 12 subjects before May 1 . . . M-G-M is at a six-month peak with 11 now in work, two others to roll shortly . . . Columbia, planning five starters, has 38 writers working on 31 vehicles . . . Also active are Republic, to start six, and Warner, with five on schedule.

Relief Fund Buys Land For Actors' Rest Home

With $800,000 now in its coffers, the Motion Picture Relief Fund has purchased land near Calabasis, close to Hollywood, for the home it will construct for elderly industry veterans and younger actors in need of rest and recuperation . . . Money was collected in three years through the Screen Guild airshow . . . All proceeds from the annual "Gambol of the Stars," sponsored jointly by the Screen Actors Guild and the American Federation of Radio Artists, went to the MPRF. Highlight of the event was the auctioning of President Roosevelt's campaign hat, with Edward G. Robinson and Melvyn Douglas, each bidding $3,200, splitting the chapeau and the purchase price.

Colcatta Case Starts; Wurtzel Back From Tour

The $1,200,000 suit brought by the Colcatta Corp. against Fox West Coast, charging monopoly and conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce, is now on trial in U. S. district court. Plaintiff charges its Colorado in Pasadena has been illegally deprived of major company product by the defendants . . . Returning from a three-month tour of Latin America, Sol M. Wurtzel, 20th Century-Fox executive producer, predicts better Hollywood product will open new and rich markets below the border . . . Wurtzel warns, however, that Hollywood producers may soon face genuine competition from native film-makers, especially in Argentina and Brazil . . . His United Artists affiliation now completely severed, Samuel Goldwyn is rushing preparations for filming "The Little Foxes," starring Bette Davis, with William Wyler directing.

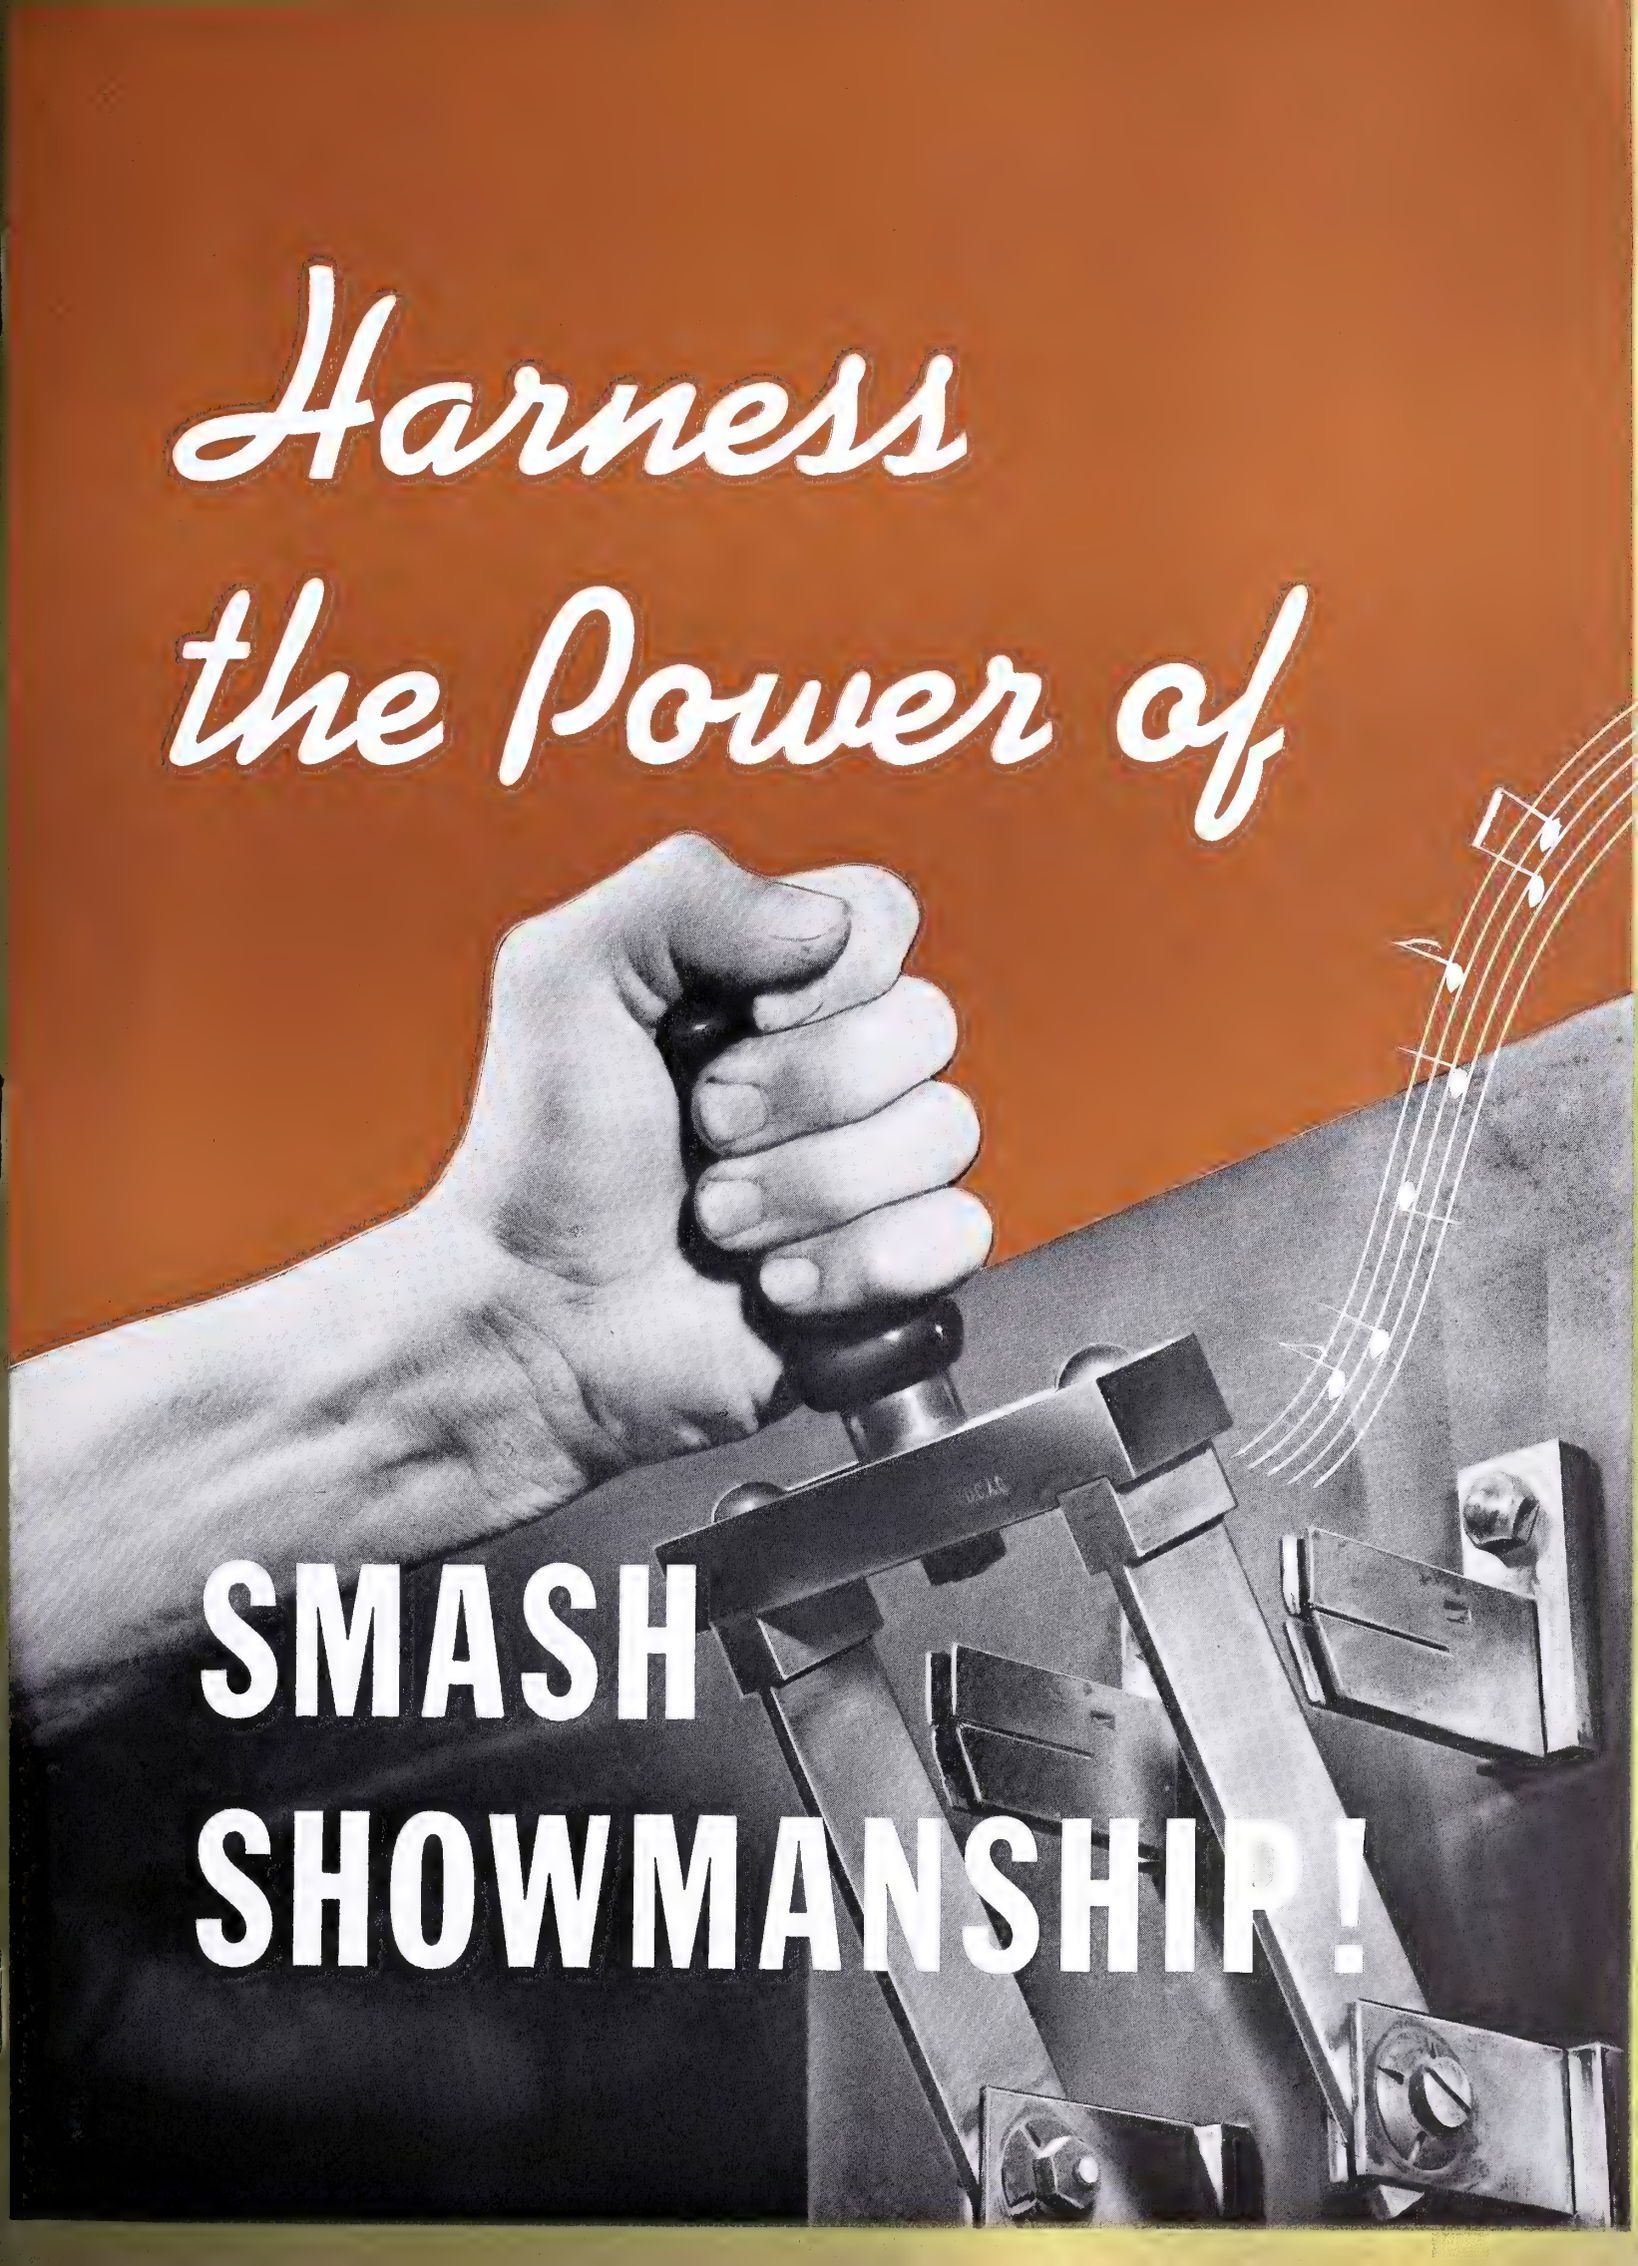
Columbia Pacts Hayden; Bob Hope's Next Set

After several years as William Boyd's buddy in the "Hopalong Cassidy" westerns, Russell Hayden graduates to dress-up roles with a long-term Columbia contract. He has been replaced in the "Hopalongs" by Brad King, genuine Nevada cowboy . . . Columbia has also re-signed Charles Starrett to star in 22 westerns during the next two years, with William Berke ticketed to produce the first two . . . Tay Garnett will direct RKO Radio's "Unexpected Uncle" . . . Rose Franken and William Brown Meloney will script Miss Franken's play, "Claudia," for David O. Selznick . . . Bob Hope will star in Paramount's "Louisiana Purchase," to be filmed in Technicolor . . . William K. Howard will direct "King Rubber" instead of "Bad Men From Missouri" for Warner. Ray Enright substitutes on the latter assignment.

Important Story Buys; Universal Casts Vallee

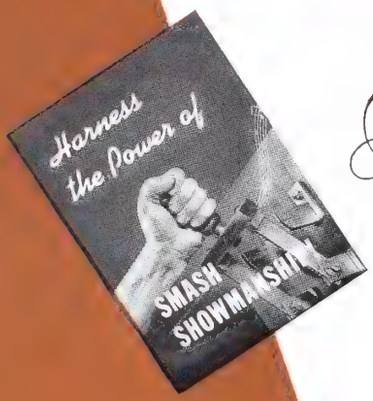
Important story buys included Frank Lloyd's purchase of Houston Branch's "River Lady" for $50,000 . . . Republic paid $17,500 for Theodore Pratt's "Mercy Island" . . . Warner has secured screen rights to the biography of George Gershwin, together with many of his songs . . . Ilona Massey draws a term acting contract from Edward Small, with the starring role in "G-Men vs. Scotland Yard" . . . Paramount's "Pioneer Woman" is now titled "The Great Man's Lady" . . . Tony Martin gets the juvenile lead in M-G-M's untitled Marx Brothers comedy . . . Rudy Vallee will star in Universal's "Too Many Blondes."

Omaha Goodwill Meeting



OMAHA—An all-industry goodwill gathering will be held by the Variety Club here April 22 in conjunction with a business meeting of the MPTO of Nebraska and Western Iowa to elect officers. The late Charlie Williams was MPTO president.

Product Talks Take WB Executives to Coast



HOLLYWOOD—With Harry M. Warner, president, delayed here, home office executives are here for meetings on the new product lineup. Among them are Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager; Carl Leserman, Roy H. Haines, Ben Kalmenson, Sam Schneider and Mort Blumenstock.

The coast palavers are slated to take about a fortnight, the principal discussion centering around a greater number of "A" pictures and the elimination of lesser quality product.

The Sea Wolf

F — Stirring Drama

WB (501) — 99 Minutes — Rel. Mar. 22, '41

A modernized version of the famous Jack London novel, and a good one at that. New situations have been introduced which competently sustain the dramatic values. However, there is no reason to recall this as a remake, for it stands on its own, a worthy boxoffice contender for patronage. To the principals goes praise for fine characterizations. To Michael Curtiz, an accolade for splendid direction. The story, as currently brought to the screen, has Garfield and Miss Lupino fugitives from justice. Garfield signs on the "Ghost" to get out of 'Frisco. Miss Lupino is aboard a ferry and asks Knox to befriend her. Instead he turns her over to the police. There is a crash, the ferry sinks and Knox and Miss Lupino are saved by the "Ghost." "Sea Wolf" Larsen, in the person of Robinson, has his reasons for his plundering activities, with his brother the victim. As the story progresses, Garfield and Miss Lupino are brought closer together in the common cause of escape. How they ultimately do is dramatically told. Robinson, of course, tries to prevent the escape, even while his schooner is sinking, but Knox sacrifices his life to release the lovers from the uncompromising captain.

Edward G. Robinson, Ida Lupino, John Garfield, Gene Lockhart, Barry Fitzgerald, Alexander Knox, Stanley Ridges.

EXPLOITIPS: Convert the theatre front into a miniature schooner and have the ushers dressed as some of the picture's characters. Have window cards inserted in bookstores and libraries. Exhibitors can stage contests on various knot-tying tricks with the winner, or winners, getting passes for their efforts. Contact nautical clubs with special appealing copy and stress the fact that this is a modernized version of Sea Wolf Larsen and his famous "Ghost" ship.

CATCHLINES: Romance and Mutiny on the High Seas . . . Wolf Larsen, the Gangster of the Seas, Steals From His Own Brother.

Topper Returns

F — Comedy-Mystery

United Artists (——) — 88 Minutes — Rel. Mar. 21, '41

As a murder-mystery-chiller, complete with a full assortment of secret stairways, sliding doors and clutching hands, this is well equipped to stand on its own two feet and hold up the top side of any program. As the third in Producer Hal Roach's "Topper" series, specializing in the trick photography, burlesqued ghosts, gag situations and bright dialogue which made its predecessors so popular, the film could win wide acclaim as the best of the trio. As a smoothly-blended combination of the two, it is good comedy for the mob and should so solidify the screen popularity and revenue records of films featuring the fictional characters conceived by the late Thorne Smith that there will be a general demand for more. Billie Burke and Roland Young are inherited from the original "Topper" gang. Their antics are bolstered through the recruiting of such established masters of humor as Joan Blondell, Patsy Kelly, Donald MacBride and, last but far from least, Eddie (Rochester) Anderson. Old or new, they all make concerted bids for their shares of Thespic honors and laughs, which competition, spurred by a brilliantly-paced script, develops into a funfest which will have the customers roaring from start to finish. Roy Del Ruth cracked the directorial whip which kept the circus moving at break-neck clip.

Joan Blondell, Roland Young, Billie Burke, Eddie (Rochester) Anderson, Patsy Kelly, Donald MacBride, Dennis O'Keefe.

EXPLOITIPS: Rig up a shadow box in the lobby in which lights, flashing on and off, reveal Joan Blondell first as a real being, then as a nebulous ghost. Make bookstore tieups on the "Topper" novels. Give marquee credits to Miss Blondell, Roland Young and Billie Burke.

CATCHLINES: A Gay, Gorgeous Ghost in a Lonely Castle . . . With Only Timid Topper to Keep Her Company.

Meet John Doe

F — Drama

WB (——) — 123 Minutes — Rel. ——

Frank Capra, once more surveying the scene, senses that the average American in these troubled times needs a hitching post to which he can tie his emotions and faith in the future. "Meet John Doe" turns out to be that hitching post, a focal point around which John Doe, et al., may fraternize and slap backs with his neighbors. The inference, of course, is that, once this happens—if it ever does—common problems can be met and licked because they are understood and because the battle let loose against them is representative of the whole people. This is told in terms of Gary Cooper who becomes John Doe for newspaper circulation purposes and finds himself swept out of bounds by the wildfire manner in which his simple credo of homely and home-like philosophy catches hold. Thousands of John Doe Clubs form in the one, big-happy-family manner; then Edward Arnold, the financier, shows his political claws by endeavoring to use Cooper as a rocket ship to a Fascist presidency. Cooper rebels, because by this time he believes the sweet things he has been handing out to the gullibles; Arnold cracks the Doe movement by exposing its fake beginnings and Cooper, confronted by Barbara Stanwyck, foregoes suicide for another crack at the same idea. "Meet John Doe," with its causes, is a sterling job. Beautifully performed, superbly produced, lightened by comedy, distinguished in its direction and intelligent, if idealistically lofty, in its conception, nevertheless it is Capra. And that means a great deal.

EXPLOITIPS: The Capra stamp, by all means, should be emphasized. And, of course, the attraction power of the Cooper-Stanwyck names, as well as others if they mean anything locally. Ordinary ballyhoo methods should be watched carefully in this case. The subject matter is serious, even if frequently underlined with comedy and so perhaps, announcement copy is the pitch.

CATCHLINES: Meet 130,000,000 John Does . . . You Could Be Any One of Them . . . You Are All of Them.

That Uncertain Feeling

F — Farce

UA (——) — 89 Minutes — Rel. Apr. 20, '41

Here is one that meanders casually in, out and around the bedroom for its allotted running time. A triangular affair, it's a case of Merle Oberon, six years married and taken for granted; Melvyn Douglas, successful insurance man and responsible for the situation at large, and Burgess Meredith, second-rate pianist on the crack-brain side. Miss Oberon and Meredith meet in a psychoanalyst's office and from that point carry on innocently enough until a divorce looms hull up on the horizon. At about that juncture, Douglas, advised to re-sell his marriage as he does his insurance, goes to work and, of course, wins out. Pretty thin stuff, with moderately amusing moments but never hilarious enough to warrant its 89 minutes. In fact, the footage is stretched tighter and tighter although it never actually bursts. Meredith is No. 1 in point of performance, while Miss Oberon and Douglas just about even it off in second place. Production values are excellent and present, from time to time, are those bits of direction long since defined as the "Lubitsch touch." The chief trouble here seems to be a lack of story to cover the entire distance.

Merle Oberon, Melvyn Douglas, Burgess Meredith, Alan Mowbray, Sig Rumann, Eve Arden, Olive Blakeney.

EXPLOITIPS: Cast names are strong; don't overlook them. The psychoanalysis angle suggests an amateur entertainer, ribbing audiences for laughs; the snoring sequence prompts the pressbook suggestion for a snoring contest. Surrealism, another element, might be good as an art angle. Woodbury face powder will advertise Miss Oberon in national magazines; local hookups could be made to follow. Clothing and hat promotions are another possibility and that goes as well for a limerick competition.

CATCHLINES: Some Fun When a Woman Gets That Uncertain Feeling . . . It's Merry and Romantic.

It's Love—With a Laugh . . . That Uncertain Feeling, a Tonic for Spring.

Sleepers West F
Melodrama

20th Century-Fox (134) 74 Minutes Rel. Mar. 14, '41

Further adventures of Michael Shayne, private detective, this is long on dialogue, short on action and story, and devoid of suspense. It classifies as no better than fair-to-middlin' as supporting fare and may prove disappointing to even the most rabid mystery fans, since there is nary a murder. Most of the picture is filmed aboard a train on which Shayne is returning to San Francisco with a girl scheduled to be the surprise witness in a murder trial. She is the only person who can clear the accused, but her testimony will involve the son of a Mr. Money Bags who is running for governor. Hence, there is an effort made to block her appearance, which simple plot is slightly complicated through the introduction of the inevitable girl reporter, an absconding husband and a train wreck. Eugene Forde directed.

Lloyd Nolan, Lynn Bari, Mary Beth Hughes, Louis Jean Heydt, Edward Brophy, Don Costello, Ben Carter.

EXPLOITIPS: Play up Lloyd Nolan as Detective Michael Shayne in this second of the Shayne series. Railroad background suggests the picture might be screened aboard a local train for dramatic critics. Dress doorman as a railroad conductor and use him as a sidewalk barker shouting "All aboard for 'Sleepers West'" and swinging a lantern. Use toy trains in store windows and lobby.

A Man Betrayed F
Drama

Republic (011) 83 Minutes Rel. Mar. 7, '41

Lacking effective execution all down the line, "A Man Betrayed" doesn't stack up. In the line of performance it seems that as long as the players delivered the dialogue word for word it was all right. The story is a disconnected affair with many loose ends trailing. They don't quite get caught up in the general drift of things. Politicos, a youthful small-town lawyer, murder, racketeering, ballot-box stuffing, romantic overtones—the latter set in night clubs and in an amusement park—are thrown into the presentation pot. The resulting dish emerges along pattern lines in which the perseverance and slick maneuvering of the aforementioned lawyer cleans up a dirty political mess, gets his girl and he takes her home.

John Wayne, Frances Dee, Edward Ellis, Wallace Ford, Ward Bond, Harold Huber.

EXPLOITIPS: A heavy barrage of advance publicity will have to be laid down to garner business for this one. The cast names, particularly the leads, have fair pulling power. To bolster this end, make sure the supporting players' faces are liberally displayed. A few ballot box gags in the lobby might draw interest. Have a few hundred newspapers printed with a superimposed headline strip calling attention to the film. Election poster gags also are called for. There is a John Wayne shirt tieup.

CATCHLINES: Political Corruption Undermines a Great Metropolis Until One Man Smashes the Machine.

The Round-Up F
Western

Paramount (4024) 90 Minutes Rel. Apr. 4, '41

Melodrama of the triangle-plot variety and with an early west locale, this should prove popular among those seeking a combination of dramatics and six-gun action, particularly inasmuch as the cast is topped by two names, Richard Dix and Preston Foster, with established followings in that market. Harry Sherman produced, and his long experience in making the top-flight westerns depicting the adventures of "Hopalong Cassidy" reflected itself in the wise administration of the increased budget allocated to this sally into a wider field. The feature is substantial in all of its productional accoutrements. The emphasis is on story and portrayals rather than standard sagebrush details, the riding, shooting Indians, etc., having been employed principally to furnish backgrounds and atmosphere. Acting chores throughout are performed in noteworthy fashion, with top honors the easy victory of Foster. Dix and Foster are buddies. Dix marries Patricia Morison, with whom Foster also is in love, and the ensuing complications find Foster making the supreme sacrifice. Lesley Selander directed.

Richard Dix, Preston Foster, Patricia Morison, Don Wilson, Ruth Donnelly, Douglass Dumbrille, Jerome Cowan.

EXPLOITIPS: The teaming of Richard Dix and Preston Foster should be marqueed for action fans, while Don Wilson, popular radio announcer, might also be given an exploitation buildup. Hold a "Round-Up" night at which patrons are invited to attend in western costumes, and have a "chuck wagon" set up in the lobby to serve pancakes, doughnuts and coffee. Make over the lobby to look like a pioneer town.

Double Date F
Comedy

Universal (——) 60 Minutes Rel. Mar. 14, '41

Unpretentious but entirely wholesome comedy of family life, which has more than its share of diverting elements, considering its modest cost and claims. The picture is admirable supporting material, creditable largely to a well-done story and workmanlike performances by Edmund Lowe, Una Merkel and Peggy Moran. No small factor, also, is a skillful directorial job by Glenn Tryon. Lowe, a widower with a snobbish son, Rand Brooks, falls in love with Miss Merkel, maiden aunt of Miss Moran. They want to marry. Learning of the impending match, the two youngsters drop all other plans, even though they dislike each other intensely, to break up the romance between their elders. Their efforts result in a stolen-car mixup and an attempted elopement, climaxed when the older couple marries and the youngsters fall in love.

Edmund Lowe, Una Merkel, Peggy Moran, Rand Brooks, Tommy Kelly, Hattie Noel, Eddy Waller, William Ruhl.

EXPLOITIPS: Edmund Lowe and Una Merkel are the selling names here, while Peggy Moran also can be cited as a possible marquee draw. The title can be tied into exploitation stunts in several ways. For example, offer special admission prices to all "double-dating" couples. Have a drugstore sponsor a "Double Date" sundae. Prepare mailing-pieces as heart-shaped folders.

CATCHLINES: A Retired Widower, He Took Another Fling at Romance, But Hay Fever Almost Snuffed Out the Flame of Love.

She Cherished Her First Love Affair . . . But Her Niece Stepped In Because She Thought Aunt Elsie's Ardour Was Too Arduous.

Nation's First Board Hearing in Boston

dishes and crockery, which are given out to each patron.

"At, or about, the time the complainant started to operate this theatre, it made extensive improvements at a cost which I understand was around $16,000. It is a reputable theatre. Mr. Gold, who is the head of the organization, is an experienced man with more than ten years' experience in the business.

"We feel, therefore," Ryan said, "that the exhibitor has reasonable minimum standards of theatre operation and is reputable and responsible. I do not understand there is any contest as to that."

"Let me stop you there," Brown broke in. "Is there any contest that the exhibitor does not fulfill the requirements of the consent decree?"

Presents Consent to Award

Edward H. McClennan, chief defense counsel who has been pitted against Ryan in the majority of the motion picture anti-trust actions heard in Boston, then arose from his seat at the arbitrator's right.

"We are not in a position to concede it," McClennan said, "as we are not in a position to concede some of the other statements which have been made. But I can briefly cover the situation by handing to Your Honor the Consent to Award which I now hand you."

McClennan then passed to Brown a Consent to Award by Paramount, Warner and RKO. He then introduced C. F. Young of Dwight, Harris, Koegel & Caskey of the New York Bar who passed to the arbitrator in behalf of 20th-Fox a similar document.

"I didn't want to interrupt you," Brown apologized. "I didn't know it was in the offing."

"While this is a Consent to Award," Ryan said, "it reserves the right (which right it would have, of course, after the pictures of the distributors consenting have been shown in the theatre) to institute a further arbitration proceeding to be relieved of the award.

"That, of course, is a right they would have later, if they so desired, after pictures were shown. I wish merely to put on the record at this time the situation of the plaintiff so that if at any later time a proceeding is brought, Your Honor would then have that situation in mind."

Brown nodded.

"I am sorry to have interrupted you," he said.

"That is perfectly all right," Ryan said. "There is one other distributor named here, other than the four for which the consents have been filed, Loew's, Inc. That company made an arrangement with the complainant for licensing of five films, to some extent on an experimental basis. Therefore, these incorporators are being withdrawn from the arbitration proceedings."

"I should have said," put in McClennan, "that Mr. Ryan this morning has been furnished with copies of the two consents which were handed to Your Honor."

"Well, now," said Brown, "are there any distributors that have not consented?"

"Only the Loew's, Inc., against which the proceeding has been withdrawn so far as we may withdraw it," Ryan answered.

"Is there anyone else who cares to say anything in the proceedings?" Brown asked. He looked around inquiringly. No one spoke. "I suppose, all the parties having agreed, there is very little to do but to award in accordance with the Consent to Award. If there is nothing further to report at this time, the proceedings will be adjourned."

Brown signed and sealed his award by 11:00 a. m.

"In accordance with the consents filed with the Arbitrator," he tersely decreed, "I direct the above named distributors to offer their pictures for licenses to said Paulstan, Inc., for exhibition in the Park Theatre to the extent of pictures released for exhibition up to July 13, 1942 inclusive, on a run to be designated by said distributors and upon terms and conditions fixed by said distributors which are not calculated to defeat the purpose of Section 6 of the Consent Decree."

Negotiates for Product

Gold, that very afternoon, entered negotiations with 20th-Fox and RKO for product. Norman Ayers, Warner branch manager, declined to talk deals before being advised officially of the award. Arthur K. Howard, business manager of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., has been sitting in with Gold in many of his buying discussions.

The entire affair was as much a victory for the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., as for Gold himself. This Allied organization, which Gold joined only a few months ago, was behind his putting the matter in AAA hands. It is also backing Abe Garbose, only other local pleader to date, and has a number of other cases in the works.

"This office stands ready to prepare complaints for presentation to the arbitration tribunal and to represent all members who wish it," Howard commented. "The importance of filing complaints should not be overlooked by anyone. In order to get a true picture of the effectiveness of the consent decree, the department of justice must, at the end of the three-year trial period, have a complete picture of the relief gained by independent exhibitors under the setup."

Howard advised members not to conciliate privately, averring that in most instances "you will settle for less than you will get from arbitration."

J. Noble Braden, executive secretary of the AAA, attended the Boston hearing and left the same day to be present in Chicago for the country's second case. Samuel S. Perry, eastern supervisor for the AAA, was also at hand. Only other spectators besides the press at the lightly attended hearing were Tom Bailey, Edward X. Callahan and Harry Alexander of 20th-Fox and Ross Cropper, RKO Boston branch manager.

"We're Effective Anyway," Lobby Charge Retort

NEW YORK—"At least we're effective," is the cryptic and unofficial rejoinder of the MPPDA to the lobbying activities charged against the Hays office in the TNEC report in Washington of Donald C. Blaisdell, who recommended federal registration of all lobbyists and full publicizing of their operations.

Only when Congress exercises its investigating power does the public begin to have access to the facts about legislative lobbying, the report asserts, accompanying Blaisdell's contention that the industry is one in which the producing and distributing functions are to a large extent combined in a field which is dominated by a few large corporations.

"The smaller producing companies are compelled to permit 'the Big Eight' to distribute their films in order to have them shown at the larger theatres," he adds. "In addition to this control, the movie industry exercises other controls in the form of block booking and blind selling. The producers sell their films in blocks to the independent exhibitor. In order to obtain the outstanding films the exhibitor must buy several other films which are often inferior."

Since 1928, the report continues, independent exhibitors have been seeking congressional aid in solving their problem, but have been confronted with the lobbying activities of the MPPDA.

Urges Managers Get Extended Runs

NEW YORK—Declaring "big attractions are only scratching the surface of possible theatre attendance in first run houses," John J. O'Connor, general manager of the RKO circuit, exhorts all theatre managers in a letter "to get the extended runs which producers have warned us must be obtained." He adds that "the means or method" by which the runs are to be obtained the producers "have not suggested but left to us as exhibitors to find and carry out."

Obviously showing displeasure with the practices of some subsequent run operators, O'Connor has this to say to his managers:

"It is fully realized that in the struggle for patronage, second and subsequent runs are violating the rule against advertising before prior runs and we are up against vicious trade practices of all kinds, such as propaganda to the effect 'wait and see it here at lower prices;' dish giveaways; Bank Nights and Bingos. We also know the parking problem is acute for most downtown houses and the further inducement of two 'A' pictures is prevalent in many second and subsequent run houses throughout the country."

Discuss Continuation Of Rogers Memorial

NEW YORK—Discussions are under way with the Will Rogers Memorial Commission for an extension of the five-year contract whereby the industry will continue its support to the organization for another such period. The current agreement ends this year.

It is estimated $150,000 is necessary for the annual operation of the Saranac institution which also maintains a number of beds at a local hospital, in addition to other benefits for industry unfortunates in need of medical care. Annually, a drive is conducted in theatres throughout the country for contributions.

Industry executives are desirous of continuing support to the institution which has been running efficiently ever since the industry became active in it. It is felt it would be a mistake to withdraw from the work and it is with this view in mind that negotiations for a new contract are now being held.

Great Exhibitor Response To Greek Aid Campaign

NEW YORK—The Greek War Relief theatre campaign is eliciting greater exhibitor response than had been predicted, according to Gradwell L. Sears and John H. Harris, chairmen, respectively, of the distributors' and exhibitors' committees, who estimate more than 6,000 theatres will participate in the campaign and over 800 situations will hold midnight shows from March 25 to 30.

Among the cities which are planning extensive campaigns are Detroit, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Atlanta. These and other cities have secured the cooperation of officials in proclaiming special Greek Aid Weeks.

Paramount has 700 prints of "Greece Fights Back" ready for immediate distribution. This one-reeler, produced by the March of Time, will be sold and all proceeds, without reduction, are to go to the fund.

Approve U Contracts

WILMINGTON, DEL.—Common stockholders of Universal Pictures Co. at their annual meeting here approved, as was expected, the new seven-year contracts for the seven chief executive officers of the company. Holders representing 231,427 shares voted in favor of the pacts, while 100 were against the agreements. All directors were re-elected.

Officers Re-Elected

NEW YORK—Universal's complete roster of officers was re-elected by the board at a meeting Monday.

Heywood-Wakefield Ups Wages

BOSTON—The Heywood-Wakefield Co., theatre chair manufacturers, have granted a five per cent wage increase to their 14,000 odd employes as a result of "improved business conditions."

Greek Drive Moves Up Another Notch—

Made by the March of Time and distributed by Paramount, "Greece Fights Back" got its official start at a cocktail party in New York where the one-reeler was screened for New York film men for the first time. Among the attendance were those represented in this gallery. From top to bottom: Louis de Rochemont, the producer; Nicholas Lely, Greek consul in New York; George P. Skouras, very active in the campaign, and Gradwell L. Sears, chairman of the distribution committee. Then, Sam Dembow jr. and Leonard Goldenson of the Paramount theatre division, Martin Quigley and Joseph Bernhard, general manager of the Warner circuit. Next Red Kann, George A. Smith, western sales manager for Paramount, and Neil F. Agnew, vice-president and general sales manager of that company. Finally, Oscar A. Morgan, shorts and newsreel sales manager for Paramount, and A. J. Richard, editor of Paramount News.

sulted in real economic benefits to the consumer. Such is not the case, it is concluded, in the film industry.

Citing the ability of United Artists to operate with only a limited number of releases a year, the report raises the question whether a larger number of producing units, each making a smaller number of films, would increase costs of production or lower the standard of film entertainment.

"Hollywood has been the target of repeated charges of extravagance and economic waste," it is pointed out. "It is unnecessary to detail these here. But inefficiency or extravagance of the type ordinarily alleged is seldom possible except in very large organizations. One must admit the possibility, then, that unit costs of production might actually be less if the producing companies were of smaller average size."

"No Saving" in Concentration

On the other hand, in the distribution branch, the report admits that there is a real cost advantage in having each distributor handle as large a number of pictures as possible. This was qualified, however, with the statement that distribution costs in general are a rather small factor in the industry.

At the same time, it is charged "the concentration existing in the production and distribution branches of the industry has permitted the concerted use of practices which insure a return from the consumer on all products, regardless of quality." The large units are generally unresponsive to consumer pressure and the economic forces tending to produce steady improvement in the goods offered have to some extent been vitiated.

"For the production and distribution branches of the industry together, then, there is no strong evidence to show that the existing degree of concentration has resulted in economic savings for the consumer," it is concluded.

Theatre Chains "Cost" Consumers

Concentration also is an important factor in the exhibition branch, the report continues. "Individual theatres have been combined under common ownership and welded into huge chains of enormous pooled buying power. The economic strength of these chains has been used to enhance their profits and extend their sway at the expense of consumers and the smaller elements in the industry. Various practices have been developed and used when necessary to destroy the possibility of successful competition. Overbuying of films, unfair and unwarranted clearance and zoning agreements, and a variety of other practices have been actively employed in this way.

"These practices represent more, however, than a simple abuse of the power conferred by size," it is charged. "They form a part of the larger problem of local monopoly in the exhibition field. Distributors of motion pictures frequently describe themselves as wholesalers. By inference, exhibitors are to be likened to retailers. On closer examination, however, the parallel vanishes. Virtually any retail article sold at a nominal price may be marketed in a variety of retail outlets. Motion pictures, on the other hand, can be offered to the public only in motion picture theatres. Each theatre represents a large investment and, unlike the usual retail establishment, it can be used only for a single specialized purpose.

"Control of all theatres in a locality, therefore, gives the possessor the means of monopoly."

On Local Monopoly

Countering contentions that anyone is free to construct a new theatre and that there can be no local monopoly since inordinate profits would draw competition, the report points out that frequently suitable pictures are not available. That factor alone is sufficient to deter investment.

"One may inquire whether real economies to the consumer may not result from chain operation," it is observed. "The most significant answer to this question is given by the fact that acquisition of a theatre by a chain is seldom followed by a reduction in the charged admission price. Rather, the reverse has more commonly been the case. The spread of chain exhibition organizations has accomplished a steady increase in the number of local exhibition monopolies, the effect of which has been gradually to strip the consumer of the protection formerly accorded him by competition."

Point Up Decree Opposition

In the discussion of conditions and practices in the industry, the monograph offers little that has not been presented before, its observations being based upon testimony taken at Congressional hearings on block booking, the hearings of the NRA and the various anti-trust suits.

It does, however, analyze the consent decree, pointing out that when it was offered to the court, it was opposed by representatives "of virtually every important exhibitor association in the industry and of the three non-consenting defendants."

The stipulation in the decree that it does not determine that the defendants have been guilty of violation of the anti-trust laws, it is declared, "insures that any proof which the department of justice may have had of evidence of violation of the anti-trust laws by the five major companies will not be presented to the court and will not become available to the general public or to the Congress. Moreover, any evidence which might indicate that the problems of the industry cannot be met within the existing framework of the anti-trust laws is likewise not disclosed. The efforts of the department of justice in gathering and sifting information over a period of years are thus nullified. Neither the Congress nor other interested parties are able to draw on this experience in order to appraise: (a) The extent or validity of complaints of combination in the industry; (b) the extent to which a consent decree will correct these conditions; (c) the extent to which additional or different remedies are necessary to restore a healthier competitive situation."

Also as a result of the decree, it is held, the government case against the "little three" is much weaker.

Exhibitors will find little relief through the application of the five-film block, it was indicated, and while the forcing of shorts is prohibited "there is no assurance that a distributor will view sympathetically the feature-picture requirements of an exhibitor who has failed to contract for short subjects."

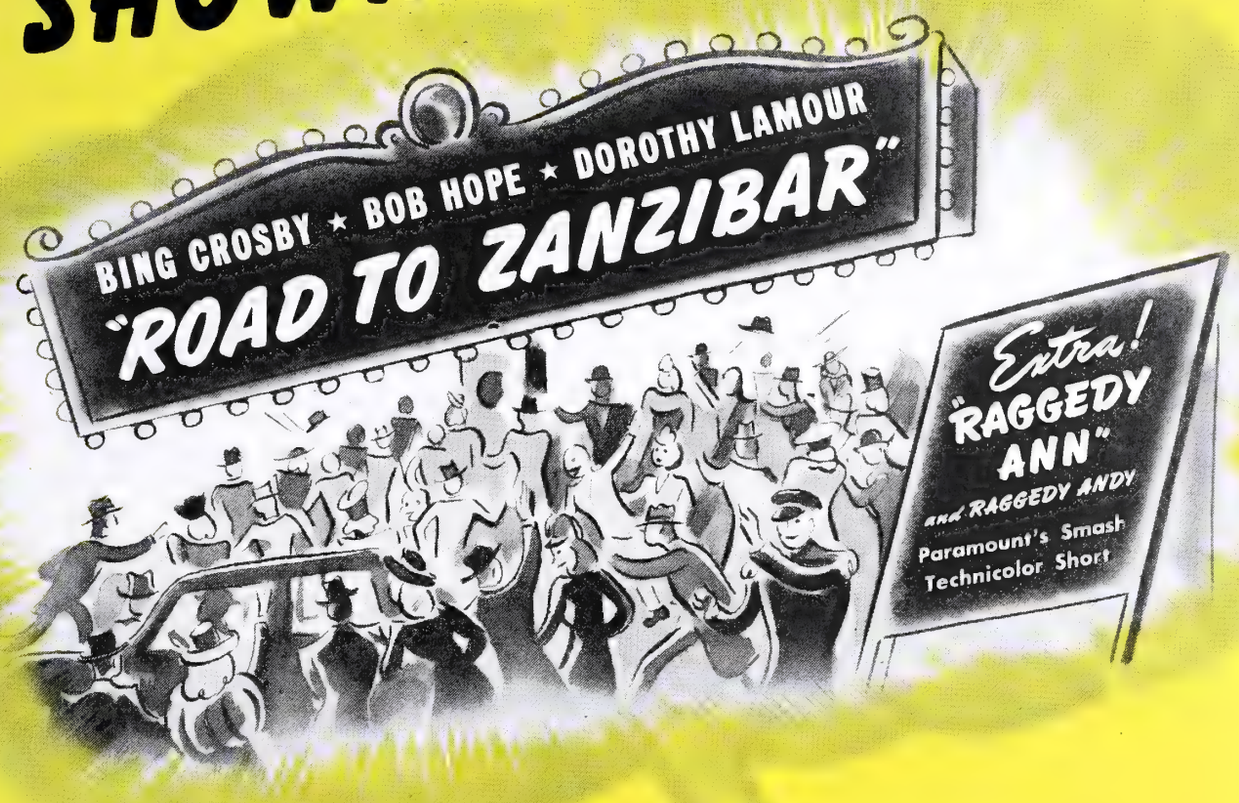
Limitation of contracts to exchange districts, it is held, is a "long way short" of requiring bargaining for films on a local basis, and the provisions respecting further acquisition of theatres are "vague if not meaningless."

"Readers of economic reports of this type have come to expect a diagnosis of sickness, to be followed by the author's pet patent medicine for the cure of all troubles," the monograph concludes. "In the present case the authors are content to indicate the cause without attempting to make a sale on some particular cure."

TNEC Challenged By Justice Dep't

WASHINGTON—Department of justice officials challenge the TNEC report on the industry, taking issue with the monograph's findings on the decree.

It was felt among those who worked on the decree that the monograph was a plea for anti-block booking legislation, in that it found little or nothing in the decree worthy of commendation.



It was indicated that a formal reply might be issued, presenting the department's side of the argument, directed especially toward answering the charge that the arbitration system had been adopted so as to relieve the department of the burden of enforcement.

A Notice With Report

The monograph was written by the TNEC staff. Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold is department of justice member of the TNEC. The report was published with a notice by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, chairman of the committee, that its issuance "in no way signifies nor implies assent to, or approval of, any of the facts, opinion, or recommendations, nor acceptance thereof in whole or in part by the members of the TNEC, individually or collectively."

Principal author of the report, Daniel Bertrand, was with the NRA during the period of the amusement codes and later wrote an analytical report on the codes and their operation in which he was highly critical of the integrated companies and the business policies of the industry. There was some question in Washington whether the undertaking of a study of the industry by the TNEC had the approval of the department of justice member, and it is pointed out that it is one of a number of subjects which the TNEC itself did not go into, for one reason or another.

NT to Decentralize Buying Shortly Now

NEW YORK—Decentralization of National Theatres buying will take definite shape within the next few weeks, it was indicated with the return of Spyros Skouras, William T. Powers, Milton Hossfeld, Aubrey Schenck, Harry T. Cox, Pete Lundgren and John Healy from Arrowhead Springs where divisional managers held an annual meeting.

Several names were mentioned at the sessions as likely possibilities to transfer their activities from the home office in New York to the field. However, during the next three or four weeks Skouras will go into the matter more thoroughly and decide the buyers to be shifted to key operating points.

The new plan would be to ease buying under the decree's limit of five in a block. John F. Caskey and Fred Pride of Dwight, Harris, Koegel & Caskey spent three days explaining various phases of the document as they apply to operations. Suggestions for a handbook were made by the theatre men and these are being correlated for the manual.

$30,000 in Drive Prizes

It was decided, also, to hold the third annual Spyros Skouras Showmanship Campaign for 13 weeks starting Easter Week. More than $30,000, the highest ever, will be distributed in awards among managers and district heads. Under the plan set up, each theatre will be classified as A, B, C or D and compete among themselves, rather than by districts, as in the drive recently completed.

While nothing has yet been definitely decided, the old age pension plan was discussed and left in the hands of a committee headed by Cox, treasurer of the parent company.

Louis B. Mayer and Hal Roach were the only two outside speakers. The M-G-M production head informed the theatre men that come what may in the next year the company was geared to go ahead making outstanding pictures. He added it is the intention of eliminating "B" productions entirely from the program and hoped this would be achieved in 1941-42.

Roach, who some weeks ago spoke to Paramount theatre partners at a Chicago session, sounded out the National Theatres group on views for his contemplated four-reel features.

Edward Zabel, assistant to Skouras, did not return, having gone to Palm Springs for a vacation. Irving Barry, short subjects buyer, remained on the coast until Sunday to line up talent for the Greek War Relief shows. The first home office contingent to return were Powers, Hossfeld, Schenck and Lundgren, who flew in Tuesday. Skouras, Cox and Healy arrived by plane Wednesday.

Other district and divisional heads returned to their headquarters the early part of the week, as did Caskey and Pride.

"That Hamilton Woman!"

New York—An air of the distinctive and the distinguished swirls all through and around "That Hamilton Woman!" and the credit for the stunning results must be divided in a number of directions.

This story, romanticized of course, of the affair of Lord Nelson and Lady Hamilton is blessed with a fine treatment and splendid writing from the hands and minds of Walter Reisch and R. C. Sherriff. It has been directed intelligently and cannily by Alexander Korda whose best picture this is. Or, certainly, his best since "Henry the Eighth."

It stars Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier, supported by an excellent cast which includes Alan Mowbray, Gladys Cooper, Henry Wilcoxon, Sara Allgood and Heather Angel, but definitely it stars the enormously capable Miss Leigh. Once more she is so capable and so good a performer here that there should be no future surprises at all if her Emma Hamilton is compared favorably and minutely with her Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind." Olivier, too, is splendid, but nothing near or far in this attraction succeeds in dimming Miss Leigh's shining work.

History parades all through "That Hamilton Woman!" Napoleon is astride Europe and England twice is threatened. In fact, the two principal characters are out of the history books, yet what Korda has done very well indeed, and wisely at that, is to make this the story of a man and a woman. They were affected by history. In fact, they helped to pattern it, but this, nevertheless, is their own story. This is why the film holds so well together dramatically and why it is moving and entertainingly solid.

If BOXOFFICE indulged in star ratings, the decision would be easy. Four for "That Hamilton Woman!" —K.

Bonus for 10 Men Totals $1,406,541

NEW YORK—In addition to normal salaries to officers and board members for the year ending Aug. 31, 1940, Loew's paid an aggregate of $1,406,541 to ten men in the form of bonuses, it is shown in the company's report to SEC. The report lists those only who received bonuses of $30,000 or more and is broken down as follows:

Louis B. Mayer, $541,048; Nicholas M. Schenck, $188,881; J. Robert Rubin, $128,070; David Bernstein, $113,329; E. J. Mannix, $96,356; Sam Katz, $96,356; Hunt Stromberg, $72,267; Al Lichtman, $72,267; Bernard H. Hyman, $49,789, and Benjamin Thau, $48,178.

Mayer's total income was $697,049 as against $688,369 the previous fiscal year. Schenck's total was $318,882, and Stromberg's $332,267.

The report also states 12 directors, unnamed, received a total of $1,271,598, and 11 officers, other than those who are directors, also unnamed, received an aggregate of $949,131. The total to all employes who received in excess of $20,000 numbered 228 for a total remuneration of $16,104,869, the report reveals.

The net amount of the company's assets in all foreign countries is given at $14,456,999, of which net current assets amounted to $3,168,544 for the year ended Aug. 31, 1940. Cash in foreign countries, all subject in some degree to export restrictions, totaled $4,399,302. Up to January 2, the report adds, "$1,275,283 has been received in the United States."

For all productions released on and after Sept. 1, 1939, cost has been amortized in accordance with a revised weekly table, after apportioning costs on a revised basis of 75 per cent to domestic, including Canada, and 25 per cent to foreign. "Through such revision," the report asserts, "operations for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1940 have been charged with approximately $3,150,000 more film amortization expense than would have resulted had the table not been changed." The previous amortization table was based on 65 per cent to domestic, including Canada, and 35 per cent to foreign.

Under the heading "Operating and General Expense." the report lists an expenditure of $9,061,194 as "outside producers' share of film rentals." The bulk of this figure presumably is David O. Selznick's share on "Gone With the Wind."

Legion Approves 528 Of 539 in Year

NEW YORK—The National Legion of Decency approved 528 features of the 539 domestic and foreign films it reviewed from November, 1939, to November, 1940, according to its annual report. Of the films reviewed, 497 were domestically produced while 42 were foreign. The organization condemned 10 features, while one was placed in a "separately classified" category.

A breakdown shows 271 were rated as unobjectionable for general patronage; 210 were unobjectionable for adults, while 47 were rated as objectionable in part.

The report states there has been an increase in "indecencies" in films "not only quantitively . . . but qualitatively in terms of the growing boldness of producers in the choice of film treatment and story material."

From November, 1937, to November, 1940, the report declares there has been an increase of three per cent in the number of pictures rated objectionable in part; five per cent in those considered unobjectionable for adults, and a decline of nine per cent in those regarded as unobjectionable for general patronage.

Of the foreign pictures reviewed, 12 were English; 21 French; two Irish; one each Italian and Mexican; four Spanish and one Yiddish.

NEW YORK — Frederick L. Herron, MPPDA foreign manager, has been called from the army reserve list to active military service with the adjutant general's office in Washington. Carl E. Milliken, MPPDA secretary, takes over Herron's duties.

9,000 Theatres in Defense Program

NEW YORK—More than 9,000 theatres are in line with the Motion Picture Committee Cooperating for National Defense and 3,000 more are expected to join up, according to Harry Brandt who has been active in perfecting the field organization among theatremen.

The committee is an all-out industry effort to work hand and glove with Washington in furthering the defense program through the production, distribution and exhibition of films illustrative of the effort. The week saw an expansion of the original committee to embrace all branches of the business. Francis S. Harmon, defense coordinator by title, declared all members of various committees had agreed to serve. On the national committee are these 30 men:

Functioning for this group is a national coordinating committee of which Schaefer is chairman and Harmon, coordinator. Its members include Balaban, Joseph H. Hazen, William C. Michel, Schenck, Walter Vincent, Robert B. Wilby, Nathan Yamins, Joseph Bernhard, Freeman, E. B. Hatrick, Martin Quigley and William A. Scully.

The theatre division has Bernhard, general manager of the Warner circuit as chairman and E. V. Richards of the Saenger circuit, New Orleans, as co-chairman. Its members include A. H. Blank, Brandt, Si Fabian, Harris, Kuykendall, Charles C. Moskowitz, Sam E. Morris, John J. O'Connor, R. J. O'Donnell, Spyros Skouras, Wilby and Yamins. This committee, in turn, breaks down into three sub-committees:

Coordinating: Wilby, chairman; Blank, Moskowitz, Richards and Skouras.

Organization: Brandt, chairman; Harris, Kuykendall, O'Connor and Yamins.

Field Organization: John Balaban, E. C. Beatty, Carl Buermele, William F. Crockett, Jay Emanuel, Fabian, Harold J. Fitzgerald, John J. Friedl, Julius C. Gordon, L. C. Publicity: Oscar A. Doob, chairman; Harry Brand, Harry Goldberg, Claude F. Lee, Harry Mandel and Aubrey Schenck.

Finance: Fabian, chairman and treasurer; Yamins, Leonard Goldenson, Kuykendall and Spyros Skouras.

Chairman of the production division is Freeman, vice-president of Paramount. His group has this personnel:

Sam J. Briskin, E. J. Mannix, Sol Lesser, Hal B. Wallis, Wanger, and Darryl F. Zanuck, producers; Jack Chertok and Gordon Hollingshead, shorts; Capra, Screen Directors' Guild; Arnold, Screen Actors' Guild; Gibney, Screen Writers' Guild; Fred Beetson, M. P. Producers Ass'n; Richard Day, art direction; Nathan Levinson and Edward Hanson, sound; John Arnold, cameramen; John Nickolaus, laboratories; Alfred Newman, music; Charles Boren and Fred Myers, industrial relations; Howard Strickling and Robert Taplinger, public relations; Mandel Silberberg, counsel, and Jock Lawrence, secretary.

W. A. Scully, vice-president and general manager of Universal, is chairman of the distributors' division. His committee is composed of Neil F. Agnew, George Dembow, Ned E. Depinet, William F. Rodgers, Gradwell L. Sears and Herman Wobber.

Edgar B. Hatrick of News of the Day is chairman of the newsreel division with these running mates: Louis de Rochemont, Thomas Mead, Albert J. Richard, Walter C. Ament and Truman H. Talley.

Martin Quigley of Quigley Publications heads the trade paper division as chairman. His associates in that group are Jack Alicoate, Film Daily; Jay Emanuel, The Exhibitor; John C. See Quick Passage Anti-Decree Bill

MINNEAPOLIS—Observers predict passage within three weeks of Northwest Allied's bill to vitiate the consent decree. Following similar committee action in the lower house, the senate general legislation committee recommended passage by a vote of 8 to 0.

The measure compels distributors to offer their full line of product and grant a minimum cancellation of 20 per cent. It also prohibits enforced sale of short subjects. M-G-M, 20th-Fox, RKO, UA and Warner have been actively opposing it.

Legion "Hands Off" in State Legislation

NEW YORK—The policy of the National Legion of Decency has not changed in respect to interference with state legislation, Mary Harden Looram, secretary, informs BOXOFFICE, reiterating a stand taken earlier in disavowing the action of Helen Lynch, representative of the Archdiocese Council of Youth, in supporting the anti-blocks of five bill introduced there by Northwest Allied.

Mrs. Looram made the point when asked to comment on the report that the Rev. R. G. Bandas, legion director of the Minneapolis and St. Paul archdiocese, had approved the action taken by Miss Lynch when she endorsed the bill despite the "hands-off" policy of national headquarters here. "The National Legion of Decency has not stepped into that legislation and any developments in Minneapolis are purely of a local character," Mrs. Looram declared.

Studies Detroit Motion

DETROIT—Federal court here has under advisement a plea by Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan for dismissal of the Midwest suit against it. Ground for the motion is a challenge to jurisdiction and the charge that plaintiff had not proved "conspiracy."

Film Slot Machines Losing as 'Menace'

in Chicago, using product purchased on the open market. Not since last September, however, has the company made any announcements as to its intended plans, and there is no indication, insofar as local sources of information are aware, that any further plans are being cogitated. Spokesmen here for Orsatti proclaim ignorance of the status of the company.

Having manufactured 32 reels during the past year and a half, Neil McGuire Productions ranks among the most active producers of films for the juke-boxes. McGuire opened a new studio about six weeks ago but is, at present, idle. For a time his product was being consumed by Phonofilm, an organization with about 50 machines in operation along the Pacific Coast, but which has not been active of late.

McGuire and other producers also have booked product with Meter-Movies, San Francisco concern with some 50 machines on the commercial market. The company was organized in January, 1940, but has not manufactured any projectors for several months.

Only other producer who is either currently active, or has definite plans at present, is the Papalini Film Exchange, distributor of foreign films on the Pacific Coast, which has made five subjects and intends to produce three more, for distribution in the open market.

The list of casualties includes:

A company organized by Cecil B. DeMille, Paramount producer-director, and William H. Pine, his associate producer, which announced plans to acquire studio space and begin production on an ambitious schedule. No further steps were ever taken, and Pine has now become a partner in a feature production unit turning out films for Paramount release, a fact which spokesmen declare automatically precludes him from pursuing the juke-box enterprise.

Visograph, the incorporation of which, late last fall, was accompanied by spectacular promises and plans for producing both projectors and film. Shortly after its organization Rudy Vallee was elected president, and the company made four machines and one reel of eight subjects. Shortly thereafter Vallee resigned, and Visograph, now headed by William C. Kemball, is inactive.

Edgar Bergen, who produced four subjects starring Charlie McCarthy, not yet marketed, and then halted operations.

Television Film Corp., which made two reels under the supervision of Dan Milner last summer.

Cinematone, a laboratory and process company, which announced plans to manufacture automatic projectors but, so far, has placed nothing on the market.

Mills Planning 18,000 "Jukes" This Year

CHICAGO—Herbert Mills, general superintendent and factory manager of the Mills Novelty Co. here, announces that the company plans to produce 18,000 Panoram film machines for the Mills-Roosevelt Soundies this year. Mills reports that the first factory order for 5,000 Panoram machines is now coming off the production line.

Cabinets are being built at the local Mills factory. The entire sound system is manufactured by RCA.

Columbia Net Increase For Last Half of 1940

NEW YORK—Columbia reports a net profit increase of $91,424 for the last six months of 1940 as compared with the same six months of the preceding year. Net for the last half of '40 is $307,006 after all charges and provisions for taxes. The comparable period showed $215,582.

Harry Cohn, president, points this out: "Columbia does not include in its figures any revenues until they have been converted into dollars. For example, in Japan, Spain and Denmark where the corporation is doing a substantial business, it is impossible to convert local monies into dollars. These returns are not included and, furthermore, such assets as are held by local operating companies have been completely charged off."

CASE NO. 2—Filed February 13, disposed of March 10 by withdrawal from arbitration tribunal. John H. Taylor, operator of the Charles, La Plata, Md. With: Paramount, RKO, Columbia, Loew's, 20th Century-Fox. Taylor protested 14 days clearance held by Marlboro, Marlboro, Md., operated by Sidney Lust. The latter agreed that in cases where he holds up dating of pictures when they become officially available this shall constitute time off his clearance over the Charles.

Baltimore Arbitration Hearing on April 8

WASHINGTON—With one of its three arbitration cases disposed of by a mutual consent agreement and a second ready for hearing March 25, the Washington arbitration board is preparing to speed the third on its way, announcing the selection of Sefton Darr, Washington attorney, as arbitrator and tentatively setting April 8 as the date for a hearing.

Darr will arbitrate the complaint brought by the Westway, Baltimore, against Loew's, Inc., Vitagraph and 20th Century-Fox, protesting the 14-day clearance granted by them to the Edgewood Theatre.

On March 25, E. B. Prettyman, former District of Columbia corporation counsel, will preside at a hearing on the complaint of the Walbrook Theatre, Baltimore, protesting the seven-day clearance granted by Vitagraph and 20th Century-Fox to the Ambassador, Forest and Gwynn theatres.

No further complaints have been filed with the Washington arbitration board, but it is understood a number have been prepared for submission but are being held to see how the first cases are handled. So far as could be learned, they all involve clearance, the only point raised in the three complaints so far filed.

First Board Appeal Due From Chicago

CHICAGO—The nation's first appeal from local arbitration boards is in the making following a ruling in the Chicago tribunal adverse to the Ken Theatre in its complaint against Paramount, RKO, 20th-Fox and the Schoenstadt circuit.

Alvin Landis, plaintiff counsel, says that an appeal will be filed Tuesday from the decision of Arbitrator Charles P. Megan dismissing the complaint "for want of jurisdiction under Section VIII of the consent decree." The verdict upheld the Schoenstadt contention that the complaint involved run under Section X and not clearance under Section VII. Board jurisdiction under Section X will not begin until September 1.

The arbitration demand, filed February 18, asked that the Ken be allowed to show Paramount, RKO and 20th-Fox product in the second week of Chicago general release along with Schoenstadt's Shakespeare and ahead of the chain's Pix. The latter now plays in the third week.

Two Clearance Plaints Are Filed in Albany

ALBANY—Two complaints involving clearance have been filed with the American Arbitration Ass'n office here by Alec Papayanakos, operating the American in Canton.

One complaint is against RKO and the other against Warner. Both ask relief from clearance extended the Strand and Pontiac in Ogdensburg, as against the American in Canton. The two Ogdensburg houses are operated by the Schine circuit.

His Job to "Gorify American Ghoul"

NEW YORK—Arthur Mayer, who is dead serious in his operation of the Rialto, knows the value of advertising as well as, if not better than, most Broadway operators, because, as he put it himself at an Ampa luncheon meeting, "Our policy is to Gorify the American Ghoul."

Perhaps that's what led him to tell the roomful of producer advertising executives that "if the Rialto waited until it got good pictures to advertise, we would never advertise at all." Mayer waxed facetious over his unique situation which, in his own words, is his claim to be "America's leading expert in selling bad pictures."

It seems very much in order, in fact, to reproduce here just a few of Mayer's witticisms. Being a Harvard graduate he takes oral liberties few others would dare to, which is readily discernible, as follows:

"Glamorous Ancestry"

"Talking of ladies going to questionable places like the Rialto reminds me of an actor's remark about his ex-wife. 'She was the sort of girl who would only go to places where her mother would go—and her mother would go anywhere'.

"I have been called a tradesman in terror. I sell, however, horror, not hardware, thrills not pills, blood curdles not ladies' girdles. Department store advertising was recently recommended to you as a guide and model. We of the theatre business, we showmen, have an older tradition and a more glamorous ancestry. We are of the circus breed. From Barnum to Brandt, we smell of sawdust and tan bark. We learned our three 'R's' of exploitation from Reichenbach, Roxy and Riesenfeld.

"Experiment in Creation"

"Thank Zukor an Zanuck, we are not selling a standardized product. The quality of pig iron, unlike mercy, can be strained and definitely ascertained in advance, but every picture, even the sluffs I play, is an experiment in creation and an adventure in transplanting some man's dream or, for that matter, some man's nightmare, to the screen."

Mayer, in his more serious moments, declared his belief that "we must inevitably sell our product, whether we personally consider it good or bad, with warmth and color, with vivid phrases and glowing adjectives. I believe our patrons have been conditioned to expect such advertising and will respond to nothing else."

The Rialto operator was frank in his disagreement with W. G. Van Schmus, a recent Ampa speaker-guest, who advocated conservatism in advertising, when he said: "It is easy for an operator showing approximately 20 hand-picked pictures a year to say that theatre men should carefully discriminate in their advertising between the good and the bad. What does such an operation really know about pictures—the pictures that 15,000 theatres around the country have to play weekly? Such advice is of absolutely no benefit to the average exhibitor who formerly had to buy five blocks of 50 pictures each and play them and sell them, and now, thanks to Thurman Benedict Arnold, has the inestimable privilege of buying 50 blocks of five pictures each and playing them and selling them. In the process of liberation by the department of justice, we have lost our cancellation privilege, but we still have our chains."

Mayer was introduced by Louis Pollock, eastern director of publicity and advertising for Universal, who, in the spirit of the occasion, had plenty of unkind things to say about the guest speaker. However, the piece de resistance was a bit of inventive horse-play Pollock devised when, in the course of ripping apart the Rialto's nightmarish offerings, he asked if there might not be a Rialto patron in the room. Up stepped a lad who delivered as amusing a dish of oral and graphic cliches of typical Rialto product as any comedy producer would be proud to have under contract. He was Jack Guilford, star of the current "Meet the People."

Agnes Mengel Grew, director of the Women's Institute of Audience Reaction, urged a closer study of women's opinions in film tastes. She offered the results of some polls to illustrate her point that women, generally speaking, would "like to see some changes in entertainment."

Among the guests who took bows were Barney Balaban, Lou Phillips, Walter Cokell, Boris Morros, Leon Netter, Leonard Goldenson, Marty Mullin, Sam Pinanski, Joseph Bernhard, Alec Moss, George Smith, Eddie Klein, Charles Prutzman, Arthur Israel and Bill Sussman.

The next meeting will be April 10, with Ned E. Depinet as guest speaker.

"That Day We Are Sunk"

New York—As Arthur Mayer, Rialto operator, says he understands it, "the object of advertising is to make the reader or passerby believe that you have something preferable to what he has. Most theatres have to sell from 100 to 300 pictures annually." He said so in a speech before an Ampa luncheon group, adding: "They cannot do this with under-emphasis or apologizing for three-quarters of their product. The day that advertisers in this industry stop believing that every motion picture is by its very nature the greatest of all forms of entertainment, that day we are all sunk. The day that every producer, whether he is making an 'A' picture or 'B' picture or an 'XYZ' picture, regains that faith, that day our worst troubles are over."

Second "Dictator" Week Is Big Philly Noise

PHILADELPHIA—"The Great Dictator," in its second week at the Stanton on a popular-price return engagement, is netting one of the biggest grosses the house has ever had. Next in this week's hit parade is "Strawberry Blonde" at the Fox. The other houses were at par, or slightly below, hit by the sudden and rip-roaring return of winter, which seemed about finished during several warm days at the beginning of the week.

Broadway's Grosses Bow to Blizzard

NEW YORK—At very best, the week on Broadway was dull. At worst, it was downright bad. Two reasons are advanced: Only fair-to-middlin' product and a snowless blizzard that rode in from the west Monday and raised havoc with everything in sight.

Despite the fanfare accompanying "Meet John Doe," with a simultaneous day-and-date run at the Warner-operated Hollywood and the Rivoli, the film isn't pulling as expected. In fact, the weakness in its draw is seen in the reduction of admissions at both houses from 55 cents to 40 cents for opening, and from 77 to 65 cents between 1 p. m. and 6 p. m. The 99 cents evening scale remains. The Rivoli drew a fair $35,000, while the Hollywood just managed a poor $18,000.

"Private Secretary" Holds Washington Top Spot

WASHINGTON—Comedy ruled the ticket lanes this week, evidencing the choice of themes in the lighter vein, with Mickey Rooney, a local favorite, in "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary," and "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" in its second week, providing the laughs. "Philadelphia Story" in its fourth week on the stem appears record-bent. "Western Union" had a colorful message, but lacking in readers.

Schenck Tax Trial Seen Near Finish

NEW YORK—The trial of Joseph M. Schenck and Joseph H. Moskowitz, chairman of the board and eastern representative of 20th-Fox, respectively, by the government on alleged income tax evasion, is in its third and possibly last week for the prosecution. The government's evidence, instead of gaining strength, is, perhaps, more circumstantial than ever and Prosecutor Mathias F. Correa appears to be depending more and more on statements that his witnesses are "unfriendly."

During the week the most important witness was William Goetz, vice-president of 20th-Fox, who testified on the stock transaction whereby he acquired 133,844 shares of the Agua Caliente Jockey Club from Schenck for $5,000. Goetz told how Moskowitz approached him on the deal, of talks with John B. Codd, 20th-Fox comptroller, with Schenck, and his ultimate purchase of the stock.

The witness declared the transaction was a legitimate one, and that the stock at the time was worthless, but might have later become worth money. Under the circumstances, Schenck, not wanting to sell worthless property to a friend, gave back the purchase money with the proviso that it was to be paid if the stock was ever worth any money.

Goetz testified he was worth several hundred thousand dollars so the deal could not affect him one way or another.

Agent's Report Aids

Another witness who boomeranged on the government was Internal Revenue Agent Leo Colin, who went over Moskowitz's books in 1938. The witness admitted that, according to his figures, Schenck had overpaid $800 on a $22,000 tax payment in 1935. The witness was saved from this line of questioning by Judge Grover Moscowitz, to the indignation of Harold H. Corbin, defense counsel, who, on being stopped by the court, declared that Moscowitz was "making rulings directly in conflict with the record."

Other witnesses of the week included Enrique Niedhart, manager of the Hotel and Jockey Club, who testified that after the Mexican law prohibiting gambling went into effect the property was worthless, supporting Schenck's contention that the stock he sold was not of any immediate value.

Harry Sackman, accountant of the Clover Club, testified Schenck was only a patron of the club and never financially interested in it. The government tried but seemingly failed to establish a connection between the club and Schenck.

Stock brokers and bankers were represented in the persons of Paul Zuckerman, Joseph E. Redpath and Joseph Rosenberg, who told of Schenck's winning on the Roosevelt 1936 election. The government has been claiming the executive failed to report winnings, but has introduced no evidence to substantiate the claim.

The latter witness told of how Schenck arranged and paid off loans to Roland West and Arthur Stebbins through the Bank of America.

Erwin Leuttmoser, accountant for West, told of seeing the shares of stock in West's home long after the transaction, proving they had actually changed hands.

Kathryn Sullivan, secretary to Moskowitz testified again, this time identifying papers from her files.

Ruth Nolander, Schenck's secretary from 1925-1940, was also on the stand telling of the Bioff "loan." She said Schenck called her into his office and handed her $100,000 with Bioff present and had her put it away. She gave it to Codd for safekeeping. The government tried to put over a point by claiming Schenck deducted $7,525 in taxes as amounts spent on his home, etc., but Correa was forced to admit that $7,179 of that amount had not been deducted, this being money spent in redecorating his home. The prosecutor sought to carry through proof on the other few hundred dollars. In rebuttal to this testimony Corbin brought forth the fact Schenck had deducted only $23,500 during the year out of $242,000 actually spent.

Winter Met Them—

Freezing weather and a 40-mile gale greeted Bud Abbott and Lou Costello upon their arrival in New York from the coast for a brief vacation between pictures.

Goldwyn Suit Against UA Formally Discontinued

NEW YORK—Suit of Samuel Goldwyn against UA was discontinued. The action was settled as a result of Goldwyn's leaving UA. The suit had sought damages of $1,000,000 for alleged interference with the distribution of "The Westerner" and court approval of Goldwyn's breaking his UA contract.

Samuel I. Posen, Universal director, who is suing the company for $2,000,000 damages in a stockholder action, has applied to the supreme court to examine the records of the Cellofilm Corp. whose stock is 100 per cent owned by Universal.

M-G-M Answers Roach With Counter Suit

NEW YORK—Court news of the week was highlighted by a denial and a counter suit for $500,000 damages by Loew's and M-G-M against Hal Roach Studios, Inc., in federal court. Roach had filed an action against Loew's for $1,263,993, claiming that, since the first distribution contract entered into March 16, 1926, Loew's had deducted percentages due him had charged him extra for prints, gave him no credit for old prints sold as junk and no rebate on Canadian distribution on which the company had received a rebate.

Loew's claims in its countersuit that Roach violated his contract by falsely representing his production costs to be in excess of what they actually were and included in these costs items which were prohibited. Loew's had advanced moneys to Roach for production and received it back from rentals. It is claimed the exact amount is unknown and it will be necessary to examine Roach's books to determine it, but approximately it totals $500,000.

The answer denies charges and raises two defenses. The first is that all portions of Roach's suit dealing with events prior to 1934 are banned by the seven-year statute of limitations and, secondly, it is claimed that since Roach approved all contracts made with Loew's and saw the company's books, he is stopped from suing now since the company believing him satisfied, made other contracts with him which it would not have entered into if it had not believed Roach was satisfied. A dismissal is asked.

To Examine 16

Sixteen officials of Loew's and M-G-M will be examined before trial in the federal court March 31 in connection with Hal Roach's suit against them. Officials to be examined are C. K. Stern, assistant treasurer; J. T. Mills, comptroller; W. F. Rodgers, sales manager; A. F. Cummings, contract department head; Howard Dietz, head of advertising; A. M. Loew, Al Lichtman, J. Robert Rubin, Leopold Friedman, vice-presidents, and David Bernstein, secretary.

Columbia Answer by Mar. 31

Columbia was given until March 31 to file its answer to the government antitrust suit in a stipulation between counsel and Thurman Arnold and entered in federal court. UA and Universal entered general denials and seek a dismissal. The Columbia answer is expected to be more substantial and present affirmative defenses.

Suit by Captain John C. Fremont and Jesse Fremont, grandsons of John Fremont, against Paul Murphy, manager of Loew's Ziegfeld, for criminal libel was dismissed in magistrate's court by Justice William Ringel. The suit charged John Fremont was shown as a bigamist; that he committed an execution contrary to articles of war; that he was stubborn and stupid; and that he was ambushed. The court found no libel in the film "Kit Carson," subject of the controversy.

Joelson Names Josephs Manager of Circuit

NEW YORK—Paul Josephs, who operated the West End, Newark, and is a brother-in-law of Julius Joelson, has been appointed general manager of J. J. Theatres, Inc., formerly the Consolidated circuit. Headquarters are in the Bryant Theatre Bldg. For the time being, Laurence Bolognino is continuing at the offices of Consolidated in the Bond Bldg.

It is reported $300,000 in cash changed hands with the transfer of 18 theatres, another $300,000 to be paid out and the mortgages and leases to be assumed by Joelson.

Herron to Army Service; Milliken Takes Over

NEW YORK—Carl E. Milliken, secretary of the MPPDA and director of the organization's community service department, has been named acting foreign manager in a realignment brought on through the calling up for active military service of Frederick L. Herron, foreign manager, as a lieutenant colonel attached to the adjutant general's office in Washington. Herron is a West Point graduate and has been on the army reserve list for some time. He is on a leave of absence but retains title of foreign manager of the MPPDA, of which he also is treasurer.

Harold L. Smith, who until recently was the MPPDA representative in Paris, has been named assistant to Milliken, who continues to direct activities of the service department.

Fay W. Allport, who has been the MPPDA London representative for some time, gets the title of European manager. He continues his office in London.

"This Is England" Set for 200 Bookings March 27

NEW YORK — There will be 200 simultaneous bookings in the metropolitan area the week of March 27 of "This Is England," Columbia-distributed short recently brought over by Harry Hopkins, President Roosevelt's special envoy to Britain. It will be a benefit proposition, with the net proceeds going to the RAF's "Spitfire Fund." The reel features a commentary by Ed Murrow, European director of CBS.

Canada Free of Provincial Amusement Tax for Year

TORONTO—Canada will not have a provincial amusement tax for the next 12 months, it was revealed when Premier M. F. Hepburn officially announced in tabling the budget before the Ontario legislature that the fiscal year, ending March 31, will close with a huge surplus. Hepburn disclosed, however, that the new corporation tax, which he introduced a year ago as a temporary measure, would be continued.

More Money and Stations On Navy Film Service

WASHINGTON—The navy will spend in excess of $300,000 on its motion picture service in the fiscal year beginning July 1 and, while congress has increased the appropriation by $40,000, more than $225,000 of the total will be contributed from the profits of ship's stores.

Four prints instead of three will be used and 11 new stations brought into service in the next 12 months. Additionally, $44,000 is provided for new projection equipment.

Testifying on the operations of the film service before the committee which considered the increased budget, Rear Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, chief of the bureau of navigation, stated films are the "most important element" in the building up and maintenance of morale.

Sunday Shows for Georgia

ATLANTA—The senate has passed the Sunday show bill. It permits films on the Sabbath provided 25 per cent of voters so petition it.

REVIEW FLASHES

DEAD MEN TELL (20th-Fox)—Closely woven mystery which Charlie Chan solves with characteristic emphasis on suavity and Confucianisms. Audiences will be kept in suspense until the final footage as to whodunit, which is the principal asset in qualifying the film as high grade support material. Walter Morosco and Ralph Dietrich produced; Harry Lachman directed.

LAS VEGAS NIGHTS (Para)—Audiences may not respond to the lure of Las Vegas after they see it in celluloid, but they will be amused by the fiction that went into this film. It is good average program fare. Tommy Dorsey and his band are the chief seat-fillers.

MAN WHO LOST HIMSELF, THE (Univ)—Light farce with Brian Aherne essaying a dual role, and in which the story line is at times spun so thin as to overstep the bounds of credibility. Nevertheless, it has its amusing moments, is well enacted by Aherne and Kay Francis, and should be found satisfactory for general audience consumption. Lawrence W. Fox jr. produced; Edward Ludwig directed.

MAN-MADE MONSTER (Univ)—Audiences delighting in the macabre will be satisfied with this synthetic gem. It's a definite contribution to the gallery of horror portraits that are a natural for exploitation. Lon Chaney jr., Samuel S. Hinds, Ann Nagel.

Executive Jan. Stock Trading Is Light

WASHINGTON—Activities of film corporation officers and directors in the securities of their companies were light in January, following heavy year-end trading, it is shown by the first report of the securities and exchange commission for the month. Only five companies were involved, as follows:

Consolidated Film Industries: E. H. Seifert, director, Fort Lee, N. J., disposed of 100 shares of preferred, leaving him with none. Walter P. Stevens, director, Scranton, Pa., submitted a December report showing the net acquisition of 100 shares of preferred and the net disposition of 347 shares of common, and a January report showing the acquisition of 400 shares of preferred, holding 59 shares of common and 800 shares of preferred at the close of the month.

General Theatres Equipment Corp.: R. B. Laure, officer, New York, reported the sale of 100 shares of capital stock, holding 500 shares at the end of the month.

Loew's Boston Theatres: Loew's, Inc., reported the acquisition of 60 shares of common stock, holding 117,847 shares.

Paramount Pictures: Stanton Griffis, director, New York, reported the purchase of 1,000 shares of common stock to give him a total of 7,500 shares.

Universal Corp.: Daniel M. Sheaffer, director, Philadelphia, submitted a December report showing the acquisition of 100 common voting trust certificates and for January reported the sale of 100 certificates, leaving him with 20,500.

Await Australian Word On New Allocations

NEW YORK—Major companies are awaiting word from the Australian government on new remittance allocations for the year started March 1. During the past 12 months, Australia has permitted $3,100,000 out, but for the new year is considering paring this to $2,100,000 on a basis of lines adopted by Great Britain. England currently is permitting the majors to withdraw $12,900,000, including $1,500,000 for Universal. This compares with $17,500,000 the year prior.

In New Zealand, which has changed its remittance schedule to the calendar year, the entire industry is allowing 300,000 pounds, 40,000 of which must go to British producers. Of the 260,000 pounds, 12,000 pounds may be remitted in sterling to London. The balance of 248,000 pounds is allocated by the government itself. This differs from the English plan which sets aside a lump sum and then permits the producers themselves to allocate according to billings.

Maryland Showmen's Club Considers Morals Board

BALTIMORE—At a meeting of the newly formed Showmen's Club of Maryland, attended by 40 members, a proposal was introduced that a morals board be set up.

Delegates John A. Novak and Chester Kosakowski of the first district, Baltimore, who suggested the board, would have it examine or supervise the examination of all shows, carnivals, vaudeville, theatrical performances, or any other exhibit, either public or private at which entertainers perform. It is especially provided that the board shall not infringe upon the territory of the state board of motion picture censors.

The assembled showmen named a membership, location and constitution committee, and set the next meeting for Monday, March 24, at the Rivoli, at which time officers will be elected.

Profit by Technicolor "Despite a Price Cut"

NEW YORK—Technicolor reports net profit of $882,125 for the year ended December 31, 1940, "despite a voluntary reduction of one cent per foot in print cost which became effective the latter half of 1940." The reduction would have amounted to $800,000 for the year, the report states, adding net sales for the year totaled $5,103,404, of which 28.59 per cent was paid to labor; 10.63 to taxes, and 4.24 per cent for executive officers, management and general clerical salaries. Profit in 1939 was $912,614; in 1938, $1,050,536; in 1937, $468,169 and in 1936, $482,113.

Gerald is a writer on the Universal lot.

Saturday Inoperative For 9 O'Clock Plan

NEW YORK—The RKO metropolitan circuit's experiment with a plan to get the main feature before audiences at 9 o'clock has recoiled at some 20 units that run off a midnight show on Saturdays. This fact, coupled with the purported realization that it matters little how late patrons get home on that night because they can sleep late on Sunday caused John J. O'Connor, general manager, to switch back to the original procedure over the weekend. The 9 o'clock plan, however, continues the other six nights of the week.

In respect to the latter, the management feels there has been "no difference" in boxoffice returns. At best, the idea may be welcome to those patrons who "only go to see a certain picture," but this segment is described as a "hopeless minority." The feeling persists a marked majority still prefer the two-for-one deal and don't care much about the order in which they are presented.

RKO-Skouras Forest Hills House Starts on May 1

NEW YORK—Construction on the new RKO-Skouras house to be built in Forest Hills, behind the Forest Hills Theatre, will get under way May 1. There will be 2,000 seats, as exclusively reported in the February 22 issue of BOXOFFICE. Work is expected to be completed for a Christmas opening. Thomas W. Lamb of New York and Charles Lee of Los Angeles are the architects.

February Ticket Tax Up Nearly Million

WASHINGTON—February admission tax collections were $6,495,283.66, compared with $6,583,277.97 in January and $1,852,763.82 in February, 1940, it is shown by the monthly report of the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

The report disclosed that collections have been dropping steadily since last November, when the 1940 top of $7,124,225.19 was received, but for the first two months of the year the revenue of $13,078,561.63 was nearly $10,000,000 above the $3,339,298.46 reported for 1940.

The loss to exhibitors generally in February as compared with the preceding month was much greater than indicated by the total figures, since collections in the Broadway sector of New York increased more than $300,000, making a decline for the remainder of the country of nearly $400,000.

On the basis of returns since the application of the 20-cent exemption, the Treasury will derive an increased income of some $45,000,000 from the admission tax during the current fiscal year which ends June 30, next. This estimate is based on figures for eight months, which show collections of $45,394,102.94 against $14,059,382.93 last year, an increase of $31,334,720.01.

Atlantic Intervenes in John Geyser Plaint of the Florence, in Florence, N. J. He named the five major distributors, with the Burlington as an "interested party," giving it the right to intervene.

William Elliot, secretary of the local arbitration office, has sent the parties a panel of ten arbitrators, of which they are to get together on one.

Progress of the case, only one in this territory so far, is being watched by the entire industry, to get a clue to how the arbitration procedure will work out in practice.

Joseph's Drive-In Plaint Against Metro Resolved

DALLAS—Through individual settlement with Joseph's Drive-In Theatre of Austin, which brought the first complaint to the local arbitration tribunal, M-G-M is no longer involved in the case. However, Warner and 20th Century-Fox remain as distributor defendants. The complaint is over some run. M-G-M settled by offering to license the complainant's theatre.

Agree on Arbitrator in Garbose Bros. Case

BOSTON—John A. Daly, Boston lawyer, will arbitrate the clearance complaint of the Garbose Bros., Athol, Mass., against Paramount, Loew's, 20th-Fox, Vitagraph, RKO and Maine & New Hampshire Theatres. No hearing date has been set as yet. George S. Ryan will represent the Garbose Bros.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF THE PRODUCTION CENTER

A Five-Time Winner—

Winning of a 1940 Academy Award by David O. Selznick when his "Rebecca" was adjudged the year's best production brings to light the fact that the film is the only one ever to win five major achievements. The Selznick production for United Artists release was cited as follows:

1. The BOXOFFICE Blue Ribbon Award, presented when the National Screen Council voted it the best picture released during the month of April, 1940.
2. First in the Film Daily's poll of 546 newspaper critics.
3. Chosen the "most popular picture" by the National Board of Review.
4. Named "best picture of the year" by Canadian critics.

Extras' Earnings Up In February

Registering the first increase since the fall of 1940, extra earnings during the month of February were approximately $58,000 higher than in January, totaling $190,469.98, as compared to $132,636.90 in the previous month. Job placements were also more numerous, work calls for February totaling 16,232, as compared to 12,114 in January. February payroll was an increase of about $17,000 over the earnings for February, 1940, but some $60,000 lower than in February, 1939. Average daily wage was $11.10 and average daily placements were 269.

IA to Represent Locals At Wage-Hour Talks

After remaining aloof from the affairs of its affiliated studio locals for more than a year, the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes will step into the local labor scene once more by representing the IA locals at the forthcoming wage-hour hearing scheduled for March 25.

Notification came from George E. Browne, IATSE president, together with the demand that IA employes who had been classified as non-exempt under wage-hour rulings, and subsequently placed on an hourly wage basis by producers, be returned to their former status, under which they receive weekly paychecks.

Workers have been returned to their status quo position by the producers pending the outcome of the wage-hour sessions, at which the IATSE will be represented by Joseph Padway, general counsel for the international.

Postponement Denied

A request that the hearings be postponed until March 28 has been turned down by the wage-hour administration. To be represented, in addition to the IATSE, to protest rulings on certain worker classifications, are the Screen Cartoonists Guild, the Script Clerks Guild and other crafts. About 40 classifications of workers remain to be ruled on as to exemption or non-exemption from the provisions of the act.

Following the wage-hour conclave, Pat Casey, chief labor contact for the producers, will go east to begin negotiations with international heads of the carpenters, teamsters, painters and electricians concerning possible revisions in their basic studio agreement.

Meantime it is expected that the IATSE also will take over negotiations for new contracts which were launched by the various IA locals several weeks ago and on which, to date, little progress has been made.

Society of Motion Picture Film Editors announces it has signed basic contracts with Alexander Korda, Howard Hughes, Gloria Productions, Picture Corp. of America and Cameo Productions, all independent units.

Cartoonists Induct 150

The Screen Cartoonists Guild inducted 150 new members, the bulk of them Walt Disney employes, at a general membership meeting. Negotiations for basic pacts are now being conducted with Leon Schlesinger, Screen Gems and George Pal Productions. The National Labor Relations Board is expected to hold a hearing shortly on the SCG's charge that Disney is guilty of unfair labor tactics and that the Federated Screen Cartoonists, which Disney recognizes, is a company-controlled union.

Jurisdictional claims to studio title writers have been relinquished to the moving picture painters by the Society of Motion Picture Artists and Illustrators.

Discuss Reclassification

Producers and the Screen Actors Guild met to discuss the reclassification of various brackets of extra players. The SAG is seeking the establishment of a straight $10 call to replace the current $8.25 and $11 classifications.

To discuss pending negotiations with producers concerning revisions in its current contract, the board of directors of the Screen Directors Guild held a meeting. The SDG is asking a minimum wage scale, guaranteed employment and a 90 per cent Guild shop.

Screen Publicists Guild held a general membership meeting to discuss various routine business matters, the wage-hour situation and other items.

Represented at the wage-hour hearing also will be the teamsters, carpenters, plasterers, utility workers and electricians, each of which craft claims workers in disputed classifications. Unions are all members of the Studio Basic Agreement. Frank Carothers, secretary of the Motion Picture Internationals Committee, will head the delegation.

Negotiations for a new basic agreement were opened by the Screen Writers Guild when representatives met with the producers March 20. Current SWG contract expires April 10, and writers are demanding a minimum wage scale, abolition of speculative writing, complete control of screen credits and other adjustments.

"Purchase" in Color

Paramount has announced plans to produce "Louisiana Purchase," the New York musical comedy, in Technicolor.

"Sea Wolf" Premiere On Pacific Ocean

Exploitation premiere junkets, dear to the hearts of studio publicists, took on a nautical aspect when Warner debuted "The Sea Wolf," starring Edward G. Robinson, aboard a ship at sea March 21 with stars, studio executives, reviewers and photographers as passengers. The vessel employed was the S. S. America and the arrangement was worked out with the United States lines, the film being screened en route from Los Angeles to San Francisco. After docking at the Bay City, the premiere party was convoyed to Oakland as guests of that city's chamber of commerce, attending a special breakfast honoring Jack London, who authored the story.

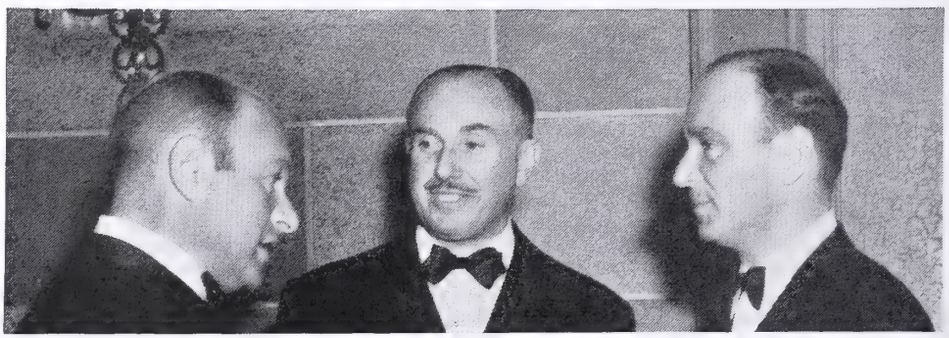
From Oakland the junketeers went to the London ranch in the Valley of the Moon to be guests at a Jack London Festival. Following entertainment at the home of Mrs. Charmian London, widow of the author, the "Sea Wolf" premiere party was returned to Oakland, going on to Hollywood aboard five transport planes.

Army Cooperation Promised

Paramount has been promised U. S. Army cooperation when "I Wanted Wings" is premiered at the Astor in New York, March 26. Key figures in the war department, the army air corps and other government officials will join social, diplomatic, civic and Hollywood celebrities attending the event. Preceding the Astor opening, the film was to be given a special showing March 22 at Randolph Field, army aviation training base in Texas, where much of it was photographed, and which screening will be attended by William Holden, Veronica Lake and Wayne Morris, who have leading roles.

Festival for "Pot O' Gold"

When James Roosevelt's first United Artists production, "Pot O' Gold," is world-premiered in Mexico City, April 12, it will be the first event in a three-day Motion Picture Festival officially proclaimed by President Avila Camacho. Several planeloads of stars, industry notables and press representatives will be flown from New York and Hollywood for the event. President Camacho will personally invite leading American stars to be his guests. Roosevelt himself, now on active duty as a captain with the marine corps in San Diego, will attend and deliver a speech of thanks in Spanish. Through his secretary of state, Miguel Aleman, President Camacho asserted that "the increasing friendship between our two nations cannot but be further cemented by this meeting of the two great cultural industries and by the celebrations attendant upon the festivities here."



Western premiere of RKO Radio's "Scattergood Baines," produced by Jerrold T. Brandt's Pyramid Pictures, was held at the Golden Gate Theatre in San Francisco, March 19. Guy Kibbee, who portrays the title character, made personal appearances.

"Meet John Doe"—

The Frank Capra-Robert Riskin production that Warner world-premiered at the Hollywood brought out in full force top-ranking stars, producers and industry notables. The Gary Cooper-Barbara Stanwyck co-starrer is in the house for an extended run, day-date with Warner's Downtown. Among those attending: (1) Harry M. Warner, president of the motion picture company. (2) Jesse L. Lasky sr. (center), who is producing "Sergeant York" for Warner, flanked by Joan Leslie, Warner starlet, and his son, William Lasky. (3) A before-the-show conference. Left to right, S. Charles Einfeld, Warner advertising-publicity director; Jack L. Warner, vice-president in charge of production; and Robert Riskin, Frank Capra's production partner and author of "Meet John Doe."

"Little Foxes" Pegged For an Early Start

An early starting date, after a long productional hiatus, is pegged for Samuel Goldwyn's "The Little Foxes" following the announcement that his relationship with United Artists has been completely severed. Therese Wright, stage player, has been signed for a supporting role in the Bette Davis starrer, and William Wyler, who will direct, is in New York conferring with Lillian Hellman, who is writing the script from her play. Gregg Toland will handle the cameras. To date no announcement has been made as to what release will be sought for the production, Goldwyn's first since "The Westerner."

Three for Monogram

Three independent units are readying vehicles for Monogram release. To roll this month are Sam Katzman's "The Phantom Monster," initialer in a series of three starring Bela Lugosi, and "King of the Zombies," which Lindsley Parsons will produce. I. E. Chadwick will gun "Redhead" early in April.

Roll All-Negro Feature

Million Dollar Productions has rolled "Take My Life," an all-Negro feature, with Leo C. Popkin directing. Al Westen, of the company's New York office, checked in as production supervisor.

"Trigger Pals" for PRC

In work for Producers Releasing Corp. is Sigmund Neufeld's "Billy the Kid's Trigger Pals." Sherman Scott is directing the fifth in the series of Bob Steele starrers.

Four Through UA

Being prepared for early starts as United Artists releases are Argosy's "The Eagle Squadron," to be released through Walter F. Wanger; Hal Roach's "Niagara Falls;" Loew-Lewin's "Landfall" and Sol Lesser's "Strange Victory."

THE 13th annual Awards Banquet of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has gone and is forgotten—forgotten by everyone, with the possible exception of those fortunate few who were recipients of the coveted kudos.

But behind one of the awards is a story of a smart and subtle publicity campaign, so foreign to Hollywood's normal drumbeating practices that a few words in observation thereof are not amiss, even at this late date.

Among the ten features nominated for consideration as recipients of the No. 1 Oscar, recognition as the most outstanding motion pictures of the year, was "Rebecca," produced by David O. Selznick for United Artists. In that crowded and highly-competitive field, Mr. Selznick's entry was given only an outside chance by the railbirds. Those prognosticating dopesters predicated their predictions on the fact that DOS had carried home the trophy last year when his "Gone With the Wind" breezed under the wire lengths ahead of the pack. They opined that the give-somebody-else-a-chance element would influence enough voters to divorce "Rebecca" from favorite status.

But the wise gentlemen who held figurative stopwatches on the trial runs for the Academy sweepstakes failed to take into consideration the aforementioned campaign, which was launched and kept sailing during the period when 12,000 Academy voters were marking their ballots and which kept the name of Selznick and the list of his achievements continuously and very much in the Hollywood limelight during the voting period.

It began when Harold Heffernan of North American Newspaper Alliance conducted a "stars-turn-critics" poll in which "Rebecca" was voted the best picture of the year. Then, in rapid order, came various individual newspaper awards, the National Board of Review balloting and the Film Daily's poll, in which 546 participating critics chose it the No. 1 film. At that time Selznick appeared on the Rudy Vallee airshow to receive the award. A week later Selznick received another tradepaper award as the leading boxoffice producer over the past nine years, and made another radio appearance in connection therewith on the Cecil B. DeMille-Lux Theatre broadcast. This was followed by a poll of Canadian critics, naming "Rebecca" the number two production. Hedda Hopper picked it as the best of the year, and Selznick as the man who did the most for the industry by making "Rebecca" and "Gone With the Wind"; George Fischer named "Rebecca" the year's best dramatic offering, and Canadian exhibitors voted it number one. Each of these accolades was stressed in the tradepapers and in other media widely-read in the film colony.

Then, while the Academy balloting was going on, the climax was capped when "Rebecca" opened a reissue engagement at the Hawaii here, after it had already played the ten-cent houses. Although in substance just another revival run, the event was dubbed the "Critics' Award Premiere," top admission prices were in effect, and all of the above-named awards were widely publicized during the profitable four-week booking. Stars attended, there were radio broadcasts and every other reliable form of exploitation ordinarily accorded to a film's first-run engagement was employed.

There is not the slightest intention in these paragraphs to hint that "Rebecca" was not richly deserving of the Academy recognition it received. Further, there is always the possibility that it might have been named the winner without the pre-banquet buildup. No one will ever know.

But, if there is anything of practical truth in the general theory of publicity and ballyhoo and their influences on voters in any election, it seems entirely reasonable to credit the campaign for playing its important part in the unexpected victory for a long-shot darkhorse.

Victor M. Shapiro, a streamlined oldtimer in the gentle art of public relations, conceived and conducted the campaign, having rejoined the Selznick organization as director of publicity several weeks in advance of the Academy Banquet date. And for him—a bow.

While delving into the ancient history of the banquet, one word about the only sour note in an otherwise efficiently conducted and highly satisfactory affair. The reference is to the directors' disinclination to select a producer for the Irving Thalberg Memorial Award. Since its creation, the honor has previously gone each year to the producer who is deemed to have maintained the most consistently high quality of productional effort. Their stated reason for the surprising omission was their opinion that no producer had sufficiently distinguished himself to deserve it. Certainly this was a tacit admission that the quality of production during 1940 was below the standards of previous years, which seems diametrically in opposition to the principal function of and justification for the Academy.

From George Brown:

"Hollywood's strangest location-hunting expedition will get under way from Hollywood in a week or two when Associate Director Arthur H. Rosson starts reconnoitering the floor of the Atlantic Ocean for his boss, Cecil B. DeMille."

If Rosson fails to locate "The Great C. B.," he might try exploring the floor of the famous DeMilleian bathtub, which, after all, has been nearly as widely publicized as the Atlantic Ocean.

20th Century-Fox again renews the writing pact of Frank Nugent, erstwhile motion picture critic extraordinary, and after the former New York Times reviewer has spent a year as a scripter in the Zanuck fold playing around with countless and constantly-shifting assignments.

Options, options everywhere and not a line of screen credit.

Sociological, Spooky, Saccharine, Sherman

Warner's "Meet John Doe" was the big frog in the week's preview puddle, and could have been even if that apothegmatic waterhole had been of much larger proportions. There are countless approaches to commentation on the initial Frank Capra-Robert Riskin independent production. So much has been printed regarding its social import that anything further in that vein would be repetitious. The same goes for the characteristic Capra artistry which manifests itself throughout the long feature. Suffice, at this late date, to declare that the film has all of the markings of a top-money hit with limitless mass and class appeal. Riskin's writing is, as was to be expected, forceful and intelligent. Capra gave the script firm direction and topnotch production values, while the performances, notably those of Gary Cooper, Barbara Stanwyck, Edward Arnold and Walter Brennan, are as excellent as the reputations of these reliable performers would indicate.

Additionally in the high-scoring division was Hal Roach's "Topper Returns," a United Artists release. It smoothly blends the trick photography, burlesqued ghosts, gag situations and bright dialogue, which makes its two predecessors so popular, with a full assortment of secret stairways, sliding doors and clutching hands such as are usually associated with murder-mystery-chillers. The combination results in the best of the "Topper" films to date—superlatively fine comedy which should result in a general demand for more. Furnished with a brilliantly-paced script by Jonathan Latimer and Gordon Douglas, with additional dialogue by Paul Gerard Smith, Roy Del Ruth directed the offering at break-neck clip. Billie Burke and Roland Young are inherited from the original "Topper" gang, their antics bolstered through the recruiting of such masters of humor as Joan Blondell, Patsy Kelly, Donald MacBride and, last but far from least, Eddie (Rochester) Anderson. Their mummery develops into a funfest that will have the customers roaring from start to finish.

A Home for Actors in San Fernando Valley

Motion Picture Relief Fund has acquired property near Calabasis, in the San Fernando Valley, as a building site for the home which it will construct for elderly veterans of the industry and as a rest and recuperation home for younger actors.

Jean Hersholt, MPRF president, announced that the organization now has $800,000 in its building fund, gathered during the past three years by Hollywood actors donating their services for broadcasts on the Screen Guild's airshow. The $10,000 weekly received from the sponsor has been set aside for construction of the home.

"Gambol" Replenishes Finances

Architect William Pereira of Paramount has volunteered to design the buildings and is now at work in cooperation with the Screen Set Designers Guild. Pereira and Keith Glennan, Paramount studio manager, will direct the work.

Meantime the MPRF's financial status was further improved when all proceeds from the annual "Gambol of the Stars," sponsored jointly by the Screen Actors Guild and the American Federation of Radio Artists, was staged Monday at the Ambassador Hotel's Cocoanut Grove. Highlight of the occasion, attended by some 700 industry notables, was the auctioning of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's campaign hat. Edward G. Robinson and Melvyn Douglas, each bidding $3,200, split the chapeau and the selling price.

REVIEW FLASHES

DEAD MEN TELL (20th-Fox)—Closely woven mystery which Charlie Chan solves with characteristic emphasis on suavity and Confucianisms. Audiences will be kept in suspense until the final footage as to whodunit, which is the principal asset in qualifying the film as high grade support material. Walter Morosco and Ralph Dietrich produced; Harry Lachman directed.

LAS VEGAS NIGHTS (Para)—Audiences may not respond to the lure of Las Vegas after they see it in celluloid, but they will be amused by the fiction that went into this film. It is good average program fare. Tommy Dorsey and his band are the chief seat-fillers.

MAN-MADE MONSTER (Univ)—Audiences delighting in the macabre will be satisfied with this synthetic gem. It's a definite contribution to the gallery of horror portraits that are a natural for exploitation. Lon Chaney jr., Samuel S. Hinds, Ann Nagel.

release, and Metro's "The Penalty."

The former, a melodrama of the triangle-plot variety and with an early-west locale, should prove popular wherever a combination of dramatics and six-gun action is sought. Cast is topped by two well-established names in that particular market, Richard Dix and Preston Foster. Allocating an increased budget to this sally into a wider field, Producer Sherman demonstrated the experience he has gained through that series of topflight westerns, the "Hopalong Cassidy" films. This venture is substantial in all of its productional accoutrements. Harold Shumate's script, from a story by Edmund Day, emphasizes plot and portrayals rather than standard sagebrush details. Lesley Selander's direction is deft and well-paced.

Although it occasionally becomes too heavily coated with saccharinity, "The Penalty" is, by and large, composed of elements which should evoke audience satisfaction. Produced to the usual opulent M-G-M standard by Jack Chertok, erstwhile shorts supervisor, it is exceptionally well enacted by a solid cast topped by Edward Arnold, Lionel Barrymore and Gene Reynolds. Based on the Martin Berkeley play, "Roosty," the script by Harry Ruskin and John C. Higgins fulfills all of the requirements. Harold S. Bucquet's direction is well balanced and competent.

Comes the caboose and aboard it a 20th Century-Fox film, "Sleepers West"—which is long on dialogue, short on action and story, and devoid of suspense. No better than fair-to-middlin' as supporting fare, it may be found a disappointment by even the most rabid of mystery fans, since there is nary a murder. The feature is second in the series in which Lloyd Nolan portrays "Michael Shayne," a private detective. Eugene Forde directed for the Sol M. Wurtzel production unit.

Academy Maps Plans for Still Photography Show

Having caught its breath after the strenuous activities in connection with its recent 13th annual Awards Banquet, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has begun mapping detailed plans for its first annual still photography show, to be held April 14-28 in the Academy's library and review theatre.

Sponsored by the organization's public relations institute, the affair is being supervised by Walter F. Wanger, Academy president. Specially designed gold medals will be awarded winners in various divisions, with entrants to be limited to individuals in studio camera departments and freelance photographers affiliated with the IATSE. Classifications include portrait studies, action portraits, romantic two-shots, closeups, three-quarter or full-length art shots, posed production still, action production still, fashion still and original novelty stills made during the filming of a motion picture. Donald Gledhill, Academy secretary, is in active charge of arrangements.

Meantime, the association of motion picture producers has signed Frank Seltzer, adding him to its staff as assistant to Jock Lawrence, aide to President Y. Frank Freeman. Seltzer has resigned his position as publicity director for Hal Roach in order to accept the new assignment, effective immediately.

Weisl in Conference

Edwin L. Weisl, member of Paramount's board of directors, is in for conferences at the studio and for huddles with Floyd Odlum, head of the Atlas Corp., at the latter's home in Indio.

"Louisiana Purchase" Will Star Bob Hope

Paramount has named Bob Hope to star in "Louisiana Purchase," picturization of the B. G. DeSylva-Irving Berlin stage musical, to be made in Technicolor. A tentative starting date of July 7 has been set. Script is now being prepared by Jerome Chodorov and Joseph Fields.

Hope first will appear opposite Paulette Goddard in "Nothing But the Truth."

Congratulations in Order—

As Mark Hellinger signs a long-term contract to become a 20th Century-Fox producer. Here felicitations are exchanged between Hellinger (left) and Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president in charge of production. Hellinger reports immediately, having resigned a Warner producership a short time ago.

Hellinger to Fox as Associate Producer

Mark Hellinger has joined 20th Century-Fox as an associate producer on a term contract, with no assignment yet handed him. Hellinger recently resigned from a similar post at Warner. The Westwood studio has also named Charles Friedman coordinator and creative collaborator on all musical product. Formerly assistant to Fred Kohlmar, associate producer who has checked off the lot, Friedman was a stage producer.

Berke to Columbia

William Berke has joined Columbia as a producer in the Irving Briskin unit. The studio has also signed Charles Starrett, who left the payroll some months ago, to a new contract calling for him to star in three westerns this season, 10 pictures on the 1941-42 program, and nine others for 1942-43. Berke will produce two of the first trio of Starrett sagebrushers.

Ann Sheridan-Warner Truce

Under suspension for seven months as the result of a salary dispute, Ann Sheridan has made peace with Warner and returns to work immediately in "Navy Blues."

Elevates Hugh Bennett

Paramount has elevated Hugh Bennett, film editor, to a directorship, with "Henry for President" as his first assignment. Ted Tetzlaff, cameraman recently promoted to director by the same studio, will do "World Premiere" as his initialer.

Dwan Producer-Director

Allan Dwan has been made a producer-director at RKO Radio, where he is preparing an untitled musical to star Edgar Bergen, Charlie McCarthy, Fibber McGee and Molly. He replaces David Hempstead in the producer's seat, Hempstead having a conflicting commitment for the studio.

Edward H. Griffith—

Wurtzel's S. A. Tour May Inspire Films

HOLLYWOOD—Planning to incorporate his findings in several pictures with South American backgrounds which he will produce for the '41-42 program, Sol M. Wurtzel, 20th-Fox executive producer, has returned from a three-month tour of Mexico, Argentina, Brazil, Peru, Chile and other Latin-American nations. Wurtzel, accompanied by Mrs. Wurtzel and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ziffren, checked back at his studio desk to report that:

The South American film market can be easily expanded through the delivery of better and more acceptable product from Hollywood. Motion pictures are among the principal forms of recreation for Latin-Americans, Wurtzel said, and the same type of film fare which English-speaking countries like is equally welcome there.

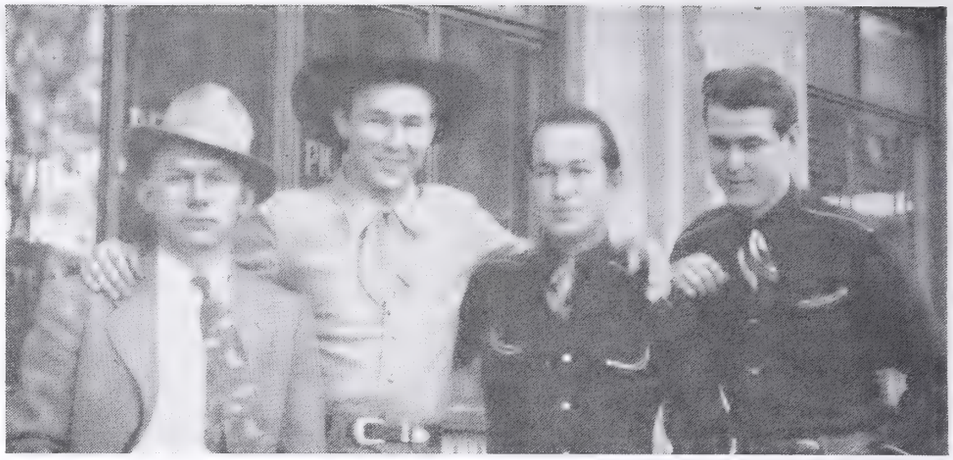
Hollywood producers may soon face genuine competition from native film-makers, especially in Argentina and Brazil, where the industry is forging ahead rapidly, Wurtzel declared.

The 20th Century-Fox producer believes that Latin-Americans are almost unanimously supporting Great Britain and the United States in the current war. In his report on the political scene, Wurtzel tended to minimize Nazi encroachment in Central and South America.

Warner Officials From Home Office Expected

Cancelling plans whereby President Harry M. Warner and S. Charles Einfeld, Warner advertising-publicity director, were to go east for huddles with homeoffice executives, a New York contingent of Warner officials was expected to arrive here late in the week for parleys in Hollywood. Making the trip here were Gradwell L. Sears, sales chief; Sam Schneider, Mort Blumenstock, Carl Leserman, Benjamin Kalmenson and Arthur Sachson. They plan conferences with Harry M. and Jack L. Warner, Einfeld and Hal B. Wallis.

"Reluctant Dragon" Release Plans Call Horne, Condon



Hal Horne, Walt Disney's eastern representative, and Richard Condon, New York publicity director, have returned east after two weeks here, discussing release plans for "The Reluctant Dragon," next feature-length Disney offering. Condon huddled with Janet Martin, studio publicity director.

Rowland to New York Parley

Richard A. Rowland, United Artists producer, trained for New York to vacation and discuss with UA executives plans for his next picture. Also east-bound was Boris Morros, president of National Pictures.

Industry Due for Boom, Says Herman Wobber

Not only is 20th Century-Fox experiencing one of the biggest boxoffice spurts in years, but the entire motion picture industry is due for a substantial boom, in the opinion of Herman Wobber, sales head for that company, who checked in for studio conferences after a jaunt around eastern key cities. He cited improved business conditions as a result of the defense program as the most important factor in the boom he expects. Leading the 20th Century-Fox parade of money-makers at present, Wobber said, are "Tobacco Road," "Western Union" and "That Night in Rio." The sales chief will spend several days here huddling with Darryl F. Zanuck, Sol Wurtzel, William Goetz and other studio executives.

On P. A. in Oregon—

Adjourn in Olympia; Trade All Right

OLYMPIA—The legislature has adjourned after a session which leaves the trade virtually unscathed.

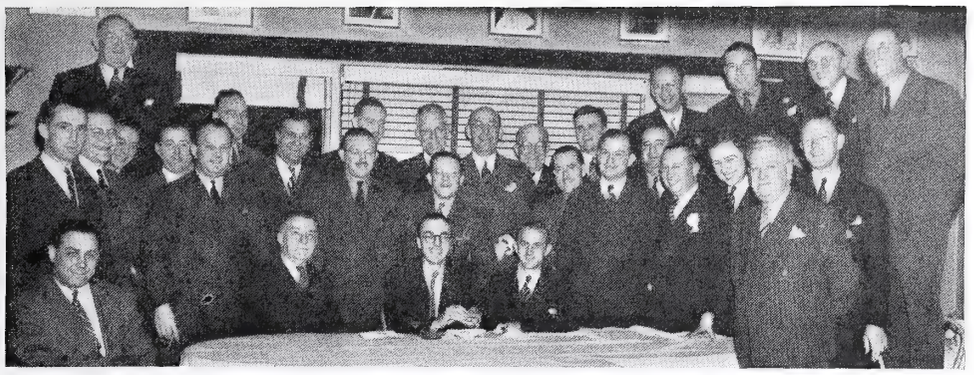
However, several bills indirectly affecting the trade were pushed through at the last minute. One new law calls for pinball machines to be taxed 10 per cent of their "take" and slot machines (allowed only in private clubs) to pay the state 20 per cent of their intake.

The general sales tax was hiked from two to three per cent, with tokens retained to be used on purchases under 20 cents. Beer parlors were granted an extra hour on Saturday nights, making the closing 1 a. m. The dog-racing bill was killed and hotels lost their fight to get cocktail lounges. Hard liquor is obtainable in this state only in private clubs holding a state license.

Beaten down during the session was a bill which would have required a state seal on all films played in Washington. Distributors would have borne the inspection cost at so much per reel.

Here the past 60 days keeping a protective eye on bills menacing to the trade, was Jim Hone, executive secretary of the Independent Theatre Owners.

RAF Benevolent Fund Profits by Premiere



HOLLYWOOD—Great Britain's Royal Air Force Benevolent Fund, which cares for the dependents of fallen flyers, benefited to the extent of an estimated $4,000 to $4,500 when Alexander Korda's "That Hamilton Woman" was world-premiered here Wednesday at the Four Star. The affair was a sell-out at $5 per seat and the entire proceeds were donated to the RAF fund. Theatre and staff were contributed by Charles P. Skouras, president of Fox West Coast, and Korda paid all other expenses.

Phil Regan, singer-actor, has written congressmen and other governmental officials suggesting the inauguration of a "democracy day," which he terms a means of bringing to Americans "a full realization of the importance of freedom and the constant attacks upon it." Regan, now under contract to Paramount, asserts the plan would be an effective way of combating the spread of Communism, Fascism and Nazism, and wants Congress to make it a national holiday.

First in a series of weekly reviews, the proceeds from which will go toward the purchase of mobile kitchens for the British army, will be staged March 23 by Gene Lockhart, character actor, who is writing, directing and producing the show. Lined up to appear in the initialer are Doris Lloyd, Montague Love, Walter Kingsford, Kathleen Lockhart and John Qualen. Following a local run, the review will go on tour, with stops already scheduled for Santa Barbara, San Diego, Pasadena, Riverside, San Francisco and Lake Arrowhead.

Berman, Bruen, Poole PCCITO Delegates

LOS ANGELES—Jack Berman and Hugh Bruen, trustees from the Independent Theatre Owners of So. Calif. and Ariz., and Robert H. Poole, executive secretary of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, were the delegates from this territory when the PCCITO board of trustees held a one-day meeting Wednesday in San Francisco.

The affair was described by PCCITO spokesmen as a routine business session. Others attending included:

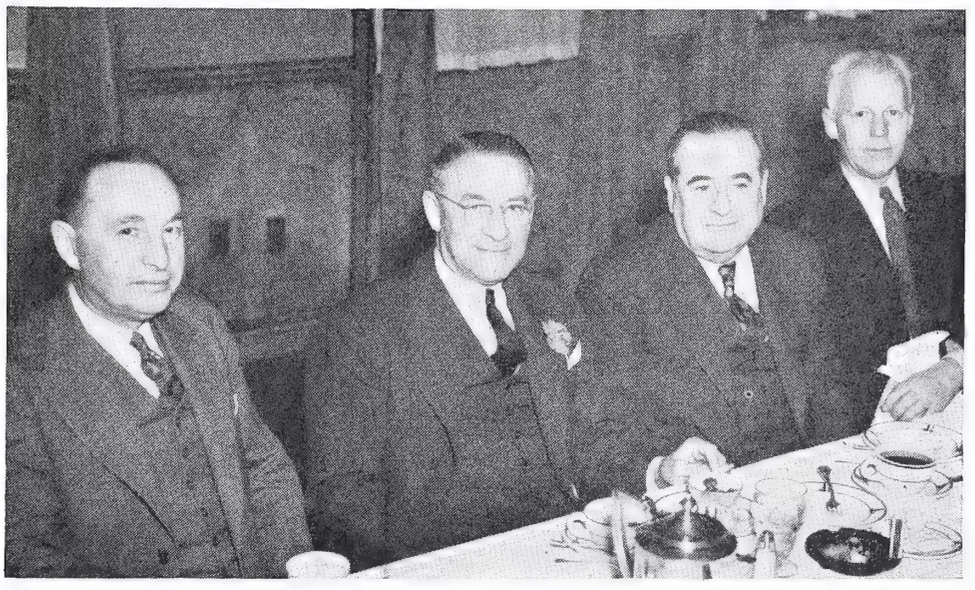
Rotus Harvey and Ben Levin, ITO of Northern Calif.; Bob White and George Hunt, ITO of Oregon, and L. O. Lukan and William Ripley, representing the ITO of Washington, Southern Idaho and Alaska.

Poole, Berman and Bruen returned here the following day.

Albert J. Law, PCCITO general counsel, was unable to attend. He was held here by the opening of the trial in U. S. district court, in which he is aiding the Colcatta Corp.'s attorneys in their conspiracy and damage action against Fox West Coast Theatres.

Ernie Rose to Manage Roosevelt in Seattle

SEATTLE—Ernie Rose has been named manager of the Sterling chain's Roosevelt here, succeeding Bill Keating who has been transferred to the Granada. Rose previously managed the State and Liberty for Fox-Evergreen in Spokane under Joe Rosenfield, who is now supervising theatres for Sterling.



NT Conclave Hears Mayer and Roach

LOS ANGELES—Climaxed by the appearance of Louis B. Mayer, production chief at M-G-M, and Hal Roach, UA producer, on the last day of the session, the annual conclave of National Theatres Corp. divisional managers wound up, after a nine-day session, at Arrowhead Springs.

Spyros Skouras, NT president, remained several days longer for additional conferences with Charles P. Skouras, president of Fox West Coast, an NT affiliate, and then planed out for the east. Last days of the session were devoted to circuit operating problems, a continued discussion of the federal consent decree and its effects on exhibition, roadshow attractions, trailers and other topics. A formal dinner attended by conventioneers officially ended the meeting.

Mayer and Roach both addressed the gathering, outlining their production plans for the coming year and pledging cooperation with theatre operators under the consent decree's blocks-of-five plan. Roach declared he is planning a number of four-reelers as supplements to full-length features, and asserted he feels there will be a very definite market and demand for the abbreviated subjects in view of the diminishing popularity of dual programs.

Other highlights of the convention included discussion of a $3,500,000 building and rehabilitation program for NT-controlled houses; announcement of plans to inaugurate a retirement or old-age pension plan for NT employes; and the prediction by Spyros Skouras that constantly improving product and the national defense program will result in a prosperous exhibition year. NT's film buying is to be decentralized, Skouras said, as the chief change in policy to be instituted because of the decree.

Three Branches at Lunch—

J. T. Sheffield, president of Republic Pictures of the Northwest, entertained Jimmy Grainger, Republic head, on his arrival from New York with a special luncheon. Seated at the head table, from left to right, are John Danz, president of Sterling Theatres; Frank Newman sr., president of Fox-Evergreen; Jimmy Grainger, and J. T. "Sheff" Sheffield.

'Tobacco' and 'Murder' Big Noise in L. A.

LOS ANGELES—"Tobacco Road," coupled with "Murder Among Friends" in a day-date engagement at Loew's State and Grauman's Chinese, did 50 per cent above normal at the former house and above average at the latter to top the business recorded in the other first-run situations. Holdovers included a third week for "Gone With the Wind" at the Four Star and United Artists, a second stanza for "Footsteps in the Dark" and "Here Comes Happiness" at Warner's Hollywood and Downtown, a second week for "Back Street" at the Hillstreet and Pantages, and a second week for "Buck Privates" at the Paramount, where it supported "The Hard-Boiled Canary" and a stage show.

Follow "Tobacco Road" For Best SF Grosses

SAN FRANCISCO—The screen version of the eight year old Broadway favorite put the Fox at the top of the list this week. "Tobacco Road," given plenty of exploitation, drew fine crowds and moved over to the St. Francis for a second week. The Golden Gate had one of the largest opening days in the history of the house for "A Girl, A Guy, and A Gob." This impetus carried the week's take well above average. Weather was fine all week.

Above-Average Business Marks Salt Lake Runs

SALT LAKE CITY—Temperatures took a plunge to rest below normal in and about Salt Lake City this week, after some unusual pre-season Spring weather. With clear skies and sunshine, however, it did anything but hamper the local activities. A special stage show at the Utah packed the house, when Lunt and Fontanne presented "There Shall Be No Night." "Gone With the Wind" at the Paramount boasts its fourth big week; "Virginia" is in the fourth week at the Studio. Others ran a close second to these in popularity.

SAN FRANCISCO

BUSINESS along Market Street and on Filmrow returned to near normal after "income tax week" and film men are almost beginning to smile again. Week after week this territory is the recipient of additional government orders and the army camps are bulging at the seams with the influx of draftees and volunteers from all over the country. Local merchants and theatres are all sharing the increased wealth that has poured into Northern California.

L. B. Mayer and an even dozen other Hollywood figures were greeted at the depot by city officials and paraded about town upon their arrival for the huge St. Patrick's Day luncheon held at the Civic Auditorium on March 15. Mayer was the guest of honor and main speaker at the affair which is sponsored annually by the Shriners. The group that made the affair very popular included: Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Louis Stone, Fay Holden, Hugh Herbert, Arleen Whalen, Dennis Morgan, Cesar Romero, Glenn Ford, William Orr, Walter Wanger and Maureen O'Hara.

Funeral services were held March 18 for Vivian Preston, Warner booker who died Saturday, March 15. Preston, 60, had been with Warner for nearly a quarter of a century and was known throughout the industry. He was severely burned about two months ago when attempting to burn some rubbish at his home.

Jay Clarke, mentalist, has been held for a third week at the Golden Gate. He has proved quite a draw with the female patrons . . . 20th-Century is giving its exchange a going over, installing new carpets, new drapes, and giving Manager Ballentine's office a sprucing up . . . Emily "Countess" Bataiff, Harvey Amusement steno, was given a surprise birthday party Tuesday . . . Mike Newman, Columbia publicist, in town for work on "Adam Had Four Sons" . . . 20th-Fox held a circuit screening for "Road to Rio" . . . Harry Weaverling, M-G-M checking supervisor, hospitalized for appendectomy.

Unable to find a John Doe in the entire Bay area, the Warfield did the next best thing and had a tieup with all the Does! As a feature of the opening of "Meet John Doe" a delegation of all persons named Doe in the Bay area were guests of the theatre. Previous to the party, the Does were entertained at the Palace Hotel as guests of Glen Gray . . . Bob Ginnif, of the Columbia ad sales department, was in first place this week in the nationwide Columbia drive. Bob hopes to top the nation in ad sales and has a fine start . . . Charles Huy, exploitation manager for the Golden Gate, has been promoted to a coastwide spot for RKO and Graham Kislingbury has moved to the Gate from the Warfield to fill the vacancy.

Chuck Bedell, champion barker for the Golden Gate Exposition in both 1939 and '40, has joined the selling staff of Pacific Premium . . . It is reported that Fox West Coast will convert one of their houses in Vallejo into a newsreel theatre. Vallejo is jammed with defense workers and such a theatre might be just the ticket . . . Ted Lewis makes his annual appearance at the Golden Gate beginning April 2. Carmen Miranda has also been signed for a personal, the date to be determined . . . April 15 has been set as the opening date of the city's newest night spot, "Stairway to the Stars." Sally Rand has been booked as the opening attraction.

The local 400 evidently knows its burlesque. An entertainer named Nanette Carmen was booked as being direct from Hollywood for her debut at the exclusive La Marimba Club. She made her debut and was recognized as a former burlie and smoker queen! . . . Bruce Norton, lobby artist for the Gate, is the first from that theatre to go to camp.

Only Average Business Is Garnered in Seattle

SEATTLE—Warm weather kept the theatre patrons wandering along the beaches. "Tobacco Road" held a second week at the Fifth but no theatre did real outstanding business. Suburban houses are gradually drifting to giveaways. Quiz programs, cash awards, and various others of the cash class are being used. Downtown houses at various times are giving away automobiles.

Colcatta Suit Against FWC Being Heard

LOS ANGELES—Going to trial Friday in U. S. district court here was the Colcatta Corp.'s $1,200,000 suit against Fox West Coast Theatres, charging monopoly and conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce.

Plaintiff, operating Bard's Colorado in Pasadena, asserts FWC illegally canceled its lease on the house in 1935, as a result of which, Colcatta contends, the theatre since has not been able to secure sufficient major studio product to insure profitable operation.

Preliminary details were disposed of, and documents and stipulations were entered in evidence, at a pre-trial hearing last week. Law firm of Wolfson and Schwab is representing Colcatta, with Albert J. Law, general counsel for the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, assisting. Defendant attorneys include Charles A. Buckley, head of FWC's legal staff; Gordon Hall, John Bertero and the law firms of Loeb and Loeb and Wright and Millikan.

Benefit Show March 28 For Greek War Relief

SALT LAKE CITY—To raise funds for Greek war relief, a special midnight benefit show is being held March 28 at the Utah. The show will consist of a picture and vaudeville acts. Tickets are $1 each.

Will Hear Goodstein Case on March 25

DENVER—First case, and the only one filed to date, to come before the local arbitration tribunal, has been set for hearing on March 25 before Arbiter George D. Begole, a former mayor of Denver.

J. J. Goodstein Enterprises, Inc., is asking a reallocation of the product of three companies, 20th Century-Fox, Paramount and Loew's, claiming a shortage of product for his Longmont at Longmont, Colo. Goodstein claims the three companies refuse to sell him any product, selling only to the Fox Longmont, which house is named as an interested party.

Los Angeles Tribunal Meets J. Noble Braden

LOS ANGELES—Members of the local tribunal of the American Arbitration Ass'n were given their first opportunity to meet J. Noble Braden, head of the AAA, in a session here Wednesday.

Braden arrived here for a routine checkup with William H. Elliott, clerk of the Los Angeles tribunal. Meeting here was highlighted by a review of the rules of arbitration under the federal consent decree. Following the session Braden checked out for San Francisco en route back to New York, with a stopover scheduled in Chicago.

As yet, Elliott reports, no cases have been submitted to his office for arbitration.

Summary of Hearing In This Issue

A summary of the arbitration board hearing in Chicago appears in this issue on page 6.

Arbitrator Hears Ken Clearance Complaint

CHICAGO—Hearing on the Ken Theatre complaint against RKO, Paramount and 20th Century-Fox took place Thursday before Arbitrator Charles P. Megan, a member of the Tolman & Megan law firm and ex-president of the Chicago Bar Association.

In its original complaint, the Ken charged that the companies named were giving clearance to Schoenstadt's Shakespeare and were not giving Ken clearance over Schoenstadt's Pix.

Alvin Landis of Landis & Landis, Chicago, represented the Ken, which is owned by Bennie Banowitz and John Landis. Eli Fink of Spitz & Adcock represented both Paramount and RKO and Clyde Eckhardt, branch manager here for 20th-Fox, represented his company.

Complaint Will Cite RKO, Fox Midwest

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo.—It is reported that the Shirley Theatre Corp., owner-operators of the 500-seat Rialto here, which was constructed last summer, will soon file a complaint with the arbitration tribunal at St. Louis charging that RKO is granting unreasonable clearance over the Rialto to Fox Midwest's 1,250-seat Broadway and the 755-seat Orpheum.

Readying Official Complaint By Shirley Theatre Corp.

ST. LOUIS—At the office of the arbitration tribunal in the Cotton Belt Building here, it was stated that official papers in the clearance dispute between the Shirley Theatre Corp. and the Fox Midwest circuit, had not been completed.

Mills Planning 18,000 Panorams This Year

CHICAGO—Herbert Mills, general superintendent and factory manager of the Mills Novelty Co. here, announces that the company plans to produce 18,000 Panoram motion picture machines for the Mills-Roosevelt Soundies this year. Mills reports that the first factory order for 5,000 Panoram machines are now coming off the production line.

Cabinets for the machines are being built at the local Mills factory. The projectors, amplifiers and entire sound system are manufactured by the RCA Mfg. Co. in their Camden and Indianapolis plants. The RCA Indianapolis plant was completed in October and was built especially for the manufacture of 16mm projectors such as is used in the Mills machines.

Lend a Hand to Greece With "Show of Shows"

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—All local theatres cooperated in the Greek War Relief campaign by staging a huge midnight "Show of Shows" benefit at the Orpheum Saturday.

"Pappy" Cheshire, radio entertainer, was emcee of the show, consisting of 12 outstanding vaudeville and night club acts plus the first run feature, "Girl in the News."

The show was one of many planned throughout the midwest by Barney Balaban and J. J. Rubens, co-chairmen of the theatre division of the national drive for funds to aid Greece.

Local theatres cooperating were the Esquire, Fox-Lincoln, Orpheum, Pantheon, Roxy, Senate, Southtown, State, Strand and Tivoli.

Gifts and Prices Are Not Their Problems

ST. LOUIS—Commenting on a suggestion that the proposed bill against the use of triple feature programs, to be sponsored in the Missouri general assembly, be broadened to include not only double feature bills but also a ban on merchandise gifts at theatres, a spokeswoman for the Better Films Council, which is advocating the measure, says that while there is some merit to the suggestion that double bills be banned, the women do not believe that it is proper for them to attempt to tell exhibitors what they should charge at their boxoffice.

A merchandise gift to a cash customer is in the nature of a price reduction, she points out, adding that that is a matter not within the scope of the Film Council's activities. "We are interested in the quality of motion pictures from the standpoint of education and public morals, and the possible effect of too lengthy films shows on the health of children who attend the shows.

"In presenting a proposed bill to the Missouri general assembly, we must be reasonable in our demands for legislation," she continued. "The fact that many theatres for years have been showing double feature bills, would make it hard to justify a contention that they would prove too great a strain on the eyes and nerves of picture theatre patrons. But when it comes to triple programs, four-hour shows and the like, we feel we are on sure ground. We have definite medical proof that too lengthy motion picture bills are injurious to children.

"Double bills should be eliminated since there are not enough good pictures to justify their continuation. We have found that out on our Family Nights."

Will Send Film Ratings To St. Louis Schools

ST. LOUIS—The Better Films Council has perfected arrangements to send its film ratings to every public grade and high school in the city.

A number of the parochial schools, as well as some of the public schools in the various districts also are receiving the ratings.

Photoplay clubs are now being organized in a number of the schools. Details of their operation have not been worked out as yet.

Bland said his company controls the copyrights on all the Essanay Chaplin films, and revealed that the syndicate plans to spend $10,000 synchronizing "Burlesque on Carmen" and "The Champion" with sound. Art Telser, who handled "The Birth of a Nation" re-issue in this territory, will handle the Chaplin pictures which are scheduled to be released within the next two months.

Inventories Pictures for Sheboygan Film Council

SHEBOYGAN, WIS.—The "good and bad" characteristics of the industry were expounded by the Rev. T. Parry Jones in an address before the Better Films Council here.

Charged as some of the weaknesses of the industry was the "cheapening of the home, looseness of family relationships, disregard for tradition, easy, unwise spending of money and a false representation of our standard of living."

The Rev. Jones pointed to the many historical pictures, the rise of the cartoon, the combination of good music with good art, the "excellent" portrayal of the news and the dramatization of literary classics as some of the favorable aspects of the business.

Tie-Breaking Vote Kills Wis. Fast-Time Measure

MADISON—Twice killed by the state senate and twice revived, daylight saving for Milwaukee county was apparently finally defeated when Lieut. Gov. Walter S. Goodland broke a tie 15 to 15 vote on the measure.

: Arbitration Sidelights :

PROCEEDINGS were held up a bit pending arrival of J. Noble Braden, who is in charge of all film arbitration tribunals throughout the country. Braden's train from Boston, scene of the first hearing the day previous, arrived in Chicago late and the hearing started at 10:10 a. m. Braden attended as an observer.

Clerk John F. Sullivan and Arbitrator Charles Z. Henkle conferred in the former's office prior to hearing.

Reversing the usual court procedure, witnesses for the "defendant," Loew's, Inc., were called first.

Smoking was permitted during the hearing. At one time so much smoke filled the room that a window had to be opened to clear it out.

Two arbitrators watched a portion of the proceedings—Russell Winslow, recently appointed, and Charles M. Megan, who was the arbitrator at Chicago's second hearing on Thursday.

A veritable battery of lawyers also was on hand. Eli Fink, Edward Blackman and Arthur A. Goldberg of Spitz & Adcock law firm were in attendance. The brothers Landis, Maxwell and Alvin, of Landis & Landis, were also present.

Aaron Stein of Rosenberg, Stein & Rosenberg was another observer.

Bronzed from the Florida sun was the M-G-M lawyer, Edmond W. Lee II, having recently returned to New York from his winter vacation.

F. W. Anderson, owner of the Morris and Times theatres in Morris, Ill., competing houses to E. F. Van Derveer's State, was not present at the hearing.

Felix Mendelssohn Offers Cosmetic Line to Theatres

CHICAGO—Felix Mendelssohn, who was branch manager for M-G-M here from 1926 until he retired in 1938, has returned to the theatre business as Chicago representative of the Constance Bennett Cosmetic Company, Hollywood. Mendelssohn, together with his son, has opened offices in the Exhibitor's Building at 1325 S. Wabash Avenue.

Initial Chicago customer is the L. Reinheimer circuit which will start the cosmetic deal at three theatres, the Tiffin, Alamo and State on April 25 and 26. Each week, for 15 weeks, a different product is given feminine patrons. A 450 feet Technicolor short starring Constance Bennett is provided each theatre handling the line. In the short, Miss Bennett explains the different uses and proper application methods of the cosmetics.

ST. LOUIS

When he moved out, George Kerasotes, general manager of the Kerasotes Theatres, just to keep it in the film family, moved into the one vacated by Berman.

William Baker to Helm of Republic Chicago Office

CHICAGO—William "Bill" Baker, veteran film salesman, will become the new branch manager of the local Republic exchange on Monday. For the past 3½ years, Baker has been with United Artists here and prior to that was a salesman for Universal Pictures for 18 years.

Baker succeeds Harry Lorch who is resigning to devote his full time to his two local theatres, the Harvard and the East Side. Lorch will remain at the exchange until March 29 in order to familiarize Baker with his new duties.

A buffet luncheon honoring the Messrs. Lorch and Baker will be held Monday noon in Republic's temporary headquarters located in the Warner Building. Many prominent circuit and independent operators are expected to attend the party.

Next September Republic, together with RKO, will move into a new two-story exchange to be erected by Harry Mandel on the southwest corner of 13th and Wabash. Until that time, Republic's offices and poster department will be located in the Warner building while the film, shipping and receiving departments will be located in a small building in the rear of Republic's present quarters at 1304 S. Wabash Ave. The present Republic building is being demolished in order to make way for the new exchange.

Adapted Trailers as Selling Aid Sought

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—A call for trailers adapted to market the feature according to the demands of the patronage—thus more actionful or more "class"—as needed, has been made by Abe H. Kaufman, president of the Terre Haute Theatres Ass'n, in letters to the trade press and the responsible segments of the industry.

Citing the preparation by producers of two kinds of one sheets, two styles of threes, and varied mats, some stressing the action and some the other phases of a picture, Kaufman suggests that trailers be given the same treatment. He expresses confidence that many pictures now passed up by many exhibitors as not suited to their patronage, would be played when their marketing was thus facilitated.

From the Newspapers

CHICAGO — An exchange of managers has been effected by the Indiana-Illinois Theatres, Inc., which has moved Don Johnson from the Gayety to the Lex and Bob Griffith from the Lex to the Gayety.

HUNTINGBURG, IND. — More than $50,000 worth of stock is reported subscribed for the erection of a new theatre here. Chris H. Winkenhofer, owner of the Gem, is one of the directors of the new company, known as the Huntingburg Amusement Co.

WHITING, IND.—Chick Tompkins, manager of the Hoosier, has been transferred by the Indiana-Illinois Theatre Ass'n to Elkhart where he will be city manager. Succeeding him is Art Wartha, former manager of theatres in Elkhart and LaPorte.

Declares That Films Make Immorality Fascinating

MILWAUKEE—Elimination of block booking, the double feature, the removal of drinking in pictures and the introduction of more educational features were recommended by the Rev. John Lewis of Calvary Presbyterian Church as a means of improving films, in an address before the Better Films Council here.

"The movie should at all times represent a higher type of hero and heroine," Dr. Lewis said. "What makes a picture immoral is not that it deals with immoral situations, but that it presents immorality in a fascinating way. That is the supreme danger of the movie today."

For Smart Showmanship, Columbia Cites Jones

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—Dave Jones, manager of the Senate, is cited in the February issue of Columbia's "Mirror" magazine for his smart showmanship.

The magazine says that smart showmanship means knowing what the public wants and how to give it to them, and that Jones proves that showmanship is boxoffice by combining Columbia pressbook ads with ballyhoo ideas that stirred local audience interest and stimulated greater boxoffice grosses for "This Thing Called Love" and "Arizona."

Next Autry for Landers

HOLLYWOOD—Lew Landers will direct "Singing Hills," forthcoming Gene Autry for Republic. Harry Grey will produce.

Not Responsible for Actions of a Cat

Milwaukee—A civil court jury here held the management of Warner-Saxe's Uptown Theatre not responsible for a black cat, which jumped onto the lap of Mrs. Charlotte Collar Piasecki, while she was viewing a mystery-thriller at the theatre. Mrs. Piasecki sued the management for $1,000, charging the cat belonged to the theatre. The house denied ownership, however.

Hempstead to Conference

CHICAGO—David Hempstead, young RKO producer, passed through Chicago en route to New York and a conference with Ben Hecht who will author the screenplay of "Journey Into Fear," on which Hempstead plans to start production May 1. The film, to be adapted from Eric Ambler's recently published novel, has Michelle Morgan slated for the top feminine role.

Six Deemed Best

CHICAGO—Mae Tinee, Chicago Tribune film critic, chose the following films as best pictures to be shown here during February: "This Thing Called Love" (Col); "Back Street" (Univ); "High Sierra" (WB); "Virginia" (Para't); "Fantasia" (Disney) and "Land of Liberty" (M-G-M).

New Soundies Reel Ready For Slot-Film Machines

CHICAGO—Gordon Mills, president of Soundies Distributing Corporation, has announced that a new Soundies reel is now ready for the Mills-Roosevelt Panoram Soundies Machines. Known as Release Number 4, the reel is comprised of eight three-minute subjects, four of which were produced by Globe Productions, headed by Jimmy Roosevelt, and four by Cameo Productions, headed by Sam Coslow. To date, a total of four reels or 32 subjects have been produced.

The four Globe numbers in the new release are: "There I go," featuring Joy Hodges and Robert Wayne with Rudolph Friml jr.'s orchestra; "Frenesi," starring Anita Carmargo with Fernando's orchestra; "Pan Americonga," featuring Rita Ria; and Susan Miller in "Stupid Little Cupid."

The Cameo Productions, directed by Roy Mack, include "12th Street Rag" with Buddy Rogers and his orchestra; "Jive, Little Gypsy, Jive" with Bobby Sherwood's orchestra, and Diano Castillo dancing; "I Know Somebody Who Loves You," sung by Gale Storm accompanied by the Fashionaires; and "Am I in Love With a Song?" sung by Gene Grounds, played by the Melody Maids with dance routine by Baron and Blair.

"Dame" to Columbia

HOLLYWOOD—Columbia has acquired "Just Another Dame," a story by Robert Hyde. Irving Briskin will produce.

Two Gillman Plaints Involving Product

MINNEAPOLIS—Two more complaints, one of them involving the matter of film prices, have been filed with the arbitration tribunal here making a total of three to date.

Both emanate from David Gillman, who alleges his Gayety, lower loop subsequent-run dime house, is being treated unfairly on product. One of the complaints is against Paramount, the other against 20th-Fox.

Paramount is charged with refusing to sell product to the Gayety at a fair rental and making unreasonable demands in the matter of booking such pictures. Gillman asks the tribunal "to direct Paramount to license pictures on some run to the Gayety at a fair rental in accordance with Section 6 of the consent decree."

In the other complaint, it is charged 20th-Fox is refusing to sell the Gayety. Gillman asks the tribunal to direct it to do so on some run.

The first complaint, made by the White Bear Theatre, White Bear, Minn., is against M-G-M, Warner, RKO and 20th-Fox because of "refusal to sell" it on some run.

Two Goldberg Employes Lose $1,500 to Bandits

OMAHA—Two employes of the R. D. Goldberg circuit were robbed of $1,500 while making a nightly collection of receipts from the circuit's seven houses. The victims were James H. Nicholson, manager of the Arbor and Avenue, and O. H. "Jimmy" Schlatter, manager of the Military.

Nicholson picked up the boxoffice "take" at his two houses and then went to the Military, where Schlatter joined him. They stopped at Goldberg's Winn, and were en route to Omaha's main business section to make collections at the Town and State when three bandits in a car forced them to stop. Nicholson tried to drive away, but one of the bandits fired a gun through the car window and the bullet grazed Nicholson's chest, cutting a hole in his shirt.

Weather Relentless

MINNEAPOLIS—Exhibitors in this territory are getting the very worst possible weather breaks. Every weekend seems to bring a heavy snow storm or ice-coated roads and streets which make driving hazardous. It has been one of the longest drawn out winters within memory.

North Dakota Spared Added Ticket Tax

Bismarck, N. D.—The North Dakota legislature has adjourned without passing a measure calling for additional theatre admission taxes.

Vote on Anti-Decree Bill Seen Within Fortnight

MINNEAPOLIS—A final vote on the anti-consent decree bill, contravening the groups-of-five selling plan, is expected in the Minnesota state legislature within the next fortnight. Northwest Allied, which is sponsoring the measure, confidently predicts passage.

Northwest Allied came through the first test with flying colors, the judiciary committee of the lower house recommending the bill for passage by a vote of 18 to 2. Following the conclusion of its hearings, the senate's committee on general legislation will prepare its report. The measure should reach the floors of both chambers before the end of the month.

Opposition by Distributors

Allied against the bill now are M-G-M, Warner, 20th-Fox, RKO and UA. If the measure becomes a law, UA, selling pictures individually, will not be able to continue doing business in Minnesota, the senate committee was informed at the public hearing.

Moe Levy, 20th-Fox district manager, joined David Shearer, counsel for his company, in speaking against the bill. If it is enacted, he declared, Fox will not sell its product in Minnesota, except to the Minnesota Amusement Co., a franchise holder.

"We do not propose to violate the consent decree," asserted Levy. "It is our desire to work under it because it has been set up by the federal government. It provides a streamlined selling method. My company would not find it practical to have a different sales setup in Minnesota from the one in other states."

The bill would compel distributors to offer for sale their entire season's product, the same as at present, grant a cancellation privilege of at least 20 per cent and to refrain from forced selling of shorts, trailers, newsreels, foreigns and westerns.

The Docket

Minneapolis

CASE NO. 1—Filed March 7. Demand and submission involving some run. White Bear Theatre Corp., operator of the White Bear at White Bear Lake, Minn. With: Loew's, Inc., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. Named as interested party: State, same town. Complainant alleges the distributors named refuse to license his theatre for 1940-41 product in favor of the State.

CASE NO. 2—Filed March 17. Demand and submission demanding some run. David Gillman, operator of the Gayety, Minneapolis, Minn. With: Paramount Pictures Dist. Corp. Complainant alleges the distributor refuses to sell product to the Gayety at a fair rental and is making unreasonable demands in the matter of booking such pictures.

CASE NO. 3—Filed March 17. Demand and submission demanding some run. David Gillman, operator of the Gayety, Minneapolis. With: 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. Complainant charges 20th-Fox is refusing to sell product to the Gayety.

To Capital Before Going To Paramount Meeting

Make a Deal and See a Show—

Republic and Ice Capades, Inc., executives, in Kansas City to formalize a contract for production by Republic of "Ice Capades of 1941," attend the ice show at the Pla-Mor rink. Left to right in box seats are Herbert J. Yates, Republic chairman; John H. Harris, circuit owner and head of Ice Capades, Inc.; Fred North, Republic producer; M. J. Siegel, production chief, and Robert F. Withers, Republic-Midwest manager in Kansas City.

"No Concessions" in Cassil Damage Suit Dismissal

KANSAS CITY—No concessions, monetary or affecting future operating policy of the Dubinsky houses in St. Joseph were granted in the withdrawal of the $452,775 damage suit of Frank and Eugenia Cassil against the circuit and eight major distributors, according to Ed (Dubinsky) Durwood, head of the theatre chain.

The case was dismissed Saturday in federal court at St. Joseph on motion of the plaintiffs after Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis had indicated their case had not been proved and after the defendants had filed a motion for dismissal on that ground.

End Came Suddenly To Cassil Suit

ST. JOSEPH—The trial of Frank and Eugenia Cassil against the Dubinsky circuit and major distributors was going into its fifth day when attorneys for the Cassils, who operate the Rialto and Uptown, two subsequent run neighborhood houses here, presented the request for a dismissal with prejudice. Such motion waived the right of the Cassils to further litigation in the case.

The Cassils had alleged a conspiracy via the Missouri, Electric and Orpheum theatres to perpetuate a monopoly on films shown in St. Joseph.

At the close of testimony and evidence for the Cassils late the previous afternoon, Judge Otis excused the jury for two hours and heard arguments on a motion, by attorneys for the Dubinskys and distributors, to dismiss the suit. After the arguments Judge Otis told the attorneys that if the case was being tried before him and not by the jury he would decide then for the Dubinskys and distributors. The judge said, however, he would not take the case from the jury until after all the defendants' testimony and evidence was submitted.

Conspiracy Denied

Judge Otis said that when all of the defendants' evidence was in, he again would hear arguments on the motion and decide whether there was anything to submit to the jury. Although the judge expressed the opinion that the Cassils had not proven their case, he said he wanted to receive all the testimony and evidence because an appeal court might reverse his decision.

The court asked newspaper reporters not to publish his opinion, so it would not be read by the jurors, and the trial was resumed with a night session Friday night.

A conspiracy was denied by four witnesses for the defendants at the Friday night session. The witnesses were Ralph LiBeau, district manager for Paramount; Ward E. Scott, district manager for 20th-Fox; George W. Fuller, branch manager for 20th-Fox, and Frank C. Hensler, branch manager, M-G-M, all of Kansas City.

Attorneys for the Dubinskys and distributors sought to prove in cross-examination of the Cassils that the plaintiffs profited from their theatre business in the period they charge the Dubinskys and distributors conspired against them.

On cross-examination, Cassil said he owned his home in St. Joseph, three motor cars, and a cabin at Sugar Lake, a resort south of St. Joseph. The Cassils recently opened the Uptown, also, it was brought out.

First witness in the suit was Cassil, who testified that his business difficulties at the Rialto began shortly after the Dubinskys assumed control of the Missouri and other theatres in the downtown district.

Cassil testified that in 1932 he learned that his bookings with Paramount for the Rialto were set two weeks behind the Crystal, a Dubinsky second-run house. Because of that situation, Cassil said, he was forced to reduce his 20-cent admission at the Rialto to 15 cents to meet the Crystal price, with a consequent loss.

Cassil said he protested to Paramount and was told that the company had made a deal giving Dubinskys protection over other St. Joseph theatres in connection with a transaction the Dubinskys had made for the Paramount interests in the downtown district here.

10-Year Booking Franchise

Another official of Paramount told him that Dubinskys and Paramount had entered into a ten-year franchise on bookings, and nothing could be done to give Cassil a better arrangement on bookings, he testified.

The Missouri and other theatres in the downtown district were owned by the Lincoln Theatre Corp. and Paramount-Publix before the Dubinskys obtained the interests some eight years ago.

Efforts to introduce into the records information on prices paid by the Dubinskys for films were denied by Judge Otis. The court ruled that the information was not relevant to the case, and since it was a business matter which the Dubinskys desired to keep secret it should not be revealed unless proven relevant.

"The distributor certainly would be able to make a lower price to an exhibitor for a second run if the exhibitor also took the first run," Judge Otis commented, adding that no evidence of conspiracy could be derived from that fact.

Prior to the court's ruling, testimony had been to the effect that the Dubinskys were playing films second run at the Crystal and Electric before the Cassils could get them for their Rialto.

Depositions relating to booking contracts between the Dubinskys and the distributors were read as attorneys for the Cassils sought to prove that the protection given the Dubinskys was part of the conspiracy against the Cassils.

The depositions were those of LiBeau, Scott, Hensler, Grover C. Parsons, Universal; W. E. Truog, United Artists; William Williamson, Vitagraph, Inc.; T. R. Thompson, RKO Radio, and Ben Marcus, Columbia. All of the branch or district managers are of Kansas City.

Truog testified in his deposition that theatre tickets in St. Joseph and Kansas City cost less than in cities of corresponding size. The situation in both cities is "murderous," not only for the operators but for the trade, said Truog.

In another deposition, Edward Dubinsky Durwood, head of the Durwood-Dubinsky interests, said he believed he had to maintain a low price schedule in St. Joseph to meet Kansas City competition.

In their testimony after the defendants' motion to dismiss had been argued, LiBeau, Scott, Fuller and Hensler all denied the alleged conspiracy, explaining that their booking contract negotiations with the Dubinskys were carried out individually and separately.

Sought Most Profitable Outlet

It was brought out in the testimony, also, that the distributors attempted to sell their product to the exhibitors that could return them the most revenue, which in St. Joseph they considered to be the Dubinskys.

Because of the unexpected end to the trial, home office executives of the distributors were not brought to St. Joseph from New York. Some big names in the industry were scheduled to testify for the defendants in the trial.

The defendant distributors were Loew's, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., Paramount, 20th-Fox, Universal, Columbia, United Artists and RKO Radio. Attorneys for the defendants were Edward Raftery, New York City; Paul Stinson, Kansas City, and Charles Mayer and Floyd Sprague, St. Joseph.

The Cassils' attorneys were Paul F. Good, Lincoln, Neb.; Harry Cohen, Omaha, and Louis Kranitz, St. Joseph.

The suit was filed in court here April 29, 1940. The defendants asked a bill of particulars last September 16, and the plaintiffs filed the bill October 5. Judge Otis overruled the defendants' motion to strike the bill of particulars and dismiss the suit last December 23.

Most of the 400 exhibits presented in the trial were contracts between the Dubinskys and the distributors. Much of the trial time was given over to reading of depositions.

Opening New Lyric

COLBY, KAS.—Don Phillips is opening a new theatre, the Lyric, here. It replaces his former theatre, the Colby, which will be closed.

Without an Enemy and Without a Grudge

Omaha—A fine tribute was paid to the late Charlie Willliams, president of MPTO of Nebraska and western Iowa, who died recently, by Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA president, when he was in Omaha.

"Charlie," Kuykendall said, "had something out of life that no amount of money can buy. He died without an enemy in the world and he died without holding a grudge against any person."

"Tobacco Road" More Than Doubles Gross

KANSAS CITY—"Tobacco Road" brought more than double the average attendance at the Esquire, downtown, and substantially more than average to the suburban first run Uptown, against strong competition from non-picture attractions. Two days of a popular police circus came in the week under review, and also part of the basketball tournaments that pull both attendance and radio listeners, both at downtown Municipal Auditorium. The "Ice-Capades of 1941," reported moving toward film production, had two days in this week, at the Pla-Mor, suburban rink and dancing center. One of the heaviest snowfalls of the winter came in this period. Other first run attractions did around average, except "So Ends Our Night," which, supported by "Blondie Goes Latin" fell behind.

"Private Secretary" on a Dual Does Best in Omaha

OMAHA—Tri-States' 2,000-seater, the Omaha, leaped into the fore this week with "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary" and "Blonde Inspiration," drawing top business. Comparatively clear, warm weather has been helping the grosses, exhibitors report.

"Buck Privates" and "You're the One" was above average at the Orpheum, and the former picture was held a second week as second feature to the Orpheum's new bill. The Brandeis record of five straight holdovers was set by "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" and "Case of the Black Parrot."

"Vivacious Lady" Revival Outgrosses All in DM

DES MOINES—"Vivacious Lady" played a vivacious jingle at the boxoffice here this week with the Ginger Rogers-James Stewart revival setting the pace in downtown houses. At the Orpheum its gross was almost identical with the take when it had its first run at the Des Moines years ago—but it wasn't paired with "Bringing Up Baby" then. The double comedy comeback gave the RKO house its twelfth consecutive week of above average business. While the Paramount suffered, the Des Moines better than held its own against the Academy award winners with "the most shocking of all stage plays" on the screen.

Percentages for the week ending March 20:

"Pastor Hall" Alone Tops Average in Lincoln

LINCOLN—It was all "Pastor Hall" last week, as far as boxoffice color was concerned. Placed in the cheap-priced Variety, it had unusual stamina.

"Hudson's Bay" did very weakly, and "Dr. Kildare Goes Home" augmented by an amateur stage bill, didn't get anywhere.

"GWTW" Towers Over All Minneapolis Opposition

MINNEAPOLIS—Below zero temperatures and blizzards last weekend, tough opposition from the "Ice Follies" and the Shriners' Indoor Circus, Lent and the necessity of meeting income tax payments have been hurting business here. A Bill to Regulate Bank Night Dies

DES MOINES—A bill designed to regulate theatre Bank Night was voted down Tuesday by the house in the Iowa legislature. The vote was 50 to 43.

At the same time, the distributor tax bill, calling for a $1,000 license fee from motion picture distributors and a $1 a reel tax, was automatically killed when it failed to be reported out after three days in the steering committee.

The Bank Night regulation bill was killed only after heated debate. Bank Nights were described as "vicious rackets yielding tremendous profits" to the film industry.

Representative Gustave Alesch, a Democrat from Marcus, Ia., commented during debate: "It was common gossip in one former legislature I served in, that $25,000 was spent to beat a Bank Night bill. I am wondering whether there hasn't been some money spent this time to kill bills designed to eliminate a racket and a curse in connection with motion picture shows."

After the final vote on the measure, Alesch arose and asked: "I wonder how many of those aye votes got free tickets for themselves and their wives?"

The house killed the bill by voting to accept the report of its committee on police regulations which had recommended indefinite postponement of the measure.

The measure, presented by Rep. Joseph Wagner, a Democrat from Ottumwa, Ia., would have compelled theatres to award a prize on every Bank Night and would have prohibited more than three theatres from combining in any Bank Night plan.

In Des Moines, nine Tri-States theatres are combined in a Tuesday Bank Night, while a group of independent houses conduct a Thursday drawing. The Orpheum has Screeno on Tuesdays.

Goodwill Trade Meeting In Omaha on April 22

OMAHA—Plans are being made for a "good-will" gathering in Omaha April 22 open to "everyone in the industry and affiliated trades." The event will be sponsored by members of Variety.

Ted Mendenhall, chief barker, is directing arrangements, to be assisted by several committees to be selected soon.

Ed Kuykendall, president of MPTOA, was in Omaha to confer with exhibitor and distributor representatives about the affair, which Kuykendall suggested. He talked to exhibitors including Bob Livingston, Lincoln; Walter Creal, Beacon, Omaha, representing independents, and Sam Epstein, Epstein circuit, Omaha, representing smaller circuits.

Kuykendall also talked to Joe Kinsky, Tri-States district manager, and other branch managers in addition to Mendenhall, who is Paramount boss here. The program shapes up something like this, for the one-day affair:

Afternoon—Business meeting open to everyone, at which the consent decree and other industry points will be discussed from all angles. Free to everyone.

A short business meeting of members of MPTO of Nebraska and Western Iowa will be held to elect officers and transact other business. Free but open only to members.

Evening—Banquet at which Kuykendall and two or three other persons prominent in the industry will be speakers. A dance will follow. The price on the dinner-dance has not been decided yet.

"Exhibitors will be able to come to the two business meetings and go home, at no cost to them, if they do not have the time to remain for the entertainment at night," Kuykendall told BOXOFFICE. "We want everyone possible, including exhibitors and distributors, ushers and poster clerks, just everyone connected with the industry, to attend the business sessions at least."

The purpose of the "good-will" gathering is to promote closer relationship among all filmites and exhibitors, he said.

"This is going to be one of the best and one of the most important industry meetings ever held in Omaha," Kuykendall said. "That's why I want you to say in BOXOFFICE that the meeting is for everyone."

120 Hear Tom Collins At Variety Luncheon

KANSAS CITY—Over 120 people, many of them exhibitors, attended this year's first Variety Club luncheon meeting at which a speaker appeared. Tom Collins, whose aptly turned humor is much in demand in Kansas City, was warmly received.

Arthur Cole, secretary, who characterized the luncheon as a real success, is already making plans for the next one to be held April 21.

N. Robertson, Gilliog, Springfield, Mo.

Attention: Mrs. William Blair! Bill Blair, Blair, Osborne, Kas., was among those seen on the Row. (From what Bill says, there seems to have been some doubt) . . . J. T. Ghosen, who is busy these days building that new theatre in Waynesville, Mo., took time out to buy some seats from Missouri Theatre Supply . . . "Chet" Ward, Paramount, who recently underwent an appendicitis operation, should be back on the Row by the time this column appears.

Along Filmrow's "Drive" Front: The Kleins, the Kelleys, and the Kanes are still leading the pack at Universal in the "Bill Scully" Drive . . . The "Ned Depinet" Drive at RKO received additional impetus from the recent conference at exchange headquarters between salesmen of the exchange area and several of the company's executives, namely: Leo Devaney, drive captain; Cresson E. Smith, western sales manager; Harry Michalson, short subjects sales manager; and Walter Branson, district manager . . . The "James R. Grainger" Drive is an exhibitor's drive, and according to Republic Branch Manager R. P. Withers, it's really clicking.

This week the Row says farewell to two of its active members, both of Altec: Joe Lysowski, who is resigning to go to Dallas, Tex., and Al Briggs, service engineer, being transferred to Tulsa, Okla. . . . "Man in the Dark"—Art Siebenthaler, Missouri Film Co., who spends most of his life in the dark room developing film, thus coming by a night club pallor honestly. But he doesn't mind, because he likes to get away from people some times. A round peg in a round hole.

Tent No. 8 this week welcomed in two new barkers, George Blanton of the Kansas City Star, and A. G. Optican of Optican Bros. Novelty Co. . . . Warren Webber, exhibitor of Ellinwood, St. John and Stafford, Kas., swept along the Row recently in a brand new shiny Cadillac . . . Tom Edwards, Eldon, Ozark, Kas., is a quite successful dog fancier. Primarily a hunting man, he recently sold a pedigreed pup for $50. Tom's kennel at present amounts to six dogs, all pedigreed.

Straight from R. P. Withers, chairman of the distributors' Greek War Relief committee, comes an acknowledgment of the splendid cooperation shown by KC's exchangemen . . . Did you read Lowell Lawrance's recent Journal column in which he described the advantages of a Kansas City

Spring Festival? It sounded like a real "draw" to bring them in from the surrounding area, according to many on Filmrow. For information or to express your opinion where it will do some good, call or write Lawrance at the Journal.

At the request of Betty Wrenn, Universal switchboard girl, the Marceline, Mo., chamber of commerce sent a prospectus of the town to the "Super Bookers" at Universal, Iz (Steam) Daynosky, Larry (Superman) Klein, and John (Citizen) Kane, who, according to Miss Wrenn, were going in restaurant business there. "Steam" was to be dishwasher, "Citizen," the waiter, and "Superman," the cook. But the boys aren't going to do it after all. They just found out "Superman" can't cook.

As part of the day's work, your correspondent walked into Monogram headquarters where L. D. Cunningham was explaining a new process he had developed for handling language films to Booker Richard Salk, who was failing to comprehend. After 15 technical moments, we stumbled out into the fresh air, gasping. Salk was inside, gasping. Worth noting is the fact the bewildered expression stayed on Salk's face till late next day.

Big Things in Omaha For Greek Campaign

OMAHA—Plans are being completed by Ted Emerson, general chairman of the Omaha committee, for big things as this city's contribution to the Greek War Relief Drive.

Top feature will be a midnight stage show on March 29 at the Orpheum, a midnight deal, with local radio entertainers, ballroom bands, etc., contributing their time. Tickets are 50 cents and all proceeds will go to the relief fund.

Collections will be taken up at every performance in all Omaha theatres during the drive, March 25-30. Trailers will be run and a city-wide advertising and press campaign carried out, Emerson informs BOXOFFICE.

Joseph Kinsky, Tri-States district manager, and Ted Mendenhall, Paramount exchange manager, are Omaha zone co-chairmen. Sam Epstein, Epstein circuit, is treasurer, and committee members are:

Midnight show—William Miskell, chairman; Lyle DeMoss, Cliff Johnson, Gordon Giffen.

Collections—Milton Overman, chairman; Sidney Epstein, Harry Watts, Joe Scott.

Publicity—Ted Emerson, chairman; Louise Cotter, Keith Wilson, Jake Rachman, Monte Davis, Barney Oldfield.

Ticket sales—Don Allen, Randall Wilton McIlvaine, Jack Epstein.

Omaha business and civic leaders comprise the civic committee working on the drive.

Greek War Relief Week Off to Smooth Start

KANSAS CITY—The Greek War Relief Week in this exchange area swung smoothly into action, with most of the exhibitors scheduled to run the special trailer by Melvyn Douglas for the first time on their Sunday matinee program. Three hundred and three are participating in the drive.

Present reports indicate the midnight screening at the Midland, which will be presented in conjunction with a stage show, will be a sellout, the downtown theatres giving it full support.

Symphony Concert Headlines Show for Greek War Relief

MINNEAPOLIS—A half-hour concert by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra will headline the big benefit show at the Orpheum here April 2 for Greek relief. John J. Friedl, Minnesota Amusement Co. president, is general chairman for this territory. Quota is $23,500. His lieutenants include C. B. Stiff, Bill Sears and Eddie Ruben.

Suburban theatres in the Twin Cities and out-of-town houses have been asked to pass the basket and run trailers or put on special shows. There will be a benefit show at the St. Paul Orpheum April 3.

The Minneapolis show also will include, in addition to the Minneapolis Symphony, Ray Herrick and Ran Wilde's bands and many acts.

LINCOLN

HOWARD FEDERER is anxious to hear when the next selective service registration will be called. He says he's old enough now to register . . . J. H. Cooper pulled a double surprise last week. He surprised Theatrerow by showing up unannounced, and surprised again when the boys looked around and he was gone . . . Vincent J. DiFiore just found out being in the finance department with the army is no protection. A guy can be drafted from there! . . . Joy Hodges, vacationing in Omaha from Hollywood, was guest of C Company, 3rd Infantry, at Ft. Crook, Neb., for a day and wound up being made a corporal.

R. W. Huffman and Roy Anderson are laying for a grudge golf match with C. W. "Ching" Allen, of RKO, and Joe Scott, of 20th Century-Fox. Last match, they had "tea" prior to going to tee, and the Huffman-Anderson did 36 holes in 18 and everything else was double, too . . . Jim Stoddard, of the Stuart crew, is being ribbed for tossing a week's pay to make a good impression on a new date and she bid him goodbye through the screen door . . . Bill Knight got to feeling so tough during the playing of "Pastor Hall," he was sorry his draft board found him to be overweight . . . Family stuff: Capt. Barney Oldfield is on Bill Miskell's Greek War Relief committee in Omaha, and Mrs. B. O. is on the committee handling it here.

Bob Livingston denies that his wife, Barbara, spending the winter in California, has written back from the coast asking him to buy her one of those whopper umbrellas . . . Harvey Traylor has piled up an amazing percentage of wins in ping-pong. He plays it smart, waiting until a customer comes along who doesn't know anything about the game. Harvey offers to teach 'em, if they'll let him win . . . Ted Mendenhall and Ted Emerson were in town on Greek war relief business, huddling with Huffman, Livingston, Federer and Dean Pohlenz on the Journal.

The George O. Monroes came back from Florida just in time to meet that income tax deadline. This has been a winter of windows for them—pari-mutuel at Hialeah and percentage at the federal building . . . The A. A. Burruses of Crete were in the Hurricane country at the same time . . . Lincoln used to provide all the funny things in the film business, but Bill Miskell in Omaha is taking the play away. He held over a second feature ("Buck Privates") with a new first run —and did business.

Carl Reese says the only adventure Gene Autry hasn't had is to ride in and take an overbought exhibitor during Lent, and he doubts if even Autry could do it! . . . Monroe Rubinger was in to set that Wednesday midwest opening for "Meet John Doe" at the Lincoln. Paul Anderson expected to be served with a J. D. warrant ever since he left, Rubinger being known for such gags . . . C. K. Olson and Alice Neal of Warner's exchange are about to install a luncheonette in their screening room, since they elect to roll machines at the stroke of 12 . . . Alvin Hendricks' gag of the pulse-tester, "Measure for Pleasure," was good, but when he saw Carole Landis in her "Road Show" tights, his reaction was better—or worse.

STORK CLUB: Even as you read this, Herb Loeffler up at Art Schuyler's National Theatre Supply may be the strutting pawpaw of quints . . . at least Herb's talking quints, is really expecting twins, and will take what he gets. Jean Post is doggedly denying those Di-Dy-Ho rumors (erroneously being attributed to George Beaumeister) and is trying to counter-act them by stating he and Dot have decided never to extend an invitation to the long-legged fellow (don't count on never entertaining the old bird, just the same, Jean—he's a rude old cuss who drops in to call without being invited, and almost always when you're least expecting him).

Junior Dept.: Hey, fellas, have you met Judy Elaine? Then you've missed the most gorgeous blonde in DM, according to Bing Miller . . . she's been Bing's big moment for about seven months . . . and instead of being secretive about it, Bing goes around telling the world . . . but Mrs. Bing doesn't seem to object, in fact, she's as taken in by the Judy girl as Bing! Jerry Slutsky's fretting about the high cost of shoes already and the kid's just nine months old . . . wait'll he starts kicking tin cans all the way home from school, Jerry, then you'll really have troubles. Everybody on the Row says that if you could reduce Bert Thomas about one-fourth, you'd have Buddy . . . the Thomas kids (the other one's Phyllis) are supposed to have all the traditional Thomas handsomeness and charm.

Lou Levy says every exhibitor in Iowa is writing in for a Baby Sandy Doll and he contends it's all our fault . . . we'll stop when we get the doll, Lou, and not before . . . in fact, we believe we'll start campaigning for all the exhibitors who've written in, too . . . after all, Lou, in trying to unsell us on the idea of wanting one, weren't you telling us how cheap they were per gross? We feel about like the independents do about these drives, but we guess they're news . . . Columbia's in the throes of the annual Goodwill Drive, March 1 to May 30, and of course Evidon's boys will finish in the money as usual.

Frank Thomas and George Campbell were swinging down High, Saturday, looking as if they'd both just got a 50 per cent increase in salary or something . . . We caught Al Hill just as he was locking the door at Lou Elman's joint . . . brazenly, we asked him what was new, and the two gentlemen with Al looked us over and then walked on, discreetly leaving us standing there alone with Al as though the conversation were private . . . we stuttered, felt embarrassed, asked Al how was Mrs. Hill, and then rushed off with red face and without the two gentlemen's names.

Comes a letter from Joe Heppner in NY announcing that he's with Walt Disney at least temporarily until they find him out. Joe's the greatest wit since Joe Miller, besides being a darn good pitcher-taker . . . and listen, Joe, don't think BOXOFFICE didn't get it when you subtly referred to her as the "child bride" . . . you meant second childhood, didn't you? Just for that, we're gonna publish some of those cracks you made at the Carlton Hotel in Washington last winter . . . 'member convulsing BOXOFFICE & Co. by accusing Charlie Levy of pulling that Rarebit out of the hat?

The voice of KVAK in Atchison, Kas., is now Iles & McKinney . . . We were surprised when the boys popped up on motorcycles, but we never expected to find them riding the airwaves . . . Mac is back from Florida and we found him poring over the income report in one of those green sport shirts from the Utica (price $3.98, we bought a blue one for & Co.). Everybody on the Row is cheering because Dallas Day's supposed to get back home in a couple of weeks.

Don Songer of National Theatre Supply got in deep water with a gal from Deep River . . . she gave Don a watch and he gave her the air . . . the boys at National say she's got a nice telephone voice, and apparently she can keep it so far as Don's concerned . . . Our hair turned white, we developed three double chins, and had to be pushed out of National in a wheelchair when we discovered that we used to play tennis with Harold Songer, who is Don's pappy . . . Don is 21 . . . we can't figure it out, but we'll just have to assume that Harold married at a very tender age.

The gentlemen of the press get treated pretty shabbily sometimes, we thinks when we see the fine copper spike mounted on walnut which adorns the biggie exhib's desks, and then take a look at the ordinary railroad spikes painted with a little bronze paint which ballyhooed "Union Pacific" to the hardworking newsmen . . . But then there are compensations, even if they can't be taken advantage of . . . Such as the week in Florida Universal offered BOXOFFICE & Co. about a month ago (we also refused Universal's invitation to NY for the "Underpup" premiere, Warner's request that we show up at South Bend for "Knute Rockne" and a lot of others we can't remember just now) . . . latest caviar dangled before a starving newsman and frau was an air trip to San Antonio to see "I Wanted Wings" . . . and gosh how we want 'em.

Cuthbert Smith got Mel Evidon's name on an order for a stack of shirts . . . Cuthbert reports a thriving business along the Row and says that if he keeps on he'll sell enough tweeds and shirts up there to make up for the money he lost bringing those foreign-made films to town. . . . The high schoolers here for a massed concert at the music teachers' convention broke out of rehearsals long enough Monday noon to see "Hard-Boiled Canary."

Milt Howe writes from the coast that he spent a dime and hit the jackpot when he got the Sunday Register magazine section with Carmen Miranda on the cover . . . Wait'll he sees Janie Withers and her album upcoming. Yourkers included colored motion pictures of Scandinavian countries in the third annual Scandinavian evening at the tearoom last week.

Wanderings of an enfeebled mind: Would & Co. have enjoyed that drink of straight rum with Gypsy Rose Lee in her dressing room more if BOXOFFICE hadn't been there? (Now, don't tell me, ignorance is bliss.) How come Gypsy's such a good egg, with or without dressing? Why do you suppose she's so proud of the fact that she stitched that red, white and blue corset she wears in the last act all by herself?

Maxine Shaver, the cute little number stranded among that mass of men up at Iowa Film, burned her arm trying to learn to cook. 'Twas four a. m. in Guthrie Center . . . Harry Gottlieb, Earnie Pickler (UA), and Bing Miller decided that even a hot game of rummy won't keep a guy from freezing to death. Write Jere Spandau about shirts and gloves.

MINNEAPOLIS

CHARLIE WEINER attended the PRC sales meeting in Chicago. He's the local PRC franchise holder and doing a swell job . . . Norman Pyle, M-G-M exploiteer, wearing his arm in a sling. He slipped on the icy pavement and broke the wrist in three places . . . E. T. Gomersall, Universal district manager, here to address sales meeting . . . Don Buckley, popular Redwood Falls, Minn., exhibitor, up with the wife to take in the "Ice Follies."

Norman Moray, Vitagraph shorts sales manager, here for conference . . . Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included John McDonald, Barron, Wis.; Harvey Thorp, Crosby, Minn.; Dave Ratner, White Bear, Minn.; Fred Schnee, Litchfield, Minn.; Mrs. W. Fox, Warroad, Minn.; Bim Lakie, Barnesville, Minn.; "Doc" Polzer, Independence, Wis.; Leon Bach, Sauk Rapids, Minn.; Harvey Thorpe, Crosby, Minn.; Tony Paulson, Amery, Wis.; Ep Parsons, Renville, Minn.; and Bert Parsons, Springfield, Minn.

Cresson Smith, Leo Devaney and Harry Michalson, RKO western sales manager, drive captain and short sales manager, respectively, were here to address sales meeting. Then they accompanied L. E. Goldhammer, district manager, to Omaha and Des Moines for similar conferences . . . Irving Schlank, UA district manager, a visitor . . . Harry Hirsch and Harry Katz's stock burlesque at the Alvin is going great guns and all the boys are happy because the two Harrys are very popular with the gang. Everybody hopes the prosperity will continue.

That Twin City Variety Club St. Patrick Day's "Kings for a Day" luncheon was a dandy, thanks mainly to the ingenuity of Norman Pyle, M-G-M exploiteer. There were green carnations and clay pipes and tobacco at all the places and a large cluster of balloons suspended from the ceiling. At the proper time, the balloons were released and the boys scrambled for them. Inside were numbers and the eight lucky ones each received a bottle of imported Irish whiskey. Frank McInerney, a real "Mick" from Minneapolis Tribune newspapers, told funny Irish stories. W. H. Workman, one of the "kings" for the day, also related a very funny yarn. Eddie Ruben pleaded for cooperation in the Greek relief drive. On April 14 Paul Mans and Harry Dickerman will be "kings for the day."

"Hy" Chapman, Columbia branch manager, in Chicago for sales conference . . . Eddie Gallagher, WCCO announcer, master of ceremonies at Montevideo Theatre style show . . . Orpheum has three stage shows scheduled, including the current one headed by Joe Reichman's orchestra.

OMAHA

A. N. von Doehren is new owner of the Manilla at Manilla, Ia., and H. M. Lowder, who formerly had the theatre at Anthon, Ia., is manager of the house. Bruce Vining, who formerly had the Manilla, went to Minnesota . . . Betty Leach is the new steno at RKO. She took the place of Fern Archer who gave up running a typewriter for washing breakfast dishes . . . A big time was reported at the United Artists party at Variety.

Last week's column was an example in perfect timing. Sol Yeager was to take a new job with Universal in Minneapolis on Monday morning and everything was supposed to be a big secret until he reported for work. Sol reported for work Monday morning at the same time Boxoffice was being delivered to you with the news about Sol's move. He'll be office manager there . . . There will be an important change in one of Omaha's larger theatres very soon.

Carl Reese is getting all excited about a trade screening he is planning for April 9 at the Dundee of "Sis Hopkins," which he says tops the Republic list this year. Carl says to consider this story in Boxoffice your invitation to attend the event. It will be open to all exhibitors, filmites and their friends . . . Abe Sadoff, who used to run the Granada at Sioux City, Ia., before Tri-States took over the house, was in Omaha visiting friends. He now helps his father run a clothing store in Sioux City.

Kay Stewart, daughter of Toby Stewart, exhibitor at Shenandoah, Ia., will be home soon from Hollywood for a visit. Her husband has been grabbed by the army. We're told Carl Johnson, exhibitor at Red Oak, Ia., recently played a picture in which Kay had an important part. He ballyhooed that fact, since Red Oak and Shenandoah are only 25 miles apart, and played to capacity. Kay is expected to visit Omaha Filmrow when she gets home.

Bert Beams, Red Cloud, Neb., the football fanatic; Mons Thompson, St. Paul, Neb., golfer de luxe, and Bill Granville, Quality Theatre Supply, fisherman extraordinary, attended the wrestling matches the other night. Just three big sportsmen! . . . M. Biemond, Ord, Neb., and Sol Slomenski, Loup City, Neb., were in town and admitted it is still too cold to play golf . . . Sol Francis says he would like a good plug for "Sign of the Wolf," Monogram's latest.

Oscar Hanson and S. A. Madsen were exchanging pleasantries, very unusual for an exhibitor and booker . . . Carl Reese is unpredictable. The other day he escorted Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dunn, Jewel, Valentine, Neb., to the Warner exchange, into C. K. Olson's office, and then left. That's no way to sell Republic pictures, Carl, or is it? . . . Charles Botsch, exhibitor at Leigh, Neb., was a rare visitor to Davenport street this week.

The little man with the big jobs these days is Ted Mendenhall, Paramount boss. He's co-chairman of the Greek drive in the Omaha zone and as chief barker of Omaha Variety will have plenty to do with the industry meeting here April 22 . . . Boxoffice made a lot of unproductive stops this week: Harry Shumow, Metro boss, out to lunch; Don McLucas, United Artists, about ready to leave town, out some place making arrangements; Max Rosenblatt, National Screen, out some place; Frank Van Husan, Western, out of town.

Counter Attractions Kill Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS — The enormous business done the past fortnight by such counter attractions as the Shriners' indoor circus and the "Ice Follies," undoubtedly has drawn considerable patronage from theatres and hurt grosses substantially.

Together with the prosperity enjoyed by bowling alleys, night clubs, saloons, beer parlors and other opposing forms of entertainment, these results again are causing some local independent exhibitor leaders to assert again that the public here has been turning away from films to other amusements.

The Shriners' circus grossed $43,000 in six days. The "Ice Follies" will have finished a two-week engagement to approximately $100,000 in takings.

Then there is burlesque which is not considered among the general run of regular theatrical things. Since Harry Hirsch and Harry Katz reopened the Alvin with stock burlesque three weeks ago, they have been doing a record-breaking business.

Bowling alleys are springing up everywhere. The ABC tournament now going on in the Twin Cities, is distracting plenty of attention away from showhouses.

At the same time, regular stage shows with films have been doing very poorly of late in Minneapolis and even outstanding pictures haven't been getting the play they merit. However, it should be pointed out, straight films still seem to have a big edge over stage shows as magnets.

Tri-States Centralizing Advertising Department

DES MOINES—An enlarged central advertising department is scheduled to start operating for Tri-States Theatres Corp. about April 1, G. Ralph Branton, general manager, announces.

To head the department, Dale McFarland, who has been managing the Capitol at Davenport, will be transferred to the Des Moines offices.

Don Allen will be shifted from the Omaha at Omaha to the Capitol at Davenport, and Ted Emerson, who has been handling advertising and publicity in Omaha, will take over the Omaha Theatre.

Dorothy Day, who has been handling advertising and publicity here, will head a newly-created public relations department.

"Fantasia" May Go Into Lyceum or Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS—William Blum, representing Walt Disney, is here seeking a theatre in which to play "Fantasia." Indications are the film will go into the Lyceum or, possibly the Minnesota. It is Disney's plan to open the indefinite run here about April 15. The local showing would be the only one for the entire Northwest and the picture would not be offered anywhere else in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana for at least two years.

Whichever theatre is selected will have to be equipped with 75 extra loudspeakers at an estimated cost of $17,000.

Four Tax Bills Aimed At Trade Discarded

LINCOLN—The last of Senator E. M. Neubauer's bills which aimed principally at the film industry in Nebraska—four in all—went into discard when, in executive committee hearing, the Orleans senator's measure proposing to tax all billboard locations 5 cents per square foot of display space, was killed.

It was estimated by billboard people that such a tax, which would be passed on to the consumer or ad buyer, would make the annual rental of the boards bounce as much as $10. There is quite a bit of national advertising by the majors plastered on Nebraska boards each year.

Thus, the horizon clears as far as legislative cloudiness is concerned.

The luxury tax measure, seeking 10 per cent of the ticket price, was killed.

So was the $1,000 annual licensing of distributors, with $1 charged for each reel of film distributed.

And, the divorcement bill, stymied in pigeonhole, probably will not see light of legislative day again.

.....AW, SHUCKS!.....

From the Tall Corn—By KEN and RENE CLAYTON

ART FARRELL may not be subtle, but he's got finess. The dustpan he gave the popcorn girl at his Atlantic Iowa was so daintily decorated that she couldn't do any more than gasp, even when she saw the attached directions on how to use it to keep popcorn off the floor. (Art's trying to find some way to get the same idea across to the patrons now).

Afternoon naps are reported more popular than ever in Stuart since so many Stuartions have been staying awake until well after 2 a. m. listening to Lee Henry supervising the carpet laying at his theatre.

Hey, Bill, now you got us doing it . . . We mean looking up at Old Style Lager signs . . . So Woody Sherrill can't tell the Eddy boys apart, huh? It's a cinch, Woody . . . the one with the dimples and the sweet smile is Warren from Sigourney . . . the one who hides a keen sense of humor behind a cynical pan is Jack from Mt. Ayr . . . and you all know it's Pappy Eddy from Indianola when you see him tipping his hat at every Old Style sign on Grand Avenue.

Who was that old southern gentleman Nate Sandler was having lunch with the other noon at Michaels? (Nate: "That wasn't any southern gentleman I was having lunch with . . . That was Lou Elman trying to show BOXOFFICE & Co. what a fine southern accent they'd missed at the Allied Exhibitors meetings").

"That boat of mine," says Ed Mason, "is the only thing I've ever found that will make a film salesman shut his big mouth" . . . That's where you're wrong, Ed . . . It's one thing that every salesman who has ever seen it talks about. But not one has yet been able to explain how, if the British navy can't maneuver in the English channel, you can navigate that inland liner around Osage without massaging the propeller against the Spring Park dam on the turns.

Motion picture influence has reached a new high in Iowa. While faithfully hauling a one-reeler called "Twinkle Gets His Bird" from Atlantic to Stuart last week, Beryl Williams was entertained by a pheasant who made a forced landing through Beryl's windshield. But "Twinkle" didn't have his bird long. Beryl handed it to Iowa Film Driver Don Cowell, who, when BOXOFFICE suggested that pheasant was her favorite fowl, with true brotherly love gave her the bird. But not the pheasant.

Mr. Bergh is reported to have sold his Sharon at New Sharon.

MISSISSIPPI EXCURSION:

Don't let Dick Gaston's Great Dane scare you out of Fort Madison. Eleven-year-old Dickie jr. will give the hound a weight handicap and go to the mat with him any time.

Clarence Jamieson, who operates the A-Mus-U at Muscatine, is pacing the floor as pappy to a new theatre, the Iowa, and a new baby girl at the same time. Clarence's infant—the girl, not the theatre—is unreliably reported by Lou Levy to weigh 11 pounds, 2¾ ounces.

Nobody's talking business up around Waukon these days 'cause Denny's been watching the calendar and is now getting the Cota boats and fishing tackle overhauled. Ruth's no help, either. She's been busy following the high school girls' state basketball tournament. Of course there's Eaton and Paul, the Cota boys, but everybody who has seen them best their pater at target practice is afraid they might beat him at business sharpshooting, too.

The river salesmen are under the gun. They've got to get their talking done before summer weather hits Waukon or they won't be able to find Denny Cota at all. He'll be cruising up the Mississippi to Dubuque with his family. (See, Ed, you aren't the only guy with a poopdeck.)

The Docket

Detroit

CASE NO. 1—Filed February 17. Demand and submission involving clearance (Section VII). Booth Theatre, Julius D. London, owner. With: Vitagraph, Inc., Paramount Pictures, Inc. Named as interested parties: Del, De Luxe, Whittier, East End, Cooperative Theatres of Michigan. Complainant charges he is refused reasonable clearance by Vitagraph and Paramount over Komer and Goldberg's Whittier and the Delodder Circuit's East End. Arbitrator will be Jerome G. Thomas.

CASE NO. 2—Filed February 21. Demand and submission involving clearance and some run. Julius D. London and Milton London, co-partners doing business as Midtown Theatre, Detroit. With: Paramount Pictures, Inc., Loew's, Inc., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. Named as interested parties: Coliseum, Majestic, Globe, Cooperative Theatres of Michigan, Inc., Mutual Theatres, all of Detroit. Complainant charges unreasonable clearance imposed by the distributors named in favor of the Coliseum, operated by Jack Krass; Mayfair, operated by Cohen Bros.; Majestic, operated by the Schreiber circuit, and the Globe, operated by William Schuttenhelm. L. J. Carey is the arbitrator.

Cleveland

CASE NO. 1—Filed February 15. Demand and submission involving clearance dispute. Ellet Amusement Co. With: Paramount Pictures, Inc., Paramount Film Dist. Corp., Loew's, Inc., Loew's Film Dist. Co., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., W. L. Hart, Cooperative Theatres of Ohio, Inc., Milton Mooney. Named as interested parties: Norka, Rialto and Ellet theatres. Complainant is Louis Israel, owner of the Ellet now under construction on the outskirts of Akron. He claims it is unreasonable for the Norka and Rialto to hold protection over the Ellet, seeks an irrespective run and asks that existing contracts between Hart, operator of the Norka and Rialto, and the distributors granting seven days' clearance be declared inoperative.

Pittsburgh

CASE NO. 1—Filed March 17. Demand and submission involving some run and non-forcing of short subjects. Herman Lorence, 18th Street Theatre, Erie, Pa. With: Vitagraph, RKO, 20th-Fox, Paramount. Named as interested party: Mrs. John Hauer, American Theatre, Erie, Pa. Lorence claims some run has been denied him, and asks, in the event of an award in his favor, that the defendants be directed not to enforce the sale of short subjects; also that any second run contracts between the defendants and any other theatre on 18th Street subsequent to March 3, 1941, be voided.

Pittsburgh Tribunal Adds Ten Arbiters

PITTSBURGH—Additional AAA arbitrators have been named for service by the local tribunal. First nine members were announced a month ago. The new members:

William J. Aiken, attorney, Law & Finance Building.

Arthur R. Atwood, vice-president Colonial Trust Co., 414 Wood Street.

C. L. Austin, 525 William Penn Place.

Kenneth Buffington, attorney, 1415 Park Building.

Robert W. Carson, attorney, 1017 Park Building.

Alvord B. Churchill, attorney, 1515 Park Building.

David Glick, attorney, 1204 Park Building.

Edward J. Leonard, president Allegheny County Housing Authority, 510 City County Building.

John E. Winner, attorney, 1819 Union National Bank Building.

R. P. Forsberg, (chief engineer), Lake Erie & Eastern Railroad, 149 Oliver Street, Emsworth, Pa., retired.

Erie, Pa. Arbitration Bid Assails Shorts Forcing

Arbitrators Chosen In London Plaint

DETROIT—The first arbitration complaint filed here by Julius D. London involving clearance between his Booth and the Del, De Luxe, Whittier and East End of Co-operative Theatres will be arbitrated by Jerome G. Thomas, head of the business administration department of Wayne University. No date for the hearing has been set. Vitagraph and Paramount are the distributors named.

London's second complaint in the name of Midtown Theatres over clearance involving the Coliseum, Majestic and Globe, as well as the "Big Five," will be arbitrated by L. J. Carey, an attorney. No date has been set for this hearing.

Republic Regional Is Held in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI—Republic's regional meet, held at the Netherland Plaza Hotel this week, was presided over by Nat Lefton. Branch Manager George Kirby, and Salesmen Rudy Knoepfle, Harry Bugie, Sam Haberer and Booker Sam Meiss attended.

Announcement was made of the 1941-42 product, which will include 30 features, 32 westerns, four serials and 12 single reelers, including eight Gene Autry, eight Roy Rogers and eight action westerns with Don Barry. Exhibitor reaction is splendid, stated Kirby following the announcement, and bookings are being filled in rapidly.

Republic will special campaign "Sis Hopkins," and is also well on the road of the Jimmy Grainger drive, set through March until May.

Veteran Cleveland Staff Behind Columbia Drive

CLEVELAND—The Cleveland Columbia exchange is putting 49 years of service into the company's new goodwill drive, just launched. Of the six men in whose hands lie the standing of the local office, three have been with Columbia 11 years and one 10 years. Relative newcomers have served four and two years, respectively.

Lester Zucker, branch manager, came up from the ranks over a period of 11 years. Gregory Vogae, head booker, and Bill Gross, short subject booker, each have won 11-year service stripes. Jack Share, salesman, has been with the company 10 years. Manny Glick joined the outfit four years ago and Oscar Bloom, "the baby" in point of service, came into the group two years ago.

Sets Pete Smith's Next

HOLLYWOOD—Pete Smith's next specialty will be "The Do's and Don't of Dancing," featuring Arthur Murray.

PITTSBURGH—First complaint has been filed here under the consent decree involving dispute under Section VI (some run) by Herman Lorence, owner of the 18th Street Theatre, Erie, Pa.

Named in the petition are Vitagraph, RKO, 20th-Fox and Paramount.

Lorence, a former Pittsburgh theatre manager, and later an exhibitor at Youngsville, Pa., and Cattaraugus, N. Y., filed his arbitration complaint involving Sections VI and X of the decree on March 17 with William A. Livingston, clerk of the Pittsburgh tribunal, American Arbitration Association, Investment Building.

The plaintiff states that on March 3 and 4 he inquired for "some run" of product for the 18th Street Theatre and was denied same by the defendants. The theatre is the old Roosevelt, which he has recently purchased, remodeled and newly equipped. The house had been dark for several years.

Lorence states that the 18th Street Theatre meets every requirement under Section VI of the decree. He requests that the records of the American Theatre, Erie, Pa., and play dates for 1939-40 and 1940-41 contracts be brought before the arbitrator, who will be named 15 days after the filing of the complaint. The American is owned and operated by Mrs. John Hauer.

Demand and submission involved further states:

"If an award is made in favor of the plaintiff it is desired that these companies shall not enforce the sale of short subjects per Section IV. (b) consent decree and be so directed by the arbitrator. If the records of these companies show that any second run contracts have been entered into between these companies and any other theatre on 18th Street subsequent to March 3, 1941, these contracts be voided by direction of the arbitrator."

Cleveland Arbitration Hearing March 26

CLEVELAND—The first case of arbitration under the consent decree filed with the local arbitration office, has been set for hearing on Wednesday, March 26, at 9:30 a. m. The hearing will be held in the offices of Luke Lyman, tribunal clerk, 1314 Standard Bldg., Public Square. It is open to members of the industry.

Judge Dan B. Cull has been selected as arbitrator in this case involving protection by the Norka and Rialto, Akron, over the Ellet, now under construction and owned by Louis Isreal.

This case is unique in that it involves a theatre not yet completed. Defendants are the major distributors, Co-Operative Theatres of Ohio, Milton Mooney, head of Co-Operative Theatres, and W. S. Hart, owner of the Norka and Rialto theatres.

It's No Boom for the Trade; Wood Makes Clear Why

COLUMBUS—Nothing is more provoking to exhibitors than the realization that, although business is booming in other lines, the boxoffice in individual theatres is not following suit.

As a service to his theatres, P. J. Wood, ITOO secretary, has made a comprehensive survey of grosses in Ohio theatres. The results contained herein will surprise many theatre owners.

On the basis of the three per cent admission tax, Ohio theatres for the first 10 months of 1939 paid $947,303.64 to the state treasurer; for the same period in 1940, an increase of approximately 2¾ per cent was noted when the total came to $983,090.05. Accepted barometers of general business conditions would indicate an increase of around 10 per cent being in order.

In 1940, for the first 10 months, the average theatre in Ohio grossed $35,312; one year previous and during the same period, the average gross was $2,101.26 higher, or $37,413. To explain this wide discrepancy, in view of a total gross increase, Wood checked the number of theatres with this result: In 1939 there was one theatre for 7,875 persons; in 1940, one for 7,162.

For the first time complete tax information has been made available for publication. The following statement, covering the 10-month period ending October 31, 1940, is based on collections received by the state treasurer from the three per cent admission tax:

decrease recorded; yet theatre business dropped in 1939 in Cuyahoga, Hamilton and Lucas counties, and in 1940 Franklin county was down.

It is to be noted that theatre business as a unit is on the upgrade; only with the "new" money does the exhibitor lose ground. Unfortunately, this statement does not show all of the bad news. It is known that still other competitors are reaping huge profits, Bingo and bowling in particular. Many are the complaints regarding these "outsiders" who escape all state and federal admission taxes. Although no figures are available at this time on bowling, it is generally believed that Bingo has a take annually of around $15,000,000 in Ohio—all tax free.

The tax commission, at the present time, is studying means of taxing bowling, the ultimate aim being a duplication in effect of the admission tax. And since the legislature convened in January, it has been rumored that a Bingo tax will be brought up for discussion.

Bingo repeatedly has been held to be a direct violation of state gambling statutes, yet under the guise of charity its promoters are getting by lax regulations set up under local ordinances. Not only does the "charity" tag save arrests, but many cities, Cincinnati especially, exempt the games from any and all possible taxes: The Queen City is the hotbed of Ohio Bingo, a majority of the games coming under church sponsorship. In 1939, the games reported total

This statement proves beyond doubt that amusements, other than theatres, are more than holding their own. In only one instance, Cuyahoga county for 1939, is a receipts of $1,924,681.19; in 1940, the take jumped to $2,381,573.15, the promoters realizing a profit of 76 per cent.

Conclusions from the data presented here are summed up as follows:

1. Total grosses in Ohio do not vary much.
2. Under existing conditions, there is no room for additional theatres.
3. New theatres profit by taking patrons from old ones.
4. Other amusements are gaining in popularity.
5. Equal taxation on Bingo and bowling (for example) would make it possible to reduce theatre admission taxes.

Noble Idea Catches Up With Theatres

Ann Arbor, Mich.—A unique form of relief aid proved a detriment to show business here over the weekend. Church groups on the University of Michigan campus united in a "Starvation Day," with the idea of eating light meals and devoting the savings to the support of scholars in Europe and China. The show angle popped up when leaders elaborated on the campaign and proposed weekend savings for the same worthy cause by having showless dates for the collegians.

Neighborhood Failure To Draw Mystifies

By ELSIE LOEB

CLEVELAND—The mystery of why trade has not picked up in the neighborhoods, grows deeper and deeper. Employment is up to peak, according to statistics furnished by the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce. People have money, but the big question is, where does it go?

Proof that people have money is demonstrated by a fact disclosed by the manager of a theatre in one of the poorer sections of town. "Formerly," this manager states, "patrons came to our boxoffice and laid down nickels, pennies, and sometimes dimes. But today it's different. They lay down bills and wait for change. Whereas during the past few years patrons just managed to scrape together enough to pay for admission, now they get change back—and that is significant."

But it doesn't answer the question of why the neighborhood grosses are down. One prominent circuit owner suggests that access to more forms of cheap entertainment is the chief reason. With competition from radio, bowling, Bingo games, etc., he argues that people now are shopping for the outstanding pictures and looking the other way when the programmers show.

In this connection, it is pointed out that patrons continue to come in droves to see "The Philadelphia Story," any of the Hardy and Deanna Durbin pictures, the Gables, "Kitty Foyle," and films of like calibre.

Top Product Draws Extra Well; Others Struggle

DETROIT—Weather was markedly better for theatres than in recent weeks, and the flu situation appears under control—subject to reservation that the week ended in a couple of wet days that might mean a serious setback. Boxoffice grosses failed to show the recovery that might have been expected from weather conditions, however, and this prevails among subsequent runs as well as in the big downtown houses.

Lent observance shares part of the responsibility, but this is merely an additional factor in the steady tale of dropping grosses—a trend noted locally since somewhat before Christmas. Exceptional attractions, however, will go way above normal for good business, as witnessed by the success of the Earl Carroll show at the Michigan, and "GWTW's" steady draw at the UA, but such exceptions only increase the spotty character of grosses. Only predictable factor is that the attraction that has b. o. "oomph" will draw far more than its normal proportionate share.

"Private Secretary" Leads Slow Cincinnati Week

CINCINNATI—Mickey Rooney in "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary" topped grosses in a depressing week, featured nevertheless with four holdovers. "The Trial of Mary Dugan" ran four days only to be replaced by Ginger Rogers and James Stewart, the Academy Award winners, in a return downtown of "Vivacious Lady." "Tobacco Road," drew the praise of the critics, and held over with better than average business at the RKO Albee.

"Kitty Foyle" in Holdover Strongest in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH—"Kitty Foyle" and "Virginia" were strong holdover attractions here and "Strawberry Blonde" and "Buck Privates" were big winners among the new entries. Grosses were way above average all over the Golden Triangle, and this despite severe winter weather. Gene Autry made his usual good showing at the Barry. Folies Bergere stage frolic aided the Stanley where "Honeymoon for Three" was the screen feature. "Strawberry Blonde" was moved to the Warner for a second week. The Ice Follies, at the Garden, was the greatest opposition of the season, the take being around the $45,000 mark. Nixon's stage show was "Night Must Fall" and it turned in the poorest showing of the theatrical season.

Upturn in Cleveland in Second Week of Lent

CLEVELAND—There was a slight upturn in business the second week in Lent over the first week, with "Tobacco Road" making the best showing. In fact, it did so well at the Hippodrome that it moved to the Allen for a second week on the Main Stem. In order of popular favor there was "Strawberry Blonde" doing a second stretch on the Avenue; the double feature sensational program combining "The Virgin Bride" and "School for Husbands" at the Lake; "Come Live With Me" at the State; "Four Mothers" and a stage show at the Palace and "Maisie Was a Lady" at the Stillman.

Clifton Webb in "The Man Who Came to Dinner" was the only stiff competition to the pictures. Weather was cold but mostly clear. Subsequents report business way below normal in spite of greatly increased employment.

HOLLYWOOD—William and Milarde Brent are scripting "Harmon of Michigan." Columbia film will star Tom Harmon, all-American grid star.

CLEVELAND

GENE AUTRY comes to Cleveland April 18 to star in the national Rodeo to be held at the Arena . . . Joe Shagrin is back in Youngstown after a month's visit with his brother, Max, in Hollywood . . . A. D. Baldwin, owner of the Almira Theatre, and Mrs. Baldwin, have finally started on their auto trip to California, after having made several false starts since the first of the year.

Jack Shulman of the Lake Theatre, Painesville, and the Lexington, Cleveland, accompanied by Mrs. Shulman and their son, left Saturday to join the Florida film colony at Miami Beach . . . Martin Printz of the Alhambra Theatre is in California . . . Harry Reinhart, Canton circuit owner, writes that his California vacation is not all roses and sunshine. Reason is that it has been raining most of the time.

Frank Weitzel, booker for the Alpine Theatre circuit, which includes the Rex, Steubenville, and the Palace, Salineville, was around the exchanges. Likewise George Fettick, Paramount Northio booker . . . With no releasing dates as yet announced, stills on "Sis Hopkins" have arrived in the Republic exchange, and they sure have class . . . Urban Anderson, president of Midwest Specialties Co., northern Ohio distributors for Panoram, states that he has 30 machines installed and in operation in Cuyahoga county. They are serviced by RCA.

The Welcome Back party staged in honor of United Artists Branch Manager Matt Goodman's return to health after a long illness, held at the Variety Club last week, was attended by about 75 film men from here and surrounding territory. Present were all of the local exchange and district managers, and many exhibitors from out of town, among others, Bob Menches, Akron; Ray Wallace, Alliance; Sam Reichblum, East Liverpool; George Manos, Toronto; George Delis, Canton; Chris Velas, Bellaire; Jerry Steel, Oberlin. Goodman was presented with a gold wrist watch.

Sid Cohen, booker for Co-operative Theatres of Ohio, is a perfect physical specimen. For proof, see the U. S. Medical Dept. All of which means that Sid won't need a new spring outfit. He'll be getting his from Uncle Sam . . . Just to show you that appearances are often deceiving—have you received one of those "arty" calendars that Lee Goldberg, PRC franchise owner, is passing out to a privileged group? Bernie Rubin, PRC office manager, has sold "The Devil Bat" to the entire Associated circuit.

It's happened before. So Ed Fisher, United Artists publicity director, saw no reason why it shouldn't happen again. So he arranged with his home office to pay the freight for a telephone call from Arthur Spaeth, film critic of The News, to George Bernard Shaw in England, the subject of the conversation to be "Major Barbara," the forthcoming UA production of the Shaw play. Fisher had the stage all set at this end. A wire to England was cleared. The English Hello-Girl got the call, but she said she couldn't connect Mr. Spaeth of Cleveland with Mr. Shaw of England. Why? Because the phone could be used only for business of the government or of the Bank of England. Now the question is, was Ed Fisher disappointed? Or was he relieved? Anyhow, he got some free newspaper space on the story so the stunt was not a loss.

Neil Hamilton, who hails from Toledo, Ohio, is starred in the forthcoming PRC feature "Federal Fugitive" . . . Herb Ochs and Col. Harry Long are smiling these days because one of their pictures, "I Met a Murderer," was such a success at the Alhambra it was held over for 11 days . . . Miss Betty Clifford of the Warner contract department, has announced her engagement to Mr. Harry West of this city . . . Mrs. Nat Barach and son have gone in search of summer in Florida . . . Maurice Druker, pinch hitting for Everett Steinbuck as manager of Loew's State, is getting his sunshine via lamp treatments.

Meyer Kaplan is once again in possession of the Waldorf Theatre, which he sold, in 1939 to Herman Smith . . . Pioneer Pictures, operated by Herb Ochs and Harry E. Long, is distributing "The Virgin Bride" and "School for Husbands" which established a record, playing five weeks at the Lake Theatre . . . Nat L. Lefton, Republic franchise owner, held regional sales meetings in Cincinnati and Cleveland last week. The personnel learned that Republic has upped its 1941-42 budget $2,000,000 and will produce 62 features and four serials.

A heavy snow storm couldn't keep away Matt Goodman's guests at the Cedar-Lee Theatre last Wednesday when he screened "Topper Returns." The picture hit on all cylinders with the invitational audience.

Nat Wolf's Men Into New Warner Lineup

CLEVELAND—Nat Wolf, Warner zone manager, held a meeting of his entire zone here to discuss forthcoming releases and ways of selling them to the public. At the meeting, Wolf announced the following managers as winners in Warner's second quarterly drive: Don Jacobs, Pastime, Coshocton; Bill Dworski, former city manager in Mansfield, now at the Palace, Lorain; Grattan Johnson, Madison, Mansfield; Paul Montavon, Capitol, Sidney; Clarence Sletz, Ohio, Sidney, and Robert Lytel, State, Lima.

In addition to the winners, those attending the zone meeting were Richard Wright, assistant zone manager; Ray Brown, district manager, and the following managers: John LaDue, Strand, Akron; Ben Schwartz, Ohio, Canton; Harland Fend, Sherman, Chillicothe; Marvin Samuelson, Colony, Cleveland; Eddie Miller, Hippodrome, Cleveland; Julius Lamm, Uptown, Cleveland; Lou Milder, Variety, Cleveland; Harry Bodie, Sixth St., Coshocton.

Club Meeting Draws Big Names—

Variety Club Hosts Political Figures

COLUMBUS — Important federal, state, county and city officials were guests of Variety at a "Get Acquainted Night" held at the clubrooms in the Grand Theatre Bldg. Arranged by Pete Wood, Col. Lynn Black and Myron Gessaman, some 60-odd officials were present.

Lieut.-Gov. Paul M. Herbert, acting as toastmaster, first introduced the guests, then called upon Virgil A. Jackson, chief barker of the Columbus Tent, who gave a history of the club and its accomplishments during the past ten years. Chief Justice Weygandt of the Ohio supreme court, next spoke on the need, under present day conditions, of various forms of entertainment and paid a high tribute to the amusement industry. Governor Bricker spoke in the dual capacity of an honorary member of National Variety and as a guest.

The Guests

Among the guests were Supreme Court Justices William L. Hart, Roy H. Williams and Edward C. Turner and Judge Roscoe Hornbeck of the court of appeals. The county courts were represented by Judges King, Leach, Clifford, Randall, Reynolds, Duncan and McClelland. Also Municipal Court Judges Miller, Pfefferle and Zuber.

The various state departments were represented by: Director Defenbacher, finance; Director Markwith, department of health; Director Sours, department of highways; Clarence H. Knisley, Ohio Industrial Commission; George Strain, department of industrial relations; Jacob B. Taylor and Scott E. Hambleton, director and assistant director, respectively, of the department of liquor control. The department of public welfare was represented by its director, Charles L. Sherwood, and the chief division of aid for the aged by Thomas W. McCaw. Also on hand were William S. Evatt, tax commissioner; Hugh S. Jenkins and Robert M. Hance, members of the board of tax appeals; R. P. Barthalow, chief of the sales tax division; Joseph T. Ferguson, state auditor.

Franklin county officials present were Prosecuting Attorney Bartlett, Recorder Schaeffer, Sheriff Sandusky and Commissioners Lauderbaugh and Matson.

The city of Columbus was represented by Mayor Green, Fire Chief Welch, Police Chief Kaffits, City Attorney Davies and Councilmen Hauntz, Alexander and Millikin.

Collector of Internal Revenue Harry Busey, Democratic state chairman, Freer Bittinger and Republican county chairman, William Schneider, were also in attendance.

Newsreel Censorship To Continue in Ohio

COLUMBUS—Censorship of newsreels will continue in Ohio for at least two more years.

This became apparent when the legislative house committee on education turned down H. B. 240 which would have limited censor activities to features and shorts. Previous indications had pointed to the bill passing.

Generally speaking, newspapers throughout the state favored the measure, many commenting editorially on it as "rectifying" an act violating constitutional rights. Arguments against the bill were all based on one point, namely, that abolishing censorship of newsreels would mean the department of visual education would be closed due to a revenue loss of $32,000 annually.

Speaking to the press, E. N. Dietrich, director of the department of education and nominal head of the censor board, said he objected to the bill because of the financial angle and asserted it is of vital interest to the country that a close tab be kept on newsreel content.

In 1933, newsreels were exempt from censorship, the condition lasting for 18 months.

A check by a BOXOFFICE reporter at the state house revealed that proponents of the bill are bitter at the events leading up to a cold turndown by the committee. In particular, they object to the hearing before the educational group, contending such a measure should have been discussed by a taxation committee of the house. Unless all signs prove false, it seems likely an attempt will soon be made to materially reduced the $3-per-reel censoring fee, in addition to other retaliatory moves against the board.

Intensified Drive on Bank Night Looms

PITTSBURGH—In an official statement on its tenth anniversary, the Better Business Bureau of Pittsburgh declares that "An extensive investigation of the continued local promotion of Bank Night has produced considerable material for a projected campaign against Bank Night and other forms of commercial lottery here."

No mention is made as to the type of "information" gathered or the form which the "projected campaign" will take, but the statement is generally interpreted as presaging an intensification of the BBB's recently-undertaken drive on Bank Night.

The local Kiwanis Club has adopted a resolution condemning Bank Night as "a public nuisance, a growing threat and an active deterrent to community respect of laws," and has recommended District Attorney Andrew Park to take "appropriate action" to rid the city of such "lotteries."

The BBB has forwarded at least two registered letters to each theatre in Allegheny county requesting owners and managers to discontinue Bank Night and other such "lotteries," stating that the postoffice and state courts had classified the theatre games as such. The second form letter was more or less a demand for a self-imposed ban.

AMPTO of W. Pa., at several recent sessions, has ignored the subject. The Warner and Harris circuits have also failed to indicate that they propose to discontinue the game.

Hold Roy Rogers

HOLLYWOOD—Republic has signed Roy Rogers for another term. His next is "Sheriff of Tombstone."

Studying Dismissal Motion by Co-Op

DETROIT—Federal court here has under advisement a motion to dismiss the suit of Midwest Theatres against Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan. The half-day point in the long trial had been reached when plaintiff counsel completed presentation of evidence and a motion of dismissal was entered by defense counsel, A. J. Levin.

The basis of the motion was largely on two contentions: 1. That the exhibition of motion pictures is not interstate commerce within the meaning of the law, and hence that the federal court did not have jurisdiction. (The largely similar suit about five years ago of Jacob Schreiber, former owner of the plaintiff houses, against Co-Op's predecessor, Mid-States, was dismissed, largely on this ground, after it occupied a month of court time).

2. That the evidence presented had not proved the contentions of the plaintiff with regard to "conspiracy," difficulty in getting pictures caused by alleged actions of defendant, etc.

CINCINNATI

THE SEAT SALE for the Greek War Relief Fund sneak preview showing at RKO Grand, March 22, is proving so huge an extra theatre is being considered to hold the overflow. Seats are being handled by the students of the University of Cincinnati, who will also serve as ushers on the occasion, being attired in Greek costumes. Colonel Arthur Frudenfeld, RKO Theatres, is being assisted by Ike Libson and Col. Allan Moritz, Columbia branch manager, is handling the affair.

Social highlight of the week was the Bookers' Party given in honor of Para't's Bob Cummings, and Warner's Sam Oshrey, both inducted in Uncle Sam's army. Festivities included a dinner at the Hotel Alms, and both men were presented with army flash lights. Exhibitors seen at the gathering included Andy Niedenthal, Nick Schafer, Mike Spanagel, John Golden, Charley Mervis and Jimmy Woods.

Irving Sochin, UA ace representative, celebrated his birthday Saturday, March 15, by signing up for a year's subscription to BOXOFFICE . . . Greeting comes from John Schwalm, former operator of the Rialto, at Hamilton, who is sojourning in Los Angeles.

Fire caused damage to the Warsaw Theatre, Warsaw, Ky., and burned several thousand feet of film. Quick action on the part of Mark Meadows, owner, prevented serious loss . . . Lucille Hardy has been added to the United Artists' staff.

RKO office girls are contending with the salesmen in the Ned Depinet drive, now under way. Girls are writing letters and generally promoting play dates. Losers at the end of each week must contribute to a jack pot, which will be awarded to the winners at the end of the drive.

Metro's Al Hobt is proud of his 16-year-old son, Jack, who recently ran up a score of 215 pins in the Filmrow bowling league. Young Jack is pinch hitting for the boys inducted in the army . . . RKO's "A Girl, a Guy and a Gob" opened to excellent business at the Palace, demonstrating preference of Queen City filmgoers for comedies.

H. C. Kaufman, Columbia executive in charge of branch operations, here on a visit from New York. Other callers included George Myers, Frankfort, Ky.; Guy Greathouse, Palace, Aurora, Ind.; John Gregory, Far Hills, Dayton, and Tony Stern from Warner's Pittsburgh theatre department . . . Si James, Eaton and Brooksville, Ohio, exhibitor, has returned from an extended tour of California.

Charley Behlen opened his new Lincoln at Stanford, Ky., this week, with a formal reception to his many friends in the industry . . . Bob Morrell is new third booker at Metro, stepping into a vacancy caused by Bob Cummings' induction.

Gene Hensley has left the hospital where he underwent an operation, and is now convalescing at his home . . . Republic is inaugurating a James Grainger Drive for months of March, April and May, on playdates.

Dick Sonz, son of Eddie Sonz, Advertising Accessories, received honorable mention in the Riverside Military School annual at Hollywood, Fla.

Hundreds Pledge to Help Greek Cause

PITTSBURGH—Generous cooperation offered to the Greek War Relief Ass'n by theatres of the area continues with hundreds of pledges for special benefit shows, collections and donations are being received. A number of special midnight shows had been arranged for March 21. The official campaign extends over six days, beginning March 25.

John H. Harris is serving as national chairman of the exhibitors division and Harry M. Kalmine is division chairman for Pittsburgh, Washington, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Cincinnati territories. Harry A. Seed and M. A. Rosenberg are local chairmen of the distributors and exhibitors committees, respectively.

Variety is sponsoring a Greek War Relief benefit show at the Stanley, Sunday evening, March 30, tickets for which are selling at $1. C. C. Kellenberg, chief barker, serving as "king for a day" at the club's weekly dinner Monday evening, announced that Ira H. Cohn was in charge of tickets; Joe Feldman, publicity, and Joe Hiller, entertainment.

Captains for the sale include Bill Zeilor, M. A. Rosenberg, Brian McDonald, Bobby Iverson, Bob Fiske, Al Weiblinger, Harry Kramer, Herb Dimling, Dr. L. G. Beinhauer, Mort England, Leo Abernathy, John T. McGreevey, Mike Gallagher, George Heid, Joe Misrach, Art Levy, Herb Greenblatt, Mark Goldman, Buck Stoner, Ed Morton, Dave Kimelman, Tony Stern, William Finkel, C. J. Latta, E. R. Sterling, Dan Hartbauer, J. Guy Griffith, Theos. Manos, I. Elmer Ecker, Harry Feldman, Harvey Scott, Jerry Deasey, Larry Katz, Walt Framer, Perry Nathan, George Callahan, Harry Seed, Lew Lefton, Abe Weiner, Peter Dana, Art Morrone and Jim Alexander.

Mobilize Forces for Greek War Relief

CLEVELAND—Under the co-chairmanship of I. J. Schmertz, 20th Century-Fox branch manager, and John D. Kalafat of Associated Theatres, the northern Ohio trade is completely mobilized for the Greek relief drive the week of March 22-29. More than 90 per cent of the theatres in this area, Schmertz reports, have pledged themselves to some activity in the raising of funds. There will be midnight shows, special matinees or collections in one form or another.

In Cleveland, the drive is being inaugurated with a Bingo party at the Variety Club. Admission tickets are being sold to the public for 25 cents per person. The big event of the local drive, however, will take place March 26 when a gigantic stage and screen show will be presented simultaneously at Loew's State and at the RKO Palace. The show, with 20 acts, will be bicycled from one house to the other. Admission has been set at $1. Time is midnight, and no seats will be reserved. All other downtown theatres are cooperating to make the State-Palace shows a success.

Other Cleveland activities in behalf of the drive consist of midnight shows at the Shaw-Hayden with the Windameer and Jewel participating; Knickerbocker, Heights, Parma and Beach Cliff; special benefit matinees at the Liberty, Memphis-Lyceum in cooperation; Garden-Dennison Square in cooperation with the Capitol-Lorain Fulton; Milo-Mt. Pleasant; Imperial, Union Square and the Uptown-Doan.

The following theatres will make collections in the lobby and through the theatre: Hilliard Square, Homestead, Detroit, Shaker and Shore.

In the territory, the following theatres have pledged their help and aid in contributing to the $50,000 northern Ohio quota with special shows: Loew's Akron; Loew's Canton; Warner's Sherman, Chillicothe; A. G. Constant's Capitol, Bellaire; Warner's Pastime, Coshocton; Max Greenwald's Capitol, Elyria; Sam Reichblum's Columbia, East Liverpool; Warner's Ohio, Lima; Warner's Palace, Lorain; Warner's Lincoln, Massillon; Charles Settos' State, Marion; Warner's Madison, Mansfield; Warner's Lincoln, Massillon; Warner's LaRoy, Portsmouth; Seitz' State, Sandusky; Warner's Ohio, Sidney; the Regent, Springfield, and the Paramount, Toledo. There will also be benefit performances in Steubenville and Youngstown.

LOUISVILLE

IN ANTICIPATION of a business boom, theatres in Henderson, Ky., have announced plans to enlarge the seating capacities of their auditoriums, and the construction of a new house is being discussed, following the announcement in Washington that the war department has awarded a contract for the erection of a new $15,000,000 anhydrous ammonia plant there.

The Chickasaw Amusement Co., Inc., operators of the Rex Theatre, Humbolt, Tenn., will begin the construction immediately of a new house to be called the Humbolt. The building will include store and offices. Full upholstered chairs have already been ordered, along with air conditioning. The house is planned to seat 1,000 with a separate balcony for Negroes. A big shell-loading plant is being built at Milan, not far from Humbolt.

The State Theatre, Milltown, Ind., damaged by fire earlier this month, is repairing damage. Blaze started on the stage and gutted the interior of the building. The house is owned by R. L. Harned who also operates the Empire, Sellersburg, Ind. . . . It is reported that Bill Hay is planning to build a new picture theatre in Charlestown, locale of a new powder plant.

The Tacoma Building, housing the Tacoma Theatre, has been damaged by fire. The theatre auditorium was virtually destroyed. The theatre was operated by A. J. Ackerman . . . Lloyd Johnson is constructing a new theatre in Hyden, Ky.

J. P. McAlarnis has installed new lamps and rectifiers in his Hardburly Theatre, Hardburly, Ky. . . . New rectifiers also have been installed in the Downs, Louisville, owned by Leo Ciacio . . . The Rex, Louisville, has purchased a new generator.

D. G. Steinkamp has purchased for the English Theatre, English, Ind., a new rewind, film cabinet, and fire extinguishers . . . The father of W. P. Ballinger, RCA installation man for this territory, was seriously injured in an automobile accident on the Dixie Highway this week . . . Fred J. Dolle, president of the Fourth Ave. Amusement Co., owners of several theatres in Kentucky and Indiana, has been confined to St. Anthony's Hospital here for a rest.

The New Lincoln, built by Charles H. Behlen and Harry C. Congleton, at Stanford, Ky., opened with very gay festivities Wednesday evening. Following a parade by two high school bands and a large display of fireworks, some of the speakers heard included Federal Judge J. N. Menefee, Mayor W. P. Grimes, Supt. F. N. McWhorther of Stanford Schools, and W. E. Carrell of Falls City Theatre Equipment Co.

United Detroit Opens 19th in Birmingham

DETROIT—Opening of the new 957-seat Bloomfield in Birmingham, Detroit suburb, makes 19 houses for United Detroit Theatres circuit.

The public opening was preceded by a preview opening, the proceeds of which went to a community fund. Earl J. Hudson, president of UDT, presided at a dinner at the Community House, which preceded the preview affair, and Bert Wheeler, in Detroit for an engagement at the Michigan, contributed his talents to the event.

Flowers for the opening were received from Frank Wetsman, W. J. Turnbull, National Theatre Supply; Cinema Service, Frank Lorenzen, Bennett & Straight, architects; Pontiac Local of the IATSE, Pearson and Glass, and Thomas DiLorenzo.

The house was built by Elbridge G. Newhall and Carl Krueger. The latter is now associated with Jam Handy, commercial film makers.

Opening Threatened by Labor Difficulties

DETROIT—Labor difficulties similar to those that stopped the opening here of the big Royal in December, were re-enacted on a smaller scale with variations when UDT opened the Bloomfield at Birmingham.

Shortly before the opening, the Pontiac IA Local entered into negotiations with the house management demanding that it employ a stagehand. The theatre, without adequate facilities for a stage policy, contended no stagehand was required for the theatre. A secondary cause of difference arose over a wage scale for the projectionist.

The house was enabled to open by agreement, however, and the subject of employing a stagehand is slated for further negotiation.

Weekend Trucking Ban Threatens in Ohio

CLEVELAND—Taking the lead in combating a threatened measure to be brought before the Ohio legislature which would call for the barring of all trucks from the highways from noon Saturday until Monday morning, is the Ohio Ass'n of Film Carriers, headed by L. C. Gross.

Gross points out that the bill would affect the delivery of all films and accessories on the heaviest days, and with the majority of the theatres changing on Saturday night, would be a great handicap to the exchanges, as most of the cities are serviced by truck, the films being returned the following morning.

Free Defense Trailer

DETROIT—National Screen Service has prepared a special trailer for statewide distribution at no cost to all theatres. It deals with the national defense registration, according to Jack R. McPherson, NSS manager.

Plan in Springfield For Greek Cause

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—As a part of the industry's national effort to raise $1,500,000 for Greek war relief, midnight stage and screen show will be held at the Paramount here next Friday. All theatres in the Connecticut Valley from Thompsonville to Brattleboro, and also those in North Adams and Pittsfield will cooperate.

From Greek Independence Day, March 25, through March 30, collections are to be taken in theatre lobbies.

Plans for the benefit show were made here at a meeting in the home office of Western Massachusetts Theatres, at which Nathan E. Goldstein, circuit president, presided.

In attendance besides Goldstein were: Herman Rifkin, president of the Liberty Theatre Corp.; William Powell, division manager, Liberty Theatres Corp.; George E. Freeman, manager, Loew's-Poli, Springfield; Andrew A. Sette, manager, WB's Capitol, Springfield; Samuel Wernick, owner of the Wernick, Chicopee Falls.

Edward Smith, Paramount manager, Springfield; Ernie Whitford, E. M. Loew's Court Square, Springfield; Harry Smith, division manager, Western Massachusetts Theatres, Inc.; J. M. Jerauldl, director of publicity and advertising, Western Massachusetts Theatres; Charlie R. Smith, manager Broadway, Springfield; Louis Levine, Rivoli manager, Chicopee, and George Laby, manager of the Victory, Holyoke.

Theatres in the following cities and towns will participate: Springfield, Chicopee, Chicopee Falls, Holyoke, Northampton, Greenfield, Brattleboro, North Adams, Pittsfield, Westfield, West Springfield, Indian Orchid, Windsor Locks, Thompsonville, Palmer, Amherst and Easthampton.

Committees in charge: Stage show, George E. Freeman; tickets, Andrew A. Sette; publicity, William Powell; radio, George E. Freeman; trailers, J. M. Jerauld; mayor's committee, Harry Smith; operators and stage hands, Harry Smith.

George Laby, manager of the Victory, Holyoke, and William Powell, division manager of the Liberty Theatres Corp., will handle arrangements in Holyoke, Northampton, Amherst and Easthampton.

Stage and Screen Show Planned in Worcester

WORCESTER, MASS.—Plans for a special stage and screen show at the Loew's Poli here for the benefit of the Greek War Relief Fund were made at a meeting recently.

Those attending were Angelo Cotsidas, Edward R. Lorentzen, Walter Hazelhourst, representing the Musicians' Union; Harold H. Maloney, manager of the Loew's Poli; Chris Tsouris, Charles Davis, and William F. Brown, manager of the Park and Greendale theatres; Joseph M. Anstead, Loew's Poli Elm Street manager; Ernest Anderson; W. J. Ryan, Olympia manager.

Robert R. Portle, manager Loew's Poli Plaza; Bruno Weingarten, manager of the E. M. Loew's Family; R. J. Owens, manager, Plymouth; Ernest Sharaf, Rialto; Edgar Lynch, Warner manager, and George A. Smith, Royal manager.

Harold H. Maloney is chairman of the general committee in charge.

Train Big Trade Guns On Censorship Bill

BOSTON—Hopeful that unified opposition might kill in committee the proposal for a state film and vaudeville censorship commission, industry representatives appeared before a hearing held by the legislative committee on state administration.

Joseph Brennan, local MPTOA executive secretary who was the principal speaker for the industry, recalled how an effort to apply film censorship in the Bay State via the referendum route was defeated (in 1922) by some 600,000 votes to 200,000. Brennan pointed to the fact that although six states had censorship regulations before that time, no additional states have applied such restrictions since 1922.

Viewed as perhaps the most potentially dangerous bill filed during the present biennial session, the measure would set up a motion picture and vaudeville commission composed of three members, all to be appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the executive council. Not more than two of the trio would be members of the same political party. The three would be designated in the specific terms to serve for one, two, and three years respectively. One would be named by the governor as chairman.

Leo Sullivan and Thomas P. O'Neill jr., sponsors of the bill, urged that the censorship commission would have the authority to establish and maintain offices and bureaus for the screening and censorship of films and vaudeville acts.

The commission would have full power and authority to make, amend, and to revoke rules and regulations correlary to this authority. The commission, too, would be empowered to summon witnesses, administer oaths, and to require the production of documents and records at any hearing before it on any matter within its jurisdiction. Any members of the commission might sign a summons and administer an oath.

Films and vaudeville acts might be refused licenses for exhibition in Massachusetts if, in the opinion of the commission, "such film or vaudeville act or a part thereof is obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, sacrilegious, or, of such a character that its exhibition would tend to corrupt morals or incite to crime."

Would Except Newsreels

Newsreels would be excepted from provisions of the proposed law and would be permitted to show without inspection of any sort. Also excepted would be films or vaudeville acts "of a strictly scientific character intended for use by the learned professions," if such film or act were not to be shown in any public or private place of amusement. It would also be possible for the commission to issue, without censorship, special permits for films or acts intended solely for education, charitable or religious purposes.

The proposed law provides that redress to public hearings would be available to anyone aggrieved by censorship decisions of the commission. Also available would be appeals to superior court charges if made within ten days. Such decisions would be final.

A license fee would be set up at $3 for each 1,000 feet of original film or fraction thereof and $2 for each vaudeville act.

Any change or alteration in a film or vaudeville act if a license or permit has been issued, except the elimination of a part or excerpt upon the written authority of the commission, would void the license on that particular piece.

Also censorable would be all sorts of advertising, any of which might be banned, licenses rescinded, and fines levied if, in the opinion of the same proposed commission, "such advertising might be termed obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, sacrilegious, or of such character that its exhibition would tend to corrupt morals or incite to crime."

Tickets on Sale for Show in Hartford

HARTFORD — Tickets for the midnight stage and screen show for Greek War Relief, March 29, are now on sale at Hartford theatres. The show will be held at the local Loew's Poli and will include vaudeville, features and shorts. Louis A. Cohen, manager of the Loew's Poli, is also general chairman in charge of arrangements.

Midnight Show for Greek Relief at Metropolitan

BOSTON—A midnight show at the Metropolitan in behalf of the Greek War Relief Fund is scheduled for March 22. Tickets were on sale at all downtown theatres for the affair which was billed as a "sneak preview."

Assisting Martin J. Mullin, M&P Theatres Corp. partner, who is drive chairman in New England, have been Jack Goodwin, Robert Sternberg, Harry McDonald, Charles Kurtzman, Norman Ayers, I. J. Hoffman, Nathan Yamins, Harry Zeitz, Archie Silverman, Paul Levi, Joseph A. DiPesa, Martin Glazer, Jack Granara, and Harry Browning.

Run Two Months Behind In Fulfilling Orders

BOSTON—In many instances fulfillment of orders for construction material and equipment is running at least two months behind, according to Kenneth H. Douglass of Capitol Theatre Supply Co.

The company stocked up on air-conditioning equipment by purchasing all such systems used at the New York World's Fair. These, says Douglass, have been tested and overhauled.

Trade Unscathed Thus Far By Hartford Legislators

NEW HAVEN—With two-men-in-a-booth defeated for the seventh consecutive legislative session, Sunday Bingo also killed, and copyright societies and boiler bills awaiting committee reports, organized exhibitor attendance at Hartford is practically at an end for the session.

H. B. No. 2353, a bill filed in skeleton form under the title "Taxation of the Moving Picture Industry," and reported to impose a tax on gross receipts of theatres over $500 weekly, was scheduled for hearing by the finance committee Tuesday.

The booth bill, filed as a safety bill requiring that no operator leave the operating side of a motion picture machine while in operation, was reported unfavorably by the judiciary committee and rejected by the senate. At the request of Senator Rourke, the bill was subsequently placed on the calendar for reconsideration. In the debate which ensued, Senator Coles explained the bill would work an unnecessary hardship on small theatres.

Herman M. Levy, executive secretary of Connecticut MPTO; Lawrence C. Caplan, executive secretary of Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut, and several exhibitors attended the hearing before the judiciary committee on copyrights and copyright societies. Discussion resolved itself mainly around H. B. 1635, a bill requiring composers of music to register the names of their compositions and the prices at which various classes of users might use or perform these compositions, with the secretary of state. In addition, the bill would require copyright societies to secure a license in this state and to pay a three per cent tax on gross earnings computed annually. Two other bills requiring licensing asked a levy of a 25 per cent tax on such societies.

Louis Feinmark, New Haven attorney, speaking in favor of H. B. 1635, explained the payment of score charges in film rental and the "unfair" exaction from exhibitors of a second fee for performance of the same compositions by Ascap. The purpose of the bill, Feinmark explained, would be to permit the exhibitor to pay performance fee for the songs he uses without paying a flat fee for all songs controlled by Ascap whether he uses them or not. George LeWitt, operator of the Strand, Plainville, and Arch Street, New Britain, also speaking in favor of the bill, accused Ascap of "intimidating" exhibitors and maintaining its "own Gestapo" in the state.

Speaking in opposition to the bill were R. W. Rome, New England district manager of Ascap, and Attorney Arthur Klein of New Haven. Rome pointed out this was definite anti-Ascap legislation and spoke of the consent decree in the government suit as the charter on which Ascap now operates. Klein pointed out that legislation similar to these proposed bills had been ruled unconstitutional in Tennessee, Nebraska and Florida; that such information as was required to be registered by the bills, was already on file in the federal copyright office; that the bills came under the heading of class legislation and called for an unreasonable exercise of police power, and that the cost of enforcing such legislation would be prohibitive to the state.

H. B. 1147, a bill requiring licensed persons to run boilers or engines operating on more than 15 pounds of pressure, was urged by the Connecticut State Association of Engineers. Such a requirement would affect many theatres, it is reported. Proponents pointed out the danger of corrosion and defects, and maintained that increase in the periodic boiler inspection now conducted would not remedy the danger. Herman M. Levy, Connecticut MPTO executive secretary, spoke in opposition to the bill, considering its requirements "unnecessary" and working a hardship on business men who do not now have special employes for boiler operation.

H. B. 923, creating a $12,500 revolving visual education fund for operation and maintenance of motion picture equipment, slides, and films in schools, has been transferred from the education to the appropriations committee, and is set for hearing March 25.

H. B. No. 245, exempting from inspection machines using only 16mm or less cellulose acetate film, except in regular theatres where an admission fee is charged, was adopted by the house.

Builds Apartment Building

LITTLETON, N. H.—John B. Eames, Littleton exhibitor, is erecting an apartment building here at a cost of approximately $116,000.

Roy Heffner Enters Slot Film Field

BOSTON—Roy E. Heffner, Bank Night pioneer and national distributor of Good Will Award, is the latest industry figure to become involved in the slot machine projector field. Heffner, through the Middlebury Corp., has signed with Mills Novelty Co. for distribution in four Massachusetts counties—Plymouth, Barnstable, Duke and Nantucket.

William H. McLaughlin, former Independent Exhibitors, Inc., director, has a franchise for Essex county. Leon Task, operator of theatres in Milford and Campello, has an important financial interest in the New England setup. Others in the local film field are also involved in the promotion.

On the other side of the fence, another film segment is working for a Massachusetts law "to supervise and license the showing of 16mm or 35mm films or other sizes for public or private exhibition by means of automatic, coin-in-the-slot or similar talking motion picture projection devices."

Arthur K. Howard, local business manager for Allied States Ass'n, is behind the bill which would necessitate approval by the department of public safety on the location of such devices and the issuance of an annual license by the same department at a charge of $50 per machine.

Each individual subject would have to be supervised and approved by the department of public safety at an entailed inspection charge of $10 per subject and an additional charge of $50 for license. No date for a public legislative hearing has been set.

Bank Night Cleared in Hub Municipal Court

BOSTON—Roy Heffner, Bank Night distributor, cleared the theatre premium scheme in another court when Judge John G. Brackett found Bank Night not guilty on a lottery charge in the local municipal court. George S. Ryan, attorney, defended the giveaway on lottery charges brought by local police authorities. The test case was based on operation of Bank Night at Convention Hall.

Orders Discontinuance Of All Cash Drawings

NASHUA, N. H.—Prompted by a supreme court decision declaring such functions illegal, Chief of Police Ralph A. Stearns has ordered Nashua theatres to discontinue all forms of cash drawings.

Deny Glassman Plea

BOSTON—Norman Glassman, operator of the Rialto in Lowell, was denied a plea in abatement in a motion to amend answers in connection with a royalty collection suit brought against the Merrimack Amusement Co. by Roy E. Heffner, Bank Night assignee. George S. Ryan represented Heffner. The case will be heard soon.

BRIDGEPORT

PHILIP SCHWARTZ of the Parkway is back from a trip to Boston where he has been looking over new equipment . . . Gene Tierney made a personal appearance at the Fine Arts in Westport in connection with the showing of "Hudson's Bay" the day before she started back for the west coast . . . Lou Brown was in from New Haven.

Jerome J. Comboy, projectionist at the Majestic, and his wife were in New Haven to see the stage play "Tobacco Road" . . . Payrolls in this defense-busy city increased nearly 50 per cent in February over the same period last year. The weekly February payroll averaged $1,826,233 . . . The Fine Arts, Westport, gave away 25 prizes nightly during its anniversary week.

Herbert Young jr., director of first aid and life saving for the local Red Cross, sent a telegram of sympathy to the fire chief at Brockton, Mass., for the dozen men killed in the Strand Theatre fire. Young formerly managed the theatre and was personally acquainted with the men killed . . . Michael Carroll played "Land of Liberty" as a benefit for the Harding High night school at his American . . . The Hippodrome has started a new glassware deal.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Schuman of the Black Rock were in Atlantic City four days celebrating their tenth wedding anniversary . . . Sam Haddleman, Capitol manager, feels he can settle down to work once more now that the big wedding for his sister, Dorothy, is past history.

Frank Toth, for five years projectionist at the Colonial, was in the city on leave from Camp Edwards on Cape Cod. Toth reports he is the camp projectionist and has complete supervision of all motion picture equipment . . . Additions to the usherette staff at Loew's Poli include Marie Brook and Lois Bump . . . Stanley Harlick has succeeded Charles Beatty as doorman at the Globe . . . Mr. and Mrs. Michael Carroll were New York visitors.

Mrs. Sara Levine, her daughter, Bess and grandson, Myron Ballen, have returned from Miami Beach. Mrs. Levine is vice-president of the Strand Amusement Company . . . Jimmy Vizzio, formerly of the American staff, and now stationed at Fort Terry, N. Y., returned here with his battery's basketball team for a game . . . Ralph Mauro jr., son of the sound engineer, has recovered from an attack of mumps.

Marie Allard is the new relief cashier at the Hippodrome . . . Frank Matera, assistant projectionist at the American, has shifted to the Community, Fairfield. Tony Traginese, an usher at the theatre, replaces him in the booth as apprentice to Walter Nitsche . . . Ruth Block has succeeded Julia Greenstein as night cashier at the Warner . . . Harry Kaplan, assistant projectionist at the Colonial, is due to enter the Army soon . . . Mrs. Charles Levine and her two daughters, Marjorie and Janice, are in Florida. NEW HAVEN

BIG GREEK WAR RELIEF show scheduled for midnight, March 29, at all Loew-Poli "A" houses, is shaping up, as weekly meetings add new details to the plans. Sensational headline acts are being lined up, and the picture will soon be announced, as well. Worcester show has been changed to March 28 to avoid Sunday permit. Bob Russell, general chairman in New Haven, is doing the big job of distributing large blocks of tickets (at 75 cents) and stepping on advance sales . . . Sam Badamo, program chairman, is traveling to New York to talk about the stage portion of the entertainment, lining up operators', musicians' and stage employes' union cooperation, and promoting air-time to plug the show. Lou Brown has been promoting one-sheets. Lou Schaefer is chairman of publicity and John Hesse of trailers. I. J. Hoffman is in charge of all the theatre activity in the drive for this zone.

The Warner exchange staff dined its two heroes of the week, William Dwyer, availability clerk, and Pete Canelli, assistant shipper, both off to camp. After a dinner at Murray's, they'll be dreaming about it in the army, the boys received a gift of $15 each from the office . . . Domenick Somma, assistant shipper at 20th-Fox, writes he will shortly be transferred from Camp Devens to Georgia . . . The staff is mailing Domenick a Schaefer pen and pencil set . . . Sidney Lax, Columbia shipper, was scheduled to leave the 21st . . . Sperie Perakos is at Ft. Terry and John Perakos was saying goodbye to the boys on Meadow Street before joining the Marines . . . Ruth Calechman, daughter of Barney Calechman of the Howard, has announced her engagement to Lieut. Cyrus Stephson of New Haven, off for Ft. Wright . . . Mickey Mattes, son of Abe Mattes, joins the boys at Camp Devens, March 28 . . . Bob Johnson, son of Adolph Johnson of the Strand, Hamden, has been deferred a month while he takes the ensign's exams . . . Katherine Bolton stays on as a new office staff member at Warner.

The Gilded Dome at Hartford is teeming with life these days, as bills of all kinds are being ardently sponsored and protested before the various committees . . . The house adopted the good old fashioned last Thursday in November as Thanksgiving last week. Present at the hearing on copyright performance rights and copyright societies bills were Lawrence C. Caplan, executive secretary of Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut; Herman M. Levy, executive secretary of Connecticut MPTO; Adolph Johnson, Al Robbins, Dan Pouzzner, Joseph F. Reed, Harry L. Lavietes, George Comden, Martin Keleher and George LeWitt. Louis Feinmark spoke in favor of the bill which would require composers to register names and performance prices of their songs with the secretary of state, and copyright societies to be licensed here and to pay a tax (ranging in several bills from three to 25 per cent). George LeWitt of Plainville and New Britain spoke for the bill, while R. W. Rome, New England district manager of Ascap, and Arthur Kline, its local attorney, called the bill a direct anti-Ascap measure, unconstitutional, and impractical from the standpoint of expense to the state. Two-men-in-a-booth bill died again, but not without a struggle.

Joseph Faith finally opened his 650-seat Carberry, Bristol, with Paramount's "Biscuit Eater" and Columbia's "Music in My Heart". A big, appreciative crowd greeted the opening. Public officials made speeches. General color scheme of the house is rose and turquoise. One of its outstanding features is a broken plane glass treatment of the exterior doors. Two murals flank the proscenium. Standee room and lobby have fluorescent lighting. Henry Germaine and William Hutchins represented Meadow Street at the opening . . . George LeWitt is completing redecoration of the Strand, Plainville, and is now starting on his air-conditioning system . . . Reports persist that College, New Haven, will be reseated and renovated this spring, although so far there has been no sign of action.

Big bands are still drawing well Sundays at the Lyric, Bridgeport . . . Arena will have big vaude again at the end of the hockey schedule . . . Avon had second week of "Come Live With Me," following a run of "The Baker's Wife."

Bob Russell and Nat Rubin have fixed up a strikingly novel corner lobby for "Ziegfeld Girl," with a modernistic Broadway scene in luminous paint on a black velvet background, on which an ultra-violet lamp plays. Whole thing has a stencil effect. In the foreground, 10 inch beauty cutouts from Esquire are mounted on a treadmill . . . The Harry Shaws write a wish-you-were-with-us from Hawaii . . . George Weber writes from Cleveland, "Having a wonderful time, if I could only afford it" . . . Columbia vs. 20th-Fox battle of pins resulted in a Columbia win, 1,568 to 1,220. Leo Jacobson was the star with a 352 score . . . The Germaines against Columbia will be the next bowling classic at the Roger Sherman alleys Tuesday.

Lend Hand to Bereaved Families of Firemen

Springfield—In respect for the 13 firemen who lost their lives in the Brockton, Mass., theatre fire, the Massachusetts house was recessed for two days.

Before the adjournment, Rep. Joseph H. Downey and Charles J. McCaffrey of Brockton urged Governor Saltonstall to allocate $5,000 from his emergency fund for the victims' families. From all parts of New England money is being received from various organizations for the bereaved families.

Have a Good Time For Worthy Cause

BOSTON—Members and friends of the Boston Cinema Club danced and dined in numbers Sunday evening at the Cocoanut Grove in the Boston film district.

The affair, the most successful of similar annual fetes sponsored by the organization, was conducted in behalf of the charity chest of the film fraternity whose credo is: "It is our aim, regardless of race, creed or color, to supply such moral, financial or physical aid as needed and required to those of our industry who may be in need."

Abe Barry of Columbia was chairman in charge of arrangements. Tom Fermoyle of the M&P Theatres Corp. was chairman of the dance committee, William J. Cuddy of RKO, and Charles Wilson of Republic handled the programs, while Sam Berg of 20th-Fox and Charles Repec of M-G-M comprised the ad committee. Larry Herman of the Ralph Snider circuit was chairman of the printing committee.

General oversight of the affair was in charge of the officers and executive board, Berg, Cuddy, Repec, Dave Grover of RKO, Tom O'Brien of Monogram and Harry Smith of RKO.

Gun-Checking in Bridgeport

Bridgeport, Conn.—They have to check their "guns" when they attend shows at Loew's Globe. Manager Harry Rose inaugurated the system when he discovered youngsters were lugging cap pistols into the theatre every time he had an action drama and were shooting them off to keep company with the action on the screen.

A one Sunday haul netted more than 25 cap pistols plus one long hunting knife. And so far no youngster has failed to report at the manager's office after the show to collect his gun.

Manager Rose sometimes wonders what a search of the adults would reveal.

Only One Film Snipped By Bay State Censor

BOSTON—"Framed for Murder" was the only feature out of the list of 35 to be censored, in the latest group to be passed for Sunday showings in the Bay State by Eugene M. McSweeney, commissioner of the department of public safety. The only cuts in the Northeastern release were two bits from the sound track, "Wag it a little" and "for cripe's sake."

Johnny Downs and five other acts were censored before being granted Sunday permits. Ten acts were okayed in the original, while three others were refused Sabbath permits.

Boston Film Censor Clips "Shark Woman" Scenes

BOSTON—John Spencer, city censor, took another step under the provisions of his recent censorship ultimatum to local theatres and distributors, when he clipped scenes from "The Shark Woman," newly acquired Edward Kleine exploitation picture given a bandbox opening at E. M. Loew's Gayety in Boston.

Expect Little Trouble From Anti-Noise Law

BOSTON—Industry executives here believe that a newly enacted anti-noise ordinance will have little, if any, effect on local film houses. The measure, now in effect, has set a $10 fine for keeping a dog given to excessive barking, playing the radio so loud as to disturb the quiet, comfort or repose of any neighbor within 50 feet, sounding a horn of a motionless automobile, and making any other "unreasonable loud, disturbing or unnecessary noises." It is felt barkers employed by any number of downtown houses will not be interfered with unless they ballyhoo too blatantly.

Hearings Due to Resume In Waldo Trust Suit

BOSTON—Hearings before Francis Freeman, master in the Waldo Theatre Corp. vs. the late Joseph Dondis, et al., anti-trust suit, were scheduled to resume late this week following a recess granted on request by defendant's counsel.

Hold "Western Union"

HARTFORD—"Western Union" was held over for a second week at the Loew's Poli Elm Street, Worcester; Palace, Hartford, and College, New Haven.

Now a "Holdover," Says Lydon

Boston—Frank Lydon's sense of humor held up last week despite the fact that the Allied eastern regional vice-president continued on the danger list at St. Margaret's Hospital in Dorchester. A letter received by BOXOFFICE here from the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., president read:

"Am being 'held over' for a second week. This is known as the 'holdover that hurts.' And I may even be stretched for a third week. Best regards to everybody."

Variety Club Formed In Charlotte, N. C.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.—Charlotte Variety Tent No. 24, recently organized, received its charter at a dinner at Hotel Charlotte attended by 165 members, local dignitaries and national officers. Highlight of the elaborate festivities was the presentation of the charter by John H. Harris of Pittsburgh, Pa., national chief barker, to H. H. Everett, chief barker of the Charlotte tent.

Preceding the presentation Harris and other national officers spoke to the group on the organization and work being done by the 24 Variety tents throughout the country. R. J. O'Donnell of Dallas, Texas, first assistant chief barker, made a brief address, and James G. Balmer of Pittsburgh, treasurer, performed the induction ceremony. Judge Frank Sims of Charlotte served as toastmaster and introduced numerous local guests. Prior to the ceremonies, a film depicting national charitable work of the organization was shown.

Officers, besides Everett, are Benn Rosenwald, first assistant chief barker; John Vickers, second assistant chief barker; John Bachman, property master; and H. F. Kincey, dough guy. Canvassmen are Bob Ingram, Tom Little, Hi Holston, Jimmy Prichard, Bert Adams and Frank Beddingfield.

New Chain Is Planning 12 Georgia Houses

By A. JULES BENEDIC

ATLANTA—Persons interested are doing but little talking, but it became known this week, from a usually reliable source, that a new company is forming to erect theatres in a dozen Georgia cities and towns.

Along Atlanta's Filmrow the proposition for weeks has been only a rumor, but this week a few details were learned.

Concretely, your newsboy learns that Oscar Housner, described as a New York attorney, formerly a southern exhibitor, is back of the deal, with N. Emile Savini, veteran Atlanta exchange man and former exhibitor, slated as general manager of the setup. Capitalization of approximately a million dollars is understood back of the projects, on some of which initial steps already have been taken.

Half a Dozen to Start Off

Half a dozen theatres will be erected initially, it is stated, one each in Milledgeville, Americus and Athens, while two are planned for Macon, one for white patronage, one for colored. The two towns last named long have been Lucas and Jenkins strongholds, although Macon has an additional independent house owned by Fred G. Weis of Savannah. Milledgeville and Americus long have been controlled by Roy Martin, powerful 100-unit circuit owner of Columbus.

Housner, it is understood, was in Atlanta three weeks ago, and made a trip over Georgia, accompanied by Savini. The pair also visited and discussed sites in Canton, LaGrange, Columbus and Valdosta and other Georgia cities. Canton and Columbus are Lucas and Jenkins spots, although in the latter city, which is Martin headquarters, Roy Martin has a third interest in the L. and J. setup. Valdosta is a Martin town, while LaGrange at present is controlled by Oscar Lam, circuit owner of Rome, Ga.

Blueprints Drawn for Athens

Possibly the first house for the new circuit will be erected in Athens, a college town, on a site near the University of Georgia. Blueprints have been drawn for a 500-seater, it is understood, and construction is slated to begin shortly.

Macon is to have a 1,500-seater, it is declared, with a smaller house devoted to Negro patronage.

For many years the towns mentioned, and others throughout the Georgia-Alabama area, have been circuit-controlled. Gradually the product situation, which brought about the status named, has been eased, and independents here and there have sprung up in the "controlled" towns. For example, no one would have dreamed of a successful opposition house in Albany, Ga., a Gortatowsky-Tri-States setup, until Clare Hilgers went in and built one.

Georgia Seems "Wide Open"

With the coming operation of the consent decree, Georgia along with the rest of the south, apparently has become a wide open affair, with theatre construction expected to attain or exceed the record-breaking pace set by Florida, for example, where Warner is either erecting or promoting more than a score of new houses in opposition to E. J. Sparks, with Sparks protecting himself by the erection of as many more new ones.

Ga. Senate Approves Sunday Show Bill

ATLANTA—A Sunday show bill that with an amendment gives cities the right to hold referendums as to whether or not Sunday shows be permitted, was passed by the state senate.

The amendment calls for a referendum in any city where 25 per cent of the registered voters petitioned for a vote on the issue.

The bill squeezed through a determined opposition that called for a number of roll calls on various motions.

In Council's Lap

HATTIESBURG, MISS.—The Hattiesburg Business and Professional Women's Club having endorsed Sunday shows, the matter now lies in the hands of the community council. The women's endorsement came following a number of court trials in which all local managers giving Sunday performances were tried.

Atlanta Keeps Lead In Depinet Drive

ATLANTA—After six weeks of the Ned Depinet Drive, the local RKO branch, headed by H. M. Lyons, is maintaining its lead. The four other branches out front for the capital prizes include New Orleans, P. M. Baker, branch manager; Philadelphia, C. Zagrans, manager; Oklahoma City, R. B. Williams, manager, and Kansas City, T. R. Thompson, manager.

The southeastern district, David Prince, sales manager, tops the districts. The eastern division heads the three divisions.

The leaders in various sub-divisions of the drive include: "Dr. Christian" contest, New York, Bob Wolff manager; one reel subjects, St. Louis, R. V. Nolan, manager; two reel subjects, New Haven, B. Pitkin, manager; Walt Disney contest, Oklahoma City, R. B. Williams, manager; March of Time contest, Salt Lake City, H. C. Fuller, manager.

Hold Over "Virginia"

WICHITA FALLS, TEX.—"Virginia" was held three extra days at the Wichita.

Paper Reports Lucas For Controlled Films

ATLANTA—Seeking national legislation that would give the Department of Commerce authority to regulate and control the motion picture industry is Arthur Lucas, owner of a large chain of Georgia theatres, according to a report in the Atlanta Constitution carried March 13.

Lucas reportedly conferred with Will Hays, head of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors Ass'n and whose views are divergent from his own, during the week he visited the capital in furtherance of the federal regulation proposal.

Hays reportedly has also been to Washington for a White House conference.

Grainger Visits Republic Exchange in Dallas

DALLAS—J. R. Grainger, president of Republic Pictures Corp., was a visitor at the Dallas exchange for the first time since Republic took over the active operation of that office.

A cocktail party was tendered Grainger at the Dallas Variety Club. R. J. O'Donnell, vice-president and general manager of the Interstate circuit of Texas, acted as toastmaster. Among those present were Harold Robb and Ed Rowley, heads of the Robb & Rowley circuit; R. I. Payne and Henry Lockhart, of the Griffith Theatre circuit; P. K. Johnston, and Harry Sachs of Interstate; James Cherry, city manager of Interstate; Raymond Willi, Interstate district manager, and 30 other prominent exhibitors in the Texas territory, as well as newspaper critics.

Grainger left Dallas over the weekend for New Orleans.

Isley Moves to Dallas; See Further Expansion

DALLAS—Indicating further acquisition of theatre properties in Texas, Phil R. Isley has moved his household furniture here from Tulsa and leased a temporary home. He is now negotiating for a site near Dallas on which he will build a permanent home.

Another indication of expansion is that Isley's partner, Charles Brent, is now in Texas and will use the office ot 302½ S. Harwood as his headquarters. Brent has been associated with Isley for ten years and for the past three has built and operated vaudeville houses in Boston.

New Orleans Accolades Two With High Gross

NEW ORLEANS—"Tobacco Road" chalked up 175 per cent at the Saenger the week just closing. At Loew's State "Come Live With Me" packed them in, thanks to clever and persistent publicity inaugurated by Manager Rodney Toups. "Buck Privates" had them in the aisles at the Orpheum, and "Strawberry Blonde," moving over from the Orpheum to the Liberty, took its reputation as a comedy along.

At the Municipal Auditorium "Hellzapoppin," flesh with Billy House, a favorite here in the day of burlesque, did excellent business.

Detail for week ending March 15:

(Average is 100)

Center—Six Lessons From Madame LaZonga (Univ) 95
Liberty—Strawberry Blonde (FN) 100
Loew's—Come Live With Me (M-G-M) 175
Orpheum—Buck Privates (Univ) 160
Saenger's—Tobacco Road (20th-Fox) 175

Rain Keeps Dallas Run At Average Week Level

DALLAS—Rain and dismal weather for half the week accompanied none too strong a take on Elm Street. There were no standouts but most boxoffices held their own about the average mark.

Rubinoff Four Weeks in Texas

AUSTIN, TEX.—Closing with two appearances here, Rubinoff completes a personal tour that took four weeks. Future dates include Hot Springs, Texarkana, and El Dorado, all in Arkansas.

Two New Houses for Rio Grande Valley

By L. J. B. KETNER

SAN ANTONIO—The coming season calls for two new theatres and one to be improved in the Rio Grande Valley as follows:

Brownsville—Purchase of a building site 150x120 feet in the business district here by the Texas Consolidated Theatres, Inc., Dallas, was made public last week by Judge Robin M. Pate. Texas-Consolidated plans to erect a three-story building on this site, part of the structure to be occupied by a new playhouse, with space for a department store. The present location was once the old homestead of the late Judge James B. Wells, which was torn down in 1931.

Harlingen—A theatre expansion and improvement program here involving over $50,000, is to be started this week by Interstate Theatres of Dallas. One new showhouse costing $25,000 is to be constructed, it was announced by District Manager George Watson of Interstate here. It was also said that the Arcadia Theatre building is to be remodeled, including a new front, modernized equipment and redecorating. The Arcadia also is an Interstate Texas Consolidated house.

Nashville Knickerbocker Celebrates Anniversary

NASHVILLE, TENN.—The Knickerbocker, owned and operated by Crescent Amusement Co. and managed by Dewey Mousson, is this week celebrating its 25th anniversary.

The Knickerbocker was one of the first theatres in the south to bring on film stars for personal appearances. It was wired for sound in 1928 and with "The Jazz Singer," introduced talking pictures to the state. The house was completely remodelled and re-equipped in 1936 at a cost of $130,000.

Dewey Mousson, who was the owner of three suburban houses and had his own film exchange at 16 years of age, has been manager of the Knickerbocker since 1921 and though only 43 years of age, is dean among theatre managers of the state. Corban Smith is assistant manager, heading a staff of 28 people.

Tony Sudekum, president of the Crescent Amusement Co., is taking the lead in the festivities accompanying the silver anniversary.

Little and Craver Propose New Charlotte House

CHARLOTTE, N. C.—Within 30 days work will start on a suburban theatre with a seating capacity of 600, representing an investment of approximately $50,000.

The lot was purchased by T. A. Little and Alton B. Craver, operators of the Visulite in Charlotte. Little, who operates the Charlotte here, also operates theatres in Greenville and Columbia, S. C., Greensboro, Durham and Raleigh, N. C., and Norfolk and Danville, Va.

Concerning the Southeast

By A. JULES BENEDIC

WEST POINT, GA.—As we wobble into West Point—a good word, by the way, what with our Pensacola auto accident—we wing into the sanctum sanctorum of L. J. (General Tyler) Duncan, cinematic satrap locally and points west in Alabama. We find that L. J., since our last visit five years ago, has developed into a hotel owner, operator of a radio station and what have you? The film boys are naturally a good customer of the local General Tyler Hotel. We make a suggestion to Mr. Duncan. It is to the effect that when the boys come down on say a Monday, "Dunc" should set a business date for Thursday. In the mean time, the General Tyler will get a good customer for three or four days . . . The radio station is named WDAK, by the way, and its inception partly is due to the fact that the Chattahoochee Valley has no daily paper. Now the weekly program of the West Point show and theatres in the neighboring Alabama towns of Lanett, Shawmut, Langdale, Fairfax and Riverview are aired daily, with good results, says the operator of the new "wireless," as the English would say.

BENEDIC

"Local Movies" Merger

We note that "Dunc" is running some local pictures snapped in Technicolor by Reelife, an organization headed by R. W. Allen and in this connection we run into a story on the merger of Reelife with Metrofone. The latter organization is headed by W. W. Birchfield. The latter had up to this point been taking local pictures with ordinary film. The new company will have headquarters at Indianapolis and will maintain several crews of traveling organizations. The gadget is to take moving pictures of local scenes in Technicolor, later displaying them at the theatre. We were informed that the Duncan dates, as well as those with Oscar Lam at Rome and in other towns, have caused the Reelife people to get dates over the entire Wilby-Kincey circuit.

We muscle into Montgomery, there to renew acquaintance with Charlie Rook, who has erected the sensationally successful Charles Theatre. Charlie is our old time pal from Watonga, Okla., and well remembers the time when we played him there with our roadshow some seven years ago. Charlie has taken his brother, Al Rook, into the Montgomery business. The Rooks operate, on a de luxe scale, a theatre that charges 15 cents top. It has 940 seats and has been doing good business since its opening in November.

New Drive-In Opens

In Montgomery a call was made at the new Drive-In. It was opening night, and colder than a relative's kiss. However, as the weather gets warmer, the new theatre expects good business. Certainly the drive-ins visited so far are catching on well with the American public. The instant setup is in the hands of L. C. Worthington, who operates the Birmingham drive-in.

As we tumbled into Tallassee, Ala., we find the veteran S. H. Thornhill has passed on, and the Roxy-Mt. Vernon Theatre setup now is in the hands of his widow, assisted by Roy W. Cook. Mr. Cook is editor of The Chimes, a monthly publication of local interest, and issued in behalf of civic activities, including the Tallassee theatres.

Meeting Mr. McLendon

We ululate into Union Springs and there renew acquaintance with Fred McLendon, who has a setup of a score of houses in Alabama, Florida and Georgia. Assisting him at the home office is G. C. Bryan and H. R. Chapman. The McLendon setup has grown conservatively over the last few years, and is a well-governed small-town operation.

We learn that B. P. Neal of Villa Rica is making good progress on his new theatre, to replace the one gutted by a recent fire . . . Walter Anderson is dead, but his spirit seems to permeate the Columbia setup in Atlanta . . . We were also shocked to read of the passing of old-timer Jack Huey in Edinburg, Tex. A traveler for years, Jack passed on as he would have wished it, soon after calling upon his customer. With his boots on, so to speak, Jack came to the end of the trail.

Atlanta trade shocked over the death of Harold Wilkes in New Orleans. A division manager for Paramount, Harold was on indefinite leave, due to illness. Only three months ago, he believed he would get well. Many from Atlanta and other points went to New Orleans for funeral services . . . "Tobacco Road" going over great, with big grosses, reports Harry Ballance in Atlanta. Miami and The Beach; Texas points and the Carolinas all report sensational stands, Divisional Manager Ballance adds. The picture has a varied reaction, and in this connection it might be well to record that of the Mayor of Augusta, Ga., who says he's going to sue 20th-Fox for half a million. He wants that much because he says that the fair city of Augusta has been pictured as a muddy, one-horse village, in place of the up-and-coming metropolis that it is.

Regulatory Legislation Killed

Two bills that sought to regulate the Georgia motion picture industry, were killed in committee last week. Both urged a proposition to make illegal the licensing of film unless a full season's product was included, with rights of certain eliminations. Attorneys Robert S. Sams and John I. Kelley of Atlanta, and Benjamin Pepper of New York spoke against the bills; Nat Williams, Thomasville, Ga., exhibitor and vice-president of the SETOA, appeared in their interest.

Noble Roman O. C. Lam breezes into Atlanta and reports enthusiastically on his three new projects. He says the new theatre and radio station for Cedartown, Ga., will open in June or July, while a similar opening is promised for the new theatre in the Grove Park section on the Bankhead Highway, just out of Atlanta. In Rome, Ga., construction on his new 800-seater will begin in 45 days, with completion in early fall.

Bill Moves Ahead to License Operators

ATLANTA—The house has passed a bill requiring operators of motion picture projectors to have a license, and placing the responsibility of giving examinations upon the state fire inspector.

Sponsors of the bill said it would prohibit unlicensed operators from traveling about the state and putting on shows in school auditoriums and elsewhere.

BENNY RALSTON of Sound Engineering Service Company has completed a contract with H. V. Wynn of the Paris Theatre in Greenville, S. C. SESCO has also installed new sound equipment in Pete Webb's Webb Theatre in Shelby, N. C. . . . A. B. McCoy, owner of the Carolina in Conway, S. C., is gradually improving after a serious illness.

The Florida trek: Henry R. Berry and Mrs. Berry there for two weeks, Henry to recuperate from a recent operation; B. B. Anderson and wife, of the Anderson circuit in Mullins, S. C., have just returned; Lester Sipe of Sipes Theatres, Charlotte, N. C., and Ellis Blumenthal, B&B Amusements, Charlotte, still commuting.

The return engagement of "Gone With the Wind" was phenomenal, and a holdover has been announced. Pedestrian traffic for two blocks from the theatre was so congested that special officers were assigned.

President Charlie H. Arrington of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina is jubilant over the largest membership yet enjoyed by that association, which is the oldest in the country, being 29 years old this year.

Visitors along the Row: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Anderson of the Ritz, Tabor City, N. C.; L. L. Overton, Levon, Enfield, N. C.; E. L. Hearne, Alameda, Albemarle, N. C.; George Hughes, Stanly, Albemarle, N. C.;

Four Managerial Shifts In Wilby-Kincey Houses

KNOXVILLE, TENN.—Eugene Street, city manager for Wilby-Kincey Theatres, announces manager shifts affecting three local houses.

James Howell, manager of the Riviera for the past three years, goes to Atlanta, Ga., to be assistant to James Harrison in booking for the 40 theatres in the circuit in Tennessee, Alabama, and Georgia.

James Gaylord, manager of the Park, goes to the Riveria and is succeeded at the Park by H. D. Hale, manager of the Bijou. Dunlap Henry, manager of the Walton Theatre, Selmer, Ala., takes over at the Bijou.

Shields, Edge Building West Lafayette House

ATLANTA—M. T. Shields and John Paul Edge are building a two-story brick building on their property on Chattanooga St. in West Lafayette, Ga., to house a motion picture theatre.

The outlay will be around $10,000.

Reopen in Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—The Crescent Theatre, after being closed for several weeks for complete remodeling and redecorating, is again open. The house is owned and operated by Mrs. J. M. Ensor and O. G. Wren.

A Drive-In Reopens

MONTGOMERY—The Auto Movies, a drive-in unit, has reopened for the spring and summer season. Jack Bruce is manager; L. C. Worthington, owner.

DALLAS

L. C. BAXLEY, former Texas film man and now owner of the new Plaza in south Houston, was in booking . . . S. G. Fry of Tyler drove up on a two-day booking trip for his four theatres. He was just out of a sick bed. The flu . . . B. R. McLendon, general manager of Tri-State Theatres, Atlanta, Tex., was in town working with his booker, Bob Euler . . . Lee Bell, manager of the Pastime and Cozy in Clarendon for the estate of the late Homer Mulkey, was in booking and took time off to do a little trading in equipment supplies.

W. A. Conner, who is rebuilding the Ritz at Dawson, was in Monday as usual. He said he will be able to use practically all of his present equipment in the new house . . . Billy Morrow, owner of the State at Abilene, was on the Row looking after bookings with Forrest White of Ind-Ex Booking Service . . . Sigmund Hellman, new owner of the Elk at Italy, has been spending much time on the Row making acquaintances.

B. W. Johnson, now building a new theatre in south San Antonio, was on the Row in the interest of that venture. His partner is R. R. Knight. They will start soon on another new theatre in north San Antonio, Johnson said . . . Charley Dees, Paramount branch manager in Oklahoma City, and formerly office manager here, was in town looking after a few accounts in Texas which his exchange serves.

B. F. Hamman, manager of the Globe at Bertram, was up to set in a few pictures. The theatre is owned by the Globe Amusement Co., composed of local business men . . . Connie Drehr, Monogram representative, and his former wife were remarried here in a church ceremony. They left for a honeymoon in El Paso.

Fred Cannata, general manager of the Will Horwitz Theatres in Houston, was in on business. The company has just reopened the Palace. The four other Horwitz houses, all downtown and relatively close together, are the Uptown, Ritz, Texan and Iris, all operated in affiliation with Interstate.

Wood Street, a part of Filmrow, was not without its fire drills Wednesday. This reporter was caught at the Fox office as employes there scurried for the front entrance. A fireman who conducted the trial performance, had just come across the street from the Columbia exchange where he held a like demonstration.

W. B. King was on the Row after finishing up an extensive remodeling job at the C. W. Matson's Majestic in Somerville, which was to have had its formal opening this week . . . Forrest Nine of Texas-Oklahoma Distributing Co. is on a business trip through Louisiana and Mississippi . . . W. R. Holcombe, who is planning to get back in show business, left on a short trip to Louisiana.

Among the week's visitors were Willard Sadler of Weatherford, Marshall Stewart of DeLeon, Johnny Blevins of Dublin, Rubin Frels of Victoria, Rufus Layton of Childress, and O. L. Smith of Alto. J. Preston Tate of Comanche and a weekly "regular" for years, missed his trip Monday due to illness.

The Leslie Wilkes family went to New Orleans for the funeral of Harold Wilkes, former Paramount district manager and a brother of Leslie. Mrs. Mary Wilkes, their mother, made the trip in an airplane to be at her son's bedside. Leslie, traveling for Columbia in east Texas, was reached in the territory and drove down. His wife and son, Dickie, went on the train.

John Franconi and Ed Blumenthal have made some improvements at the Monogram exchange. A rail has been placed across the front and a new booking counter installed.

Pays the Preacher After 36 Years

Opelika, Ala.—Jimmy Biggers, mogul at the Martin, Opelika's swanky testimonial to the head of the Martin chain, is responsible for one of the best stories of this or any other week. It's a piece for Ripley.

It seems that Jimmie is "good friends" with the Rev. W. M. Curtis, pastor of the First Methodist Church here.

Dr. Curtis sat with Jimmy in the soda shop of the theatre and told this yarn:

It seems the veteran cleric was sitting in the same spot a few days previous.

An elderly man several times eyed the clergyman and each time cast his optics elsewhere. He had something on his mind, the pastor soliloquized.

Finally the man screwed up his courage. He came over to the doctor's booth. He said:

"You married me 36 years ago, pastor. I promised to pay you, but I never did. Either I buy you a new hat or give you $5. Which is it, Mr. Curtis?"

Recovering from the shock, Dr. Curtis said he remembered the incident but faintly.

Five dollars changed hands.

Dr. Curtis reports: "Mrs. Curtis got the new hat."

NEW ORLEANS

A MONSTER benefit show will be staged at the Saenger, March 29, for the Greek War Relief Fund. Other theatres throughout the state will follow suit, same date . . . Dixie Dunbar is headlining the floor show at the Hotel Roosevelt . . . Free motion pictures will be exhibited at both Audubon and City Parks this summer . . . It was erroneously reported that Gordon Lee Hutchins of the State at Corning Ark., passed away recently. It was Gordon's father who died and we regret the error exceedingly.

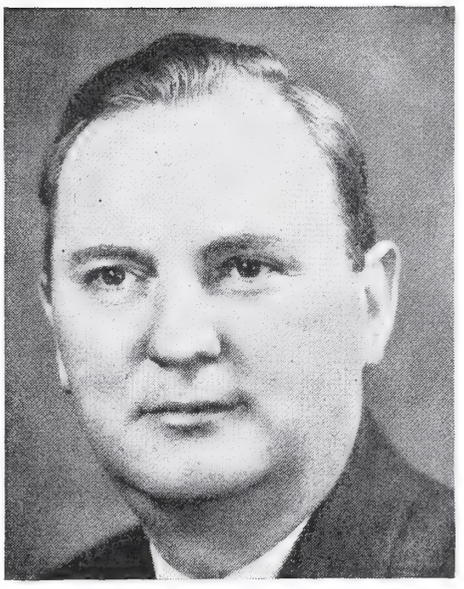
W. F. Sonneman, who operates theatres in Fayetteville, Springdale and Bentonville, Ark., spent two days on the Row advancing his bookings.

AUSTIN

DICK WAITE and Jesse Melinger, managers of the Paramount and the Varsity, respectively, came off the links bragging about the 110's they shot, in preparation for the San Antonio-Austin joint Variety Club golf tournament in the Alamo City . . . Ray Wood, erstwhile usher at the Varsity, is now American vice-consul at Merida, Yucatan, and crazy about his new surroundings, he writes.

Comings and goings: Louis Novy, city manager for Interstate, to San Antonio . . . Wilbur Evans and George Brundrett of the Paramount service staff planning an early vacation trip to Minneapolis . . . Jesse Melinger to Dallas on booking business . . . Will Roddy, chief usher at the State, on a quickie trip to the Alamo City . . . Eli Wallach, Austin and New York actor, in for the weekend . . . Interstate's Karl Hoblitzelle was a two-day visitor, during which time he spoke at the Citizenship Conference at the University of Texas.



They still come back: To the Texas—"Hell's Angels," "Of Human Bondage," "Winterset," "Wuthering Heights," "The Old Dark House," "Holiday," "The 39 Steps," "Storm in a Teacup," and "The Scarlet Pimpernel." To the Varsity—"Lost Horizon" . . . Set for a two-day run at the Varsity is the French film, "Escape From Yesterday," starring Annabella . . . "Torpedoed" and "Bombs Over London" were doubled at the Queen for big weekend grosses. Newspaper reviews, however, were not too complimentary.

Earl and Lena Podolnick have bought themselves a new nest in Bryker Woods . . . The Vickers have moved into a new apartment . . . Dick Westbrook, now in Uncle Sam's army, was in town for the weekend to see his old colleagues at the Varsity . . . Julius Kubala of the Texas service staff passed his Randolph Field physical exam with flying colors . . . E. P. Ischy, the Paramount projectionist, broke a blood vessel in his head from coughing too heartily, he says; but his friends claim that figuring his income tax caused the mishap.

Bobbye Meredith, queen bee of the Interstate office, is mighty proud of her new Oldsmobile sedan . . . Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Hegman of the Ritz among the Shakespearean fans at the Curtain Club production of "Twelfth Night" . . . Joyce McIlroy, cashier at the Paramount, and Helen Evans, State cager, have exchanged places . . . The Inter Co-op Council of the U. of T. is planning to shoot a 15-minute sound short, showing the ins and outs of life in a university cooperative boarding house . . . June Ischy, E. P.'s daughter, has been accepted for CAA training.

Eight Days for "Tobacco Road"

NASHVILLE, TENN.—"Tobacco Road" has been pulled at the Paramount after eight days. The picture started off with a rush but attendance fell after four days. Manager Charles Amose described the film as "disappointing and tame" to those who had seen the stage play.

His Illness Fatal—

Harold F. Wilkes, for 27 years with Paramount, who died in a New Orleans hospital following a prolonged illness. Until he was stricken, Wilkes was Paramount district manager.

Last Rites for Wilkes Held in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS—Funeral services for Harold F. Wilkes, former Paramount southern district manager, were held here at the Bultman Funeral Home.

The pallbearers were L. C. Montgomery, N. L. Carter, Gaston Dureau jr., Page M. Baker, John L. Kirby and "Slim" Higginbotham.

Wilkes, who was 48, died of a chronic cardiac condition following a long illness. He had been on leave of absence since last April.

Wilkes joined Paramount in 1913 as a booker of the Southern Paramount Picture Co. In 1916 he became executive manager for S. A. Lynch. He filled this post until 1923 when he became Paramount branch manager here. In 1939 he was made southern district manager.

Wilkes leaves a widow, daughter, son, mother and brother.

Build in Elkin

ELKIN, N. C.—Louis Mitchell, who operates the Lyric here, is building another and Dr. W. B. Reeves plans construction of his second house. Completion of these projects would provide nearly 2,000 seats for this town of 2,357 population.

Goes First Run

DALLAS—The Varsity, Interstate neighborhood house, went first run by playing RKO's "Convoy" on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

HOUSTON

PLANS to shut down the Ritz were shelved when the Horwitz-Texan theatres negotiated a new lease. The Palace had been reopened on March 15 to replace the Ritz when Will Horwitz, as president of the Preston Amusement Co., which had operated the house for 15 years, was unable to renew the lease. Since the Ritz has reopened, the policy of stage shows will continue, leaving the Palace a straight picture house.

Weldon Parsons, Interstate neighborhood theatre head, and Tommy Howell, Almeda manager, are planning "Revival Week" at Howell's showplace. The selection is governed by requests.

The Metropolitan management, the Houston Post, and radio station KPRC have collaborated to give auditions with Phil Spitalny to Houston girls over 16 years of age. The top contestant will have a week's contract with KPRC . . . Phil Spitalny is currently on the Met stage.

Dick Stout of the legal department of Interstate Theatres, Inc., on behalf of Interstate and Paramount Newsreel, presented the full eight-minute reel taken by Paramount last January at the inauguration of city officials, to Mayor Neal Pickett. Mayor Pickett and city commissioners were invited to the screening at the Majestic where the presentation was made. Hosts were Al Lever, city manager of Interstate, and Raymond Willie of the Dallas office of Interstate.

Arkansas Houses Lead In NTS Installations

MEMPHIS—Equipment installations by National Theatre Supply in several Arkansas towns and in Greenwood, Miss., and Lilbourn, Mo., are reported by the NTSCo. branch here.

In Arkansas, at North Little Rock, Malco Theatres, Inc., have installed in their Park Hill Theatre new sound, projectors, transverters, lamps, screen and lenses, as well as cooling equipment, chairs and carpeting. At Joiner, Kinkle and Kellar have equipped the Joiner Theatre with a new cooling system.

Sound, projectors, lamps, lenses, rectifiers and screen have gone into W. H. Hutchins and Gordon Hutchins' State at Corning; Ray A. Wilson's New at DeWitt, and similar equipment went into the Ensor Company's Crescent at Little Rock, with the addition of carpeting, chairs and cooling.

At Lilbourn, Mo., A. D. Fielder, operating the Rex, installed new sound, and at Greenwood, Miss., Frank Bishop and Ben Ward, modernized the booth of the Fran with lamps and rectifiers.

Greek Drive Gets Going in Texas

DALLAS—First benefit performance in Texas for Greek War Relief was held Wednesday night in Nelson & Simpson's Palace in Paducah, according to Herman Biersdorf, chairman of the exhibitors' committee for the drive. Other shows over the state will follow immediately.

As part of the industry's effort to raise funds here, a big dance will be held Wednesday at the Plantation Club. More than 700 tickets have been sold among the industry and its friends and the balance of 2,000 tickets printed will be disposed of by local Greek organizations.

Believing it can raise more money through other means, the Interstate circuit will not hold Greek midnight benefit shows as originally scheduled, but will promote in all its towns, parties, banquets, etc., as well as take up collections in lobbies.

Send Out Invitations for A Preview of "Liberty"

DALLAS—Invitations were sent out by the Interstate circuit for the special preview Friday morning of "Land of Liberty" at the Tower. The invitation said, "This screen cavalcade of America is being shown to the public as a contribution to the Nation's Defense Program. It is being distributed on a non-profit basis, with sales proceeds donated to war emergency welfare work."

The Dallas showings will have the cooperation and support of all schools, civic clubs, chamber of commerce and other organizations here, according to Louis Charninsky, Elm Street showman, who has been active in the cause.

The Film Club of Texas Will Open Club Rooms

DALLAS—The Film Club of Texas, newly organized with bookers and other industry employes as members, opens its club rooms in the White Plaza Hotel Tuesday night, according to President George Gaughan.

$700 From Golf Tourney Turned Over to Variety

FT. WORTH—Frank Weatherford and his showmen raised about $700 at the annual theatremen's golf tournament here Monday. The net take was donated to Variety of Texas for charitable purposes.

On Pleasure Trip

DALLAS — Karl Hoblitzelle, Interstate president, and Mrs. Hoblitzelle are on a short pleasure trip which will take them to New Orleans for a visit with E. V. Richards of the Saenger circuit, and possibly a cruise in gulf waters on the Richards yacht.

In the Rough—

With some 150 players expected to tee off in the Variety Club of Texas' annual Spring Golf Tournament, the tourney committeemen, John Franconi and B. C. Gibson, discuss the problems of pairing and starting times. Activities start in the club rooms Saturday, April 19 and wind up Monday at Brook Hollow Country Club.

"Manual of Arbitration" Now in Cole's Office

DALLAS—A 65-page pamphlet titled, "Manual of Arbitration" as covered by the consent decree, has been received and is now on file in the office of Col. H. A. Cole, national Allied president.

The book was published by Abram F. Myers, general counsel for Allied. It points out exhibitors' rights under the decree and outlines what can be arbitrated. Letter forms governing certain trade conditions are also given as a guide to exhibitors for correspondence or in making complaints.

The manual is available for the use of Allied members in Cole's office. Copies for exclusive use will be sold, however, to members and non-members, Cole said.

Interstate and Affiliate To Galveston May 26-29

DALLAS—Interstate circuit and Texas Consolidated Theatres, both under Hoblitzelle-O'Donnell direction, will hold their annual convention May 26-29 at Hotel Galvez in Galveston. In past years these annual get-togethers have been memorable events, both for the Interstate family and for Galveston. The time is divided into business sessions, general discussions and entertainment, the last of which plays no minor part.

16mm Print of "Mr. Smith" For Governor O'Daniel

DALLAS—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas has requested, and will receive, a 16mm print of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" for his own use, it is learned here. The chief executive requested the film a short time ago when it was pointed out to him that the background in the picture closely paralleled the situation in Austin when he went into office.

Big Texas Role at Variety Conclave

DALLAS—At a general meeting May 5, the Variety Club of Texas will learn who and how many will attend the national convention in Atlantic City, May 15-17, according to Chief Barker Paul Short. Indications now are at least 50 will go from here.

National officers anticipate use of the Hardin-Simmons Cowboy Band and their six white horses, Short said, and in this event a special train will be chartered and Eph Charninsky and his donkey from the big convention here last April, will go along.

Several matters already decided are that General William McCraw, who spoke at last year's convention here, will be one of the principal Atlantic City speakers along with ex-Governor Hoffman of New Jersey.

Inspector J. C. Rader of the Dallas police and house chairman of Tent No. 17, will be a special guest with all expenses paid. Short and R. J. O'Donnell are co-chairmen on the national convention committee. Burt King, recently returned from a pre-convention meeting in Atlantic City, is a member of the golf committee.

Al Wolf is making 150 feet of film on 35mm covering all charitable activities of Tent 17 for showing at the national conclave, and O'Donnell and Short will go to Hollywood in April to arrange for a group of stars to be in Atlantic City.

James O. Cherry, Elm Street showman and chairman of the "New Members Drive" for Tent 17, added 20 new names to the roster last week, making a total of 60 since he started. He is shooting for 100 by May 12. On that day at a special luncheon, the new members will be inducted. An added feature will be the showing of the reel made of the convention here last year which was shipped to all other Tents but which has never been shown to Tent 17 members.

Chief Barker Short said a plan is afoot to make each newspaper managing editor and radio station manager in Texas a Variety member. They are closely allied with amusements and, therefore, are eligible, he pointed out.

Films and Shows Civic Ceremony at Princeton

PRINCETON, KY.—Dewey Mousson, manager of the Knickerbocker, Nashville, Tenn., made newsreel pictures of the opening and dedication of the new county courthouse here for Thomas J. Simmons, manager of the Capitol.

The pictures will be shown at the Capitol and then presented to the county as a permanent record of the event.

Firm Two Years Old

ATLANTA—Bernie Shapiro, head of the Southern Poster Printing Co., announces he is observing his second anniversary in business. Several new machines have been added to the plant in the last six months.

Doric Accident Nets Drive on Theatres

TORONTO—Inspectors of the theatres branch of the Ontario government have been making a drive on exhibitors and managers since the Doric accident in which a number of juvenile patrons were overcome by coal gas fumes, with the result that a number of operators have been brought to court.

Ronald McClelland, manager of the Capitol in North Toronto, pleaded guilty to permitting patrons to stand in the aisles at the matinee performance and was fined $20 and costs. He was fined a similar amount when he was found guilty of having exit doors locked or fastened during a performance. Inspector A. H. Gray of the Ontario government appeared for the prosecution.

Aaron Wolfe, manager of the Parliament, was fined $20 and costs because juveniles were said to have been standing in the aisles, Inspector Gray testifying that more admission tickets were sold than there were seats. Wolfe declared the children were going back and forth to the washroom.

Doric Is Permitted Limited Operation

TORONTO—Sam Lester, proprietor of the Doric, has been permitted to reopen the theatre for Saturday and holiday matinee performances. The closing of the house for these shows was the penalty imposed for the accident last January in which a number of juvenile patrons were overcome by coal gas fumes. In the meantime, the heating and ventilating equipment of the Doric has been overhauled and the staff has been reorganized with a view of safety precautions.

Lester, meanwhile, has sponsored a series of benefit shows on Sundays, the proceeds of which have been turned over to war charity funds.

Arthur Fielding Leaves Spencer Circuit April

ST. JOHN, N. B.—Arthur A. Fielding of St. John, N. B., for the past 16 years general manager of the F. G. Spencer Co. of St. John, operating 21 theatres in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, will retire from this post about mid-April. He will devote all his attention to several theatres of his own.

Replacing him will be F. Gordon Spencer, a son of the president and founder. The son has been on the staff for several years, at the St. John headquarters in the Strand. The change will become effective on the return of F. G. Spencer from Florida.

At Truro, N. S., Fielding, with the Strand, erstwhile Spencer house, will be opposition for the Spencer Capitol, and a new theatre now being built for Spencer, and to be ready this summer.

: From the Newspapers :

TORONTO — Preferred stockholders of Hamilton United will be paid 1¼ on March 31. Hamilton United Theatres has further advised preferred stockholders it is interested in purchasing a limited number of preferred for redemption.

WINNIPEG — Winnipeg women, co-ordinating their voluntary efforts in war and peace work, will take key parts in a new film about Canadian women at war, to be released by the national film board.

TORONTO—Arthur Gonder, widely known scenic artist, suffered a fatal heart attack at his home here.

MONTREAL—Terming the fire risk claim for denying children admission to theatres as a blind for "moral" regulations, an editorial in the Montreal Star cites the British method of endorsing pictures in two ways, for adults only and for all, as worthy of emulation. A board representing both religious and lay authorities to pass on films is suggested.

Assured of No New Taxes for a Year

TORONTO—In tabling the budget before the Ontario legislature, which revealed that the province would close the fiscal year on March 31 with a huge surplus, Premier M. F. Hepburn officially announced that no new taxes would be imposed during 1941-42, thus there would be no provincial amusement levy for another 12 months.

Hepburn disclosed, however, that the new corporation tax, which he introduced one year ago as a temporary measure, would be continued. During its first year, this assessment on the income of incorporated businesses brought a revenue of no less than $23,000,000 to the treasury and the large chain companies contributed substantially to this amount.

Hepburn, in the role of provincial treasurer, announced that the revenue of the theatres branch of the treasurer's department was approximately $200,000, this being derived from the fees collected by the Ontario film censor board and from theatre licenses numbering 408, this being the first year in which the number of theatres had exceeded the 400 mark.

Succession duties collected on estates during the year totaled $11,000,000, of which more than $1,200,000 was derived from the estate of M. J. O'Brien, millionaire owner of the Ottawa Valley theatre circuit, who died recently.

Famous Players to Hold Managers' Convention

TORONTO—Famous Players Canadian Corp. will have a managers' convention this year. In 1940 the big conference was called off because of war conditions and the last gathering was the spectacular function which was staged at Niagara Falls in mid-summer of Royal Visit Year.

Odeon Sponsors May Soon Be Verified

OTTAWA—Sponsors of Odeon Theatres of Canada, Ltd., which is creating a new theatre chain in the Dominion, may be revealed at the close of the current fiscal year, March 31, of the Canadian Government when annual reports are required from all companies operating under a Federal Charter under the provisions of the Companies Act.

These returns, which embody the names of officers and directors as well as an outline of operations, are filed with the Secretary of State at the end of March each year and they must be filed by firms which have been incorporated only a short time—in other words, for only a part of the preceding 12 months. Odeon Theatres of Canada, Ltd., was incorporated last January and it may be only a coincidence that the charter was taken out a short time after Jeffrey Bernerd, a representative of Gaumont-British Pictures and other British film interests, paid a short visit to Canada.

The only one whose name is definitely linked with Odeon Theatres of Canada is S. S. McNairn, solicitor for the company, whose address is Temple Building, Toronto. It was through him that H. G. Duerr, architect, received instructions to draw plans for the Odeon Theatre at Kingston, Ontario. The usual custom in filing application for incorporation papers is to use the names of stenographers or other legal employes as directors of a company, but the official list is revealed when the first annual report of a firm is placed in the hands of the government.

Denial has been made that 20th Century Theatres, operating a theatre circuit in Ontario, is associated with the Odeon move although this suggestion had been included in the flock of rumors which accompanied Odeon developments. Various officers and members of the Independent Theatres Association of Ontario are identified with 20th Century Theatres which operates units in Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton, London, Sudbury, Belleville, Trenton and elsewhere. Incidentally, the names of officers and directors of 20th Century have never been publicly announced, which is perhaps one reason why there has been gossip that this chain might be associated with the Odeon move.

$202,000 in Six Months For Public Information

OTTAWA—The director of public information in the Dominion government, spent $202,000 during the six months ending December, 1940, it has been announced. Apart from $45,000 for salaries and allowances, this money was spent for war propaganda, including motion pictures, press stories and printed pamphlets. The expenditure for films, which were released to theatres and organizations through the National Film Board, was $70,000. These pictures were produced largely by the government motion picture bureau and Associated Screen News.

TORONTO

CAPT. H. J. SWETMAN, known to many as the manager of the Community, Kapuskasing, Ont., for years before the war, escaped death in a London air raid when a heavy bomb wrecked the YMCA Beaver Club. According to a cable, Swetman was standing in the doorway of the building and he "just waited until the building stopped shaking." During his absence overseas, the Community is being managed by L. S. Hodnett who, incidentally, made a trip to the Toronto film exchanges recently . . . Jack Arthur, district manager of Famous Players, is already getting organized for the Canadian war loan campaign in June and has intimated arrangements are being made to have a number of screen and radio stars come to Toronto for personal appearances. Bob Hope has already been booked.

The value of a theatre manager in community work was demonstrated when the Mount Pleasant Business Men's Ass'n in North Toronto was holding its annual elections. They rushed to get Al Sedgwick, manager of the Belsize, back into the chair after an absence from the presidency of one year. Arrangements are being made for the holding of the annual theatre party for juvenile inmates of the Home for Incurables. Incidentally, the North Yonge Business Men's Ass'n is on the edge of oblivion since the transfer of Vern Hudson from the Capitol to Ottawa where he is manager of the Avalon . . . Glenn Ireton of Warner Bros. home office has been appointed director of publicity for the Warner exchanges in the Dominion with headquarters at 21 Dundas Square, Toronto.

Two North Country managers were in town for important conferences. One was Jack Nelson of the Capitol, North Bay, and the other was Syd Scott of the Capitol at Sudbury. Scott has been serving as commander of the Home Defense unit but announced that it has been converted into an A.R.P. organization . . . W. J. Burke, manager of the Capitol, Galt, has recovered from an illness which he suffered alone this time because his sidekick, Jack Simmons of the Palace, London, refused to get sick to keep him company once more. In various respects, these two have lived simultaneous lives, even to getting married during the same week last year.

Manager Fred Trebilcock of the Toronto Uptown has announced that 100 per cent of the staff of the big theatre have signed pledges for regular investments in War Savings Certificates . . . George Davie, recently appointed exploitation man at Shea's, Toronto, in succession to W. J. O'Leary when the latter was made manager of the Capitol, Niagara Falls, has submitted his healthy campaign on "Little Men" for the prize contest sponsored by RKO . . . Sam Korman, manager of the Capitol, Rouyn, and Dave Korman, well known as a theatre builder, and father of Sam, suffered bereavement in the death of the latter's mother at Toronto following an operation.

In conjunction with the presentation of a stage show, "Memories of Music," featuring Marilyn Stewart, a soloist of Northern Vocational School, at the Imperial, Manager Tom Daley donated 30 per cent of the gross to the British War Victims Fund, the Norvoc students putting on a ticket-selling drive for the occasion . . . Syd Taube, Canadian Picture Pioneer, is back on the job at last after returning to Toronto from Hollywood where he spent three months for his health. He came back by way of Vancouver, Calgary and Winnipeg where the exhibitors were asking him about the Odeon Theatre development—"about which I knew nothing," he said . . . R. Cass, formerly of Exhibitors Booking Ass'n, has been appointed manager of the Oriole, in succession to Dave Gordon, resigned.

Wolfe Cohen, general manager of Warner Bros., is back at his Toronto desk after covering every key city in the Dominion from St. John, N. B., to Vancouver . . . Haskell Masters was in Toronto briefly from the New York office of United Artists . . . Sam Jacobs, representative of Grand National at St. John, conferred here with Harry J. Allen, general manager, regarding the new line of PRC pictures . . . Harry Kaufman of Toronto has gone to Calgary for Grand National . . . Louis Rosenfeld, general manager of Columbia of Canada, was in Montreal . . . James Davidson, former film salesman with different companies over many years, has entered another line of business. He was with Colonial Pictures until the death of General Manager B. W. Silver.

George Morrell, manager of the St. Clair, had a crowded house for a patriotic show in aid of the war victims fund, many artists contributing their services. Manager W. Hunt of the Bedford cooperated with the Canadian Legion in staging a patriotic show last Sunday night . . . Jack Arthur of Famous Players scored a personal hit as conductor of the large orchestra which played for the special network program featuring the Aldrich Family who had come to Toronto for the occasion to aid the war cause. Mrs. Joshua Smith loaned the Pylon, Toronto, for a show to raise money for the British military hospital in Palestine.

R. Coper has been appointed editor of the house organ of the Independent Theatres Association of Ontario, in succession to Mrs. S. H. Falk, wife of the theatre builder and operator. Harry Firestone, Ben Ulster and M. L. Axler continue as members of the press committee of the association . . . Gordon Beavis, manager of the Royal at North Bay, staged a "Let George Do It" contest in advance of the George Formby picture with this title, asking local residents what they would do to help North Bay. He gave photos of Winston Churchill as prizes, the idea being that the British Prime Minister is a go-getter.

Fred Jackson, manager of Loew's, London, Ont., has booked "The Great Dictator" to follow the current run of "The Philadelphia Story," the Chaplin picture having been held back until it could be played at popular prices . . . "Sixty Glorious Years," which has been on the shelf for two years, has been brought out because of its patriotic angle and its first run at the Centre, London, Ont., under the direction of Manager Jack Whitehouse, came up to expectations . . . W. P. Hart, projectionist at the Grant, has passed away in his 40th year. He was one of the youngest soldiers in the Canadian Expeditionary Force during the last war and won the Military Medal for bravery in the face of the enemy. A widow and daughter survive.

OTTAWA

T R. TUBMAN, manager of the Ottawa Capitol, played turnabout in cooperative newspaper advertising when he inserted a display in the local newspapers listing the many firms and stores whose employes have organized 100 per cent in the signing of pledges for war savings certificates during the recent campaign of which Tubman was the local publicity chairman. On occasion in the past, a number of these companies and merchants have cooperated with the Capitol on this or that picture.

Among floral offerings for the funeral of Benjamin F. Stapleton, pioneer Ottawa showman and owner of the Centre, were pieces from Empire-Universal Films, Ltd., Dominion Sound Equipment, Ltd., the Elgin Theatre and from the staff of the Centre. Among the many friends in attendance for the last rites were Mayor Lewis and civic and government officials; L. M. Mills, Elgin; Angelo Stevens, Regent; Vern Hudson, Avalon; Isser Singerman, Imperial; Ray Tubman, Capitol; Clare Brunton of the Auditorium; James T. Moxley, veteran local exhibitor, and William Hartnett, representing the Operators' Local. The chief mourners were his widow, Don Stapleton, only son who is managing the Centre; Mrs. Don Stapleton, and the one grandchild, Betty Ann Stapleton. The theatre was closed for the whole day.

Henry Marshall, manager of the Rideau, has discovered a way to build up a record library at a very low price by the purchase of discs discarded from automatic machines in cafes. Many of these records are practically as good as new because the operating company changes them every two weeks and Marshall has been able to secure a wide choice . . . Manager Vern Hudson of the Avalon secured nice cooperation from three optical firms in a display advertisement to tie up with the showing of "Fitting Faces," a short on the program with "Arizona" and "Blondie Plays Cupid."

Caplan's presented its pre-Easter Fashion Revue on the stage of the Capitol in conjunction with "The Philadelphia Story," and the two drew many femmes . . . Lloyd Mills, manager of the Elgin, continued his string of holdovers by playing "The Son of Monte Cristo" for a second week . . . The Capitol was jammed with an audience of 3,000 for the one appearance of John Charles Thomas of the Metropolitan Opera, the screen program for the evening being cancelled.

WINNIPEG

GRUDGING praise of the pulling power of motion pictures was given by a local clergyman here last week when, voicing his fears that Canada is heading for wide-open Sundays, the minister of the cloth drew attention to the attraction exercised by Sunday shows in the United States. The moral, as this churchman saw it, was to make services more attractive and at the same time combat with renewed vigor any attempts made in this country to bring any changes in the existant blue laws.

Syl Gunn and Kirk McComb combined their efforts to give "Western Union" one of the most outstanding build-ups to be seen here for a long time. Most unusual item in their campaign was a telegram which they had distributed through the collaboration of the Winnipeg Tribune, a local daily. As part of a subscription building program, the paper was canvassing potential customers and the newsboys handed the telegram to these people. The paper paid for theatre tickets which were awarded as prizes to the newsboys. The telegram, signed by Gunn, read: "Indians on the warpath ambuscades blazing prairie fires stop see the thrilling motion picture story of the pioneer telegraph days in 'Western Union' now playing at the Metropolitan stop read the old timer story of pioneer railroad days in the Canadian west Saturday in the Winnipeg Tribune magazine section."

Garnet Wright's record setting pace at the Bijou with his showing of the Formby film, "It's in the Air," goes on unabated with the film now in its eighth week and business even better than at the start . . . Getting off to a good start with fine reviews breaking in the papers at its opening, "So Ends Our Night" did well enough at the Garrick to warrant a holdover.

Harold Bishop heralded the run at the Capitol of "Philadelphia Story" with cartoon teaser ads and followed up with newspaper layouts which attracted a lot of attention. His showing of the Academy Award short, "Quicker'n a Wink" brought a special story in one of the dailies.

With Jack Hunt of the Oriental of Chicago a visitor here a persistent rumor is going about that his visit is in connection with a plan to bring stock musical comedy acts to the city which will play at the Orpheum. The house, long dark, is to be reopened for that purpose. As outlined, the intention is to bring a company of about 34 people from across the line. The company will play Winnipeg and then swing through the west playing one week engagements at the bigger cities and split weeks at smaller spots. A new outfit would start each week.

Hard-working Jack Randall keeps his neighborhood college on the map through persistent and effective plugging of his films. Boosting a current showing of "Wyoming," Randall dressed a young lad in a complete cowboy outfit, sat him on a Shetland pony, complete with western saddle, and sent him visiting local schools on successive days. On Saturday the boy traveled through the main streets publicizing the film through means of copy and pictures carried on a blanket layout on the pony.

Building up local talent at his house, Mike Goodman of the Times has created vaudeville acts which are proving very pleasing to his patrons . . . Harry Lee's St. Vital Windsor landed pictures and story in papers with his promotion of the recent Rags Matinee at which children were admitted in exchange for bundles of rags. The newspaper photographed the children stacking piles of rags in front of the Windsor.

E. A. Zorn, western supervisor for Famous Players, who has been on a tour of the western circuit, has returned to the city . . . Harry Gray, formerly Starland manager and recently appointed to manage the Lyceum, is settling down to his new surroundings . . . Bernie Beach, formerly of the Capitol staff, who is now managing the Starland, is reported as getting along very well at his new post.

North Bay Celebrates Jack Nelson's Award

TORONTO—The award of appointment to M-G-M's honor roll for his exploitation campaign on "Escape" was the signal for a local tribute in the form of a complimentary dinner to Jack Nelson, manager of the Capitol, North Bay, which was held at the St. Regis Hotel in that city, the honor badge and certificate being presented by Mayor C. R. Harrison in the presence of distinguished guests. Although the Capitol is a unit of Famous Players, among those who paid tribute to Jack Nelson were Gordon Beavis, manager of the Royal, the opposition theatre, and E. V. Armstrong of Toronto, representing Hanson Theatres Corp.

Among the speakers were three former mayors of North Bay, all of whom extended appreciation to the winner through having brought distinction and a considerable measure of publicity to the city. References were also made to Nelson's community activities over a long period of years.

Prominent citizens in attendance included T. J. Patton, a former District Governor of International Rotary; E. L. Banner, secretary of the Board of Trade; Dr. R. A. Torrance, president of the Lions Club; ex-Mayor George W. Lee, and C. M. Fellman, editor, and J. F. Grainger, manager of the North Bay daily newspaper.

Forbes Ross Acquires a Site in Pickering, Ont.

PICKERING, ONT.—Forbes Ross has acquired a site here for the construction of a new 750-seat house. Work starts shortly with the opening scheduled for the fall. The house will be modern in all details.

Making "Enemy Within"

HOLLYWOOD—Metro will produce "Enemy Within" from an original by J. Walter Ruben and Wells Root. Ruben will also produce.

EDMONTON

ESTABLISHING a precedent in theatre circles here, George Formby's picture "It's in the Air" played for nine days at the Garneau, Manager Bill Wilson announces. This long run for a picture is made still more remarkable by the fact that it had already been shown at two other houses in Edmonton.

Veteran theatre employe, Charlie Wilson, doorman at the Strand, is recovering from a serious operation. Wilson has been employed at the Strand for 30 years.

Abe Fienstein of United Artists, and Harry Phillip of Regal Films were recent visitors from Calgary.

"Gone With the Wind" now playing at the Capitol for the second time has had an exceptionally good run, reports Manager Walter Wilson. Evening performances were sold out with many unable to gain admission and patrons were urged to attend the earlier performances where possible.

Street car directions have been included in recent advertisements run by the Princess, neighborhood theatre under the management of Fred Tickell.

To help swell their war work funds, members of the IODE conducted a stall in the vestibule of the Capitol and sold soft drinks and chocolate bars during the intermission between showings of "Gone With the Wind."

Two presentations of film criticism are now being presented over CKUA, the station of the University of Alberta. One local program is presented weekly by W. Wallace, well-known amateur actor, while a second is presented by Frank Morris of the Winnipeg Tribune.

VANCOUVER

A $23,000 THEATRE for Royal City of New Westminster will be built in the 300 block on Sixth St. for R. C. McCartie. The new theatre will have a seating capacity of 750. H. H. Simmonds is architect and A. Malcolm contractor.

Frank Shepherd of the Star, Armstrong, is particularly proud of his house now that alterations have been completed on it. An entire new projection booth, new rest rooms and complete alteration of the outside make this small theatre one of the most up-to-date in the Okanagan district . . . Charles Ramage made a flying trip up Kettle Valley arranging "Gone With the Wind" bookings . . . E. W. Bickle in town on one of his regular booking trips.

Empire-Universal held a trade screening of "Buck Privates" at the Varsity . . . Ben Plottel of Empire-Universal was on the Island for a short visit.

Arnold Hague, who has been stationed on the coast for many years with Associated Screen News, is being transferred by that company to Montreal . . . Jimmy Haworth of Ladysmith was in town on a short visit.

MONTREAL

LENTEN observance is more rigid in the rural districts of Quebec than in the cities, which is taken by Filmrow distributors to be the reason why comparatively few out-of-town visitors have come around recently. One rara avis, however, was noted. He is W. Cruse of the Plaza, Gaspe, who made an 800-mile trip to do his spring booking. Another from a distance was Charles Magnan of the Malartic Theatre, Malartic, in northern Quebec's gold-mining area.

United Amusement Corporation is expected to grab the championship of Filmrow Bowling League which it heads at present. Runners up, so far, are Paramount and Consolidated theatres.

First newsreel pictures of rapid United States development of defenses in Newfoundland will appear on screens shortly. Ross Beesley of Associated Screen News has returned from the ancient colony with the films . . . Roy Tash covered Sir Frederick Banting's funeral and convocation ceremonies at the University of Toronto, during a visit to the Queen City . . . Another ASN cameraman, Lucien Roy, is in wintry Peace River taking pictures of dog teams, airplanes and tractors at work aiding construction of new bases in the U. S.-Alaskan airway scheme, and Bob Martin had his camera at Cartierville getting shots of Premier Adelard Godbout inspecting the Youth Training plan.

Veronica Lake, Paramount starlet of "I Wanted Wings," attended a cocktail party for the press and told how she had called at McGill to explain that it was not her fault but her publicity manager's, that she had been described in the newspapers as "a McGill graduate." She did study in Montreal, but at Villa Maria convent. She recently married John Detlie, M-G-M art director.

Paul Muni, who recently portrayed the famous French-Canadian explorer, Pierre-Esprit Radisson in "Hudson's Bay," broadcast from Montreal on CBC's Theatre of Freedom. He made the surprising confession that he does not speak French, and that his perfect French accent in "Hudson's Bay," on which he was complimented here, was simply learned by heart.

Grand National Films, re-incorporated as Producers Releasing Corporation of Canada and Newfoundland has started operations with six branches, Montreal, Toronto, St. John, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver.

Paul Nathanson is understood to be the executive head of the new Canadian Odeon circuit which expects to operate about 60 houses, mostly in Ontario.

W. J. Singleton, sales manager of Associated Screen News, introduced to the Advertising and Sales Executives Club of Montreal, the two-reeler, "Peoples of Canada," which will be released shortly . . . Although Charlie Chaplin's "Dictator" ran only one week in Montreal, it is making a profound impression in Great Britain where the suggestion was made in a letter to the London Daily Mail that Chaplin should be rewarded with a knighthood.

Charles Staples Confines Interest to St. Stephen

ST. STEPHEN, N. B.—Charles E. Staples, who has been operating the Queen Theatre here and State Theare in Calais, Me., twin town on the border, in both of which he held a 50 per cent interest, has acquired full ownership of the St. Stephen Queen and sold his share in the Calais State.

Staples, who has been manager of the Queen and its predecessor, the Bijou, for over 30 years, acquired the 50 per cent interest that gave him complete ownership, from the J. W. Smith estate.

His interest in the State Theatre has been sold to Lockwood and Gordon of Boston. This is the only theatre now being operated in Calais.

With war restrictions on border crossing, and particularly on monetary exchange, the theatres on the Maine side of the line have been adversely affected, the regulations reducing the volume of Canadians patronizing the theatres on the Maine side, and as a corollary, boosting business on the Canadian side.

Death of Silver Brings Colonial Reorganization

TORONTO—Following the sudden death of B. W. Silver, general manager, in New York last January while on a business trip to that city, Colonial Pictures, Ltd., has been reorganized here with Mrs. Joshua Smith as secretary-treasurer and her son, Jay L. Smith, as general manager. The company is distributing a number of Alliance features in Canada and it is understood that Buddy Rogers of New York has an interest in the Canadian company.

Percy White

ST. JOHN, N. B.—Death struck suddenly at Percy White, owner of the Canso, at Canso, N. S. White was on the street when he collapsed. His theatre was both entertainment and business base for the Canso lobster fishing fleet, he being marketing agent for the boat owners.

ST. JOHN

IN THE recent death of Ronald J. Macadam, 63, of Halifax, N. S., who died suddenly, the exhibiting field in Nova Scotia lost its pioneer and a very picturesque figure. Born at East Bay, N. S., he became manager of a road show theatre, in Sydney, N. S., in 1902. In 1907 he established the first picture theatre in Nova Scotia, the Alexandra Hall at Sydney. In 1916 he had the Casino in Halifax built to his own plans. In 1929 he shifted to talking pictures. In addition to the Casino, Macadam operated the Garrick in Halifax, a former road show and stock vaude house. Several years ago both theatres were added to the Famous Players Canadian circuit, but with Macadam continuing as the Casino's major owner. He retired as manager about 16 months prior his death. Surviving are his widow and a sister.

Not content with owning and managing the Roseland and Academy in New Glasgow, N. S., N. W. Mason is coming back as an actor. It is almost four decades since he trod the stage, but he is now readying to produce and play the top role in "The Old Homestead," for a tour which will include about all the eastern camps of the Canadian army, air force and navy. Mason, who is 77, organized his present troupe of Little Theatre players from around New Glasgow, on hearing that the men in the war uniforms are in dire need of entertainment at their training bases.

When curlers representing eastern Canadian clubs arrived in Toronto to participate in a bonspiel emblematic of the Canadian title, they found invitations to enter the Imperial, of the F. P. C. chain any time during their week's stay. Tom Daley, manager, is a native of St. John, and formerly manager of picture houses in Halifax.

Due to the great difficulty in getting U. S. money for spending on the U. S. side of the border, Canadians living on or near the border are creating record business at the theatres along the boundary.

SASKATCHEWAN

COOL weather somewhat hampered the plans of Charles Horning, assistant manager of the Met Theatre, Regina, for ballyhooing "Chad Hanna," but Charlie did manage to have two sandwich board clowns on the street, a girl riding up and down the main thoroughfare on a horse and a neat little window display in Regina's largest department store.

Elliott D. Brown, manager of the Roxy Theatre, Yorkton, has left for Saskatoon where he has been called to service in the RCAF, and Forest Plumb, of Wilkie, Sask., has arrived in Yorkton to replace him . . . On his departure to assume the managership of the Wilkie, Sask. house, Nelson Warner of the Roxy, Saskatoon, was presented with a Gladstone bag by the manager and staff.

Enthusiastic curlers, I. Reinhorn, manager of the Roxy, Regina, and Frank Hastings, assistant manager, visited the Carlyle, Sask., bonspiel. The Hastings rink won a third prize . . . Paul Wisminity, apprentice at the Roxy, Watrous, was in Regina recently writing the necessary examination to qualify as a licensed projectionist.

Merchants of Star City combined to sponsor a free picture show for the people of Star City and district on a recent Saturday. Show was held in the Roxy . . . Members of Service Flying Training School at Moose Jaw were shown a 16mm version of "London Can Take It," available in the city for use in schools to assist in the purchasing of war savings stamps.

Orpheum Theatre, Nipawin, was filled to capacity for the Nipawin school's annual concert.

Club Provides Students Theatre Tickets

Atlanta—Through a tieup with a local good citizenship club, Lionel Keene of the Kirkwood Theatre has issued honor student courtesy cards that admit the bearer to attend the show without cost. Individual members of the citizenship club, each of whom has a role as a sponsor of a class at local schools, bestows these tickets upon the outstanding scholar each month. The club pays for the admissions.

A variation on these courtesy cards was issued during the showing of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." The tickets were good for five cents on an admission and 1,000 were distributed to teachers to give their classes.

Lutes' and Prickett's Campaigns Winners

NEW YORK—M-G-M has awarded Honor Roll Buttons to Gene Lutes, Capitol Theatre, Frankfort, Ky., and Ken Prickett, El Rancho, Victoria, Tex., for their outstanding campaigns for "Land of Liberty" and "Flight Command," respectively.

Lutes' campaign was highlighted by a special screening for civic officials and representatives of educational, religious and social organizations, all of whom cooperated fully in boosting the picture. Special arrangements were made with the county superintendent of schools to allow the various schools under his supervision to be dismissed and transported in school buses to attend an early showing of the picture on opening day. It was necessary to run the film in three houses simultaneously to accommodate all the students.

One of the features of the "Flight Command" promotion was the setting up of a recruiting booth in the lobby, with an officer ready to pass out pamphlets and explain various phases of army enlistment to applicants. Another table was set up for applicants for the flight training course at the local Junior College. A plane secured from a local airport was put on display at a vacant lot, with appropriate copy adorning it. Plenty of art and stories in local newspapers topped off the campaign.

Navy Mothers Cooperate

NEW YORK—The Navy Mothers of America, a national organization of feminine family heads whose sons are in the navy, is cooperating with RKO's exploitation department in campaigns on "A Girl, A Guy and A Gob."

Training for "Buck Privates"—

Bill Zeilor, manager of the Harris Senator, Pittsburgh, and Ed Siegal, Universal exploiteer, attracted considerable interest with this train in the interest of "Buck Privates." Draftees attended a special performance as guests of the theatre. The train, equipped with whistles and amplification for street spiels and reproducing of special records, moved through Pittsburgh streets day and night. A rookie peeling spuds in a downtown window was another display for "Buck Privates."

Heralds Follow Up a Calendar for Texan

PORT NECHES, TEX.—A showman who believes in keeping his wares before the public is W. S. Samuel of the Lyric Theatre. Samuel follows up a monthly calendar with gaily colored heralds issued weekly.

The heralds devote their cover to institutional advertising, reminding that the best in entertainment is always nearby at the Lyric. The other three pages plug the week's product.

Samuel's calendar is printed in two colors and is dressed up with small cuts in each date square, plugging the picture booked for that date.

Film Made at School Draws to Matinees

KENT, OHIO—Taking moving pictures of youngsters attending a Washington's Birthday show at Schine's Kent Theatre proved so popular that Manager E. L. Kidwell has extended the stunt to taking pictures of the kids at the various schools.

These pictures, taken at recess time, are advertised by a trailer and special handbills. An easel alongside the photographer urges: "Watch for these movies. At the Kent soon." Every grade school is covered individually and the films made at a particular school are shown each Saturday afternoon.

: Sends Big Letter :

CHICAGO—A letter, four times the size of an ordinary letterhead, printed up in large typewriter type and bearing the signature of Manager Robert Busch was used as a herald to advertise the Jeffery Theatre's Sunday attractions for the month of April.

The throwaway started off "This letter is big because it contains big news. We're proud of the attractions we have booked for your entertainment for the month of April. We don't believe that any finer shows can be seen at any price or at any other theatre.

"We have appropriately labeled April 'The Month of Sundays' at the Jeffery Theatre as witness the following attractions:"

Then followed four paragraphs, each one listing the feature booked starting that Sunday, and carrying a plug as to its merits.

BLITZKRIEG SALE—15,000 Theatre Chairs late models. 50c, 75c, $1. Previously sold for $6. Reserve now. Evergreen 8-4975. EASTERN SEATING (Nick Diack), 58 Dobbin Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

ANDY HARDY'S PRIVATE SECRETARY—School presidents vied with private secretaries in a radio quiz based on an episode in the film. Titled "Do bosses know more than their private secretaries?" the quiz was broadcast in a quarter-hour program the night preceding opening. Participants included the senior class presidents of three universities—representing the "bosses"—and the private secretaries of three prominent figures.

A GIRL, A GUY AND A GOB—The naval district cooperated with a display of miniature battleships for the mezzanine, a recruiting booth with gobs in attendance and cooperated in a recruiting stunt wherein a volunteer responded from the audience and a recruiting officer was there to sign him up pronto.

CONVOY—Over 50,000 school children were reached through the routing of a set of British flags, including all the empire units, to the various schools. A speaker explained to history classes the part the flags played in England's history. Later the flags were spotted around the marquee and made an avenue in the lobby. Also in the lobby was a display of knitting turned out by local members of British relief agencies. Members of the agencies sold emblems in the lobby and telephoned all members to come see the picture. Ten thousand heralds were distributed house to house and a screening held for teachers. Theme for ads was "Will the British win the war?"

FLIGHT COMMAND—A telegram from Robert Taylor commending a local recruiting officer for his fine work, and mentioning the film, was publicized. Guest tickets were offered recruits who passed their physical examinations. Photos of the new recruits were planted in downtown windows and parents were informed the pictures were on display and offered the elders guest tickets.

HAUNTED HONEYMOON—Seated on a settee in the lobby were two skeletons in close embrace. Sign beneath read: "Don't disturb; we are on a 'Haunted Honeymoon.'" Lobby card above gave playdate, and a rear mirror on the wall enhanced the effect.

COMRADE X—"$500 a Seat" blared large letters on a 30x40 easel frame in front of the theatre. Further copy, in considerably smaller letters, informed that an exclusive, private showing of "Comrade X" was available for a $500 fee, the admission to be turned over to any worthy local charity selected by a group of representative citizens.

NIGHT TRAIN TO MUNICH—A herald in the form of a lengthy railroad ticket which looked like the real thing, read "From the (theatre) All Ab-o-a-r-d . . . the most exciting and hilarious trip you've ever had, etc." Small type in the tear-off sections of strip gave newspaper criticisms on the picture.

LAND OF LIBERTY—A giant replica of the Statue of Liberty displayed with stills and copy in a leading window.

PHILADELPHIA STORY—By arrangement with the local newspaper, pictures of service men attached to a nearby base were snapped candidly about town. Those identifying their photos received cash and guest tickets. The paper devoted art and stories to the idea.

PHILADELPHIA STORY—A young sandwich man walking around town was placarded: "Is my face red! I just saw "Philadelphia Story.'"

ADAM HAD FOUR SONS—Above the usual two column newspaper ad a managerial endorsement read as follows: "To you who appreciate the screen's finer achievements, I personally commend and endorse 'Adam Had Four Sons' as a picture which ranks with 'Back Street' in emotional candor and with 'Rebecca' in its thrilling portrayal of triumph." Manager's sig concluded the message.

FLIGHT COMMAND—A 1,000 horsepower airplane engine, borrowed from a local aviation school, which had the motor and propeller geared for instructional purposes with lighting showing movements of pistons, etc., was mounted in the lobby and plugged into the wall socket, the power slowly turning the propellor. Guard rails and an attendant on duty protected the crowds that were attracted by the display. At evening shows, students from the school explained specifications of the motor to interested patrons.

MR. AND MRS. SMITH—The local newspaper and radio station were promoted for a theatre party for the Mr. and Mrs. Smiths on the opening day of the picture. All the Smiths who would meet at 7:30 p. m. at a nearby confectionery were served refreshments and went in a body to the theatre. The refreshments were promoted.

SCATTERGOOD BAINES—Newspaper contest offered cash prizes and tickets for the best "Scattergood Quotations." Also a radio search for a horse and carriage similar to one Scattergood might drive. When one was located it was suitably bannered and driven about town.

TRIAL OF MARY DUGAN—A repair job on a water main that burst in front of the theatre soon carried a sign standard in the mound of dirt, reading: "We're digging for evidence to be used in 'The Trial of Mary Dugan.'"

GALLANT SONS—Lobby display emphasized that the picture was made by the makers of "Boys Town." The theme of devotion was tied up with the currently front-page items about Laddie, the dog flown from Kansas to his master in camp in California. Angle was the picture had the heart appeal and devotion of Laddie.

Walking 24-Sheet In Harrisburg

Harrisburg, Pa.—A 24-sheet, mounted on heavy wrapping paper and tacked to four upright poles. Four boys carried it and would unroll it at busy corners, remaining at each spot for about five minutes. The stunt was worked for "Philadelphia Story" by Bill Elder of Loew's.

Publicity Outlet Near at Hand

Chicago—On a specially constructed bulletin board, 15"x15" attached to a wall in the ladies room, Manager Robert Kennedy of the Symphony Theatre, each week posts a special typewritten story on the woman's angle of various pictures coming to the theatre.

Australia at War

RKO 18 Mins.

(March of Time, Vol. 8, No. 8)

Fair. Pictorially supplementing the daily headlines, "Australia At War" utilizes recent and familiar newsreel shots in part and shows the troops from down under in the African campaign; the war program mapped out and being executed by the Australian government, including scenes of road building, a transcontinental highway linking Darwin with Sydney and Melbourne, the manufacture of munitions, the home utilization of agricultural products and export of surplus. Finally, and of much more interest to American audiences, there is a strategic mapping of the Pacific with Australia's possibly prominent position in relation to the "braking" of Japanese expansion. To highlight this theory the military bases, troops and naval squadrons in the Dutch East Indies, Singapore, Hong Kong, Manila and Hawaii are seen briefly. It's a newsworthy issue, generally.

For the People

Greater New York Fund 9 Mins.

Featuring Raymond Massey as narrator, this reel is available gratis. With the pictorial presence of Abraham Lincoln in the background it shows the humanitarian work the organization does for orphans, poverty-stricken sick, crippled children and the blind. The Fund does not solicit in theatres. It's worth playing for the ultimate good it will do.

Unusual Occupations

Paramount (Series LO-4) 11 Mins.

Average. A London jeweler reproduces royal appurtenances; a Connecticut woman utilizes colored wool in lieu of paint to make interesting pictures; an Iowa would-be railroad engineer has his own, private engine; a traveling beauty shop makes the rounds of small towns, also in Iowa; a young girl in Mexico is an expert bull fighter and Clifford McBride's famous cartoon dog, Napoleon, is shown in his master's studio.

From Singapore to Hong Kong

Columbia (Columbia Tour) 10 Mins.

Average. Routine travelogue footage of both cities with the usual comparison of old and new, various races that make up the native army and cut and dried comment on the soundtrack; that's all there is.

Stranger Than Fiction

Universal (No. 88) 9¼ Mins.

Interesting. Herein are shown a feather-collecting fish lure manufacturer; a driftwood hotel; a motor fuel made of water and lye; a man who makes pictures from fragments of postage stamps, and a youngster who is quite the contortionist.

Greece Fights Back

Paramount 8½ Mins.

Fine. The March of Time produced this extremely effective short subject as its offering in the cause of the forthcoming Greek War relief drive among theatres. The sterling stamp of intelligence is evident throughout. The narration is terse, dramatic and never wordy and the clips themselves are concentrated drama. In story content, the subject quickly tells about the glories of ancient Greece, the threatening heel of the totalitarian aggressor and the valor of the Hellenic defender. Net proceeds go to the fund. That's one reason for playing it. The other concerns the power of the reel and its claim to widespread screen time because of merit.

Timber

Disney-RKO (Donald Duck) 8 Mins.

Very good. Donald tries to steal food at a lumber camp. Caught, he is put to work with axes, saws, etc. He gets into difficulty with Big Pierre and has to run for it. The chase scenes offer Donald racing along on a handcar with Pierre hot in pursuit. At the last moment Donald sidetracks Pierre so he crashes clean through a string of box cars.

Delhi

Paramount 11 Mins.

(Fascinating Journeys)

Good. Done in the regulation, skillful style of this series, herein is offered historical architectural sights, the colorful saris of the Indian women, religious information, on the soundtrack, and a good deal of footage showing the British part of the city, plus troops and the modern influence. The subject's attraction lies in the manner of presentation.

Cliff Edwards and His Buckaroos

Vitaphone (Melody Masters) 10 Mins.

Good. This is pleasant musical divertissment in the western manner. It all takes place in and around the main house of a dude ranch, with a little "business" to intersperse the song numbers. Edwards sings two solos and is backed up in a few more by a nice male group. It is for general patronage.

"M-m! THAT'S WORTH REAL THOUGHT!"

Smart showmen know they can rely on regular Altec service—sound and booth parts service—to keep the show hitting the sheet top-quality-wise—which is box-office-wise in any showman's language. But that isn't all! Altec's high-standard service protects the exhibitor's money-investment in his present equipment, and when the need for future modernization comes, exhibitors know they can rely on Altec's technical advice on buying new equipment. You'd Better Decide, Boys

FOR the couple of seconds required, we re-direct attention to extracts from a significant news story in BOXOFFICE two weeks ago. Washington was the dateline:

> "There are indications here that, if the consent decree flounders because of state laws overriding groups of five selling, the whole question of block booking will be thrown into the laps of Congress . . . In the event legislation such as is proposed in Georgia and Minnesota extends to a sufficient number of states so as to render the block booking provisions of the decree void, or generally inapplicable, it is viewed here as quite likely that agitation for federal legislation barring blocks will be revived with what is described as 'good chances for success.'"

Since then the Georgia house has buried such a bill and a number of Southern gentlemen, variously engaged in exhibition, are burning up slowly, but thoroughly. Since then the Minnesota bill has moved forward progressively, both legislative branches there recommending passage.

These, however, are only straws in the wind. The wind may degenerate into a balmy zephyr or it may develop gale-like proportions. It all depends on time, circumstance and considerable manouevring, predicated again on individual interests, as usual.

Nothing Stays Put

THE WHOLE situation, in fact, is downright peculiar. For years, exhibitors and presumably hundreds of them, have been going from squeak to growl to roar about the monopoly they say has been exercised by the distributor in shoving all of his product down the throats of the theatreman with no regard to tonsils or windpipe. They have called this everything from trustification up, down and across the line well nigh to anti-Americanism and, by Heaven, we're going to do something about it.

Well, they're doing something about it all right. The Georgia activity is a dead dodo now, but it was an effort. Minnesota is a livelier bird with plenty of flap in its wings. North Carolina is fairly close to Georgia and attached by sentiment as well as large theatre chains which are not too unfriendly one with the other and which on occasion survey the scene through the same spyglass. During the week, Michigan began to consider a law generally construed as attempted homicide on the decree.

What ought to be remembered, however, is that this business of doing something about it applies two ways. The "Big Five," having signed the decree for better or for worse, are committed to see that it works. The department of justice, certainly, will not stand by complacently and adopt a do-nothing attitude if a series of state laws should threaten scuttling of the sales provisions of the consent. Thus, this picture of the future takes shape:

The five top majors will be compelled to fight full block sales, thereby taking over the battle which protesting exhibitors have preempted as their battle for years and proving, if nothing else, that times, indeed, have changed. The justice department, equally on the offensive, will throw its weight solidly behind these five in the cause of their common objective.

Fork in the Road

BUT it will go even beyond, unless the Washington weather vane is completely cockeyed. It will go beyond in an effort to end sectional squabbles by turning to Congress for legislation barring full blocks, convinced, as the department of justice maintains it is, of "good chances for success."

The possible eventuality, therefore, is very clear in outline. The decree, as written, dies its own death in three years. Under its terms, the five-block plan can be kicked out earlier. A federal law, once on the statute books, becomes difficult to wipe out. Remember the statute against fight films. It was removed finally, but it took years. And more years.

It seems obvious, and on the painfully so side, that exhibitors who are opposing the decree will have to decide which way they want to go and what kinds of chances they are willing to take. If anyone were to ask our opinion, it's available. But fast:

We would put our money on the decree with an outside possibility of three years of it, not on a federal law which may remain on the books forever more to damn the day.

RETURNING EXHIBITORS PREDICT STUDIOS HEAD FOR A NEW HIGH

Production Pace; Changes Under Decree and Plans For Big Films Cited

NEW YORK—Theatre men returning from visits to various studios in the last couple of weeks bring back with them an expectation and, in some cases complete conviction, that product generally for 1941-42 will show more signs of improvement than has been evidenced in years.

These are hard-bitten and hard-dealing exhibitors talking and probably there isn't an illusion left among them. They predicate their opinion on what they saw, what they heard and were told and the conclusions they finally drew. They declare they are well aware of the boasts made by all companies in previous years, but figure this time is different with blocks of five sales coming up rapidly now under the decree.

To Abandon "B" Films

In a talk before National Theatres at Arrowhead Springs, Louis B. Mayer told the delegates M-G-M is making every effort to abandon "B" films. A Warner executive last week expressed the same opinion and home office sales officials are now at the Burbank studios discussing plans for the new season with this in view. George J. Schaefer, in a press interview some time ago, also looked forward to a new policy of big pictures only. Paramount has been gearing its activities under Y. Frank Freeman along these lines for some months now. Acquisition of William LeBaron, Ernst Lubitsch and Mark Hellinger by 20th-Fox bears out, in part, recent remarks by Joseph M. Schenck that the company has changed its policy and will in the future concentrate on outstanding films. More producers on the lot each with direct responsibility for a few important pictures is the new tenor of things at Movietone City.

Look to New Season

The five companies mentioned are all signatories to the decree, which means they cannot sell groups of more than five to customers other than their own affiliates. The non-consenting companies such as Columbia, UA and Universal are shaping new plans without fanfare, the indication being that when the new selling season is actually here they will have plenty to talk about. Each has been lining up new producers, according to the type of product labeled for release.

Travelers also report speeding up of production on all fronts with some studios reaching a peak never before attained. They say each company seems determined to complete current year's obligations on releases as early as possible so that there will be a first block of five available for screening in the 32 key cities by the end of July.

Also, it is stated, each company is anxious to have its second block ready for August trade showings. Despite the fervor attendant in accomplishing this, there is no scrimping on budgets, it is believed.

As one indication, it was pointed out M-G-M has 11 pictures before the cameras, which is unusual. Other studios are making use of every available stage and where preceding years have seen a production lull during the summer months, it is believed there will be more activity on the Hollywood lots than ever before, this year.

No Decentralization In Buying at Loew's

New York—There will be no decentralized buying for Loew's, an attorney for the circuit informs BOXOFFICE.

Under Section V of the decree, it was pointed out by the lawyer, there is no need for local buyers, "particularly where we have one theatre in a key city."

As long as separate contracts are entered into with distributors others than M-G-M, this procedure is viewed as perfectly legal in New York under the section. The document only insists on separate contracts, but when, why or where they should be negotiated or signed has nothing to do with the decree.

RKO Circuit Plans No Unwound Buying

NEW YORK—The RKO circuit has no intention of decentralizing its film buying personnel in line with such plans under way currently by National Theatres and the Warner chain, according to John J. O'Connor, general manager.

He points out that, since 59 of the circuit's 98 units are in the metropolitan area and the bulk of the balance are key city operations, there is no necessity for making film deals on a local basis. O'Connor further cites the fact the circuit's house in Providence, R. I. has played but three films since January 1 as an example of why no change in the setup is warranted.

The chain operates 47 units in the metropolitan area, films for which are bought here. Added to this group are 12 in the Cincinnati and Dayton area which are managed by Ike Libson, who makes deals for product in those areas. The balance of 27 houses are mostly one week stands, O'Connor states, which do not require local buying.

All short subjects, although bought in New York, are dated by division managers. This has been the policy for the past few years. The circuit uses principally shorts distributed by its parent company.

The only major product it will have to buy in blocks of five for next season will be Warner, since it has an eight-year franchise with 20th Century-Fox and can buy RKO and Universal in full-line blocks.

Want "Bill" Powers For Antipodes Post

NEW YORK—William T. Powers, chief film buyer for National Theatres, may become operating head for Hoyts Theatres in Australia if he approves proposals advanced by Spyros P. Skouras, president of National, which holds a major interest in the Australian circuit.

W. T. POWERS

The move is seen as two-fold. Under the decree, Powers' post is being spread into the field where local buying will become more prominent. Also, Skouras has been considering installing someone from the states as direct contact on the Hoyts situation. At one time Dan Michalove was considered but with the abandonment of plans for a 20-year merger between Hoyts and Greater Union Theatres, Michalove's trip to Sydney was called off.

Powers, it is stated, would be in complete charge of Hoyts. Whether or not he will accept is to be decided shortly. He has a family and considerable interests here. Under the decree his post as chief buyer for National will be eliminated with Skouras spending more time in the field, assisting in local buying negotiations.

Edward Zabel and Aubrey Schenck will assist Skouras more actively in the future. They will continue to make their headquarters at the 20th-Fox home office. Milton S. Hossfeld will be shifted very soon to Denver as top film buyer for Fox Intermountain and executive assistant to Frank H. (Rick) Ricketson, zone head.

E. L. Alperson, former chief buyer for National and at present assisting Harold J. Fitzgerald in Milwaukee, may be shifted to another territory. Irving Barry, who has been handling shorts until now, may replace Alperson in the Beer City. Then again he may find himself headquartering in Seattle as film buyer for Frank Newman.

All tentative changes were discussed on the coast and again in New York when Skouras and other home office executives returned from the annual meeting of divisional heads at Arrowhead Springs.

It is indicated a number of other buyers may be added to the field force. These additions, as well as executive changes, must be approved by the board of directors.

George Balsdon, who has been on the inactive list although he has reported regularly for work since his accident on the coast a few years ago, has officially been retired. Before his auto injury he had been one of the buyers.

"Undoubtedly the picture of the week — perhaps of the month or the year. I don't see how it can miss being box-office."
—Louella O. Parsons

"Miss Leigh has done the nearly impossible thing—she has topped her performance in 'Gone With The Wind' and she is also revealed as the great beauty of the screen."
—John Chapman, New York Daily News

"Tops in all departments; should be strong box-office attraction every place. Here is a splendid picture on all counts, one which will probably rank high among the outstanding pictures of the year, and certainly as fine a film, if not the best, that Alexander Korda has ever offered the public. Great entertainment for all audiences." —Film Daily

"'That Hamilton Woman!' is a thing of beauty. Vivien Leigh is breath-taking. She's superb from start to finish. Alexander Korda has produced the whole picture with a prodigal hand." —Hedda Hopper

"A stirring and beautifully wrought drama. Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier turn in performances which neither has previously topped. The film is magnificent."
—Daily Variety

"Vivien Leigh is beautiful as That Hamilton Woman and her performance outranks her Scarlett."
—Sheila Graham, North American Newspaper Alliance

"In a magnificent production Alexander Korda brings to the screen one of history's great love stories. Vivien Leigh gives a glorious performance. Hers is a brilliant exhibition of acting that attains and at times, surpasses the stature of her superb Scarlett O'Hara." —Hollywood Reporter

"Korda's best since 'Henry VIII'. It is moving and entertainingly solid. If Boxoffice indulged in star ratings, the decision would be easy. Four for 'That Hamilton Woman!' "

"LITTLE 3" STAYING CLEAR OF ARBITRATION EVEN WHEN NAMED

Plan on Clearance Held Impractical

NEW YORK—Sales and exhibitor reaction to the plan of Samuel A. Moross, former secretary of the Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce, in which he advocates a radical change in the present system of granting clearance tends to the opinion the nature of the business will always preclude the fixing of an arbitrary fee for the privilege of protection.

Moross, now retired and at one time representative for UA and Universal during the old system of compulsory arbitration, recommended a plan based on the premise clearance should be declared a commodity and the exhibitor should buy and pay for it as such, "instead of securing it as a gratuitous privilege."

Majority criticism of Moross' plan embraces the belief no system, scientific or otherwise, has yet been devised which establishes the division paid for film rental and that paid for clearance in theatre deals. Moross fixed 25 per cent of the license fee as an additional sum which he said should constitute the price for clearance with that price to increase if and when the film is held for longer than one week. The table he used to illustrate his point was based on flat rental figures.

However, the purported fact that the widest majority of first runs or those situations which never play an attraction less than a week operate on percentage arrangements vitiates the effectiveness of the plan, reaction indicates. Although some opinion veers to the belief the plan is "theoretically" sound if all deals were on flat rental it is pointed out the condition is exactly reverse.

Another criticism takes the form that subsequent runs, among which there is currently widespread dissension over "unreasonable" clearance, could, under the Moross plan, be further "victimized" by unscrupulous prior runs. As described by exhibitor sources, this could happen if a prior run under the plan paid a ten per cent increase in film rental to get an extra week's clearance. If this was taken advantage of, the subsequent run would have to wait even longer for films if the prior run wanted to hold him back.

To PCA as Specialist On Latin America

HOLLYWOOD — Addison Durland has joined Production Code Administration as specialist in Latin-American affairs and starts his post April 14. Currently, Durland is chief of the Spanish section of NBC.

His function will be directed toward advising producers on content of films that are marketed in South America.

All Ignore Intervention Forms; Will Take No Part in Hearings

NEW YORK—Universal, UA and Columbia for the present have no intention of taking part in arbitration hearings in which they have been inadvertently named by exhibitors. This became known when a checkup revealed none of the "Little Three" has acknowledged the intervention forms sent to them by tribunal clerks in a number of situations where they have been named along with the "Big Five."

Meanwhile, it has become established that none of the "Big Five" contemplates any clauses in contracts which would provide for arbitration of trade practices not covered in the consent decree. Sentiment in this respect is that any grievance which an arbitrator would like to arbitrate, but which distributors are not compelled to submit to, can be arranged for privately.

Such important factors as failure of an exhibitor to play or pay for a picture; failure of a distributor to deliver a print as per contract, or provide a good print; failure of the exhibitor to return the print in good condition or within the prescribed time; violation of clearance by a distributor; failure of either side to live up to advertising agreements, or failure of either side to perform the contract for reasons outside their control could be submitted to arbitration if both sides agreed to it, despite the fact these trade practices are not covered in the decree.

Round Out Details on UA Convention Plans

NEW YORK—Details in connection with UA's sales convention plans are expected to be completed and announced next week. Arthur W. Kelly, general sales manager, is understood to have been working out various angles on the convention.

Don't Fraternize, Arbitrators Told

NEW YORK—Arbitrators who make up panels in the film tribunals, "even when not serving, must scrupulously avoid social fraternizing with the motion picture representatives or receiving any theatre tickets, accepting or seeking any favors whatever, however slight they may be, or in any way giving the impression or creating a suspicion that they are any more friendly or approachable than before their appointment."

The excerpt is from The American Arbitrator, handbook issued by the American Arbitration Ass'n, listing the "powers, duties and responsibilities" of arbitrators.

It has more to say on the same subject, to-wit:

"From the time the arbitrator accepts office, his conduct should be such as to avoid any suspicion as to his fairness and honesty. He will, therefore, avoid receiving favors from either party, or accepting invitations from a party or his counsel; he will have no communications with either party, not immediately made known to the other party; he will receive no private communications which he does not disclose to both parties; he will enter into no relationship which might change his point of view or make him a beneficiary under his own award. A scrupulous arbitrator will go further and refuse to benefit from offers made by the successful party to improve his social or financial position, for the acceptance of these, even subsequently to the making of an award, may be construed as a reward for his favorable decision.

"Members of the motion picture tribunal panels," the handbook continues, "must observe these standards not only while they are serving in cases but at all times, lest it be inferred that they are being influenced in advance of their service."

Greenwich Clearance Row May Go Into Courts

NEW HAVEN—Reports were current here the latter part of the week that Cummings & Lockwood, retained by Edward Peskay, operator of the Pickwick, Greenwich, the landlord and an insurance company which holds the mortgage on the property, are ready to file an action against Skouras, RKO, Loew's and the major companies on clearance by the circuit houses in White Plains and Port Chester over the Connecticut independent house.

It is said the dispute, current for some time, is beyond settlement. Although the clearances were altered about two years ago they have been found unsatisfactory. Peskay's representative in Greenwich is William Brown, who also handles a number of other Peskay properties.

TRADE CONTROL VIA COMMERCE DEP'T FINDS WASHINGTON COOL

—Loop Photo

From This Case, an Appeal—

At the hearing of the Ken Theatre arbitration demand before the Chicago tribunal, the decision of which has been appealed to the appeals board composed of Van Vechten Veeder, George W. Alger and Albert W. Putnam. Clockwise here: Alvin Landis, Ken attorney; Bennie Banowitz, Ken Theatre Corp.; Maxwell Landis; John Landis; Jim Donohue, Paramount Chicago manager; Arthur Schoenstadt, Schoenstadt circuit; Harry Hamburg, Paramount and RKO attorney; Felix A. Jenkins, general counsel of 20th-Fox, and Clyde W. Eckhardt, 20th-Fox Chicago manager.

No Indication Anything Not Defense Essential Will Get Attention

WASHINGTON—Official and Congressional circles in Washington evince little interest in proposals that the department of commerce be given authority to regulate and control the motion picture business.

There was some question why the department, not an enforcing agency per se, should be selected as the regulatory body over the federal trade commission, which was set up to control trade practices.

In view of the exigencies of the war situation, the efforts made in Congress in the past to control the industry and the department of justice New York case, there was little disposition either in the Administration or in Congress to give attention to proposals for the further regulation of individual industries.

The consensus is that no further efforts to enact legislation, either to control the practices of the industry or to impose a federal control, will be made until the consent decree has been given a chance to demonstrate its value.

Arthur Lucas Quoted in Favor of Gov't Control

The Washington attitude expressed in the preceding dispatch stems to Arthur Lucas, well known Georgia exhibitor, and the following story, written by Gladstone Williams, staff correspondent of the Atlanta Constitution in Washington:

"National legislation to give the department of commerce authority to regulate and control the motion picture industry was urged upon congressional leaders here this week by Arthur Lucas, well-known Atlanta business man and owner of a large chain of motion picture theatres in Georgia.

"Lucas has been in conference with Will Hays, generally recognized as the czar of the movie industry, over current problems affecting the cinema. They are known to have divergent viewpoints on the proposal for federal regulation and control of the industry. Hays was at the White House for a conference with the President."

A spokesman for Hays in New York declares for him that the MPPDA president has no recollection of any portion of his talk with Lucas along lines indicated in the Constitution's story.

Lucas Not Available for U. S. Regulation Comment

ATLANTA—Arthur Lucas is reported out of the city by his office. In his absence, no one identified with his organization will comment on reports linking him with advocacy of industry regulation by federal agency.

From Boxoffice Up and Down, Boren Wants Industry Probed

WASHINGTON—The industry again faces the possibility of a Congressional investigation.

Appearing before the House rules committee March 25, Lyle H. Boren, Democratic congressman from Oklahoma, urged immediate action on his resolution for a House probe of practices which he declared will not be corrected by the consent decree.

Representative Boren would have every phase of the industry, from production to the boxoffice, thoroughly investigated, he told the committee, asserting that the independent exhibitors are thoroughly at the mercy of the integrated companies despite the consent decree.

During the hearing, the suggestion was made by Representative J. Hamilton Fish (Rep., N. Y.) that the investigation might well include motion picture war propaganda. Boren agreed that such amendment of his resolution would be advisable, declaring that situation, too, merited study.

Despite Boren's spirited appeal, there appeared to be little desire on the part of the committee to revive the film inquiries which kept Congress busy for years under the block booking bills, and refused to make a decision until further hearings have been held.

Nathanson Expansion 'Ace in Hole' Step

NEW YORK—Observers discussing the new independent circuit development in Canada lean toward the belief N. L. Nathanson, president of Famous Players Canadian, is fortifying himself with his own groups of theatres in advance of the expiration of his five-year contract in June. The Famous Players Canadian circuit is controlled by Paramount, which has a nearly expired 25-year product franchise with some 200 houses of the Canadian chain.

Formation of Odeon by Paul Nathanson, son of N. L., and acquisition of a number of houses in the Dominion have given rise to the report that this is not without significance in the Nathanson affairs to take shape in the next few months. Observers also are attaching considerable importance to the Hanson circuit which has 18 to 20 houses of its own, in addition to booking as many for independent operators.

"Both Odeon and Hanson are buying theatres all over the Dominion," one visitor from Canada stated.

Men and Events

As Viewed by Red Kann

IVAN SPEAR, Hollywood eyes-and-ears for BOXOFFICE, regularly reviews "I Wanted Wings" which opened with brass hat and white tie at the Astor Wednesday in this issue. He likes it a great deal. And so do we.

As hot as a firecracker, this one. And that isn't by way of picking on the much-publicized Veronica Lake although she looks like some pickings. What we mean is subject matter at large, method of handling it and the huge well of adroit showmanship that was wrung dry when they turned this one out.

The title gives away the general idea, of course. In point of story, the formula regularly applied, and usually with success, to yarns of this kind holds forth. Three or four guys—all pals—in the same branch of the service, a couple of them finally dying, two women for ends of the triangle, etc. But the treatment is solidly commercial and so are the results.

High Spots in Heaven

Once more, "I Wanted Wings" demonstrates, as probably and inevitably it has to be, that the high spots take place well up in the heavens. The air stuff here is superb. It is thrilling. It is dramatic. It carries a whale of a punch as the public will be learning soon now.

Then, too, there are comedy moments and love moments. Also moments when Ray Milland has trouble what with what seems to be a rapidly widening yellow streak and turns out to be otherwise. In the background, in the foreground and in fact, all over the screen as the dominant element is the nation-wide interest in the development of the country's air arm. "I Wanted Wings," in terms of very effective entertainment, tells much of that story. Proving, we think, that when the story base is actual and arresting, the picture itself has every opportunity to emerge in the same manner.

In these days when Hollywood is curve-conscious, Miss Lake turns out to be twice blessed. The appreciative camera, always gallant, recognizes its obligation to what appears a trend of the times. It openly, if not boldly, stalks up to its subject to photograph what waits to be photographed.

The boys are going to cheer. That's what the boys will be doing. Cheer.

QUIET like and without fuss, the phoney ending of "Meet John Doe" has been changed at the Hollywood and Rivoli, but whether or not the surgery applies around the country is a point Warner is elusive about. This column knows; it has asked.

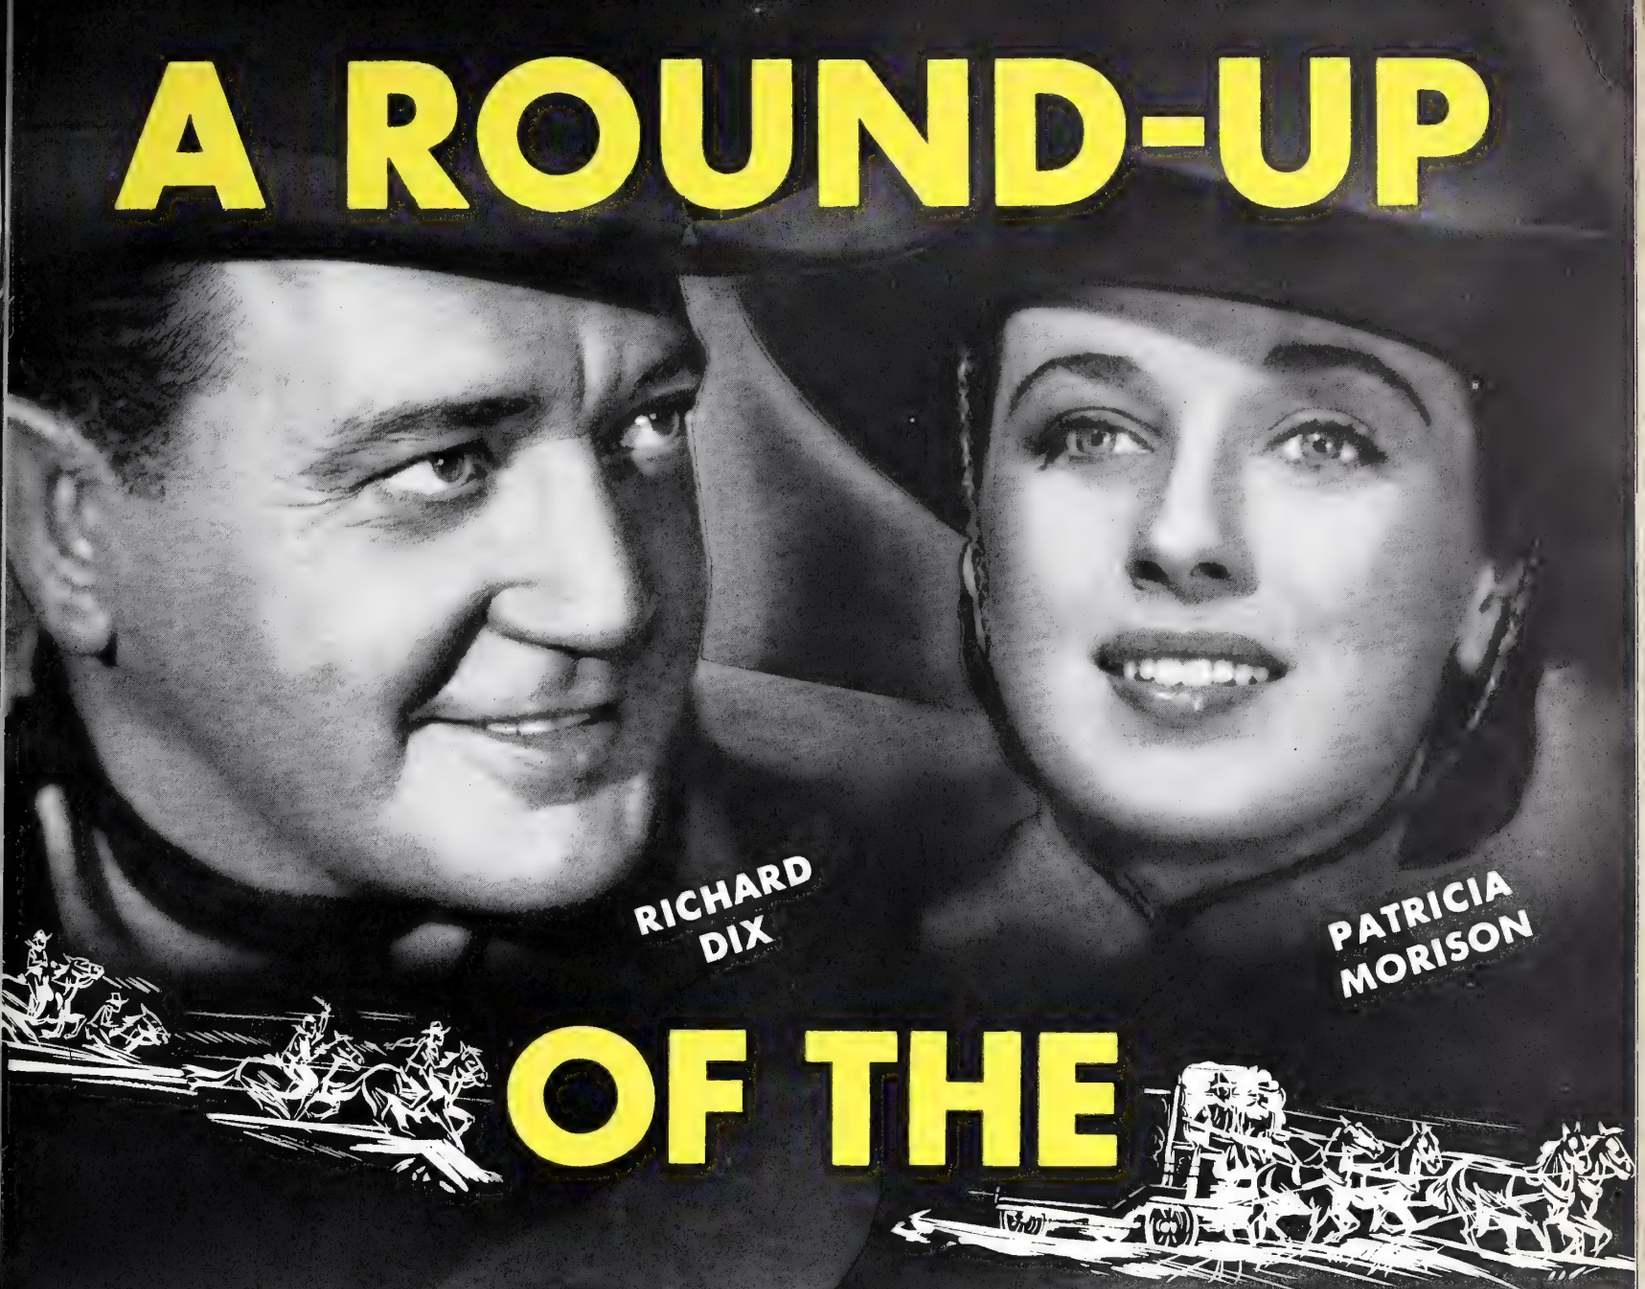
The editing applies to that very brief scene in which Edward Arnold, as the Fascist newspaper publisher, recants and instructs Jimmy Gleason to have published the letter written by Gary Cooper (John Doe) to all the other John Does, explaining how and why the movement was neatly smothered to death. It never did ring true as shown in the projection room and as unfurled for the public in the approximate first five days of the twin New York run.

Now, Barbara Stanwyck succeeds in persuading Cooper to abandon the suicide motive on the honey-plus idea they can start the movement all over again. With Barbara reposed in Gary's arms, Cooper walks off the roof of the city hall, which was to be the scene of the leap, and out of the picture.

Finish.

"Impressed"

FURTHER unsolicited comment on the "Move Over, You Giants" editorial of which a number of important executives already have attested their complete approval:



"I was very much impressed by your editorial. I consider this of timely and constructive importance to the industry and thank you again for your interest and splendid cooperation," writes Al Lichtman, vice-president of M-G-M.

Being Practical

AN EDITORIAL in the Janesville, Wis., "Gazette" has a rather neat approach to the Wheeler inciting-to-war charge thrown in the face of the industry. In part:

"Senator Wheeler must know that movies and radio give their audiences the bill-of-fare they want, insofar as capabilities and subject material permit. To do anything else would be economic suicide, and for the government to insist upon anything else would be to choke democracy at its very front."

COMMERCIAL TELEVISION SEEN PROBABLE WITHIN SIX MONTHS

Near Standards Accord, FCC Green Light Is Believed Due Soon

WASHINGTON—With the radio industry practically in accord on standards and regulations, commercial operation of television was seen in Washington this week as probable within the next six months.

That the necessary orders to pave the way would be issued in the near future was indicated by federal communications commission officials as they closed three days of hearings marked by a demand by Radio Corporation of America for delay until there was assurance that broadcasters and set manufacturers were ready to undertake production on a scale sure to meet any public demand.

The counsel of delay preached by RCA, last year the leader in a race for market supremacy when the commission authorized commercial operation only to cancel its order, came as a surprise to the commission and other television interests, who believed the organization again would urge quick action.

Defense Program a "Hindrance"

Presenting the views of RCA, Dr. C. B. Jolliffe, chief engineer, suggested that with the defense program likely to result in shortages of material and technical labor, the FCC should make a thorough investigation of the industry's ability to produce before ordering commercialization.

The RCA official went further than did representatives of the Columbia Broadcasting System, who merely urged the defense situation as a reason for caution but did not go so far as to advocate postponement of commercial operation.

Don't Want to Delay

Members of the commission expressed scant sympathy with the position taken by RCA and indicated openly that they were averse to postponing action in view of the assurances by other manufacturers that they were ready to go ahead with commercial production. RCA, Dr. Jolliffe disclosed, has scattered the manufacturing organization it built up last year and would have to start all over again, but other companies reported that they are prepared, Farnsworth Television promising the commission it would have sets on the market 120 days after the FCC authorization is issued.

Aside from the hesitancy of CBS and RCA, all of the witnesses before the commission urged immediate commercialization, although there were some differences of opinion on the standards for equipment and transmission recommended by the national television system committee. For the most part, these differences were not irreconcilable and assurances were given that the standards would be modified as interests working along other lines developed their equipment.

There was some question whether this would meet the objections of Allen B. DuMont Laboratories, urging flexibility in standards, which in a brief challenging RCA's suggestion of delay in commercialization charged its position and that of Columbia was due to a fear that television advertising would afford severe competition with their radio chains.

However, it was indicated, the promise of such reforms as may be necessary would meet the objections of Scophony, Ltd., whose representative disclosed that negotiations are going on for the formation of an American company to market Scophony theatre equipment in this country.

8,000 Theatres Figure In Greek Relief Aid

New York—Close to 8,000 theatres throughout the country actively participated in the Greek War Relief Ass'n drive, which got under way Tuesday and ran through Sunday, according to Adolph Zukor, chairman of the amusement industry division.

Reports coming into drive headquarters here reveal that 840 midnight shows had been arranged, exclusive of hundreds of special benefits, such as dances, tag days, concerts and stage shows.

Details of local activities are published elsewhere in this edition.

Foresee Television Snag In Defense Program

WASHINGTON — Television broadcasters may find themselves in difficulties if commercial operation is authorized now, with no assurance that the defense program will not create shortages of materials and trained technicians which may reduce the ability to produce receivers and leave the stations without audiences, is the view of Columbia Broadcasting System officials.

Possibilities of such shortages, based on the restrictions recently imposed by the government on the use of aluminum, were cited by CBS representatives at television hearings before the federal communications commission, as a reason to consider seriously delaying commercialization until the emergency is over.

Urging that the commission confer with Administration officials acquainted with the necessities of the defense effort, Paul Porter, counsel for the company, expressed the feeling that the setting of standards now would lay the groundwork for the development of commercial television in an orderly fashion and that commercialization could proceed "provided it did not lead the public to believe that an extensive broadcasting service would continue during this period when defense requirements are steadily increasing."

Monogram Franchise Holders Meet April 4

HOLLYWOOD—The annual convention of Monogram franchise holders, representing 36 exchanges in the United States and Canada, will be held April 4, 5 and 6 at the Roosevelt Hotel in Hollywood, with more than 125 company distribution and production executives attending.

Information regarding Monogram's 1941-42 product lineup, recently announced in New York, will be amplified during the three-day session, at which time funds will be allocated for an increase in the budgets of a special group of features.

President W. Ray Johnston; Trem Carr, member of the board of directors; and Samuel "Steve" Broidy, general sales manager, will preside. Prominent among topics to be discussed will be plans for meeting the new distribution-production situation caused through adoption of the federal consent decree. William Gell, managing director of Pathe Films, Ltd., and distributor of Monogram product in Great Britain, will address conventioneers.

On the Schedule

Franchise holders will arrive here April 3. The next two days will be devoted to business sessions, with the annual banquet planned for the evening of April 5. The following day will be given over to a sightseeing tour of Hollywood, including a visit to the company's Newhall ranch to watch several scenes being shot for "The Pioneers," Tex Ritter starrer.

Among those attending from the field will be:

John W. Mangham, Atlanta; Ben Welansky, Boston; Harry Berkson, Buffalo; Henri Elman, Chicago; William Onie, Cincinnati; Nate Schultz, Cleveland; Ed Blumenthal and John Franconi, Dallas; F. E. Judd, Des Moines; William Hurlbut, Detroit; William Benjamin, Kansas City; Howard Stubbins, Los Angeles; Charles Trampe, Milwaukee; Ben Nathanson, Minneapolis; Harry H. Thomas, New York; Carr Scott, Oklahoma City; S. J. Francis, Omaha; George West, St. Louis; Mel Hulling, San Francisco; and L. T. Fidler, Denver.

Home Office Contingent

The home office contingent will include Johnston, Carr, Broidy, and Herman Rifkin, vice-president; Ray E. Young, treasurer; Joseph Lamm, comptroller; Louis S. Lifton, advertising-publicity director; John S. Harrington, manager of the print and accessories department; Lloyd L. Lind, head of the contract department; Russell M. Bell, art director, and J. P. Friedhoff, office manager.

The producing organization will be represented by Scott R. Dunlap, Lindsley Parsons, I. E. Chadwick, Edward F. Finney, George W. Weeks, Samuel Katzman and Paul Malvern.

GREATER PROGRAM OF 32 FEATURES,

Where the Amusement Dollar Goes—

WASHINGTON—Slightly less than two-thirds of every dollar spent on amusements by the American public goes for motion pictures, it is shown by analysis by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of data recently compiled by the census bureau.

A break-down of the "amusement dollar" shows that 67.4 cents goes to motion pictures, 8.8 cents to billiard and pool parlors and bowling alleys, 4.4 cents to the horse and dog race tracks, 3.3 cents to the legitimate theatres, and 16.1 cents to amusement parks, riding academies, private swimming pools and all other forms of amusement.

The analysis was based on the 1939 census of amusements, which showed their total receipts to be $998,079,000 compared with $696,012,000 in 1935, with the motion picture theatres accounting for $673,045,000 of that total, against $508,196,000 four years earlier.

How New Englanders Spend Their Dollar

WASHINGTON—Expenditures of the average New England family for motion picture admissions increase as family income expands up to $3,000 and thereafter tend to decline, it is shown by studies of the department of labor.

Up to the dividing line, it was found, about half of the total recreation expenditure goes for motion picture, but thereafter the proportion drops, although in neither the up or down sides does the dollar expenditure change consistently.

The department surveyed seven communities in four of the New England states, picking large, medium-sized and small cities. Families in the smallest cities were found to spend less on recreation, all told, but spent about the same as those in the larger communities for motion pictures, the natural inference being that the amusement field in the small towns is more restricted in variety.

The survey developed that the average low-income family has little to spend on recreation. In Providence, for example, families in the $500-$750 bracket had $7 a year for amusement, of which $3 was spent on motion pictures. The average yearly expenditures for recreation did not amount to as much as $100 in any income group below the $3,000 level, and when that point was reached approximately $30 went for film theatre admissions.

Increase With Income

Starting with $3 for the $500-$750 bracket in Providence, expenditures for motion pictures increased with income up to $42 in the $3,500-$4,000 bracket, thereafter tending to decline. In the medium-sized cities, the range was from $3 for the $250-$500 bracket to $30 for the $2,500-$3,000 bracket, while in the smallest cities, the range in the same income brackets was from $4 to $29.

Among families with income of $500 to $3,000 a year, those of clerical workers spend more on motion picture theatres than do those of wage earners or salaried professional men, but families of independent professional and business men spend more, and those of salaried business men spend the most.

As an example, in the $1,250-$1,500 bracket, the Providence wage earner spends $11, the clerical worker $16, the salaried professional man $12, the independent professional man the same and the salaried business man $21. From income bracket to bracket, however, the standing shifts, but the over-all picture is as presented in the preceding paragraph.

Flashes From the News Front

Co-Op Case in Semi-Finals

DETROIT—Decision is expected in late May in the anti-trust suit of the Midwest Theatres, Inc., against Cooperative Theatres of Michigan, a booking and buying combine. All evidence is in. The plaintiff has been instructed to file brief by April 14; the defendant by May 5.

New Tax Bill Up

MADISON—Distributors would be required by the McParland bill to pay an occupation tax of ten per cent on film rentals in excess of $500. Another measure would make those portions of churches used for Bingo and other such games subject to taxes.

Set PCCITO Meeting Plans

LOS ANGELES—Final plans are being completed for the second annual convention of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners to be held late in April or early in May, according to Robert H. Poole, executive secretary.

Seeks L. A. Variety Club

LOS ANGELES—A movement for the establishment of a Variety Club has been launched here by Harold Schwarz of the Alexander Preview Co.

Herman A. DeVry Dead

CHICAGO—Herman A. DeVry, inventor and manufacturer of many film devices, died suddenly here of a heart attack while bowling. He was active in the industry for nearly 30 years, chiefly in the educational and commercial 16mm field.

Ready Missouri Dual Ban

ST. LOUIS—The Better Films Council here has agreed upon the text of a bill to be introduced immediately in the state legislature to confine film programs to two and one-half hours duration. A slap at double features, it provides stiff penalties for violation.

New Iowa Tax Bill

DES MOINES—A bill to tax tickets one cent up to 50 cents and two cents from 50 cents to a $1 has been hoppered in the lower house. Proceeds would go to the school fund. The vending machine license measure has been dropped to a $25 annual fee and amended to apply only to slot music devices.

Would Ban SRO Tickets

JEFFERSON CITY, MO.—A bill hoppered here would prohibit the sale of tickets after the seating capacity has been reached.

Donat to 20th-Fox

LONDON—Robert Donat has been signed by 20th-Fox for a starring role in "Pitt, the Younger," to be produced at Shepherd's Bush studio. Several American stars, now here, will be co-billed. The picture is the first of four big ones planned for American distribution as well as in the U. K.

FINDS DEFENSE DRIVE SHIFTING POPULATIONS, BOOMING TRADE

Ross Federal Launches Setup for Reporting Impact of Program

NEW YORK—Increasing tempo of the national defense program is bringing about significant shifts in population and in buying power. These factors, in turn, are leaving a definite impress on the exhibition structure, chiefly in terms resembling boom times.

A Ross Federal conviction that these factors prevail led that organization to check up. Out of the survey come confirmation and the inauguration of a new reporting service designed to supply up-to-the-minute information on the impact of defense spending throughout the nation. At least three major distributors already have received samples of the first group of reports.

Texas Towns Benefit

These show, for instance, that in the town of Corpus Christi, Texas, where the principal defense activity at present centers on the new $31,000,000 naval air station, 20 new retail stores are being built and three new theatres have been contracted. Other data shows that in Abilene the weekly payroll on camp construction is figured at $135,000, with common laborers receiving 40 cents an hour. This business stimulus has resulted in the construction of a new $6,000 theatre.

Business Activity Heightens

Virtually the same story of increased business activity is being told in each of the states Ross Federal has surveyed to date, reports of which will be available to subscribers about every two weeks. The data is especially pertinent in respect to shifting markets. In one local situation, for instance, bankers report that, even though up to $100,000 is paid out in salaries in one day, the same bank gets up to $60,000 back in deposits the next day.

New housing as well as new stores and local improvements to satisfy increased populations is playing an important part in spurting conditions at most retail establishments, it is noted. In Tampa, where new housing is being constructed at a cost of 816,000, a new $38,000 theatre is under way and two other houses, long dark, have reopened. Another item shows that Charlestown, Ind., where the population for the past 10 years has stood at 900, has mushroomed to 4,000, with 7,000 workers expected by June 1 on two powder projects that will cost $91,000,000. Since workers are at present hard put for amusement in their leisure hours, nearby Louisville, Ky., is expected to benefit in theatre admissions, the report notes.

As a striking example of how small villages may be rapidly converted into sizeable cities because of defense expansion, the report cites Rolla and Lebanon, Mo.,

What the Studios Are Doing

Two-Month Production Shows Signs of Lag

HOLLYWOOD—Production pace as charted for the next 60 days shows signs, for the first time in months, of lagging, indicating it may be the beginning of a summer slump . . . Most studios have completed, or nearly finished, their 1940-41 schedules and have four months to coast before starting their 1941-42 programs . . . Brightest spots will be Republic, planning to clean up its 1940-41 quota by the end of June; 20th Century-Fox, where the Sol M. Wurtzel unit alone is planning five films, with at least six others on the line; and Paramount, girding for a production drive through the acquisition of 17 story properties since January 1.

War Department Gets Shot Of Defense Cooperation

Film leaders gave a special war department party a first-hand glimpse of the industry's efforts and cooperation with the national defense program at a one-day conference here . . . Visitors, headed by Lieut. Col. Frank A. Allen jr., visited Paramount, Warner, 20th Century-Fox and M-G-M, were guests of H. M. Warner at luncheon, saw an army training film in production at Fox, with Darryl F. Zanuck as their host, and glimpsed Paramount's "I Wanted Wings" at a special showing.

Paramount Plans Sequel To "I Wanted Wings"

Paramount is planning "Amateur Admirals" as a sequel to its "I Wanted Wings" . . . Warner is world-premiering "The Great Lie," Bette Davis starrer, in the actress' home town, Littleton, N. H., April 5 . . . M-G-M is plugging the national preview of "Men of Boys Town" April 2 with a coast-to-coast broadcast featuring Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney and Father Flanagan, airing via NBC . . . Same studio has prepared five special advance trailers, one to be booked each week for six stanzas before release of "Ziegfeld Girl" . . . Monogram has acquired distribution rights to "Break the News," Maurice Chevalier starrer made abroad . . . Alexander Korda's next for United Artists will be "Illusions," starring Merle Oberon.

Weekly Studio Payroll Rise; Kranz Planning Eleven

Weekly studio payrolls for February showed a $29,171 increase over January, with 504 more workers receiving checks for a total of $568,816—exclusive of executive and talent brackets . . . Now here from New York setting production details, Charles Kranz, president of Select Pictures, announced plans to produce 11 features for distribution via franchise holders and the state-right market, in addition to one film already completed . . . Samuel Goldwyn will roll "The Little Foxes," starring Bette Davis, April 15 . . . He has retained Leo Spitz, former RKO Radio president, as his attorney . . . Warner paid $175,000 for Edna Ferber's "Saratoga Trunk" . . . Edward Small will launch "G-Man vs. Scotland Yard" within four weeks, for UA release . . . RKO Radio tied Phillip Reed and Jane Wyatt to long-term acting deals . . . Fred Kohlmar's first Paramount production will be "War Town" . . . Universal gave George Waggner a seven-year ticket as producer-director.

Nebraska May Be Next "Sniper" at Decree

LINCOLN—Nebraska may be among the states which will be at legislative odds with the consent decree.

At the request of several independent exhibitors, R. R. "Bob" Livingston is mulling a method by which emergency measures might enter the unicameral hopper here and get a quick shove into being.

Make Plans Soon for Columbia Meetings

NEW YORK—Plans for Columbia sales meetings will most likely be decided upon shortly after the return from Boca Grande, Fla., of Abe Montague, general sales manager, on April 7.

Nate Spingold returned from a southern vacation early in the week and due back shortly from Miami Beach are Jack Cohn, Rube Jackter, Louis Astor and Nat Cohn.

Michigan, Too, Gets Anti-Decree Bill

LANSING—Legislation to circumvent certain portions of the consent decree has been introduced by Rep. Raymond J. Snow. It provides that distributors be licensed by the state, forces a 20 per cent cancellation clause and prohibits enforced selling of shorts, newsreels, reissues and serials.

Vote Near on Anti-Decree Measure in Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS—Indications now are that Northwest Allied's anti-consent decree bill will reach the floors of both branches of the Minnesota legislature for a final decisive vote next week. It will come to both the house and senate recommended for passage.

PRC Into the Ring With 42 Next Year

CHICAGO—Having originally indicated it would release 63 features, of which 26 would be westerns, Producers Releasing Corp. will toss its hat into the 1941-42 ring with a minimum of 42. Eighteen will be westerns.

O. Henry Briggs, president, outlined plans at the company's first annual convention of franchise holders at the Congress early in the week. A round two dozen of the contemplated lineup will break down into dramas, comedy-dramas, mystery melodramas and character comedies with music features. This group also will embrace four "specials," stressing exploitation angles. Among them:

"Swamp Woman," described as "a jungle woman" story with a "Tobacco Road" background.

"Hard Guy," comedy drama "of the type that has made Cagney."

"The Terror Trail," a mystery melodrama described as "a Lugosi story with a Jekyll and Hyde angle."

"They Can't Get Away With It," an action melodrama dealing with spies below the Rio Grande.

"Argentine Love," centering around Buenos Aires and the Argentine.

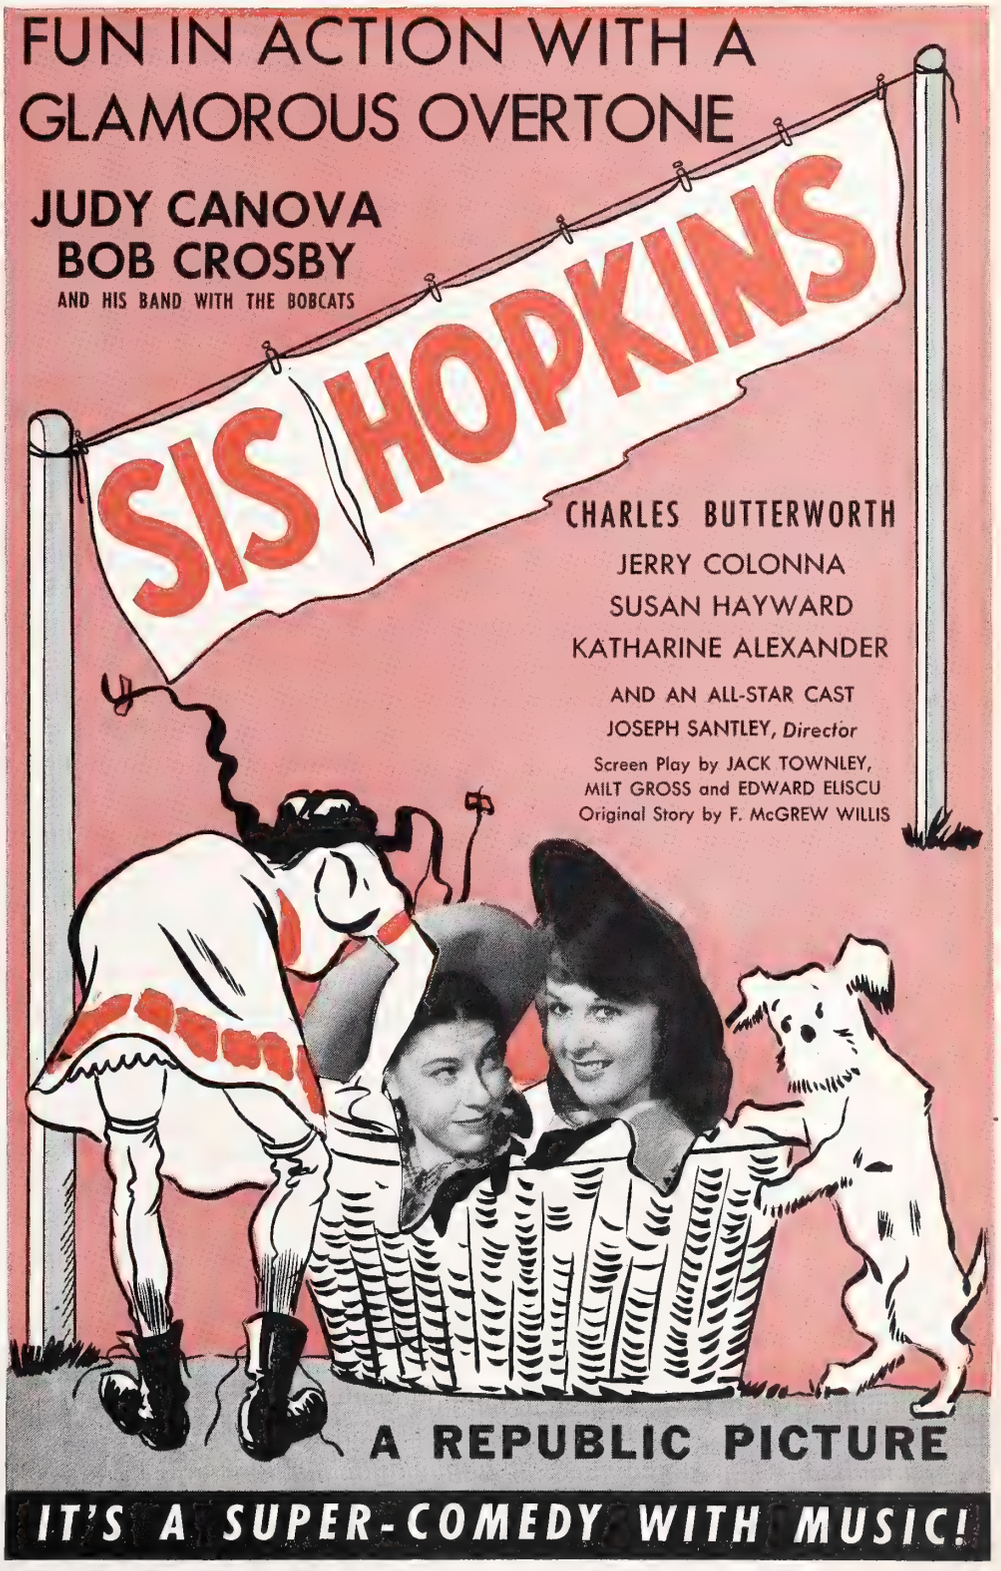
Aside from the 18 westerns, Sig Neufeld, who supervises them, said the company will make an outdoor action film with an Alaska locale. This is as far as PRC went on specific detail.

"We have budgeted our pictures amply in order to get the type of product that has proved profitable to the exhibitor," Briggs told the convention which started Saturday and terminated Monday with individual sales meetings. Among others who spoke were Leon Fromkess, vice-president in charge of domestic and foreign operations; George Batcheller jr., in charge of feature production, and Neufeld. William Gell, managing director of Pathe Pictures, Ltd., British distributor, was a guest of the convention. Joseph O'Sullivan, director of advertising and publicity, outlined sales promotion.

Saturday was marked by a meeting of the board and a meeting of the franchise holders with Briggs presiding. Those here included Ike Katz, Atlanta; Harry Asher, Boston; Edward E. Heller, Charlotte; Abe Fischer, Chicago; Nat B. Kaplan and Don Duff, Cincinnati; Lee L. Goldberg and Bernie Rubin, Cleveland; Jack Adams, Dallas; Bernard Newman, Denver; William Flemion, Detroit; Sam H. Abrams and Joseph Bohn, Indianapolis; John Muchmore, Kansas City; S. A. Arnold, Little Rock; Louis Rutstein, Los Angeles; Charles Weiner, Minneapolis; F. F. Goodrow, New Orleans; Bert Kulick, New York; Sid Kulick, Buffalo; E. B. Walker, Oklahoma City; Herbert Given, Philadelphia; M. and L. Lefton, Pittsburgh; A. R. Dietz, St. Louis; Dave Nathanson, San Francisco; Ollie Wog, Seattle, and George Gill, Washington.

Henry Armetta, George Houston and Art Davis, the latter two appearing in westerns, likewise were convention guests.

Meyer Stern has acquired the franchise for the Omaha and Des Moines territories.



200 "Rio" Day-and-Daters Lined Up by 20th-Fox

NEW YORK—Twentieth Century-Fox is lining up more than 200 day-and-date bookings on April 10 and 11 for "That Night in Rio" which will bulk a four week pre-release run at the Roxy, New York. Other pre-releases include the Lincoln and Surf, Miami; the Ambassador, St. Louis on April 3 and the Circle, Indianapolis, April 4.

Charles E. McCarthy, director of advertising and publicity, once more is tying in theatremen and their slants on special advertising handling for the film as was done in the case of "Tobacco Road." Augmenting this, Eddie Solomon and Christy Wilbert, members of McCarthy's exploitation staff, will take to the road on special campaigns in several cities. Solomon will work Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Detroit and Chicago. Wilbert draws Baltimore and Philadelphia.

RKO Returning to Sneak Previews for "Miss Jones"

NEW YORK—RKO once more is going for nation-wide sneak previews, this time with "The Devil and Miss Jones." The showings "all in the Hollywood manner" are to be held approximately day-and-date in approximately 35 key cities on April 4. Exhibitors, of course, are being invited. Toronto participants will attend the Buffalo preview.

"AS MANY AS MARKET ABSORBS," BALABAN SAYS FOR PARAMOUNT

Says Decree May Junk Old Formulas; Will Follow the Need

NEW YORK—"Paramount will make as many pictures next season as the market can absorb," Barney Balaban, president, states. The practice of announcing 50 to 60 releases for the year is a thing of the past, he adds and continuing along that line remarks, "We will have to forget a lot of old formulas under the decree."

Although he admits he will have a better idea in June how things are moving, Balaban insists the company has eliminated all "B" films and concentrating on big pictures. "While some productions may not be as big and as outstanding as others, it depends on the story," he contends, "but in any event the 'B' film is out."

Months ago when "we knew we were going to have a decree Paramount began to gear itself accordingly," Balaban continues. "Every time we date a picture the thought is for an extended run. We are always after more playing time when we book a picture," is the way he puts it.

Although plans are still in the nebulous stage, Balaban is inclined to believe his company will make a greater number for the 1941-42 season than the current season. All those on the present schedule will be delivered.

Ready Many for June

In discussing meetings with the field sales force on new pictures the Paramount president says he would rather refer to them as sales conferences rather than a convention. Only where one general meeting of the force is held will the term "convention" be employed, he indicates.

The studio under Y. Frank Freeman's supervision is plugging ahead with the intention of having a sizeable number of next season's output ready by June. Just how many, Balaban could not say.

"We will try to sell in blocks as fast as the studio can turn them out. We cannot tell at this time whether we will have one block of five for release in a month or two groups of five in three months. However, the studio is concentrating on important properties and turning them out as rapidly as possible without sacrificing quality in the effort," he adds.

As for shorts Balaban believes they will have a greater importance in the future. In this regard he states Paramount has added three to four new series and created a new department for the special handling of this product.

Freeman's visit to New York the early part of the week was not to discuss new product, but primarily to attend the Paramount partners meeting in Hot Springs, Va.

Set 85 One-Reelers And 1 in Two Reels

NEW YORK—Over the line early, and plentifully so, Paramount will release 85 one-reelers and one two-reel color cartoon next season, according to Neil F. Agnew, vice-president and general sales manager. The regular 104 issues of Paramount News, of course, continue without change.

The lineup will embrace three new series and an expansion of several others currently on the company's 1940-41 program. The new series are to include 12 "Superman" cartoons, in Technicolor; six "Quiz Kid" and six "Hedda Hopper's Hollywood."

Additionally there are proposed six "Madcap Models" Puppetoons in Technicolor; four Robert Benchley comedies, 12 "Popeye" cartoons, six "Popular Science" and as many "Unusual Occupations" in Magnacolor, six "Speaking of Animals" novelties, six "Paramount Headliners," 13 "Grant Rice Sportlights," two "Fascinating Journeys" and finally the two-reel color cartoon.

"Superman," a Fleischer Product

The "Superman" series, the "Popeyes" and the special cartoon will be made by the Fleischer studios in Miami. The first of the Fleischer-made subjects will be based on the newspaper cartoon strip by Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster and currently runs in 235 newspapers with a circulation of over 20,000,000.

The "Quiz Kids" will feature the youngsters who appear weekly over the NBC Blue network with an estimated 10,000,000 listeners. Gerard Darrow, the eight-year-old quiz whiz, will appear in each release. George Pal will produce the "Madcap Models" Puppetoons, utilizing puppets, not cartoon, characters. Jerry Fairbanks and Bob Carlisle will make "Popular Science" series. They also will produce the "Speaking of Animals" series. "Hedda Hopper's Hollywood" will be made by Herbert Moulton. Paramount adds the "Headliner" series will have a higher budget, plus a flexible policy which will permit acquisition of outside subjects. Count and Countess Von Keller are responsible for "Fascinating Journeys," their forthcoming releases to be "Road in India" and "Indian Temples."

Wurtzel Begins Program For Fox After Vacation

HOLLYWOOD—Returning from a vacation trip to Latin America, Sol Wurtzel has returned to the 20th-Fox studios and is preparing the first of a series of 12 he will personally supervise on the company's 1941-42 program. In the group will be the "Cisco Kid" and "Charlie Chan" series as well as "The Last of the Duanes" and three other Zane Grey yarns which will star George Montgomery.

Cummings Dickering For Schine "Peace"

WASHINGTON—Although department of justice sources are mum, it is understood former Attorney General Homer S. Cummings of Cummings & Lockwood, with offices in New Haven and here, has entered negotiations for an out-of-court settlement of the government's anti-trust suit against the Schine circuit, which has about 150 theatres in the eastern sector.

Cummings and Willard S. McKay, New York counsel for Schine, are reported to have been here for a conference with Assistant Attorney General Thurman W. Arnold in an effort to reach a definite understanding on a decree which would wind up the pending action.

It is believed neither side went into the issues at great length, but Schine interests expressed their willingness to terminate the suit via the decree channel, provided "a fair" agreement could be worked out.

Indications are further meetings will be held and that it may take months before a concrete understanding on the terms of a decree are established. The differences are over theatre expansion, according to one source. Another states the government wants Schine to go further than halt theatre acquisitions and dissolve the chain.

Schine, it is intimated, is willing to go for a decree along the lines of that signed by "The Big Five" on November 20 and approved by the U. S. district court in New York.

New York Conference Held On "Little 3" Angle

NEW YORK—Seymour Simon and Herbert Borkland, assistants to the attorney general in Washington, were in New York Tuesday conferring with counsel for the "Little Three" and Willard S. McKay, attorney for the Schine circuit, on interrogatories in connection with the pending anti-trust suit against the circuit in Buffalo.

Crescent Case Down for July 7 Despite Reports

NASHVILLE—Moving along despite reports that the action may be settled by a decree, the government's suit against the Crescent circuit and the "Little Three" has been set for July 7 by Federal Judge Elmer Davis. The companies are UA, Universal and Columbia.

2600 years ago Democracy was born in Greece. For 2600 years the Greeks have kept its flame alive. Today they are fighting to preserve it. Democracy must not die. They want it to live and grow— as much as we do.

That's why we must not let them down. We must give them the allies they so desperately need; the pennies, dimes and dollars which are as important as soldiers.

Adolph Zukor has called upon us in the Amusement Industry to rally to the support of the women and children of Greece— to help — as best we can — the husbands and fathers who are so gallantly struggling.

We are therefore asking for every exhibitor's cooperation in staging special midnight shows, and in making theatre and lobby collections. The campaign is on at this moment and will reach its peak with Greek War Relief Week, March 25th - 30th.

As National Chairman of the Distributors' Committee, I earnestly request the aid of our entire Industry. Today — right now — get in touch with any branch manager or film salesman. He'll tell you what you can do to help.

Remember, the Greeks' fight is our fight!

20th-Fox on Return Journey to Profit

NEW YORK — Twentieth Century-Fox went from a loss of $1,192,824 in the third quarter of 1940 to a profit of $558,275 in the fourth after establishing substantial reserves for foreign assets and thereby indicates its fight up the line into something resembling former profits is well under way.

The $558,275 net for the last quarter emerged after providing a reserve of $600,000 for foreign assets. The third quarter loss was sustained largely through the setting aside of $1,400,000 again for foreign assets. However after providing a total of $2,800,000 in reserve for overseas companies, the company and its wholly-owned subsidiaries, except the Roxy, dipped into the red to a total of $517,336. Had the reserve not been provided, 20th-Fox, it is pointed out, would have reflected a consolidated net of $2,032,664, after the usual provisions for federal income taxes. In 1939, consolidated net was $4,146,000 and profit in the final quarter of that year $994,218. The Roxy showed a loss of $42,289 for the year ended August 29, 1940.

Explains Addition to Reserve

"The purpose of the additions to the reserve for foreign assets," Sidney R. Kent, president, informs stockholders, "is to exclude from net income that portion earned during the year in foreign currencies, not currently realizable in United States dollars because of restrictions imposed by foreign governments and, therefore, not available for use in your corporation's operations in the United States and accordingly to increase to that extent the general reserve against net foreign assets. This unrealized income is represented by foreign current assets, principally cash, and at such future time when it may be converted into United States dollars, or some equivalent conversion is possible, it will be included in the income account."

Reserve for foreign assets has been increased by $2,800,000 to $3,250,000 which operates as a general reserve against net foreign assets of $10,338,707. The current statement includes 1940 dividends from National Theatres in which 20th-Fox holds a 42 per cent interest. The dividend totaled $693,0000 as against $756,000 in 1939. National Theatres and its voting controlled domestic subsidiaries, in turn, had a consolidated net of $2,037,177 in 1940 compared with $2,311,108 in 1939. Therefore, indicated earnings of $855,614 in National reflect themselves in 20th-Fox's final statement.

As of Dec. 28, 1940, the company had 917,429 shares of preferred and 1,741,995 shares of common outstanding. Its gross income in film and accessory rentals was $45,573,943. Distribution and home office operations cost $10,814,505. Earned surplus as of the same date was $13,172,467.

Withdraws Complaint

ST. LOUIS—Louis M. Sosna has withdrawn his complaint from the local arbitration tribunal seeking first-run product for the Sosna in Mexico, Mo. It is understood he decided to withdraw when he learned the subject could not be considered until September.

Sees Theatre Boom in Defense Program Shifts

each with normal populations of 3,600. Five hundred workers are building army camps to house 38,000 officers and enlisted men by June and it is expected an additional 25,000 civilians will be attracted to these situations because of the army posts. The construction payroll is estimated at $20,000 a week, with no mention of adequate theatre facilities.

In Oswego, N. Y., new army camp facilities have been completed at an outlay of over $500,000, while a $6,000,000 steam electric plant is under construction. Many houses are being converted into small apartments for officers' families and $18,000 a week is being spent on barrack construction. Plans are under way for about $30,000 worth of new housing and a new theatre, the Oswego, has been completed at a cost of $20,000.

New housing to the extent of $400,000 is now under construction in Fayetteville, N. C., as well as $100,000 for new stores and $40,000 for two new theatres as a result of the enlargement of the barracks capacity of Fort Bragg from 5,000 to 67,000. The entire building program at the fort is about half completed and $250,000 is being spent weekly for construction payroll alone.

The Ross Federal plan is designed to report briefly important developments as they occur and with accent on local effects derived either from increased population or increased buying power.

See "Dictator" as Bernhard Victory

NEW YORK—The beyond-expectations success of "The Great Dictator" at popular prices at a group of Warner houses, the first such engagements at less than advance admission scales, is seen by the circuit's executive management as corroboration of the criticism leveled at price juggling by Joseph Bernhard, general manager, at a recent Ampa meeting.

At that time Bernhard declared himself against advance price attractions because "if this up-and-down price policy continues, and it will grow because every company will think that it has a picture that is far superior to the ordinary and prices should be raised, in no time the public will become price-conscious to a dangerous degree."

Attesting to this belief, circuit spokesmen cite the excellent returns for "Dictator" at the Stanton, Philadelphia; Strand, Albany; Fabian, Paterson; Montauk, Passaic; Shea, Jamestown; Rex, Sheboygan, Wis., and Grand, Lancaster, Pa., all of which are at regular prices, and widely advertised locally as such.

Furthermore, these same sources assert the circuit steadfastly refused to play the film during its pre-release period because UA demanded adherence to an advanced admission policy for all bookings at that time and the circuit management felt this would be harmful.

That Hamilton Woman A

Historical Drama

UA (——) 128 Minutes Rel. Apr. 30, '41

In the face of stern competition and in a dramatic role which rates inevitable and favorable comparison with Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind," Vivien Leigh shines brightly and above all others in "That Hamilton Woman." She scores a distinct and personal triumph, which is handing her plenty in view of sterling competition offered by Laurence Olivier, Alan Mowbray, Gladys Cooper and others. But this attraction, aided mightily as it is by Miss Leigh's performance, does not end there. It is in itself an excellent picture, beautifully produced and expertly directed by Alexander Korda in what many, no doubt, will believe is his best effort to date. The story, out of the history books and embroidered for dramatic purposes, tells of the romance, and the affair, between Lady Hamilton and Lord Nelson, Britain's great sailor. The historical tapestry, weaving all through it, nevertheless is subordinated to the personalized love story of the man and the woman. It is dramatic, touching and entertainment of a high order, astutely along anti-dictator lines and emerging, too, as a strong argument for the downfall of dictators. In this case, it is Napoleon. First-rate on all counts and by all approaches.

Vivien Leigh, Laurence Olivier, Alan Mowbray, Henry Wilcoxon, Sara Allgood, Gladys Cooper, Heather Angel.

EXPLOITIPS: Star values, of course. The Leigh-Olivier combination, a real life romance, should be stressed and there is always the inevitable reference to Miss Leigh and "Gone With the Wind." Eighteenth century fashions at once suggest possibilities for contests and displays. This goes also for contests based on the historical phases of the film, including one based on famous women and the part they have played in making history. Books based on the Hamilton-Nelson relationship might lend themselves to library hookups, etc.

CATCHLINES: Hated by a Nation's People . . . Loved by Their Hero . . . See "That Hamilton Woman."

Dead Men Tell F

Mystery-Melodrama

20th Century-Fox (136) 61 Minutes Rel. Mar. 28, '41

Closely-woven mystery which Charlie Chan solves with characteristic emphasis on suavity and Confuciusisms. Audiences will be kept in suspense until the final footage as to whodunit. The everybody-is-a-suspect element, plus workmanlike production, direction and performances, qualifies the film as high grade support material with a special appeal to Chan followers. Sidney Toler, of course, portrays the fictional Oriental sleuth. The murders, a mere pair of them, are performed aboard a pirate-museum ship which is about to sail on a treasure-hunting expedition. Four members of the party each possess a quarter-section of the treasure map, the corralling of which furnishes the motive for the crimes. Chan's Number Two son aids his illustrious father and thereby furnishes a trace of comedy relief. Harry Lachman directed.

Sidney Toler, Sheila Ryan, Robert Weldon, Sen Yung, Donald Douglas, Katharine Aldridge, Paul McGrath.

EXPLOITIPS: For lobby decorations put in fishing nets, coils of rope, ship lanterns, signal flags and other marine paraphernalia. Place a "Pirate Treasure Hunt" map in lobby, illustrated with stills from the picture. Hold a treasure hunt, burying prizes of money, merchandise or theatre tickets, at the beach or in fields near town. Plant clues in newspaper classified section.

Aviation Drama

Paramount (——) 132 Minutes Rel. ————

With the cooperation of the air corps of the U. S. army or navy, Hollywood has from time to time produced some extremely impressive and profitable features portraying sundry phases of combatant aviation. This one takes off from the point where most of the others landed—and it zooms from there. Coming, as it does, at a time when virtually every screaming headline tells of bombings and warfare in the skies, when universal interest in our national defenses in the air is at an all-time peak, the inherent entertainment and informative values of the film are magnified incalculable times. Hence, by the same logic, it appears that its potential revenue ceilings will be comparably as unlimited. Nor does it depend upon its technical perfections alone—and no previous photoplay in its category has given so detailed and comprehensive an insight into how the army molds and trains its warbirds. Among other major assets, normally valuable in their own rights but here somewhat dwarfed through comparison with the picture's spectacle and timeliness, include: (1) A gripping and convincing story of four flying cadets and two young women, against which the epic—a designation richly deserved—of army aviation is unfolded. (2) A thoroughly splendid cast, every member of which must be credited with a sterling performance, and (3) magnificent production and direction, which at all times keeps the action within the limits of plausibility. In short, here is a screen classic which every American should see. It will swell their pride in their heritage and give them additional confidence in the future of democracy. Directed by Mitchell Leisen.

CATCHLINES: Fledgling America . . . Taking to the Air . . . It's the Step-by-Step Story of How War Eagles Are Made.

The Man Who Lost Himself F

Comedy

Universal (——) 73 Minutes Rel. Mar. 21, '41

Light farce, with Brian Aherne essaying a dual role, and in which the story line is at times spun so thin as to overstep the bounds of credibility. Nevertheless it has its amusing moments, is well enacted by Aherne and Kay Francis, and should be found satisfactory fare for general audience consumption. Although her role otherwise is innocuous, Miss Francis is given an opportunity to do what she does best—parade a collection of gorgeous gowns—while the brunt of the comedy interest is carried by S. Z. Sakall as a soft-hearted butler. Edward Ludwig's direction glosses over many plot weaknesses and discrepancies, and is, on the whole, a workmanlike job, as is Lawrence W. Fox's production mounting. Aherne, a businessman from Puerto Rico, meets his double, a philandering wastrel, in a bar, gets drunk with him and wakes up in the latter's home, only to discover that his look-alike has been killed in a subway accident. His efforts to convince everyone, including the other man's wife, of his true identity furnish the motivation and complications.

Brian Aherne, Kay Francis, S. Z. Sakall, Nils Asther, Henry Stephenson, Sig Rumann, Marc Lawrence, Janet Beecher.

EXPLOITIPS: Conduct a "look-alike" contest, in cooperation with a newspaper, with finals of the affair on the theatre stage—a stunt that should net plenty of publicity. Give marquee credits to Brian Aherne and Kay Francis. Title can be tied into a promotional campaign with a newspaper's classified advertising section, along the lines that even "The Man Who Lost Himself" could be found by buying an advertisement.

CATCHLINES: He Was Another Man's Double . . . And He Was in Double Trouble When He Fell in Love With His Double's Wife.

They Looked So Much Alike That Even the Woman Who Married One of Them Could Not Tell Them Apart.

The plus and minus signs indicate the degree of favor or disfavor of the review. Where our compiler is unable to form any opinion from the review the sign "o" is used. Blank spaces indicate no review. This department serves also as an Alphabetical Index to feature releases. Listings cover reviews appearing by the Saturday preceding date of this issue. It will be brought up to date from week to week.

The meaning of the various signs and their combinations is as follows:
ǂ Very Good; + Good; ± Fair; ∓ Mediocre; — Poor; = Very Poor.
In the summary ǂ is rated as 2 pluses; = as 2 minuses.

Las Vegas Nights

F — Musical Comedy

Paramount (4023) — 86 Minutes — Rel. Mar. 28, '41

Audiences may not respond to the lure of Las Vegas after they see it in celluloid but they will be amused by the fiction that went into this film. It is good average program fare. Chief seat fillers and entertainers are Tommy Dorsey and his band. Bert Wheeler holds up the comedy end with but few letdowns. Musically, it is pleasant and diverting. Not much can be said for the story, which meanders along a stenciled pattern—that one about the heirs who inherit a decrepit place and ultimately beat out a couple of slick birds. Supporting players are effective with Lillian Cornell standing out, vocally. It's Tommy Dorsey's picture. If only his fans turn out, it'll do business.

Tommy Dorsey, Bert Wheeler, Constance Moore, Lillian Cornell, Phil Regan.

EXPLOITIPS: Plaster the town with publicity and exploitation calling attention to Dorsey. Support this with tieups in music stores for still displays, records, sheet music plugs and spot radio announcements backgrounded with the Dorsey signature music.

CATCHLINES: The Hottest Spot on Earth . . . The Hottest Band in the Country.

Free and Easy

F — Comedy-Drama

M-G-M (127) — 56 Minutes — Rel. Feb. 28, '41

To find the label of Leo on this one is destined to occasion surprise, if not downright astonishment. It makes one speculate over the vagaries of production that make it possible for the same studio which made this one to have made "The Philadelphia Story," for instance. Furthermore, "Free and Easy" emphasizes a very flagrant and difficult-to-understand misuse of the abilities of one of Hollywood's most pleasant contributors, Ruth Hussey. This is supposed to be a social comedy-drama of a couple of English fortune hunters, based on "The Truth Game," a 1930 stage show. George Sidney directed.

Robert Cummings, Ruth Hussey, Judith Anderson, C. Aubrey Smith, Nigel Bruce, Reginald Owen.

EXPLOITIPS: It may help to spot Miss Hussey's name because of her association with "The Philadelphia Story." Metro suggests you use some classified ad teasers like this: "Auction Today . . . Penniless young aristocrat offers himself to the highest female bidder. Object: matrimony. Phone Blank Theatre."

CATCHLINES: He Wanted to Marry for Money—But It Was Too Expensive.

Outlaws of the Rio Grande

F — Western

PRC (155) — 53 Minutes — Rel. Mar. 7, '41

Just as surely as the kids delight in swimmin' holes and bread and jam, so will they take to this routine, but satisfactory, western. It would seem to matter not that the film makes no pretense beyond offering large portions of dashing Tim McCoy, and still larger layers of hard riding and fighting. If there is a paucity of feminine appeal and a complete absence of crooners it is no weakness; rather, it offers that much more footage for the dirty work at hand. In this case it involves a band of counterfeiters. McCoy, a marshal, and a trusty stooge, good for a few good laughs, wade in and clean up the mess. Directed by Peter Stewart.

Tim McCoy, Virginia Carpenter, Charles King, Ralph Peters.

EXPLOITIPS: The dominant angle that veers from the routine approach to selling a western and on which more than passing interest could be garnered is that involving the counterfeiters and the prominence newspapers give this subject every time a coup is staged.

CATCHLINES: The Best Laid Plans of Any Gang Are Putty in the Hands of Tim McCoy.

Sign of the Wolf

F — Melodrama

Monogram (4004) — 69 Minutes — Rel. Feb. 28, '41

Adapted from a Jack London story, this serves primarily as background for noteworthy performances by two expertly-trained Alsatian shepherd dogs, Smoky and Shadow. As a supporting feature in the markets it will reach, the film will stand up admirably, exercising, at the same time, more than normal appeal to those who relish dog yarns of the great frozen northland. Producer Paul Malvern equipped the offering with acceptable production values and convincing backgrounds. Human members of the cast are well qualified for their respective chores. Grace Bradley, dog breeder, flying two prize entries to her Canadian home from a New York dog show, wrecks her plane and spends months recuperating from injuries in a fox-raising community. One of the canines falls into the hands of fox thieves, who train him to raid the growers' pens. The innocent dog is accused and just misses being sacrificed through his own heroism and exposure of the guilty ones. Directed by Howard Bretherton.

Michael Whalen, Grace Bradley, Darryl Hickman, Mantan Moreland, Louise Beavers, Wade Crosby, Tony Paton.

EXPLOITIPS: Michael Whalen and Grace Bradley are the selling names for the marquee, while the fact that the story is by Jack London should also be mentioned in advertising and exploitation.

CATCHLINES: Stirring Drama of the North Country . . . From a Story by the Greatest Adventure Writer of Them All . . . Jack London.

Here Comes Happiness

F — Melodrama

WB (——) — 58 Minutes — Rel. Mar. 15, '41

There is little to recommend in this time-worn plot which has no names and so-so-direction. Some audiences may go for it because it is the story and of ultra Park Avenue debutante looking to the Bronx for excitement and a lover. Fed up with her mother's choice of a husband, the heroine leaves her castle for the Bronx. It isn't five minutes after she rents a furnished apartment that she meets the boy who finally winds up walking down the aisle with her. Some audiences may be beguiled by this sort of stuff, so it probably will have its followers.

Mildred Coles, Edward Norris, Richard Ainley, Russel Hicks.

EXPLOITIPS: Anything that has to do with happiness should be plugged for this one. Tieups with jewelers, sports manufacturers, candy dispensers and bridal wear. A good gag would be to have a couple parading the streets with a big heart on each of their backs. Inserted in the heart should be a teaser line about happiness. A bridal pair in a hansom visiting the key parts of your neighborhood would prove attractive.

CATCHLINES: She Wanted Romance and Love, Not a Jellyfish and Gold Hunter.

Man-Made Monster

F — Horror-Drama

Universal (——) — 59 Minutes — Rel. Mar. 28, '41

Audiences delighting in the macabre will be satisfied with this synthetic gem. It'll give 'em a glow, just as it gives a glow to Lon Chaney jr. He gets charged up like a battery and gives off like neon. It's a definite contribution to the gallery of horror portraits that are a natural for exploitation. Chaney, a carnival trouper who can take severe electrical shocks, falls into the wily hands of Lionel Atwill after he survives a horrible accident on a bus trip. Atwill has a theory. Chaney is his guinea pig. They get together. Sparks fly, generators generate and out pops Chaney with voltage in every finger. Crime and punishment follow. At length, Chaney dies a horrible death of a voltage hemorrhage.

Lon Chaney jr., Samuel S. Hinds, Ann Nagel, Frank Albertson, Lionel Atwill.

EXPLOITIPS: Plug the horror makeup of Chaney. Get the local electrician to rig up a harmless assortment of spark coils so they flash intermittently with the proper pseudo-scientific effect.

CATCHLINES: The High Voltage Man Is on the Loose . . . To Touch Him Is Sure Death.

$25,000 for Greece in Music Hall Show

NEW YORK—An estimated $25,000 was realized from a Friday midnight show at the Music Hall which climaxed a week of intense local industry activity in behalf of the Greek War Relief Ass'n. In addition, the fund will be augmented with a sizeable sum represented by the film rental for "Greece Fights Back," short subject distributed nationally by Paramount.

Still another large sum was added through solicitations in Times Square on three days when prominent members of the theatrical colony put on an "impromptu" open air stage show atop a large platform built for the occasion. So far there is no estimate of the amount collected at hundreds of theatres.

Greek Relief Progress Indicates Big Return

NEW YORK—With the vanguard of approximately 1,000 theatres in the metropolitan area cooperating in the Greek War Relief Drive, key zone situations have fallen into line with proportionate activity, indicating the campaign, which ended March 30 will be exceptionally productive.

400 Philly Houses Help

PHILADELPHIA—Close to 400 theatres participated in the Greek War Relief Drive, which was highlighted with 15 midnight shows in this area. The various activities got under way after a luncheon attended by leading exhibitors and exchange men under the direction of W. F. Mansell.

Owl Show Climaxes Drive

WASHINGTON—Theatres in this area cooperating in the Greek War Relief Drive will wind up the campaign with a midnight show at the Hippodrome, Baltimore, March 31, which has had wide publicity in and around Washington. Approximately 330 theatres in the area participated in the event.

First Show Nets $1,000

BUFFALO—The first benefit show to be held in conjunction with the Greek War Relief Drive in this area netted $1,000. Altogether, about 200 theatres in this section took collections, which was followed up at the six-day bike race, ice carnival, concerts and luncheon clubs.

Five-Week RKO Drive Will Start in N. Y. April 24

NEW YORK—RKO metropolitan managers and division managers will begin a five-week business drive starting April 24 and winding up May 28. The inauguration will be preceded by a dinner to be held at the Waldorf Astoria the night of April 21 with John J. O'Connor, general manager and vice-president, host. Details as to the name of the drive and awards for best honors are now being worked out by circuit executives.

Goldwyn and Disney Will Produce One

Hollywood—Walt Disney and Samuel Goldwyn announce they will jointly produce a feature based on the life and stories of Hans Christian Andersen. Announcement of production plans are fragmentary, but indications are the film will be a combination of animated and flesh actors, with Disney doing the former, and Goldwyn the latter sequences. The deal was set by Leo Spitz, representing both parties.

Monogram in Deal With Pathe for Finances

NEW YORK—Financing for the new Monogram program has been concluded with Pathe, according to W. Ray Johnston, president. Robert Young handled the deal for Pathe while Johnston represented his company. William Gell, managing director of Pathe Pictures, Ltd., England, has been working on a continuation of Monogram distribution in the UK.

Bride for Magee

NEW YORK—Frederick W. Magee, budget director of Ross Federal, was married Saturday to Alice Heslin. The groom's associates tendered him a dinner, which also honored John Schmidt, who left the company for military service at Chanute Field, Ill. Among those present at the double-bill affair were C. B. Ross, F. X. Miske, W. J. Shine, B. E. Donaghy, J. T. Maschat, S. W. Sheetz and Tom Ellsworth.

Consolidated Re-Elects

NEW YORK—All officers of Consolidated Film Industries, headed by Herbert J. Yates as president, have been re-elected.

Four Hearing Dates Set for AAA Cases

NEW YORK—The filing of one new clearance complaint and the fixing of four dates for hearings is reported by the AAA. The new complaint is the seventh with the New York tribunal. The hearings are for Boston, Buffalo, Milwaukee and Philadelphia.

Charles Meyerson, operator of the Lyric, Oyster Bay, L. I., complains against Paramount, Warner, 20th Century-Fox, RKO and Loew's and names the Huntington, Huntington, L. I., and the Glen Cove, Glen Cove, L. I., as interested parties. Meyerson claims he is compelled to wait up to 60 days for product after the Huntington and Glen Cove, contending both houses held but seven days' protection in 1934. He seeks day and date availability.

The Boston complaint filed February 26 by Garbose Bros., operators of the York and Capitol, Athol, Mass., against the "Big Five" and opposition theatres will be heard before arbitrator John Daly, an attorney, April 7.

The first complaint filed in Buffalo by Richard De Toto, operator of the Genessee at Mount Morris, N. Y., against Warner and 20th Century-Fox involving some run, and naming the competitive New Family, will be heard before Arbitrator Weldon B. Smith, an attorney, March 31.

The first case filed with the Milwaukee tribunal on February 26 by Evansville Theatre, Inc., operator of the Rex, Evansville, Wis., against Paramount and naming the competitive Jeffris in Janesville, Wis., will be heard before Arbitrator Thomas B. Whalen, an attorney, April 1. The case involves clearance.

First a Party, Then to Train—

Abbott and Costello are back in California now, preparing to go into a new one for Universal. But before they left New York, the company gave them a party at "21." Between the comedians is Mrs. Charles D. Prutzman, wife of "U's" vice-president and general counsel. Prutzman stands by and laughs, on the extreme right.

Walbrook Case Poses Clearance as Snag

WASHINGTON—Two days of hearings on the first arbitration case filed in the Washington area demonstrated that clearance problems will be the most difficult of all presented.

Officially docketed as Complaint No. 1, the complaint, filed by the Walbrook Amusement Co. of Baltimore, protested the seven days clearance given the Durkee, Ambassador, Forest and Gwynn over the Walbrook by 20th-Fox and Warner.

It was the contention of the Walbrook that for years it had been on a basis of 21 days after the downtown first-run houses until the Ambassador was built in 1935 and the two respondent companies made contracts with it beginning in 1937 under which it, and at times the other two Durkee houses, was given clearance.

Counsel for the two distributors did not deny that they had given clearance to the Ambassador, but contended it was justified because of its modernity, size, playing policy, admissions and other factors. Counsel for the Forest Theatre, appearing as intervenor, contended the clearance was too short and should be 14 days.

E. Barrett Prettyman, former District of Columbia corporation counsel, arbitrator, was told by John F. Caskey, counsel for 20th-Fox, opening the hearing, that for a number of years the Walbrook and Forest were the only houses in the particular area involved, both being given first run in the zone on a catch-as-catch-can basis. The Gwynn was built in 1933, the Ambassador two years later by the Durkee company which took the Gwynn over; the Durkee company also had acquired the Forest, bringing the three under one management.

Sought Best Outlet

Openly avowing that his company sought the contracts which brought in the most revenue, Caskey told the arbitrator that it made a contract covering the Ambassador, Gwynn and Forest theatres, which were given clearance over the Walbrook. Two years later, it developed that Vitagraph was the only other distributor to give the Ambassador such clearance, with the result that theatre was playing much Vitagraph and Twentieth Century product. Because it was a valuable source of revenue, Twentieth Century gave the theatre a three-year franchise with seven days clearance over the Walbrook, and renewed the agreement for another three year period in August, 1939.

Under that contract, Caskey explained, the Walbrook had to wait seven days for a picture playing the Ambassador but was not required to take any picture which played the Gwynn or Forest.

Disclosing that similar conditions prevailed with respect to Vitagraph, Morris Ruffman, counsel for that company, said the key neighborhood houses in Baltimore follow 21 days after the Stanley, have seven days over the Walbrook, and that house has seven days over the next run.

J. Calvin Carney, counsel for the Forest, asserted the three Durkee houses were Corp., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., Vitagraph, Inc. Named as interested party: Rockland, Nyack, N. Y. Complainant charges the 49 days clearance held by the Rockland is unreasonable and seeks equal availability.

CASE NO. 6—Filed March 26. Demand and submission involving clearance. Andora Amusement Corp., operator of the Liberty, Plainfield, N. J. With: Paramount, Warner, RKO, 20th-Fox. Named as interested party: Reade-operated Strand, Oxford and Paramount in Plainfield. Complainant seeks reduction of existing 30 days' clearance to seven days.

CASE NO. 7—Filed March 27. Demand and submission involving clearance. Charles Myerson, Lyric, Oyster Bay, L. I. With: Paramount, Warner, 20th-Fox, RKO and Loew's. Named as interested parties: Huntington, Huntington, L. I., Glen Cove, Glen Cove, L. I. Complainant seeks day and date availability with Huntington and Glen Cove instead of the present 60-day wait.

First N. Y. Hearing Set for April 3

NEW YORK—First arbitration hearing at the local tribunal will be held April 3 on the complaint filed February 21 by the Esquire-Great Neck Corp., operators of the Squire in Great Neck, L. I., against Paramount, Loew's, RKO, Warner and 20th Century-Fox. The complaint names the Skouras-operated Great Neck Playhouse, charging the Squire is unable to acquire product except upon 30 days' clearance after the Playhouse. George A. Spiegelberg will be the arbitrator. He is an attorney.

The sixth arbitration complaint to be filed at the local tribunal is by Andora Amusement Corp., operator of the Liberty, Plainfield, N. J., against Paramount, Warner, RKO and 20th Century-Fox. The complaint names the Reade-operated Strand, Oxford and Paramount in Plainfield, and seeks reduction of the existing 30 days' clearance held by the three Reade units to seven days.

Arbitrator Will Hear Hilary Case April 9

NEW YORK—Hearing on the first arbitration complaint filed here on February 18 by Hilary Theatre Corp., operator of the Regent, Brooklyn, is scheduled for April 9, with Julius Henry Cohen as arbitrator. The case involves clearance. Albert Margulies, secretary of Hilary, seeks equal availability with the Apollo, purportedly one mile from the Regent. The Apollo has seven days' protection, but Margulies asserts the Regent held seven days' clearance over the other house before this was upset during the NRA.

Philadelphia

CASE NO. 1—Filed March 5. Demand and submission involving clearance. John Geyser, operator of the Florence, Florence, N. J. With: Paramount Film Dist. Corp., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., Loew's, Inc., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc. Named as interested party: Fox, Burlington, N. J. Atlantic Theatres, operating the Burlington, has intervened. Complainant seeks equal availability. Robert J. Callaghan, attorney, is arbitrator. Hearing April 4.

Washington

CASE NO. 1—Filed February 7. Demand and submission involving clearance. Walbrook Amusement Co., Baltimore. With: 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., Vitagraph, Inc. Named as interested parties: Ambassador, Forrest and Gwynn theatres. Walbrook, operated by Thomas D. Goldberg, seeks the same availability granted the Ambassador, Forrest and Gwynn, operated by Frank Durkee. Sefton Darr, arbitrator.

CASE NO. 2—Filed February 24. See "Disposals."

CASE NO. 3—Filed February 24. Demand and submission involving clearance. Westway Theatre, Inc., Baltimore. With: 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., Loew's, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc. Named as interested parties: Edgewood, Alpha and Irvington. Leo H. Homand, operator of the Westway, protests the 14-day clearance held by the three theatres named, operated by Frank Durkee, and seeks a day and date availability "with other neighborhood theatres in the Westway's class."

Disposals

CASE NO. 2—Filed February 13, disposed of March 10 by withdrawal from arbitration tribunal. John H. Taylor, operator of the Charles, La Plata, Md. With: Paramount, RKO, Columbia, Loew's, 20th Century-Fox. Taylor protested 14 days clearance held by Marlboro, Marlboro, Md., operated by Sidney Lust. The latter agreed that in cases where he holds up dating of pictures when they become officially available this shall constitute time off his clearance over the Charles.

BROADWAY

IT SEEMS that 25 years is still a long time, even in the film business, if not longer, which is why Ampa is getting so excited about its silver jubilee at the Hotel Edison, April 4. The arrangements committee, acting just like a pack of paid press agents, is so hopped up over a long list of surprises they won't tip one of them off in advance. So the only thing left is to pass along their promise of some exciting doings, not the least of which will be Louis Prima and his orchestra, personalities in the way of Carol Bruce, Raymond Massey, Danny Kaye, Willie Howard, Diosa Costello, Ezra Stone and Arthur Treacher, to mention a few, and those surprises again. The proceeds are for the Ampa relief fund.

Drive for Bernhard In New York Zone

ALBANY—Plans for Joseph Bernhard's "Tenth Anniversary Drive," to be observed by Warner theatres in the New York state zone from April 12 to July 12, were discussed at an all-day meeting at upstate headquarters here. Bernhard, general manager of Warner theatres, and Harry Goldberg, advertising manager, were in for the confab.

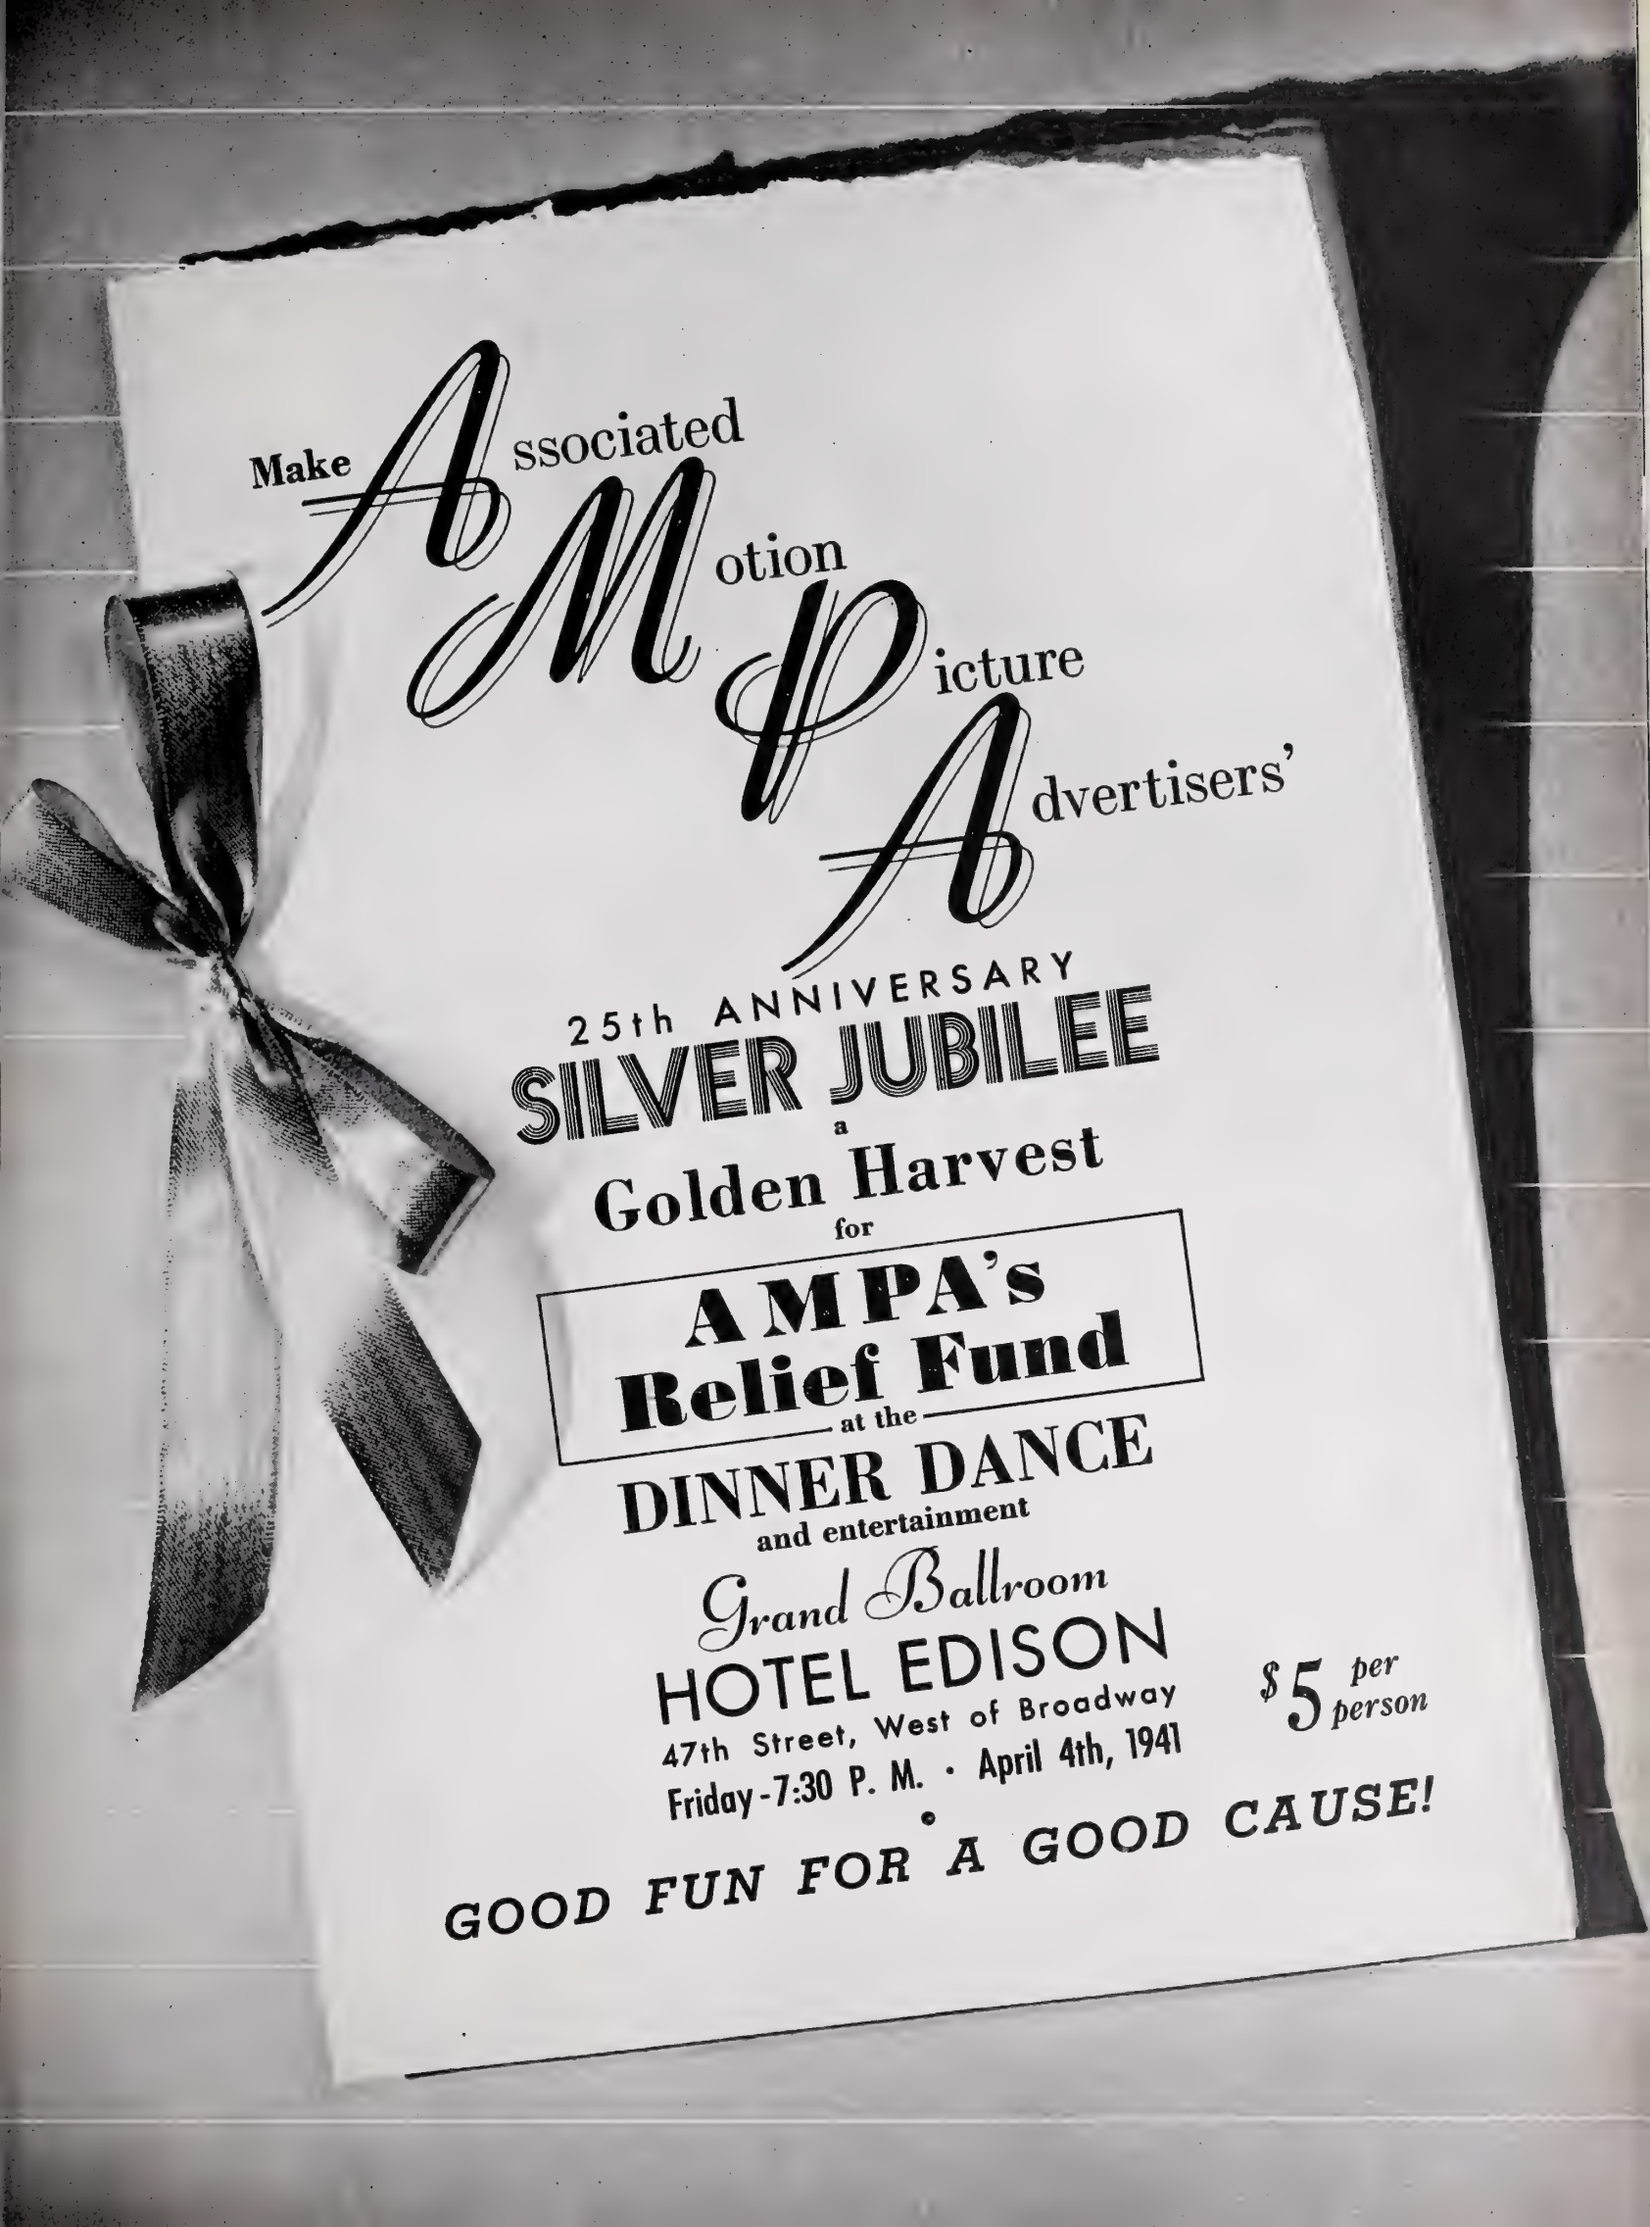
It was opened by M. A. Silver, zone manager and organizer of the drive. Bernhard, Goldberg and Silver were the speakers. Bernhard talked about the thing long close to his heart, "Service," as it should be applied by Warner houses and personnel to the public and the community. Goldberg discussed, in an optimistic vein, product which will be available in the next few months. Silver urged his men to get behind each picture and extract from it the fullest value.

Drive to Boom Business

The drive is designed to increase the business done by every Warner theatre in the zone. Quotas have been assigned. In all, 32 men took part in the dig-in session.

They included: Bernhard, Goldberg, Silver; Charles A. Smakwitz, eastern district manager; Ralph Crabill, western district manager; Max Friedman, head booker; Joe Weinstein, short subject booker; James P. Faughnan, contact manager; Jules Curley, manager of the Strand, Mel Conheim of the Ritz, Al La Flamme of the Madison and Eddie Selette of the Albany, all of Albany; Leo Rosen of the Troy, Sid Sommer of the Lincoln and Jack Swartout of the American, all of Troy; Andy Roy of the Stanley, Arnold Stoltz of the Avon and Jack Breslin of the Utica, all of Utica; Ed Yarbrough of the Keeney, Bill Tallman of the Regent and Ray Fahrenholz of the Strand, Elmira; Ralph Booth, New Family, Batavia; Dalton Burgett, Capitol, Dunkirk; Bill Leggiero, Steuben and Strand, Hornell; Al Newhall, Palace and Winter Garden, Jamestown; Cliff Schaufele, Diana, Medina; Murray Lafayette, Haven and State, Olean; C. L. Hollister, Babcock, Wellsville.

Send in Their Praises For "Buck Privates"



In a telegram to BOXOFFICE, John J. Galvin, manager of the Penn, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., reports:

"For the first time a picture was held over for the fourth week and is now in its fifth week. The picture is Universal's 'Buck Privates.' Although the city plays the top product of all companies, no other picture has ever done a business to warrant a fourth week and very few have ever gone three. More than 63,000 people have paid admissions here to date on 'Buck Privates.' Population of Wilkes-Barre is 86,000."

Chris Weber, in a second wire says, the Grand, Hazleton, Pa., held the film for a third week. He adds, "This was an unheard accomplishment for this town. No previous picture ever set such a record. Over 21,000 people paid admission to date out of a population of 36,000."

Gov't Testimony Ends In Schenck Tax Suit

NEW YORK—The government closed its side of the Joseph M. Schenck-Joseph H. Moskowitz trial in the federal court during the week with Lawrence W. Gibney, internal revenue agent, testifying as to each of the deductions taken by Schenck from 1935 through 1938.

The witness, under cross-examination by Harold H. Corbin, defense counsel, admitted each of the figures the prosecution had taken from him were its own, arbitrarily designated by the prosecutor and without much meaning. The defense attorney carefully went over each item and, taking the 1935 returns as an example, eliminated all figures except two and showed that Schenck, who had paid a tax of $58,114 for 1935, should have paid $55,434, or had overpaid $2,679 on the government's own figures.

Deem Deduction Arbitrary

The eliminated items were $28,028 deducted from the executive's salary as business expenses and a figure representing capital gains. The first figure included such items as chauffeur's salary, a total of $3,640, in which the government counsel decided 50 per cent was all Schenck should be allowed, and cut $1,820 from the deductions. The witness attempted to justify this by pointing out that at least half the time the chauffeur used the car it was for pleasure and not business, but could produce no vouchers to prove his point. Corbin wanted to know why 40 or 60 per cent had not been used instead of 50 per cent. The witness shrugged his shoulders, and said, "Mr. Correa told me to take off 50 per cent." The same type of government deduction was true of insurance, gas, oil, supplies and repairs, depreciation and traveling and entertainment expenses. On the latter figures, out of $22,773 asked for, the government allowed the executive $167.

Probing Curtailed

Judge Grover Moscowitz refused to allow the defense to inquire too deeply into the merits of the government deductions. One case in particular was when Corbin asked, "When Correa (government counsel) told you to eliminate these items, didn't you ask him if some of them might not have been legitimate business deductions?" This was objected to by Correa and the court sustained the objection declaring the question was "not material."

The witness admitted that after a careful perusal of Schenck's books, he had been unable at any time to find any trace of a bill which was claimed to be paid that was not, nor had he found any case where an evasion or hiding of figures had taken place. Gibney told of how Schenck described the Roland West deal to him, and told how when West was unable to make payments on the $50,000 loan, he, Schenck, had made the payments for him.

The most sensational witness of the week for the government was Alf Oftedal, government investigator, who declared that on Feb. 28, 1940, Schenck told Correa and himself, in the presence of two attorneys for Schenck, that Moskowitz had arranged the Goetz sale, that he had never spoken to Goetz about it, and that he had not learned of the sale for two years after it was made. This contradicted testimony of William Goetz and statements of Defense Counsel Corbin, both having told how Schenck had arranged the sale of stock. Efforts to shake the witness were not successful, but suddenly all attempts to discredit the statements ceased when the defense stated it would not make any further attempt until it was ready since premature blasting of the statement might prove injurious. It is expected that Schenck himself will refute the government statements when he takes the stand.

Goetz had described payment of $5,000 for the 113,644 shares of Jockey Club stock and receiving $5,000 back from Schenck who did not want him to lose on a worthless proposition. Frances Webb, secretary to Goetz, corroborated his statements.

Gibney, last witness for the government, was on the stand the longest, taking days to relate how each minute item was arrived at. A call was made for A. C. Blumenthal, who had been subpoenaed as a witness but who was in Mexico. Since he failed to appear, the government may issue a bench warrant for him. The defense is prepared to put on tax experts and will call both Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin as character witnesses.

A formal request for a dismissal of charges will be made and probably be denied by the court.

$469,064 From Fox

Lawrence W. Gibney, internal revenue agent, completed his fourth consecutive day on the stand under cross-examination by Corbin, and told that Schenck received $469,064 in dividends from his holdings in 20th-Fox in 1937 and paid taxes on the full amount. Schenck claims that on a recent ruling of the treasury department the money represents a return of capital and not dividends and no tax should have been paid. It is on this theory that it is claimed by the defense the government owes Schenck $165,000 for 1935-38 instead of Schenck owing the government.

The witness discussed the Bioff loan and went into the long discussion of Schenck's 1937 figures with Corbin questioning him on why each was deducted and how the government arrived at its computations. It was also brought out that in 1937 Schenck spent $356,000 and the government would only allow him $1,607 as deductions.

Last disclosure was that when the Wertheimers used Schenck's home for gambling purposes, the house had been rented by Schenck, not owned by him. Schenck was in Europe during this period and knew nothing of it. After cross-examination by Correa on the Bioff loan and items of Schenck's expenses not deducted, the government announced its case was concluded and it would rest.

Court Week Marked By Minor Actions

NEW YORK—Court news of the week was featured by a few minor actions. Of the insignificant crop of stories, perhaps the most important was an order of Referee Peter B. Olney jr. in the federal court setting May 5 as a date for the sale of all 16mm and substandard non-theatrical rights on all shorts of Grand National and Educational Films Corp. of America. There are approximately 300 of them.

Stephen Van Gluck and Joseph Eisinger, authors, filed a federal court-amended complaint against Loew's seeking an injunction, accounting of profits and damages against "Murder Man," claimed a plagiarism of their play, "The Last Edition," submitted to Loew's in 1934 and allegedly rejected.

Valentino Heir Misses

A summary judgment against Artcinema Associates and Emil C. Jansen, present owners of the rights to Rudolph Valentino's "The Son of the Sheik" and "The Eagle," was denied to Jean Guglielmi, better known as Jean Valentino, heir to the estate of the deceased actor. The plaintiff claims that under the 1925 contract Valentino was to receive 50 per cent of all profits and asks $21,990 damages. The defense claims to have paid $25,375 in full settlement of all claims and Supreme Court Justice Peter B. McLaughlin declared there are triable issues in refusing to grant plaintiff summary judgment.

Pascal Asks More Time

Gabriel Pascal asked the supreme court to give him more time in defending a suit against him by John Krimsky. The defendant wants the court to remove the case from the "ready" calendar. Suit seeks $100,000 claiming breach of contract whereby Pascal is supposed to have agreed to let Krimsky distribute any picture he makes in the U. S. The bone of contention is "Pygmalion," which was not given to Krimsky.

The appellate division of the supreme court modified an order of the supreme court and ordered J. Cheever Cowdin to submit to an examination before trial instead of 30 officers originally ordered to do so. Examination is in connection with a $2,000,000 stockholder suit by Samuel I. Posen against the company in which waste and mismanagement are charged.

Hakims Face Suit

The Baker's Wife, Inc. has filed a $100,000 suit in the supreme court against Raphael, Robert and Raymond Hakim, claiming the defendants are wrongfully interfering with the distribution of the French film, "The Baker's Wife." Defendants, who own the American rights gave them to the plaintiff, and in a federal court action begun last month are seeking to rescind the rights.

Kurt Pilzer applied to the supreme court to examine officials of Loew's before trial in connection with a $10,000 suit he is bringing as assignee of a Viennese film company. The company says it sold remake rights of "Silhouetten" to Loew's for $10,000 and delivered a print, but claims no payment made. Loew's has filed a general denial.

Ambitious Program For Walter Reade

NEW YORK—Walter Reade plans to have the first 10 of 32 new houses for Community Theatres ready by Christmas, he told BOXOFFICE.

The first is now being constructed in Trenton and will seat 1,000. As soon as this is completed, work will be started on another 1,000 seater at Hamilton near Camden. The Township is 12 miles from Camp Dix. The third is slated for Red Bank and will seat 1,200. Plans are now being drafted for the house on the site of the Old Globe Hotel.

Reade states, "I will build anywhere and not necessarily in the New York and New Jersey areas." In addition to the three definite locations, he has seven others in mind but is not ready to make any statement. At the present time, Community has five in operation in New York and New Jersey.

Above Par Business Led By "Dictator" in Philly

PHILADELPHIA—Business hit par or better at most places this week as genuine spring weather came out from hiding. "The Great Dictator" was still leading the league. "Fantasia," plagued with a falling-off of business as it went into its sixth week, was bolstered by a drop in prices. Weekday matinees went down to a minimum of 50 cents instead of 86, and evening rates and Saturday and Sunday matinees start at 75 cents instead of $1.14.

Holdovers Dominate Broadway Acers

NEW YORK—Only two new films, the rest being holdovers, good weather but only fair returns characterized the Broadway scene. "The Sea Wolf" at the Strand, plus a stage show, garnered the most important money of the two new entrants, the other being "Las Vegas Nights" at the Paramount, also plus a presentation, and doing nicely considering the slight reception accorded it by the critics.

Conversion to Theatre

NEW YORK—Work has been started to convert the building at 1663 East 17th Street, Brooklyn, into a 600-seat theatre, plans for which have been prepared by Ben Schlanger. New methods of acoustics, sight lines and lighting design will be incorporated.

Altec Re-Signs Butterfield

NEW YORK—Altec has re-signed the W. S. Butterfield circuit of 96 houses in Michigan for servicing. F. C. Dickely represented Altec on the deal.

Brilliant Premiere Heralds "Wings"

NEW YORK—With a proclamation by Mayor F. H. LaGuardia designating "Greater New York Flying Cadet Week," Paramount opened the throttle wide for a star-spangled premiere for "I Wanted Wings," at the Astor, Wednesday evening, that had Times Square and plenty of newspaper readers conscious of a gala event. The army personages that dotted the house in themselves contributed a sizeable "who's who" of military officialdom, not to mention Mary Martin, lots of society and outstanding personalities in the publishing field.

Among those present were Madeleine Carroll, Miriam Hopkins, Orson Welles, Dolores Del Rio, J. Cheever Cowdin, Joseph Bernhard, Ned E. Depinet, William Brandt, Harry Brandt, George P. Skouras, David Sarnoff, Arthur Kelly, M. Silverstone, David Bernstein, John J. O'Connor and Nate J. Blumberg.

In the Paramount delegation were: Barney Balaban, Stanton Griffis, Adolph Zukor, John Hertz sr., Harvey Gibson, Neil F. Agnew, John W. Hicks, R. M. Gillham, Charles R. Reagan, J. J. Unger, George A. Smith, Paul Raibourn, Arthur Israel jr., Oscar Morgan, Duncan Harris, George Weltner, M. S. Kusell, Fred Mohrhardt, Louis Phillips, W. B. Cokell, Claude Lee, Russell Homan, E. A. Brown, G. B. J. Frawley, and these district managers: William Erbb, Harry Goldstein, E. W. Sweigert, Allen Usher, R. C. LiBeau, Hugh Braly, Hugh Owen, J. F. Kirby and Dell Goodman.

Expanded Payrolls Secure Grosses in Washington

WASHINGTON—Good business resulting from Uncle Sam's pay day was offset slightly by a nip from Jack Frost on Monday and Tuesday, as two new features vied with four repeaters. Influx of defense workers creating larger potential audiences with lively comedies as the piece de resistance. Streets of Paris edition hypoed gross at the Earle, while "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" rounded out a nice third week's take at Keith's.

An All-Day Bank Night At the RKO Fordham

NEW YORK—Changing around the games at the theatre to stimulate interest, Sol Schwartz, district manager of the RKO circuit, on April 1 inaugurates all-day Bank Night at the Fordham with $350 to be given away. Patrons can register all day for the award which is to become a weekly feature. For the present, the Fordham is the only metropolitan RKO house going for the idea.

Walbrook Hearing Poses Clearance as Hurdle

entitled to clearance over the Walbrook for a number of reasons, including higher admissions.

Thomas D. Goldberg, president of the Walbrook Amusement Co., testified that for a number of years his house was given preferential treatment in the matter of playing time, following only the downtown first run. He did not consider the distributors were justified in taking that position away from him to give the Durkee houses preference. The three Durkee houses, he said, are approximately two miles from his theatre.

The Walbrook official told the arbitrator that he operates also the Hartford Theatre and shortly will open a third house, the Hilton. The Walbrook, he said, devotes 95 per cent of its playing time to "A" pictures, which are secured from 20th Century-Fox and RKO on a flat rental basis and from M-G-M, Paramount, Universal and Warner on a rental basis.

He contended that his admissions are on a par with the Durkee houses, explaining that the matinee rates are 10 cents for children and 15 cents for adults with a 30-cent charge for 25 loge seats, while his evening rates are 10 cents for children, 25 cents for adults and 40 cents for loge seats. The house has a capacity of 950.

Witnesses From Washington

To bring out the alleged discrepancy in the treatment accorded the Walbrook by the two respondents as compared with the other distributors, J. Purdon Wright, counsel for the complainant, called witnesses from Washington exchanges to testify regarding their contracts with the Walbrook and the Durkee houses.

The testimony was designed to show that the clearance granted the Durkee theatres by 20th-Fox and Vitagraph was not given by the other companies, although contracts with M-G-M which were brought in showed that the Ambassador was at times given seven days over the Walbrook.

Contracts as Evidence

The second day of the hearing was devoted largely to the introduction of contracts of Paramount and Warner with the three Durkee theatres and the Walbrook, subpoenaed by Wright to show that the two respondents imposed clearance on the Walbrook while other distributors did not.

The Warner contracts covered all Durkee houses, and there was considerable argument over the introduction of testimony concerning theatres not involved in the complaint, with the arbitrator pointing out that if the clearance arrangements of other theatres were taken up, the proceeding would go on indefinitely.

Prettyman, however, permitted the introduction of such matter in the contracts as pertained to the Ambassador, Forest and Gwynn theatres, and it developed that after the Ambassador began to play Warner product it was given first run and a clearance over the Walbrook, while for the 1937-38 season the Walbrook in turn was given the right to cancel pictures playing first run at the Forest or Gwynn.

In an effort to get some comparison of the four houses, Wright called Frank H. Scully, Baltimore salesman for M-G-M, who said he did not think the four theatres were in competition.

Scully expressed the belief the Ambassador was the best of the quartette, but refused to speculate as to whether residents of the area would be likely to select one theatre over the others for comfort or other reasons, although pressed by Carney.

Asked why the Walbrook contract contained a provision giving the Ambassador seven days' clearance, he said it was out of the kindness of Goldberg's heart, so that the company could get the heavier revenue offered by the larger theatre.

Wright also called Eugene B. McCurdy, operator of the Columbia and Eureka theatres, to testify regarding the relative qualities of the four houses, but his testimony was objected to on the ground he denied having personal information on all the houses on which to base an opinion.

In an effort to show that the Walbrook was on a par with the Durkee houses, Leo A. Rudolph, air conditioning expert, was called by the complainant, testifying that the Walbrook was one of the best-ventilated houses in Baltimore. Lucius B. White, architect, testified that he had made an inspection of the four theatres and, while the Ambassador was the finest, the Walbrook was a well constructed, well equipped house, fully as fine as the Gwynn or Forest.

Recalled to the stand on the third day of the hearing, Goldberg testified that he played no double features, had no giveaways or Bank Nights, and showed programs on a par with those of the other three houses.

He admitted that he had urged the Baltimore authorities to refuse a building permit for the Ambassador because he feared it would be in competition with him. After it was built, he said, he found it did not compete. He did not attempt to prevent the building of the Gwynn, he disclosed, and has found that house, too, not to be a competitor.

Testifies on Contracts

The Walbrook operator testified regarding Paramount and Loew contracts, declaring that no clearance was imposed except with his permission, but reviewed his Fox contracts to point out that there were no clearance provisions before 1936 when he was told by Samuel Wheeler, exchange manager, and other Fox officials that they had to give the Durkee theatres protection because of the greater revenue they offered. He submitted a number of letters he had written to Wheeler and others protesting the clearance, to which he received no replies, and they were admitted over one of the many objections which featured the hearings throughout.

Rules Out Testimony

Goldberg testified that while the Durkee houses, two miles distant, were given clearance over him there was no clearance either way with the Astor, Bridge or Edgewood theatres, all without a radius of ten blocks of the Walbrook.

At this point another controversy broke out over the interjection of clearances of other theatres, and the arbitrator ruled the testimony out, commenting that "the arbitration system will fall of its own weight" if the hearing went into all clearances.

Submitting their argument that the clearances complained of were justified from a business standpoint, the respondents introduced testimony to show that the Durkee theatres were superior to the Walbrook and therefore entitled to protection.

REVIEW FLASHES

BAD MAN, THE (M-G-M)—The drawing power will lie in the number of popular names this unadulterated melodrama boasts. The talents of Beery and Barrymore are strained to overcome the hurdle of a faulty script and loose-handed direction. Best-pleased customers will be those who like western action. Wallace Beery, Lionel Barrymore, Laraine Day. Richard Thorpe directed.

BORDER VIGILANTES (Para)—The redoubtable "Hopalong" Cassidy, in the person of William Boyd, is up to his usual standard in this latest of the veteran sagebrush series. Which means the film packs an abundance of action, adventure and suspense, with the required amount of comedy relief. Peg it as a reliable grosser in those situations where westerns are in demand. Harry Sherman produced; Derwin Abrahams directed.

HORROR ISLAND (Univ)—Treasure-hunting yarn in which a hackneyed story is bolstered through the addition of enough trapdoors, clutching hands, phantom killers and the like, to qualify it as an average entry in the thrill category. Ben Pivar produced; George Waggner directed.

RIDE ON, VAQUERO (20th-Fox)—Probably the best of the series to date is this new Cisco Kid adventure, in which bordertown kidnapers incur the wrath of the debonair outlaw. Cesar Romero is starred of course. Feature reflects improvement in every department over past entries and should click in the action houses.

Four Hearings Set; One New Case, AAA Reports

Florence, N. J., against the "Big Five," and naming the Fox, Burlington, N. J., as holding unreasonable clearance, will be heard before Arbitrator Robert J. Callaghan, an attorney, April 4.

Says Paramount Has Over 10,000 Accounts

NEW YORK—Paramount's domestic sales contracts for 1940-41 reached an all-time company high, servicing more than 10,000 accounts, Neil F. Agnew, general sales manager, told district managers at a short subject and newsreel luncheon held at the Waldorf-Astoria. He pointed out many of the accounts cover situations where product is split between two or more houses under the same management and do not include non-theatricals, spot bookings, repeats, reissues or odd-lot contracts, so that actually, he claimed, there are many more theatres served than the number of contracts indicate.

Manny Brown, now in Montreal, will become district manager for Denver, Salt Lake and Omaha. This is a new territory. Tom Dowbiggin succeeds in Montreal.

First Latin-American Conference for "U"

NEW YORK—First Latin-American conference of Universal managers will get under way at Cristobal April 2 and continue to April 6 with Nate J. Blumberg, president, and Joseph H. Seidelman, foreign head, in attendance. Distribution policies for the new season will highlight the sessions and a number of new films shown.

Among those slated to be on hand are C. C. Margon, Latin American supervisor; Fortunat Baronat, foreign publicity director; Monroe Isen, Argentina head; Al Szekler, Brazil; Raul Viancos, Chile; Ramon Garcia, Cuba; J. Epstein, Mexico; E. N. Ferro, Panama and Central America; Ramon A. Pazos, Peru; Carlos Matos, Puerto Rico, and Pedro Matos, Venezuela.

Chaplin In From Coast For Indefinite Stay

NEW YORK—Charles Chaplin, UA producer-owner, arrived here by plane from the coast Thursday. He plans to remain indefinitely and will appear next week as a character witness in the Joseph M. Schenck trial.

William Goetz, vice-president of 20th-Fox, is slated to return to the coast in a few days.

Archie Mayo, who directed "The Great American Broadcast" for 20th-Fox, also arrived Thursday from Hollywood and will next direct "Charley's Aunt."

Warner Buys a Ferber Story for $175,000

NEW YORK—Warner has purchased screen rights to Edna Ferber's "Saratoga Trunk" for a reported $175,000. Publication will be in the fall. It is also reported the story will be translated to play form for presentation on Broadway as a musical comedy.

"All Through the Night," comedy melodrama by Leo Rosten and Leonard Spigelgass, has been acquired for James Cagney.

Fox Testifies in Probe of Retired Judge's Affairs

PHILADELPHIA—William Fox was called by a federal grand jury to testify in its investigation of the financial affairs of J. Warren Davis, retired circuit court judge. Also called was a retired colleague of Judge Davis, Judge Joseph Buffington.

Both sat on the bench during five cases involving the All-Continent Corp., a Fox family trust. The cases, which concerned attempts by creditors to have the corporation thrown into bankruptcy, were decided in favor of the Fox family.

Atty.-Gen. Robert H. Jackson has said he has information suggesting that Judge Davis, Fox and several other persons conspired to obstruct justice. Loans Judge Davis allegedly made from several persons are known to be under scrutiny.

Charles Blum Manager For 3 Brown Units

NEW YORK—Henry Brown, who operates the Liberty, Freehold, and the Strand and Palace, Lakewood, has appointed Charles Blum general manager. Blum has been identified with various independent circuits in booking and buying capacities and at one time was associated with Allied of New Jersey.

Al Suchman Washes Up At Consolidated Circuit

NEW YORK—Al Suchman, chief buyer and booker for the Consolidated circuit, wound up his duties officially the latter part of the week. He is now looking around for a new connection. Julius Joelson recently acquired 18 of the 21 houses in the circuit and installed Harold Klein, formerly of Cocalis, as buyer and booker.

UA District Sessions Starting April 14

NEW YORK—Five district meetings, embracing the UA sales organization in the United States and Canada, will be held starting April 14 and continuing through the entire month.

The first will take place in New York, April 14-15, with Boston, New Haven, New York, Philadelphia and Washington branches represented. On April 17-18 the southern exchanges—Atlanta, Charlotte, Dallas and New Orleans—will meet in New Orleans.

Cleveland will be the scene of the meeting on April 21-22 with personnel from the Buffalo, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Indianapolis and Pittsburgh branches. On April 24-25, the midwest exchanges and those in Canada will come to Chicago. They are Detroit, Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Denver, Omaha, Calgary, Montreal, St. John, Vancouver and Winnipeg.

The fifth and final meeting takes place in San Francisco, April 28-29, attended by representatives from the San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle and Salt Lake City offices.

Twickenham Charges Breach of Contract

NEW YORK—Twickenham Film Studios, Ltd., and Roddison Douglas Brewis, receiver, filed suit in federal court against Olympic Pictures, Feature Distributing Corp., and Morris J. Kandel, president of both defendants, charging breach of contract. The deal was for Kandel to distribute Twickenham's product in the United States for five years and then return the prints. It is claimed the deal ended in 1940 and the defendant has refused an accounting on monies owed, continues to distribute the pictures, some 30 in number, and refuses to return the prints. An injunction, accounting of profits, and damages are asked.

Harry Cohn will be examined before trial in the supreme court April 8 in connection with a $100,000 suit against Columbia by Minnie Saltzman-Stevens, former soprano of the Metropolitan. The ex-diva claims use of her picture without permission in "I'll Take Romance."

$50,000 Plagiarism Suit

Irving Gaumont has filed a supreme court action for $50,000 against Warner, claiming the plagiarism in "My Love Came Back" of his story, "You've Got to Swing It." An injunction, accounting of profits and damages are also asked.

Suit of Richard Borden against the Jam Handy Picture Service, Inc., for $25,000 has been settled out of the supreme court. Action charged plagiarism of a story of the plaintiff's dealing with selling methods as laid down by Benjamin Franklin in Jam Handy's "Selling America."

Booth Tarkington was examined before trial through his agent, Carl Brandt, in federal court in connection with a $100,000 suit against Warner. Tarkington claims Warner made "Penrod and His Twin Brother," which is not based on any story of his. Pre-trial conferences start this month and trial is set for April 14.

Joseph Bernhard was examined before trial in the federal court in connection with an anti-trust action against Warner Bros., brought by the Harrison Bros & Co., Irwin Realty Co., the Lansdowne Amusement Co. and several individuals. The action is taking place in Philadelphia. William F. Rodgers and Thomas J. Connors were witnesses Thursday.

Ten-Day Exhibition of Publicity Art Works

NEW YORK—Art works of publicity, exploitation and advertising men of the eight majors will be exhibited at the Barbizon-Plaza Gallery for 10 days starting April 20. It is the first event of its kind for the film industry, it is stated.

ITOA Passes

NEW YORK—The ITOA, which has not held a general membership meeting for more than a month, did not hold a session this week and has none scheduled for the immediate future, according to a spokesman.

Army Base Construction Cheers Port of Spain

NEW YORK—Theatre business in and around Port of Spain is expected to increase sharply with the establishment soon of workers and personnel at the army base being erected by the United States, according to Major Charles H. Tebay, UA's manager at Trinidad, who is here for home office conferences. Tebay estimates there will be about 20,000 men employed.

Hollywood product is the predominant favorite in the 77 theatres in the territory he supervises, although a few houses specialize in Indian and Chinese product, Tebay states. He made the rather startling admission that, although the temperature is usually in the 90's, theatres have no air conditioning. There are only two shows a day, the first about 4:45 p. m., and the second about 8:45 p. m. Average admission is about 15 cents, although the top is $1 for a box at de luxe first runs. Musicals and action pictures are most popular.

Tebay adds very few gangster films are passed by the local authorities because of a possible throwback to the serious race riots that occurred in 1937. Only 60 per cent of film rentals collected by the eight majors' branches in Trinidad is permitted to be transferred to New York. Tebay himself was only allowed to take out the equivalent of $40 for his passage by boat here.

Amusement and Entertainment Are But Slightly Akin

We vigorously oppose the inference and register a strong protest against further classifications of our modern motion picture theatres as "amusement establishments."

Census figures, recently released by the U. S. Department of Commerce, have again paid our industry a detrimental compliment in classifying us with dog tracks, domino parlors, pool halls, shooting galleries, and of all things, bicycle rentals.

Despite being given top rank in relative importance, we believe every self-respecting theatre owner will resent this odious comparison, wherein amusement is again confused with entertainment.

Under present high and rising standards of motion picture theatre operation, amusement is but slightly akin to entertainment, and the relationship is becoming ever more remote daily.

To be amused is certainly not to be entertained and if all picture exhibitors would rid themselves of the amusement complex and start entertaining people, the regular movie-going habit would be quickly revived.

The gracious art of entertaining calls for a house in order—hospitality, cordial reception, means of relaxation, convenience and consideration for the artistic senses of today's patrons, the average of whom is disinclined to associate moving pictures with amusement parks. They, too, resent the allusion.

All of which probably explains why our major producers are lately showing so much concern for the physical condition of theatres in which their best pictures are to meet the public.

Renovation Comes to the Rescue of Hard-Ridden Exhibitors . . . .

The candid camera catches "the skipper" of the Family and Vogue Theatres in one of his rare moments of relaxation, out at the Reynolds summer cottage on the shoreline of Lake Michigan.

THIS is a story about a red-head—a hot-blooded, hard-hitting guy from the Deep South, who twenty years ago transplanted himself from the business of selling type-writers to the business of showing moving pictures—in Grand Rapids, Michigan.

He's had a pretty hard fight—this red-head—since he established his Family Theatre on a hill-top. Troubles have often beset him; but he generally always comes out on top. Like the time several years ago when someone dynamited his theatre and blew the front of it right back through the screen. But he came through fighting as usual, and with a better house than he had before.

Always a rugged individualist, Howard T. Reynolds, owner of the Family Theatre, has had his ups and downs, but somehow he's managed to maintain his independence in spite of the stiffest and the best of circuit competition with which he is well surrounded. Pictures to him have had to be a secondary consideration because of the distance he's had to stay behind his competition, if indeed he could get good pictures at all, which was seldom.

Property Minded

But the red-head resists all such obstacles practically and hurdles them in stride. When the going gets tough and the crowds begin to fall off, he doesn't sit by and sulk. Instead he sets about improving his property, and you'd be surprised how quickly the news gets around. Reynolds hasn't made his first million yet; but he's had a lot of fun in the meantime. As for instance—

About three years ago he acquired by force of circumstances, more than desire, a small dump of a theatre a few blocks down the street from the Family, and in a neighborhood not so flush. But he fixed it up nicely with a new front, and renamed it the Vogue. At this time, he partially re-seated the Family, transferring the older seats to the Vogue. And thereby hangs the interesting tale of an important discovery.

Those new seats in the Family were of the very latest model, lounging comfort type, then considered far beyond the means of the average neighborhood theatre. But, and we have his own word for it, those new seats again saved the day for Reynolds. The word spread and soon people were coming from other parts of town to find comfort in the Family Theatre. That was three years ago, and time marches on.

Reynolds has just recently completed another lap in his almost continual relay of property improvements at the Family. The latest venture comprises, among other important changes, a complete reseating job—again with the latest creations of chair design with all the trimmings to catch the fancy of comfort-loving patrons.

The Family was an interesting theatre to begin with. At its birth 19 years ago, it was one of the first theatres in the country to offer a "cry room" for the convenience of mothers. Conceived during the atmospheric era with an Egyptian motive for the interior, the treatment, because of its unique character and quality has survived the change in styles. Quality always survives, and the interest in the Family Theatre's Egyptian atmosphere is still alive, thanks to original artistic design and painstaking application.

Unusual Auditorium

The interior of the auditorium, an idea of Reynolds, was originally done in white plaster, in some places over three inches deep, to allow for the hand-wrought carvings. The 3,000 designs, portions of which are here illustrated, consumed two years' work by Peter Ebels of Grand Rapids, the carver. The proscenium alone required a year's work for four men and 17 weeks for painting. All figures are high-lighted in rich Egyptian colors. Across the top of the stage is a scarab with a 23-foot wing spread. Beneath the stage a broad, bold frieze of Egyptian heiroglyphics. Pilasters are similarly treated and the mummy-like masks serve to conceal indirect lighting fixtures.

Strange as it may seem, this ancient decorative technique provides an ideal setting for the modern furnishings of the auditorium, including chairs with rubber padded arm rests, rubber covered spring seats and full spring backs, all in a color combination of blue and beige. The seats are set 32 inches back to back on two wide aisles. Before there were three aisles.

The aisles are now run with fluorescent carpets of a complementary modern pattern activated by black lights located in the ceiling. The effect is shown by contrast in pictures presented on the front cover of this issue.

Efficient air distribution and absence of disturbing drafts is another feature of the Family's air conditioning system. A large duct is located in the center of the ceiling, which has smaller feeding ducts branching off to the sides at intervals to feed the air to the specially designed diffusers which regulate the downward flow of air. Summer cooling is provided by 48-to-50 degree water from an 8-inch, deep well with the distribution system powered by a 2 h. p. motor—a most economical and efficient installation engineered by Mr. Reynolds who operates a blower manufacturing business as a side line in association with his two sons.

Lobby Innovations

Passing now to the inner lobby or standee area of the Family Theatre, we find

At left—A close-up view of the Egyptian carvings at left of the stage. Three thousand of these hand-carved figures and heiroglyphics adorn the walls of the Family Theatre's Auditorium. At right above—A full view of the auditorium with its ultra comfortable seats and fluorescent carpeted aisles, looking toward the richly adorned picture setting. further interesting evidence of the recent renovation. This section was made three feet deeper than it was before, and the walls and ceiling portions were completely refinished in a light oak veneer material, the ceiling arranged in block tile effect. The entire surface was then rubbed down with a white paint to create a most pleasing polychrome effect.

The standee partition presents a most novel innovation, the credit for which goes to Mrs. Reynolds. Instead of the customary windows, portholes or portieres in the partition, the eight openings were fitted with mirrors facing the incoming patrons. When there's an overflow crowd and the inner lobby is occupied by waiting patrons, these mirrored windows are simply lowered and the standing patrons have an unobstructed view of the picture.

Light Activates Carpet

This area is also covered with fluorescent carpet which is activated when the house lights are dimmed, by black lights located in the same ceiling fixtures that contain the bright lights. The two large sand urns and portions of the ticket chopper are fluorescent painted, and the unusual effect is the talk of the town.

An amusing incident occurred one evening shortly after the renovation was completed. Standing aside in the lobby, Reynolds overheard one of his male patrons remark to his wife as the black lights were turned on while they walked across the carpet: "My gawd, what's the matter? Do you see what I see, Mary? If you do, guess I'm all right. But I think I'm goin' crazy!"

Other Improvements

And now to the outer lobby, where further renovation took place. Walls and ceiling were given the "white oak" finish and a most unusual new floor was laid. It consists of vari-colored irregularly broken tile pieces set in terrazzo formation, the tiles extending slightly above the white cement that holds them firmly together to provide a perfect non-slip surface to the slightly ramped floor. The confection room at the right of the outer entrance was also redecorated.

The only recent improvement effected in the projection equipment—and all that was needed—was the installation of new intermediate high intensity lamps. Projection and sound reception at the Family is far above the recognized average.

All this doesn't write finis to the improvement program for the Family Theatre, however. Reynolds now contemplates

Cover Plate

A composite view of the auditorium of the recently renovated Family Theatre in Grand Rapids, Michigan, looking from stage to rear. The super-imposed pictures provide an interesting study of comfortable seating arrangement, plus the appealing effects of so-called "black lighting" for carpeted aisles and other furnishings. The upper section of the plate depicts the scene when the house lights are on; the lower view visualizes the effect seen by the patron who enters after the picture is on the screen. The fluorescent carpet prevents groping and stumbling in the search for seats; besides emphasizing the carpet as a medium of decorative beauty and functional purpose. TODAY... a Newsreel Theatre with Numerous Innovations

"DESIGN the finest small theatre in the world. I am leaving for California tonight; back in six months. I trust the theatre will be done by the time I get back."

Such were the instructions of Richard E. Beck to David Chapman one day last summer. Thus Richard Beck became the proud owner of "Today," Chicago's new and unique newsreel theatre. Dave Chapman, well known industrial designer, is the man responsible for the design of the project and many of the innovations in created house appeal which it represents.

RICHARD E. BECK, Owner

DAVID CHAPMAN, Designer

Undoubtedly the complete trust in his architects and the designer Mr. Beck evidenced by his casual instructions before the project was started, is responsible for the many outstanding innovations to be found there and the made-to-order exactness of the project in every patronage appeal particular. The designers were given carte blanche, save for Beck's power to veto suggestions, and the trust was amply vindicated.

Ideas in Harmony

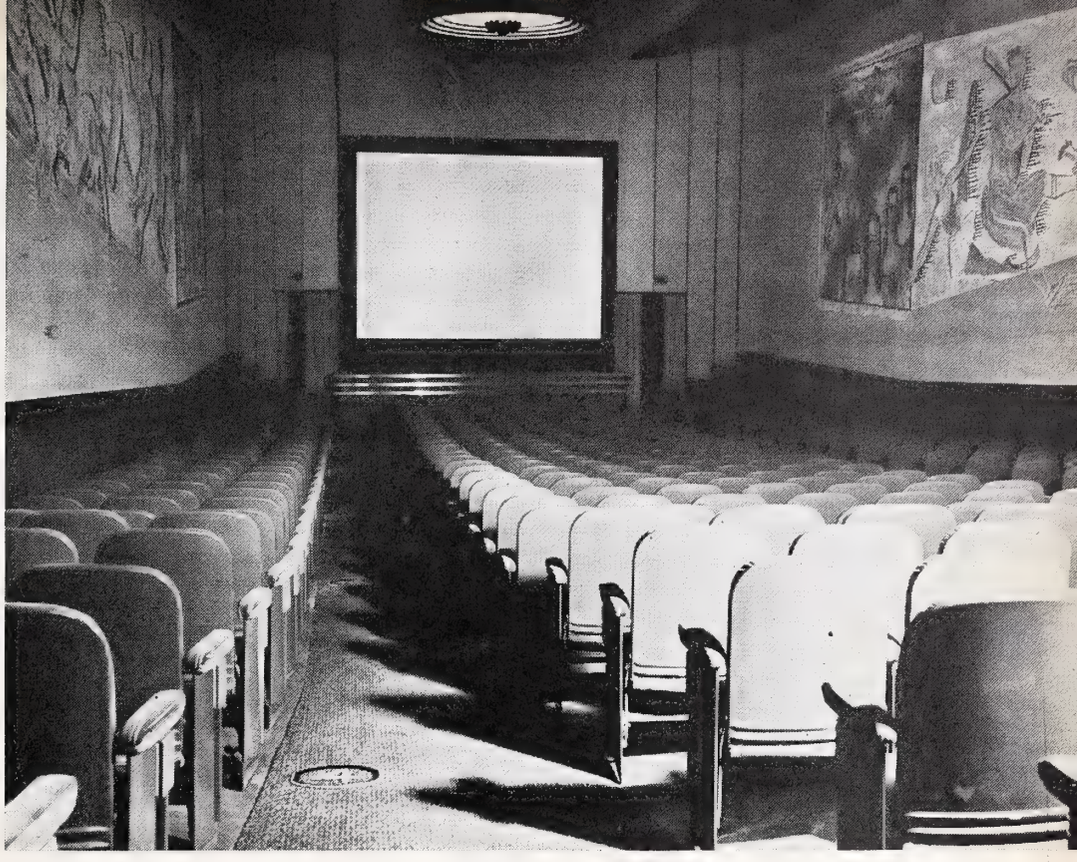
Beck and Chapman were peculiarly akin in their ideas of what was to be desired in a small modern newsreel theatre. As Beck put it: "Luxurious practical appointments are as important to patrons of a theatre as the show on the screen. On the surface it may appear ironical that the unparalleled destruction of our age should be shown in the finest surroundings art and science can devise. However, there is more optimism than irony in the creation of 'Today's' unrivalled setting for the current news. I am sure that when the patrons of "Today" see all the ingenious comforts and beauty brought to them by this modern age, they will forget some of this gloomy talk about civilization's backward strides. We hope that 'Today' will be a symbol of the comfort, hope and progress in store for the average man, in spite of destructive wars."

"Today's" frontal display is spectacular, in keeping with its highly competitive situation among modern downtown store fronts and show windows. An angular marquee with dominant program display and brilliant illumination serves to invite passersby to step within for a smart hour's presentation of newsreels and variety.

Chapman's ideas on the modern newsreel theatre were expressed in this manner: "Cultural long pants for movies are marked by the emergence of the small, streamlined newsreel theatre. The ornate theatre of the twenties was to some people all that they knew of gracious living. But today, functional design coupled with compressed news of the world, popularizes the realistic viewpoint. Although modern patrons may still chew gum and hold hands at the movies, they are becoming increasingly conscious of politics and economics, history and art."

Despite some of his apparently revolutionary showmanship ideas, Dick Beck is not a newcomer to the business. As a matter of fact, he might be said to have grown up in the moving picture business, inasmuch as his father, Clarence E. Beck, was one of the oldest exhibitors in point of experience in Chicago. He owned and operated the old Castle Theatre on State Street, the Alcazar, Rose and Pastime, all loop houses now defunct but once very much a part of the theatre scene. Clarence Beck also will be remembered as a pioneer in the newsreel theatre field many years ago, but at that time the public was not yet ready for full length newsreel programs.

Thus it may be seen that Richard Beck



A view of the entrance lobby (left) shows some of the many innovations to be found from the front to rear of this house. For the first time, fluorescent lighting was used beneath the marquee and in the ceiling of this exterior portion of the theatre. The foyer of this intimate house (right) is graced by rich wood veneered walls, indirect lighting, rough-textured carpeting, woven from flax, and a mural which sets the decorative scheme and portrays surrealistically the spirit of newsreel entertainment.

has realized his father's dream of a quarter-century ago in "Today" for Chicago. His experience also encompasses the operation of theatres in Newark and Elizabeth, New Jersey, and association with the "March of Time" in New York City.

Modern Surroundings

Located on Madison Street at Dearborn, "Today" is only one block from the busiest corner in the world, an ideal situation for a house of this type. The building of which it is a part is one of the new "rent payers" erected on the site of a razed obsolete office building. The architectural firm of Loewenberg and Loewenberg handled the project, including the theatre portion in collaboration with David Chapman.

Inasmuch as the building of which it is a part is modern in every particular, offering store fronts and show windows which would vie with any modern theatre facade, it was necessary for "Today" to be more than ordinarily outstanding in its frontal display, in order to dominate its immediate surroundings. This was accomplished by an angular marquee surmounted by the namesign on either side, brilliantly illuminated by both incandescent lamps and neon in white and colors and equipped with multi-size silhouette changeable letters for proper program exploitation.

Fluorescent murals on the side-walls of the auditorium serve functionally for both illumination and color interest in the new "Today." Comfort and convenience as the primary elements are stressed in the deeply upholstered chairs, with retracting seats, which are spaced more than usually wide apart, and proper air conditioning and perfect projection and sound.

Here too, is to be found one of the first and most revolutionary innovations instigated by Mr. Chapman. For the first time, fluorescent lighting is used under the marquee to accomplish a new and stunning effect. The light is especially heated in winter to prevent cracking of the tubes, and in the summer when extreme temperature is produced by ordinary light, it will be highly preferable since fluorescent lighting exudes no heat.

A colorful non-skid terrazzo sidewalk in front of the house serves also to distinguish the theatre from its neighboring enterprises. The material is especially treated with an anti-slip compound and its design, including an inlaid "Today," flows harmoniously from the curb to the lobby entrance doors. An inset rubber link mat to one side of the boxoffice is a further functional precaution for wet weather.

Entrance Dominates

The entrance lobby is interestingly contoured with a semi-circular boxoffice at one side. Marble forms the base of this portion and structural glass in a rich mahogany color with high reflective quality is used at the top. The center portion of the walls of this entrance-way is completely covered by display in illuminated sectional frames. Entrance doors to the interior of ""Today" are novel in both design and function. They are composed of a louvred glass which permits light passage and reflection but which is translucent in effect.

The front treatment of this theatre was of primary importance as a competitive factor. All other facades in the new building which it occupies are also modernly treated with structural glass fronts in a wide variety of colors and smart designs. That the theatre should predominate in its surroundings was imperative if it were to attract the most interest from passers-by on a busy downtown thoroughfare.

"Today's" foyer is a gracefully designed and furnished functional part of the house. Its walls are lined with dark-toned wood

An inviting lounge with smart modern furnishings is made striking by a novel "postermontage" composed of colorful one- and three-sheets of celebrities and news events. For timeliness, this will be changed frequently.

Refrain Now, or Later Be Restrained... the Concept of Consent Decrees

by ANSEL M. MOORE

WHENEVER a litigant in a civil law suit becomes sorely aggrieved, but can't very well prove his allegations against the adversary, or for some other reason is placed in legal status quo, perhaps by reason of "unclean hands," self-incrimination or one of a number of other causes that make final adjudication difficult or probably inequitable; or

Whenever the holy state of matrimony reaches that point where a trip to Reno is in prospect, with a break-up of home ties threatened and adverse publicity likely to be the unfortunate lot of one or both parties to the impending divorce suit, as well as to the dependents involved when papa and mama start throwing epithets and/or more solid elements at each other and seem no longer to be able to collaborate in the common endeavor; or

When two long associated business partners, who may have built up a strong mutual competence through joint effort, team-work and abiding trust in each other, decide, because of incompatibility, or perhaps a feeling of fraudulence on the part of one against the other, decide either or both, to take their troubles to court and a resultful, once happy business combination seems ready to go on the rocks; or

In Industry, Too

When an industry reaches a critical point in its life where it becomes a house divided against itself and the various membered groups of the industrial household start spending more time throwing brick bats at each other than in discharging their several responsibilities to outsiders, who are expected to, and do provide the only source of sustenance for the said industry and every one who's a part of it—

Then, and in all such or similar events, there is need for friendly intervention, and the establishment of a twilight period in which the parties at swords' points can cool off, relax and more calmly compose their differences, without forthwith destroying the fruits of former collaboration.

That, gentlemen, is the concept of the Consent Decrees, which lately have become a popular form for the protective settlement of inter-industrial disputes just outside of court—but with the Court standing by watchfully to see that the big, bad boys play fairly and not too roughly with the smaller ones who have complained about being picked on.

Under "An Act to Protect Trade and Commerce Against Unlawful Restraints and Monopolies," the Government has recently given our moving picture industry a chance to cool off and collect its wits, without further damage to itself or incrimination in the eyes of the people. During this 3-year trial, fact-finding period, the process of paring out the bad spots and preserving the sound portions of the apple will be undertaken under a suspended decision of the Court. That briefly is the concept of our own Moving Picture Consent Decree, a rather complicated but altogether alleviating edict.

In thus effecting a conciliatory or companionate arrangement between the alleged aggressors and the complainants aggrieved, the Court in effect suggests to the former that they "pipe down" on the monopolistic tendencies and acquirement advantages charged and divest themselves of all suspicion. To the complainants a very strong hint is handed out in the decree, i. e., if you fellows want the relief prayed for, you must conduct yourselves and your houses in a manner that will do justice, not damage, to the interests of the defendants, as well as yourselves.

Probationary Period

Without taking sides in the long drawn-out controversies that seem to have culminated, temporarily at least, in the Consent Decree; we feel constrained to remind our readers that interim conduct, on both sides, will unquestionably be the determining factor in some future final adjudication of the rights claimed and wrongs alleged.

And without prejudice to anyone, let's try to be practical in our consideration of those clauses of the Consent Decree which have to do with the qualifications of the complainants, who may come before the arbiters in search of relief.

Some will claim, of course, that the clause of arbitration on clearance having to do with "the character, appearance and condition of each (theatre), including its furnishings, equipment and conveniences" is discriminatory in design and a drawback to the little fellows who feel they can't afford the popular provisions of the modern theatre plant.

We discourage any such construction being placed on that clause, and here and now acclaim it as one of the wise provisions of the entire code assuming it will be fairly applied by the arbiter in all cases. It will do more to revive picture patronage and put money in the pockets of the qualifying exhibitors than most other forms of relief they may seek.

Let's not assume the liability of too much discrimination against the smaller theatres in respect to this property condition clause. Most small capacity theatres are in far better physical condition today than the rank and file of so-called first-run houses of large to middlin' size which too long have hovered under the protection of picture priorities. These ramshackle old relics, whose owners have long winked knowingly at any suggestion of the need for modernization, should be the first to feel the effects of compulsion under this clearance clause, if, indeed, any compulsion will be required. Only theatres favored by location and the love interest of the producers have been able to flaunt the growing public demand for modernity, and these conditional clauses should work both ways.

Benefits Investment

We're just gullible enough to believe that in these "house condition" clauses of the rules for arbitration, the real showmen of the industry—the men who have invested real money in modern plants and equipment—will find themselves in more favorable position regarding pictures and play dates under the Consent Decree.

It is now a bit too early to determine the effects or foresee the complications that may arise from the application of these conditional clauses in the arbitration proceedings of the future. But as far as we can see, although they may seem a bit compulsory, the effect should be to fortify the position of every exhibitor who deserves to stay in theatre business and prosper. If he cannot, or willfully refuses, to compete with others for public favor in his community, his rights must continue in jeopardy.

During this twilight period or interim of industrial adjustment the Court has in effect said to both parties at interest and to all concerned: Gentlemen, you must refrain from acts that run contrariwise to the best interests of your industry. You may stay in business as you are; but if either of you still persists in doing that which hurts or hampers the other in his worthy effort to live and let live, then you're liable to be restrained, not indefinitely—but definitely.

Some exhibitors may feel that the house condition clauses of the Consent Decree will operate as "jokers" put there to provide the distributors with an out in case license is sought to be denied a complaining exhibitor. We hardly believe they were included for that purpose or that they

by LESLIE CHILDS

ONE of the easiest ways for a motion picture theatre owner to get into a peck of trouble, and perhaps find himself saddled with a substantial judgment, is to fail in protecting his patrons from "crowd" injuries on rush days. This because, generally speaking, a theatre operator is held to the duty of reasonable care in this phase of management.

Of course, each case of this kind will necessarily turn upon its particular facts and circumstances, so that the subject cannot be covered by any hard and fast rule. However, as an illustration of judicial reasoning thereon, and the possible danger to a theatre operator of a slip-up here, the following case may be reviewed with interest and profit.

Crowd in Foyer

Here the defendant was engaged in operating a motion picture theatre. The plaintiff, accompanied by some friends, purchased tickets for the performance then in progress. Plaintiff and her party were detained in the foyer, which was roped off, because all the seats were occupied at that time.

A crowd gathered in back of where plaintiff was standing, awaiting the end of the current performance when they would be admitted as the theatre was being emptied. The crowd became impatient and, when the chain was removed permitting entry into the theatre, rushed forward. The plaintiff was caught in this rush, shoved against the seats and hurled to the floor, suffering serious injury. In due time plaintiff brought the instant action for damages against the defendant.

Upon the trial of the case, the evidence tended to show that there was only one adult employe and two volunteer boys on hand to handle the crowd. And the trial court submitted the case to a jury on the question of whether or not the defendant had exercised due care for the protection of the plaintiff.

The jury answered this question "No," and awarded the plaintiff $1,250 in damages. From judgment on this, the defendant appealed, and the higher court in reviewing the record, as to the circumstances of the accident, in part, said:

The Record Reviewed

"The plaintiff was injured. She was injured by being knocked down by the crowd that came surging through the opening when the chains were lowered, so that the main contention of the defendant, when it is all summed up, is that the management of a place of amusement owes no duty to protect its patrons from injury by the proper handling of crowds.

"We cannot agree with this contention and we believe the law to be that those who operate amusement places must exercise reasonable care to meet hazards and dangers which may reasonably be anticipated. That there was a hazard and danger in this situation, is beyond dispute . . ."

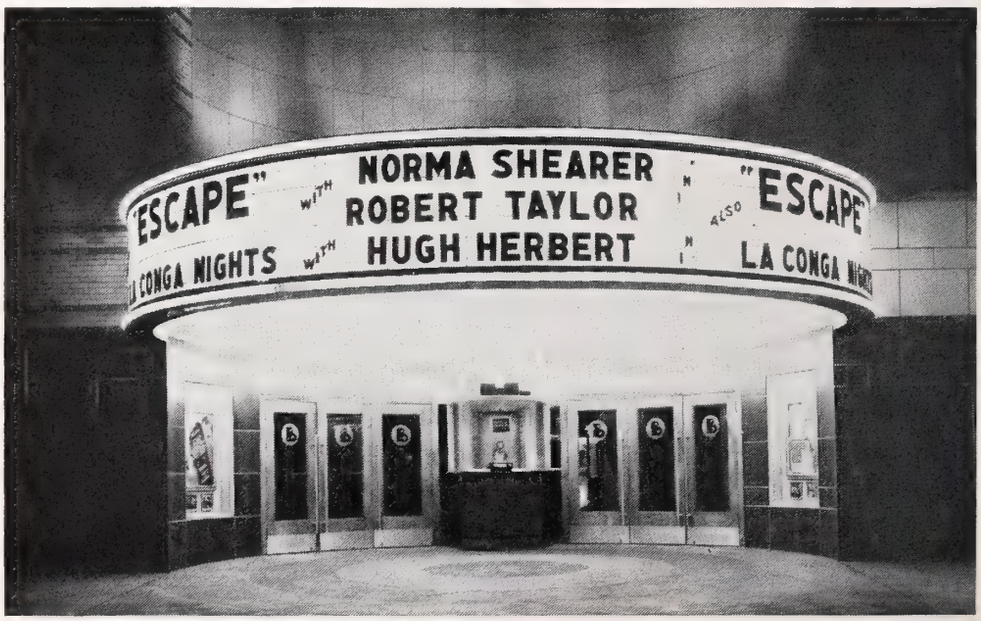
Then in stating its conclusions on the whole case, and in affirming the judgment, the court continued:

"The law on this point is well settled . . . The great weight of authority . . . is that the duty of the proprietor of a place of amusement to exercise reasonable care for the protection and safety of its patrons, goes further than the mere provision of suitable premises.

"One who invites persons upon his premises must properly protect those accepting the invitation. In this day and age when managers and proprietors of places of amusement, and other places, invite the public and thereby cause great crowds of people to be massed together, it would be violative of the common rules of humanity to say that no duty is imposed upon those proprietors and managers, who, for their profit, bring crowds together, to exercise ordinary care to protect and guard these people from the 'crowd spirit' which always prevails.

"Since they owe such duty, it clearly becomes a jury question . . . as to whether the proximate cause of an injury to a person did or did not arise through a breach of duty. We find no error in the record . . . Judgment affirmed."

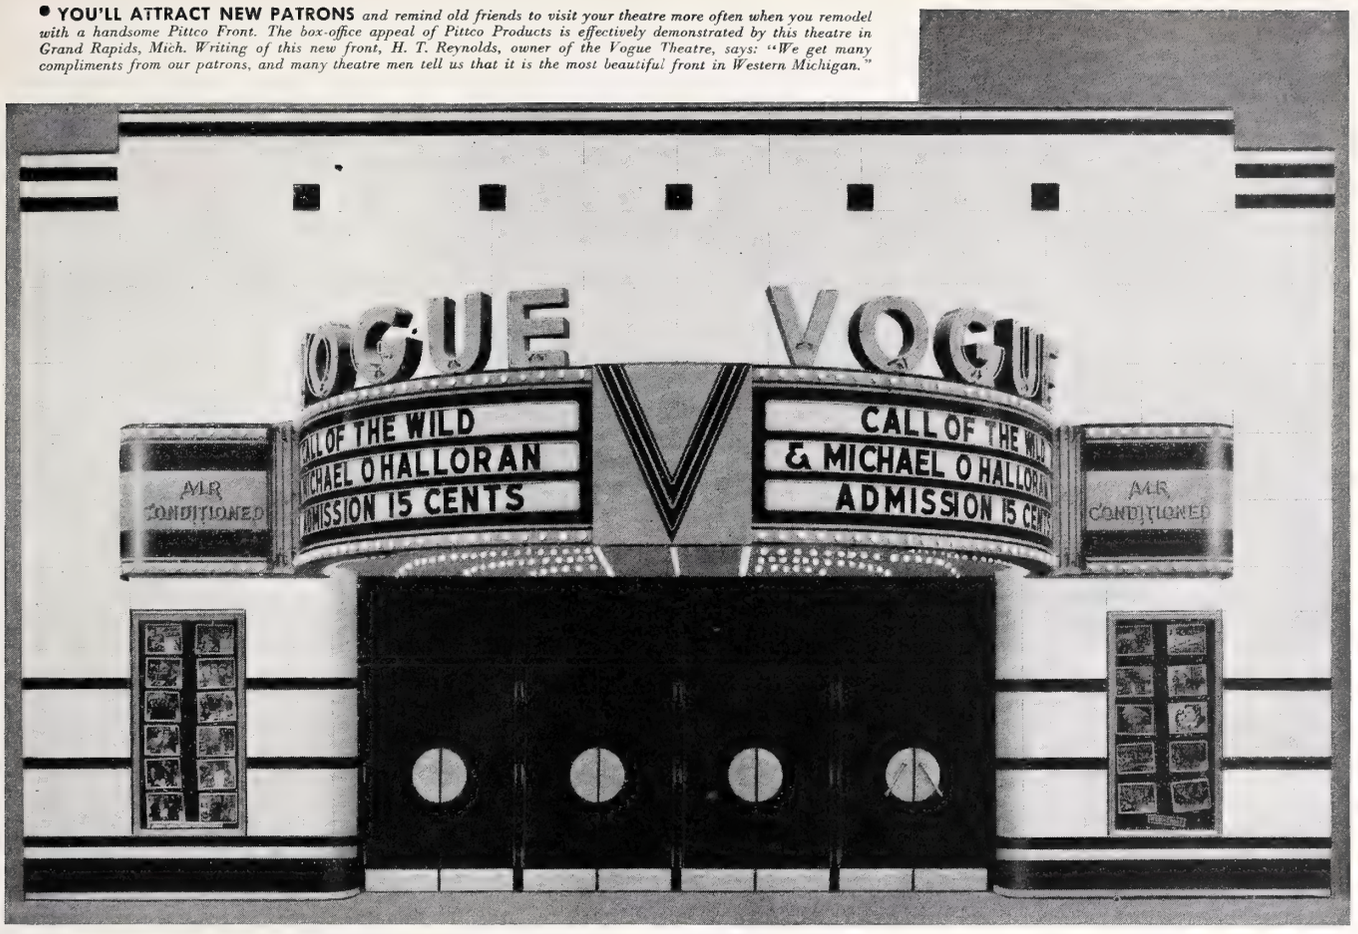
Conclusion



So ended the case, with the defendant, theatre operator, being held in the amount of the judgment, $1,250, for the injury to plaintiff. The court taking the position that the question of the defendant's lack of care in protecting the plaintiff from the rush crowd was properly submitted to the jury, and that the latter's verdict thereon could not be disturbed.

The foregoing case is one of the clearest, on the point involved, that the books contain; its holding is in accord with the great weight of authority. The language of the court has been quoted from at length to show the basis of the reasoning upon which the defendant was held liable.

Here, clearly, a slip-up that results in injury to a patron, caused by insufficient facilities safely to handle crowds, may indeed prove costly. And as an example of the importance of care in providing "safe ways on rush days" the case reviewed may well be had in mind by theatre operators in general.



Don't overlook the unseen parts of the house when modernizing. The projection room with its many mechanical elements and the service rooms with heating and air conditioning equipment play vital parts in the entire scheme despite the fact that they are not so closely examined by the customers.

CIRCULAR MARQUEE A POTENT DISPLAY MEDIUM

Unique in contour and brilliantly illuminated, the facade and marquee of the new Boulevard Theatre at Columbus, Ohio, is outstanding in point-of-sale promotional appeal. The unusual marquee is equipped with highly legible 10- and 16-inch cove type silhouette changeable letters with wrinkle-black faces and coves and red edges. ● YOU'LL ATTRACT NEW PATRONS and remind old friends to visit your theatre more often when you remodel with a handsome Pittco Front. The box-office appeal of Pittco Products is effectively demonstrated by this theatre in Grand Rapids, Mich. Writing of this new front, H. T. Reynolds, owner of the Vogue Theatre, says: "We get many compliments from our patrons, and many theatre men tell us that it is the most beautiful front in Western Michigan."

All dressed up...and going places!

PROFITS MOUNT... when your theatre wears a new Pittco Front

MAYBE you think the familiar old front on your theatre is good enough. But what about your patrons? There's no doubt about it—they prefer the theatre with a shining Pittco Front that promises a comfortable interior and a full dollar of entertainment value for every dollar spent. The minute fewer people visit your theatre—take warning! It is time to dress up your theatre with a new Pittco Front.

A handsome Pittco Front attracts a greater volume of regular patronage from ever-widening areas, and exerts a strong influence on visitors from out-of-town. Theatre owners and merchants of all kinds over the country have written us that business increases following Pittco modernizations have far exceeded their expectations. Read about their experiences in our new Store Front Book. You can get it by sending the coupon.

Because of our complete line of Pittco Store Front Products, and their ready availability anywhere in the country through one of the hundreds of Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company branches and jobbers—you will find it a simple matter to order a new Pittco Front. And when you remodel, consult an architect to make sure of an economical, well-planned job. Our experts will cooperate with him gladly in planning a Pittco Front to suit your needs. You can pay for your Pittco Front with the Pittsburgh Time Payment Plan if you wish — just 20% down, and the balance in monthly payments.

PLANNING

INTERESTING CASE HISTORIES ON CURRENT MODERN THEATRE PROJECTS

Obstacles Met in Overcoming a Theatre's Obsolescence

REMODELING an old theatre is usually a tough job. Unlike new construction, it is necessary to correct prior mistakes, overcome obsolescence, and impose on an existing structure a modern face, form and substance. But some jobs are harder than others.

One of the tough ones was the Co-Ed, formerly the Orpheum Theatre, at Fairfield, Iowa, on which L. E. Gaines spent over $25,000 this winter. The old Orpheum was 38 feet wide, 90 feet long and 15 feet, six inches high. The floor had been raised in the back so that it was two feet above street level. Adding to the "cracker-box" effect were the two-foot beams on the ceiling.

There had been previous attempts to remodel this theatre, and air conditioning had been installed at various times by local "experts." Yet ventilation, along with lighting, remained poor. The theatre possessed practically no front lobby, and the front entrance was inaccessible and congested, as can be seen from the "before" picture here presented. Fire exits also were poorly arranged, and the projection booth was a fire trap.

The front of L. E. Gaines' recently remodeled theatre, the Co-Ed, formerly the Orpheum, now gives eye-stopping evidence of the amazing metamorphosis which can take place through corrective planning. Gleaming structural glass facing material, illuminated glass blocks and display cases, modernly styled entrance doors and a marquee which uses the wiles of color, lights and legible program display letters make this new front a real patronage enticer. Contrast its effectiveness with the former facade, (at right) where a bunting canopy and a dearth of illumination and attraction power were the very antithesis of modern showmanship.

Congestion Cured

In order to eliminate the mistakes, all that now remains of the old Orpheum in the new Co-Ed are the walls, a part of the auditorium floor and the upper floor joists. Because of the old theatre's congested condition, its remodeling called for a lot of planning and engineering. The new floor plan necessarily represents distinct departure from the previous arrangement. The former lobby was six inches above the street level, while the new one is on a level with the street. In order to conserve space, the front lobby was designed in the shape of an isosceles trapezoid, with the base toward the auditorium.

Owing to the lack of space, Al Hauetter, who handled the remodeling project, created two small foyers, one on each side of the lobby, leading to the runways that empty into the cross aisle in front of the stadium balcony in the auditorium.

On the right, as the patron enters the lobby, is an unusual lobby-shop with a modern popcorn machine recessed in the wall. Off the left hand foyer is a small lounge and drinking fountain. Above the fountain is an attractive, four-foot, round mirror with built-in fluorescent lights.

The front lobby walls are covered with a resilient material, similar to linoleum, having a main field of reddish brown and stripes of cream and sand colors. The ceiling is of insulating wall-board painted with cream casein paint. Also in the ceiling is a decorative picture high-lighted with gold fluorescent lights four feet long.

Stairways Add Space

The larger stairway leading off the lobby and down to the lounge adds a good deal to the appearance of the lobby, but more importantly it increases the feeling of spaciousness. The letters in the sign above the stairway, reading "Lounge," are of cast aluminum, indirectly lighted by green fluorescent lights. At the bottom of the stairway as well as in the foyer of the front lobby are a number of 44 by 60-inch display cases, indirectly lighted.

Lounges, recreation room, offices, ushers' dressing room, advertising room, janitor's supply room and nursery are downstairs, beneath the stadium and front lobby. Manager's office, smoking lounge and rest rooms are to the right of the stairway. The business office is a novel feature of the remodeling. Its walls are of stained walnut, hand rubbed, with furniture to match. It too is indirectly lighted by fluorescent lamps.

The smoking lounge has a number of bamboo settees and chairs of varied colors, smoking stands and magazine racks. Its walls are plastered and painted in maroon to contrast with the white ceiling.

Recreation Rooms Added

To the left of the stairway in the basement is the children's playroom, and off this room is a recreation room for adults. Both rooms are fully sound-proof so that music from the coin-operated record player and voices cannot be heard in the auditorium. The recreation room has numerous settees and smoking stands for patrons resting between shows and it also serves to accommodate over-flow crowds. Fairfield is a college town and the recreation room has proved most popular with students as a meeting place.

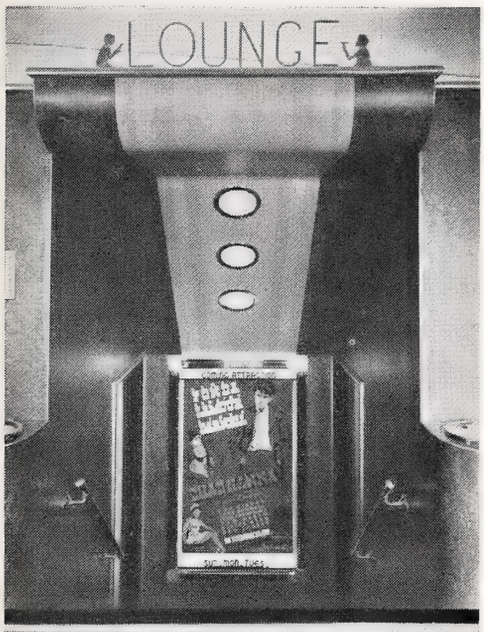
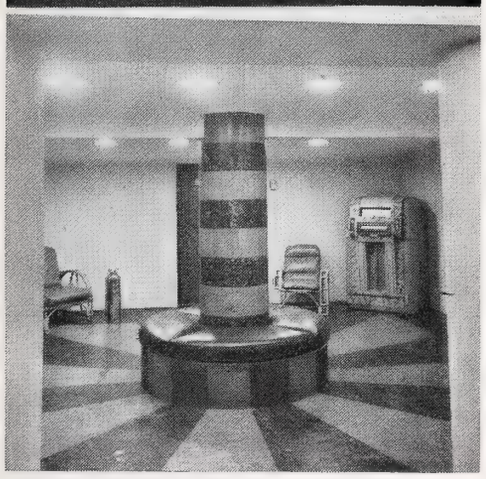
The basement has its own special ventilating system to remove smoke and odors from the lounges and rest rooms. This system operates independently from the air conditioning plant that takes care of the theatre proper.

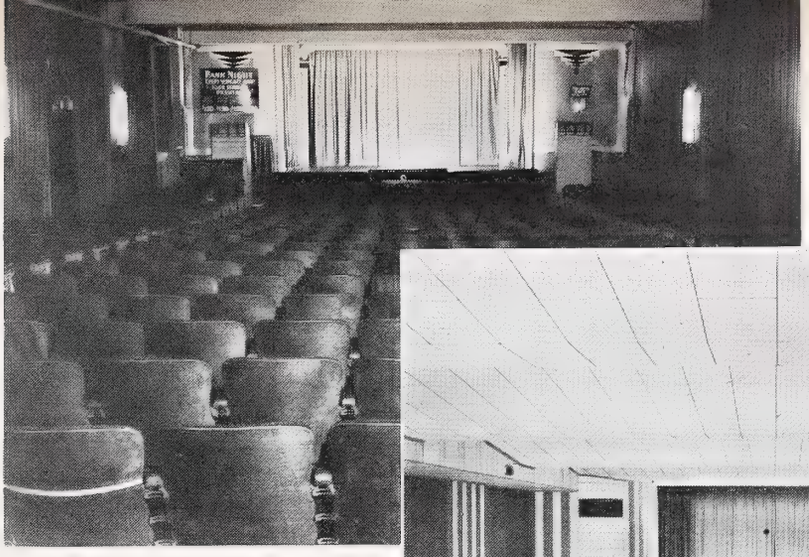


The auditorium is indirectly lighted by cobalt-blue neon tubing. Enough light is provided so that a patron can read a newspaper, but the screen is so installed that auditorium lighting doesn't color or "thin" the picture and its lighting.



The stadium is approached by one central stairway, which is above the one leading down to the lounges. There is a small cross-aisle in front of the projection room and the seats in the stadium are so arranged that seated patrons are not disturbed by others entering.

The new projection room differs somewhat from the standard. The front wall is ten feet wide, the back wall 16 feet, thus causing the side walls to run back at an angle. This "extra" room for the projection plant uses up space formerly occupied by seats in an area poorly lighted and badly ventilated.



While auditorium space was made smal-

Since Fairfield, Iowa, is a college town, the Co-Ed Theatre appeals further to its patrons by providing a lounge and recreation room in the basement. The inviting entrance and stairway to this portion is shown above, and the smart gathering place itself is to be noted below. Modern furnishings, a resilient floor and a coin-operated music box invite gaiety and dancing, while acoustical treatment assures no interference with performance in other parts of the theatre.

In the auditorium of the Co-Ed Theatre perhaps more than any place else, the characteristics of obsolescence were obliterated successfully by smart planning and efficient use of modern materials and equipment. The OLD, shown above, was a conglomerate of dinginess and gloominess of atmosphere. The NEW, at right, is composed of the appealing elements of comfort, convenience and beauty of appearance—ever an encouragement to return patronage.

THEATRE PLANNING GUIDE

Through the cooperation of our affiliated architects, leading manufacturers, their engineers, designers, dealers, contractors and others, a majority of whom are active members of The Modern Theatre Planning Institute, we are prepared to assist the theatre-owner in selection and application of all commodities and services needed in remodeling and modernizing by placing him in touch with dependable sources of supply. As sponsor of the Institute, we strive to impartially relay each inquiry only to sources of reliable information. However, we do not guarantee all statements or claims made in connection with products offered.

ler, only a few less seats were installed; 450 of the 20-inch chairs, all spaced 32 inches apart on 42-inch aisles. A very pleasing effect was achieved by checker-boarding the seats, alternating colors of rust and gold. Draperies in the theatre are of rayon silk plush in gold and bronze, and they conform with seat and carpet colors to provide a warm and harmonious color scheme.

Practical Decoration

The ceiling of the auditorium is of white acoustical board with a two-tone effect of white and cream on the air ducts along the juncture of ceiling and sidewall at each side and down the sidewalls. The ceiling presented a difficult problem with the large I-beams running crosswise, two feet deep every fourteen feet along the ceiling. This effect was eliminated by "saw-toothing" the ceiling as indicated in the picture. It also enabled the designer to provide for very pleasing indirect lighting. The one striking and abrupt change in color is the wainscoting in bright blue, highlighted by various shades of the same color.

The stage is quite small, and an air-washer is located at its right side. Air is taken down through a wind tunnel beneath the stage and up the other side to the fan room. This arrangement was made necessary by lack of space. Below the fan, in the funnel, a heating coil is located, which thus effects a combination heating and cooling system. The entire system of rooms and tunnel is covered with asphalt coated wallboard, which eliminates all tendency toward dampness and odor absorption. In the fan room also a small fan is located, supplying the heat and cooling for the lounges and recreation rooms in the basement. It is operated on a separate thermostat.

Air is conducted to the basement and distributed via a long metal duct. In the duct is fixed an automatic shutter so that smoke and odors will not be drawn back into the theatre by the larger system. The main air conditioning system has an unusual system of ducts, and heat also is carried to the front lobby, foyer, stairway and ticket-office.

The marquee of the new Co-Ed Theatre has a striking arrangement of coloring in neon. Its name-signs are in gold, bottom and top borders are of sky blue and the short bars at each end are of rose. The tubing extending from the top of the nose piece to the back of the ticket office is in gold and white, 14 bars in all. Massive hardware on the front doors, combined with circular glass, is a characteristic modern touch. The ticket office is modern and smart. The boxoffice base is of glass blocks indirectly lighted by four fluorescent bulbs that give an abundance of light. It is equipped with Venetian blinds that may be drawn while money is counted, and during the day.

Atmosphere of this newly renovated theatre, both inside and out, and perhaps its outstanding achievement, is home-like warmth. It is comfortable, most attractive, and as such is now one of Iowa's finest small houses. Its obsolescence obstacles were conquered by smart planning, prompt action and modern materials properly applied.

Upkeep and Permanence of Acoustic Materials

The history of acoustical materials establishes the fact that maintenance is second in importance only to sound absorption, and should indeed be considered simultaneously with it. In the manufacturing process it is no trick to obtain a desired color in a new, clean acoustical material by integral coloring or by surface paint or stain without injury to sound absorption. But the important consideration is what can be done in future years when the materials become dirty and unsightly.

The cleaning of acoustical materials by commercial wall paper cleaners, by special vacuum cleaner attachments, by sandpaper and by washing with soap and water all have their limitations. Sooner or later in the majority of cases painting becomes the necessary method of renovation and it is wise to determine in the beginning whether paintability is a quality of the product under consideration.

The composition of an acoustical material and the method of its application are important factors in its probable length of service and the cost of repairs. Absence of matter that will supply food to rats, mice, other vermin and insects, freedom from termite attack and dry rot, are points on which the wise purchaser will assure himself. Materials that flake or peel, especially when cleaning is attempted, are also to be avoided as particularly unpleasant.

Acoustical materials are commonly applied on ceilings and walls by cementing to plaster or concrete, or they may be mechanically attached in some fashion. Probably the most satisfactory safeguards to the purchaser are extensive experience back of the product and application method, and the responsibility of the applicator.

Bring magic into your theatre through the use of fluorescence in decorations or in carpeting. This innovation has a remarkable novelty appeal to patrons who find its unaccustomed beauty a source of wonder and delight.

INDOOR PARKING PRIVILEGE PLEASES PATRONS

Going a long way toward being courteous and thoughtful toward its guests, the Capitol Theatre in Allston, Mass., now provides free indoor parking for patrons' cars. In this first instance of its kind of record, two large garages were leased across the street from the theatre's regular outdoor areas. The public reaction has been marvelous, according to Manager Joseph Marquis, shown welcoming the first autoist, and his assistant, Charles Pratt, who is looking on with approval.

RCA Announces New In-Car Loudspeaker

A new in-car loudspeaker for Drive-In theatres, featuring light weight, excellent frequency response, and rugged construction, has been developed by RCA Photophone. The loudspeaker hangs inside the door of the car, and connects by means of a 15-foot heavy weatherproof cable to the plug-in receptacles of the Drive-In theatres.

The new "in-car" loudspeaker for Drive-In theatres has many novel features, including light weight, excellent frequency response and rugged construction. The location of the volume control atop the housing contributes to the unit's convenience in operation, and affords maximum protection against damage in handling. Overall diameter of the housing is 8 inches, and depth is 5 inches.

An important feature of the new unit is a volume control which permits patrons to regulate volume to their liking. The volume control knob is located atop the speaker housing, making it convenient for operation whether the speaker is hung on the right or left hand door. This location also affords maximum protection for the volume control. Musical reproduction is said to be excellent, and speech is clear and crisp at all volume levels.

Freedom from damage and efficient operation under all weather conditions are assured by the special metal-sheathed weatherproof plug which has been developed for the cable end. The cable also has a quickly adjustable slack-takeup device and a car bumper fastener.

Overall diameter of the speaker housing is 8 inches, and depth is 5 inches. The loudspeaker hangs equally well on the glass of the car door and on the door sill itself, making it possible for the patron to operate the loudspeaker with the door glass in any position. Both the hanging bracket and the back of the unit are rubber cushioned to protect paint finishes. The housing is painted brown.

Investment in Carpet a Most Flexible Factor

Perhaps you are one of those exhibitors whose appropriation for carpeting has been limited in advance to a definite set sum. If so, the carpet mill representative will show you the best weave obtainable for the money. But it is being realized more and more that the way to get the best value is to study the job the carpet has to do first, and determine the money afterwards.

You may be putting too much money into a space where wear is not so heavy. You may be putting too little money into a space where great durability is indispensable. A carpet that costs a little more in initial expenditure may prove to cost less when figured over the term of its whole life. You may be able to save money in areas which are not important, and invest it to better effect in your more conspicuous spaces.

In the final analysis, value is determined by the service rendered per annum in a definite space. This means in eye-appeal as well as in actual durability of the fabric. The carpet mill representative is in best position to suggest the right carpet for each space you have under consideration.

an early modernization of the entire frontage including a more modern marquee, attraction boards and main sign together with other secret innovations he has in mind to make the Family's exterior match the present excellence of its interior.

The seating capacity of the Family is only 530. To make it pay, it must be filled at every performance, and it usually is. It is indeed a "family" theatre and its regular patrons seldom go elsewhere for entertainment. And the Reynolds family, including the Mrs., the two boys, Dick and Bob, and a daughter, make the Reynolds enterprises a delightful family affair. Everybody works—including the old man. The Missus runs the confection concessions, Dick manages the Family, Bob manages the Vogue and daughter keeps the books.

Ask him the reason for all this expensive renovation and Reynolds will ask you: Whatin'ell else is a guy going to do to hold his own? If you can't give 'em "Gone With the Wind," the folks will soon forget and forgive you if you give 'em comfort along with the best pictures you're able to get.

Which all adds up to the fact that the picture, after all, is just a part of the show.

TRADEWINDS

A MONTHLY WEATHERVANE ON CURRENT EVENTS IN THIS AND OTHER INDUSTRIES AFFECTING THE INTERESTS OF THEATRE OPERATION.

Raw Material Shortages and the Labor Situation Suggest Buy Now!

Early this month the Government at the recommendation of the Defense Commission slapped a priorities ruling on aluminum and the material instantly became hard to get. A price increase on cast aluminum sign letters, now commonly used in theatre attraction boards, was announced on three-day notice by Wagner Sign Service, Inc., a leading manufacturer of silhouette sign letters, and the plant immediately became swamped with orders, over 60,000 letters being ordered in one week's time. Mr. E. Wagner informed us that he still has an ample supply of material on hand for reasonable requirements, but that momentarily and without notice this time, the cost of letters may rise again.

A letter from an executive of International Projector Corp., tells us that the demands on their manufacturing facilities are being further taxed by defense requirements with prospects of increasing curtailment and higher costs for equipment.

Certain air conditioning equipment manuturers are now faced with shortages of basic materials, which if obtainable at all, may be so at much higher prices, due to armament priorities.

Building generally faces the prospect of a rather difficult dual situation involving both materials and labor shortage, the latter presenting an ever-increasing risk of much higher costs for future structural activity. These are but a few of the "straws in the wind."

Yet, in spite of these obvious trends a number of our architectural correspondents tell us that their theatre clients, and prospective builders and remodelers, are procrastinating with their plans—putting off doing now what is liable to cost them much more to do later.

Theatre business is peculiarly situated to profit readily from the increase of patronage due to defense activities. Why, therefore, should it hesitate about going ahead—and getting its orders in ahead of the high-cost, hard-to-get period that seems sure to arrive soon?—THE EDITOR.

LITERATURE

The following concerns have recently filed copies of interesting descriptive literature with The Modern Theatre Information Bureau. Readers who may wish copies of such literature may obtain them promptly by addressing The Modern Theatre, 332 S. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Advance Manufacturing Company, of St. Louis, Mo., offers a profusely illustrated catalogue covering all sizes and models of Advance Popcorn Machines. In this book, the profit angles of popcorn purveying in theatres are interestingly outlined. Prices are found therein also.

Barber-Colman Company, of Rockford, Illinois, presents a comprehensive catalogue containing complete descriptive data on Uni-Flo Grilles and Registers, Venturi-Flo Ceiling Outlets and allied special units. Specification details and outlines are also presented.

Chicago Hardware Foundry Co., of North Chicago, Illinois, offers literature on "Sani-Dri," the electric hand-drier for theatre washroom applications. Advantages of the device are pointed out and complete details on its new improvements are covered.

General Electric Company, Air Conditioning Div., of Bloomfield, N. J., files an interesting and valuable brochure entitled "Air Conditioning for Business," covering the salient features of the science and stressing proper engineering and application.

Kinner Products Co., Inc., of Springfield, Ohio, submits a folder entitled "A Smashing Success in Every Theatre," which covers the new Kinner Glass Cleaner for structural glass fronts, display cases and other uses about the theatre. A special thirty-day offer also is made to enable those interested to try the product at small cost.

Klearflax Linen Looms, Inc., of Duluth, Minn., presents literature on a new linen carpet named Klearflax, outlining its advantages for use in theatres. A free sample also will be included for a burn-proof test and examination.

The Mengel Company, Inc., of Louisville, Ky., presents several pieces of literature on Mengel-Bord and Mengel Doors, new wood veneer products of exceptional beauty and adaptability at low cost. The literature contains descriptions, pictures and application data as well as specifications and prices.

United States Air Conditioning Corp., of Minneapolis, Minn., submits a piece of literature entitled "Your Best Air Defense," covering the new packaged unit Refrigerated Kooler-aire. Boxoffice boosting advantages of proper air conditioning are discussed and the new unit described graphically.

NOTICE: Manufacturers of all products adapted to theatre modernization or maintenance are invited to file latest copies of their catalogues or descriptive literature with The Modern Theatre Information Bureau.—THE EDITOR.

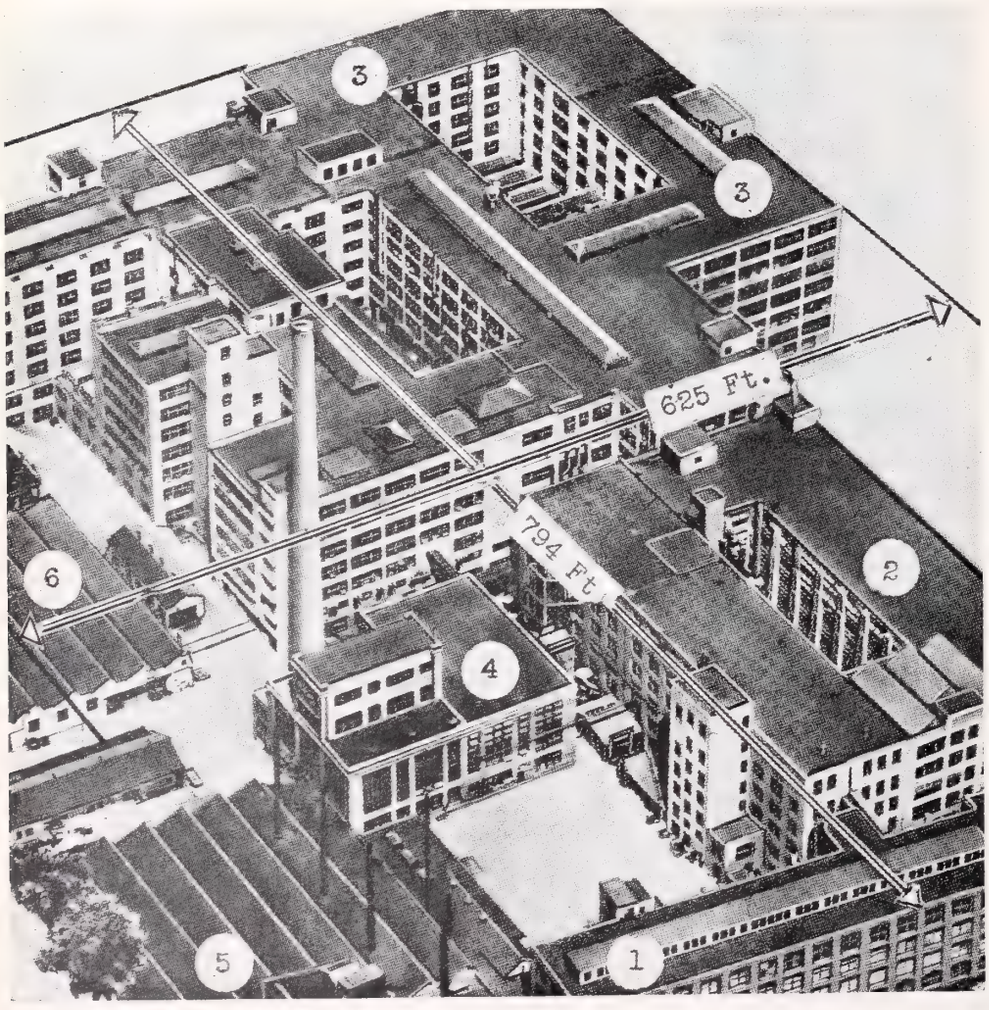
FACTORIES AT WORK

A series of introductions to theatre equipment manufacturers and the methods behind their products.

A Trip Through the Laboratories of the Weather-Makers

ANOTHER "infant industry" has been bursting its buttons for some time now, but many among us—both the general public and those who are supposed to know better—have liked to look upon the air conditioning industry as a "small fry" which should grow up a bit more and acquire more coordination of its admitted great powers before we would take it really seriously as an industrial factor.

Well, maybe this is a youthful industry. Air conditioning was not even thought of until the year 1902; was not generally applied until 1915, when the Rational Psychrometric Formulae upon which it is based was disclosed to the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. Begun less than forty years ago, pioneering past, but development and research yet in progress, that is the record of this so-called "infant industry," air conditioning.



We of the motion picture industry also know the trials and tribulations of accused infancy. We too have passed through the colic stage and have suffered growing pains, much to the amusement of other older but not necessarily larger industries. Perhaps for this reason, the motion picture industry and air conditioning have felt somewhat akin. The impetus which each has given the other in development is well known.

Theatres willingly served as testing laboratories for early developments in the science of air conditioning. Air conditioning, in return, has given to its "guinea pig," the motion picture industry, a 12-month year, almost entirely eliminating the midsummer slump which characterized theatre business before atmospheric control was made possible.

A Fount of Progress

We thought some of you might like to learn more about the workings of air conditioning development and manufacture. With this purpose in mind, it was decided to take you to one of the foremost founts of air conditioning progress and application, Carrier Corporation in Syracuse, New York. It was Dr. Willis H. Carrier, chairman of the board of this corporation which bears his name, who is credited with the invention of the new science called air conditioning. Under the research and development which has since taken place in his company and many others, air conditioning has flowered and grown to the extent mentioned at the beginning of this story—almost bursting its seams.

Carrier Corporation too, we found, had recently outgrown its rompers. Since 1938 the company has occupied a new plant in Syracuse which is compatible with its size. Where formerly five smaller plants in widely separated localities had housed the corporation in almost crowded and necessarily complicated surroundings from the standpoint of transportation, the new Syracuse plant accommodates all air conditioning operations, from drafting board to finished product, literally under one well integrated roof top.

That we may better "find our way about"—an air-view chart of the Carrier plant at Syracuse, New York. Identification: Building No. 1—General offices; No. 2—Manufacturing Building; containing also two cafeterias and executives' dining room; No. 3—Manufacturing; No. 4—Power house; No. 5—Garage; No. 6—Development Building. Railroad sidings are located between Buildings No. 2 and 3.

The new plant consists of two factory buildings, an office building, the "development building," a power house, garage, several miscellaneous buildings, parking space and two railroad sidings, occupying 14 acres of ground and providing 31 acres of floor space. This had formerly housed the Franklin (air-cooled, remember) automobile plant and only one major structural change was necessary in order to meet the new requirements. Complete modernization and, need we mention it, complete air conditioning of the plant itself were all that was needed to put the new works in operation. One of the largest company migrations ever undertaken, the while manufacturing and production obligations were met in full, was accomplished in the brief span of two months.

Development Unhampered

One of the peculiar advantages offered by the new plant was more space, greater facilities and absolute privacy for the research and development department of the company. The more than one hundred engineers and scientists who comprise this division form the very foundation upon which progress in air conditioning is based. Their new quarters are ideal for concentration, experiments and tests.

The development building is brilliantly illuminated by skylights, supplemented by lights in non-glare reflectors. The many private offices, conference rooms, laboratories and corridors are panelled with sound-absorbing materials. This department maintains numerous laboratories; operates its own shops; has its own office force for filing, bookkeeping, correspondence and its own switchboard.

In this department, which might be termed the very core of the company's air conditioning progress, the range of activity is somewhat as follows: The design of entirely new equipment; improvement of existing equipment; construction, testing, tearing down and reconstruction of both old and new equipment, and creation of special equipment to meet unusual requirements.

Experimental Chambers

For these purposes, various laboratories and test rooms are maintained in the Development building. One of the most interesting is the sound-proof laboratory, which is capable of reducing the din of a boiler factory to less than a faint whisper. The room is suspended on springs to eliminate sound produced by building and earth vibration. Sound absorbers are located in the intake and outlet ducts of its special air conditioning system and the ducts are also provided with flexible sections made necessary by the spring suspension. The chamber is lined with several layers of sound-absorbing material.

The quiet operation of air conditioning equipment is the result of tests conducted in this and other sound-proofed chambers in the plant. Equipment is brought in and engineers with delicate sound-detecting instruments locate the exact source of every bit of noise caused in actual operation of the unit. Pipes into the room provide gas, water, compressed air and steam so that all types of equipment may be tested.

Another interesting experimental chamber to be seen in passing, is the cement-lined laboratory in which apparatus is installed which can drive the mercury deeply below zero or above 100 degrees Fahrenheit, artifically create high or low humidity, control wind velocity and direction, create dust storms, noise or in fact almost any outdoor condition of temperature that might be met in the field. The ducts, pipes and air conditioning apparatus which produce such phenomena are most aptly termed "weather-makers."

Manufacture Coordinated

With all the advantages offered by the new Carrier plant for research and development, it was perhaps in the Manufacturing divisions where the greatest change was wrought by the recent expansion. While formerly the manufacture and production of equipment was widely scattered and inter-plant shipping was a necessary evil, since each plant specialized in certain operations, there is now ample room for all manufacturing units under one roof. Furthermore, plenty of storage room for raw materials and finished goods is now available and purchases can be made during favorable markets and stocks built up for busy seasons.

The importance of complete consolidation cannot be overestimated. Now the whole manufacturing operation is started and completed in two large inter-connected factory buildings and what little inter-plant shipping is necessary is handled by a fleet of motor-driven "scooters." Coils, compressors, paint shop activities, inspections, dehydration and charging, final assembly, even crating and boxing are now all part of one efficient line movement. Assembly moves along easily and quickly from one section to the next on roller conveyors.

The Manufacturing department embraces, in addition to complete production of the line of air conditioning, refrigeration and heating equipment, the shipping and receiving facilities with their double railroad sidings, carpenter shops for crates and boxes, truck loading platforms and so forth, and such auxiliary activities as the general machine shops, the various instrument and tool rooms, and the department's own planning offices.

Office Worker's Paradise

In keeping with modern production methods, the General Office building of Carrier's new plant is a model structure providing ideal working conditions, thanks to modernization and the installation of year-round air conditioning. Over 700 office employes in this building enjoy correct illumination, complete absence of outside noises, dirt, dust, odors and irritating pollen and an atmosphere permanently maintained at correct temperature, humidity and freshness.

Two cafeterias and an executives' dining room are provided also in this modern plant. These too are properly air conditioned. The office employes' cafeteria accommodates 600 at one sitting and

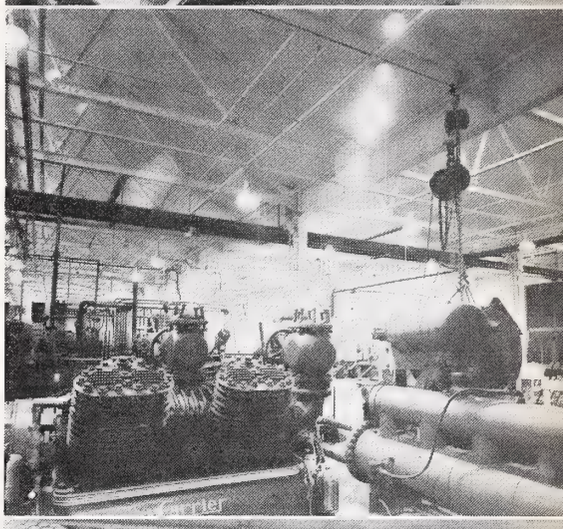
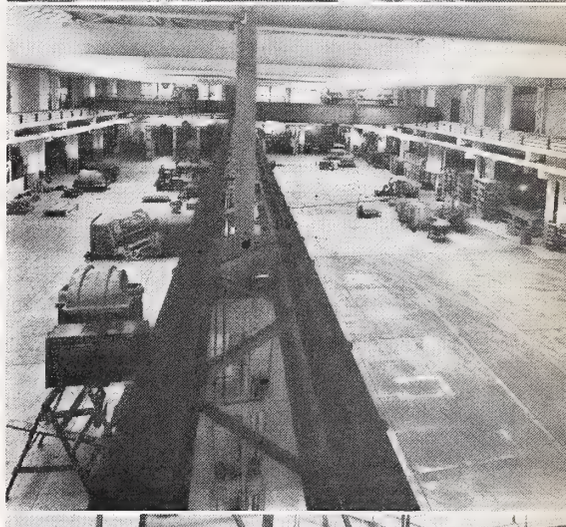
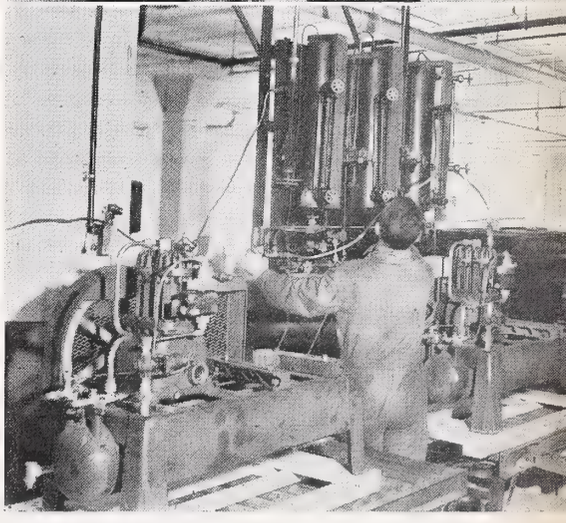
1. Men and machines thus contribute to research and development in air conditioning. Here new ideas are being translated into lines and symbols, the first concrete step toward actual production of new equipment. Engineer-designers employed in the Development department's general drafting room are shown at work in their well-illuminated, air conditioned quarters.



2. The machine shop and general test floor maintained by the Development department along with many smaller test rooms. This shop manufactures, changes and modifies equipment for experimental purposes. A new eight-cylinder reciprocating compressor is seen in the foreground being set up for testing.



3. Manufacture of air conditioning equipment is handled in much the same manner employed by the automobile assembly line. Here we see the assembly track for production of centrifugal compressors. Efficient line movement speeds production easily and quickly from one operation to the next on roller conveyors. Quick inter-department transportation is further handled by a fleet of motor-driven scooters.



4. Charging commercial refrigerating units with Freon. The mechanism seen here permits extremely accurate determination of each charge. The scene is typical of the many scientific steps involved in the manufacture of modern highly engineered air conditioning equipment, in the huge plant of this modern weather-maker.

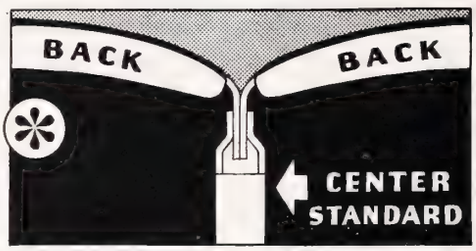
will operate to the disadvantage of theatres who on all other points might be entitled to the relief sought.

CAUSE FOR OPTIMISM

From the reclassification of theatres that appears imminent under the decree, we foresee a higher standard of motion picture presentation throughout the country, even in the smaller and more remotely located cinemas. That the producers and distributors are becoming more directly concerned about the conditions of theatres and theatre equipment is quite understandable, because upon such conditions depends the revenue to be derived for all concerned, including the exhibitor.



Personally, we're optimistic about the outcome. It should lend speed to general theatre property improvement, a movement that is already well under way. A definite restraint is being removed from theatre trade. House Appeal, at last is being recognized for what it's worth to all concerned.

Lighting Influenced by Decorative Finishes

Ceiling and wall decorations and finishes are an auxiliary to the lighting system because they not only provide a background for the lighting elements but, in the case of indirect lighting, they become a part of the lighting system itself and, if light in tone, contribute greatly to its efficiency. Where the ceilings and walls are too dark, the lighting units that would otherwise be comfortable, when viewed against a light colored ceiling, become harsh and uncomfortable.

Particularly with indirect or semi-indirect lighting, a large part of the ceiling should be mat-surfaced and light in color, as most of the light is directed to the ceiling and from there redirected and diffused to the area below. A glossy surface should be avoided because the lamps produce undesirable streaks in the shiny surface. It is a good plan always to try out ceiling surfaces with the type of lighting equipment to be used, viewing at many angles before a final decision on the ceiling finish is made.

Low relief decorations and painted designs are oftentimes used to advantage to break up what would otherwise become unusually large and uninteresting expanses of ceiling area. Specifically, where cove lighting is employed these decorations can be made to interrupt the ceiling at the point where the light from the cove fades off perceptibly.

Exterior Modernization With Light and Color

Architectural design involves the knowledge of emotional appeal and psychological effects. If the choice of materials and the handling of them produces graceful proportions in line, form and mass; if colors and materials blend; if contrasts are pleasing so that individuals react favorably to these results and regard them as beautiful, then we have effective design.

According to newer concepts, many theatre buildings considered satisfactory some years ago are now seen to be decidedly ungainly, awkward and totally inadequate commercially in their expression and outlook. Theatre exteriors, particularly, should be architecturally pleasing, since it is recognized that they must advertise and compel attention.

Today there is a wealth of new building materials to inspire new concepts in architectural design. For sparkle and scintillation, the lighting designed now has at his disposal durable, lustrous reflecting metals. Add to these the new translucent materials, plastics, glasses, glass blocks, rods, tubes and moulded forms in a wide range of colors. Add also the new light sources, such as fluorescent lamps and reflector bulbs, and we have an entirely new order of flexibility in facilities at the disposal of the creative designer.

Buy Now—before the inevitable raise in prices which we may expect and indeed before some things actually become unavailable due to rearmament and defense activities.

the factory workers' cafeteria seats 850 with facilities for serving 1,400 persons per hour. Executives of the company gather regularly in their own dining room, and naturally "shop talk" is not prohibited.

AIR CONDITIONING MODELS

Allusion to the air conditioning of Carrier's plant has been made fleetingly several times herein. It is only natural that this plant would maintain the latest and finest in its own interests. Six different types of air conditioning systems, each tailored to the needs of the particular space involved, are in operation at the new quarters, each designed and installed just as though it had been sold to an outside user.

A year-round central station system in the office building features special dehumidifying equipment, high-speed ducts and under-window outlets. This system is also used to condition the office worker's cafeteria, while in the other cafeteria smaller units provide year-round air conditioning. A central station system provides for the Development building, and another type of central station system supplies the chemical laboratories and assembly hall therein.

In the two factory buildings, unitary heating is provided by industrial heat diffusers. All the steam used for heating is generated by a battery of 600 h.p. boilers in the power house. Cooling for the central station systems requires 256 tons of refrigeration under peak load conditions. The refrigerating machines as well as the air conditioning systems with which they function are of different types, both centrifugal and reciprocating. This variation in design of the air conditioning systems enables Carrier to show its host of daily visitors the latest in air conditioning in operation right in its own plant—practicing what it preaches, so to speak.

A Flashlight Test for Theatre Cleanliness

If your patrons are restless during the program, coughing and sneezing during the tense moments, and if, despite forced ventilation, the air seems thick and heavy, it is probable that dust is causing the trouble. Dirt tracked in and dust raised from the floor by shuffling feet bring discomfort to any audience. Nervous and irritable, they fail to respond to your finest presentations.

Make a flashlight tour of your theatre, looking under the seats where brooms and brushes cannot reach and where hats and gloves often dropped by the patrons become soiled. Is it clean or do you find dust? Then examine the expensive draperies, wall decorations, carpets and other furnishings by flashlight. Are they losing their brightness because of dust?

The best way to overcome the dust problem is by regular and frequent use of a heavy-duty theatre type vacuum cleaner. It will get under the seats and it follows the operator freely, into the corners and up and down the aisles. With brushes and accessories it will successfully clean walls, draperies and other items of furnishing which harbor dust. In fact, it is the only really reliable method of keeping the theatre clean and wholesome week in and week out.

Check Your Locks for Maximum Security

The degree of protection which any lock provides determines its value and the applications for which it is suited. Always consider these three forms of securing: (1) Again violence (jimmying or sawing); (2) Against picking (operating the mechanism with instruments other than the key; (3) Against interchange of keys.

For maximum security, all three forms are essential in the highest possible degree. Besides resistance to force and to picking (comparatively infrequent means of entry), the lock should permit of sufficient key changes virtually to eliminate key duplication. When you buy a lock you will usually find these qualities present in proportion to its price. Cheap locks have their uses, of course. But for real protection—especially of late in the theatre field—the finest lock you can buy is a most intelligent investment.

RIGHT over your present theater walls and ceilings you can put an interior finish that is so beautifully colorful—so interesting in pattern and texture—so appealing in its decorative effect—that it gives your theater unique, profit-creating individuality. LIGHTING

ILLUMINATION FOR ADVERTISING DISPLAY, ATMOSPHERE AND BETTER VISION

Brighten Up Your Entire Theatre Now . . . WITH LIGHT!

by C. M. CUTLER and H. J. CHANON

SUCCESSFUL theatre owners are alert to the public's demand for newness. This problem of keeping the theatre up-to-date is second only to a wise selection of feature presentations in "ringing up" ticket sales in the boxoffice. A good picture presented in a clean and comfortable house, having a stimulating and colorful atmosphere, is unquestionably a successful combination.

MR. CUTLER

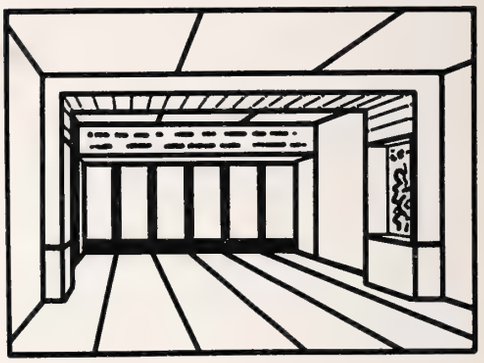
The Front

The prospective patron's first impression is formed as he views the theatre from some distant point. For maximum advertising value, make sure that the front is bright enough, that it contrasts with competing displays, that it has effective motion, that the letters are not blurred, and that the front as a whole is effective. The entire theatre front represents expensive space and all of it should be working for maximum advertising.

For distant viewing, brightness can be increased by a simple change in lamps to the next higher wattage, providing wire capacity is sufficient. A front can offer excellent contrast with competing displays if colors or tints are employed that are different from surrounding lighting. A new unusual effect for attraction letter panels can be incorporated by using colored fluorescent lamps and filament lamps in combination with removable letters of translucent colored center strokes and mounted against the present white diffusing glass panel which serves as the background. Letters having red center strokes can be used with green fluorescent lamps. When the filament lamps are not burning the letters appear in silhouette against a bright green background as the green lamps burn continuously. As the filament lamps are brought up in brightness the letters take on red center strokes and the background changes from green to higher brightness in white. Either dimmer or flasher control can be used for the filament lamp circuit. The amount of filament light should be approximately 1½ to 2 times the output of the fluorescent lamps.



The use of large letters for the feature message increases the legibility range and small letters for the remaining copy complete the message as the patron approaches the marquee. As in newspaper copy the important message is thus read first and detail copy is read at close range.

The addition of luminous elements, such as panels or pylons, will give the front the effect of increased size and distinction. Glass block illuminated from behind with white or colored fluorescent lamps can be effectively utilized at each side of the entrance area or on the building front above the marquee. And in completing your inspection of the front, many sections such as light panels, color hoods, light boxes, etc., can be restored to initial efficiency by a good cleaning with soap and water. Repainting the inside of light reflecting cavities and relamping at the same time will bring back original freshness at little expense.

*Nela Park Engineering Department of General Electric Company.

The Lobby

The lobby requires particular treatment from the lighting standpoint because it serves as the transition from the brightly lighted exterior to the more dimly lighted foyer or auditorium. The patron is in the lobby for only a very short time at the most and it is important to employ light and color to create favorable comment immediately, and direct attention quickly to the attraction posters.

A distinctive atmosphere can be created through the use of colored fluorescent lamps in coffers attached to the ceiling, in corrugated metal troughs below the ceiling line or in a grid placed across the ceiling and continuing down part of the side walls. Any of these architectural elements can be made up in the shop ready for installation. These can be moved into the theatre and installed with a minimum of interference with the regular theatre schedule. In coffers or other elements which assure a good overall mixture, the following proportion of colored Mazda F lamps of equal wattage will result in a quality of light complimentary to complexions: 6 gold, 4 pink, 3 blue, and 1 green.

The space above the doors is an ideal location for an attraction letter panel to bring attention to coming attractions. A lighting treatment similar to the one suggested for the marquee can be employed; however, gold fluorescent lamps and letters with blue center strokes can be used in contrast with the red and green combination.

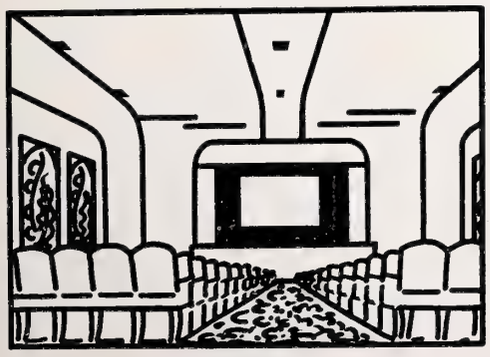
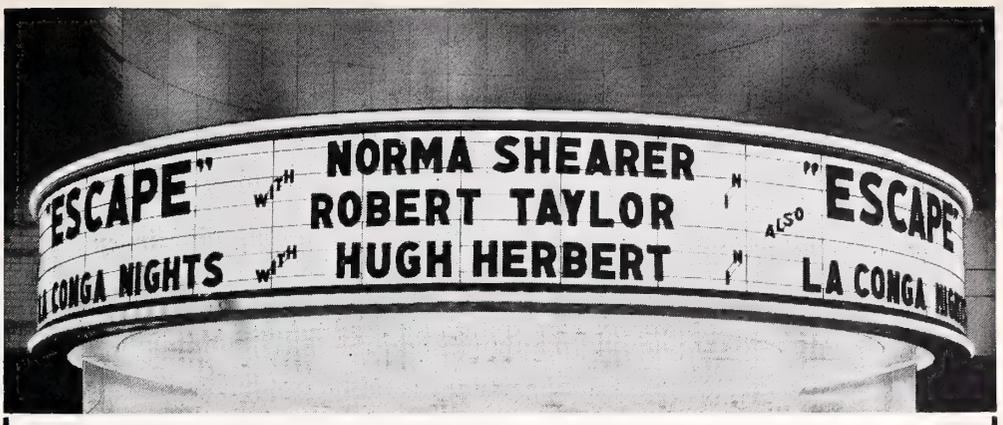
Poster panels are seldom recessed enough to obtain satisfactory light distribution even when the ideally suited fluorescent lamps are employed. A depth of 1/5 the panel height results in good lighting. Other means of lighting such as fluorescent lamps in polished reflecting troughs fastened to the ceiling or brought out from the wall below the ceiling line will produce excellent coverage.

The Foyer

The foyer serves as a distributing center for the auditorium entrances and exits.





Here 3 to 5 footcandles are recommended for proper eye accommodation to the low level lighting in the auditorium. This illumination may be produced by warm and inviting colors from lamps in well shaded wall brackets, ceiling fixtures, and decorative floor lamps. A new lamp known as "soft white" has recently been added to the group of fluorescent lamps. The spectral quality of light produced by this lamp is complimentary to the appearance of individuals. Lines of light attached to the ceiling equipped with soft white lamps and shielded by glass or plastic add directional and decorative appearance. Recessed posters and displays illuminated by fluorescent lamps in troughs above harmonize decoratively with the ceiling elements.

The Auditorium

The auditorium is an excellent place to use "black-light" in fluorescent carpeting and wall decorations. Many existing theatres have sidewall murals done years ago, and although they are still beautiful when the intermission lights are on, they lose their decorative quality during the presentation of pictures. These same murals may be treated with fluorescent paints and lacquers and energized with a 100-watt or 250-watt mercury lamp unit recessed or attached to the ceiling. For mercury sources equipped with No. 587 filters ½ to 1 watt per square foot

Where no side wall aisles exist or where the lower edge of the murals is above normal reach it is possible to place the "black-light" sources in decorative urns located below and to direct the near-ultraviolet energy upwards. However, the brightness of the mural will not be as uniform as in the case of ceiling mounted equipment where the distance from the wall can be chosen for proper distribution of energy.

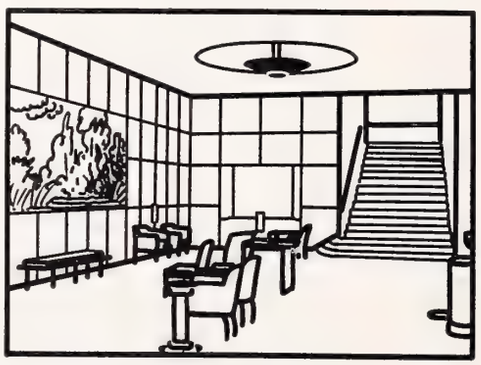
The proscenium wall is likewise an excellent location for these light emitting decorations.



Fluorescent carpeting is now being offered in many different designs and colors. In addition to its decorative effect, it is a means of traffic or directional lighting. Of the various methods of energizing fluorescent carpet that have been tried, the use of controlling equipment mounted at the ceiling and centered directly over the aisles has been most successful. In this method it is important to confine the near-ultraviolet energy closely to the aisle width so that a minimum of spill falls into the seating area. In this way, fluorescence of eyeballs, tinted eyeglasses, hair preparations, teeth, etc., is minimized.

Laboratory experiments first indicated and field installations have verified the fact that excellent control of near-ultraviolet energy is obtained through the use of 100-watt capillary mercury lamps in parabolic trough reflectors. The trough collects the light at its focus and redirects it into a thin wedge. For satisfactory coverage, whether the units be recessed or attached to the ceiling, it has been found that the spacing be equal to the ceiling height for ceilings up to 30 feet. For higher ceilings, closer spacings are required to get sufficient energy, and twin units may be desirable in many instances.

Theatre patrons are aware of the possibility of contracting airborne diseases in auditoriums. In air conditioned theatres, a single 30-watt germicidal lamp in an air circulating duct will irradiate 500 cubic feet of air per minute. In theatres not air conditioned a single 30-watt lamp for every 4,000 cubic feet of room space will give the same protection. These lamps must be shielded from direct view as the ultraviolet energy is harmful to the eyes.

The Lounge

In the theatre lounge, patron movement is more leisurely and the surroundings and decorative features are subject to contemplation and appraisal. General lighting of a low order can be produced by large ceiling fixtures or if desired by individual floor lamps located at lounge chairs throughout the room. Floor lamps as well as other fixtures should be positioned so that direct view of the lamps is impossible when descending the stairs. Other glare should likewise be avoided as should dark and gloomy corners.

A lounge often offers an excellent location for a decorative mural done in fluorescent pigments. It is preferable that a side wall receiving but little direct illumination be used for a decoration of this kind because spill light has the tendency to "wash-out" the vivid colors produced by fluorescence. Fluorescent carpeting on stairways will introduce newness which is sure to attract favorable reaction.

The Powder Room

In the powder room the feminine patron is impressed with good lighting on either side of the mirror, especially when it provides two qualities, one for judging her appearance when on the street in the daytime and the other for the warmer appearance of lighting at night. The new daylight fluorescent lamp is ideal for the daytime circuit and the white fluorescent lamp or regular filament lamps are suitable for the evening circuit. Panels or half cylinders of diffusing glass over the lamps improve the appearance of the units as well as provide desirable shielding of the sources. The units for each mirror should be equipped with two switches marked for "daytime" and "night-time" lighting respectively.

A recent innovation, the sterilization of toilet facilities gives the theatre still another way to provide additional features for the protection of patrons. The 4-watt germicidal lamp is suitable for this purpose when incorporated in the proper equipment. Features of this kind will often influence the patron in making a choice of theatres.

Functional Wall Finish Important Precaution

The important function of walls and ceilings in today's theatre is to provide comfort—year-round healthful comfort for the eye, the mind and the body. No longer is it wise or even economical to employ flimsy construction that permits the rapid passage of heat, for only when walls and ceilings are properly insulated is it possible to attain the benefits of comfort from air conditioning and acoustics.

Freedom from the rays of the hot summer sun, quick heat in winter when needed, elimination of the dangers of moisture condensation—all are dependent upon construction materials that will successfully slow down the rate of heat travel through them.

Quiet also is assured by properly insulated walls and ceilings in the theatre. Harsh, irritating outside noises are softened and subdued, because noise like heat has difficulty in penetrating the closely knit structure of modern insulating materials.

Seating Display Shows Salient Quality Points

Cleverly constructed display racks covering both the new Clipper and Clipper DeLuxe model chairs are being furnished to all their dealers by Irwin Seating Company. These are said to be of great help to prospective purchasers inasmuch as the racks serve conveniently and neatly as exhibitions and demonstrating units for all parts of the chairs, an important element in showing the comfort and long-wearing qualities inherent in any model.

The rack is fitted with two complete individual chairs, the Clipper and Clipper DeLuxe, and the component parts of each are interestingly arranged about the models. On the Clipper side of the display, zigger-spring seat construction, the individual clipper back, center and arm are shown. For the Clipper DeLuxe, the flexsteel seat, decoratively embossed back, deluxe arm and center are pointed out.

The center part of the display shows elements common to both models, the new seat bucket, aisle light, upholstery clips and seat hinge lifter. In addition to the attractive upholstery treatments of the chair models exhibited, a book of upholstery fabrics is included at the base of the display. It is expected that these displays will serve very well to acquaint shoppers for theatre chairs with the salient features of these particular models.

New Sales Rules Make Lamp Values Attractive

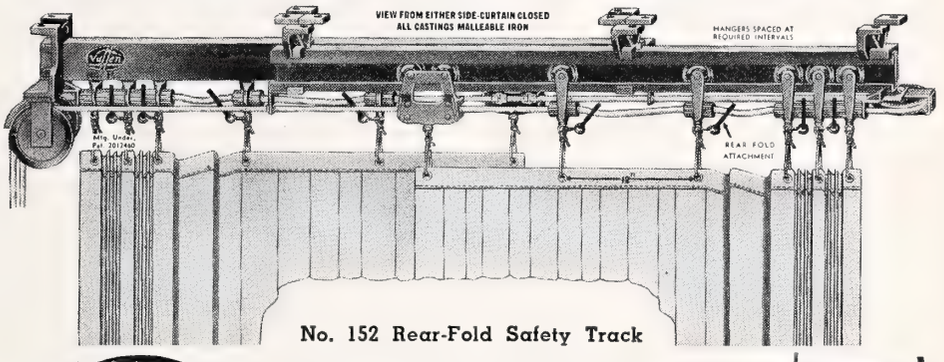
Material changes in the general structure of sales rules governing compensations to agents and discounts to purchasers of lamps, with substantial advantages to both trade and consumer, were recently announced by General Electric's lamp department at Nela Park, Cleveland, Ohio. The new rules went into effect March 1, 1941.

An outstanding feature of the new sales plan is the increase in discount to non-contract purchasers of lamps. On orders of $5.00 or more and amounting to less than $15.00, for delivery at one time and place, instead of the former discount of 15 per cent, the discount on such purchases now is 20 per cent. Purchases of more than $15.00, or in standard package lots, entitle the purchaser to a 25 per cent discount. It is believed that this inducement to customers without purchase contracts will greatly increase counter customer business and the size of such orders.

Under the new sales rules there are also changes in bases for Form E contract purchasers. Result of this is better prices than before for many Form E customers. The lowest Form E is for those using a minimum of $300 net in lamps per year.

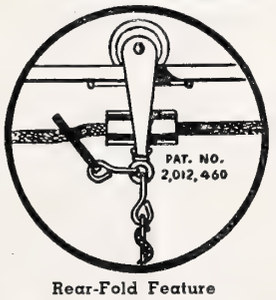
Also favorably affected by the new sales rules are the retail agents of lamps. Annual sales bases have been reduced. Present retail agency compensations, however, have been maintained. Formerly, a $500 A agent was required to sell $704.22 worth of lamps at list. Now, on his new $300 basis, this same agent is entitled to the same compensation, although required to show only $422.54 in list sales. The basic result of these changes, in effect, is a lowering of the price of G-E lamps to a great number of consumers.

The lamp market, it was pointed out in the announcement, is a rapidly expanding one. One of the reasons for the increased demand for lamps is the repeated reduction in the price of the product coupled with the fair and equitable compensations that have been maintained. On January 1, G. E. made another reduction in the list prices of many popular lamp types. It is believed that the new sales plan, which became effective March 1, will make the lamp business even more attractive to the trade than before.



Candy Business Develops Into a Good Side-Line

After installing a candy case in his lobby in December, Milton DuBose of the Majestic Theatre at Cotulla, Texas, found his customers so responsive to the "sweets" that he decided to rent a building next door and install a soda fountain, ice cream cabinet and put in a line of cigarettes and tobaccos. With a pretty girl in charge, he is now making money out of this side-line.



At a school matinee on opening day, DuBose had the school children suggest names for the new business, offering a cash prize for the best, and then left the selection to a popular vote of the children. Now the business has an appropriate name —"The Sugar Bowl"—a nice sign presented by the Coca-Cola people, and a ready-made business from the school children who feel a real interest in the business.

SPRING brings thoughts of general house-cleaning and renovation to all of us. From long association, the idea of making a clean sweep to greet this radical change of seasons certainly must not be overlooked by the owner or manager of a theatre. His patrons have house-cleaning foremost in mind and at no time are they more critical of appearance in any place they visit—including the spots where they seek entertainment—than Springtime.

Carpet undoubtedly has suffered greatly during the slushy and messy winter season, and it is our purpose now to suggest that it be examined closely and given attention as to its appearance and condition at this time of year. It just simply isn't possible to keep all the dust, grime and soot out of a theatre during winter, and the grinding process no doubt has left once luxurious carpeting in a much less than its original beautiful status.

Even daily cleaning may not have removed completely the badly soiled spots which result from winter's wear on furnishings of this sort. And these spots, like diseased parts of the body, have a disgusting way of spreading if not given attention at the beginning, when indeed they are easiest to eradicate.

For use on heavy twist pile carpets, a special semi-moist cleaning powder and attachments for the machine are recommended. The powder is first distributed over and worked into the pile by the machine and then removed by a vacuum process. The remarkable results attained by both methods are plainly evident in these pictures. (Both photos courtesy of The von Schrader Company).

These luxurious carpets with which most theatres are now equipped and which represent a sizeable investment in any case undeniably deserve the best of care. Both to preserve their beauty as it appeared when they were first installed and to insure their long wear, an important consideration whether they were the highest priced quality or a lesser grade, carpet maintenance at all times is a primary consideration.

Factory Suggestions

We can only suggest that the owner of carpeting follow closely the suggestions for proper maintenance made by the manufacturers of the material. Inasmuch as carpet is a perishable commodity, its manufacturers are anxious to instruct purchasers as to the safe and proper methods of keeping it in best quality and appearance. It is to their advantage as well as the theatre owner's to have their carpet creation make its finest possible appearance in such a very public gathering place, since the theatres can well serve as an exhibition place and testing laboratory for the beauty and long-wearing qualities of the carpet installed therein.

For theatres, known to be among the heavily trafficked consumers of carpets, manufacturers will recommend very frequent, if not daily, use of the vacuum cleaner for removing the dust and dirt which is brought in and ground into the floor covering by the feet of patrons. This is perhaps the only way to control the grit nuisance, which if neglected will eventually cut through to the back fabric of any carpet. Frequent removal of dust and grit will almost entirely eliminate this problem.

The suction cleaner used regularly prevents the formation of much soilage since surface dust does not have an opportunity to work its way deeply into the fabric. Any slush or messiness inadvertently deposited on carpeting and then left to dry also is removed by the vacuum before it will have worked into the pile.

Carpet cleaning on the floor is now possible through the use of a "shampoo" principle. The deterging machine (above) for this purpose is electrical and automatic, using a dry soapless lather, scrubbing the carpet clean but not wetting it appreciably.

Mussiness Controlled

For quick pick-ups, such things as spilled popcorn, candy, bits of paper and numerous other items which will be found on the floor during program presentations, handy carpet sweepers are recommended. There will be no disturbance to patrons, and the device will hastily remove all traces of mussiness before it can be ground into the carpet.

Then for the spots and stains which seem to be unavoidable in floor coverings wherever the public congregates, carpet manufacturers will recommend immediate attention with whatever type of spot remover the case may warrant. There will be oil and tar stains brought in from the streets; candy and grease spots; tobacco spots and cigarette burns, each of which should be given immediate attention for prompt removal. Efficient dry-cleaning spot removers should be kept on hand at all times for just such emergencies.

. . . All of which might lead one to believe that carpet maintenance is a hard job and a somewhat thankless one inasmuch as original beauty cannot possibly be retained under the heavy traffic con-

INFORMATION

Readers who desire special information or advice on the selection, application or care of theatre carpets are invited to communicate with Helen Kent in care of The Modern Theatre section, 332 S. ditions found in a theatre. But theatre carpet as it is constructed and designed today can take a lot of punishment and come up looking fine. Despite the hardest wear and the fact that it is comparatively perishable, many carpet installations in theatres have been known to give good service and retain their beauty of appearance for as many as ten years or more under the heaviest of traffic. But you may be sure that in such instances the carpet was of highest quality and properly cleaned and maintained at all times.

In the life of almost every theatre carpet, there will come a time when the owner will examine his floor covering closely, find it still in good wearing condition and with a life expectancy of many more years; but it will be dark and dingy in appearance, perhaps several shades of color different from what it was when installed and with spottiness at points of greatest traffic. He will then ponder the question of complete dry cleaning, knowing full well that this is the only way in which original beauty can be even nearly approached.

Complete dry cleaning of a theatre's carpet, however, entails removal from the floor and resultant inconvenience to patrons, if not actual closing of the house for a day or two. Usually, the theatre owner will give the subject serious thought—and then decide to do nothing about it, or at least put it off for awhile. Thus the carpet remains in an unhealthy condition, neglected in appearance, and gradually getting worse—actually shortening the life expectancy of the installation.

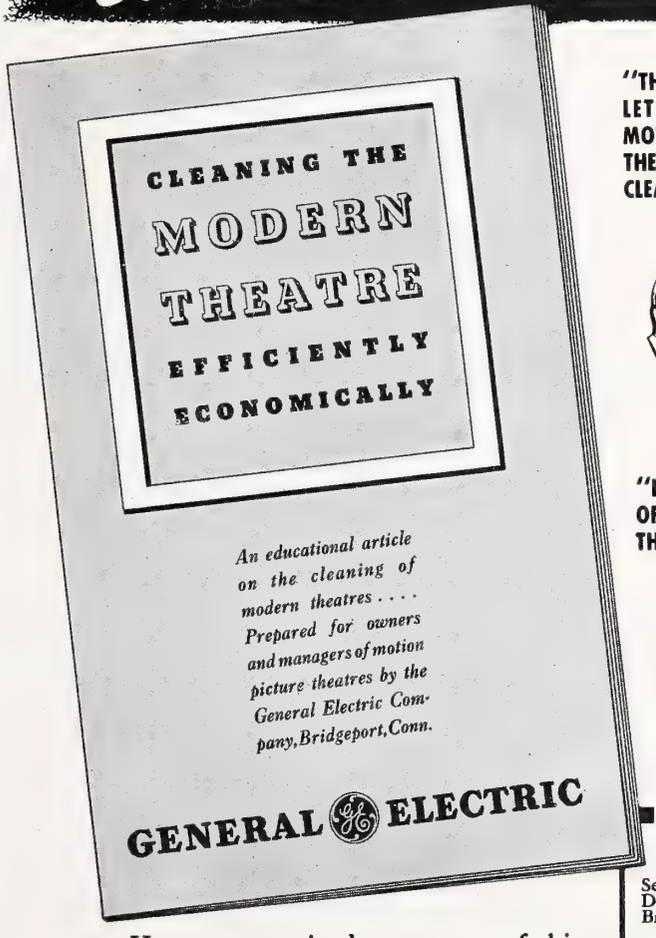
Cleaning Intermediary

Rather than allow this latter to occur, the theatre owner should not throw up his hands or disregard the situation entirely. As a matter of fact, there is an intermediary between daily cleaning with the vacuum and complete dry cleaning of carpet which entails removal from the theatre. This is the new and efficient method of dry cleaning rugs and carpets right on the floor, leaving the floor covering dry and ready for use within an hour or so after cleaning.

There are many advantages in this type of carpet cleaning for the theatre inasmuch as the work can be done after closing hours without removing the floor covering. This new beauty treatment for carpets can most readily be compared with a shampoo, since the carpet is first cleansed and then dried. The saving in time also becomes a saving in money.

The deterging machine which accomplishes the cleaning operation is electrical and automatic. It uses a dry soapless lather, scrubbing the carpet clean but not wetting it appreciably. The suds are immediately removed from the carpet by the machine without any extra operation by a powerful vacuum. The machine is portable and easily moved over the surface of the carpet. The method has been used successfully in many large hotels, by railroads and in the United States Government buildings as well as in theatres.

Automatic Operation



For use on the new twist pile carpets, a special cleaning product together with an attachment for the machine is recommended. This is a semi-moist powder developed especially for use on heavy pile carpeting. The powder is first distributed over and worked into the pile by the machine and then removed by a vacuum process. This method also offers many advantages for theatre use inasmuch as there is no moisture in cleaning whatsoever. This is an immediate operation.

The remarkable results attained by the dry cleaning "on the floor" method are almost unbelievable if they are not seen. Many shades of color differences will be noted immediately in a carpet being so treated, and the original lustre is restored to a startling degree. Because of the absence of moisture, the operation is harmless to the carpeting and the danger of shrinkage or fading is said to be absolutely avoided.

Carpets maintained by the methods outlined above, from frequent vacuuming to remove dust and dirt, mussiness removal by sweeper, spot eradication by prompt attention with the proper cleaners, to shampooing right on the floor, will remain good looking much longer and a source of pride to the owner. And they will last much longer too, which from the viewpoint of sound investment is a really important consideration.

An air of freshness and newness will be brought into the theatre that is redecorated at this time of year. It will pay to keep pace with the redecoration and house-cleaning activities of your patrons.

PRACTICAL DISCUSSIONS ON MODERN PROJECTION AND SOUND PRACTICES

The Importance of Keeping Step with All Improvements

THIS department, devoted as it is to practical discussions on modern projection and sound practices, has never undertaken the functions of a projectionist's manual, with intent to cover and re-cover the fundamentals of a subject with which most projectionists and theatre managers are now entirely familiar or perhaps not interested.

We have always thought, and still believe, that space herein can be devoted more advantageously to all concerned by preaching the practical gospel of Better Projection to theatre owners and managers, rather than to trouble our readers with too much technical research or mere trivia involved in the routine operation and maintenance of the most important parts of a theatre's equipment.

Complaints Classified

In a steadily increasing number of responses to our "Have You a Problem?" offer to be of help to our readers, we have made a most significant discovery that most problems thus presented are the direct result of one or more of five general conditions existent at the source. We set them out in the following order of frequency:

(1) Out-moded equipment,
(2) Under-capacity equipment,
(3) Improper adjustments,
(4) Careless maintenance,
(5) Operative tinkering.

In class of inquiry No. 1, we find the most trouble. Owners and operators find it impossible to get screen results from out-dated and badly worn equipment (both sound and projection or one of either) which they have themselves observed is not up to the standard being set by other and more efficiently equipped houses. Invariably, the correct answer to all such complaints is "replace your present equipment with the latest models which are designed to reproduce the photography and recording of today's moving picture output." To try to patch up or improve upon or otherwise adapt equipment of ancient vintage in most cases merely prolongs the agony and expense. So why not be frank about it? We can see no point in further encouraging patched-up equipment when so much depends upon the proper exhibition of motion pictures today.

Problems in class of inquiry No. 2 are likewise correctable only by the replacement of inadequate elements with new ones of a size and capacity required for what is expected of them. An under-capacity generator, rectifier, amplifier, speaker system, arc lamp or some other worn-out or over-worked element is a common complaint among theatre owners who have trouble in bringing their presentations up to par. The screen, having lost its original reflective quality is no longer up to its duty. The projection lenses or the mirror reflectors may have lost their capacity due to the ravages of time and over-use. Replacement is the only honest advice to be given in such cases, plus a precaution to allow extra capacity and the quality necessary to properly present the pictures of today and those of tomorrow when the replacement is being made. And it is well to be reminded that the newest devices are not necessarily less economical in operation than the old ones. Generally they are money-savers.

Mal-Adjustments

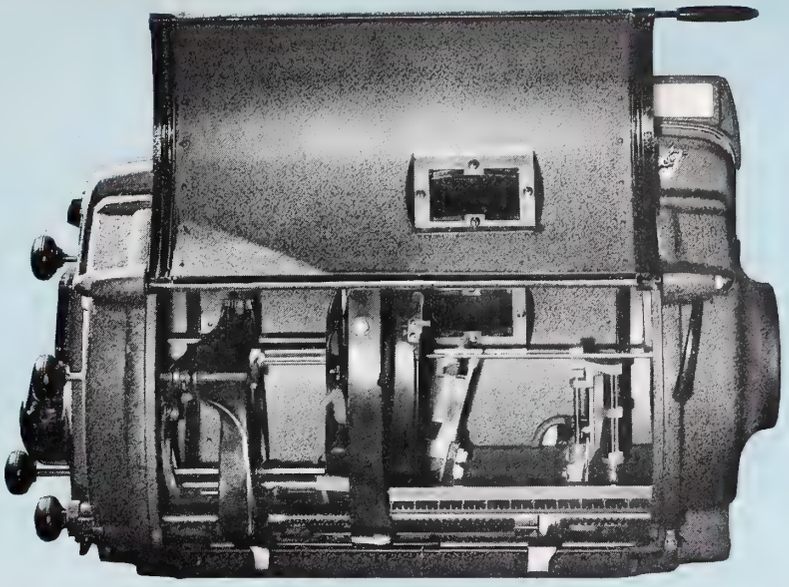
Improper adjustments in the equipment complained of frequently in the class of inquiry No. 3 is somewhat more easily consolable in offering advice. Such cases may have arisen from improper adjustments at the time of installation or may have developed later as a result of several causes. They may be overcome by simple regulation, or it might be necessary to have an experienced service man call for a complete tune-up of the entire system. But there can be so many contributing causes under the heading of mal-adjustment in both projection and sound trouble that it is only by miracle that such problems can be solved by mail. Consequently, we discourage the attempt to effect a complete cure by correspondence unless the symptoms clearly indicate and locate the cause of the ailment.

Careless maintenance (No. 4) is reproached in this department with unrelenting regularity. Yet we shall not undertake the duties of an inspector to forcefully invade the privacy of your projection rooms and point out in detail the detrimental effects and misdeeds of those in charge. We prefer to believe that the qualified projectionist needs no great amount of preaching or teaching in relation to the care of his equipment and the condition of his work-room. If he is capable, he needs no coaching except that which comes logically from alert theatre management. If he is careless about the operation and upkeep of his equipment, then the projectionist should be replaced.

As to the cause of inquiry No. 5—operative tinkering—there is always with us the type of mechanical genius who is not content to let well enough alone. The fellow who knows more about the machinery he operates than the man who made it is continually popping up in inquiries received by the Clinic. We dislike to discourage worthy initiative, but the fellow who continues to tear apart and tinker with modern projection equipment and then calls for help when trouble crops out receives little encouragement or sympathy from this department. Invention is wonderful for progress and we have no doubt that men who practically live with equipment must have ideas for improvement laudably to be encouraged in the interest of better projection. Yet, it is a matter of record that too much trouble comes from experimental tinkering with projection and sound equipment after it leaves the factory.

Responsibilities

In thus classifying the customary causes of complaint handled by the Clinic, we have in mind impressing our readers with the importance of cooperation at the users' end of the line. When equipment of any sort fails, in the opinion of the owner or his operator, to come up to the standard of operation expected, it is always easy to complain either to the manufacturer who made it, the dealer who sold and installed it, or to outsiders. Often such complaints are well justified; but in any case it would be best to be sure that the trouble is not due to one of the foregoing contributing causes that come under the head of management responsibility.



The modern projection system and its contemporary and closely related sound reproducing system are now available in a range of models priced to suit the present requirements of every size of theatre. And since it is obvious that moving picture patrons now demand the same quality of presentation in the small theatre as in the large one, there is really no good excuse for any theatre's having to suffer in comparison with others on this vital point of operation.

The Clinic will continue to advocate all

Lens Calibration Is Suggested by Council

Darryl F. Zanuck, chairman of the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, recently requested the producing companies' approval to the adoption of a standard method of lens calibration.

A study just completed by the Council has demonstrated an exceedingly large variation in the calibration of lenses employed on studio production cameras, in consequence of which picture quality has suffered, and retakes, with a resultant increase in costs, have been necessary.

In a communication to the studio heads, Mr. Zanuck stated the Research Council's opinion that the adoption of an arbitrary standard of lens calibration, with an immediate recalibration of all lenses now employed on production cameras, would completely eliminate this difficulty at its source at a comparatively small cost.

A standard of lens calibration has already been established at one of the major studios, and has proved to be very practical and of definite economical value. Under this standard, lenses are interchangeable and there is never a question on the part of any cameraman working in that studio regarding the calibration of any lenses when changing from one lens to another. If approved by the producing company heads, the Council plans to extend this standard lens calibration to all studios.

This recommendation results from a study of lens calibration made by the Research Council's Basic Optical Committee, under the chairmanship of Dr. Burton F. Miller, and including in its membership William Draper, John Fulton, Grover Laube, John Livadary, Wilbur Silvertooth and W. B. Slaughter, Jr.

SCREEN LIGHT

Suprex carbons do cost more than ordinary carbons—but they provide much more light, which is the link that completes what the theatre is selling—a good picture on the screen.

Here is a simple way to understand why a higher priced and faster burning carbon may be far more economical. Suppose the carbon arc light had never been invented and you had to produce light by burning oil. Now suppose that somebody invented a wick that would feed the oil several times as fast as other wicks and burn it more efficiently so that the same sized lamp would give two or three times as much light.

Wouldn't you gladly pay two or three times as much for the new wick? Of course you would. What you must have is the light. And you know it well.

Suprex carbons are consumed faster than old style low intensity carbons but they make more light from the same amount of power. You get light in bigger quantity at far less cost per unit.

Insulation materials are just as important for summer air conditioning as they are for winter warmth. They keep the heat out in summer as effectively as they keep it in during the winter.

● Moderate sized theatres have long realized the hopelessness of getting a good picture on the screen with prevailing dense black and white films when using the dim low intensity lamp. It remained for Strong to develop a lamp of intermediate capacity high intensity which would project twice as much light and at a cost within the means of these theatres.

● Satisfactory projection of colored pictures with the muddy yellow light of the low intensity has been just as impossible. The required brilliance and sparkling snow-white light of the high intensity arc had been denied these theatres by prohibitive operating costs. The Strong one Kilowatt Utility made possible the correct reproduction of Technicolor.

● Although this new Strong Utility intermediate high intensity lamp projects twice as much light as is possible with any low intensity lamp, the increased combined current and carbon cost is less than 2c an hour. Your Independent Theatre Supply Dealer will gladly demonstrate this new marvel of efficiency in your theatre without obligation. Call him today.

Today—A Newsreel Theatre With Numerous Innovations

veneer in a horizontal grain which bespeaks modernity. The carpet, a rough-textured type with flowing directional lines made a part of the design, is a fitting basis upon which the modern wall settees in vertically striped leatherette are placed. Indirect ceiling lighting with a few auxiliary cove units serves to illuminate this room with a pleasing glow.

At the far end of the foyer an impressive mural immediately dominates the attention of entering patrons. This mural was created by Miss Pat O'Brien, a well known young Chicago artist, who has done a number of distinguished murals for hotels and industrial firms. It sets the scene smartly for proper consumption of newsreel entertainment within the house. Before this mural a stunning treatment in the form of a wall-box for growing plants was placed. This also serves artfully to conceal the direct lighting of the mural.

Comfort Prime Element

The auditorium of this intimate theatre seats only 325 persons, but they are ensconced in comfort, convenience and atmospheric unity. Push-back chairs padded with foamed rubber on seats, backs and arm-rests were installed and they were placed unusually far apart for added convenience of patrons. Scientific air conditioning is another prime element of comfort in this small auditorium, and acoustically treated walls serve to assure the finest sound reception at all points.

Practically the only illumination and color treatment of the auditorium comes from the reflected glow of "black light" on phosphorescent murals on the sidewalls. Several supplementing fixtures in the ceiling, however, are modern in design and entirely efficient for the complete illumination of this small auditorium.

The interesting fluorescent murals depicting certain newsreel standbys such as sports and human interest items were conceived by John Pratt, well known Chicago artist, who first came to prominence with his costume designs for the much lauded and publicized "Hot Mikado" a few years ago. The murals and certain definite contours which flank the unadorned screen of this theatre are the only decorative factors in the auditorium, aside from colorful chair upholstery and carpet.

Projection and sound equipment and accessories in "Today" of course are of the latest design and production. Inasmuch as newsreel subjects often make greater than ordinary demands upon the mechanical presentation in a theatre, this provision was absolutely essential, to assure complete satisfaction of patrons who might otherwise be most critical of the program.

Design for Relaxation

The theatre has a most inviting lounge and rest rooms. These rooms are located downstairs, where space was not at a premium. The lounge is equipped with inviting settees upholstered in smartly tailored leather. Reading lamps and magazines are provided as well as smoking accessories. A novel innovation is the decorative treatment of the walls in the lounge. An unusual "postermontage" is featured here. It is composed of colorful one- and three-sheet posters of celebrities and famous news events finished with a coat of transparent lacquer for wearability and sheen. It is planned to change the posters frequently to preserve timeliness.

The ultra-modern restrooms are finished in structural glass in black and white with red trimmings, very modern and gleaming with the appearance of cleanliness and sanitation. Modern fixtures in these rooms are innovations in themselves. Chief among them are electric hand driers made to conform perfectly with the walls and plumbing fixtures in design and finish. Another modern-to-the-minute provision is the installation of ultra-violet ray self-sterilizing toilet seats for the complete protection and peace of mind of patrons.

And now a word on the staff of this unusual small theatre. Except for Manager John Luebbing, the staff is all-feminine and all-brunette. Statuesque and beautiful brunettes were selected through a city-wide contest conducted by "Today." The judging was based on intelligence and personality tests, appearance, poise, voice and general information. Richard Beck claims "Today" now has the most intelligent staff of girls in the country.

The cashiers are called "Treasurers"; the usherettes, "Directresses." Not only do they serve in regulation capacities, but they are expected to be a source of information to patrons, answering questions on current events and directing patrons in and about Chicago. The girls were awarded year's contracts at wages 20 per cent higher than average, and a multiple-management profit-sharing plan is also being considered for them. They also handle a free package checking service which is available to anyone shopping or lunching in the Loop, whether or not he or she is a patron of the theatre.

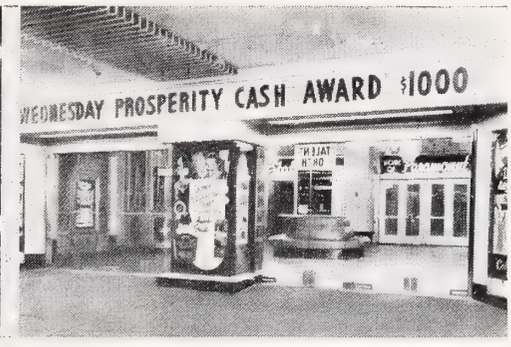
NOVELTY IN POLICY



Even in the program policy of this newsreel theatre innovations are to be found. The regulation one-hour program consisting of about thirty-five minutes of news with the remainder including short subjects, selected novelties and humor is enhanced by the fact that this is the only theatre in Chicago to which newsreels are regularly shipped by air express direct from the editorial offices of New York newsreel companies. The program changes weekly, but "spot news" and unusual events are air-expressed and shown in the theatres as they are received.

A bit of humor is involved in a couple of innovations suggested by David Chapman but not passed by Richard Beck. Who knows but that they may yet be included in future plans? They were: Tickets to be purveyed in the form of especially designed chewing gum. Patrons were to give the wrappers to the door-girl and chew the stub. Mr. Beck vetoed this plan on the grounds that it was too sticky. Collapsible side-arms for seats also were suggested, in the thought that theatre parties might put down the dividers and create a sort of davenport for their own group. This plan was vetoed on the grounds that it might corner the sweetheart trade and take business away from the parks.

"Today" is a creation of our time's progress and innovation with an eye to the future. It is novel in scope and application of all that modern materials and theatre equipment provide, but its outstanding feature is functionalism and practicability. Can more be desired in a modern theatre?

FRONT MODERNIZATION VIA THE GLASS ROUTE

WHERE formerly the Orpheum Theatre at Omaha, Nebraska, was not particularly attractive to passersby, with too much unrelated display and not enough of the elements of beauty, it is now, thanks to modernization, a distinctive example of what the modern theatre facade should be.

A new marquee with much more space for legible display in multi-size silhouette letters on a background of brilliantly illuminated white glass and name-signs of a more impressive type do a much better job of exploiting both the house and its program. Integrated display frames also lend greater dignity than those which formerly cluttered the entrance.

The facade itself was faced with gleaming structural glass in an ivory tone, based and trimmed with a wine color and extruded metal. The modern provision of heavy plate glass doors at the entrance to this house is a unique treatment. These are of an especially produced type of glass which is so strong that it needs no supporting members. Save for metal push-bars and hinges, the doors present an unbroken expanse of clear crystal glass through which the interior of the house may be viewed perfectly.

This sparkling installation with its high illumination and many reflective surfaces is indeed a modern accomplishment in smart application of contemporary industry's creations for functional theatre construction. (Photos courtesy Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company).

AIR CONDITIONING

DEVOTED TO A BETTER UNDERSTANDING OF TEMPERATURE CONTROL IN THEATRES

Proper Control is the Crux of an Air Conditioning Plant

by GORDON H. SIMMONS

SPEAKING of "control" in general terms, I am constrained to exhort you gentlemen to exercise better control over yourselves when you select air conditioning systems for your theatres. If more of you would practice self-control in the purchase of your equipment, proper control of the temperature in your theatres would not be such an ever-recurring problem.

Control yourselves, gentlemen! There's a good idea for you and I'll be glad to send a wiring diagram and complete instructions to anybody who really wants to be self-controlled and confident in the purchase of an air conditioning system.

With yourself under proper restraint you may then proceed more intelligently and safely, and certainly more economically, in securing an efficient and coordinated control of all the vital mechanical elements of the air conditioning system you now have—or the new one you are about to acquire. Self-control comes first in my air conditioning curriculum.

Mechanical Control

The main spring of control for any air conditioning system is, of course, the thermostat. But the other dependent control elements which are actuated by the thermostat vary with the kind of job you have.

A different kind of controller is needed for a steam boiler, a hot water boiler, a warm air furnace; and even controls used on stokers are different from oil burner controls. Such controls cannot be interchanged.

Entirely different wiring diagrams are needed for refrigeration compressors, deep well pumps, and even a cold water supply. Different again if you use ice for air conditioning. And many of you do.

But in all cases, the same kind of damper motor is generally used for regulating fresh air and recirculated air supply. And in all cases this item of control equipment should be used for best results.

Now you can buy control gadgets that are the very best of their kind. But a control system is something built into the wiring diagram. If it is good, your apparatus will have more pep. But it cannot be good unless the guy who makes the wiring diagram knows what you have, or are going to install, in the way of equipment, because it is the equipment to be controlled and not just the controls.

Now you can have a wiring diagram and a box full of control parts but still you'll be "up in the air" unless the diagram shows exactly where each control, by name and number, must be placed. I believe in exactness, so I try to give explicit instruction and dimensions when called upon to do so.

Even a fairly simple temperature control system looks pretty much like a radio hook-up, but the local electrician is usually competent if he is given the kind of diagram he understands. There's no use for you to even try to figure it out unless you are likewise an informed electrician. I happen to be one, which may account for my being at intervals so "shocking" to my readers.

Wherefore the Shock

A majority of the shocking results obtained from theatre air conditioning are due to the controls not functioning properly because of incorrect hook-up. In such cases, a re-connection of elements is all that is needed.

I have spent as much as $1,000 for controls on a large theatre job, and this item of cost is customarily the last one that causes any complaints. Of course smaller theatres don't require such an investment in controls, but no theatre can get by with a $15.00 thermostat alone, if a better grade result is desired.

It all depends on whether you want to control the inside of your theatre to a fixed and comfortable condition regardless of outside weather and in spite of varying crowds. That you must decide first.

A thermostat alone can operate your system by the "start-and-stop" method. But you don't drive your automobile that way, do you? You vary its speed in accordance with how you feel and whether or not you see a cop in the offing. But even if no cop were in sight, you wouldn't come to a dead stop at every street intersection.

Now your air conditioning system for best operation must have "tentacles" to take a "feel" of the outside weather and the inside crowd. And then translate the "feelings by the tentacles" into appropriate automatic action.

The "start-and-stop" method can make the house alternately too warm and too cold—practically never a happy medium, which is what's wanted. If the system is hand-adjusted for a modest crowd and a large crowd unexpectedly comes in, the place can become stuffy before you can think of making proper hand adjustments.

When I go to a theatre and become interested in the picture, the while forgetting all about the inside weather, I may actually forget about that inside temperature for as long as thirty minutes or maybe even longer. But finally there comes a time when I am made aware of the atmosphere, either because the place gradually becomes stuffy and oppressive or perhaps because the heating system shuts down automatically and I become too cold.

Causes of Discomfort

During the summer months, I can sit in certain theatres for as long as an hour and be quite comfortable. But bye and bye, the humidity builds up and I begin to get restless and start squirming in my seat even before I become aware of the cause of it. If I were a layman and didn't know about air conditioning, I'd probably never get wise to what causes my discomfort.

I have placed recording instruments in many a theatre and made a graphic chart of what happens from opening time to time of closing. Almost invariably the summer air conditioning starts up and gives a nice result. But with a crowd and before closing time, the result slowly builds up to a condition that is not so nice—even horrible in some instances.

In one instance where I had air conditioned the house a year before, and was making a return visit (somehow I can

Information, Please

We, meaning the Editor and me, want to know about your air conditioning problems, in order to better serve in helping you and others to solve them. If you're in trouble, or want to avoid it; if you're confused or otherwise undecided on what to do about this or that, just sit right down and write, telling us what's troubling you. Give us full facts about your theatre—seating capacity, room dimensions, equipment, air outlets, blower sizes, etc. NO CHARGE FOR ADVICE. Address THE MODERN THEATRE, 332 S. always come back) to the theatre owner, I asked several patrons, who were strangers to me, "how they liked the theatre's air conditioning?" Never having seen me before nor suspecting that I had anything to do with the job, they said: "Conditions during the first performance are good. But when we go to the second show, we can tell what the people attending the first show had for supper. Sometimes it's garlic!"

Now such conditions cannot be controlled by a mere thermostat because the stench of garlic does not register on a thermostat. Nevertheless, it is possible to proportionately open those fresh-air dampers, depending upon the size of the crowd in the house, and this is a desirable thing to do. (Just a part of the "radio hook-up" hereinbefore suggested.)

Many times, offensive lingering odors can be controlled this way, although there are also other and more expensive means of doing it. Such for instance, as using special apparatus employing activated carbon, in the main air supply duct.

Affects Business

The "start-and-stop" method of controlling your heating, ventilating and air conditioning system may be one of the principal reasons for the "start-and stop" attendance at your theatre. It could be. If a really outstanding picture comes to town, the crowd will turn out in spite of bad air conditions. But these unholy air conditions are no inducement for the crowd to sit through a medium grade picture or maybe a double feature.

When a real hot day hits Milwaukee, I usually hie me to an air conditioned tavern that is under proper control. And when the control slips, I order up another beaker of the golden brew. Usually it slips so many times that by the time I am ready to leave I have aboard quite a cargo and am liable to do some plain and fancy side slipping myself.

Under such conditions, I spend a nickel and phone for a cop. He drives me home and takes a receipt from the wife. This is a free service offered by the Milwaukee police force, and it explains the reason for our feeling and loudly proclaiming that our police force is "one of the finest."

Of course, I occasionally pay for a ticket handed out by them, and it's always more than four bits, too. Such as for parking overtime, alongside of a fire

EVEN THE DOG HOUSE

And now we have the air conditioned dog house. It seems that Milton Worth, fire truck driver in Deal, New Jersey, has spent $65.00 and three weeks of his spare time building the canine castle for his pair of hounds. Features of the house include plate glass windows with eastern and northern exposure, a screened ventilator tower, walls insulated with rock wool, asbestos shingles and a porch. The windows can be taken out in summer and replaced with screens and venetian blinds, according to Worth. Can he have had an ulterior motive? Move over Fido and Rover.

Simmons' Q & A Corner

Problems presented herein are bona fide and are not imaginary concoctions for the purpose of misrepresenting reader interest. Original signed letters are on file for examination, subject to the approval of correspondents.

Coming from a theatre man whom experience has endowed with special training on electrical hook-up, the following letter was selected from the files, because of its peculiar relationship to the subject chosen for discussion in this issue—controls. The point is that (paraphrasing Bill Shakespeare) "The Plan's the thing, etc." But read:

His Letter: "Your section in Boxoffice has always been of great interest to me. Your March 1st masterpiece is the one that made a regular grand slam and rushed my plans to a completion that was being accumulated since 1938.

"The information we are looking for may come under your advertisement in the back of Boxoffice, so please let us know how much in order that we may check first.

"My work for the past ten years has been jack-of-all-trades that has been useful in this work and the ten years installing for the Western Electric in telephone exchanges. This is to let you know who will do most of the work and your advice will be followed to the letter.

"The equipment we have now that we would like to re-use: Furnace is steam and rated 900 sq. ft. radiation, fired with silent automatic oil burner. Blower 16 in., rated capacity by the manufacturer 5,000 cu. ft., purchased in 1938, present motor ¾ h. p. capacitor type. Radiation in the office and lobby is ample with present radiators. Auditorium radiators were all moved to the air conditioning room and nearly fill it up. (This we want to replace.) One 1¼ in. motor-driven steam valve with associated thermostat controls this bank of radiators. (Installed in 1938.) Automatic motor starter 110-220 volt for up to 3 h. p. (New 1939.) Available water supply, cold water spring in the furnace room, temperature tests were 46 and 52 degrees F. (52 was in the summer.)

"We would like to have a sketch that would fit our needs and contain the following: Sketch new duct system. Size, make of dampers, damper motor, damper controls and diffusers. Size and make of filters. Size and make of cooling and heating unit. Blower size and make (also your opinion on adding to the present or replacing with a new blower.) You may add humidifier to the sketch for winter. Floor space available. (See Floor Plan Back of Screen Section CC.) All that space shown as air conditioning room less chimney. The new ducts may start at the top of the present and go to the floor if necessary. The space under roof is also accessible.

"Your recommendation of floor ventilators using the hollow walls and the roof vent. Also the size and make of the automatic shutters for these vents to keep cold air from coming into the auditorium when the blower is not inhaling outside air.

"Now here is the tight spot. We will have to install this equipment as the cash comes in and will need your plans to keep from making more mistakes. This summer we will remove the bulky radiators, change the ducts, add to the blowers and install filters. This fall heating coils will be added. By spring a water pump will be installed for the cooling. The approximate cost of each item will help us, and as I am an electrical contractor some of the items may be obtained through jobbers.

"Your work must be very interesting and I wish I had the requirements and the opportunity to work up to be one of your lieutenants.—E. K."

My Answer: "Many thanks for your kind remarks in the first paragraph of your letter. But if you play bridge, perhaps I'd better come up and see you.

"Am also glad to know that my advertisement in the back of Boxoffice is being read. And to find out from your initial letter "who" is going to do your air conditioning work. It's easy when you have a plan.

"I plan such work for many a theatre owner only to have most of them work like hell to cut corners or pull themselves up by their boot straps. So I sit back with my tongue in my cheek waiting for them to realize that a plan needs to be followed just the same as a system in a bridge game or anything else for that matter.

"When I make a plan, and if it is followed, mine is the responsibility; not theirs. If anything happens, I know what to do and do it. Am thoroughly familiar with the 'innate cussedness of inanimate objects,' but I am trying to locate the 'innate cussedness' in this theatre air conditioning situation about the almost universal failure to 'plan the work and then work the plan.'

"There is no hope for improvement of a bad state of affairs until this idea is adopted and consistently followed.

"Am glad to use you as a Guinea Pig. Follow the plan I will furnish and then write the Editor reporting results whatever they are. I think you can compare your job when finished with any others you have seen and have the satisfaction of knowing that it is as good as any and better than most. In fact, you might accidentally get an outstanding job. And there are very few of these.

"Now I will engineer your job for $50.00 which includes more than just making a plan. Consult me as you need to and as your work progresses. I'll lay it out in stages for you so that by next year you will have a complete job. Will save you some money too, as most of your equipment is usable.

"It is usual to mail half the fee as a retainer and the other half when plans are delivered. But if we have to wait 'until the cash comes in,' we'll just have to wait, that's all.—G. H. S."

Proper Control Is the Crux of a Theatre Conditioning System

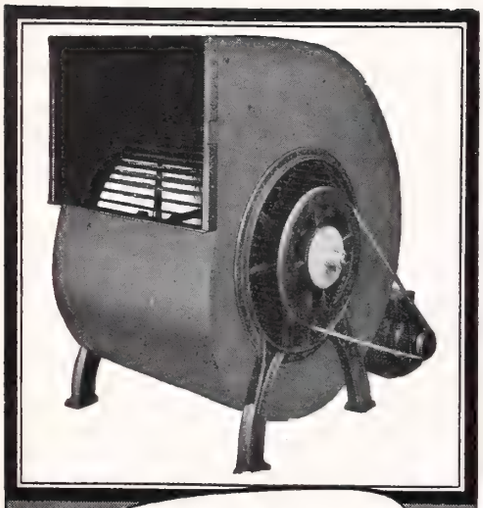
hydrant, in a parking zone or in front of a picture theatre where I do not belong. Even our tickets to the Policemen's Ball come higher than yours. But I don't buy my tickets from the Police Dept. with any degree of resignation or regret. I feel that because of personal service rendered, I get a run for my money.

This has been literally true. If a motor cycle cop starts after me, I usually try to run away and sometimes I succeed. But even when I am caught, I tell him what a swell police force we have and then he hasn't the heart to hand me a ticket.



But if I should ever become an air conditioning cop, nearly all of you theatre owners would get a ticket. The only way you might talk me out of the pinch would be your promise to install proper controls, properly hooked up. I then might let you off with a sharp reprimand for your past violations.

Now that Spring is in the air again, and since this is our "Spring Renovation" issue, let me urge you in closing to give some immediate attention to your air conditioning system. It, too, may need Spring Renovation in the interest of better boxoffice receipt regulation throughout the summer.

Huge Ice-Making Plant for Soldiers in P. R.

What is believed to be the world's largest ice-making plant using "Freon-12" refrigerant has been installed by Carrier Corporation, at Fort Buchanan, San Juan, Puerto Rico, to serve a cantonment of 15,000 men. The complete equipment for this installation was made in Syracuse and shipped to Puerto Rico.

The new "Freon-12" plant at Fort Buchanan will produce twenty tons of ice daily. It includes two 50 horsepower compressors and one evaporative condenser with brine coolers. In addition to this installation, the air conditioning firm has supplied four other 50 horsepower compressors for cold storage facilities in the same camp.

DRAMATIZATION OF AIR CONDITIONING IN MOVIE

THE world premiere of the new air conditioning movie "Weather by Carrier" was given recently by Carrier Corporation before a group of leading newspaper, magazine and business paper editors and publishers at the Jansen Suite in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York City.

Officials of the air conditioning company explained that the picture was the first industrial movie devoted entirely to the subject of air conditioning. Produced by Castle Films of New York, the picture was inspired by a lecture demonstration in the Carrier Igloo at the recent New York World's Fair.

The theme of the 15-minute movie is based on an educational lecture and demonstration which for the first time reduces the complicated subject of air conditioning to simple terms easily understood by the public. The picture shows goldfish living in a bowl of water squeezed from air saturated with humidity, canaries saved from perishing in a dust storm by a filter, and a graphic illustration of the heat given off by the body of the average human being. After the preview at the Stevens Hotel in Chicago, prints of the movie will be available for club, school, church and other educational uses, thus to reach the general public whose interest in the subject of air conditioning is known to be high at this time.

Temperature - Humidity Controls Are an Economy

The economy of automatic regulation of temperature is too well established to require much discussion. Heating plants, for instance, are designed to heat buildings to 70 degrees usually (theatres somewhat higher), when the outdoor temperature is at the "usual minimum" low point encountered in that particular locality.

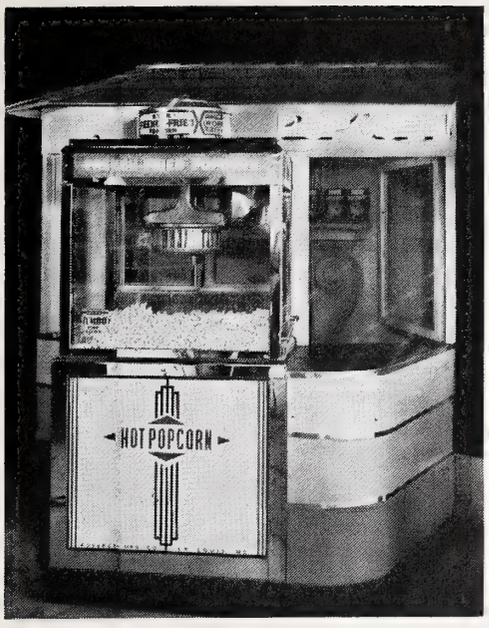
In the United States, these "minimum design temperatures" vary from about 20 degrees below zero to 25 degrees above zero. But the average outdoor temperature during the heating season in New York is 40 degrees, in Chicago 42 degrees, in Cincinnati 45 degrees, in the mountains of Colorado 35 degrees, and in San Francisco 50 degrees.

It is apparent that the maximum capacity of the heating plant is not required, except for relatively few days during the heating season. Since adequate temperature control apparatus prevents overheating, it is not unusual to find that fuel saving of 20 to 40 per cent may be had through the use of automatic temperature regulation equipment, properly applied. Similarly, the control of over-cooling is an economy measure.

Remember that every cent spent for Spring Renovation is merely an investment in boxoffice appeal which never yet has failed to pay dividends.

Sales Meetings Evoke Conditioning Progress

Throughout the months of March, April and May, the York Ice Machinery Corporation is holding a series of thirty-eight sales meetings for its branch and distributor organization throughout the country. The company's 1941 products are being exhibited and new sales policies discussed.



Ten separate meetings are being held in key cities on the subject of air conditioning; ten meetings on industrial refrigeration; ten meetings on commercial air conditioning, refrigerating and heating equipment.

These conferences are attended by representatives of the company's sales and distributor organizations in each territory. Members of the home office explain new equipment and new sales plans and policies for 1941.

Sales planning and sales promotion are the keynote of these meetings. Through descriptions of each product, its application, and ways and means of selling it are being presented by means of exhibits, new equipment displays, talking slide films, speeches and general discussions.

Among the items of new equipment presented are: The new "V/W" ammonia compressor; a new series of fractional horse power refrigerating units; the redesigned turbo-compressor system; and the redesigned large air conditioner.

Popcorn Promotion

With an unusual design created especially for the lobby of one of the Lucas & Jenkins Theatres where popcorn is sold, the modern popcorn machine is attractively combined with a miniature house from which the attendant can purvey this popular item in an unobtrusive yet inviting manner. A neon sign on a flasher heightens the eye-catching appeal of the house. (Photo courtesy Advance Manufacturing Co.)

Advantages of Modern Front Construction

The advantages of modern structural glasses, porcelains and plastics for theatre front construction are almost countless. In the first place, a modern, gleaming and colorful front is a theatre's best and most permanent advertisement. It lifts the theatre above all neighboring competition. With such a front, the building becomes distinctive, attractive, colorful and exclusive. It invariably increases customer traffic, steps up ticket sales and thus pays for itself in a relatively short time and continues endlessly to pay dividends.

Modern front construction materials have many use values which make them outstandingly applicable. They will not rust, discolor, fade and are quite resistant to scratching. They are as easy to clean as a plate glass window, thus reducing building maintenance costs. Such materials also afford insulating value and the design and color combination possibilities are almost endless.

Success or Failure of Air Conditioning

"Air Conditioning—Success or Failure?" is the title of a new folder issued by the Anemostat Corporation of America. Prepared for architects, engineers, contractors, and others concerned with the design of air conditioning systems, the booklet should also prove to be of interest to theatre owners.

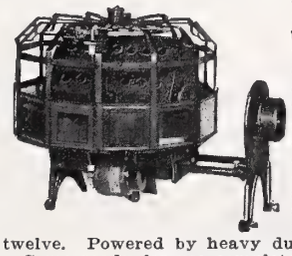
Success or failure of an air conditioning system, the booklet points out, depends upon draftless air distribution, equalization of temperatures, and the elimination of stale air pockets.

In support of this position the Heating, Ventilating and Air Conditioning Guide (1940 Edition) reads as follows: "Correct air distribution contributes as much or more to success of a forced air heating, ventilating, cooling, or air conditioning system as does any other single factor."

The new folder is printed in two colors and is profusely illustrated with photographs showing the architectural adaptability of the high velocity air diffusers.

Rubber Stair Nosing Resists Carpet Wear

Designed for use in clubs, theatres, hotels, steamships, churches, schools; in fact anywhere that safety and durability are prime considerations, rubber stair tread nosing is a most applicable accessory for stair carpeting installations.



Outstanding features of this safety item are: It can be installed without removing old carpet, thus giving additional years of wear to the present stair covering. White, or any other harmonious light color, serves as a marker in dimly lighted areas, thus reducing the hazards of tripping. The tread nosing can be used in conjunction with all types of resilient coverings. There is no inconvenience to customers during installation since it can be accomplished very easily and quickly after-hours.

Best Automatic Slide Projectors

Extensively used in theatre projection booths, theatre lobbies, and on rooftops with outdoor screens. The 500-watt model accommodates ten standard size (3¼"x 4") or smaller slides, the 1000 and 1500 watt models handle twelve. Powered by heavy duty motors.

Come ready for use completely equipped (except lamp bulb) with an easily focused mirror (which obtains maximum efficiency from the lamp source), approved cord and control switch, and any focus objective lens from 6" up to 36".

"Best" Hand Operated Slide Projectors also come in three sizes. See them at your dealers or write direct for literature.

Plastics Popular

Anyone with an eye for beauty these days is aware of new and interesting achievements in design. Architecture, furniture, interior decoration all give evidence that imagination has been stirred by new impulse. Fascinating things are being done that were never done before. What prompts this modern display of creative art? No single stimulus deserves all the credit certainly, but one of the foremost, beyond question, is the discovery of new possibilities in materials which modern industry makes available—the plastics, of which we have been hearing so much lately.

The physical characteristics of these chemically created materials are most interesting. They have high tensile strength but are light in weight. They are resilient and flexible, easily applicable to rounded surfaces. Tougher than hard wood but easier to saw or fit into place. Unaffected by water and able to stand great heat. But, most important of all, the processes of manufacture give plastics a glass-smooth finish in many colors and designs, making them ideal for interesting effects in the finest modern spirit.

A change in the color of lighting used throughout a theatre will effect marvelous decorative and atmospheric alterations. Try the cool colors, for instance, now that warm days are in the offing.

GROUND CREW . . . Back of every airplane pilot is a ground crew of men in grease-stained overalls.

There's very little glamour about these men. The public rarely sees them. Yet you couldn't get an airplane off the ground without them. That's how important they are.

Every industry has its ground crew that the public never sees. In your theatre it's the projection and sound, for without them you couldn't put a picture on the screen. That's how important they are.

Simplex Projection and Simplex Sound make the best ground crew for any theatre.

SIXTY YEARS OF PROGRESS

1941 marks our sixtieth year of progress in the field of carbon arc lighting. Through constant research and development great strides have been made in the efficiency and usefulness of the carbon arc. Continued progress is assured by the most modern laboratory and manufacturing facilities.

It pays to Investigate

● Theatre patronage and resultant profits are affected to an important degree by quality of projection light. Patrons favor those theatres where the projection is clear and sharp, where color features are shown in natural colors and where there is sufficient screen illumination to permit adequate general lighting.

If you are still using low intensity projection it will pay you to investigate the numerous advantages, such as efficiency of light production, brilliancy of light source, color quality of light, volume of screen light and economy of operation, made available to the smallest theatre by the new "One Kilowatt" high intensity arcs.

Mexico Adds to Laurels Garnered by "Rebecca"

Two more awards have been garnered by David O. Selznick's United Artists production, "Rebecca." El Universal, Mexico City newspaper, conducted a popularity contest in which the film was voted the most successful hit of the year, and UA named the outstanding company for releasing it. At the same time, Cinema Reporter, Mexican trade paper, gave "Rebecca" a diploma as the best picture of 1940.

Korda Slates "Illusions" As Next With Oberon

Alexander Korda's next production for United Artists, slated to roll March 31, has been titled "Illusions." Merle Oberon will star, with Julien Duvivier directing. Duvivier and L. Bus-Fekete wrote the script, and the leading male role has been assigned to Joseph Cotton, New York stage player, recently signed to a long-term contract by Korda.

Film Leaders Huddle With War Department Heads

A first-hand glimpse of the industry's efforts and cooperation in furthering national defense interests, was obtained by members of a war department party, including top-rank newsreel, photographic and radio executives, when they arrived here Tuesday for a one-day conference with film leaders. The visit came only a few days after word had been received from Washington, D. C., that the war department had officially accepted the first two army training films produced by the Academy's Research Council.

Visitors were headed by Lieut.-Col. Frank A. Allen jr., of the army's general staff and one of the directors of the army's bureau of public relations. Representing the industry at the conferences was Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-chairman of the motion picture production defense committee, who took the place of Y. Frank Freeman, chairman, now in the east. Program for the day included:

A private showing of Paramount's "I Wanted Wings," preceded by brief talks by Walter F. Wanger, Academy president, and Arthur Hornblow jr., who produced the film. This was followed by luncheon at the Warner studio, with H. M. Warner as host. Then the group was taken on the set of one of the army training films now in production at 20th Century-Fox, where Zanuck, Col. Nathan Levinson and Capt. Gordon S. Mitchell, Research Council manager, explained plans for future training film production. Tour was organized under personal orders from Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. Army chief of staff, and includes inspection of aircraft factories, flying fields, army posts and other defense units.

Raise Funds for Greece

With "Greek Week" officially getting underway March 25, to continue to April 2, theatres throughout the country are cooperating in an effort to raise funds for Greek war relief. A number of Hollywood players are making personal appearances in key cities, including Bette Davis, who went to Boston; Edward Arnold, Cleveland; Judy Garland, New York; Ruth Hussey, Detroit; Maureen O'Sullivan, Washington, and Walter Abel, St. Paul. Local committee includes Charles P. Skouras, Fox West Coast president; W. E. Calloway, Warner exchange manager; and Robert H. Poole, executive director of the Independent Theatre Owners of So. Calif. and Ariz.

Whitney Confers With Thomson

John Hay Whitney, chairman of the motion picture division of the Committee for Commercial and Cultural Relations Between American Republics, spent several days here in conference with Kenneth Thomson, Screen Actors Guild secretary, who has been appointed west-coast representative for the organization. Whitney was accompanied by his aide, Francis Alstock. Thomson's duties, principally, will be as a liaison officer, securing screen stars for personal appearance tours below the border.

Pull $3,200 Out of a Hat—

Unions Seek to Iron Out Wage, Hour Discord

With the outcome destined to play an important part in governing studio working conditions henceforth, representatives of 29 unions and two groups of cartoon workers participated in the first of a series of hearings scheduled by the wage-hour administration to iron out disagreements over certain classifications as tabulated recently by the wage-hour unit after an exhaustive survey of the industry. Bulk of the protests concern the unions' fear that being ruled non-exempt, and consequently subject to hourly pay scales, will mean a loss in weekly earnings. Present at the initial session were Joseph A. Padway, general counsel for the American Federation of Labor and the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes; Steve B. Newman, IA executive; Frank Carothers, head of the Motion Picture International Committee; and representatives of the carpenters, teamsters, electricians, hod carriers, studio utility workers, plasterers, sound technicians, Screen Directors Guild, photographers, Screen Cartoonists Guild, Screen Set Designers, painters, first-aid men and nurses, machinists, script clerks, prop men, wardrobe, Federated Screen Cartoonists and others.

SOEG Conferences Continue

Screen Office Employes Guild has begun negotiations with Universal and Columbia on a closed-shop agreement. It had already launched similar conferences at M-G-M, where it demands minimum wage scales ranging from $25 weekly for messengers to $87 for top clerical positions.

SWG Producer Meet April 4

After one preliminary session, Screen Writers Guild representatives will meet with producers again April 4 to discuss further details of the writers' demands for a new contract. Present SWG pact expires April 10. The SWG also met with the Artists Managers Guild March 27 to discuss a proposed franchising project whereby writer agents would be licensed in an arrangement similar to that between the AMG and the Screen Actors Guild.

SAG Huddle Near

SAG will meet with the producers shortly to resume discussion of proposed reclassification of extra players' wage brackets and other matters. One proposal calls for elimination of the $8.25 and $11 calls in favor of a straight $10 rate. Meantime a group of veteran extras has begun picketing Central Casting, contending that organization is guilty of discrimination against old-time mob and atmosphere players and is allegedly keeping them on the inactive list. Pickets are headed by J. Edward Dahlen, who advocates a change in executive setup at Central.

SDG Pact Up

Board of directors of the Screen Directors Guild met to discuss pending negotiations with the producers on a revised basic agreement.

Disney Tactics Assailed

Society of Motion Picture Film Editors has filed a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board, charging Walt Disney Productions with being guilty of unfair labor practices. SMPFE petition contends the organization was certified by the NLRB as exclusive bargaining representative at that studio in July, 1939, but that Disney executives have repeatedly refused to open negotiations for a basic agreement. SMPFE represents cartoon editors, assistant editors and film librarians. Complaint specifically accuses the Disney organization of "dilatory and procrastinating tactics, unwarranted delays" and other practices.

SAG Warns Members On "Free Talent"

Immediate action by the Screen Actors Guild was the first response to a letter addressed that organization and its president, Edward Arnold, by Jean Hersholt, president of the Motion Picture Relief Fund, charging that "free talent" appearances of actors on Louella Parsons' new Lifebuoy airshow would jeopardize the MPRF's chief source of revenue, its Screen Guild broadcast.

While Arnold was drafting a formal reply, letters were dispatched to all Class "A" members of the SAG, reiterating Rule No. 6, which specifies that "no member shall give a free performance on the radio," violation of which can result in severe penalties. Only exception is that in which a particular player's studio contract may specify that he is required to go on the air to aid in exploiting pictures in which he may appear.

This action was taken in answer to Hersholt's query as to whether the SAG intends to enforce its rule against "free talent" shows. In his blast against the Parsons broadcast, Hersholt pointed out that:

"Crippling MPRF"

The Screen Guild show has yielded the MPRF $10,000 weekly for the past three years, the sponsor having paid the talent adequately, and the performers donating their salaries to the Fund.

The MPRF's income from this source will be seriously jeopardized if, as in the case of the Parsons show, one commercial sponsor can obtain the radio services of screen actors at a relatively nominal expense, because another sponsor cannot thereafter be expected to pay $10,000 weekly for those same players.

Every actor appearing on a "free talent" show, and every producer who permits a contract player to appear on such a broadcast, is crippling the MPRF.

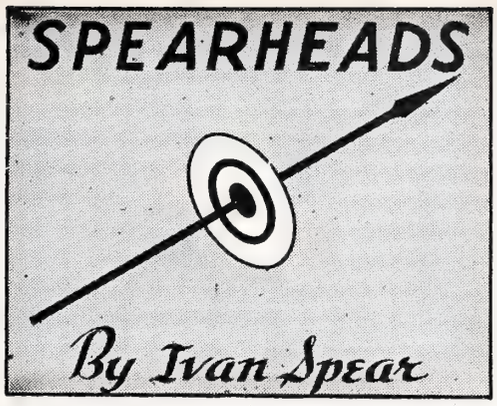
A copy of the Hersholt letter was also dispatched to Y. Frank Freeman, president of the association of motion picture producers, from which office no reply had been made at mid-week.

SAG spokesmen meantime asserted that the contractual status of Marlene Dietrich and Bruce Cabot would be thoroughly investigated to ascertain whether or not they were required by the studio to appear on the first Parsons show March 28. The players presented scenes from their current Universal picture, "The Flame of New Orleans."

Signs of a Slump Begin to Appear

For the first time in many months, the production pace as charted for the next 30-day period shows signs of lagging, with indications it may be the beginning of a summer slump in the film factories. Most studios have either completed, or are on the verge of finishing, their 1940-41 schedules and consequently have a period of at least four months in which to coast a bit before embarking in earnest on their 1941-42 programs.

March is passing out in a blaze of glory, the major studios listing 15 starters to wind up the month. So far, however, April schedules list only 24 pictures; although this quota will, of course, be supplemented by additional properties from day to day.



Cleaning up this month's schedules are: Twentieth Century-Fox—"Belle Starr," "Sun Valley" and "The Man With the Shovel." Republic—"Sheriff of Tombstone" and "A Gay Vagabond." Warner—"Bad Men of Missouri," "'Manpower" and "Flight Patrol." Universal—"Tight Shoes." Monogram—"King of the Zombies" and "Redhead." Paramount—"The Parson of Panamint." RKO Radio—"Scattergood Pulls the Strings" and "Parachute Battalion." Columbia—"Texas."

The April outlook:

Metro—"H. H. Pulham, Esq.," "Smilin' Through" and an untitled "Tarzan." Republic—"County Fair," "Puddin' Head," "The Old Grey Mare" and "Down Mexico Way." Warner—"Navy Blues." Universal—"Hello, Sucker," "Almost an Angel," "His Butler's Sister" and "We're in the Navy Now." Monogram—"The Pioneers." Paramount—"Nothing But the Truth," "World Premiere," "Birth of the Blues," "Henry for President," "Forced Landing," "Among the Living," and "Sullivan's Travels." RKO Radio—"True to Form." Columbia—"Tillie the Toiler." United Artists—"Our Heaven Is Now" (Alexander Korda), and "Strange Victory" (Sol Lesser).

Follow "I Wanted Wings" With "Amateur Admirals"

As a follow-up to its aviation special, "I Wanted Wings," Paramount will produce "Amateur Admirals," story of the training of U. S. college men to become naval officers. Original screen story is by Michael Fessier and Lieut.-Comm. George Campbell, and will be filmed with U. S. navy cooperation. William Holden is tentatively set for one of the starring roles.

JAMES STEWART has joined the army, which thoroughly patriotic and praiseworthy step was taken to the accompaniment of widespread publicity; unavoidable, of course, in view of the star's prominence. Most of the ballyhoo was beneficial and will enhance Stewart's popularity. Some of it was bad, in which classification fall the printed reports that the day he enlisted, his home studio, M-G-M, informed him that during his year's training his $21 monthly pay check would be supplemented by another $1,000 a week for spending money. Spokesmen for mighty Leo refuse to confirm the report but admit that undoubtedly the lanky star was handed a handsome bonus, doubtless a tidy sum to carry him over the period when he is wearing Uncle Sam's uniform and toting a gun.

Regardless, what a welcome addition to the ranks Jimmy will be for the Gimme—Have-You-Got?—Lemme-Take boys.

Poor Leland Hayward, Stewart's agent. Ten per cent of $21 per month is $2.10. "They can't do that to me."

Harry "Pop" Sherman has selected "Bar-20 Strikes Again" as a title for the third "Hopalong Cassidy" adventure for 1941. They've already had "Bar 20 Rides Again." And the hungry reviewers are still most interested in "Bar-20 Eats Again."

Friday was Wolf Day in film circles. Warner Brothers showed their remake of Jack London's "The Sea Wolf" at the first sea-going junket (and at the studio for the poor relations of the press) and Monogram previewed its adaptation of a London story, produced under the title "Sign of the Wolf."

Casting directors did not have a parade.

From Robert Taplinger comes a yarn that the manager of the Palace Theatre in Manila, P. I., removed the 900 seats in his house when he booked "The Sea Hawk" and, on the opening day, sold tickets to 6,169 customers—all of whom stood up.

Many critics would find it more understandable if the manager had removed the chairs to install cots.

Jimmy Fidler continues to demonstrate "How NOT to Win Friends and Influence People," according to the current issue of "Screen Actor," official monthly organ of the Screen Actors Guild. Under the caption, "Fidler Again—Columnist Allergic to MPRF Facts," is reproduced a letter from Wilma Bashor, secretary of the Motion Picture Relief Fund, which nails Fidler to the barn door in no uncertain terms for falsely reporting that the Fund had refused a case which was taken over by Joan Crawford. Miss Bashor set forth in full detail the history of the case to which Fidler had referred, explained aid had not been given because it had not been requested, and refuted the columnist's assertion that the MPRF cares for indigent actors only and not for their families as well.

BALLYHOODLUMS — Jock Lawrence, "assistant-to-the-president-with-nothing-to-do-with-publicity" at the Association of Motion Picture Producers (not the Hays office), has an assistant. Strangely enough, in view of Jock's attitude, the assistant to the assistant is a public relations man, competent Frank Seltzer, formerly chief drum beater for Hal Roach. With Seltzer, who doesn't inflate as easily as his superior, on the job, it may put a stop to the ribbing—both printed and verbal—to which Lawrence and his newly-discovered importance have been subjected during recent weeks. It may also be possible, occasionally, to verify a bit of news regarding the association's activities . . . John P. Miles, publicity chief for James Roosevelt and currently arranging the "Pot O' Gold" premiere junket to Mexico City, lost his voice one day last week. Probably from saying "no" to the hundreds of newsmen who are trying to sell him the idea that their presence is indispensable to the success of the trip, and most of whom will have to stay home because of limited transportation facilities. No matter how he cuts it, Miles stands to be the most unpopular guy in town . . . Bill Hebert is doing an article for the Junior Encyclopedia Brittanica on "moving pictures" and is also writing a chapter on film publicity for the big Encyclopedia. He should be an expert on the latter subject. He's worked in enough publicity departments during the past three years . . . Russell Birdwell, freelancer de luxe, scoffs at reports that he is being considered as a possible successor to S. Barret McCormick, stating that he wouldn't leave his well-established business to take on any company job. Which attitude is both sincere and smart . . . Myron Lustig gets away to an impressive and promising start as publicity director for Producer Samuel Goldwyn. He moved into the new spot recently after handling press details of the Greek War Relief Drive for the motion picture permanent charities committee, of which Goldwyn is chairman.

Aces, Amour, Adventure

Hollywood's choice celluloid took to ships—air and sailing—in the week's preview lineup with the more modern carriers soaring their cargo, Paramount's "I Wanted Wings," to top levels as the best of the lot. Given the cooperation of the U. S. army or navy air corps, Hollywood has, from time to time, made some extremely impressive and profitable features dealing with military aviation. This one begins where they left off—and zooms from there. Its inherent entertainment and informative values are magnified incalculably by the timeliness of its theme and story content—indicating a virtually unlimited revenue ceiling. Technically, the film is practically perfect. Never before has so detailed and comprehensive an insight into the molding and training of army warbirds been caught on celluloid. And, additionally, there are major assets in the gripping and convincing story by Beirne Lay jr., adapted by Eleanore Griffin and Comm. Frank Wead, and scripted by Lay, Richard Maibaum and Sig Herzig; a thoroughly splendid cast, topped by Ray Milland, William Holden, Brian Donlevy, Wayne Morris and a new discovery, Veronica Lake; magnificent production by Arthur Hornblow jr., and equally distinguished direction by Mitchell Leisen. The completed document is a screen classic, one which every American should see, and one which will swell their pride in their heritage and give them additional confidence in the future of democracy.

Pressing the Hornblow-Leisen masterpiece for honors was Alexander Korda's "That Hamilton Woman"—a dramatic, moving and always entertaining motion picture. It was given careful and intelligent production and direction by Korda, benefits by a literate and masterful screen play by Walter Reisch and R. C. Sherriff, and boasts, as selling points, a cast headed by Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier in enormously capable performances. Too, there is a definite entertainment asset in the manner in which the parallel between England during the days of Lord Nelson and England fighting for her life today is emphasized. It gives the film an air of timeliness that should not be overlooked by zealous showmen. Backgrounds, costumes and other productional accoutrements are opulent.

Third of the reigning trio was Warner's remake of Jack London's "The Sea Wolf," which lusty saga of a hell ship and its brutal master is streamlined considerably through a top dressing of psychiatry; an application which detracts from and slows up the story's original action atmosphere and ingredients. Performances by Edward G. Robinson, Ida Lupino and John Garfield are beyond criticism. Likewise competent is Michael Curtiz's direction, while Henry Blanke fulfilled his duties capably

Norman Moray Joins Huddle at Burbank

Joining other homeoffice executives who have already spent a week at the Burbank studio conferring with local executives on 1941-42 production plans, is Norman H. Moray, shorts sales manager. He is huddling with Jack L. Warner, vice-president in charge of production, and Gordon Hollingshead, shorts supervisor, on the sales policy for shorts under the consent decree, and will map out with them the complete 1941-42 lineup for the brief subjects. Entire 1940-41 program was completed four months ahead of time, and the first short in next season's quota is now in production.

Meantime Jack L. and Harry M. Warner and S. Charles Einfeld, advertising-publicity director, are parleying with Gradwell L. Sears, sales head; Sam Schneider, Mort Blumenstock, Carl Leserman, Benjamin Kalmenson, Roy Harris, Arthur Sachson and Lowell Levinson of the New York staff, who will be here for another week or so.

Freeman East

Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of Paramount's studio operations, pulled out for New York, whence he traveled to Hot Springs, Virginia, to attend a Paramount Theatres conclave there March 27-28-29.

Wobber to 'Frisco

After a short stay at the studio, during which he predicted the entire motion picture industry is due to boom, Herman Wobber, sales head for 20th Century-Fox, planed out for San Francisco, planning to spend several days at his home there before going to New York. While here he conferred on future picture-making plans with Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president in charge of production.

Plugs Next "Dr. Christian"

Max Kravetz, sales head for Stephens-Lang Productions, has pulled out on a month's tour of RKO Radio exchanges, lining up campaigns on the next "Dr. Christian" vehicle. The Jean Hersholt starrer will roll early in April and is, of course, for RKO Radio release.

Hempstead Checks In

Producer David Hempstead of RKO Radio has checked in at the studio after two weeks in New York. He was accompanied west by Ben Hecht, who will script Hempstead's next picture, "Joan of Paris," to star Michele Morgan.

Si Seadler Here

Here for ten days of conferences with studio executives on release campaigns for spring and summer product is Si Seadler of M-G-M's New York publicity-advertising office.

Joining Seadler at M-G-M was J. Robert Rubin, home office executive, who checked in for a week of conferences on spring production plans with Louis B. Mayer, E. J. Mannix and other studio officials.

"Hello, Sucker" for Cline

"Hello, Sucker," a Hugh Herbert comedy for Universal, will be directed by Edward Cline.

Goldwyn Retains Spitz As His Legal Counsel

Now rushing preparations for an early camera start on "The Little Foxes," with which he will resume productional activity, Samuel Goldwyn has retained the services of Leo Spitz, former RKO Radio president and at one time attorney for Paramount, as his legal counsel. Spokesmen for Goldwyn, while not amplifying further on the announcement, intimated that Spitz would be instrumental in the final consummation of a release deal for the producer, who has several distribution arrangements in the negotiatory stages. Goldwyn recently severed all relationships with United Artists and at present has no release set for future product. Spitz came in from New York some time ago and hereafter will spend considerable of his time on the west coast.

Suspend Bogart

Only a short time after Ann Sheridan had gone back on the payroll after an eight-month layoff, Warner suspended Humphrey Bogart indefinitely for refusing to accept a proffered assignment in "Bad Men of Missouri," in which he was replaced by Dennis Morgan.

Michael Kraike, associate story editor at Columbia for the past four years, has submitted his resignation, effective immediately. No replacement has been made. Kraike checks out for New York, April 1 to line up a new affiliation.

Industry wage-earners, exclusive of the executive and talent divisions, received healthier pay checks in February than in the preceding month, according to figures released by the California labor statistics bureau. Average weekly payroll for the month was $568,816, divided among 12,792 workers, for an individual weekly pay check of $44.37. Weekly payrolls in January were $29,171 less.

Edward Small has signed Bud Barsky as assistant to Max Golden, production manager for the United Artists unit. Small is now readying "G-Men vs. Scotland Yard" for a camera start within the next four weeks.

12 for State-Right Market by Kranz

With one picture completed and already in release, Charles Kranz, president of Select Pictures, has announced plans for the production of 11 more for distribution via franchise-holders and the state-right market during the 1941-42 season. Kranz is now here from New York setting production deals. Eight of the films are being made by George Merrill and Max Alexander, who have now finished "City of Missing Girls" and are shooting "I'll Buy Your Life," with a cast including Michael Whalen, Rose Hobart and Joan Woodbury. Kranz will visit Select exchanges in San Francisco and Seattle before returning east.

"Little Foxes" to Roll

A definite starting date of April 15 has been set by Samuel Goldwyn on "The Little Foxes," with which he will end a long productional hiatus, during which his United Artists affiliation was definitely severed. No release has been set for the new film, which will star Bette Davis, with William Wyler directing.

PRC Starts "Landing"

For Producers Releasing Corp., Jed Buell has rolled "Emergency Landing," starring Carol Hughes, with William Beaudine directing. He is shooting at Talisman Studios. T. H. Richmond's next, to go into production immediately, is "Gambling Daughters." He has just completed "South of Panama."

Arlen in Aviation Drama

Picture Corp. of America, headed by William H. Pine and William C. Thomas, rolls "Forced Landing," second in a series of aviation dramas starring Richard Arlen, early in April. Paramount will release.

Cameras on "Tight Shoes"

Director Al Rogell has turned the cameras on "Tight Shoes," a Jules Levey-Mayfair production for Universal. Broderick Crawford has the topline.

Among the better programmers were Universal's "The Man Who Lost Himself" and 20th Century-Fox's "Dead Men Tell."

Former is a light farce in which the story line is, at times, spun so thin as to overstep the bounds of credibility. It has its amusing moments, nevertheless, and should be consumed with moderate enthusiasm by general audiences in search of carefree film fare. Brian Aherne, essaying a dual role, dominates the cast; while Kay Francis, in an otherwise innocuous assignment, is given an opportunity to do what she does best—parade a collection of gorgeous gowns. Edward Ludwig's direction glosses over weaknesses in the script by Eddie Moran, from a novel by H. DeVere Stacpoole, and is, on the whole, a workmanlike job; which might be said, also, of Lawrence W. Fox's production mounting.

The Fox entry, newest in the veteran "Charlie Chan" series, is a closely woven mystery which the fictional Oriental sleuth solves with characteristic emphasis on suavity and Confuciusisms. Script by John Larkin will keep audiences in suspense until the final footage through its use of the everybody-is-a-suspect formula. Walter Morosco and Ralph Dietrich, as co-producers, instilled it with the required ingredients to qualify it as high-grade supporting material, with a special appeal to Chan's followers. Direction and performances are of comparable calibre, with Harry Lachman wielding the megaphone and Sidney Toler, of course, portraying the detective.

Universal's "Man Made Monster" is a satisfactory chiller with an average supply of suspense, excitement and thrills. The Jack Bernhard production was directed by George Waggner and scripted by Joseph West from a story by H. J. Essex, Sid Schwartz and Len Golos. Lon Chaney adequately enacts the title role.

Monogram's "Sign of the Wolf," adapted from a Jack London story, serves primarily as background for noteworthy performances by two expertly trained Alsatian shepherd dogs. Film should stand up admirably as supporting material in the markets it will reach; exercising, at the same time, more than normal appeal to those who relish dog yarns of the great frozen north. Producer Paul Malvern equipped it with acceptable production values and convincing backgrounds, and human members of the cast, topped by Michael Whalen and Grace Bradley, are well qualified for their respective chores. Howard Bretherton directed from a screen play by Elizabeth Hopkins and Edmond Kelso.

Has Chevalier Starrer

Monogram has acquired distribution rights to "Break the News," starring Maurice Chevalier, and produced and directed abroad by Rene Clair, now a Universal director here. Music and lyrics are by Cole Porter.

Industry to Cooperate With Music Festival

Both the Association of Motion Picture Producers and the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will cooperate when the National Federation of Music Clubs stages its 22nd biennial American Music Festival here in June.

Industry participation was assured when Nat W. Finston, Metro music chief, was named to head a committee including M. Mockridge, 20th Century-Fox; Roy Webb, RKO Radio, and Victor Young, Paramount, which will meet with Mrs. Alice Field, of the Hays office, and a committee from the NFMC headed by Mrs. Vincent Hilles Ober, to plan the affair. Mrs. Ober is also discussing plans for Academy cooperation with Walter F. Wanger, president of that organization.

Consider Music Festival

Now being considered is a projected musical festival devoted for the first time to motion pictures, and which may be held at the Hollywood Bowl June 21. At that time, according to present plans, the NFMC will present awards for excellence in film music achievement.

Meantime, more than 3,000 photographs have already been entered in the Academy's first annual still photography show, being sponsored by the organization's Public Relations Institute and to be held April 14-28. Winners in each of eight classifications will be awarded specially-designed gold medals. Entrants are limited to individuals in studio camera departments and freelance photographers affiliated with the IATSE.

Bette to Home Town for "Great Lie" Premiere

Warner is world premiering Bette Davis' newest starring vehicle, "The Great Lie," in the player's home town, Littleton, N. H., April 5, with proceeds going to the Littleton Hospital and the Golden Rule Farm for Boys. The date also is Miss Davis' birthday. The picture will be screened at the Premiere Theatre and the affair will be embellished by a birthday party for the star, now en route there with her husband, Arthur Farnsworth, in which civic and social organizations will participate. Robert C. Blood, governor of the state, will attend and newspaper and magazine writers and photographers from the large eastern cities will be brought to the scene.

Paramount's "I Wanted Wings" made its debut at the Astor in New York Wednesday, with key figures in the war department, the army air corps and other government officials joining social, diplomatic, civic and screen celebrities as the first-nighters. Preceding the Astor opening, the film was given a special preview at Randolph Field, San Antonio, at which William Holden and Wayne Morris, who have toplines in the picture, were awarded "Honorary Flying Cadet" warrants by Flying Cadet J. H. Enders, cadet battalion commander. Beirne Lay jr., author of the original story, was among the guests.

REVIEW FLASHES

BAD MAN, THE (M-G-M)—The drawing power will lie in the number of popular names this unadulterated melodrama boasts. The talents of Beery and Barrymore are strained to overcome the hurdle of a faulty script and loose-handed direction. Best-pleased customers will be those who like western action. Wallace Beery, Lionel Barrymore, Laraine Day. Richard Thorpe directed.

BORDER VIGILANTES (Para)—The redoubtable "Hopalong" Cassidy, in the person of William Boyd, is up to his usual standard in this latest of the veteran sagebrush series. Which means the film packs an abundance of action, adventure and suspense, with the required amount of comedy relief. Peg it as a reliable grosser in those situations where westerns are in demand. Harry Sherman produced; Derwin Abrahams directed.

HORROR ISLAND (Univ)—Treasure-hunting yarn in which a hackneyed story is bolstered through the addition of enough trapdoors, clutching hands, phantom killers and the like, to qualify it as an average entry in the thrill category. Ben Pivar produced; George Waggner directed.

E. K. Menagh Seeks Relief on Clearance

DENVER—E. K. Menagh, owner of the Star, Ft. Lupton, Colo., has filed the second case before the Denver arbitration board. He asks that all five parties to the consent decree be ordered to give him an even break with the Rex at Brighton, Colo., five miles distant, in bookings. Menagh claims the companies hold films back from him until after played by the Rex. Menagh asks for damages and such other relief as the arbiter sees fit to allow.

Goodstein Arbitration Hearing Is Under Way

DENVER—The first day's hearing before the arbitration tribunal of J. J. Goodstein Enterprises, Inc., product demand from Loew's, Paramount and 20th-Fox, resulted only in direct examination of Goodstein and a declaration by defendants' counsel that he hoped to prove that the companies did not wish to do business with Goodstein because of their interpretation of the "reputable and responsible" as well as the "minimum standards of theatre operation" clauses.

Goodstein is asking for more product for his Longmont, claiming the Fox Longmont is overbought. Both theatres are in Longmont, Colo.

Appeal Supports Impost Against Goldwyn Firm

WASHINGTON — Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., Ltd., personal holding company of Samuel Goldwyn and successor to United Artists Studio, Inc., owes the government somewhat more than $5,000 under a decision of the board of tax appeals.

The board refused to permit the company to deduct $16,600 from its adjusted net income as an amount used to retire indebtedness incurred prior to January 1, 1934, under the revenue act of that year, affirming a deficiency of $4,055.82 assessed by the commissioner of internal revenue and upheld also a penalty of $1,013.96 imposed for failing to file a return within the allotted time without reasonable cause for delay.

The deduction claimed by the company was to meet an indebtedness incurred when Twentieth Century Pictures and Samuel Goldwyn in 1933 undertook to buy all the stock of United Artists Studio Corp. The board held that the indebtedness was incurred by Twentieth Century and Goldwyn and not by the holding company itself.

To Study Buying

SALT LAKE CITY—Herschel Stewart, head booker here for Fox West Coast, has been temporarily transferred to the organization's office in Los Angeles for a couple of months study of buying conditions in the trade under the consent decree. S. Saunders, from the FWC Denver office, is filling in for him here.

"Sea Wolf" Shipboard Premiere Brings Stars

SAN FRANCISCO—Fourteen stars from the Warner lot came to San Francisco aboard the S. S. America to attend the world premiere of Jack London's "Sea Wolf." Accompanying them was a contingent of 100 newspapermen and studio officials.

The premiere of the newest version of the "Sea Wolf" was really a triple feature since the film was shown on board ship, it opened at the Fox, and then was world premiered at the Bestiana in Sonoma. At the Sonoma showing Mrs. Charmain London, widow of the author, was hostess to the throng.

After a welcome by Mayor Rossi upon their docking, the party held a press reception on board ship, went on a tour of London's favorite haunts in Oakland, and then motored to Sonoma where they made personal appearances preceding the premiere. The stars were: Edward G. Robinson, Rita Hayworth, Ralph Bellamy, Priscilla Lane, Dennis Morgan, Mary Astor, John Garfield, Jane Wyman, Ronald Reagan, Georgia Carroll, Charles Ruggles, Hobart Bosworth, Donald Crisp, and Marguerite Chapman. Bob Taplinger and Charlie Einfeld headed the Warner officials.

PCCITO Convention Date Due Shortly

LOS ANGELES—A late April or early May date for the second annual convention of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners will be announced by the board of trustees within a few days, according to Robert H. Poole, executive secretary of the organization.

Preliminary plans and details of the pending meeting were discussed by the trustees at a meeting in San Francisco, attended by Rotus Harvey and Ben Levin, ITO of Northern California; William Ripley, ITO of Washington; Bob White and George Hunt, ITO of Oregon; Jack Y. Berman and Hugh Bruen, ITO of So. Calif. and Ariz.; Poole and Ed Roy, executive secretary of the ITO of Northern Calif.

Meantime, Poole is actively representing the PCCITO in "Greek Week," nationwide drive in which theatres are collecting funds for Greek war relief. He is a member of the local committee which also includes Charles P. Skouras, president of Fox West Coast Theatres, and W. E. Calloway, Warner exchange manager here. Collections are being handled throughout this territory by civic figures and clubwomen in the various communities, with Poole reporting that virtually every showman in the sector has pledged cooperation.

Huy Joins RKO

SAN FRANCISCO—Charles Huy, formerly of the Golden Gate Theatre, has been appointed by Terry Turner, head of RKO's field staff, to take over the San Francisco and Los Angeles territory for RKO. Eddie Rivers, formerly Hamrick-Evergreen publicist, is now in the Minneapolis district.

Harry David Signs Altec

BOISE, IDA.—Harry David of Intermountain Theatres, Inc., has signed agreements to have Altec Service take care of the sound equipment in the Ada, Boise and Granada.

Sure to Put Forth Marketing Effort

PASADENA—Probably the one man in the United States who not only is an exhibitor, but also acts in the motion pictures he books, is Joseph J. Greene, operator of the Raymond Theatre here.

Greene, a portly character player, is an old-time vaudevillian who took over the Raymond Theatre about three years ago. Recently he appeared in a production at the Pasadena Community Playhouse, at which time an RKO Radio studio scout observed his performance, and Greene was signed to appear in a two-reel Leon Errol comedy, "The Fired Man." He has since had roles in M-G-M's "The Wild Man of Borneo" and Paramount's "Las Vegas Nights."

He also serves as master of ceremonies at a weekly amateur show in his theatre, which is the last-run house in the community. Prior to coming to Pasadena Greene was general manager of the Southtown Theatres, a circuit of nine houses, in Kansas City.

The Exhibitor—

The Actor—

Both are Joseph J. Greene: One as his patrons at the Raymond Theatre in San Diego see him in front of the house, and the other as the same patrons see him on the screen of the Raymond, portraying a role in M-G-M's "Wild Man of Borneo."

"Meet John Doe" Doubles Take in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO—"Meet John Doe" put the Warfield at the top of the heap with a neat double of the average take at the theatre. The jump of the evening admission from 50 to 65 cents was a factor that helped garner the weekly honors. Four of the seven first runs were playing holdovers and only one theatre on Market Street did below average business. The weather throughout the entire Bay area was fine.

IA Local 150 Will Hold Pact Meeting April 1

LOS ANGELES — General membership meeting of Projectionists Local 150, IATSE, has been called for April 1 to discuss the status of negotiations for new contracts with circuit and independent houses in this territory. R. L. McDonald, business manager, will preside.

Preliminary sessions have already been held with Fox West Coast, RKO, Warner, Fanchon & Marco and several independent operators. Projectionists, now receiving from $1.15 to $2.05 hourly, will ask an increase, the exact amount to be determined at the April 1 session, and are also seeking certain improvements in working conditions, including longer vacation periods with pay.

An agreement arrived at will be retroactive to December 1, 1940, at which time an earlier pact expired. The local at present has 86 members employed in FWC theatres, and a total of about 210 throughout the territory.

RKO Squad Visits

SALT LAKE CITY—The Ned Depinet Drive squad now touring the country met here with the RKO exchange personnel headed by H. C. Fuller. RKO executives present included Leo Devaney, drive captain; Cresson E. Smith, western division sales manager; Harry Michalson, short subjects sales manager, and Herb MacIntyre, western district manager.

Give Full Support to Drive for Greece

LOS ANGELES—In addition to big benefit performances at Grauman's Chinese and the Shrine Auditorium, 350 theatres in the Los Angeles exchange area participated in the Greek War Relief Drive by taking up collections from audiences and in their lobbies.

In the Denver and Salt Lake territories, more than 350 theatres participated, some 50 holding elaborate midnight stage-screen shows at advanced prices.

Nearly 300 theatres were enrolled for the campaign in the San Francisco territory, and wholehearted support likewise was extended by the Seattle area.

Mayor in Charge of Salt Lake Benefit

SALT LAKE CITY—Mayor Ab Jenkins was in charge of the midnight benefit show at the Utah for Greek War Relief. The program included a number of variety acts, as well as a film bill. All employes, including projectionists, stagehands and musicians, donated their services. Charles Pincus of the Utah and Ray Hendy of the Centre, headed the committee in charge of the campaign locally.

Tie-Up With RCA-Victor For "Penny Serenade"

NEW YORK—A comprehensive and far reaching exploitation campaign has been launched by the RCA-Victor Company to pre-sell Columbia's "Penny Serenade," co-starring Irene Dunne and Cary Grant.

This tie-up covers nearly every phase of advertising, including national magazine and newspapers, radio, billboards, window cards, counter displays, special stills, car cards, throwaways and direct mail. There also will be publicity spreads in the three Victor consumer magazines reaching 750,000 homes.

The campaign is based on recordings of the musical numbers heard in "Penny Serenade." These records are now on sale all over the country.

"Penny Serenade" will be advertised to millions of radio listeners on the RCA-Victor program, and Good Housekeeping, The New Yorker and Parents magazines, with more than 10,000,000 readers, will carry Victor Record advertisements preselling the picture.

Set "Texas" Director

HOLLYWOOD—George Marshall has been engaged by Columbia to direct "Texas," a story of the cattle wars in the Panhandle, immediately following the war between the states. William Holden and Warren William will play the male leads.

Ray McCarey Chore

HOLLYWOOD—Ray McCarey is directing "The Man With the Shovel" for Producers Ralph Dietrich and Walter Morosco at 20th-Fox.

Schwarz Starts Move For Variety Club

LOS ANGELES—Harold Schwarz, assistant to the president of Alexander Preview Co., which recently opened branch offices here, is launching a movement for the establishment of a Variety Club in this territory.

Other Variety members locally include Hugh Braley, district manager for Paramount; William Calloway, Warner branch manager, and Herb McIntyre, RKO Radio's western district head. McIntyre holds the first life membership ever given by the Dallas tent of the organization.

Schwarz is predicating his campaign for the establishment of a local branch on the position that this is the world's film capital.

For this Remarkable Book

THINKING ON YOUR FEET is more than a delightful reading experience—it is an education. It is one of those exciting adventures in thinking that one meets all too rarely. It will conquer you.(1) If you like biographies of famous people, here is a feast for you! It could be placed under "Humor" or "Anecdotes" or "Wit" or "Biography", but it should be under "Philosophy"—with the books that have contributed to the profound thinking of the troubled generations.(2) This book is stimulating; its vast spiritual horizon actually embraces all the problems of our day(3) and its illuminating comments are profoundly revealing.(4) There is a grand gallery of personality sketches of the famous, and an endless array of anecdotes,(5)—brilliant interpretation that is exemplified over and over again.(6)

This unique, perfectly delightful and thoroughly entertaining volume(7) tells you how to sway audiences and keep people awake after dinner.(8) Every public speaker, every aspirant to the platform, and even the curious reader will read it with profit.(9) It is filled with entertaining, exciting material that you can use to practical advantage(10)—and to the general public its fund of reminiscences and anecdote will make it first class entertainment.(11)

LOUIS NIZER can say what he thinks with a brilliance that is breath-taking.(12) A keen observer of human nature who never hurls the harpoon,(13) he is one of America's distinguished legal scholars and also one of America's distinguished toastmasters.(14) Next to Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mr. Nizer is probably possessed of the most magnetic speaking charm extant.(15) His culture and his incomparable erudition create the most incredible approaches, allusions and epigrams which illuminate his pages. This is a great book!(16) Truly an adventure into the realms of public speaking.(17)

Named as interested parties: Morris, Times theatres both of Morris, Ill. Van Derveer claims Loew's has refused to license second run product for the State. The Morris and Times are operated by the Anderson circuit.

CASE NO. 2—See "Hearings."

Hearings

CASE NO. 2—Filed February 18. Demand and submission involving some run (Section VI). Ken Theatre Corp. With: Paramount, 20th-Fox, RKO, B. F. Keith Orpheum Corp., RKO Proctor Corp., RKO Midwest Corp. Theatres involved: Shakespeare, Pix. Named as interested parties: Arthur Schoenstadt, H. Schoenstadt and Sons. Complainant charges the Ken presently is forced to wait 13 weeks after "Loop" showings. He seeks to run the three distributors' product day and date with the Shakespeare and ahead of the Pix, both operated by the Schoenstadts. Arbitrator Charles P. Megan dismissed the complaint, upholding the Schoenstadt contention that the complaint involved run under Section X and not clearance under Section VII. An appeal was filed, the issue now going before the three-member appeal board in New York, composed of Van Vechten Veeder, George W. Alger and Albert W. Putnam.

Milwaukee

CASE NO. 1—Filed February 26. Demand and submission involving clearance. Evansville Theatre, Inc., operator of Rex, Evansville, Wis. With: Paramount Film Dist. Corp. Named as interested party: Jeffris, Janesville, Wis. With: Columbia, 20th-Fox, Loew's, Inc., Paramount, Republic, RKO, Universal, UA, Vitagraph. Named as interested party: Frisina, Liberty and Rex. Complainant charges distributors named have refused to license 1940-41 product. The complaint has been withdrawn because of its nature which will not bring it a hearing until September.

Evansville Case Up For Hearing Apr. 1

MILWAUKEE—April 1 has been tentatively set for the hearing of Milwaukee's first arbitration case, according to John L. Loell, head of the local tribunal.

The hearing involves a dispute between the Evansville Theatre, Inc., operator of the Rex at Evansville, and Paramount. The Evansville firm charges Paramount with giving unreasonable clearance to the Jeffris in Janesville, and requests that the Jeffris be given no clearance over the Rex.

Prof. Thomas P. Whelan of Marquette University has been agreed upon as the arbitrator.

Ken Case to Travel Full Arbitration Route

CHICAGO—The first test of the full industry arbitration setup began here Wednesday with formal notice of appeal from the Chicago tribunal decision filed by Alvin Landis, attorney for the Ken Theatre in the action against Paramount, RKO, 20th-Fox and the Schoenstadt circuit. Arbitrator Charles P. Megan dismissed the Ken complaint on the ground it concerned run and not clearance, the latter problem not subject to arbitration until September 1.

The case now goes before the three-member appeal board in New York, composed of Van Vechten Veeder, chairman, and George W. Alger and Albert W. Putnam. These three were appointed by Federal Judge Henry Warren Goddard following the signing of the consent decree.

Answering briefs must be filed by all parties concerned within 30 days.

In its complaint filed February 18, the Ken asked that it be allowed to show Paramount, RKO and 20th Century-Fox pictures in the second week of Chicago general release co-incidental with the Schoenstadt Circuit's Shakespeare and ahead of the same circuit's Pix. The latter house now plays pictures the third week of general release in Chicago.

Differ on Issue Involved

Attorneys for the Schoenstadt circuit contended that the issue was one of run and not of clearance and as such should be filed under Section X of the consent decree. Hearings on Section X will not be heard until after the new selling season starts Sept. 1, 1941. The motion made by the defendants to dismiss the complaint on the grounds that the case involved run and not clearance was granted by the arbitrator.

Felix A. Jenkins, secretary and general attorney for 20th Century-Fox, came here from the company's home offices in New York to represent his company at the hearing. Eli Fink of Spitz & Adcock, Chicago, represented Paramount and RKO. Aaron L. Stein of Rosenberg, Stein & Rosenberg, represented H. Schoenstadt & Sons.

Of interest to independent exhibitors is the following point which was brought out at the hearing: the fact that a circuit is involved in the proceedings—in this case the Schoenstadt circuit—has no bearing whatever in the case.

Also brought out clearly at the hearing, as was the case in Chicago's first hearing involving Loew's, Inc., and the independent State at Morris, Ill., was the point that a distributor has a right to choose its customers.

In addition to the attorneys, representatives of all contending parties were present, although they had no actual part in the proceedings. Included among those present were Jim Donohue, branch manager, Paramount; Clyde W. Eckhardt, branch manager, 20th Century-Fox; Jack Osserman, branch manager, RKO Radio; Ben Banowitz and John Landis of the Ken Theatre Corp., and Henry and Arthur Schoenstadt of H. Schoenstadt & Sons.

Others who attended the hearing included Russell Winslow, with Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, management engineers, who was recently appointed a member of the arbitration panel; Sidney Landis, Ken Theatre Corp.; E. T. (Peck) Gomersall, Universal district manager, Chicago; Harry Hamburg and Harold Wirthwein, sales manager and city salesman respectively for Paramount; A. M. Van Dyke, assistant to C. W. Eckhardt; Edward Blackman, Spitz & Adcock; Felix Mendelssohn, M-G-M branch manager, 1926-1938, now Chicago representative of Constance Bennett Cosmetics; and R. A. O'Brien, RKO office manager.

Correct Complaint Text In Ken Board Case

CHICAGO—Due to a typographical error, several important lines were omitted from the Ken Theatre Corp. clearance complaint published in the March 8 issue of BOXOFFICE. The omission occurred in paragraph 1 entitled "Statement of Claim and Relief Sought." Consequently, the relevant portion is republished this week in full:

"Ken Theatre, a corporation and an exhibitor within the meaning of the Consent Decree, claims that the clearance granted to the Shakespeare Theatre by Paramount Pictures, Inc., Paramount Film Distributing Corp., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., Radio Keith Orpheum Corp., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Keith L. B. Orpheum Corp., RKO Proctor Corp., and RKO Midwest Corp. is unreasonable, and that the failure of Paramount Pictures, Inc., Paramount Film Distributing Corp., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., Radio Keith Orpheum Corp., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Keith L. B. Orpheum Corp., RKO Proctor Corp., and RKO Midwest Corp. to grant to the Ken Theatre clearance over the Pix Theatre is unreasonable; and the Ken Theatre asks that the arbitrator shall find that the said clearance granted to the said Shakespeare Theatre by the above named distributors is unreasonable and that the failure of the above named distributors to grant to the Ken Theatre clearance over the Pix Theatre is unreasonable, and that the arbitrator enter an award fixing the clearance between the said Ken Theatre and the Shakespeare Theatre and Pix Theatre."

Sosna Complaint to Tribunal Withdrawn

ST. LOUIS—Louis M. Sosna has withdrawn his complaint filed March 11 with the local arbitration tribunal involving first run pictures for the Sosna in Mexico, Mo., against Columbia, 20th Century-Fox, Loew's, Paramount, Republic, RKO, Universal, United Artists and Vitagraph.

Sosna's complaint was the first officially filed with the local tribunal and its withdrawal leaves but one case pending, that of the Shirley Theatre Corp., Cape Girardeau, Mo., against RKO involving clearance for the Fox Midwest circuit houses over the Rialto in that city.

It is understood that Sosna decided to withdraw his complaint when he learned that because of its nature, it could not be heard until September.

Sosna, in his complaint, charged that various film distributors had encouraged him to open a new theatre in Mexico, promising to supply first run pictures for the house. About $40,000 was expended in converting a commercial building into a 400-seat theatre, known as the Sosna, which was opened in June, 1940, he said. However, he charged, only Vitagraph sold the house first run pictures and those were for the 1938-39 season. When the new selling season opened in July, 1940, Sosna charged none of the distributors named in his complaint would rent first run pictures to his house. When Louis M. Sosna, as manager of the theatre, demanded pictures, he said the distributors gave the excuse that their product had already been sold to the opposition theatre in Mexico. He further charged that the Sosna could not obtain a sufficient number of desirable first-run pictures for profitable operation.

Would Tax Film Rented in Wisconsin 10 Per Cent

MADISON—The most important legislative measure affecting the industry introduced to date, is the McParland bill providing for an occupational tax of 10 per cent on the rental of all film by the distributor, except on rentals of less than $500.

Under the measure, distributors would be required to furnish city assessors with a list of films sold or rented in each locality on May 1 of each year. A bill introduced in the 1939 legislature, providing for a tax of $2.50 for each 1,000 feet of film, failed to pass.

Back in the hopper after having been killed four times, is the Murray daylight saving bill. As the measure now stands, it would limit optional daylight saving to communities in Milwaukee county.

Another tax measure introduced provides for a $10 license fee for each music or amusement box in the state. The bill, introduced by Assemblyman Charles W. Fowell, Viroqua, would also require amusement machine owners to file a $5,000 bond with the state treasurer.

Also introduced is the Fehlaber bill, which would license "coin operated machines not used solely for the vending of merchandise" an annual fee of $25.

A pari-mutuel horce racing bill has also been introduced by Assemblyman Nicholas J. Bichler, Belgium. The measure would create a racing commission of three to be appointed by the governor for six-year terms and to serve without pay except expenses.

In Milwaukee county, horse racing associations would pay a license fee of $1,000 for each racing day. In other counties the fee would be $500. A tax of 20 cents would be levied on each admission ticket, and racing associations would obtain 10 per cent of the pari-mutuel take as commission. Similar attempts to legalize horse race betting in past legislatures have failed.

Being watched with interest by exhibitors in bill No. 207A in the state assembly, which provides that parts of churches used for commercial purposes and pecuniary profit or non-religious purposes, would be subject to taxes. Theatremen have contended that many religious organizations using church property for Bingo, should be obliged to pay taxes on such property. As the law now stands, such property is tax exempt.

BOWLING

CHICAGO—The M-G-M lads kept right on the tails of the leading Paramount quintet last week when both teams took all three games from their opponents, Paramount trouncing 20th Century-Fox while M-G-M swamped Universal.

Abe Fischer, bowling for 20th Century-Fox, maintained his lead as high scorer with a 176 average. Other leading scorers are: Mike Fahey, Paramount, 174; Johnny Knaffle, United Artists, 174; Fred Hanzelin, M-G-M, 172; Max Dreifuss, Republic, 171, and Harry Pries, Paramount, 171.

Team standings:

Team—	Won	Lost
Paramount	46	26
M-G-M	43	29
20th Century-Fox	33	34
Republic	36	36
Film Chauffeurs	35	37
United Artists	31	41
National Screen	31	41
Universal	23	44

Proposed Missouri Bill Would Ban SRO Tickets

JEFFERSON CITY—Representative Paul Turner of St. Joseph has presented a "No Standing Room" tickets bill in the Missouri general assembly. Generally speaking, it would prohibit theatres and other places of public amusement from selling tickets after all of the seats have been occupied.

Milton Napier, counsel of the Better Films Council of Greater St. Louis, is expected here early this week to present to the assembly for consideration the council's bill to restrict the length of film shows.

Originally intended to ban triple feature programs in Missouri houses, the new bill has been drawn to restrict shows to 2½ hours. In the event a program does extend beyond this time limit it will be necessary for the management to provide a 15-minute intermission.

This intermission must be strictly non-entertainment. It would be necessary for the theatre management to turn on all of the house lights, darken the screen and not present any stage shows or other entertainment in this rest period.

It is believed exhibitors will endeavor to have the bill amended to permit three-hour shows.

Reports from St. Louis are that there has been a decided audience reaction against the four-hour shows that have prevailed in a number of the South St. Louis houses during the past few weeks and it is understood that all of the houses, both chain and independent, will eliminate those too lengthy shows, except on special occasions such as New Year's Eve, etc.

Text of Bill to Regulate Length of Film Shows

ST. LOUIS—The text of the bill to regulate the length of motion picture programs in Missouri, which the Better Films Council of Greater St. Louis will present immediately before the general assembly in Jefferson City, follows:

"An Act: Relating to the exhibition of motion picture films; defining 'Exhibitor,' 'Intermission,' 'Single Performance;' providing violation of act a misdemeanor and fixing penalty for such violation.

"Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Missouri, as follows:

"Section 1. For the purpose of this act, 'Exhibitor' means any person, firm, corporation, or association who, directly or indirectly, is in the business of exhibiting motion picture films to the public for an admission fee.

"Section 2. For the purposes of this act, 'Intermission' shall mean a complete stoppage of performance of any kind on stage, platform, screen or otherwise and the house lights of the theatre, business house or place of exhibiting motion picture films to the public shall be continuously lighted during said intermission.

"Section 3. A 'Single Performance' shall include all exhibitions or attractions on the stage, platform, screen or otherwise, for a period not to exceed two and one-half hours.

"Section 4. It shall be unlawful for any exhibitor to present or cause to be presented a performance consisting of the exhibition on screens of one or more single motion picture films for a longer period than two and one-half consecutive hours, provided, however, that a performance may be shown for upwards of two and one-half hours, if at the beginning of each hour in excess of the two and one-half hour performance there is a period of intermission of 15 minutes. No intermission shall be required for a repeat performance of the same exhibitions or attractions, unless a single performance exceeds two and one-half hours.

"Section 5. Any exhibitor who violates the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof fined not less than one hundred dollars ($100) or more than five hundred dollars ($500), or be imprisoned in the county jail for not more than six months, or both, in the discretion of the court."

The Council sponsoring the bill is headed by Mrs. Guy Randall. It is composed of some 25 affiliated organizations with a total membership of 250,000 women. Col. Milton F. Napier, counsel for the Council, prepared the text of the bill.

Mrs. Randall and other officers and members of the Council, said it is their hope that the bill will result in film programs consisting of a single feature and selected shorts.

The Council has organized its forces behind a state-wide campaign in support of the measure.

No Divorce Mecca

JEFFERSON CITY—A House committee killed the bill of Rep. J. L. Ivanhoe, St. Louis, to make Missouri a divorce seekers' mecca. The measure would have cut the time for residence in the state before filing a divorce suit, from one year to 30 days.

Contract to Brockmiller

ROLLA, MO.—Mrs. Mildred Karsch has awarded the general contract for her new 700-seat theatre to be erected here, to Walter Brockmiller.

Blow at Multiple Features

St. Louis—Col. Milton F. Napier, counsel for the Better Films Council of Greater St. Louis, which is sponsoring a bill designed to limit film programs in Missouri to two and one-half hours, says "the main purpose behind this proposed legislation is to correct the abuse of multiple feature showings."

"The Council," he asserts, "has stood firmly against so-called censorship in all of its devious forms and has tried valiantly during the years through cooperative efforts to put an end to the abuses of multiple feature showings, without success.

"Therefore, as a last resort, we are attempting to do by legislation what should have been done by the industry and the exhibitors particularly, not only for the public good, but for their own best interests."

Four-hour film programs, by both chain and independent operators, have been featured here in recent months.

: PRC Convention Notes :

CHICAGO—Henry Armetta, who was in town for a personal appearance at the State-Lake, was a visitor at the PRC Sunday session. Armetta had one of the leading roles in the company's "Caught in the Act." Other stars at the convention were George Houston and Art Davis, who trained in from Hollywood.

O. Henry Briggs, PRC president, left for Detroit following final confabs with board members, Harry Asher and George Gill, on Tuesday. Asher is the Boston franchise holder and Gill is the Washington, D. C. franchise holder.

Over a thousand post cards were sent by the delegates to exhibitors. Post cards read: "PRC Convention, Congress Hotel, Chicago. Greetings from the Annual Convention of PRC now in session at the Congress Hotel. We are lining up a REAL SHOWMAN'S PROGRAM for you in 1941-42. PRC is going places—and you are going with us—for Boxoffice results! Get on the PRC Band Wagon! Cordially . . ."

Canada was represented at the convention by H. J. Allen, head of PRC, Ltd., Toronto.

Attractive blue and white banners were displayed in the Florentine Room, scene of the business sessions. The large street banner said: "We make good every promise."

Harold J. Flavin, head of the poster company bearing his name, came here from New York to attend the convention.

William Gell, general managing director for Pathe Pictures, Ltd., had to travel 12,000 miles in order to reach this country from England. War conditions necessitated the lengthy detour.

Both Abe Fischer, present PRC branch manager in Chicago, and Charles Miller who will become the branch manager on Monday, attended the convention. Other Chicagoans present included Herman Marks, country salesman, working out of the Chicago exchange, and Bernie Myers, Chicago city salesman

Seven of 15 Classified As "Mature" by Council

CHICAGO—Seven of 15 current pictures reviewed by the Better Films Council of Chicago have been listed as "mature," according to Mrs. Charles R. Holton, vice-president of the council and chairman of the previewing committee.

They are: "Come Live With Me" (M-G-M); "Dream of Madame Butterfly" (Grande); "Lady With Red Hair" (WB); "Michael Shayne, Private Detective" (20th-Fox); "Tall, Dark and Handsome" (20th-Fox); "Strawberry Blonde" (WB), and "The Phantom Wagon" (Col.)

Pictures that were given a clean bill-of-health and classified as satisfactory for the entire family: "Dancing on a Dime" (Para't); "Four Mothers" (WB); "Invisible Woman" (Univ); "Land of Liberty" (M-G-M); "The Son of Monte Cristo" (UA); "Texas Rangers Ride Again" (Para't); "Virginia" (Para't), and "Western Union" (20th-Fox).

At the PRC Convention in Chicago—

Urges Patron Support For Class Pictures

FOND DU LAC, WIS.—Declaring that producers have not yet been convinced that artistic films make money, Mrs. F. G. Kiesler in an address before the Better Films Council here, said that for that reason, "we must push and patronize a good moving picture as we would a good concert or some other cultural activity." Mrs. Kiesler told the council that the emotional excitement caused by films remains with children 70 hours after seeing the picture.

Grainger Attends Baker Luncheon

CHICAGO—In town for the informal luncheon honoring Bill Baker, Republic's new branch manager locally, was James R. Grainger, president of the company. Baker's promotion followed Republic's recent acquisition of the Chicago franchise from Irving Mandel.

While here, Grainger said he and a number of other Republic executives, including Herbert J. Yates, board chairman, would be in St. Louis April 4 for the world premiere of the company's latest Judy Canova starrer, "Sis Hopkins," at the Fox. Miss Canova and several other of the film's players will also be on hand.

Baker said that no changes would be made in the Chicago staff. Continuing in their present posts are: Sig Decker, northside salesman; Max Dreifuss, southside salesman; Jack Schwartz, country salesman, and Frank Nardi, booker and office manager.

District and branch managers present at the luncheon, which was held in the company's new Chicago quarters on the fourth floor of the Warner Bldg., were: Walter E. Branson, RKO division manager; Jack Osserman, RKO branch manager; Clyde Eckhardt, 20th Century-Fox branch manager; and Bennie Eisenberg, UA branch manager.

Among the B&K executives attending were: Dave Balaban, Dave Wallerstein, Elmer Balaban, Harry Lustgarten, Jack Sampson, Nate Platt, Abe Kaufman, Joe Kaufman, and Elmer Immerman.

Others attending included: Harry and Elmer Balaban, Russ Uswetsky, J. P. Dromey, Henry Sticklemaier, Harry Rubens, Al Raymer, Al Rose, Percy Barr, Harris Silverberg, Lou Reinheimer, Sam Meyers, Duke Hickey, Felix Mendelssohn and Bob Snyder.

Remodeling K-P

GREENSBURG, IND.—The interior and exterior of the K-P Theatre is being remodeled by Walter Easley. Improvements will include a new boxoffice and auditorium floor. The work is being done during the morning, thus permitting an uninterrupted operating schedule. The job is expected to be completed by April 10.

Hess Tries Again

JEFFERSON CITY—A bill to legalize horse-racing and pari-mutuel betting in Missouri has been introduced by Rep. David Hess of St. Louis. He presented a similar bill at the 1939 session, but it died in committee. The revenue would go for old-age pensions.

Carnival Burned Up

MOBERLY, MO.—Twenty-six trucks and other property of the Imperial Shows, a carnival concern, and the Harris Lumber Co. buildings that served as winter quarters for the show, were destroyed by fire.

Bill Baker, left, being congratulated by James R. Grainger, Republic president, on his elevation to branch manager in Chicago. Baker succeeds Harry Lorch, who retires to devote his time to theatre interests.

'Fantasia,' 'Tobacco Road' Lead Good Chi Week

CHICAGO—Despite luke-warm reviews from the local critics, local fans apparently were curious to see the cinema version of the banned stage play, "Tobacco Road" with the result that the Chicago had one of its best weeks in some time. A cold spell the early part of the week didn't help business any in the loop. The hold-over duo, "Fantasia" and "Gone With the Wind," continued to pile up top grosses at the Apollo and Roosevelt respectively.

Detail for the week ended March 20:

(Average is 100)

Apollo—Fantasia (Disney), 4th roadshow wk.....200

Big Benefit Show for Paralysis Victims

ST. LOUIS—Names of the screen, stage and radio world combined in presenting a big benefit show Saturday night at Fanchon & Marco Fox for infantile paralysis sufferers in the St. Louis area.

Sponsored by the Variety Club as a means of raising funds for the construction of a building with facilities for paralysis victims, the show included, among others, such entertainers as the "Four Inkspots," popular Negro radio quartet; Professor Quiz of the radio, and Sally Foster, who was recently a guest artist on the Al Pearce airshow.

Harry C. Arthur jr., general manager of Fanchon & Marco and chief barker of the St. Louis Tent of Variety, said the contemplated structure would cost upwards of $150,000 and would contain vocational training shops, a swimming pool and other rehabilitation facilities.

Electrical Workers to Mediate Differences

ST. LOUIS—The threatened strike of American Federation of Labor electrical workers employed in this section, has been postponed pending negotiations in which federal mediators will participate.

Such a strike would tie up over 200 theatres in St. Louis, St. Louis county, eastern Missouri and southern Illinois and more than $100,000,000 in national defense contracts.

Fanchon & Marco Again Producing Police Circus

ST. LOUIS—The annual Police Circus, to be held at the Arena April 17 through April 30, will again be produced by Fanchon & Marco and will include about 325 performers. Tickets are now on sale. Net proceeds go to the Police Relief Ass'n which provides for widows and orphans of deceased policemen.

Gypsy Rose Lee Revue Bolsters "Little Men"

MILWAUKEE—Facing competition from the Home Show in the Auditorium, the Riverside with Gypsy Rose Lee and the film, "Little Men," and the Warner playing "Nice Girl?" and "Flight From Destiny," were leaders for the week.

Detail for week ending March 20:

(Average is 100)

Palace—Gone With the Wind (M-G-M), 2nd wk...125

INDIANAPOLIS

VISITORS: William T. Studebaker, Logan, Logansport; Mrs. Hilda Palmer Long, Hippodrome, Sheridan; Arthur B. Thompson, Park, North Vernon; Joe Schilling, Auditorium, Connersville; E. K. Crouch, Palace, Fairmount; Harry Van Noy, Paramount, Anderson; Harvey Cocks, Quimby circuit, Fort Wayne; John Doerr, Alliance Theatres, Chicago; Harold Reckley, Chateau, Greensburg; D. D. Lee, Princess, Cayuga, and A. McCarty, Roxy, Pendleton . . . The Variety Club's Greek War Relief Drive got off to a good start with a great deal of publicity being obtained through the efforts of the committee handling the affair. Radio time was donated, and photographs playing up the "Tag Day" were carried by local papers. George Settos was pictured as buying the first tag, and Dick Frank also demonstrated the manner of getting a tag by dropping a coin in the box. Another phase was a mythical testimonial dinner tendered Harris P. Wolfberg, district manager for M-G-M. Instead of having the dinner and spending the money for food, drinks and entertainment, all the funds were turned over to the Greek relief fund.

The Daisy closed for four days to permit remodeling and redecorating . . . Bingo, outlawed by the police department throughout the city, reappeared for a short time in "private homes" under the guise of a party. This was subjected to prompt action by the police . . . Many friends of Lowell T. Moore, who operated the Orpheum at Mitchell, attended his funeral in that city . . . Latest report concerning the reopening of the Tacoma which was damaged by fire a month ago, is that it will take another three weeks to get the theatre in shape . . . Elsie, the Borden "glamour" cow who has attained the rank of a film star, paid Indianapolis a visit, and as a consequence, gave her picture "Little Men" a plug.

The Tivoli, Gary, will install new RCA sound. The house is operated by Theatrical Managers, Inc. . . . Also, George Settos will change the name of the Amuzu in Oakland City, Ind., to the Ohio . . . In conjunction with the Indiana's showing of "A Girl, a Guy and a Gob," the U. S. Navy established a recruiting office in the theatre lobby . . . Claude Allison of the Strand started a sort of a chain-letter Conservation Club . . . Much newspaper and radio comment has been brought to bear on the subject of daylight saving time for Indianapolis. Through recent action by the legislature, it becomes the privilege of the city to use daylight saving if passed by the council. Most theatremen feel it would affect the boxoffice adversely.

The basketball season ended with the playoff for the high-school championship before an estimated 15,000 . . . John Peterson, manager of the Uptown, is preparing to leave for a year's service with the army. The same is true of Harold Marshall, M-G-M exploitation man . . . Had Hull, branch manager for Universal, has returned from a Florida vacation . . . Roy Churchill, branch manager of RKO, flew to California to be with his father who is seriously ill . . . Exhibitors Exchange, and the offices of John Servass, have been moved from Filmrow and are now located at his home north of the city . . . Phairy Shives of Warner is recovering from an appendectomy . . . Edward Carroll rejoins the Warner staff as shipper, after being discharged from the marine corps.

MILWAUKEE

"GONE With the Wind," playing four shows a day at Fox's Palace, has gone into its third and final week with three shows daily . . . "Tobacco Road," after two weeks at Fox's Wisconsin, has gone into the circuit's Strand for a third week . . . H. J. Mirisch's Oriental and Tower theatres operated daily a matinee policy in connection with the showing of "Kitty Foyle" and "Victory."

The Garden, dark for many months, is being used as a downtown pre-Easter preaching mission . . . Phillip R. McGovern, an uncle of Pat O'Brien, passed away here at the age of 82 . . . Plans are reported under way for a new 400*-seat theatre at Randolph.*

Warner's Venetian in Racine used Milwaukee newspaper advertising to plug a one-day stand of Henry Busse and his band . . . A 40-mile gale swung an auxiliary sign beneath the marquee in front of the Strand in Oshkosh so violently, that it smashed a number of light bulbs . . . Rollo Clark, who recently made a three-day appearance at one of the local Saxe houses, played the circuit's Jeffris in Janesville.

Tom Riley, manager of the Avalon, cooked up a display in the lobby of the house consisting of lost articles accumulated over a long period of time . . . The city council at Appleton has paved the way for the erection of two new theatres on Wisconsin Avenue in that city. Jack Silliman and Reuben Rosenblatt and their affiliates have announced plans for new houses.

Murray Wallace, 39, projectionist at the Uptown in Fort Atkinson, died last week . . . Peter L. Myers, 73, for many years manager of the Myers Theatre in Janesville, is dead. The house was erected by Myers' father and in recent years has been conducted by Fox. Myers is survived by his wife.

The Burlington Liars' Club, which has been instrumental in helping to make Burlington the liars' capital of the world, was seeking the world premiere showing of Warner's "The Great Lie," which will be held in Littleton, N. H., the star, Bette Davis' home town.

Add Many Dollars to Greek Relief Fund

CHICAGO—Over 400 theatres in Illinois made audience and lobby collections and put on special midnight benefit shows to raise funds for Greek War Relief.

Thirty-two benefit shows were conducted in downstate Illinois, with talent and employes of theatres conducting them donating their services.

In Indianapolis, Variety collaborated with the drive committee in putting on a Tag Day. Five hundred Butler University co-eds took up stations at important commercial intersections.

The Milwaukee area enrolled 150 theatres for collections and benefit shows, while 207 pledged collections and 16 midnight shows in the St. Louis territory.

Conduct Tag Day For Greek Cause

INDIANAPOLIS—The Variety Club conducted a Tag Day here as part of the local trade's contribution to the Greek War Relief Drive. Co-chairmen of the committee in charge were Dick Frank and Ken Collins. Also on the committee were Claude McKean, Marc Wolf, Al Blocker and Harold Marshall. Sorority girls and others from Butler University contributed their time for the cause.

Cast in "Caroline"

HOLLYWOOD—Jack Mulhall has been added to the cast of RKO's "My Life With Caroline."

ST. LOUIS

THE FOUR INKSPOTS, Negro quartet, and the Sunset Royal Orchestra, one of the country's leading Negro bands, head the stage show at the Fox . . . Advance sale of tickets for the Police Circus at the Arena the two weeks opening on April 17, is running some 12 per cent ahead of sales at the same period last year, according to the Police Relief Ass'n, sponsors of the show. Fanchon & Marco will be the producers.

Burton Holmes gave his fifth and final travelogue, "In Our United States," at the Municipal Opera House last week . . . Jane Stribling, St. Louis girl who has been dancing with the Music Hall Rockettes in New York, has returned home. She plans to teach at a dancing school. She will rejoin the St. Louis Municipal Opera the coming season.

Lunt & Fontanne in "There Shall Be No Night," drew $24,500 at the American in eight shows. This was the second best week of the season, being topped only by Katharine Hepburn in "Philadelphia Story" . . . The Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra will appear at the Municipal Auditorium April 29.

Elmer Esrock, formerly a doorman at Fanchon & Marco's Ambassador for about six years, has passed the examination for appointment to the St. Louis police force . . . Arnold Berger, manager of the Drive-In near Des Peres, Mo., is making plans for reopening April 12.

Missouri Bill Would End Theatre Tax Exemptions

JEFFERSON CITY—The senate has passed and sent to the house for action the bill of Sen. W. B. Whitlow, Fulton, a Democrat, to repeal a law of 1885 prohibiting cities of the third and fourth class from imposing licenses on opera houses. The bill was presented to the general assembly because in a recent ruling the Missouri supreme court held that the modern motion picture theatres in cities of the third and fourth class, have a legal right to enjoy the same immunity from license fees as the old opera houses of the late 80's.

The decision was handed down in a suit brought by the St. Louis Amusement Co. to set aside taxes imposed on four of its theatres in St. Louis county. The high court set aside the taxes, saying the theatres could not be forced to pay the license fees because of the 1885 law.

Frederickson Honored

LAFAYETTE, IND.—Harry Frederickson's campaign on "Land of Liberty" at the Lafayette has earned him an M-G-M Honor Roll Button. A mayoral proclamation, organizational screenings and educators' cooperation highlighted the exploitation.

Renew Film Gossip Airer

CHICAGO—Marian Whitney, Hollywood commentator in Chicago, has had her Tuesday-Friday evening broadcast contract renewed by its exhibitor-sponsors for another 26 weeks.

Herman DeVry Succumbs To Sudden Heart Attack

CHICAGO—Herman A. DeVry, local inventor and manufacturer of numerous motion picture devices, died here suddenly of a heart attack while bowling last Sunday. DeVry, founder and president of the DeVry Corp., manufacturers of film equipment, was 65 years old.

DeVry claimed credit for manufacturing the first sound equipment with plans drawn by Dr. Lee DeForest. The manufacturer was also credited by business associates with making the first sound pictures for use in the home.

Born in Germany, DeVry came to Chicago as a boy. He began his career as a builder of contrivances for the illusions of Harry Keller, Howard Thurston and other stage magicians. In 1913, becoming interested in the infant motion picture business, he turned to invention and manufacture with a capital of $125.

His first invention, a portable projector which could be carried in a suit case, proved a success. In 1914 he founded the DeVry Corp. which was bought by the Q. R. S. player piano roll company in 1929. He then formed Herman A. DeVry, Inc., which became the DeVry Corp. again when he bought the Q. R. S. company in 1932.

Funeral services were conducted from the Lain Chapel with burial at Rose Hill Cemetery. Surviving are his widow, Ida, two sons, William and Edward, and a daughter, Mrs. Emma Carlson.

National Theatre Supply Announces Recent Jobs

CHICAGO—With the recent installation of new sound equipment in their Southern, Essaness now has two of its houses so equipped. The circuit's American installed the equipment some time ago.

Other Chicago equipment sales, announced by R. W. Dassow, manager of National Theatre Supply here, include the following:

Essaness recently installed a pair of lamps in their Sheridan; Elmer Benesch installed a pair of lamps in his Century; Ben Banowitz and John Landis, installed lenses, a screen, projection, lamps and transverters at their Ken; Balaban circuit installed lamps at the Commercial; the Meltzer Bros. installed lamps and carpet at their Rockne; the Warner circuit installed projectors in the Beverly, Parthenon, Highland and Grove.

Out of town houses recently supplied by NTS include: Ken Childs, Times, Jacksonville, Ill., chairs, sound, screen, projectors and lamps, and carpet; M. Ewing, Lux, East Peoria, Ill., chairs, projection lamps and rectifiers, fluorescent carpet; W. Kohlhorst, Fairy, Nappanee, Ind., chairs, sound and projectors, lamps, carpet and rectifiers; Alger Circuit, State, Mendota, Ill., screen, lamps and rectifiers, and Billy Stone, Warner, Peoria, Ill., screen, carpet and new marquee and front.

Two Promotions Made by Metro Chicago Exchange

CHICAGO—Clarence Keim has been promoted from booker's clerk to booker at the local M-G-M exchange, following the recent drafting of Joe Kelleher. Kelleher is now stationed with the 17th cavalry in Imperial, Cal.

Other changes resulting in the vacancy created by the departure of Kelleher were the promotion of Frank Michels from poster clerk to booker's clerk and the addition of George Rose to the poster department.

: SPRINGFIELD :

MORE than 2,000 persons attended the midnight entertainment at the Orpheum for the benefit of Greek war relief. Total receipts were over $1,000. Dwight Green, governor of Illinois, and Mayor John Kapp, spoke briefly. Managers and owners of local theatres greeted those who attended. The show was the contribution of Springfield's theatres including the Esquire, Fox-Lincoln, Pantheon, Roxy, Senate, Southtown, State, Strand and Tivoli. All employes donated their services.

Bernard Palmer, formerly of Springfield, manager of Kerasotes Brothers' Lory in Highland, featured his new son, Lee Thomas, in birth announcements in the form of an invitation to a premiere, saying: "Admit one—any time—to the Palmer house, Highland, Illinois. Now showing, 'It's a Boy,' starring Lee Thomas Palmer, the tiny six pound, twelve ounce star. Helen Palmer, producer; Bernard Palmer, director. First showing 12 noon, Tuesday, March 18, 1941."

E. G. Peters of the Confection Cabinet Corp., St. Louis, is again servicing Springfield theatres, and local managers are glad to see him.

"Bob" Hickey, RKO publicity man, while in Springfield announced that "Citizen Kane" is finally going to be released . . . Dickie, son of Ray Coe, assistant manager of the Fox-Lincoln, has the mumps.

RKO Getting Ready to Desert "Old Filmrow"

CHICAGO—With RKO readying to move its exchange into the new RKO-Republic Bldg. at 13th & Wabash next fall, and Filmack and Alexander Film Co. now occupying their new quarters at 1325 S. Wabash Ave., the "Old Filmrow" centering in the vicinity of 9th & Wabash is a thing of the past.

At one time all the exchanges had their headquarters in the old Filmrow. RKO is the last of the exchanges to make the move from the old to the new Filmrow.

Three exchanges are now located in the Warner Bros. Bldg.—Warner, M-G-M and Republic. Twentieth Century-Fox and Capitol-Monogram are located on the northwest corner of 13th & Wabash while in the building on the southeast corner, Universal, Columbia and United Artists all have their exchanges. Paramount has its exchange at 13th & Michigan while PRC is located on the northeast corner of 13th & Wabash.

Exhibitors are following in the footsteps of the distribution companies and are also opening offices around the 13th & Wabash sector. Last week Albert and Ben Bartelstein of the Bartelstein Bros. circuit moved from Clark & Division to the third floor of the Exhibitor's Bldg., 1325 S. Wabash Avenue. The Bartelsteins operate the Annetta in suburban Cicero and the Elmo, Newberry, Standard and New La Salle in Chicago. Ben Banowitz, operator of the Ken, also recently opened an office on the third floor of the Exhibitor's Bldg.

Running Time Leash Measure's Proposal

ST. LOUIS—The text of the bill to regulate the length of motion picture programs in Missouri, which the Better Films Council of Greater St. Louis will present immediately before the general assembly in Jefferson City, follows:

"An Act: Relating to the exhibition of motion picture films; defining 'Exhibitor,' 'Intermission,' 'Single Performance;' providing violation of act a misdemeanor and fixing penalty for such violation.

"Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Missouri, as follows:

"Section 1. For the purpose of this act, 'Exhibitor' means any person, firm, corporation, or association who, directly or indirectly, is in the business of exhibiting motion picture films to the public for an admission fee.

"Section 2. For the purposes of this act, 'Intermission' shall mean a complete stoppage of performance of any kind on stage, platform, screen or otherwise and the house lights of the theatre, business house or place of exhibiting motion picture films to the public shall be continuously lighted during said intermission.

"Section 3. A 'Single Performance' shall include all exhibitions or attractions on the stage, platform, screen or otherwise, for a period not to exceed two and one-half hours.

"Section 4. It shall be unlawful for any exhibitor to present or cause to be presented a performance consisting of the exhibition on screens of one or more single motion picture films for a longer period than two and one-half consecutive hours, provided, however, that a performance may be shown for upwards of two and one-half hours, if at the beginning of each hour in excess of the two and one-half hour performance there is a period of intermission of 15 minutes. No intermission shall be required for a repeat performance of the same exhibitions or attractions, unless a single performance exceeds two and one-half hours.

"Section 5. Any exhibitor who violates the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof fined not less than one hundred dollars ($100) or more than five hundred dollars ($500), or be imprisoned in the county jail for not more than six months, or both, in the discretion of the court."

The Council sponsoring the bill is headed by Mrs. Guy Randall. It is composed of some 25 affiliated organizations with a total membership of 250,000 women. Col. Milton F. Napier, counsel for the Council, prepared the text of the bill.

Mrs. Randall and other officers and members of the Council, said it is their hope that the bill will result in film programs consisting of a single feature and selected shorts.

The Council has organized its forces behind a state-wide campaign in support of the measure.

Anti-SRO Ticket Sale Bill Up in Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY—Representative Paul Turner of St. Joseph has presented a "No Standing Room" tickets bill in the Missouri general assembly. Generally speaking, it would prohibit theatres and other places of public amusement from selling tickets after all of the seats have been occupied.

Milton Napier, counsel of the Better Films Council of Greater St. Louis, is expected here early this week to present to the assembly for consideration the council's bill to restrict the length of film shows.

Originally intended to ban triple feature programs in Missouri houses, the new bill has been drawn to restrict shows to 2½ hours. In the event a program does extend beyond this time limit it will be necessary for the management to provide a 15-minute intermission.

This intermission must be strictly non-entertainment. It would be necessary for the theatre management to turn on all of the house lights, darken the screen and not present any stage shows or other entertainment in this rest period.

It is believed exhibitors will endeavor to have the bill amended to permit three-hour shows.

Reports from St. Louis are that there has been a decided audience reaction against the four-hour shows that have prevailed in a number of the South St. Louis houses during the past few weeks and it is understood that all of the houses, both chain and independent, will eliminate those too lengthy shows, except on special occasions such as New Year's Eve, etc.

Would Tax Tickets For School Fund

DES MOINES—A bill to tax all amusement ticket admissions, with proceeds to go into the school fund, was passed Thursday by the house of representatives and sent to the senate for approval. The bill was amended to exempt motion picture admissions.

The bill, calling for a one-cent tax of theatre admissions up to 50 cents, and a two-cent tax on tickets from 50 cents to a dollar, is being opposed by exhibitors.

The Allied Theatre Owners and Operators of Iowa and Nebraska are reported to have dropped their fight on the candy machine bill, however, since the house ways and means committee cut it down to a $25 annual levy on coin-operated music boxes, thus cutting out the candy vending angle.

New Policy for Reopened Zimm in Winfield, Kas.

KANSAS CITY—The Fox Zimm, Winfield, Kas., has reopened under the management of Hugh Siverd. It will follow a new double feature policy, using a first run feature and short subjects for Sunday through Tuesday or Wednesday, and closing the week with a "reissue" double feature.

The Regent, under the new arrangement, will discontinue duals.

Would Bond Lessees

MINNEAPOLIS—An ordinance just introduced in the city council would require lessees bringing attractions into the Municipal Auditorium to post a bond or cash deposit to insure the payment of rental and local debtors.

A Bill to Regulate Ascap in Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY—A bill directly regulating the activities of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers in Missouri has been introduced in the general assembly by Representative Turner.

It makes it unlawful for persons or organizations to "issue blanket licenses in this state, for the right to commercially use or perform publicly their separate copyrighted works" except where such persons or organizations "issue licenses on rates assessed on a per piece system of usage."

It would also compel such persons and organizations to submit annually to the secretary of state "a complete list of their copyrighted works or compositions" and a list of the prices charged or demanded for their various works.

Violators would be punished by a fine not exceeding $500 or imprisonment in the county jail for not more than six months, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Assessment Is Reduced On A. H. Blank Home

DES MOINES—A decree reducing the 1933 four-year assessment valuation of the A. H. Blank home at 5206 Waterbury Road here nearly $5,000, has been filed in district court. Blank is president of the Tri-States Theatres Corp. and the Central States Theatres Corp. The decree holds that the assessment was "excessive, unjust, inequitable and discriminatory" and should be reduced to $15,899.

The Blank case is the second of some 15 which grew out of the failure of the old state board of assessment and review to act on appeals of valuation within the five years set by state law.

Twin Cities Worried Over Spread of Duals, Gifts

MINNEAPOLIS—The continuous spread of double features and giveaways in the Twin City area has the trade worried. Neighborhood and lower loop subsequent-run low admission houses are the chief offenders and the reason given is dwindling grosses.

Practically all neighborhood houses now have one or more cash and merchandise giveaway nights. The latest addition to the merchandise giveawayers is the St. Louis Park, ace suburban house, which has inaugurated beauty aid gifts, including cosmetics, lipsticks, rouge, etc. It has had one Bank Night per week.

The Edina, another leading suburban theatre, has added Spin-O to Bank Night and engaged Cedric Adams, the town's leading columnist and radio newscaster, as master of ceremonies for the former. The Nile, also a de luxe neighborhood house, is following suit.

Various giveaways include kitchenware, books, ornaments, furniture, etc. One theatre, the Empress, one day last week didn't even mention the name of its film in its newspaper ads which were devoted entirely to its "hot ovenware" giveaway.

More and more of the Twin City's neighborhood houses are extending their dual bills. Whereas they formerly had "midnight" shows with double features on Saturday only, a number use the policy on several other days a week. Several even are violating an unwritten agreement not to advertise the double pictures and are running them throughout the entire day.

Lower loop theatres using cash and other giveaways—either or both—are the Pantages, Palace, Stockholm and Gayety. The last-named just inaugurated the old-time "country store" and has five vaudeville acts on the weekends along with the double features at 15 cents admission.

Clearance Reduced On Minneapolis Duo

MINNEAPOLIS—Reduction of the Gopher and Grand theatres' clearance from 42 to 35 and 35 to 21 days, respectively, represents a victory for independent Minneapolis neighborhood houses. Both are Minnesota Amusement Co. loop first-run theatres. The Gopher has a 28-cent admission and the Grand plays double features for 15 cents to 5 p. m. and 28 cents thereafter.

Independents have been agitating for the reduction for the past two years. The distributors granted it voluntarily.

Price Dip at Sterling

STERLING, KAS.—The Royal has adopted a new price policy and in the future all adult tickets will be 20 cents plus one cent tax; children's tickets 10 cents. Since the lowering of prices the bargain night on Tuesdays will be discontinued.

They Ask About The Giveaway

Minneapolis — Many exhibitors now say they are receiving numerous inquiries from prospective patrons who want to know the sort of giveaway scheduled for that particular night and who don't even bother to ask the name of the picture.

It used to be, they say, that about 95 per cent of telephone calls were for the purpose of finding out the film being shown, but that percentage has fallen sharply. It may be due in part, however, to the fact that the houses are advertising the name of their picture attractions in the newspapers, but aren't allowed to specify the cash giveaway. At the same time, merchandise and similar giveaways are played up in the theatres' newspaper ads.

"Barkers' Carnival" By Kaycee Variety

KANSAS CITY—The first big event on the 1941 program of the local Variety Club will be a "Barkers' Carnival," according to Leland Allen of the Commonwealth circuit, who is chairman of the entertainment committee.

This event, one of four in 1941 to be open to the public, will be held in the clubrooms Friday and Saturday, April 11 and 12. The program will be built around the carnival motif, with side shows and other entertainment stunts adding to the gayety of the occasion.

This affair in former years was titled "Days of '49."

"Land of Liberty" Bally Stresses Patriotism

KANSAS CITY—"Land of Liberty," presented as a second picture at the Midland for a week, was locally credited with results "for the cause" far beyond those reflected in the boxoffice. John McManus had given this production carefully designed publicity, promotive of loyalty and patriotism—and incidentally tending to induce attendance. A letter from the mayor, for example, on the picture and its idea was reproduced, in enlargements, and displayed in numerous ways, including a stand in the foyer of the theatre. Posters had been prepared particularly for school children, displayed in most local schools. There were also posters for store window display, and for street cars.

The actual response in attendance was not extraordinary, but it seemed certain that thousands had experienced an uplift in devotion to the country's cause—and in appreciation of citizenship in the United States. And this result was thought to be very well worth effort and cost, additional to, or even aside from, the attendance attracted.

Midwest Responds to Greek Relief Drive

KANSAS CITY—Over 300 theatres in the Kansas City trade territory participated in the Greek War Relief Drive with special midnight benefit shows or collections from patrons. The midnight show here was held at the Midland, with others put on in Wichita, Hutchinson and Springfield.

More than 100 theatres in the Omaha zone took up collections, while big midnight shows were held in Omaha and Lincoln.

In the Minneapolis area, nearly 75 theatres put on benefit shows and more than double that number took up collections.

Twin Cities Slate Fine Shows for Greek Cause

MINNEAPOLIS—Two of the biggest and finest shows ever staged in the Twin Cities are in prospect for the Minneapolis and St. Paul Orpheums midnight April 2 and 4, respectively, for the benefit of Greek war relief.

A half-hour concert by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra will start the entertainment. It will be followed by acts from the Lyceum, Orpheum and Alvin theatres and from radio stations and night clubs. Three of the principals of the musical comedy, "Blossom Time," scheduled for the Lyceum, will be on the bill. So will the Ray Herbeck and Ran Wilde orchestras from the Orpheum and Nicollet Hotel Minnesota Terrace, respectively. Ralph Edwards of "Truth and Consequence" radio show will be master of ceremonies.

Other shows are scheduled throughout the entire territory and there will be collections taken in many houses, including Twin City neighborhood situations. John J. Friedl, Minnesota Amusement Co. president, is general chairman of the drive for the theatre industry in the Northwest. The territory's goal is $32,000.

Co-chairmen with Friedl are E. R. Ruben, Fred Strom and Harold Johnson. C. B. Stiff heads the Minneapolis and St. Paul committee.

Splendid Support by Kansas City Area

KANSAS CITY—The Greek War Relief Drive received splendid support throughout the Kansas City exchange area, reports Robert F. Withers of Republic-Midwest, who headed the distributors' committee. Reports from the more than 300 theatres that cooperated in the drive in this area, exceeded expectations in the majority of instances. In several of the towns, radio stations tied in with theatres to put the drive across.

See Revamp Ahead for MPTO in Nebraska

LINCOLN — The pilgrimage of MPTOA President Ed Kuykendall to Nebraska to put life into his national organization's cornbelt arm has prospect of bearing more virile fruit than was hoped for originally.

According to several interested exhibitors, the hope is that Nebraska will be organized statewide, and cross-sectioned into congressional district groups with vice-presidents who will act as chairmen at the sectional meetings. This will knock out the old-fashioned way of meeting always in Omaha, which was extremely distasteful to the outstate exhibitor, who had fears of being always outtalked and being part of the motive force by which some exchange center plan was pushed.

Prior to the scheduled all-industry meeting, April 22, for the MPTOA organization in Omaha, which will be attended by Kuykendall, R. R. Livingston, of the Capitol here, is going to have all the state showmen interested in for a dinner session to meet Governor Dwight Griswold, and other state officers, pointing the value of a united front.

In scanning the state for likely successors to the late Charlie Williams of Omaha, as president of the state unit, Kuykendall talked to Livingston. The Capitol exhibitor, oldest in the state trade (33 years), has been the film lobbyist, the show business' political liaison officer, and general front man for industry troubles.

Kuykendall to Coast On Convention Plans

KANSAS CITY—The MPTOA convention will be held around the first week in June at a city to be selected shortly, Ed L. Kuykendall, president, said during a stopover here en route to the west coast.

The MPTOA head only a week earlier inspected the facilities of nearby Excelsior Springs in his tour of convention site candidates. Despite earlier rejection of Los Angeles it is believed that town probably will be selected. Kuykendall, however, said he would not make his report and recommendation to the board until he had completed his current trip.

Kuykendall decried the activities of decree "snipers," declaring that everyone concerned should put forth an effort to make the document work. While he admittedly was dubious of long-range benefits that might accrue to the independent exhibitor from its operation, he argued that it should be given a fair trial.

Settles for $100

MINNEAPOLIS—E. J. Baehr, owner of the Avalon, Thief River Falls, Minn., settled a damage suit here for $100 for permitting youngsters in the audience to shoot beans. The suit was brought in district court by the mother of a boy who was struck in the eye by a bean while watching the show.

The Docket

Minneapolis

CASE NO. 1—Filed March 5. Demand and submission involving some run. White Bear Theatre Corp., operator of the White Bear at White Bear Lake, Minn. With: Loew's, Inc., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. Named as interested party: State, same town. Complainant alleges the distributors named refuse to license his theatre for 1940-41 product in favor of the State. The Avalon, opposition house, has filed an intervener with the board.

CASE NO. 2—Filed March 12. Demand and submission demanding some run. David Gillman, operator of the Gayety, Minneapolis, Minn. With: Paramount Pictures Dist. Corp. Complainant alleges the distributor refuses to sell product to the Gayety at a fair rental and is making unreasonable demands in the matter of booking such pictures.

CASE NO. 3—Filed March 12. Demand and submission demanding some run. David Gillman, operator of the Gayety, Minneapolis. With: 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. Complainant charges 20th-Fox is refusing to sell product to the Gayety.

Outline Depinet Drive In Prairie District

MINNEAPOLIS—L. E. Goldhammer, RKO prairie district manager, joined the Ned E. Depinet Drive touring squad here for coverage of the Minneapolis, Omaha and Des Moines branches. Leo Devaney, drive captain, and Harry Michalson, short subject sales manager, went on to the western district to be joined in Denver by Herb McIntyre, western district manager.

New Seat Deals

KANSAS CITY—Frank L. Bowen, of International Seat Corp., reports that International seats have been installed in A. W. Heyl's Kaw at Junction City and in the Civic at Sabetha.

"Gay Vagabond" to North

HOLLYWOOD—Robert North will produce "A Gay Vagabond" for Republic. William Morgan will direct the comedy.

Kaycee Arbitration Panel Adds Eight

KANSAS CITY—Eight more professional and business men have been added to the arbitration panel of the motion picture tribunal here.

The new members and their firms are: Paul Barnett, lawyer, Dierks Bldg.; Glen L. Bennett, Equitable Life Assurance Association of the United States, Federal Reserve Bank Bldg.; Wendell Cloud, lawyer, Waldheim Bldg.; Russell F. Greiner, Greiner-Fifield Lithographic Co., 2609 Walnut; John Thornberry, lawyer, 1601 Admiral; John E. Jones, First National Assurance Association, Land Bank Bldg.; Proctor Kerr, Arthur Young and Co., 101 W. 11th St., and Guy B. Park, lawyer, Federal Reserve Bank Bldg.

White Bear Opposition Arbitration Intervener

MINNEAPOLIS—So that it can be a party in the proceedings resulting from the complaint filed by the White Bear Theatre, White Bear Lake, Minn., the Avalon, opposition house there, has filed an intervener with the arbitration board. The White Bear is seeking to obtain some run of Metro, Warner, RKO and Fox pictures, now sewed up by the Avalon.

Ignoring arbitration, Lee and Carisch are working through Northwest Allied to obtain a reduction in the 35-day clearance granted to Minneapolis houses over their Mound Theatre at Mound, Minn., a local suburb. They claim that the protection enjoyed by theatres here is ruinous to their house.

OMAHA

LOU EGART, former Brandeis treasurer, sent a letter and picture from Fort Leavenworth where he's now in the army. Lou looks great in a uniform. His place at the Brandeis was taken by Pat Marksbury, formerly at the Orpheum in Sioux City, Ia. Marksbury has been with the Singer circuit about four years, is married and has one child . . . E. O. Raymond, manager of the Winn, said burglars broke into his theatre and took $8 in nickels from a candy machine . . . Earl Kerr, Iowa circuit operator, was on Davenport St. Also H. V. Mullins, formerly at Glenwood, Ia., and now an exhibitor at Massina, Ia. . . . A warm day brought many exhibitors to Filmrow and they were in a happy, optimistic mood.

Signs of spring: Bill Barker, salesman, walking down Filmrow in shirt sleeves . . . Harry Levy, Fox salesman, in a snappy looking topcoat . . . Elmer Huhnke, Minne Lusa operator, in a grey outfit . . . The Metro porter washing the windows . . . F. A. Thomassen working in shirt sleeves in front of Scott-Ballantyne Co. loading some equipment into his car . . . Talk about a spring golf tournament along Filmrow.

Wes Mansfield, exhibitor at Tama, Ia., was in Omaha en route to visit some farm properties in outstate Nebraska. His father and mother were with him . . . Lou Heal, exhibitor at Fullerton, Neb., was on Filmrow accompanied by his very attractive daughter, Joy, who is taking a pre-nursing course at Hastings, Neb. . . . Visitors also included R. V. Fletcher, Hartinton, Neb., and Bill Peterson, Genoa, Neb.

Now that Ted Mendenhall is moving to Kansas City, it will mean a lot of new chairmen for various activities here. Mendenhall turned over his Greek War Relief duties to his co-chairman, Joe Kinsky, Tri-States district manager. The new chief barker of Omaha Variety Club will be named later, it was decided at a meeting this week . . . Carl Johnson, Grand, Red Oak, Ia., and Phil Lannon, West Point, Neb., were visitors to Filmrow.

C. K. Olson, Warner manager, and Manager Will Singer of the Brandeis were caught gloating over the big business done by "Strawberry Blonde." The picture will be held for two weeks, which means the seventh straight holdover for the Brandeis, all-time record for Omaha . . . Ted Emerson is a plenty busy man these days, what with managing the Omaha and handling advertising and promotion for Tri-States in this district. He's Omaha

Add to the "hit" parade the Universal exchange, deeply hit by the illness of John Kane, who won't be back for a week or ten days; Martha Rozier, a tonsillitis victim, and Betty Wrenn, out of the office because of a death in the family.

Don't be afraid to say hello to the big bad man in chaps and sombero; it's only Al Adler, M-G-M, back from a Texas vacation . . . Beloit, Beloit, Kas., has a new screen; People's, Garnett, Kas., has new projection room arc lights, and the Royal, Fairview, Kas., is being remodeled. It really looks like "sprig has cub."

Those of you who read that item last week about "Chet" Ward, Paramount, recovering from appendicitis, and failed to place the name, can put your mind at ease. A mistake in spelling—it should have been "Chet" Borg, Warner, who returned to work. It Was Earl Ogan of Paramount who recovered from appendicitis operation and came back on duty.

Shields Wilson, Camden, Camdenton, Mo., in town the other day, seemed deeply impressed on how nicely the fish were feeding from the lines of various acquaintances, at the Lake of the Ozarks . . . Warner exchange is going to have a party. Everything's been decided—well-l, almost everything. They're going to have dinner and follow up with a screening. They just haven't decided when.

At that March 24 meeting of the Advertising Club, when the lady members took over, Mrs. Ethel Gustafson, United Film Ad Service, presided.

A two-gun bandit showed up at the Granada, Lawrence, Kas., and he wasn't part of a "western" either. He was all set to rob Cashier Betty Shapely and Manager Jack Kempton but Betty wouldn't stop screaming and Jack wouldn't stop yelling. The bandit pocketed his two guns and ran away.

Not to change the subject, some bandits gave Manager "Punch" Roberts, Grand, Concordia, Kas., a literal interpretation of "Gone With the Wind" when they broke into his office and rifled the safe of $539, Sunday night's receipts from a "Gone With the Wind" showing.

Elwood and Billy Worl are now operating the Cozy, Geneseo, Kas., having leased same from Hiram Hyde.

DES MOINES

PURELY personal piffle: Today we received our annual "Motion Picture Representative" card from Burton Jerrel which gives us leave to do anything we can get permission from someone to do, as nearly as we can figure it out . . . Burton asks that we (Girl Scout Newsreel Patrol, No. Z-54-A, is the official title La Jerrel hands us) drop him a line in code . . . well here 'tis: No hay de que . . . and if Dear Editor Formby doesn't find our own copy reader, Haig & Haig, on the floor frothing at the mouth over this, we don't recognize a typicgraphical mess when we see one.

Personal piffle continued: BOXOFFICE & Co. today received a couple of little pairs of wings signifying that they are at least student pilots and members-at-large (any reason why we shouldn't be at large?) of the National Aeronautics Ass'n . . . we've never felt much more set up about anything since we sold & Co. on the idea of taking us to wife.

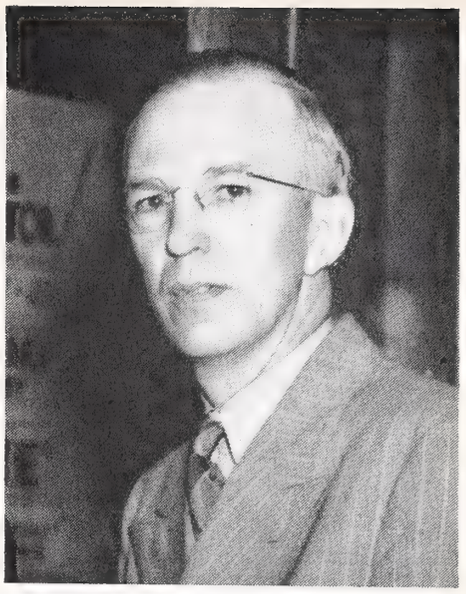
Forgive us, but more of the same: We received a letter from the Great Benny himself today, and if we read it correctly, it means that youse guys on the Row are about to find BOXOFFICE camped on your doorsteps more often than ever before, and you'd better be prepared to give, too. Those slated for extra-special attention are Art Schuyler, Art Thiele, Bob Hildreth, Lou Patz, Iles & McKinney, Morris Smith, Carroll Baldwin and the fella who makes all those pretty neon thinga-majigs (Modern Lighting & Mfg.), also Burton Jerrel who insulted our idea of editorial integrity so completely once when we first started in this business that we like to never forgave him.

Speaking of that Jerrel person reminds us that Dorothy was pictured in a very pensive mood last Sunday as one of the newly elected members of the Junior League. Joe Fieldman is glumping around in the dumps because the missus is still laid up in the hospital and is slated for a couple of more weeks occupation in that 16-pound cast because her shoulder is not healing as rapidly as expected. Grace Simons spent it all last week on a new navy blue suit with cape, but Gracie's gotta look chic at any cost. After all this time, we just noticed that faded yellow lettering on lift of a National Screen step reading, "Majestic Pictures."



Comes a letter from Charles Levy, the blond wonder boy at RKO, with the unbelievable news that he has stricken, deleted and eliminated from his vocabulary the words "colossal" and "terrific" . . . Why? He's been reading Dale Carnegie who suggests that publicity should undersell rather than overplay . . . we give the new order about three weeks, Charlie, and you'll be sitting as usual a-top one of those big piles of guff you put out about the supergumslopshus RKO product.

Harry Holdsberg claims to have had the absolute first preview of "The Lady From Cheyenne" at the Des Moines last Saturday night . . . The new Frank Lloyd film was pushed into the program in a hurry when Jack Skirball stopped to greet old pals here and had a print in his baggage . . . Skirball, we hear, used to sell film out this way . . . The pals Bob Haley picked up in Des Moines while he was pinch-hitting for Emil Franke at the Orpheum will be delighted to hear that mustachioed Bob won a "technical achievement" award at Chicago's "Academy Award Dinner for Chicago Motion Picture Smarts and Alliances" . . . His achievement was his "ability to carry the torch" . . . But what BOXOFFICE & Co. want to know is why Art Catlin got that special award he's said to have received.

Art Anderson telephoned & Co. from Minneapolis with the cheerful little earful that Sam Clark, Warner's bouncing ballyhooer, was headed this way and to get set . . . BOXOFFICE & Co. were already tied up for dinner with the Emil Frankes plus blue-eyed, black-haired, soft-spoken Hoffman, nize p. a. for "Funzafire," Emil's next bid for the hippo's share of the DM biz. Elmer Tilton and Gene Melone were both informed of the coming of Sam, who arrived with the sniffles and some big black cigars put up in those cute silver-looking containers.

Al Hill says Dallas Day is being held up a bit in Rochester to practice up on his walking, but that we'll be seeing him around pretty soon . . . Bing Miller's Judy Elaine was seven months old March 22 and was a fifth anniversary present for the Miller family . . . Bing moans now because of the delay, claiming that the five-year plan is no good . . . Still shaking his head and denying everything is Jean Post who says, "That's silly, can't you see I work down here every night?" Jerry Slutsky wants to know if anybody knows where he can get a job for young Jerry (a strapping big guy of nine months) . . . Jerry admits that Junior can't walk yet

Sam Clark, Warner studio publicity man, in from Hollywood for a few days . . . Eph Rosen, who recently resigned as Monogram branch manager, still planning that trip to Memphis, Tenn., and New York to visit his brothers.

Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included "Doc" Reynolds, Princeton, Minn.; Tom Hall, Buhl, Minn.; Charlie Lyons, Aitken, Minn.; Tom Novak, Glencoe, Minn.; Homer Steeg, Sanborn, Minn.; Don Buckley, Redwood Falls, Minn.; Ed Malone, Alma, Wis.; and Will Rostvold, Harmony, Minn. . . . Norman Pyle, M-G-M exploiteer, still carrying his left arm in a sling as the result of that wrist breakage caused by slipping on an icy sidewalk . . . Rud Lohrenz, Warner district manager, in town.

Last Saturday was a big day for "Hy" Chapman, Columbia branch manager, and his wife. Their daughter, Marjorie, was married to Byron Shapiro. The Chapman brothers, Milwaukee film men, were up for the event . . . Ray Hurwitz, National Screen special service department head, in Chicago for conferences with his company's laboratory officials . . . Gilbert Nathanson, Republic branch manager, visited Iron Range towns . . . George Crane, Lake City, Minn., exhibitor, is in the army.

Sidney Volk, independent circuit owner, and his sister, Mrs. Joe Crane, motored to Hot Springs, Ark., for an early spring vacation . . . Bill Crystal now associated with the Constance Bennett Cosmetics, theatre giveaway proposition . . . Welworth circuit managers held a meeting here this week . . . Oliver LaMere, M-G-M booker, goes into the army in April. He will have a lieutenant's commission . . . Izzy Schlenk, United Artists' district manager, a visitor.

Joe Podoloff, 20th-Fox branch manager, back from his first Florida visit with a fine coat of tan and raves for the 'Gator state as a vacation spot . . . The Film Bowling league wound up its season with M-G-M leading the exchanges—in third place behind the Maico Reds and Theatre Service. Prizes were awarded at a dinner . . . Harry Katz, Alvin Theatre impresario, celebrated a birthday.

Abe Kaplan, independent circuit owner, driving a new car . . . Wife of the popular George Granstrom, St. Paul independent circuit owner, continuing to improve and should be up and around in a few months. Rides an arm chair now. She sustained serious injuries in an auto accident last summer . . . Myer Stern, Omaha "Bank Night" distributor, up from Omaha to visit his brother, J. L., Majestic exchange owner.

Joe Rosenberg has moved in to take over distribution of Constance Bennett theatre giveaway cosmetics . . . Bennie Berger still trying to persuade distributors to give him a 20 cent run for his loop sure-seater, the Esquire, which has been closed now for several months . . . Sid Gillman, son of Dave and brother of Irving, local independent exhibitors, has been appointed head football coach at Dennison University in Ohio. He formerly was Ohio State assistant coach.

A Building Spurt in Minneapolis Area

MINNEAPOLIS — Theatre building and modernization are pointing upward again in the territory.

A $125,000 neighborhood theatre, the Norshore, is being built by the Minnesota Amusement Co. in Duluth.

In Hopkins, a local suburb, a $150,000 showhouse is in the course of construction. The Engler brothers are building it.

L. J. Ludwig has completed the remodeling of the Opera House at Jamestown, N. D., and will reopen it as the Grand.

A new $75,000 theatre will be built by Harry Dickerman, local independent circuit owner, at Durand, Wis. Dickerman also is remodeling his Arcade in St. Paul.

So. American Troubadors To Make Republic Film

KANSAS CITY—Olivia and Joaquin, South American troubadors, who have appeared in the Zephyr Cocktail Lounge of the Hotel Bellerive for the past year, have left for Hollywood and Republic Studios. Their first film will be Republic's "Down Mexico Way," starring Gene Autry. The pair entertained last week at a Variety Club luncheon.

Arlene Finucane and Helen Dittermore, singers and instrumentalists, and Grace Massey astrologist, are the new entertainers at the Lounge.

Change at Lamarr, Mo.

LAMARR, Mo.—The Plaza will be taken over from George Hart by A. J. Simmons, April 1.

LINCOLN

EASY READING: About 25 per cent of the staff personnel of the local theatres (male) have received their draft questionnaires . . . Even Bob Huffman, who has a wife and four little deferments . . . Eugene Shanahan, not long married, has already gained ten pounds . . . Paul Anderson is having tooth trouble . . . When the audience refused to applaud an amateur act at the Lincoln, somebody said: "Must have given up applause for Lent."

Bill Messmer, KFOR announcer, was reading a commercial in the midst of Mrs. Barney Oldfield's broadcast, and was supposed to tell of "two HIT pictures." He called 'em "hick pictures" . . . Roy Anderson was patrolling the streets in a car, on the back of which was a big sign "Can She Be a Nice Girl?" (plugging the picture of the same name). He had his girl friend with him, and was dismayed to hear some rowdy call from the curb: "Not if she'll ride with you!" . . . Bob Huffman played nine holes of golf, but couldn't find enough balls to go the other nine.

It was nip and tuck when Sol Yeager left Omaha. He didn't know whether he'd be joining Universal in Minneapolis or the army . . . Good bet: That Bob Livingston will be the new Nebraska president of MPTOA, taking the post formerly held for many years by the late Charlie Williams . . . Harvey Traylor says he has no enmity for the opposition: "Gee," says he, "we even like to have our checker stand right in the opposition lobby" . . . Looks so familiar now to see the George Monroe family car parked in front of the Colonial, which is just another indication that spring is about here.

Joe Rosenberg says there's a big difference when a man's foolish—or foolin' . . . Lee Mischnick, former theatre manager here, but now in Omaha (Dundee), invites people to "come out in the country in Omaha" to see him . . . Note to Vinnie DiFiore: One of those amateur acts which played the Lincoln, a girl's trio, may soon go with Seger Ellis' orchestra. Makes ya feel like Major Bowes, eh? . . . Nebraska is doing well by Larraine Gettman, who once lived in Lincoln and Omaha, and appears in "Ziegfeld Girl." It refutes that libelous view so long held that all cornbelt girls look cornfed. All the papers have used features on her—pushed by Lou Hellborn.

Odds and ends: Whatever became of Cal Bard? . . . One would think F.O.B. was terrific on theatre building supplies, considering how many theatres are about to be built in Omaha right by the supply houses . . . Ed Schoenthal, if he hasn't already, should put in for air corps, what with all his flying hours, single status, etc. . . . Bonnie Aumiller and Jimmie Redmond are rumored digging out their fishpoles for another season of river banking down in Fairbury . . . Two guys who'd have a lot of fun together: Howard Federer and Oscar Johnson, the rootin-tooters of Lincoln and Falls City . . . Dean Pohlenz paid off for Hollywood's entertainment of the Journal and Star 10 best pictures winners, by running a full page spread of art and story on them.

K. C. Entertainment Field Attractive

KANSAS CITY—Liberal patronage of entertainment continued the past week, but at a slower pace than the previous week; two first run theatres having better-than-average results, some running below average. Packed houses were reported for the Philharmonic orchestra, and for Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, at the Music Hall, within the week under review. The largest returns, proportionately, at first run houses was won by a Major Bowes unit which, as usual, pulled the crowds in at the Tower; the picture, "Barnyard Follies," playing second fiddle but in tune. "Tobacco Road" was held over three days at the Esquire and Uptown, for a total 10-day return far above average. "Nice Girl?" which followed at these two theatres, also drew above-average business. Weather was generally fine.

Detail for week ending March 21:

(Average is 100)

Esquire—Nice Girl? (Univ) 115
Midland—Come Live With Me (M-G-M); Land of Liberty (M-G-M) 90
Newman—Footsteps in the Dark (WB) 85
Orpheum—Strawberry Blonde (FN); Texas Rangers Ride Again (Para't) 100
Tower—Barnyard Follies (Rep), plus Major Bowes stage show 120
Uptown—Nice Girl? (Univ) 105

"Buck Privates" Holds Top Minny Spot Second Week

MINNEAPOLIS—The past week's boxoffice sensation was "Buck Privates," which, in its second week at the Gopher, did even better than in its initial canto. It was the first picture ever to hold over at that house. "Tobacco Road," at the State, was another good boxoffice performer. "Gone With the Wind," too, held up splendidly at the Century.

(Average is 100)

Aster—In Old Colorado (Para't); Little Men (RKO) 90
Century—Gone With the Wind (M-G-M), 2nd run, 2nd wk. 150
Gopher—Buck Privates (Univ), 2nd wk. 160
Orpheum—The Westerner (UA), plus stage show 80
State—Tobacco Road (20th-Fox) 110
World—Strawberry Blonde (FN), 2nd wk. 100

"Tobacco Road" Draws Top Honors in Omaha

OMAHA—Theatre business continued on a satisfactory but not sensational level this week. Warm, clear weather helped some but the Lenten season was cutting in on grosses.

Brandeis was able to keep its holdover record of six straight by keeping "High Sierra" and "Tugboat Annie Sails Again" for an extra two days. Possibility next bill may break the holdover record which started January 1 and set a new extended run record for Omaha.

"Tobacco Road" drew top honors at the Orpheum. The second feature, "Buck Privates," was the previous week's top picture and was "held over by popular demand."

"Footsteps in the Dark" and "Golden Hoofs" were only so-so at the Omaha.

Detail for week ending March 23:

(Average is 100)

Brandeis—High Sierra (FN); Tugboat Annie Sails Again (WB), 9 days 135
Omaha—Footsteps in the Dark (WB); Golden Hoofs (20th-Fox) 110
Orpheum—Tobacco Road (20th-Fox); Buck Privates (Univ) 130
State—Margie (Univ); Go West (M-G-M); Gallant Sons (M-G-M) 100

Des Moines First Runs Uniformly Below Par

DES MOINES—The customers laughed until tears came into the exhibitors' eyes in Des Moines last week. With comedies heading bills at all first run houses, each did prattfalls more bruising than amusing. Ninety per cent of average was the top take, with the consoling note that that figure was shared and none of the returns fell down far enough to cause any fancy furrowing of foreheads.

Detail for the week ending March 27:

(Average is 100)

Des Moines—The Lady Eve (Para't); Father's Son (WB) 90
Orpheum—A Girl, a Guy and a Gob (RKO); Lone Wolf Takes a Chance (Col) 80
Paramount—Buck Privates (Univ); You're the One (Para't) 90

"Private Secretary" Grabs Gross Honors in Lincoln

LINCOLN—"Andy Hardy's Private Secretary" intrigued most people here last week, and put up the mark to shoot at in money taken.

"Tobacco Road," which had lots of people thinking they were going to see the stage play for some reason, drew good money. "Road Show" was so bad it could only stagger four days of its scheduled week.

Detail for the week ending March 21:

(Average is 100)

Colonial—Carolina Moon (Rep); Meet Dr. Christian (RKO) split with Millionaire Playboy (RKO); Ridin' the Cherokee Trail (Mono) 110
Lincoln—Andy Hardy's Private Secretary (M-G-M) 125
Nebraska—Trial of Mary Dugan (M-G-M); Keeping Company (M-G-M) 100
Stuart—Tobacco Road (20th-Fox) 110
Varsity—Road Show (UA) 85

chairman of the Greek War Relief drive, also.

Exhibitors are getting their booth equipment ready for spring business, the theatre supply men here report. This week there were a lot of exhibitors in all three supply houses here: Scott-Ballantyne, Quality and Western. It's believed the national defense boom has already hit this section. One exhibitor reported that his business now was "much above average for the Lenten season."

Every exhibitor in the territory should plan to attend the industry gathering here April 22. Plans are progressing rapidly for a full day and evening of business and entertainment. Omaha Variety Club, as sponsor, wants everyone to attend at least the business sessions, which are free. If you can plan to stay for the dinner-dance, all the better. Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA prexy, will be the principal speaker.

.....AW, SHUCKS!.....

From the Tall Corn—By KEN and RENE CLAYTON

LOOKS as if Ed Mason's likely to find things a little crowded out on the Cedar river this summer . . . H. A. Anderson has given up trying to make an outside loop at 3,000 feet compete with Ed's version of a figure eight on water as a thriller . . . H. A., who operates the Roxy at St. Ansgar, is out looking for a motor boat that will (unassisted) make as much noise as Ed's (with help) . . . The industry is already collecting for flowers, 'cause there's only 11 miles betwixt Osage and St. Ansgar, which isn't much for those two admirable admirals.

Anderson expects to take up seamanship without getting seasick, in view of his considerable flying experience . . . But he's had his experience with passengers who scatter more than "Test Pilot" handbills over Iowa alfalfa.

Jack Neary doesn't limit his responsibilities to entertainment in Davenport. When 145 persons were left homeless by a $100,000 fire in the Perry apartments at Davenport Sunday, Neary proved himself the Florence Nightingale of the industry by providing space in the Orpheum for the Red Cross to set up relief headquarters.

It's getting so DM is more than "the market place of Iowa." Those state borders simply can't hold the DM Filmrow . . . That young fella you saw coming out of the RKO offices, f'rinstance, was Burdette Ross from the Royal at Fulton, Ill. . . . Making the quick dash in and out of Universal across the street was Eben Hayes, from the Time at Memphis, Mo. . . . And just coming down the street past Warner and Columbia was Rasmussen from Keister and LeRoy, Minn.

Any of you exhibitors who have home-building aspirations can pick up a few tips from Joseph Diener, retired Dubuque, Ia., theatre manager. Diener's new two-story English-style home has the town goggling with its black glass fireplace in a 14x27 living room, its brick fireplace in a basement recreation room and its block glass sunroom.

C. V. Schofield ordered a plastic surgery job on his Blackhawk at Lansing, Ia., and customers are now gaping at a remodeled front and lobby.

L. A. Kuhl had to make umpsteen trips from his Corning, Ia., American to the DM Row before we discovered just last week that he's a brother of Izzie Kuhl who lists his name on the stationery of two houses way out west (well, a little way, anyway) in Seward, Neb.

Jack Kuech is now operating the Mode in Cresco. Kuech, who also handles the Gem in Charles City, took it over from Mr. Tuchek, who opened the house not so many moons ago.

A. N. Deaver, the professor from Lamoni, It., (home of Graceland College) wasn't the only educational influence on the Row last week. Iowa City, where the university scholarships are handed out, was represented by Ray Lumsden of the Pastime and Leonard Kaplan of the Iowa. Louis Gaines of the Fairfield (Parsons College) Co-ed showed up, too, and J. Anderson made one of his rare trips in from his New Holland at Pella, the site of Central College.

Frank Shipley, the Lenox, Ia., tack-toter, was on the Row looking for some pointed business deals. Bob Bernau, the Lake City organ-grinder, was around pumping up business, too.

Ed Nordhus of the Strand in McGregor spent most of his time on High Street busily keeping quiet, as is his wont . . . Tim Evans, now of Lyons, Ia., stopped in to tell his old RKO pals business is picking up . . . The Smith Brothers from Corydon maintained regular schedules and Butch Lambert from the Monty at Monticello flashed through the Row on a quickie.

Carl Furstnow of the Hollywood in Estherville, Ia., has started work with Bob Hildreth, the sign, stencil and silhouette magnate of 514 Twelfth Street (adv.)

Harold Moore isn't worrying about seeing double this weekend . . . In fact, he'd like a portion of triple-vision, please . . . Maybe then he could keep his pitch game in five-ace form, his Allerton-Dayton-Ratcliffe circuit business above par, and follow the state high school basketball tournament at the same time.

Goldberg Enterprises Plan Amusement Center

OMAHA—Plans for construction of a new residential amusement center, to be called the Farnam, have been announced by the R. D. Goldberg Enterprises, which operates a local circuit of seven theatres. Cost will run into several hundred thousand dollars, it is estimated.

A new theatre, seating 950 patrons, will be the central unit. Other units will include a bowling alley, restaurant and lounge. Work will begin about August 15.

Ralph D. Goldberg, circuit head, visited Los Angeles where he conferred with architects and managers of several large amusement centers. He now has the State and Town in downtown Omaha and the following suburbans: Avenue, Arbor, Dundee, Military and Winn.

The announced location of Goldberg's new house is less than eight blocks east of a proposed Admiral Theatre on which work is to start April 1 and to be built by Ralph Blank and Walter M. Green.

and a few little things like that, but he catches on fast according to his paw.

Before we leave the baby talk altogether, we should give this little message to Monty Davis, Omaha BOXOFFICE . . . it's from Al Hill, Monty, and he thinks you should be informed that other people have had children, too . . . in your defense, we asked Al if he had, and he said no, but he knew for a fact that there were other fathers . . . Generating enthusiasm here for the Depinet Drive last week were Cresson E. Smith, RKO western division sales manager; Leo Devaney, the Ned Depinet drive captain (ordinarily, Devaney is Canadian division sales manager); Harry Michalson, short subject sales manager, and Nicky Goldhammer of the Prairie district.

We hate to sound like an RKO house organ, but when a duo like "Vivacious Lady" and "Bringing Up Baby" does THAT kind of business, it's news . . . we heard about it here and there, and then listened to an exhibitor phoning in a switch on his one-sheeting order indicating he was throwing in the double bill to get in on the profits. Francis Kappler, Cannonball Lee and Bert Thomas oughta quit picking on Jean Post . . . at least one of you fellas know that Jean's not the boy who's been putting out . . . Joe Garrison was in town, and if we could have seen him, we just know he'd have let us use that item.

Harry Hiersteiner, Family Theatre mogul, stopped to chat . . . Harry had cotton in one ear, and says he's suffering with a 54-year-old earache.

The Trade Unites in Drive for Greece

PITTSBURGH—One hundred and twenty-five theatres in the Pittsburgh exchange area conducted midnight benefit shows in connection with the Greek War Relief Drive. Two hundred others pitched in their bit for the cause by taking up collections from patrons.

In the Cleveland area, nearly 400 theatres participated, with 43 offering midnight shows. In that town, also, the Variety Club added many dollars to the Greek campaign with a party.

Two hundred theatres participated in the Detroit area, and 120 in the Cincinnati territory. In Detroit, the Fox put on a special show with prices ranging from $1 to $10.

Credit to Publicists Along With Showmen

CLEVELAND—To the territorial publicity committee for the Greek War Relief Drive, headed by Charles Raymond, Loew Division manager, and composed of publicity representatives of Loew's, Warner and RKO theatres, is due a large share of the credit for the success of the campaign in this territory.

Daily, for two weeks in advance of the big twin benefit shows, held simultaneously on Wednesday at Loew's State and the RKO Palace, all three newspapers carried stories on the drive.

Among those who contributed, without remuneration, to the benefit shows were Smith & Setron Printing Co., Central Outdoor Advertising Co., Bill Posters Union, and the talent supplying the acts.

John D. Kalafat of Associated Theatres and I. J. Schmertz, 20th Century-Fox branch manager, were co-chairmen of the general committee on arrangements.

"Fantasia" Opening Aids British War Relief Fund

CLEVELAND—For the benefit of the British War Relief Fund, an elaborate opening was staged at the Hanna for Walt Disney's "Fantasia" at a $5 top. The regular run at prices ranging from 75 cents to $1.65 started a day later.

Midnight Benefit Show At Loew's in Akron

AKRON—First specially-assembled entertainment here for the benefit of the Greek War Relief Fund, was a benefit show Saturday midnight at Loew's. All local theatres cooperated in arranging for the performance, including the Akron Independent Theatre Owners Ass'n.

Louisville Visitors

LOUISVILLE — Recent visitors included Frank M. Carroll, Orleans, Orleans; D. G. Steinkamp, English, English; Bob Enoch, Vogue, St. Matthews; Ray Coleman, Swan, Edmonton; Mrs. Ira Masden, Brandenburg, Brandenburg; A. H. Robertson, Majestic, Springfield. William Rosenthal, owner of the Vogue here and houses in Indianapolis, visited his new manager, Bob Enoch.

All Evidence Submitted in Midwest vs. Co-Op Suit

Calls Trade to Aid Defense Financing

Columbus, Ohio—Addressing an open letter to the respective heads of Fox, Loew's, Warner, RKO and Paramount, P. J. Wood, secretary of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, suggests the systematic investment by all industry members in government savings securities as a means of aiding the government in financing the national defense program.

A Decision Shortly In Clearance Case

DETROIT—Decision is expected shortly in the unusual case involving clearance of two affiliated houses, following a two-day trial before Judge Henry G. Nicol in circuit court. The plaintiff submitted brief Monday, the defendant on Friday.

The extensive files of film contracts introduced in evidence, and the technical nature of the case is likely to make its determination rest largely upon arguments on the evidence.

As reported in BOXOFFICE two weeks ago in full detail, the Montcalm Theatre Corp., operating the Uptown for RKO, sought seven days clearance over the new Royal, operated by UDT—Paramount affiliate—and Wisper & Wetsman Theatres jointly. Both houses are second runs. The suit also named five, subsequently reduced to three, film companies.

Three Companies Agree

Vitagraph, Universal and Columbia were dismissed as defendants upon the understanding, according to statements made, that they would service the Royal with films only by granting the RKO Uptown the seven days clearance sought. Paramount and United Artists remain as co-defendants.

Fred Meyers, film buyer from the RKO home office, testified, as did Lou Emery, manager of the Uptown, for the plaintiff—chiefly upon business conditions and the source of the theatre's patronage. The Detroit traffic engineer was called to testify as to traffic conditions in the area, and a surveyor was called as expert witness to testify to measured distances.

The intent of plaintiff's presentation was to give proof of loss suffered, supported by contracts offered in evidence and proof of theatre locations.

Defendant's counsel called John Ryden, Paramount salesman, and Daniel J. Lewis, booker for Wisper & Wetsman Theatres. Their testimony was devoted largely to technical matters of selling and booking practice.

DETROIT—The most involved theatre case, from the standpoint of length of time required, ever to be tried here—Midwest Theatres vs. Cooperative Theatres—is in a semi-final stage in circuit court, with all evidence in. Plaintiff has been instructed to file briefs by April 14, and the defendant by May 5. Argument in court upon the briefs is expected to follow, with a court decision not likely until late May.

In the final week of testimony, Carl R. Buermele, general manager of Cooperative Theatres, testified for several days after Co-Op's motion to dismiss was denied. Testimony was concerned with Co-operative's buying policies and some general data on industry practices. Summarized, his testimony was introduced to show that Co-Op did not use its buying power to conclude contracts, although this fact was probably in the mental background. Each deal was concluded as though each exhibitor-member bought for himself, he stated. Buermele was the sole witness for the defendant.

Frank Stuart, manager of Midwest Theatres, was recalled to the stand by the plaintiff in rebuttal to establish facts concerning certain contracts which were apparently lost. Raymond E. Moon, general manager of Mutual Theatres, and formerly in the same position at Co-Op, before Buermele, was also called again to testify as to certain facts in rebuttal of defense testimony.

Jacob Schreiber Suit Delayed Till May 6

DETROIT—Suit brought by Jacob Schreiber, former owner of five Woodward Ave. theatres, against his nephew, Raymond Schreiber, seeking restoration of control or an accounting for the houses, has been adjourned by circuit court until May 6.

Theatres involved are the same as those which are the principal plaintiff, as Mid-West Theatres Circuit, in the suit being brought by that circuit against Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan in federal court. It was earlier contended that the federal court case should wait upon determination of title as involved in the Schreiber vs. Schreiber case, but, as it actually happens, the latter case is being delayed and is not likely to be tried until the Midwest vs. Co-Op case itself has been decided.

New Elizabethtown House

ELIZABETHTOWN, KY.—A new $60,000 theatre is going to be built here by J. M. Hobbs, present owner of the Ritz. Work on the foundation is to begin immediately. The proposed seating capacity is 1,000.

"Dictator" Climbs to Detroit Leadership

DETROIT—With show business as a whole very quiet, first runs were doing, generally, the best business in town. Visits to a number of neighborhood theatres during the week confirmed the harrowing reports of poor business brought in by exhibitors from the smaller houses for weeks past. Better pictures continue to get outstandingly better business, while mine-run stuff just gets by. Lent has cut into business seriously; evidence of new seriousness in observance this year is the omission of even the Legion of Decency ratings in the diocesan paper, during Lent.

Holdovers among the better-drawing first runs were notable again, with "GWTW" finally weakening and slated to bow out after six weeks at the UA. "Fantasia," in its fifth week at the Wilson, was announced by the management as boldly striving for an all-time Detroit record—that would be better than "GWTW's" 21½ weeks a year ago. "Great Dictator," completing its first week at the Michigan, looked like the new top grosser of the big houses.

Horror continues its unadulterated success downtown, with the Adams holding over its dual shockers for a second week, while the big Palms-State, opening with Paramount's "Mad Doctor" and "Monster and the Girl," calmly announced—"Sissy stuff to date; now take your horror straight!"

Holdovers in Cleveland Battle Bad Weather

CLEVELAND—The combination of a maximum of bad weather and a minimum of new pictures on parade had a bad effect on the boxoffice. Sunday evening a heavy snow storm with high wind velocity arrived just in time to put a crimp in theatre attendance. The following day the temperature dropped to near-zero and people who could, stayed at home. Neighborhood theatres hit a new low, according to general report, and the first runs were also hit. However, "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary" finished the week at Loew's State with a good record of 125 per cent, although it was not given much of a boost by the critics. Earl Carroll's Vanities on the RKO Palace stage, with "Victory" on the screen did average and "Come Live With Me" in its second week in Playhouse Square, came through with a par gross. Three of the six local first runs were playing holdovers. Even the universally popular Deanna Durbin failed to draw her usual crowds to the Hippodrome where "Nice Girl?" was on view. "Fantasia" opened very big at the Hanna with prices 75 cents to $1.65, tax included. Big advance sale reported.

"Strawberry Blonde" Into Fifth Cincinnati Week

CINCINNATI—The weather was the scapegoat this week and combined with Lent, a severe drop in temperature was blamed for the mediocre grosses. Highlight of the week was "Strawberry Blonde," which, up to March 20, had been viewed by 153,216 persons at Keith's, where it settled for a fifth week. "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary," held for a third week. "A Girl, a Guy and a Gob," somehow missed the boat at the Palace.

Detail of week ended March 20:

Award Clem Reck

SHAMOKIN, PA.—Clem Reck, manager of the Victoria, is the recipient of an M-G-M Honor Roll Button for his outstanding exploitation campaign for "Land of Liberty."

Licensing Measures Are Plentiful in Pa.

HARRISBURG—New bills in the Pennsylvania general assembly include:

H-766: Harkins—Establishing a new legal holiday: Constitution Day, September 17; referred to committee on banking.

H-637: Presley N. Jones—Licensing electricians and creating an electrical administrative board; committee on professional licensure.

H-678: Hirsch—Licensing painters, paperhangers and decorators; committee on professional licensure.

H-722: Monks—Imposing a tax on boxing and wrestling tickets and repealing former tax; committee on ways and means.

H-802: Tate—Providing additional requirements for amusement permits under state liquor control act; committee on liquor control.

H-803: Tate—Amending "The Penal Code" further prohibiting selling, giving away or permitting or employing minors under 18 to sing, dance, act or exhibit in dance houses, concert saloons, theatres, places of entertainment, tap rooms, clubs, cafes, restaurants or eating houses, where or connected with which, wines or spirituous or malt liquors are sold or given away; committee on judiciary special.

H-817: Reuben E. Cohen—Authorizing state to sell electricity under certain circumstances; committee on state government.

H-712: Turner—Seeking entertainment and recreational activities appropriation in communities surrounding Indiantown Gap Military Reservation; committee on appropriations.

H-858—Imposing annual license fee on persons operating cabarets.

H-905—Permitting certain organizations to conduct Bingo games.

Opposes Sunday Bowling

Governor James is on record against the Sunday bowling bill (H-367), which was recommitted to the committee on law and order and which is in position for a final vote in the house.

Several dozen house and senate bills affecting the motion picture industry were listed in the March 15 issue of BOXOFFICE.

Look to Adjournment

Remainder of the James administration's program for the 1941 legislative session was being introduced in the general assembly this week. "Last items" were to include special relief acts, civil service proposals and new appropriation bills. Republican leaders in the senate are speeding up activities with a view toward final adjournment.

Two defense bills were passed last week and signed by the governor. One sets up a Home Guard to serve the state while the National Guard is in Federal service, and the other mobilizes civilian effort in the economic and social fields under state and local councils of defense.

Another Holiday Sought

Speaker Elmer Kilroy has a resolution, which if adopted, would honor Connie Mack, 78-year-old leader of the Philadelphia American League Baseball Club, establishing his birthday anniversary, May 17, as a legal state holiday.

Into Big Time

GIRARD, OHIO—Top-notch golfers from all parts of America will participate in the Mahoning Valley open golf tournament to be sponsored by Peter Wellman at his Mahoning Country Club here June 13-15. Wellman, who also operates the New Mock and Wellman theatres, has staged regional film golf tournaments here for the past three years.

PITTSBURGH

WARNER opened two neighborhood houses, bringing the city area total to 29 theatres. Shadyside, 5518-20 Walnut St., is the latest new de luxe building, and the New Oakland, acquired from Tom Gilbert, has been remodeled and decorated, with new fixtures, equipments, front and hanging electric name sign . . . Among those attending the opening of the Shadyside were C. J. Latta, Ben Steerman and Harry Feinstein, Warner executives; William Finkel, M. S. England, Ira H. Cohn, Ben Brown and others from the amusements fields.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Hasley of the Terrace, Bessemer, East Pittsburgh, have opened a hosiery and gift shop in their theatre building. This store room, unoccupied for several months, was formerly tenanted as a hosiery shop . . . A. J. and M. S. England, distributors of theatre premiums, including dishes, ovenwear, books, etc., have acquired the famous Standard American Encyclopedia deal. Publisher recently exploited these encyclopedias in local newspapers . . . It's a son for the Chuck Shannons. Papa is manager of the Whitehall.

John J. Maloney, M-G-M district manager, and Mrs. Maloney, have returned from their Florida vacation . . . Also back is Dave Blum of Portage . . . Lawrence Carrettie, Monogram booker, has a new Hudson . . . Nathan Lee of Buena Vista street, and Harry C. Schreck, Brighton road, city, were sentenced to a year in the workhouse and ordered to pay a fine of $500 each, by Judge Frank E. Reader, when they pleaded guilty to showing obscene films in Ambridge, January 10.

Al Weiss, McKeesport showman, recently decorated for his special efforts in behalf of Britain's RAF, staged a grand Greek War Relief benefit show in the Memorial last Friday midnight, adding around $2,500 to the fund. Martha Raye appeared with many acts and among the orchestras were those of Paul Pendarvis and Baron Elliott. The show was so good that Al told the audience that those wishing to do so could contribute further to the fund, and by this suggestion increased the gross receipts by several hundred dollars.

A new price scale for "Fantasia" was put into effect this week, with certain sections of the Fulton set aside at lower prices for children, students and group parties. Admissions now are 50 cents, 75 cents and $1.10, for matinees, Monday through Friday, and Saturday a. m.; and evening and Saturday and Sunday matinees, 75 cents, $1.10 and $1.65. Children are admitted to all performances at half the regular reserved seat price.

Mrs. George Brinkman of Grafton, W. Va., was a Filmrow shopper this week . . . Another recent visitor was Conrad Mandross, manager of the Cove, Hollidayscove, W. Va.

Lowell T. Moore Dead

MITCHELL, IND.—Lowell T. Moore, 46, owner and operator of the Orpheum, died at his home of heart disease. He was chairman of a local drive to care for Ohio River flood refugees in 1937.

The Docket

Detroit

CASE NO. 1—Filed February 17. Demand and submission involving clearance (Section VII). Booth Theatre, Julius D. London, owner. With: Vitagraph, Inc., Paramount Pictures, Inc. Named as interested parties: Del, De Luxe, Whittier, East End, Cooperative Theatres of Michigan. Complainant charges he is refused reasonable clearance by Vitagraph and Paramount over Komer and Goldberg's Whittier and the Delodder Circuit's East End. Arbitrator will be Jerome G. Thomas.

CASE NO. 2—Filed February 21. Demand and submission involving clearance and some run. Julius D. London and Milton London, co-partners doing business as Midtown Theatre, Detroit. With: Paramount Pictures, Inc., Loew's, Inc., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. Named as interested parties: Coliseum, Majestic, Globe, Cooperative Theatres of Michigan, Inc., Mutual Theatres, all of Detroit. Complainant charges unreasonable clearance imposed by the distributors named in favor of the Coliseum, operated by Jack Krass; Mayfair, operated by Cohen Bros.; Majestic, operated by the Schreiber circuit, and the Globe, operated by William Schuttenhelm. L. J. Carey is the arbitrator. Hearing set for March 29.

Cleveland

CASE NO. 1—Filed February 15. Demand and submission involving clearance dispute. Ellet Amusement Co. With: Paramount Pictures, Inc., Paramount Film Dist. Corp., Loew's, Inc., Loew's Film Dist. Co., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., W. L. Hart, Cooperative Theatres of Ohio, Inc., Milton Mooney. Named as interested parties: Norka, Rialto and Ellet theatres. Complainant is Louis Israel, owner of the Ellet now under construction on the outskirts of Akron. He claims it is unreasonable for the Norka and Rialto to hold protection over the Ellet, seeks an irrespective run and asks that existing contracts between Hart, operator of the Norka and Rialto, and the distributors granting seven days' clearance be declared inoperative. Judge Dan B. Cull is arbitrator. Hearing was held March 28.

Pittsburgh

CASE NO. 1—Filed March 17. Demand and submission involving some run and non-forcing of short subjects. Herman Lorence, 18th Street Theatre, Erie, Pa. With: Vitagraph, RKO, 20th-Fox, Paramount. Named as interested party: Mrs. John Hauer, American Theatre, Erie, Pa. Lorence claims some run has been denied him, and asks, in the event of an award in his favor, that the defendants be directed not to enforce the sale of short subjects; also that any second run contracts between the defendants and any other theatre on 18th Street subsequent to March 3, 1941, be voided.

Hearing Under Way In Midtown Case

DETROIT—The first arbitration case in this territory was scheduled to be heard Saturday before Arbitrator L. J. Carey, general counsel for the Michigan Mutual Liability Co.

This complaint was brought by Julius D. London on behalf of the Midtown Theatre, naming the Globe, Coliseum, Majestic and Mayfair, together with Mutual Theatres and Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan, and involving general clearance problems in the highly-involved lower-Woodward sector.

The second case—and only other to date—also filed by London, naming a series of east side theatres around the Booth, had no trial date set at press time. Although this case was actually the first one filed, it has a later trial date because parties concerned had difficulty agreeing on an arbitrator. Final selection was Jerome Thomas, head of the business administration department of Wayne University.

Adapts "Among the Living"

HOLLYWOOD—Garrett Fort is adapting "Among the Living" for Paramount.

CLEVELAND

BEING M-G-M-ers, Frank Drew, branch manager, and Jack Flynn, district manager out of Chicago, go in for only the biggest feature stories. So, just to keep the record up to the usual standard, when they went deep sea fishing off the Miami coast last week, they naturally brought in the two biggest fish in the ocean. And if you don't believe it, just look at the photographed evidence next time you are in Manager Drew's office.

Congratulations to Otto Braeunig, former RKO office manager and now traveling auditor for the company. The occasion is the arrival of a 7½ pound baby boy, with Mrs. Braeunig and son, Terence, doing very nicely at St. Ann's Maternity Hospital.

Nat Wolf, Warner zone manager, and Mrs. Wolf are down in Texas visiting with their home folks for a couple of weeks . . . Saul Bragin, head booker for the Warner theatre department, is back from a vacation in Florida . . . Likewise George Lefko, RKO branch manager . . . Mrs. Jack Sogg wife of M-G-M's city sales manager, was hostess at a surprise shower held at her home in honor of Miss Sadie Meckler, an M-G-M-er who will be married April 6. All of the M-G-M girls were guests.

Zero weather and heavy snow caused a scarcity of out-of-town exhibitors last week. Among those who were not disturbed by the storms were John Romwebber, Akron; John Huebner, Marion; Jack O'Connell, Toledo . . . Sam Lichter, 20th Century-Fox salesman, was tendered a birthday party at the Willard Hotel, Toledo, last week, by the theatremen in his territory.

Jack Withers, formerly with the local Monogram exchange, has joined PRC in a sales capacity . . . Mrs. Rose Valus, secretary to Warner booker, Saul Bragin, has resigned to devote her time exclusively to home making. Irene Platt moves up as her successor . . . Miss Ivy Hunt of the same department is convalescing after an appendectomy . . . Jack Hamilton, Uptown usher, is the father of a baby daughter . . . Sam Clark is here from Hollywood planting publicity stories on "Meet John Doe."

Euclid Ave. doesn't look the same since Leo Guzik no longer presides at the Hippodrome door. Guzik, doorman at the Hipp for the past seven years, has been inducted into the army . . . Jane Meisel, secretary to Warner publicity director, Manny Pearlstein, has added rhumba lessons to her reducing schedule.

Donald Roper, Uptown doorman, is dreaming of seeing his name in bright lights over a marquee some day. He recently won first prize in a drama contest at Glenville High School, is active in the Playhouse and in local radio work . . . Jack Shea of the Shea circuit was in from New York . . . Harry Flinn of the Berea, Berea, is back from five weeks in Florida where he visited with Ed Flanigon in Fort Lauderdale and with Perc Essick at Fort Pierce . . . Bill Tallman of the Ceramic, East Liverpool, made one of his rare visits along Filmrow last week.

DETROIT

IRVING AND SYDNEY MOSS of the Van Dyke and Parkside are cousins, not brothers—like everybody usually figures . . . Sergeant Joseph M. Kollar, Detroit theatre censor, has acquired an interest in 4,000 feet of river frontage up near Sault Ste. Marie. A future fishing spot for film salesmen . . . Janitors picketing at the Michigan played to opposition when another union picketed the parking lot next door . . . Lillian Ambrozy of Metro Premium says the opposition "aggravates" her.

United Artists Night at Variety Club found District Manager Jack Goldhar way out west . . . Manager Moe Dudelson officiated in his stead . . . Jack Dickstein brought in a fine colored show from Ware Allen's theatre for the event . . . William A. Koegel, who's assistant Chief Barker of the Cincinnati Club, was a visitor . . . Moe, reaching in the hat, awarded the grand prize of the evening to Mrs. Goldhar. An inside job? . . . Herman Stone of Metropolitan Motion Picture Co. has returned from a vacation in Florida . . . Helen Halstead is moving her costume and uniform business down to Gladstone and Second avenues.

Clare Winnie, who is going to remodel the Wolverine, is renaming the house. It'll be the Dale . . . Clayton Wilkinson, operator at the Monroe, is busy in his spare time with his string of race horses . . . Don Widlund, Jam Handy projection department, back from New York . . . Oriel Freer, who has handled secretarial work for Variety for a number of years, is leaving to join the legal department of General Motors.

Trendle Telemusic Corp. has been dissolved . . . Margaret Burns is official printer on Variety Club's "Detroit Barker" . . . Thornton Ross is new assistant steward at Variety. He's a nephew of Chief Steward Fred Johnson.

E. S. Hough jr. and Samuel Lucas have formed the new $50,000 Fen-Oak Specialties Co. at Pontiac, "to lease and operate sound films" . . . Leona Stoia, daughter of "Big Joe" of the theatres in Dearborn, is managing things while her father is in Florida.

Knows of No Sympathy Strike Intentions

DETROIT—No plans for a sympathetic strike of projectionists in support of campaign of the Building Service Employes Union, as rumored in another trade paper last week, have been discussed by the Detroit local of the IATSE, according to Roger M. Kennedy, business agent.

"There has been no understanding whatever on this subject, and we have not received any instructions from the International office," Kennedy said.

Kennedy added there were no indications of immediate plans for the reported projected visit of IA president, George Browne, to this city upon this matter. If any plans for a sympathetic strike have been made, it must have been through the International office rather than locally, Kennedy said.

Ban on All-Night Shows In Royal Oak, Mich.

DETROIT—The blunderbus ordinance being drafted by the Royal Oak city council for control of theatres, now includes a ban on all-night shows. Curfew regulations as now written provide for a ban on children under 16 during school hours and on children under 12 after 7:30 p. m. unless accompanied by a parent.

Undesirable advertising also would be controlled. In addition to the specific ban on Bank Night, the ordinance bars "gambling or near-gambling" devices, apparently covering about all types of giveaways involving any chance element.

Study Parking Proposal In the Light of Others

YOUNGSTOWN—A proposed ordinance requiring parking space around new theatres and auditoriums, will be compared with similar measures in other cities before the planning commission recommends its passage or rejection. The ordinance, which came before the commission recently, has been continued for further study.

CINCINNATI

PRC's MARCELLE BIMSTEIN was married to Jack Goler of Lexington. Following a reception at the home of the bride, the couple departed on a week's honeymoon . . . 20th-Fox's "That Night in Rio" will be Easter fare at the Palace. Metro's "Men of Boys Town" goes into the RKO Albee same time . . . Sol Rosen is new head of the accessory department at Columbia. Their file clerk, Mary Helen Rullman, resigned to take a position at Aurora, Ind., her home town. Miss Providence De Salvo has been added.

Columbia manager, Allan Moritz and Mrs. Moritz, are vacationing in Florida . . . Harris Dudelson's local boys at UA are in second position and just a few points behind first place in the Arthur Kelly drive . . . Universal is also waving the banner, having moved up to third place in their drive . . . Frank Schreiber, Universal booker, left for St. Paul to compete in the national bowling matches.

Carl Rohs, Cynthiana, Ky., left for a rest in Florida following the strenuous work of getting his new house built and in operation . . . Patricia Stewart, charming daughter of Louis and Clara Stewart of the Parkland, who is popularly known as "Pat," was hostess to the entire school club at an afternoon tea on St. Patrick's Day . . . Exhibitors are fast becoming airminded. Price Coomer, a seasoned airman from Harlan, Ky., commuted between Florida and Harlan during the winter, while Frank Allaro, Matewan, W. Va., planes in for bookings regularly.

Harold Bernstein, Plaza, Norwood, Ohio, returned from his winter vacation on the coast, which he says was marred by rainy weather . . . Tom Larkin, Roosevelt, New Bremen, visited . . . Tony's hobby is baseball and Crosley Field his favorite rendezvous.

Mrs. Mary Semelroth and Jimmy Herbst were in, booking for the various Semelroth houses . . . Sam Oshrey, Warner booker, left for an army camp in Texas. George Daumeyer, former field supervisor, is filling Oshrey's post . . . Lenore Schmidt, Warner's, spent the weekend in Springfield.

Attends Mothers' Course At Chicago University

QUINCY, MICH.—Mrs. Dorothy Cox is in Chicago attending the annual Mothers' Scholarship course at the University of Chicago sponsored by the W. K. Kellogg Foundation. She was one of 20 women from Branch county chosen to attend the week's conference. Her husband, Homer Cox, operates the Our Theatre locally.

To Award Contract

WARREN, OHIO—Robbins Amusement Co. will shortly award a contract for the construction on a downtown site of a theatre to cost approximately $300,000.

700 in New England Back Greek Drive

BOSTON—Approximately 700 theatres backed the Greek War Relief Drive in New England. The greater number took up collections from patrons, while 25 key cities conducted special midnight benefit shows.

In the Boston trade area alone, nearly 500 theatres participated.

Midnight Shows by 16 In New Haven Area

NEW HAVEN—Midnight benefit shows for Greek War Relief, featuring a film program and stage headliners, were held Saturday at some 16-odd theatres in this territory.

In charge of the campaign, locally, were Bob Russell, Lou Brown, John Hesse, Dan Finn, Lou Schaefer, Sam Badamo and Bill Reisinger. Radio cooperated well in advance, but newspapers, as usual, were conservative.

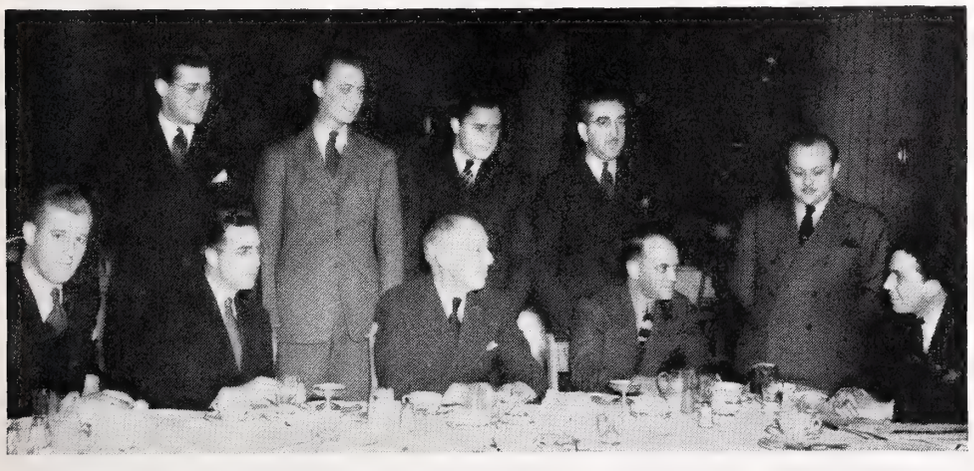
Warner houses running midnight shows were the Palace, Norwich; Strand, New Britain; Cameo, Bristol, and Palace, Lawrence. All Loew-Poli houses except those in Springfield had programs as did M&P's Empress, Norwalk, and Massachusetts Theatres' Paramount, Springfield.

A number of theatres took up collections for the cause, while many exhibitors booked the Paramount short, "Greece Fights Back," rentals of which go to the campaign.

Rhode Island 100 Per Cent For Greek Drive

PROVIDENCE—Rhode Island theatres lined up 100 per cent for the Greek War Relief Drive. In the Greater Providence area, 34 theatres had collectors in their lobbies. In Providence, the highlight of the drive was a midnight benefit performance at Loew's State with all Providence and Pawtucket theatre managements contributing to the arrangements. The Fay's and Metropolitan stage bills participated. In Woonsocket, a similar midnight show was set for the Stadium, and Newport also scheduled a midnight benefit performance.

Edward M. Fay was chairman of the Greater Providence committee which was composed of William E. Spragg, John Carroll, William Brown, George French, Sam Kaufman, John Hodge and Jack Simons. Fred Greene and Ben Greenberg were co-chairmen of the Woonsocket territory's arrangements.



"Sneak Preview" and Stage Show Held in Springfield

SPRINGFIELD—A "sneak preview" and a stage show were presented at the Paramount, Western Massachusetts circuit house, as the local industry's contribution to the Greek War Relief Drive.

Chairmen of the committees for the event were: George E. Freeman (Loew's Poli), stage show; Andrew A. Sette (WB's Capitol), tickets; William Powell (Liberty Theatres Corp.), publicity; George E. Freeman (Loew's Poli), radio; J. M. Jerauld (Western Massachusetts), trailers; and Harry Smith (Western Massachusetts), Mayor's committee. Smith was also chairman of the operators' and stagehands' committee.

Crowd Metropolitan for Greek War Relief Show

BOSTON—"Las Vegas Nights," with a large complement of stage talent including Helen Morgan and Ethel Waters, filled the large Metropolitan where local film interests sponsored a special midnight benefit show for Greek War Relief. Martin J. Mullin, M&P Theatres Corp. partner, headed the drive in this territory assisted by Harry McDonald, Robert Sternberg, Charles Kurtzman, Jack Goodwin, Norman Ayers, I. J. Hoffman, Nathan Yamins, Harry Zeitz, Archie Silverman, Paul Levi, Marty Glazer, Jack Granara, Joseph A. DiPesa and Harry Browning.

Greek Relief the Objective—

Portland managers as they conferred on Greek War Relief Campaign participation, expressed by midnight shows held the week of March 25 to 30. In the front row, left to right: William Gallagher of the Colonial, John M. Divney of the Maine, Harry Smith, Civic; Leon P. Gorman, Cape and Cameo, entertainment chairman; and Harry Botwick of the State, chairman of the local campaign. Back row, left to right: William Romanoff, assistant manager of the State; William Fields, assistant manager of the Strand; James P. McAllister, Capitol; Al Cohen, Ritz, Lewiston; and Leo Young, Strand, Portland, ticket chairman.

Premiere "Great Lie" In Star's Home Town

LITTLETON, N. H.—The world premiere of Bette Davis' new starring picture, "The Great Lie," will be held Saturday evening, April 5, at the Premier Theatre here in Bette's home town.

April 5 is Miss Davis' birthday, and the civic and social organizations of Littleton and the surrounding countryside are preparing a gigantic birthday celebration in honor of the occasion. Besides the premiere of the film there will be a gala ball in the Littleton Town Hall on the same evening, a torchlight parade along the roads of the Franconia Notch Area, and numerous other gatherings and festivities. Governor Robert O. Blood of New Hampshire will be present and the governors of all the other New England states will be invited to attend. A special train will carry newspaper and magazine writers and photographers from eastern cities to the scene of the celebration.

Proceeds of the premiere and ball will be devoted to the Littleton Hospital and the Golden Rule Farm for Boys.

Continue Dance Plans

BOSTON—Harry Goldstein, RKO salesman who succeeded Harry Goldman as president of the Motion Picture Salesmen's Club in New England, continued this week with plans for the fifth annual dinner-dance of the organization which will be held at the Cocoanut Grove on Sunday, April 20, with receipts going to the charity fund.

A Midnight Benefit Show in Hartford for Greek Relief

HARTFORD—A film-flesh show was presented Saturday midnight at the Loew's Poli for the benefit of the Greek War Relief Fund. Members of the general committee in charge were George E. Landers, E. M. Loew's; Louis A. Cohen, Loew's Poli; Fred R. Greenway, Palace; James F. McCarthy, Strand; Morris Schulman, Schulman Theatres; Walter B. Lloyd, Allyn, and Wallie J. Cooper, Loew's Poli. The ticket committee for the affair included Mickey Daly of the Daly Theatres, McCarthy, and Frank Morin of the Regal.

E. M. Loew Takes Part in British Aid Activity

BOSTON—E. M. Loew, independent circuit owner, worked in the capacity of first vice-president of the New England Division of the Jewish section of the Interfaith Committee to Aid Great Britain in the organization's raising of $50,000 here to send 25 mobile kitchens.

The organization has been working in cooperation with the British War Relief Society in America and, nationally, has already presented that body with $40,000 to buy 20 mobile kitchens. The New England division contributed $2,000 of the first sum.

Wage-Hour Law Loses In New Hampshire

CONCORD, N. H.—The "Baby Wage-Hour Act" (House Bill No. 248), which was similar to legislation defeated in 1939, has been killed by the house.

The measure, patterned after the federal law, provided for a set standard of minimum wages and maximum hours for workers in New Hampshire.

Bill to License Horse-Race Bookmakers Dies in N. H.

CONCORD, N. H.—House Bill No. 149, providing for the licensing of horse racing bookmakers, has been killed in the legislature.

After passage by the house, a measure which would have made Lincoln's birthday a legal holiday in New Hampshire, was killed in the senate. The bill occasioned the first major debate of the present senate session.

House Bill No. 287, the controversial measure designed to regulate outdoor advertising, has been given a new draft and title by the house judiciary committee and recommitted for further hearings.

Favorable Report on Projection Measure

HARTFORD—H. B. 245 has been favorably reported by the judiciary committee. The bill would amend regulations as to operating projectors in fireproof booths, requiring a license to operate and prescribing frequent state inspection, so that these particular sections of the general statutes shall not apply to "moving picture machines using only cellulose acetate film not more than 16mm wide, except when such machines shall be used or exhibited in theatres or public places of entertainment regularly used as such and to which an admission fee is charged," such places not to include schools, Sunday schools, Grange, clubs, churches, lodges, etc.

Reports by Committees On Bingo Bill Awaited

HARTFORD—Being awaited are reports of committees on the state bill asking a $500 maximum in cash prizes for Bingo, instead of or in addition to the present merchandise prizes, and that a commissioner be created to regulate Bingo activities throughout the state.

Theatremen are relieved since no new theatre tax bills have developed during the session.

16 Gambling Bills Are Up for Consideration

HARTFORD—Among the 16 gambling bills up for consideration before the judiciary committee, were bills proposing legalization of horse and dog racing, lotteries, Bingo and gambling on the wheels at amusement parks.

Principal opponent of gambling bills was Rev. E. T. Settle of West Haven, who said their passage "would legalize the extension of gambling and encourage crime and immorality . . . If gambling is wrong for commercial interests, it is doubly wrong for civic, religious and charitable organizations." At present such organizations may sponsor Bingo games, while theatres are ruled out.

Observers reported that the attitude of the committee indicated none of the gambling bills had much chance for serious consideration.

The Docket

Boston

CASE NO. 1—Filed February 13. See "Disposals."

CASE NO. 2—Filed February 26. Demand and submission involving clearance dispute. Garbose Bros., Athol, Mass. With: Paramount Film Dist. Corp., Loew's, Inc., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., Vitagraph, Inc., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., RKO Theatres, Maine and New Hampshire Theatres Co., Loew's Boston Theatres. Named as interested parties: York, Metropolitan, Paramount and Fenway, Boston; Fitchburg, Fitchburg. Named as interested party: George A. Giles Co., Cambridge, Mass. The Garboses, operators of the York and Capitol in Athol, claim their houses are first run and seek such designation day and date with the Boston and Fitchburg theatres named. John A. Daly, Boston lawyer, is arbitrator.

Disposals

CASE NO. 1—Filed February 13, disposed of March 14. Ben Gold, operator of the Park, Nashua, N. H. With: Paramount, Loew's, Vitagraph, RKO, 20th Century-Fox. Gold alleged inability to secure major product, charging two units of the Shea circuit in Nashua with having tied up product he seeks to buy. Arthur I. Brown, arbitrator, directed the five distributors named to offer pictures for license to Park for exhibition to July 31, 1942 on a run to be agreed upon. Gold had the support of local independent exhibitor organization.

A Dismissal Motion in Momand Case Fails

BOSTON—Circuit Owner A. B. Momand, represented by George S. Ryan, has been successful in the latest phase of his $4,500,000 anti-trust suit. Federal Judge Murrah has ruled against the defendants on a re-hearing on motions to dismiss the action on grounds that claims under the anti-trust law could not be assigned.

Second AAA New England Case Is Garbose Bid

BOSTON—Abe Garbose, operator of the York in Athol, will be the second New England exhibitor to air a complaint here under the AAA setup.

Garbose, represented by George S. Ryan and by the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., is seeking a national release date which, he avers, was formerly granted the house. John A. Daly, Boston lawyer, was mutually agreed upon last week as arbitrator. No date for a hearing had been set up to press time.

$1,850 for Injuries

HARTFORD — The suit of Mrs. Jeanette Harrison of this city against E. M. Loew's Enterprises, Inc., has been settled in superior court here. Mrs. Harrison receives $1,850 for injuries sustained in a fall.

Slot Film Licensing Bill Hearing Waits

BOSTON—No date for a public legislative hearing had been set up to press time on a bill filed with the Massachusetts legislature and by Arthur K. Howard, business manager of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., seeking "An act to supervise and license the showing of 16mm and 35mm films or other sizes for public or private exhibition by means of an automatic coin-in-the-slot, or similar talking motion picture devices."

The bill has been amended, following its original filing, to combat 16mm non-theatrical competition in this state by imposing department of public safety regulations similar to those governing commercial 35mm product on the non-theatrical exhibitions which, heretofore, have been largely free of restrictions because of the safety nature of the film.

Howard, acting for the local Allied branch, petitioned that the Massachusetts department of public safety have supervision over the location of screenies and similar devices, that an annual license be required at a charge of $50 per machine, and that censorship should be invoked for inspection at a charge of $10 per subject and $50 for each certificate of approval.

Report George Swartz Is Introducing Coin Films

BOSTON—George Swartz, backer of a number of New England motion picture projects, is understood to be going ahead with a new "screenie" type machine which will operate on 16mm continuous product at a nickel a clip. These machines, it is understood, are already in the works and will be made available for outright sales on time. Purchasers, according to preliminary plans, may rent films through the sales setup but will not be required to do so.

Outstanding innovation of the latest-type film juke box will be their availability with or without cabinets. This design will permit more varied forms of installation. In fact, it is felt by the promoters that the sale of these as "adjustable wall-type machines" may prove a prime sales factor because of the stationary principle of the Mills equipment.

Booth Supervision Plan Displeasing to Allied

BOSTON—Ed Charbonneau, New Hampshire exhibitor and a director of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., has registered Allied States Association's opposition to a bill to license motion picture operators and to set up police and state supervision and authority over projection booths.

Licensing of operators is not required at the present time in New Hampshire. Arthur K. Howard, business manager of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., and a contingent of the organization will appear against the measure at a legislative hearing in Concord, it is planned.

HAVE YOU "MARGIN TO SPARE"?

House Appeal a Point of Issue Under the Consent Decree

Exhibitors who have read the rules of arbitration to apply under the Consent Decree must have noticed that for the first time in moving picture trade relations, house attraction and operating efficiency become practically a condition of contract.

There's a strong inference of this in Section VI. of the decree from which we quote: "... if the exhibitor can satisfy reasonable minimum standards of theatre operation."

There's even more significance in Section VIII. where in paragraph (3) we find: "The character and location of the theatres involved, including size, type of entertainment, appointments, etc."

But in a sub-paragraph (C) of Section X. we find the strongest possible implication wherein "the character, appearance and condition of each, including its furnishings, equipment and conveniences" is referred to.

That physical condition and appearance of theatre properties will be a strong point of arbitration under the decree is a rather foregone conclusion. One major producer-distributor has already announced the completion of a theatre survey with expressed intent to permit only theatres in good condition to play his product.

As the original and a long consistent advocate of the boxoffice value of house attraction, we can now see no good reason for disagreement with these protective provisions of the code.

Since the public has so volubly expressed its preference for the comforting effects of the modern theatre, and so positively its distaste for the other kind, we believe most exhibitors will now try to put their houses in proper shape to qualify — and with a margin to spare.

Contract Negotiations On Between RKO and Staff

BOSTON—"Negotiations now are being carried on between the local representatives of the front-of-the-house union and myself for extension of contract," Harry McDonald, RKO divisional manager, told this publication following printing of an exclusive story here that abandonment of union activities had come up in Boston where Keith's Memorial members of the Theatrical Employes Local have forsaken membership in the union following mounting protests in dues payments and professed confidence in RKO fair dealings.

Stating that a similar move was understood to be under way at the RKO Boston, the story said that signs of a similar trend had been evident for some time in other theatres in the city.

It has been learned that the Metropolitan, which some ushers once picketed in an effort to secure M&P Theatres Corp. acquiesence to a union contract, now only numbers one Theatrical Employes member among its staff of ushers.

Testimonial Scroll Is Presented Frank Lydon

BOSTON—Frank Lydon, Allied eastern regional vice-president and president of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., who has been on the danger list at St. Margaret's Hospital in Dorchester, for several weeks, has been presented with a scroll and gift by his "friends and associates in the Motion Picture Industry," who, according to the accompanying scroll, "Wish to take this means of conveying their deep sympathy during your illness and sincerely hope for your speedy recovery. Individual well-wishers signed the scroll.

Local Holiday Boosts Grosses for Boston

BOSTON—A holiday weekend, a local affair having to do with the expulsion of the British forces from the city during Revolutionary War days, boosted grosses here in a week not aided by a sudden cold snap. "Back Street" and "Let's Make Music" was held for a second week at Keith's Memorial, while "Lady Eve," on the basis of its Metropolitan performance, was shifted for a second one-week into the Paramount and Fenway.

Details for week ending March 21:

"Lady Eve" Lures the Big Grosses in Providence

PROVIDENCE—Lent and first touch of spring in the air failed to materially slash grosses here last week. "Dictator" at Loew's State did surprisingly well at regular prices in comparison with showing made in initial presentation here at advanced scale. Strand with "Lady Eve" topped the town and the film held over for a second week.

(Average is 100)

After Lease Renewals

BOSTON—Film district landlords are driving at present for renewals by film interests of leases on property in this vicinity. Impetus is being given the move by the fact that RKO and National Screen Service are constructing new buildings for their respective occupancy. UA is among the concerns that have renewed their leases recently, but a number of similar deals are being held in abeyance.

Transition—

A church that became a motion picture theatre is above pictured. Harry LeMare, Ludlow, Vt., exhibitor, acquired the church, and out of a conference with Capitol Theatre Supply, emerged the 418-seat Pa-Re-Mo Theatre here shown. The annex houses LeMare's sideline print shop.

E. M. Loew Circuit Is Continuing Expansion

BOSTON—Extension of the E. M. Loew independent circuit, which already reaches from Maine to Louisiana, continues. Loew plans to open a new house soon in South Boston. He has also taken over an old silent theatre in Falmouth Heights, at one time operated by Frank Howard. In Miami, Loew is having an independent speaker system set up to combat complaints of the sound nuisance. He may contract for the installation of similar systems in his other drive-in locations east of the Mississippi.

In Rochester, N. Y., Loew has darkened the Embassy.

Many Boston Barkers Will Attend Variety Confab

BOSTON—A large Boston contingent is expected to attend the annual National Variety Clubs convention in Atlantic City on May 15-17.

Martin J. Mullin, M&P Theatres Corp. partner who is chief barker of the local organization, will head the Boston delegation which tentatively includes Sam Pinanski, Maurice N. Wolf, Murray Weiss, Phil Seletsky, Al Kane, William Erbb, Herman Rifkin, John Dervin, Morris Green, Joe Cohen and Edward X. Callahan.

NEW HAVEN

I J. HOFFMAN, Warner theatre department head for the New England zone, is in Miami Beach . . . B. E. Hoffman of the same department has returned from White Sulphur Springs . . . Barney Pitkin, RKO manager, spent a few days in Boston . . . The 5,000 potential Yale customers who left town for a two-week spring vacation were missed by exhibitors . . . John Findlay of Westerly and Mystic did the Street with his son, John jr. . . . Victor Wallace and Connie Carpou, Metro student bookers, are two great minds in search of a dinner invitation. Wallace celebrated his birthday simultaneously with his seventh anniversary with Metro last week . . . Mickey Mattes leaves for camp March 29. The Paramount staff gave a party for its two soldiers, Edward Fitzgerald and Billy Nutile, showering them with gifts of pen sets, kits and wearing apparel . . . Lou Schaefer, Paramount Theatre manager, gave his son, Bob, and friends a farewell blowout at Ceriani's, and Bob went to Blanding laden with gifts of all kinds, including cold cash.

Raymond Hughes, former chief usher, is the new Roger Sherman assistant, and Salvatore DeLise steps up to chief usher . . . Harry Shaw, Loew-Poli division manager, back from Panama on the 29th and Lou Brown and family ready to take off . . . Dan Finn, Warner publicity director, and Cy Barrett, district manager here, will be vacationing mid-April . . . Theodore Haeusler, booth operator at the Paramount, is in New Haven Hospital under observation . . . Full Page co-op ad of firms connected with the opening greeted Joseph Faith's new 650-seat Carberry at Bristol . . . John J. Bolton has changed the marquee lighting of the Dixwell, New Haven, and Community, Fairfield, both Fishman houses.

Report is Sal Adorno is readying opening of his open-air Middletown again this summer . . . The Paramount, New Haven, is having its ceiling painted . . . Elwood Russell, son of Bob of the Poli, was guest of honor at a birthday party given by a member of the New York smart set . . . Jack Brassil of the Poli staff broke the bank at penny Bingo . . . The all Germaine-team beat the hitherto (almost) invincible Columbians at bowling . . . Sidney Lax, Columbia shipper, set to leave for the army, April 2 . . . Jerry Massimino, Warner poster manager, has his 1-A classification . . . Sam Seletsky has enough Captain Marvels strung up for a shooting gallery . . . Universal is sixth in the current drive, with eight weeks to go . . . Mahan's local exchange still holds to first place in the Warner drive . . . Mike Sirica says he is cooperating 100 per cent with the Greek Relief drive, provided he is promised not one cent will be used to shoot his relatives in Italy.

Harold Rubin has sold the Alhambra, Torrington, a premium deal . . . Lou Schaefer had special WELI broadcasts on "The Lady Eve." Also tied up with New Haven News Co. on banners, circulars, etc. . . . Bill Reisinger had an exhaustive campaign on "Blonde Inspiration" at the Bijou. Blonde usherette in lobby spot attracted much attention in theatre where only boy ushers are used. Cake of ice cooling off the print was used in front of the theatre three days in advance and during the run of the picture . . . Ed Wynn's "Boys and Girls Together" was a sellout long in advance at the Shubert . . . Warner's State, Waterbury, is following suit of several theatres in industrial towns by trying a 10 a. m. "early bird" show . . . Bijou amateur show still lining them up on the sidewalk weekly after a continuous operation since last August. Bill Reisinger is m. c. in the absence of Harry Shaw. New laugh stunts involving audience participation are tried each week, with prizes of cash.

Lou Brown, Loew-Poli publicity chief, and Bill Reisinger are working on the annual (Br-r-r-!) Bathing Beauty contest now . . . Gem, Naugatuck, went ritzy with a New Haven symphony concert for Day Nursery . . . Waterbury's Capitol played Columbia's horror show, "Face Behind the Mask" and "Devil's Command" to successful shivers . . . "The Great Dictator" going much better at lower prices . . . "Vivacious Lady" moved to the Regal, Hartford, for a second week . . . "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" held over on the Poli circuit . . . Rivoli, West Haven, has changed its policy to three changes a week, starting with a Sunday-Monday run and ending with Friday-Saturday . . . Warner has dropped the idea of a five-cent rise at the State, Waterbury, on Sundays and gone back to a 44-cent top.

Week's Defense Orders in Conn. Total $187,458

NEW HAVEN—A total of $187,458 in defense orders for the war department came into Connecticut companies last week. Of these, New Haven had only one order, to Atlas-Ansonia Co., for $59,400. Waterbury concerns totaled $68,553. Hartford had $3,760; West Hartford, $2,088, and East Hartford, $13,260. Navy awards to East Hartford totaled $23,268.

Bloom Is Promoted

SPRINGFIELD—James J. Bloom, Paramount usher chief, is student assistant, replacing Gilbert G. Bevin, called to the colors.

$3,000 Income Class Best Patrons

Washington—The average New England family spends increasingly for motion picture admissions as the family income expands up to $3,000 and thereafter tends to diminish, reports the department of labor in a survey of seven communities in four New England states. Up to the dividing line about half of the total recreation expenditure goes for motion pictures, thereafter the proportion drops. The average low-income family spends but $7 a year for amusement, of which $3 went for films. The average yearly expenditures for recreation did not amount to as much as $100 in any income group below the $3,000 level, and when that bracket was reached approximately $30 went for film theatre admissions.

BRIDGEPORT

ANTHONY FAUGNO has abandoned efforts to revive old-time films in Stamford . . . Vohen Walter Varjabedian, Majestic press agent, is back on duty after an illness . . . Manny E. Kugell and his wife were New York visitors . . . Frank Musante, Hippodrome projectionist, is back in the booth after a southern honeymoon . . . For the first time in years, local theatres will have organized baseball for opposition starting in the spring. Bridgeport has been off the baseball map since the break-up of the old Eastern League about a dozen years ago . . . Sympathy to Lois Anger, owner of the Barnum, on the sudden death of his mother, Mary . . . The Empire, New London, used a "Right and Wrong" quiz Friday nights.

Harry Rose, Globe manager, is a year older . . . Mary Prescott, relief cashier at the Loew-Poli, has resigned . . . James Darby of the Norwalk is featuring a Kiddie's Quiz contest Saturday afternoons . . . Matt L. Saunders of the Loew's Poli was a New Haven visitor . . . Harry E. Shaw is expected back from Panama in time to act as master of ceremonies at the Greek Relief show.

The Sterling in Derby is using vaudeville Sundays. It is the first time in years flesh acts have invaded that city . . . There is nothing that looks so desolate after a heavy snow fall as the Drive-In in Milford . . . The boys now refer to Manager Edward Madden of the Lyric as "Commissioner" . . . John Zofcak, Globe usher, has resigned . . . Rocco Longo of the Community, Oakville, has returned from a trip to Philadelphia.

Despite the fact that New York newspapers refer to Bridgeport as the "champagne city" and devote columns to the alleged "war boom" here, there is nothing to bear out the tales in local boxoffice statements. While business is admittedly good, it is nothing like it was back in the boom days of the first war. Plenty of people are working in Bridgeport, but it is only the skilled craftsmen who are making the real money and they are in the minority.

Co-chairmen of the Greek War Relief show in New London were Manager Walter T. Murphy of the Capitol and Ted Smalley, manager of the Garde. The show was held at the Capitol . . . In Norwalk, Albert Hamilton, manager of the Empress, was chairman, assisted by George Harvey of the Palace, James Darby of the Norwalk and Merrick Lyon of the Rialto.

Through the courtesy of Samuel Weiss, manager of the Stamford and Avon theatres in Stamford, firemen were permitted to take collections for the aid of widows and children of the firemen killed in the Strand fire in Brockton, Mass. . . . Harold Engle, student assistant at the Globe, was in New York to see "Pal Joey" . . . The Rialto, Stamford, is playing Polish-language pictures nights to good business . . . Morning shows at the Loew-Poli for night workers are building steadily and the idea may spread to other downtowns.

Urges Aid for Bereaved Families of Firemen

Concord, N. H.—Gov. Robert O. Blood has issued a statement urging support of the relief fund being raised for survivors of the firemen who lost their lives in the fire at the Strand in Brockton, Mass.

The Docket

Dallas

CASE NO. 1—Filed February 28. Demand and submission involving clearance and some run. Joseph's Drive-In Theatre, Austin, Tex. With: 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., M-G-M Pictures Corp., Loew's Inc., M-G-M Dist. Corp. of Texas. Named as interested parties: Interstate Theatres, W. G. Underwood and Claude Ezell, both of Dallas. Complainant charges the three distributors have refused to sell him product. He seeks to license their product and also asks that his clearance be established under Section 8 of the decree. M-G-M reached an individual settlement and is no longer involved.

New Orleans

CASE NO. 1—Filed February 17. Demand and submission involving some run (Section VI). Modern Theatre, Inc., (drive-in theatre), Charles J. Woolner, president. With: Paramount Film Dist. Corp. Phillip E. James, attorney, will arbitrate. Hearing April 1.

CASE NO. 2—Filed March 6. Demand and submission involving some run. Drive-In Theatre, operatede by Charles Woolner. With: Loew's, Inc.

CASE NO. 3—Filed March 21. Demand and submission involving some run. Drive-In Theatre, operated by Charles J. Woolner, president of Modern Theatre, Inc. With: Warner.

Oklahoma City

CASE NO. 1—Filed March 21. Demand and submission involving some run. J. D. Guest, operator of the Ritz, Duncan, Okla. With: Warner. Complainant alleges he could not buy Warner product.

Joseph's Drive-In Settles With M-G-M

DALLAS—The name of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has been withdrawn from the first arbitration case, set up to be heard here early in April. The matter is that of the Joseph's Drive-In Theatre at Austin which brought complaints against M-G-M, 20th Century-Fox and Warner, asking the board to require the three companies to sell it film and further to set up clearance.

In the settlement with M-G-M it was authoritatively learned here that negotiations had been completed between this distributor and the Drive-In on a deal for film.

The case, however, will be arbitrated as between Fox, Warner and Joseph. Date of the hearing has not been set although it is expected to be by the end of next week.

Add to Tribunal

An additional list of arbitrators has been selected to serve on the Dallas tribunal. These include J. E. Hutchinson jr., an accountant with Hutchinson, Bonner & Burleson; C. F. O'Donnell, president of Southwestern Life Insurance Co.; Ted Robinson, general manager of the Borden Milk Co.; Harold S. Star, vice-president of Dallas Title & Guaranty Co., and Leslie Waggener, executive vice-president of the Republic National Bank.

Confers With Dunlap

DALLAS—Senor Pablo Villegas of Mexico City was a Filmrow visitor here in connection with his theatre chair manufacturing operations in the neighboring country. Villegas visited with Forrest Dunlap of American Desk Manufacturing Co.

Sought to "Buy" Sunday Show Law in Georgia

By A. JULES BENEDIC

ATLANTA—A bill known in the trade as "the anti-five," which virtually would have nullified the effect of the consent decree in Georgia and caused a return to the old style of whole season's bookings, with certain privileges of cancellation, lost out in the closing days of the state legislature by the narrowest of margins. In fact, on the closing day of the session, the vote to reconsider in the lower house was lost, 68 to 60.

Another bill, to open Sunday shows over Georgia in wholesale fashion, instead of in spots and under auspices of charity, after a stormy career in both the house and senate, was tabled in the lower section of the legislature by a howling voice vote after the opponents had launched a clever move.

Roy Martin's Letter Read

This move was by Rep. Walter Harrison, who charged that "the theatre interests of the state had sought to buy a Sunday show law for $5,000." Debating the senate bill to legalize the Sabbath showings. Harrison read a letter from Roy E. Martin of Columbus, Ga., addressed to the exhibitors of Georgia, in which Martin was declared to have stated that "a firm of Atlanta attorneys had agreed to put through the Sunday show law for the sum mentioned."

"The exhibitors were to pay $2,500 cash and a similar amount when the bill was put through," shouted Harrison. "The object is to take away the revenue that now goes to charity and put it in the pockets of theatre owners. We all know that lots of sins are committed in the name of charity, but I don't want our churches sold down the river so a few Atlanta attorneys can make a $5,000 fee."

The "anti-five" measure also had a stormy career through both branches. In senate committee it was out-voted, but on minority report in the upper branch it received a favorable vote and then went to the house. After a two-hour debate, it again lost out, but Rep. Alpha Fowler, also an Atlanta exhibitor and proponent of the bill, placed in the record a motion to reconsider on the closing day of the session. That was the next day, when a real fight was brought out. The bill lost by eight votes.

Judging from the number of exhibitors and exchange men who had a sudden yen to visit the state capital on both stormy days, there was a tremendous "lobby" on both sides. In fact, prominent exhibitors and distributors swarmed the corridors.

Georgia Censor Bill Hinted

"The exchanges threw a lot of money into this fight," an interested attorney told this spectator at the capital.

While the exchange men fought the bill tooth and nail, there was, apparently, no state-wide unanimity on the part of the exhibition clan. In fact, a number of representatives, claiming their privilege to explain their vote on the measure, broadcast as reasons for voting against that they had contacted their home-county exhibitors and had been advised to turn thumbs down on the proposed legislation. Others said they had taken similar action, and had been advised to vote for the bill. It was a merry battle while it lasted.

There was some bitterness. A certain small-town legislator told this reviewer: "They wouldn't vote for this bill; let's see what they do to that airtight censor bill that I propose to submit at the next session."

Theatre Building Booms in Texas

DALLAS—Theatre building activity continues on the upswing in Texas.

Carl Johnson, who owns the Arcadia at Floresville, has bought a competitive house, the Gem, from Gidney Talley and will operate both. He and Talley were here a few days ago working out the deal.

G. A. Cole is remodeling a building at New Braunfels in which he will open a new Cole to replace the house he recently lost by fire. He was on the Row this week in connection with the deal. The Griffith circuit of Oklahoma City is also reported planning a second theatre in New Braunfels.

Phil Isley has opened his new Granada in Brownwood which makes two for him there. He opened the new Plaza a few months ago.

H. R. Bisby was set to open his new Plaza at Garland Thursday.

Olin A. Beaupre has opened a new theatre at Alba which is about 16 miles from Mineola. He now operates a Negro house in Commerce. Both shows project 16mm film.

Reports are current here that B. R. McLendon, general manager of Tri-State Theatres, may soon build a new big house in Atlanta and another in Springhill, La.

Woolner's Some Run Hearing on April 1

NEW ORLEANS—The first arbitration hearing here will be held April 1 in the tribunal's offices in the Baronne Building. Phillip E. James, attorney, will arbitrate.

The issue before the tribunal is a demand from Paramount for some run at a drive-in theatre here, operated by Modern Theatre, Inc., headed by Charles J. Woolner.

Other complaints filed by the operator make similar demands of M-G-M and Warner. Hearing dates on these latter have not yet been set.

Texas Lends Warm Hand To Greek Relief Drive

DALLAS—A warm hand was extended to the Greek War Relief Drive by the Texas trade, nearly 80 per cent of all exhibitors in the state putting on big midnight benefit shows or taking up collections from patrons.

Four circuits, covering all towns in Texas from 5,000 population on up, went all out for the drive, namely, Interstate, with 75 situations; Griffith, 55; Jefferson-East Texas, 30, and Robb & Rowley, 25.

Likewise, independents did a full share for the cause, nearly 150 of them running midnight shows and many more taking up collections.

The Variety Club of Texas contributed handsomely with a Greek benefit dance at the Plantation Club at $1 per person. Earliest reports had more than 2,000 tickets sold for the affair.

Elsewhere over the south, the drive picture stacked up like this: Atlanta area—280 theatres cooperating, 50 midnight shows; Memphis area—200 cooperating, 100 midnight shows; New Orleans area—180 cooperating, 40 midnight shows; Oklahoma City area—200 cooperating, 55 midnight shows.

Collect Contributions For Greek War Relief

ROCKY MOUNT, N. C.—The Center, Cameo and Carolina theatres, along with other theatres throughout the country, cooperated in the raising of funds for Greek war relief. Women were on duty in the lobby of each of the theatres collecting contributions. Women from the Business and Professional Women's Club and from other organizations also donated their time and service.

Show in Memphis Yields Over $1,500 for Greece

MEMPHIS—More than $1,500 was raised here for Greek relief by a Variety-sponsored stage-screen show at the Malco. The British-made "Night Train" was the film shown, and Milton Slosser was emcee. In Nashville, the Crescent circuit collaborated with the Musicians' Union in staging a film-flesh show at the Paramount.

Charlotte Houses Do Their Share

CHARLOTTE—Local theatres joined in the drive for funds for Greek war relief. They ran special trailers at each show and took donations in the lobby. Mayor Ben E. Douglas has officially set April 18 as "Tag Day" for the Greek cause.

Plans Houston House

DALLAS—It is learned here that H. E. Fulgham, owner of the Ideal in Ft. Worth, has completed a deal for building a new suburban theatre in the north section.

Their Nerves Are Still a Bit Jumpy

Atlanta—Willie Smith, manager of the Canton, Canton, and his wife were driving to Atlanta when their car stalled on a railroad track near Smyrna.

Willie was trying with all his might to get the car going when all of a sudden they saw a train approaching. So, naturally, out they jumped just in time to see their car torn to tatters and carried away by the onrushing engine.

The Smiths are still having trouble with their nerves when they think of it, but otherwise they're all right.

Santone Premiere for "I Wanted Wings"

SAN ANTONIO—The Gulf Coast Air Corps Training Center gave "I Wanted Wings," Paramount picture of U. S. Army aviation, a full-dress sendoff with the largest air show ever put on in this section of the country, a gala ball, a testimonial dinner by the flying officers and a press preview at the post theatre.

The events were witnessed by a crowd of 15,000 people, including a thousand flying officers and trainees and such celebrities as Major General Henry H. Arnold, chief of the U. S. Air Corps; Governor Lee O'Daniel of Texas; Mayor Maury Maverick of San Antonio; Brigadier General Gerald C. Brant, commanding officer of the training center; Lt. Beirne Lay jr., author of the book, "I Wanted Wings;" Clayton Knight, World War ace and aviation illustrator; William Holden, Veronica Lake and Wayne Morris, stars of the picture, and five ranking officers of the Venezuelan Air Force, who have come to Randolph Field to study U. S. flying methods. Robert M. Gillham flew down from New York to represent the Paramount home office.

Big thrill of the day for the Hollywood visitors came when Holden and Morris were awarded honorary flying cadet warrants, an honor given to only a handful of people in the history of air corps.

The main event of the afternoon was the aviation show of record-breaking size, in which 300 planes from Kelly and Randolph fields took part. One of the most spectacular features of the exhibition was the spelling out of the word "Wings" by 90 planes, a sock testimonial to the cooperation between the Army and Paramount on the production of the film. Following the show, there took place a tea dance for 600 air cadets and their guests at the post recreation center. Preceding the evening screening was the officers' dinner for the visiting notables.

NEW ORLEANS

A P. BRASHEAR, manager of the American Desk Mfg. Co. of Temple, Texas, was in the city. The local branch is under the management of W. A. Prewitt . . . Two new houses are scheduled for opening soon in Bay St. Louis, Miss. Ed Ortte, once a salesman for Republic, is opening a 450-seater and Frank Olah of New Orleans is putting the finishing touches to his new house. The Louisiana Motion Picture Equipment Co. is furnishing the entire equipment for the two houses.

The New Orleans premiere of "The Flame of New Orleans" has been set for April 17. Universal has promised a personal appearance of several stars, among them Bruce Cabot, Andy Devine, and Mischa Auer.

A. Harrison jr. has been appointed by Governor Jones to arrange for an exchange of films between New Orleans and the Central American states. Under the working of the plan, scenes in Louisiana and more particularly in New Orleans, will be photographed in color, a Spanish sound track being provided for the assembling of the film which is then sent to Central America. In return color motion pictures made in Central America and provided with sound tracks in English, will be sent to New Orleans. A film showing the 1941 Carnival, the docks and river front and the French quarter has been prepared by Harrison. A film of Costa Rica is soon to be available here in exchange. An office for the distribution of Louisiana films has been opened by Harrison in San Jose, Costa Rica with an American newspaper man, Ralph Hancock, in charge.

Bill Minder, former resident manager for Grand National, was a visitor to the Row. He is now writing in Hollywood . . . "Sonny" with our own John Carroll in the lead, will have a New Orleans premiere.

The Writers Project of the WPA is reported undertaking to issue a history of the "going" motion picture theatres in Louisiana, showing the seating capacity, affiliation and when erected. Work on the new project will begin within the next 30 days . . . W. H. Cobb of the Exhibitors Poster Service, returning from a trip through Louisiana and Mississippi, says that at least 50 per cent of the theatres in that section are busy on renovation programs.

Fred Goodrow of Atlantic Films has returned from a selling trip up-state . . . Tent show managers are readying their outfits in preparation for an early spring opening and are busy purchasing equipment.

Ivan Kahn, 20th-Fox talent scout, was in the city. He is accompanied by his wife, Jesse Malo, screen writer . . . William B. Sharp was found guilty of assaulting G. Pepitone on the stage of the Lafayette. Pepitone testified he was assaulted when he and George Schilling jr. went to the theatre to negotiate a union contract with

Concerning Florida

By A. JULES BENEDIC

ATLANTA—Tarpon and snapper, snook and white Marlin, are terms intermingled freely with the familiar film-can talk along Atlanta's Row these days, what with receipt of E. J. Sparks' initial bulletin concerning his 1941 Fishing Trip, a yearly event that gladdens the hearts of some 200 embryonic Izaak Waltons over the southeast. This year, according to Ed's broadcast, the annual trek will be to Plantation Key, one of the islands on the overseas highway from Miami to Key West; the exact locale being the club named after the key. Elaborate preparations are being made, although the dates are a month off, April 26 to 30.

BENEDIC

Ed Sparks, head of Florida State Theatres, Inc., has been holding these events for years. Every spring, on invitation, the circuit head gathers with him some 200 southeasterners and by water, airplane, train or auto they jaunt to southern seas, putting in a week of fishing, feasting and fun-making. This year will be no exception, in fact, the 1941 trip is expected to break all records from many angles.

A Paradise on Plantation

Just a peep into the inner details of what have been described as "the most beautiful reefs in the world" are given by no less a person than Erl Roman, fishing editor of the Miami Herald, who made a personal inspection of the grounds:

"For variety in fishing, there is no better choice, for the grounds selected are the finest in the world. There is Gulf Stream fishing for the big, speedy gamesters; there is reef fishing for huge amberjack, grouper, jewfish and a host of other hard-fighting finsters; there are some of the finest of known bone-fishing flats, and excellent casting for tarpon, snapper, snook, redfish, speckled water trout and many other fishes in the Bay of Florida. Plenty of crawfish—Florida lobsters—for the giggers; in fact, the finest trip you've ever taken.

"Dates selected are early enough to avoid mosquitos yet late enough to hit the good runs of sailfish, white marlin, dolphin, wahoo, bonito and albacore . . . Days could be spent on these coral-bedecked bottoms, watching the fish life through glass-bottomed buckets. Those who like surf-casting with light rigs can have a fine time on the ocean side of the keys, while those who want to try out for the doughty bass can have the time of their lives in the Bay of Florida, one of the most beautiful bodies of water on this hemisphere."

John Crovo Handling Details

John L. Crovo, H. B. Vincent and W. A. Krause are in charge of the fishing party, and Mr. Sparks requests any questions may be directed to them. Crovo's address is in care of the Arcade Theatre in Jacksonville. Other pointers on the party, as expressed in Mr. Sparks' initial eight-page broadcast, are given:

Assembling date is April 26, at the Columbus Hotel in Miami, with special rates being made for the party. Reaching there before 1 p. m., the excursioner may either drive his own car over the keys to Plantation, some 75 miles distant, or hop a ride on one of the busses which will be provided. While return is on April 30, to Miami, there is an additional trip planned for those who care to take it. This is an air flight to Havana, starting May 1 at noon, on a chartered Pan-Am four-motored clipper. Return as a party may be made as late as May 3, although the guest may remain longer in the Cuban capital if he desires. In addition, several other dates have been arranged by those who may care to sail to Havana instead of flying.

Total cost of the trip this year, including transportation back and forth from Miami, will run $115, with an additional $30 for the Havana trip.

SANTONE

MANAGER HENRY BERGMAN of the Texas announced that proceeds from the picture, "Land of Liberty," which played a three-day engagement at his house, will go to British war aid. He also stated that $50,000 has already been given to the English war relief by the producers and distributors of the film, and that 20,000 school students tickets were issued at reduced prices during the local showing . . . "The Lady Eve," was the midnight owler at the Majestic Saturday.

Latin-American film notes: Senorita Estella Inca, Azteca film star, made a guest stand at the National; Antonette Tono, Mexican radio player, dittoed at the Zaragosa; J. J. Jimenez, skipper of the local office, back from his Mexico City jaunt; Azteca's newest releases include "Cantinflas en los Censos" and "Rosa La Terciopelo."

That new candy girl at the Texas answers to the name of Miss Margie Healey . . . The Barney Brothers Circus is playing dates in and around the Hill Country . . . Dave Rubinoff, who appeared at the Auditorium, was interviewed by Jack Mitchell over KTSA . . . San Antonians recognized a familiar face in "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary" at the Majestic recently when Eli Solomon (Elliot Sullivan) flashed upon the screen.

Congratulations to Lee Aronstein, majordomo at the Palace for the past 11 years. Lee has just been appointed contact man for Interstate in these parts. He will still remain as head man at the Palace.

DALLAS

Stage Show Competitor Strongest in Dallas

DALLAS—Olsen & Johnson's "Hellzapoppin'," stage show at the Melba with Billy House and Eddie Garr and screamlined revue played to SRO during four days starting Thursday. Ducats were $2.50 down to $1.20. Elm Street otherwise was calm in a week of favorable weather. "Tobacco Road" opened big at the Majestic but faded down to an average take, not getting a holdover.

The Rialto played a one time double thrill show to up the gross there. The Capitol has altered its runs to include outstanding action films of former years for its three midweek days and is thriving with the plan. The action doubles for the weekends continue to show up well above in this house, the latest bill including Autry's newest with "All Over Town" starring Olsen & Johnson to tie in with the current stage show "Hellzapoppin'" at the Melba.

The Tower failed to get anticipated reactions on Academy Award honors by going back and picking up "Vivacious Lady" with Ginger Rogers and James Stewart. The run here was slightly under average.

Detail for week ending March 2:

(Average is 100)

Capitol—Back in the Saddle (Rep); All Over Town (Rep) 115

A Thirty-Day Period Before Tax Is Levied

OTTAWA—Word has come from a usually reliable source that the bringing down of the Dominion war budget, scheduled for the last week in March, will not take place until well on in April with the result that the federal amusement tax proposal will not become effective for approximately another month—practically 30 days of grace for the exhibitors of the country.

It is a foregone conclusion that a percentage tax will be levied on theatre receipts, so that it will be impossible for theatre operators to pass on the levy to patrons in the sale of tax tickets. Since the start of the war the theatres have extended substantial cooperation to the Dominion government and public bodies in war savings and charity campaigns and it has been said that the response in the recent war savings drive was so spontaneous that the federal authorities delayed the budget to make a downward revision in the new taxation.

Censor Department Gets $200,000; Spends $36,700

TORONTO — The financial statement tabled in the Ontario legislature for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1941, by Premier M. F. Hepburn in the role of provincial treasurer, shows that the expenditures for the motion picture censorship and theatre inspection branch of the department for the 12 months totaled $36,700, compared with gross revenue for the period of $200,000 for censorship fees, theatre and projectionists' licenses.

Estimates for the next 12 months indicate that the government expects reduced revenue from the industry while anticipated expenditure by the branch is higher. The revenue for 1941-42 is placed at $175,000 while the total for expenditures is $44,025, or $7,300 more than for the year just closed. One of the new features of the branch is the government school for apprentice operators, the enrollment for which is limited to 30, with each candidate paying a tuition fee of $100 to cover expenses.

Men's Community Club Will House Theatre

TORONTO—With an immediate boom in prospect for the quiet village of Pickering, Ont., because of the erection of a war plant to employ 4,000 persons, an undisclosed company has purchased the Men's Community Club in that village 20 miles east of Toronto for use as Pickering's first theatre. Information is forthcoming that $24,000 will be spent in remodeling the structure, the basement of which has been leased by the Men's Club.

GLACE BAY, N. S.—Their first child, a son, was born recently to John and Hilda Connor, who operate the local Strand.

For One Censorship Board

Moose Jaw, Sask.—Consolidation of the Dominion's nine existing provincial boards into one national film censorship board, was recommended by Mrs. J. E. Cooper of the Regina Council of Women in an address before the Women's Canadian Club. The resultant saving from such a move, she pointed out, would make it possible to hire trained educators and psychologists "who have a great deal to contribute to such an organization."

In the course of her remarks, Mrs. Cooper also spoke of the important role played by motion pictures in character building and cautioned against certain types of propaganda films which create emotions of hate and unfriendliness. "There will be enough hate after this war without the screen adding to it," she said.

Seek Odeon Link in Visit by Friedman

TORONTO — The visit to Toronto of Harry Friedman, owner of the Rialto at Edmonton, a large independent house seating 1,200, is considered of unusual significance in view of current Odeon Theatre developments across the Dominion. One reason is that William J. Long, manager of the Rialto for some years, has been announced as supervisor for British Columbia of Odeon Theatres of Canada, Ltd., following the visit to the coast of O. R. Hanson and Paul Nathanson of Toronto, the latter the son of N. L. Nathanson, president of Famous Players Canadian Corp.

No Odeon announcements were forthcoming during the visit of Friedman to Toronto, where, incidentally, he was born and educated as a lawyer, but it is understood, on reliable authority, that he made arrangements while here for the construction of two theatres in Alberta, following his return to his home city. There are eight theatres in Edmonton, which has a population of 90,000, and, of these, five are operated by Famous Players. They are the Capitol, Dreamland, Empress, Princess and Strand. The Capitol is under the management of Walter P. Wilson. The four others, which seat from 400 to 800, are operated by A. Entwisle.

Famous Players is proceeding with building operations at Sarnia, Ont., an oil refinery center, with the purchase of the Embassy Club which is to be converted into a theatre at a cost of $40,000, according to plans drawn by Jay I. English of Toronto. The Imperial, circuit house at Sarnia, will also undergo extensive alterations.

War Service Fund Drive Is Aided by Trailer

MONTREAL—Theatres throughout Canada will be aiding the Canadian War Services campaign for funds by exhibiting a special trailer produced by Associated Screen Studios. Distribution in all major centers from coast to coast is being arranged by the Motion Picture Distributors and Exhibitors of Canada.

Improvements at Capitol

MOOSE JAW, SASK.—Basement of the Capitol has been renovated and a ladies' powder room, a gent's smoking room and a new office for Manager Jack Fields installed.

Restrictions Cutting Border Competition

TORONTO—There was a time when an international situation prevailed in the moving picture business in the Canadian border cities of Windsor and Niagara Falls. Canadian exhibitors had a perpetual grouch because local residents persisted in crossing the line to attend the shows in Detroit, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, and other American centers. At Windsor, a pet grievance was that the local newspaper accepted considerable display advertising from Detroit theatres—to the extent that, for some years, one page of the amusement section on Saturdays was devoted to Detroit activities while the other page contained Canadian advertising and Canadian advance notices.

War conditions have brought a distinct change. Because of foreign exchange and passport regulations which restrict the spending of money in U. S. border cities by Canadians, few of the latter can get across for an evening's entertainment. The Detroit theatre advertisements have gradually disappeared from the Windsor Star until, in recent weeks, the only display has been the advertisement for "Fantasia" at the Wilson—and this attraction is not likely to play in Windsor for a long time because of projection requirements. In the meantime, Simon Meretsky's group of Windsor theatres are doing the best business on record.

Distributors Association Disposes of One Office

ST. JOHN—As a paid fixture, the post of secretary of the maritime division of the Canadian Distributors' Ass'n has become non-existent. The division governs film distribution for the maritime provinces and Newfoundland, and was originally known as the maritime film board of trade. All the distributor entities covering the northeastern territory involved are located here. Miss Alice Fairweather, of St. John, who was a member and secretary of the New Brunswick board of censors, before being appointed secretary of the distribution board, is continuing as president of the Film Girls' Patriotic Club.

At present, the secretarial work which includes inspection of the distribution branches for fire protection and safety of the films, vaults, offices, projection equipment, is being handled by the maritime division members. A. E. Smith, manager of Regal Films branch, is president.

Tyers Is Honored at Hanson Convention

TORONTO—A one-day meeting of managers of Hanson Theatres Corp., Ltd., was held in Toronto, with condensed program because of the war, to deal with policies and developments, a feature being the presentation of the new O. R. Hanson silver plaque for the best exploitation record of 1940 to W. C. Tyers, manager of the Granada, St. Thomas, by President Hanson, this award being accompanied by a $100 cash prize. Tyers will hold the trophy for one year. The presentations, which took place at the luncheon, included a $50 cash award to Grant Garrette, manager of the Geneva, Orillia, as second prize for promotional work during the past year.

The meeting was in charge of H. C. D. Main, supervisor, and among those present were Pres. Hanson, A. E. Sanderson, accounting chief; E. V. Armstrong, projection and equipment supervisor; James Kudirka, assistant supervisor; W. J. Long, general manager of Associated Theatres, Ltd.; Frank Colameco, supervisor at Timmins; Bert Wainwright, proprietor of the Oxford, Toronto; J. A. Boyd, proprietor of the Granada, Toronto; V. Simone of Radio City and Beverly, Toronto; Howard Elliott, manager of the Beverly; Lionel Hansher, manager of the Radio City, and Tony Saso of the Granada and Roxy, Barrie.

Hanson managers in attendance included T. A. Mascaro, Capitol, Belleville; H. V. Neun, Granada, Chatham; Don Doberer, Granada, Dunnville; Lloyd Taylor, Granada, Hamilton; Tom McKnight, Patricia, London; Frank Miley, Granada, Napanee; Gordon Beavis, Royal, North Bay; Grant Garrette, Geneva, Orillia; Roy Miller, Marks, Oshawa; Gordon C. Miller, Regent, Peterboro; Leo Coyle, Granada, St. Catharines; W. C. Tyers, Granada, St. Thomas; Lorne Moore, Grand, Sudbury, and Charles Ingram, Bayview, Leaside.

Gordon Beavis' Campaign Termed February's Best

TORONTO—To Gordon Beavis, manager of the Royal, North Bay, goes the credit for the best campaign of the month among the Hanson Theatres for his exploitation on "Let George Do It," the announcement of the award being made by Supervisor H. C. D. Main.

Honorable mentions for February were earned by Emmett Stark of the Palace, Timmins; W. C. Tyers, Granada, St. Thomas; Don Doberer, Granada, Dunnville, and Leo Coyle of the Granada at St. Catherines.

Mrs. Neilson Joins Regal

ST. JOHN—Mrs. M. Neilson of St. John has joined the staff of Regal Films as a checker. Her husband, Maurice Neilson, who died about eight months ago, after a brief illness, had been a shipper at Regal. His successor as shipper is John Damery, formerly head usher at the Capitol.

Announcement by Odeon of the appointment of D. Mitchell as manager of the Varsity and Louis Anderson as manager of the Olympia.

Thirteen Hanson Theatre Employes Have Enlisted

TORONTO—Thirteen employes of Hanson Theatres Corp., including head office and the theatre staffs, have enlisted for active service with the Canadian Army. Three from head office comprise Lance Corporal G. R. Snider, infantry; Lance Corporal Neil Main, Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, and Lac. J. W. Mosey, Royal Canadian Air Force.

The following chain employes have joined the colors: Sgm. Arthur Montgrain, Seventh Corps of Signals, and Pte. T. B. O'Connell, Army Service Corps, from the Granada, Hamilton; Pte. Edward Goyette, Army Service Corps, Rideau, Ottawa; Driver C. D. Godfrey, Seventh Corps, from the Oxford, Toronto; AC C. H. Pask, Royal Canadian Air Force, and Corporal John Shaw, No. 2 Road Construction Coy., from the Royal North Bay; Private A. J. Tovey, Grey and Simcoe Foresters, from the Grand, Sudbury; Gnr. J. A. Calcutt, Royal Canadian Artillery, from the Capitol, Belleville; Private R. G. Guthrie, Irish Regiment of Canada, from the Marks, Oshawa; Trooper N. B. Gruber, First Hussars Tank Regiment, from the Patricia, London.

A number of these soldiers have proceeded overseas and may be in action in England, Iceland or somwhere around the Mediterranean, their exact location being unknown for military reasons. Others are in advanced stages of training at bases in Canada, one of the latest to don the uniform as a regular being Neil Main who made his start with the company as office boy at head office.

Timmins Cartier Becomes Unit in Hanson Chain

TORONTO—The Cartier at Timmins, in northern Ontario, has formally become a unit of the Hanson Theatres' chain in Ontario, the manager being Eugene LeBlanc, the theatre having recently been acquired from the Rousson-Trudeau interests. The Cartier is under the supervision of Frank Colameco who also supervises the Palace, Goldfields and New Empire at Timmins.

The Hanson circuit, apart from a number of theatres affiliated with the Associated Theatres, Ltd., in a cooperative booking plan, comprises approximately 25 theatres in all parts of Ontario.

St. Lawrence Seaway Project Spells Boom

TORONTO—The construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway system, agreed upon by the United States and Canada as a joint project, is to make a big difference in the countryside along the river in eastern Ontario as well as providing prospective industrial developments. When the waterway is completed several towns and villages will have disappeared, the townsides to be transferred to higher ground where a new trunk highway will be constructed. This means that a number of theatres will have to be torn down or bodily moved to new locations. According to present plans, those directly affected will include the Savoy at Cardinal, Ont., owned by T. M. Savor, and the Cameo which is operated at Morrisburg by N. W. Morton. The towns of Aultsville and Iroquois will also be affected and the halls here are tagged for removal.

The industrial boom will, in due course, affect numerous towns where construction operations will bring much activity in the meantime and it is expected that new theatres may be erected in some locations to take care of business developments as in the case of war industry towns. Theatres which will feel the business boost include the Capitol and Palace at Cornwall, operated by Clarence Markell for Famous Players; the Delaney, an independent house at Gananoque; the Capitol and Regent, Famous Players' units at Brockville; the Riviera, an independent theatre owned by J. O. Scott and the several theatres at Kingston where two more theatres already are being built by Odeon Theatres of Canada and Biltmore Theatres, Ltd.

Hamilton United's Gain Depleted by Taxes

MONTREAL—Though operating profit of Hamilton United Theatres, Ltd., showed a gain during 1940, there was sufficient increase in taxes and depreciation allowance to result in a decline in net profit. Operating profit of $78,433 compared with $73,921. Depreciation stood at $26,771 compared with $16,740, while taxes of $18,670 compared with $12,166 in 1939.

As a result net profit was reported at $35,637, or approximately $5.19 per share on the $7 preferred stock, compared with $48,196 or $6.64 per share on the preferred in 1939.

Working capital showed a moderate decline. Current assets of $171,011 compared with current liabilities of $28,446, leaving working capital of $142,565, compared with $144,048 a year ago.

Allaire Promotes Stamp Sale

VICTORIAVILLE, P. Q.—Cooperation from civil and religious authorities has enabled U. S. Allaire, proprietor of the Victoria, to promote the sale of war savings stamps through a series of Sunday shows, to which patrons are admitted upon purchase of a 25 cent war savings stamp, which they retain.

TORONTO

BY WAY of further cooperation with the Dominion government in attracting more tourists' dollars to the country, J. J. Fitzgibbons, vice-president of Famous Players Canadian Corp., is encouraging the circuit managers to cater to U. S. visitors during the coming months. During 1940, the government immigration branch reported that 13,598,777 visitors had entered Canada from the United States and Fitzgibbons holds that theatre managers are key men in looking after the comfort and convenience of these "invaders."

Herbert Marshall, veteran screen star, paid his second visit to Toronto in 15 years for several days last weekend to appear in a radio version of "Pastor Hall" over the national network . . . Manager Fred Trebilcock of the Uptown discovered that the goalkeeper in the hockey sequence of the George Formby picture, "I See Ice," was Art Child, a former Toronto hockey star who had gone to England several years ago to play for the Wembley Lions. The parents of the athlete were guests at the theatre.

When Patricia Bailey, protege of Jack Arthur, district manager of Famous Players, went to Los Angeles recently to sing in the Al Pearce program, she had to go first to Buffalo to draw her expense money for the trip and then proceed to the coast becauses she was unable to take Canadian funds out of the Dominion under foreign exchange control board regulations.

As previously intimated in BOXOFFICE, Harry Yudin, son-in-law of Hyman Freedman, has been transferred from the Center at St. Catharines to the Circle, Toronto. Sam Freedman, a son, has been appointed manager of the Center. Both are Freedman houses . . . Nat Taylor, managing director, has announced the appointment of Ed Newman, formerly manager of the Lyceum, Winnipeg, to be manager of the Midtown, formerly the Madison, which is scheduled to be opened as a unit of 20th Century Theatres, Ltd., in April.

Alf Swartz, manager of the Strand at Geraldton in northern Ontario, has announced his engagement to Myra Solway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Solway of Toronto, the marriage to take place in June. Harry Solway has sold his Palace at Galt, Ont., to undisclosed interests which have been reported to be the new Odeon Theatres' chain, the theatre coming under the new direction April 1.

Fred Emney, Toronto comedian who used to appear in many stage shows in the Dominion, has turned up as a screen player, being featured in the British picture, "Jane Steps Out," which Manager A. C. Simpson has been promoting at the Toronto Hollywood . . . L. D. Kniffen, former district engineer of Dominion Sound Equipments, Ltd., has announced locally that his new theatre at Owen Sound, Ont., will be called the New Center. The recent big snowstorm in western Ontario held up building operations for several days but the house will be ready early in May.

J. A. Boyd, manager of the Granada, has sold $457 worth of war savings stamps in less than nine months in a one-man campaign to help the government's war finances. The Oxford has reported the sale of stamps totaling $225 during the same period while Manager Ed Marlow of the Lincoln, St. Catharines, has disposed of $217 worth. Manager Tom McKnight of the Patricia, London, is credited with the sale of $191.50 while Manager Lorne Moore of the Grand, Sudbury, has sold stamps totaling $167.25. Incidentally, Manager Marlow recently received a letter of thanks from a parent in Great Britain for a year's pass to the Lincoln which he had presented to a number of child refugees now in St. Catharines.

Ron McClelland, proprietor of the Capitol, Toronto, has been spending some time at his farm at Maple, Ont., to prepare for spring operations with a view to increased production to help meet war needs.

Ticket Super-Tax of Past Reappears

Toronto—It was 25 years ago at this time that Hon. T. W. McGarry, provincial treasurer of Ontario, caused almost a sensation when he announced in his budget speech before the provincial legislature that the government would impose a new form of war taxation—a one-cent levy on every ticket sold by a theatre or for an entertainment to be known as an amusement tax. Ontario was the first to impose a war tax on admission tickets anywhere and it grew to a $2,000,000 item in peace time until it was abolished by Premier M. F. Hepburn. Twenty-five years later, the federal government has intimated its intention of collecting a super-tax on tickets for this war.

Sam Brint Succumbs on Business Trip to Ottawa

TORONTO—The Toronto film colony was shocked with the sudden death of Sam Brint, veteran salesman of Empire-Universal Films, Ltd., who expired Sunday at the Chateau Laurier Hotel, Ottawa, during a business trip to that city. He had literally spent a lifetime in the business and was widely known. The body was brought to Toronto where interment took place on Wednesday. He had apparently been in vigorous health.

Aid War Fund Appeal

MONTREAL—Canadian theatre exchanges, circuits and independent exhibitors will assist the joint War Services appeal for funds. The YMCA, Canadian Legion, Salvation Army and Knights of Columbus war services will combine their campaign for funds to carry on work among Canadian armed forces.

Introduces Multiple Billing

MONTREAL—James (Jimmie) Blaine, manager of the Rosemount, United Amusement house, introduced a policy of showing three films nightly. Rosemount fans have responded to the multiple feature bill.

OTTAWA

LLOYD M. MILLS, manager of the Elgin, has been promoted to be supervisor of the 20th Century Theatres, Ltd., and is taking up residence in Toronto in order to assume charge of the chain. Before taking over the Elgin two years ago, Mills was manager of the Center at London, Ont., and previously had been in charge of the Granada at St. Thomas.

Capt. Frank C. Badgley, M. C., director of the Canadian government motion picture bureau for the past 18 years, has been re-elected president of the Red Chevron Club for the fourth successive year. This club is made up of soldiers who were in the first Canadian contingent to proceed overseas in the last war. Badgley served with distinction, winning the Military Cross for bravery in the field. He was a newspaperman prior to the First Great War.

Norman Reilly Raine, author of "Tugboat Annie" and other stories, has been in Ottawa to confer with government officials on war work. He was a captain in the Canadian Infantry in France during the First Great War until he transferred to the Royal Flying Corps in 1918 . . . Angelo Stevens, manager of the Regent, secured a front page publicity break when a press photographer took pictures of a local military parade with the theatre as a background with the marquee sign plainly showing the current attraction, "Victory," to which the caption writer made special reference.

The Capitol, Famous Players' unit, had another capacity crowd for a concert when Manager Ray Tubman had Josef Hofmann, pianist, for a single appearance, the continuous film show being cancelled for the evening.

Henry Marshall, manager of the Ottawa Rideau, in a tieup with a local daily, organized a theatre party for 50 carrier boys. The immediate result was a free reader in the paper which measured 200 lines . . . Roy Miller, manager of the Marks at Oshawa, Ont., had a full matinee when he arranged a tieup with a dairy for free ice cream for the first 700 children Saturday afternoon. Miller started the show at 12 noon with an extra hour's program of cartoon comedies.

Ambrose P. Nolan, son of the late P. J. Nolan, is back in Ottawa as a theatre manager for one of the Nolan houses, having sold his Pix at Aylmer, Quebec, to Leo Choquette. The new manager of the Aylmer house is Paul Leroux, formerly of Montreal . . . The Central Canada Exhibition Association has set the dates of the revived Ottawa Fair for the week of August 18 and Ottawa theatre managers will be setting this date in their booking schedules for special attractions for the out-of-town visitors. The exhibition was cancelled last year because of unsettled conditions.

Don Stapleton, proprietor of the Center, held "Buck Privates" a second week . . . The Ottawa Women's Service League, a patriotic war organization, sponsored a benefit variety show at the Capitol, Sunday night.

United Amusement A&B Shares Earn $1.16

MONTREAL—United Amusement Corp., Ltd., report for year ended Dec. 31, 1940, shows net profit of $93,788 after interest, amortization, depreciation, provision for income and excess profits and other taxes, and all other charges, equal to $1.16 a share on 80,829 combined voting and non-voting class "A" and "B" no par shares of capital stock. This compares with net profit of $94,640 for previous year or $1.17 a combined share.

Theatre operating profits totaled $465,-165, compared with $414,967 in 1939, while total income was $673,093 against $617,-791 in previous year.

Balance sheet shows a net working capital of $286,705, compared with $215,088 at prior year-end. The funded debt is shown reduced to $1,432,000 from $1,480,000 at Dec. 31, 1939. After minor adjustments and dividends at rate of 80 cents a share, compared with 75 cents in previous year, earned surplus increased to $279,352 from $244,393.

The annual general meeting of shareholders will be held at 5711 Park Ave., on Wednesday, April 30, at 11 a. m.

REGINA

IN A RECENT item in this column, it was stated that Manager Les Pugsley, manager of the Orpheum, Moose Jaw, clipped frames from a newsreel and presented them to a Moose Jaw family whose boy was shown arriving in England with the Royal Canadian Air Force. This was an error on the part of the BOXOFFICE correspondent. The frames were not clipped, but were photographed by a Moose Jaw photographer and the photographs were presented to the family.

Catering to the comfort of patrons, the Met now has a radio speaker in the lounge. It is attached to a radio in Manager Charlie Bahrynowski's office . . . The Red Cross benefited when Manager J. Killer of the Auditorium, Indian Head, gave notice in the Indian Head News that all lost articles found in the theatre were being turned over to that body if not claimed within a week of the appearance of the notice.

Courtesy of Manager H. S. Humphrey and Mrs. Humphrey enabled the Ladies Aid of the Grenfell United Church to hold a St. Patrick's tea and sale of home cooking in the Windsor. There was also a War Savings table, proceeds going to the United Church War Savings fund . . .Victor Armand, superintendent of maintenance for Famous Players, Winnipeg, was in Regina preparatory to the renovation and reseating of the Met.

Mel Brown, usher at the Met, is awaiting his call for service with the navy . . . Manager Les Pugsley of the Orpheum, Moose Jaw, reports capacity business for "Hell's Angels" and "Scarface." It was the sixth time in eight years that "Hell's Angels" had played the city. Moose Jaw has a population of about 24,000.

MONTREAL

MONTREAL possesses 63 film theatres with a seating capacity of 68,845, and 226 theatres with a seating capacity of 136,215 are serviced from Montreal offices of distributors, the Canadian Film Boards of Trade report. In the entire Dominion there are 1,349 film theatres able to seat 702,977 patrons.

Raymond Massey, Canadian-born stage and screen star, came to Montreal to play the lead in the CBC's broadcast presentation of Arch Oboler's play, "This Precious Freedom" . . . National Film Society's Montreal branch is seeking more junior members.

While Montreal and Quebec province are specially favored over other Canadian cities in being permitted to attend Sunday shows, a limited opening of theatres Sundays is being introduced in England. Scotland is exempted from the Act empowering theatres to open, as sentiment in that deeply religious country is believed to be against Sunday performances even in wartime.

Associated Screen News cameras clicked on a variety of subjects in the past few days, the most dramatic of which was the fire and explosion which destroyed a fur dyeing plant here. Winter sports took Harvey Bassett to the Seigniory Club to take stills of curlers playing in the MacCrea Bonspeil, and Charlie Wilkinson photographed skiing and tobogganing near Quebec City.

Canadian newsreel subjects covered by ASN roving reporters saw film exposed to the green grass and budding trees on the Pacific coast where Arnold Hague covered the mid-winter golf tournament in Victoria, B. C.; the final struggle against winter as icebreakers opened a channel in the St. Lawrence River was filmed by Ross Beesley, while Lucien Roy continued to travel across the open spaces of northern British Columbia and the Yukon keeping his camera grinding on construction of new airfields in the U. S.-Canada-Alaska airway project.

Joint Convenor of the dinner dance to be given in the Mount Royal's Normandie Roof, May 11, by the ladies' auxiliary of the Mount Sinai Sanatorium, is Mrs. George Rotsky, wife of the general manager of Consolidated Theatres . . . Jack and Jacqueline Trent recently devoted a chapter in a history of Notre Dame de Grace to the growth of the suburb's leading industry, Associated Screen News. This appeared in the Montreal Monitor.

S. Morgan-Powell, veteran film critic and editor-in-chief of Montreal Star, voices the views of all well-informed citizens when he says that the prohibition on children attending motion picture theatres in Quebec province while ostensibly based on the risk of fire, "is, in reality, one of those queer 'moral' regulations which are intended to protect them from undesirable influences." He points out that in the United Kingdom pictures are endorsed in two ways, one for adults only, and the other for everybody including children, and this he regards as the sound common sense, practical solution of the problem, which could be adopted in Quebec.

Rankin Makes Theatre a Civic Center in Tilbury

TILBURY, ONT.—Illustrative of the manner in which Manager Harland Rankin keeps the Plaza an integral part of the community is the following survey of activities but recently undertaken and consummated by Rankin.

A large wedding party was held on the stage with gifts donated by local merchants and the mayor giving the bride away. City council members were guests of honor.

Aiding the drive for war savings, an essay contest was held for pupils of the local schools. War stamps were the prizes for the best essays on "Why There'll Always Be an England." The Plaza sponsored the first local corn show and contributed admissions to the British War Relief Fund. Funds for the Red Cross were raised by an art contest held on the stage, in which four contestants drew a portrait of the town's most popular physician and auctioned off the drawings.

A bald-headed show netted free haircuts for three months from local barbers as prizes; a milking contest between boys and girls under 16, provided more revenue for war savings stamps when the milk was sold a local dairy; and in a tieup with a shoe store the Civil Guards and the Canadian Legion had teams compete in a two-mile hike that started and ended at the Plaza. A month's pass was among the prizes for the winners.

ST. JOHN

THEATRE circuits are expanding in the eastern provinces. Bernstein & Lieberman have added three theatres in recent months for a total of 11. They are now functioning in Maine as well as in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. The F. G. Spencer circuit is building a new house in Truro, N. S., where it already has two, the Strand and Capitol. Famous Players announces a new theatre for Moncton, N. B., where it now has the Empress and Capitol. Franklin & Herschorn are unofficially reported planning new theatre construction in the provinces.

Charlie Chaplin, UA manager here the past six years, is now in charge of the Montreal branch for the company. He's succeeded here by George Heiter, who had been office manager and booker. Replacing Heiber is Sammy Kunitzky, formerly of Eastern Films . . . Thus far, there has been no interference with theatre operation by the frequent test blackouts held under air raid precautions jurisdiction in eastern centers . . . A new theatre may be built in Charlottetown, P. E. I., where two are now operated by the Spencer chain.

Archie Mason of Springhill, N. S., an exhibitor in that coal mining town for 30 years, does not consider baseball theatre opposition. Maybe it's because he has long been a promoter of amateur baseball and for several years has been president of the Nova Scotia Amateur Baseball Ass'n. Recently he was elected vice-president of the Nova Scotia Fish and Game Protective Ass'n. He's also chairman of the provincial conciliation board on exhibitor-distributor relations.

Pays for Music on "Buck Privates"

Wellston, Ohio—Here is a stunt that John W. Brown, manager of the Civic, reports "worth its weight in gold" in exploiting "Buck Privates." A large mat was printed on cardboard, making numerous standees. These were placed in various spots in town where there were victrolas and a record with a tune from the show was spotted with each. The card read: "Play Number 6. If you don't have a nickel, ask the clerk for one. He'll play it."

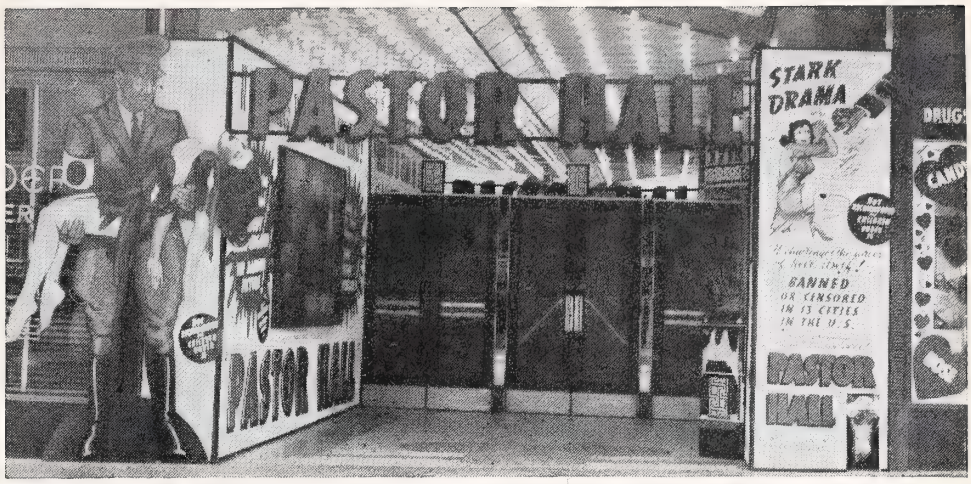
During the entire week only a little over a dollar was paid out, and to great results, reports Brown.

Comic Book Distributor Aiding Serial Campaign

NEW YORK—In line with tie-in arrangements made between Republic and Fawcett, publisher of "Whiz Comics," whose character, Captain Marvel, Republic adapted to the screen in its current serial, "Adventures of Captain Marvel," Fawcett field men worked with Irving Hillman, manager of the Capitol in Danbury, Conn., on his campaign.

Special banners were placed on news company trucks. One-sheet posters and window cards were distributed to various stores and newsstands throughout the city. A large new store devoted a window to a display.

On the day prior to the opening, "Whiz Comics" books were given every boy and girl attending the matinee. A sticker on the cover of each book told the children that Captain Marvel would be seen in the serial at the theatre. On the opening day itself, 7x10 color photos of Captain Marvel were given to all attending the matinee.



Fawcett field men throughout the country are working with theatres in connection with the showing of the serial, and Fawcett has announced special cash prizes to the field men and distributors for the best promotion campaign.

"Great Lie" Build-Up

NEW YORK—The first big gun in the national build-up for Warner's forthcoming Bette Davis starrer, "The Great Lie," gets under way on April 1 when 15 national magazines break with a full-page ad on the feature. The ad will reach an estimated 19,000,000 movie-goers.

Power Co. Cooperates

SCRANTON, PA.—Willard Matthews, Strand manager, obtained the cooperation of the local power company for his showing of "Penny to the Rescue" to the extent of their enclosing an announcement with their monthly statements. Thirty thousand were sent out.

Accent on Banned—

Special "sock" front, prepared by Manager Charlie Meeker, who placed special emphasis on the banned angle of the picture, helped to more than double the average gross for the "Pastor Hall" engagement at the Tower, Dallas, Texas.

Annual Easter Frolic Md. Theatre Project

BETHESDA, MD.—The Easter Frolic held annually at Sidney Lust's Bethesda Theatre will be presented this year on Saturday morning, April 12. The program, sponsored by Lust and the publisher of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Tribune, will take place inside the theatre and will be free to the children of the area. Kenneth Davis, manager of the Bethesda, is in charge of the event.

An elaborate stage program will include a kiddie review from a local dance studio, a demonstration of comedy magic, and several other acts with appeal to children. A popular radiocaster will emcee proceedings.

A special feature will be a fancy Easter basket contest, with several valuable prizes awarded for the best decorated basket.

Easter Egg Hunt

Sidney Lust's three theatres in Hyattsville, Mt. Rainier and Upper Marlboro, Md., are participating with the Kiwanis Club in sponsoring the county's annual egg hunt which will be held Monday morning, April 14.

More than 10,000 children and adults are expected to participate. Fifteen hundred eggs, boiled and dyed by women in the county, will be hidden in the woods bordering the park, and more than 500 of these will be especially marked, netting their finders sums ranging from five cents to one dollar.

An elaborate entertainment program, that will include pie-eating and kid-calling contests, a kiddie revue and other acts have been outlined.

Packs Theatre With Party for Soldiers

MERIDEN, CONN.—A farewell party to 200 officers and men of the National Guard, staged by Joseph Samartano of the Palace and his assistant, William Scanlon, packed the house and landed front page stories for days.

Two days before the company was to leave for camp, they were invited to be guests of the theatre. The stunt started with a parade from the Armory to the theatre, with a band, banners, cars and the like.

A stage show was built around two numbers, one a march written by the leader of the local band. A dance act and speeches by vets of 1917-18 were part of the show, and athletic equipment, contributed by local organizations, were presented as gifts to members of the company. A flag-bedecked stage and formations of soldiers made the event impressive.

Broadcast to So. America Features "Rio" Preview

PHILADELPHIA—A broadcast to Latin America over WCAU's short wave transmitter featured the preview of "That Night in Rio," held at the radio station's auditorium. Twenty-two consuls of the Latin-American countries were the guests of honor, and all newspaper executives and critics were invited.

An orchestra provided South American music, and four models dressed like Carmen Miranda served cocktails and hors d'oeuvres in south-of-the-border style. Affair was formal.

COME LIVE WITH ME—Patrons writing the cleverest (and most complimentary) comments about the film were awarded guest tickets good for a month. Winning entries were used in an ad.

CHEERS FOR MISS BISHOP—Forty trucks of the city's largest magazine distributor were bannered.

KITTY FOYLE—A giant postal card, 5x7 feet, mounted in the lobby, carried a congratulatory message to Ginger Rogers on her winning the Academy Award. Space for hundreds of fan signatures was provided on the card. The card was forwarded to the studio on the film's opening day.

A GIRL, A GUY AND A GOB—Navy and shipyards were placarded with 50 24-sheets, and 10,000 heralds distributed.

TIN PAN ALLEY—Five thousand bookmark type dodgers, bearing a face cut of Jack Oakie and one of Betty Grable in a dancing costume, read: "A word to the wives, from Jack Oakie (photo of Oakie) for Rational Defense, be sure to accompany hubby and hold his hand when he sees 'Tin Pan Alley.' Warning! Don't permit him to lose his heart and his head (like I did) to that blonde blitzkrieg pictured below!" (photo of Grable in costume). Playdate and theatre copy at bottom of the throwaway.

HERE COMES THE NAVY—Three thousand cards, calling card size, with a hole punched in one corner to which was fastened by a bit of ribbon a miniature airplane, read: "In the air and on the seas, it's our Navy in action!" Title, cast and playdate followed.

SO ENDS OUR NIGHT—One thousand appropriately imprinted fan magazines were distributed to patrons. A selected mailing list was contacted one week in advance.

A GIRL, A GUY AND A GOB—Mothers and wives of men who have recently joined the navy were invited to attend the show.

THIS THING CALLED LOVE—A boy and a girl cruised about town in a bannered old flivver. The marriage bureau gave tickets to couples applying for licenses during the run of the show.

FLIGHT COMMAND—On four-inch square card was stapled a stick of gum. A line above the gum read "For a thrill-taste, chew (gum)." Directly below it was a line crediting the company furnishing the gum. Other copy read: "For the thrill show of the year we urge you to see (title, playdate)."

WESTERN UNION—Twenty messenger boys, appropriately bannered and followed by the usher staff and a band, paraded the main street.

WESTERN UNION—The company's messenger boys all wore buttons urging the public to see the picture and naming the theatre.

MR. AND MRS. SMITH—Two days before opening persons named Smith along the streets were called on to appear on a Sidewalk Interview conducted by the local radio station. A "Calling All Smiths" broadside was sent all Smiths calling their attention to a special Smith night.

INVISIBLE WOMAN—Making a lobby display was a chair, a pair of dummy legs (such as used for stocking displays), and a lady's hat and gloves. Legs were arranged in front of chair as though actually part of a seated person. The hat was suspended on an invisible thread. Gloves were stuffed with cotton and placed on arms of chair, with a cigarette in one hand. A one-sheet alongside read: " 'The Invisible Woman'—a gorgeous ghost goes to town."

DANCING ON A DIME—One thousand small change envelopes, each containing one dime, were handed out by the cashier as change when tickets were purchased. Copy rubber-stamped on the envelope: "Hold this dime as part of the price to enjoy 'Dancing on a Dime' (theatre and playdates)."

CHAD HANNA—Wagon wheels, obtained from a local dairy, were painted red with gold stripes on the spokes, and placed on the sidewalk, tied to posts. Signs read: "See 'Chad Hanna,' the engrossing story of the lives of entertainers under the big top. Story from the Satevepost story, 'Red Wheels Rolling.' A must see picture."

SEA WOLF—A two-page pictorial spread was mounted in a merchant's window. Library displayed Jack London books with a card mentioning booking.

THIS THING CALLED LOVE—People who presented their wedding certificate, proving their anniversary fell on the dates the film played, were admitted free. In cooperation with the local paper, the persons so admitted were guests of the paper. News stories resulted.

THIS THING CALLED LOVE—A kiss for every customer by a double of Rosalind Russell.

BRIGHAM YOUNG, FRONTIERSMAN—Members of a branch of the Mormon Church were contacted to sell tickets a week in advance. Their minister was invited to speak at the theatre on a Sunday afternoon, distinguishing between his belief and that of the followers of Brigham Young.

Clothes Make the Monkey—

A doorman obligingly donned the ape costume to make this display for Dave Dallas of the Kansan, Parsons, Kas., on opening day of "The Ape." Parading the streets, appropriately placarded, was another phase of the stunt.

Picture People No. 6

RKO 10 Mins.

Very good. The four or five items assembled in this reel are an intelligent, tasteful selection that should definitely please the audience. Chief sequence shows Charles Laughton and Elsa Lanchester responding to Arch Oboler's radio direction. Oboler wants them to be inconsequential while the sound effects man goes into a thunderstorm routine.

The Haunted Mouse

Vitaphone (Looney Tune) 7 Mins.

Good. Outstanding as black-and-white animation goes, this subject will undoubtedly register more strongly with adult audiences than most cartoons. A weary and hungry cat comes upon a ghost town. He enters what was formerly a restaurant and, instead of food, comes upon a ghost mouse that is out for retribution for all the calamities mice have suffered at the hands of cats. The mouse engages in some heart-breaking teasing that makes for some very clever invention.

Wild Boar Hunt

Vitaphone (Hollywood Novelties) 10 Mins.

Excellent. Very interesting, thrilling and off the beaten path is this release of the series that has featured Howard Hill, probably the world's greatest exponent of the bow and arrow. This one has to do with wild boar hunting off southern California and packs some exciting moments as a boar, about to attack a farmer, is downed by Hill's arrow. The rest of the footage is given over to Hill's markmanship with a variety of targets.

Mad About Moonshine

RKO (Edgar Kennedy) 19 Mins.

Substantial comedy fare. Edgar Kennedy's father-in-law inherits a southern "estate." On arrival, Kennedy, his wife and in-law run into a feuding mountain family who make things hot with rifle fire. Then the law steps in and arrests Kennedy, who has taken over, because he has a cellar full of moonshine.

The Little Whirlwind

RKO-Disney 8 Mins.

(Mickey Mouse-Technicolor)

Fine. Mickey visits Minnie while she's baking a cake. His appetite whetted, he must rake up the leaves in her back yard to get a slice. A young whirlwind appears and tosses Mickey and the leaves around. Mickey gets tough, chases little wind off, but comes back on the double with Mama Wind in pursuit. Mama Wind wrecks Minnie's place. Mickey gets the cake, right in the puss.

Proof of the Pudding

(Technicolor)

Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. 10 Mins.

Painlessly getting its message over, this commercial item with white rats, charts, actors, fruits and vegetables, the latter real and drawn in, deals with proper nutrition and the healthy life derived therefrom. The reel is available gratis, express paid plus free accessories. Women, particularly, will take interest.

Quiet, Pleeze

Paramount (Popeye) 7 Mins.

Good. Popeye's father has a mean hangover. Enlisting his son's aid, the old man has a bit of rest and quiet—the seagoing offspring performing astounding feats of strength with various city noisemakers. After Popeye works up a sweat keeping things peaceable, he returns to find Pappy having a high old time, all over again, with the neighbors.

Canine Sketches

Paramount (Sportlight) 10 Mins.

Excellent. In beautifully handled sequences, dogs modelling for Lynn Bogue Hunt, the artist, come to life off the canvas and are shown in the field doing championship style bird pointing and retrieving. From artist's studio to sports afield, the subject is a treat. It's all too brief.

Popular Science

Paramount (Series JO-4) 11 Mins.

Very good. Again this series delivers. From the raising of quail in Oklahoma to a flight aboard the Stratoliner, with way stops in plastics, rayon fabrication and Prof. Oakes horsing around with a Rube Goldbergian contraption, every foot of the way is interesting, entertaining and enlightening.

Fishing Fever

Paramount (Sportlight) 10 Mins.

Very good. All who fish will get a kick out of this one. Even if they don't they'll enjoy seeing (1) Ted Husing's performance with a fly rod; (2) Frances Langford and husband, Jon Hall, hooking big ones in the pacific; (3) Guy and Mrs. Kibbee landing whoppers in an Oregon river. The aforementioned, and others, make a highly diverting short.

Movie Magic

Columbia (Cinescope) 10 Mins.

Fair. Best part of this reel is a sequence filmed in the shop of a craftsman who makes the gadgets with which magicians effect their illusions. Max Factor's lipstick plant is also seen.

Screen Snapshots

Columbia (Series 20, No. 6) 10 Mins.

Good. A cut better than the usual offering, this issue features Larry Simms, the "Baby Dumpling" of the "Blondie" series who takes the audience to army and navy training stations where recruits are entertained by Abbott and Costello, Burns and Allen and Rita Hayworth, who leads a conga line.

The Streamlined Donkey

Columbia (Fable Cartoon) 7 Mins.

Worthwhile. A fantasy, this has more human interest and light banter than the usual offering. A young donkey refuses to be a dope and toe in line like his species. His mother is broken-hearted. She falls into the hands of a Simon Legree prospector who works her to the bone. Sonny rescues her. Later she sees things through the youngster's eyes. It's all told very nicely.

So Long Mr. Chumps

Columbia (Three Stooges) 17 Mins.

Average. Larry, Moe and Curly range from street cleaning to jailbirds here. In attempting to find an honest man they get themselves arrested, have a hectic time in jail with paint pots, balls and chains, rocks and hammers. They try to escape. Leaving the calaboose they meet their employer on the way in and so back to the rockpile. Devotees of the trio's deviltry will respond.

Going Places

Universal (No. 88) 9 Mins.

Interesting. Subtitled "Deserts of America," this issue has interesting footage showing wastelands from Maine to California with tourist attractions and sport found in the various localities. It manages to hold interest throughout. The subject is indeed unusual.

Ice Capers

Columbia (World of Sport) 10 Mins.

Good. Irving Jaffee shows his skill at ice skating at Grossinger Lake. There is a substantial amount of interesting information about the proper technique and a good deal of clowning, also by Jaffee. Footage inclines toward being tiresome due to constant backtracking over the same ground.

Sky Sailing

Vitaphone 10 Mins.

(Sports Parade—in color)

First rate. Sailplane gliding, something rarely touched upon in similar series. The action, narration and color all contribute to making this item an all-around good number for all audiences.

Date at side of column is week ending. Number in square is national release date. Production number is at right. Running time, as furnished by home office of distributor, follows title. As local conditions, such as censorship, subject this to change, checkup with local exchanges is recommended. R—is review date. PG—is Picture Guide page number. Symbol ✪ indicates BOXOFFICE Blue Ribbon Award Winner. Symbol ⊙ indicates color photography.
